

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

3 3433 08231426 5

APR 18 1914

Frank. Beardlee

Aug. 8. 02

A NEW LATIN-ENGLISH SCHOOL-LEXICON.

ON THE BASIS OF THE LATIN-GERMAN LEXICON OF DR. C. F. INGERSLEV.

BY

G. R. CROOKS, D.D.

LATE ADJUNCT-PROFESSOR OF ANCIENT LANGUAGES IN DICKINSON COLLEGE,

AND

A. J. SCHEM, A.M.,

PROFESSOR OF HEBREW AND MODERN LANGUAGES IN DICKINSON COLLEGE.

PHILADELPHIA:

J. B. LIPPINCOTT & CO.

1867.

Entered, according to the Act of Congress, in the year 1858, by
J. B. LIPPINCOTT & CO.,
 clerk's Office of the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania.

ADVERTISEMENT

THE authors of the present work had at first the intention of preparing, for American schools and colleges, a translation of the excellent Latin-German School-Lexicon of PROFESSOR INGERSLEV. The plan of the work seemed to them to be a decided improvement in Latin lexicography, and to meet more fully than its predecessors the wants of students. They had not proceeded far, however, in their labours, before they became aware of the necessity of recasting many of the articles, and of adding new ones. They decided therefore to prepare an entirely independent work, using the lexicon of INGERSLEV only as a basis. For this purpose, the whole of lexical literature has been carefully examined—especially the recent works of DR. W. SMITH, GEORGES (the last edition of 1855), KOCH and KLOTZ,—from all of which numerous suggestions have been derived, and additions made.

The School-Lexicon of PROF. INGERSLEV has met, in Germany, with extraordinary success, as appears from the encomiums of eminent German scholars. The praises of the critics are especially bestowed upon the excellence of INGERSLEV's plan. We have taken great pains to preserve for our work all of the characteristic features of this plan, and at the same time to improve it in the execution of details. We annex an exposition of its leading traits; we add also a list of the Latin authors whose words are defined and illustrated, some recommendations from distinguished German and American scholars, and specimen pages, selected from several letters of the alphabet.

P R E F A C E .

THE authors of the present work had at first the intention of preparing for American schools and colleges, a translation of the excellent Latin-German School-Lexicon of PROFESSOR INGERSLEV. The plan of the work seemed to them to be a decided improvement in Latin lexicography, and to meet more fully than its predecessors the wants of students. They had not proceeded far, however, in their labours, before they became aware of the necessity of recasting many of the articles, and of adding new ones. They decided, therefore, to prepare an entirely independent work, using the lexicon of INGERSLEV only as a basis. For this purpose, the whole of lexical literature has been carefully examined — especially the recent works of DR. W. SMITH, GEORGES (the edition of 1855), KOCH and KLOTZ, — from all of which numerous suggestions have been derived, and additions made.

The School-Lexicon of PROF. INGERSLEV has met, in Germany, with extraordinary success, as appears from the encomiums of eminent German scholars. The praises of the critics are especially bestowed upon the excellence of INGERSLEV's plan. We have taken great pains to preserve for our work all of the characteristic features of his method, and at the same time to improve it in the execution of details. The Exposition which we annex, will explain the character of these improvements, and also describe more fully the plan itself.

EXPOSITION OF THE PLAN OF THE WORK.

I.—GENERAL STATEMENT.

THE WANT AIMED TO BE SUPPLIED.

It has been the aim of the authors of this work, to make it conform precisely to its title—that of a School-Lexicon. In executing this purpose, they have endeavoured to keep in view the wants of students, rather than those of teachers and philologists, and to prepare a hand-book for daily use, rather than a work of reference for the scholar's library. Experience has shown that the wants of students and teachers are not the same. Much in a lexicon which may be desirable and useful for the latter, is entirely superfluous for the former. And yet, the matter in larger lexicons, which students do not and cannot use, is an impediment to their obtaining the information which they are seeking. For instance, if the article REBO contains five columns, four of which are unavailable, the remaining amount of one column, being scattered throughout the entire article, is mastered with great difficulty. The larger Latin lexicons, which aim at a full exposition of all Latin usage, are, therefore, in our judgment, too cumbersome for the youth who are passing through our colleges and higher schools. The authors have thought, that a work, which, while constructed on strictly scientific principles, and embracing all the results of recent investigations, should be at the same time thoroughly practical, would be better suited to the wants of under-graduates—of all, indeed, who are not prepared for extended researches. A school-lexicon will, therefore, be best formed, by excluding matter not needed by those who are still in the school, and by including, and devoting special attention to, other matter, of more importance to them. How, we conceive, this may be done, we proceed to show.

1. WHAT MAY BE EXCLUDED FROM A SCHOOL-LEXICON?

What writers may be omitted.

Latin authors who are never read in schools, and whom ninety-nine out of a hundred students never read in their lives, may be, very properly, excluded from a school-lexicon, and the hundredth student referred to a larger work. On this principle, such a lexicon may omit the writers who come after the Silver Age of Latin literature, and whose works cannot be appealed to as models of style; especially may it reject the Latin of the Church Fathers, and that of the Middle Ages, both of which frequently deviate, in signification, from classical usage, and yet are apt to be confounded therewith, when an article is rapidly glanced over. It may exclude writers upon some technical subjects, such as medicine, architecture, agriculture, &c.; and, for moral reasons, much of the vocabulary of such writers as Martial and Petronius Arbiter.

By omitting the classes of writers above named, the Lexicon is made a standard of pure Latinity, and words and idioms found therein may be accepted as having the sanction of good usage. This is a matter of prime importance in Latin composition, which every scholar will at once appreciate. In accordance with these views, the scope of our work embraces those fragments of ancient writers (Ennius, Accius, &c.) which are quoted by classic authors; all the words of Lucretius, Plautus and Terence, and nearly all the writers of the Golden and Silver ages of Roman literature (extending to about 117 A. D.). Of later writers, i. e., those living in and after the second half of the second century, the words of Justinus, Gellius, and Eutropius, have been embodied in our work, because these are occasionally used in schools, and for private reading.

What other matter may be excluded.

Again, it is of importance that illustrative examples should be presented in such a shape as to be easily translated. The citations usually given in larger lexicons are, owing to their complexity, of little or no use to any but finished scholars, and hence they are merely glanced at, or entirely passed over, by most school and college students, to whom, however, they are all-important. The authors believe, that by rejecting the superfluous portions of citations, all that is essential in illustration of definitions may be retained, and made available and even inviting to students of ordinary diligence. Very many citations, involving a peculiar use of the words defined, have been translated. In translating examples, the original Latin writers have been carefully consulted, and it is hoped that this portion of the work will be found eminently useful.

2. WHAT SHOULD BE INCLUDED IN A SCHOOL-LEXICON?

Particular attention should be given to classic prose-writers and poets.

In the explication of words, special attention should be given to those prose-writers and poets who are universally acknowledged to be the first among the classic writers of Latin literature, and as the most important to be read in colleges and schools; i. e., Cicero, Sallust, Nepos, Cæsar, Livy, and Tacitus, of the prose-writers, and Horace, Virgil, and Ovid, among the poets. Every passage in their works, peculiar or important lexicographically, should be clearly explained. Our lexicon will be found to be very copious in this respect.

Synonymous words should be distinguished.

Nothing adds more to the clear apprehension of a word, than the determination of those specialities of meaning by which it is distinguished from terms of kindred signification; and, as very few students are in the habit of consulting a dictionary of synonyms, it is of the first importance, that the school-lexicon should embrace whatever is essential in this matter. While fanciful distinctions have been rejected, care has been taken to present, in as concise a manner as possible, those which appear to be grounded in the usage of the language. In preparing this part of our work, the best authorities have been widely consulted and compared.

Etymologies should be given.

The etymology of each word should be traced, wherever it can be done with reasonable accuracy. This is a feature not only of great interest, but indispensable to an accurate knowledge of the structure of a language. The comparison of Latin root-words with similar roots in kindred languages, will also introduce the student to a highly important science of modern origin, comparative linguistics. The Latin-English Dictionary of Dr. W. SMITH has the merit of having, better than any of its predecessors, employed the great discoveries of this new science. The German work of GEORGE — especially the recent edition — contains valuable etymological matter. The materials furnished by these two scholars have been carefully examined by us, and the etymological department of the work of INGERSLEV has been, thus, considerably enlarged and improved.

Proper names should be noticed and briefly defined.

A school-dictionary, in our opinion, should not exclude, as has been proposed by some, the proper names of ancient mythology, history, and geography, which occur in Latin writers. The student expects to find, in his school-lexicon, the necessary aids for translating; and it will, doubtless, save him much time, if he is not compelled to seek in other works (such as dictionaries of antiquities, biography, mythology, and geography) the information which is indispensably necessary to him. Still more is this true of adjectives derived from proper names. Beginners cannot be expected to know the significations of these, if they are found in no dictionary; neither can they be expected to understand, without definition and explanation, the figurative senses in which adjectives derived from proper names are so frequently used. Our work aims to give a brief explanation of all proper names of any importance. In geographical articles, the modern names of cities, rivers, mountains, &c., are added, where they are known. Adjectives derived from proper names, are given, as separate articles, in their alphabetical order.

II.—THE ARRANGEMENT OF THE ARTICLES, SEPARATELY CONSIDERED.

1. LOGICAL ARRANGEMENT.

In the treatment of words, it is all-important to follow the order of development (wherever it can be ascertained), in accordance with which the various significations have grown out of the primary or root-meaning. In many instances, this can be done approximately only, yet the effort to accomplish it is not without its benefit. The primary signification of a word is not always the most usual; neither is it always to be found in the oldest writers. Generally it has been assumed by us that the material, concrete signification (where such exists) is primary, while the abstract meanings of each word have been treated as secondary. The original work of Ingerslev, on which this is based, is pre-eminent in the naturalness and perspicuity with which the derivative senses of words have been traced out. This feature of excellence has been carefully retained, and, we believe, in many instances improved.

A needless multiplication of divisions and subdivisions in the longer articles has been avoided, by giving the tropical usage in immediate connection with the proper signification, from which it is, in each instance, derived. To huddle together the tropical uses of a word, at the end of an article, is, to say the least, unphilosophical. To try to give them an orderly arrangement there, places them out of their proper relations. We judge that the true method is, to put the tropical sense immediately after the proper meaning, of which it is an offshoot. By this means its derivation is suggested, and its application easily seen.

2. TYPOGRAPHICAL ARRANGEMENT.

We have marked the leading significations of each word by a heavy, broad-faced type; using the Italic type for rarer meanings, for definitions, which do not so much give the direct English equivalents of the Latin, as describe its meaning, and for translations of examples. Our aim in this arrangement, has been, to present strikingly to the eye of the student the exact equivalents of each Latin word, so that these may not, by any possibility, be missed. Aided by the notation marks (1, 2, A, B, &c.), the leading features of every article can, thus, be readily ascertained.

LATIN AUTHORS,

WHOSE WORDS ARE DEFINED AND ILLUSTRATED

Before Christ.

PLAUTUS (M. Accius Plautus).
TERENTIUS (P. Terentius Afer).
LUCRETIVS (T. Lucretius Carus).
CICERO (M. Tullius Cicero).
CAESAR (C. Julius Caesar).
NEPOS (Cornelius Nepos).
CATULLUS (C. Valerius Catullus).
SALLUSTIUS (C. Sallustius Crispus).
PROPERTIUS (Sextus Aurelius Propertius).

HIRTIUS (A. Hirtius).
AUCTOR DE BELLO AFRICANO.
AUCTOR DE BELLO ALEXANDRINO.
AUCTOR DE BELLO HISPANIENSI.
AUCTOR AD HERENNIVM.
TIBULLUS (Albius Tibullus).
VIRGILIUS (P. Virgilius Maro).
HORATIUS (Q. Horatius Flaccus).

After Christ.

OVIDIVS (P. Ovidius Naso).
LIVIVS (T. Livius Patavinus).
PHAEDRVS (T. Phaedrus).
VALERIUS MAXIMVS.
VELLEIVS (C. Velleius Paterculus).
MELA (Pomponius Mela).
CURTIVS (Q. Curtius Rufus).
PERSIVS (A. Persius Flaccus).
SENECA (M. Annaeus Seneca).
SENECA (L. Annaeus Seneca).

LUCANVS (M. Annaeus Lucanus).
JUVENALIS (D. Junius Juvenalis).
QUINTILIANVS (M. Fabius Quintilianus).
TACITVS (C. Cornelius Tacitus).
PLINIUS (C. Plinius Caecilius Secundus).
FLORVS (L. Annaeus Florus).
SUETONIUS (C. Suetonius Tranquillus).
GELLIUS (A. Gellius).
JUSTINVS.
EUTROPIVS (Flavius Eutropius).

ABBREVIATIONS

FREQUENTLY OCCURRING IN THE EDITIONS OF LATIN WRITERS

-
- | | |
|--|---|
| A. (prænomen) — Aulus.
 A. (in the voting of judges) — absolve.
 A. D. (in stating dates) — ante diem; e. g., a. d. Kalendas Januarias.
 Æd. Cur. — Ædilis Curulis.
 App. (prænomen) — Appius.
 A. V. C. — anno urbis conditæ; in the year from the foundation of the city of Rome.
 C. (prænomen) — Caius.
 C. (as a numeral sign) — one hundred.
 C. (in the voting of judges) — condemno.
 Cal. — v. Kal.
 Cn. (prænomen) — Cneius.
 Cos. — Consul.
 Coss. — Consules.
 D. (prænomen) — Decimus.
 D. (as a surname) — Divus (Cæsar, Augustus).
 D. (as a numeral sign) — five hundred.
 D. D. — dono dedit.
 D. D. D. — dat, dicat, dedicat (as a formula of dedication).
 Des. — designatus.
 F. — filius.
 G. — Gaius (= Caius).
 Gn. — Gnæus (= Cneius).
 HS. — sestertii, sestertia, sestertium; thus,
 HS. X. = decem sestertii.
 HS. X̄. = decem sestertia.
 HS. X̄. = decies sestertium.
 (But this distinction seems not to have been always observed.)
 Id. — Idus.
 Imp. — Imperator. | K. (prænomen) — Kæso.
 Kal. — Kalendæ.
 L. (prænomen) — Lucius.
 L. (as a numeral sign) — fifty.
 L. — libra.
 M. (prænomen) — Marcus.
 M'. (prænomen) — Manius.
 M. (as a numeral sign) — one thousand
 Mam. (as a surname) — Mamercus.
 N. or Num. (prænomen) — Numerius.
 N. — nepos.
 O. M. (as a surname of Jupiter) — Optimus
 Maximus.
 P. (prænomen) — Publius.
 P. O. — patres conscripti.
 P. M. or Pont. Max. — pontifex maximus.
 P. R. — populus Romanus.
 Q. (prænomen) — Quintus.
 Q. F. F. Q. S. — quod felix faustumque sit.
 Quir. — Quirites.
 R. or Resp. — Respublica.
 S. or Sex. (prænomen) — Sextus.
 Ser. (prænomen) — Servius.
 Sp. (as a surname) — Spurius.
 S. C. — senatus consultum.
 S. (in letters) — salutem.
 S. P. D. (in letters) — salutem plurimam dicit.
 S. P. Q. R. — senatus populusque Romanus.
 S. V. B. E. E. V. (at the beginning of a letter) — si vales, bene est, ego valeo.
 T. (prænomen) — Titus.
 Ti. (prænomen) — Tiberius.
 Tr. pl. — tribunus plebis. |
|--|---|

ABBREVIATIONS, SIGNS, ETC.,

OCCURRING IN THIS LEXICON.

abl.	stands for	ablative.	infin.	stands for	infinitive.
abs.	"	absolute or absolutely.	in partic.	"	in particular.
abstr.	"	abstract.	intens.	"	intensive.
acc.	"	accusative.	interj.	"	interjection.
A. D.	"	Anno Domini.	interrog.	"	interrogative.
adj.	"	adjective, adjectively.	intr.	"	intransitive.
adv.	"	adverb, adverbially.	irr.	"	irregular.
ante-cl.	"	in the ante-classical writers (from the oldest fragments to Lucretius, B. C. 50).	lat.	"	in later writers (after the time of Livy).
B. C.	"	Before Christ.	Lucr.	"	in Lucretius.
card.	"	cardinal.	m.	"	masculine.
cf.	"	confer (i. e. compare).	meton.	"	metonymically.
class.	"	in the classic writers (from Cicero and Cæsar to Livy, A. D. 17).	milit.	"	military.
			n.	"	neuter.
com.	"	in comic writers.	num.	"	numeral.
comb.	"	combination.	ord.	"	ordinal.
comm.	"	common gender.	opp.	"	opposed to, in opposition to.
comp.	"	comparative.	part.	"	participle.
concr.	"	concrete.	perf.	"	perfect.
conj.	"	conjunction.	Pl.	"	in Plautus.
contr.	"	contracted or contraction.	pl.	"	plural.
coll.	"	in colloquial language.	poet.	"	poetical, poetically.
def.	"	defective (verb).	prep.	"	preposition.
den.	"	denotes.	pron.	"	pronoun.
dim.	"	diminutive.	prop.	"	properly, in a proper sense.
demonst.	"	demonstrative.	Quinct.	"	in Quinctilian.
dep.	"	deponent.	q. v.	"	quod vide.
distr.	"	distributive.	rar.	"	rare, rarely.
doubtful read.	"	doubtful reading.	rel.	"	relative.
e. g.	"	exempli gratia.	rhet.	"	rhetorical, in rhetoric.
esp.	"	especially.	Sall.	"	in Sallust.
f.	"	feminine.	sing.	"	singular.
fr.	"	from.	subj.	"	subjunctive.
freq.	"	frequentative.	subst.	"	substantive.
gen.	"	in general, generally.	sup.	"	superlative.
gram.	"	grammar.	Tac.	"	in Tacitus.
i. e.	"	id est.	tech. t.	"	technical term.
impers.	"	impersonal.	tr.	"	transitive.
improp.	"	improperly.	trop.	"	tropical, tropically.
incep.	"	inceptive.	usu.	"	usual, usually.
incho.	"	inchoative, inceptive.	v.	"	verb.
indecl.	"	indeclinable.	w.	"	with.
			=	"	equivalent to, equal to.

(*) A star before a word or meaning denotes that it occurs but once.

LATIN-ENGLISH LEXICON.

A.

A before consonants, except h; AB, before vowels and h, sometimes also before consonants; ABS (nearly obsolete), generally only before t and q, and freq. in the comb. 'abs te'; prep. with abl., denoting departure from any point (cf. ex); hence, used—

1) Of place = from, away from—a) after verbs expressing motion: venire a teatro (when one has not been in the theatre), a portu; also with the names of towns, always indeed, where the environs are conceived of, rather than the place itself, (always therefore when the discourse is of the raising of a siege); a nobis, from our house; discedere ab aliquo—b) after words signifying departure, separation, etc., from any thing: to depart, to turn aside, to expel, to separate; to desist from, to shut out, to keep back, to hinder, to refrain, &c.—c) in the expression of distance: abesse, distare a loco, to be distant from a place; mille passus ab urbe, and duobus millibus passuum, at a distance of 2000 paces from. Hence, used trop., a) in the expression of difference: differre, etc., ab aliquo; β) of distance in succession and rank: tertius ab illo, after him; γ) non ab re est, it is not foreign from the subject, not useless, it pertains properly to the subject—d) in the expression of origin, descent: from, out of, T. ab Aricia; esse a Graecia, to be descended from the Greeks; Zeno, et qui ab eo sunt = his disciples, followers—e) in the expression of the point from which any thing proceeds, i. e., takes place, is looked upon, and the like: α) a dextro cornu, on the right wing; castra munita non erant a porta decumana, on the side where was the Decuman gate; a fronte, a tergo, from before, from behind (or before, behind); a dextra, on the right side, ab oriente, towards the east, a latere = at the side of; β) stare, pugnare ab aliquo, to stand by any one, to fight for one; hoc est a me, this is in my favour, elementes simus ab innocentia, towards innocence, facere aliquid ab aliquo, for the advantage of any one (i. e., on his behalf)—f) with verbs signifying tying, holding fast, &c., where it can often be rendered, by: religatus a crine.

A.

2) Of time, from, since: a pueritia; vigesimus dies a Capitolio incenso, after the burning of the C.; ab re divina, directly after the sacrifice, a concione, immediately after.

3) It denotes the going forth from some thing or place, in other relations—a) (comp. 1, a) in the expression of the relation of cause: α) frequently with pass. verbs, and (Poet. & Lat.) with intransitives of corresponding signification, of the person acting, by: *interfici ab aliquo, and in the s. sense, cadere, mori ab aliquo, by the hand of; β) with nouns: plaga ab amico, a loss through, or which comes from a friend: injuria ab illo, done by him; niger a radiis solis (Poet.), dyed black by the rays of the sun; γ) rar. in the expression of the motive, from, on account of: hoc scribo ab amore; δ) a se pauca addidit, out of his own means, out of himself; e) it expresses the taking of a thing from another person by copying, translation, &c.: describere librum ab aliquo, transferre locum ab aliquo; legi edictum a Bruto, communicated to me by Brutus—b) (comp. 1, d) appellari ab aliquo, after any one—e) (comp. 1, e) it denotes the respect, the reference, by which any thing said is to be limited = with respect to, as regards, on the side of: α) inops ab amicis; firmus ab equitatu; paratus ab omni re, with every thing well provided, laborare a re frumentaria, to be in want of corn, defendere aliquem ab aliquo, against any one, tutus ab aliquo, from any one; β) improbus ab ingenio, in (respect to) disposition; γ) in later writers it is used in reference to the duties of a servant or an official: servus a manu, a copyist, a rationibus, an accountant, a libellis, a receiver of petitions; erat ei a libellis, he was his private secretary—d) with different verbs and expres-* sions, in which the conception of space in 1, b, receives a figurative application, such as detertere, expectare, timere, cognoscere, petere, quaerere, etc., aliquid ab aliquo; incipere ab aliquo, to begin with any one — e) in certain forms of speech, esp. in money matters, it denotes intervention, interposition: solvere, dare (pecuniam) ab aliquo, by means of (i. e. by a check or order on) any one; on the contrary, a se, out of one's own purse; legare pecuniam a filio, to leave a legacy to be paid over by the son — f) (rar.) instead of ex, to indicate a part of a number: ab novissimis unus; nonnulli ab novissimis proelio excedere, some from the place of the hindmost (i. e., the rear), according to the usage described under 1, e, a.

*ABACTUS, ūs, m. [abigo]. (Lat.) A driving away.

ABACUS, i, m. (dim. Abaculus) [Ἀβάξ]. 1) A cup- or sideboard, divided into deepened or perforated compartments, in which vessels of oil or wine were placed. 2) A fancy table, decorated with Mosaic work for costly vases and vessels. 3) A counting or gaming board, divided into squares. 4) In architecture — a) wainscoting for ornamenting a wall — b) the upper plate upon the capital of a column.

ABALIENATIO, ōnis, f. [abalieno]. An alienation of property by sale or other process.

AB-ALIENO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To estrange. 1) To alienate, to make the property of another, to sell, agros. 2) (Com.) To put away, to remove, to separate, uxorem a viro; a. picturas, to remove from the house. 3) Trop. — a) in a moral sense, to estrange, to alienate, to bring into an unfavourable or hostile state of mind, aliquem; a. voluntatem alicujus, or aliquem ab aliquo, homines rebus suis; a. Africam, = to excite to revolt — b) abalienatus jure civium, deprived of the right of citizenship.

ABANTEUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Abas, king of Argos.

ABANTIÆDES, æs, m., [Abas]. A son or descendant of Abas, used principally of Acrisius, and of Perseus.

ABAS, antis, m. Abas, the name of several men, the most considerable of whom was king of Argos, father of Acrisius, and great-grandfather of Perseus.

AB-ĀVUS, i, m. A great-great-grandfather = father of a proavus; also, an ancestor.

ABDĒRA, æs, f. } The birth-place of ABDĒRA, ōrum, n. pl. } Protagoras and Democritus, famous for the stupidity and slowness of its inhabitants.

ABDERITA, æs, m. } An inhabitant of Ab-
ABDERITĒS, æs, m. } dera.

ABDICATIO, ōnis, f. [abdicō]. A formal renunciation. Hence, 1) the resignation of an office, abdication: a dictaturæ. 3) The disowning of a son, AB-DICO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To declare one's self free from any thing. Hence, 1) to resign, to abdicate, to detach one's self from: a. se dictaturā, tutelā, or a. dictaturam; also abs., consules aa., resigned, laid down their office. 2) To decline formally, to reject, to abrogate, legem; trop. a. aurum e vita, to cast away. 3) (Lat.) A. filium, to disown; hence, a. patrem, to refuse to acknowledge as a father.

AB-DICO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) A tech. t., used by the augurs of an unfavourable omen, not to agree to, to reject, aves aa. rem. 2) In judicial language, to give sentence against: a. vindicias alicujus rei ab aliquo, to deny any one the right to demand something as his property.

*ABDITE, adv. [abditus]. Secretly.

*ABDITIVUS, a, um, adj. [abditus]. (Pl.) Removed, ab aliquo.

ABDITUS, a, um, adj. [part. of abdo]: Hidden, concealed.

AB-DO, didi, dĭtum, 3. v. tr. 1) To put away or out of sight, to remove, faces hinc, copias ab eo loco; frequently a. se, to betake one's self away, esp. to a distant, quiet, and safe place, to withdraw one's self, to retire, in silvam, ex conspectu alicujus. In partic. a. aliquem in insulam = to banish; (Poet.) a. cohortes oppidis, to transfer; natura partes quasdam corporis a. has withdrawn — from sight; trop., a. se litteras, or in litteris, to bury one's self in books (to seek a refuge in learned pursuits). 2) To hide, to conceal (prop., by putting something away — cf. condo, abscondo, celo, etc.): a. ferrum intra vestem; a. cupiditatem; (poet.) a. enseum lateri, he plunged the sword into the side, so that it disappeared in the wound.

ABDŌLŌNŶMUS, or ABDĀLŌNŶMUS, i, m. The name of a king of Sidon.

ABDŌMEN, inis, n. The fat lower belly, the paunch; trop., sensuality, esp. gluttony.

AB-DŪCO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) To lead away from a place: a. aliquem de (ex, a) foro; a. legiones a Segunto; also, abs., a. aliquem; in partic. = to carry off: clavem, filiam; freq. for the place from, the place to which a person or thing is removed, is added: a. aliquem Romam, in cubiculum; in partic., a. aliquem convivam, to take one along as a guest. 2) Trop., to turn away, to draw away from, e. g., any act, purpose, or association — a) a. animum ab illa cogitatione; a corpore, as it were, to tear away; a. aliquem ab officio; a. se ab omni reipublicæ cura, to withdraw from; a. se ab amicis, to try to forget — b) = to alienate, to incite to revolt, legiones, servos ab aliquo — c) to debase, artem ad mercedem et quaestum — d) (Com.) a. aliquem ad nequitiam, to seduce.

ABELLA, æs, f. A town in Campania.

ABELLANI, ōrum, m. pl. The inhabitants of Abella.

AB-EO, ii (seld. Ivi), Itum, 4. intrans. To go away from any place, to depart. 1) Without any statement of the place to which one goes: a. ab aliquo, ex oculis, hinc; sol abiit, has gone down. Hence, trop.—a) of time = to pass away, to go by, hora a.—b) a magistratu, to retire from an office, to lay it down (comp. abdicare), ab incepto, to desist from a purpose; a. a re aliqua = to speak no more of it; a. a jure, to depart from justice, to violate it; a. e vita, to depart this life, to die—e) = to disappear, to be lost: flamma, memoria rei alicujus, metus a.—d) non abibit si, etc., he will not come off (safely) if, &c.; mirabar, hoc si sic abiret, I was wondering if it would end this way; haec non possunt sic a., cannot terminate thus, be without consequences—e) res a. ab illo (of an auction), escapes him, is not struck down to him—f) (Lat.) pretium a., the price falls—g) imper., abi, go; a) with harshness, as if chiding, = be off, away with you; β) with friendliness, or jocosely, non es avarus, abi, go to! well now! 2) With a reference to the place whither one goes: a. domum, ad legionem, foras, exsulatum, into exile. Hence, trop.—a) abi in malam rem (crucem), go to the devil!—b) with reference to a digression or point of departure in a discourse: redeo illuc unde abii, from whence I set out; a. ad ineptias, to turn aside to trifling; non longe abieris, you need not go far (to find an example)—c) = to pass over: res a. a consilio ad vires vimque pugnantium, the decision passes over from counsel to the strength and bravery of the combatants; a. in mores alicujus, gradually to embrace; (Poet.) a. in somnum, to fall asleep; also (Poet.) = to be metamorphosed, vestes aa. in villos—e) fructus aa. in illos sumptus, were consumed.

AB-EQUITO, —, —, 1. v. intr. To ride away.

ABERRATIO, ōnis, f. [aberro]. Prop., a deviation; trop. = a diversion of the thoughts from something.

AB-ERRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. 1) To deviate, to go astray, naves ex agmine, a patre. 2) Trop.—a) to wander, to deviate from, a regula: oratio a. ab eo quod propositum est, digresses; of a painter, who, by embellishing, departs from the original, = to flatter; a. verbo, to want a word, not to hit the right word—b) to withdraw the thoughts from any thing, to forget for a time: quasi a. a miseria; nihil equidem levior nec tamen a.

AB-HINC, adv. 1) (Lucr.) = Hinc, from this place, hinc: aufer a. lacrimas. 2) More usually of time, since, ago, before this (reckoned backwards from the present): a. annos decem, and a. septem annis.

AB-HORREO, rui, —, 2. v. intr. 1) (Rar.) To shrink back from a person or thing, to abhor: a. a re aliqua, also aliquem. 2) Impropr.—a) of persons, to be disinclined, to be averse to any thing, to wish to know nothing of it, a nuptiis: animus ejus a. ab illa causa; a. a scribendo, has no inclination for writing—b) of impersonal objects to differ from any thing, to vary from, to be inconsistent with, to be contrary to: temeritas tanta ut non procul abhorreat ab insaniam; oratio haec abhorret a perona hominis gravissimi, a sensibus nostris, is at variance with; also with the dat., mos abhorrens huic tam pacatae protectioni; orationes inter se abhorrentes, disagreeing; abs., lacrimae abhorrentes, unsuitable to the time and place. Hence, α) a. a suspicione, to be free from; β) si plane is a., if he is entirely incapable, useless.

ABI-EGNUS, a, um (also Poet. abjegnus), adj. [abies]. (Poet.) Made of fir-wood.

ABIES (also Poet., abjes), ētis, f. 1) The fir-tree. 2) (Poet.) Any thing made of fir-wood— a) a ship—b) a spear—c) a letter or note (written on a wooden tablet)—d) a secta, a board of fir-wood.

AB-IGO, ēgi, actum, 8. v. tr. [ago]. To drive away, praedam; in partic., to drive away with robbery, pecus; a. pauperiem, to drive off; nox abacta, past, ended.

ABITIO, ōnis, f. [abeo]. A departure

Ā-BITO, —, —, 8. v. intr. (Pl.) To go away.

ABITUS, ūs, m. [abeo]. 1) A going away, departure. 2) (Poet. & lat.) An outlet.

ABJECTE, adv. w. comp. [abjectus]. 1) Dispiritedly, despondingly. 2) Meanly (so., born). 3) (Lat.) Negligently.

ABJECTIO, ōnis, f. [abjicio]. A throwing away; trop., a. animi, despondency.

ABJECTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [abjicio]. 1) Cast down, disheartened, animus a.; filia metu a. 2) Degraded; hence, base, despicable, abject: familia a.; oratio humilis et a., without dignity or elevation; a. senarii, sunk down to the level of prose.

AB-JICIO (also abicio), jēci, jectum, 3. v. tr. [ab & jacio]. 1) To throw away, to cast away or off: a. scutum, insigne regium de capite suo. Hence, trop.—a) to throw off carelessly, versum = to rehearse carelessly; ambitum, to conclude a period without any care, i. e., abruptly—b) = to sell at a low price, to throw away: a. psalterium, to get rid of; a. salutem pro aliquo, to sacrifice recklessly—c) to give up, to let go, to drop: aedificationem, consilium, timorem, memoriam alicujus, to forget; a. aliquem, no longer to interest one's self in a person. 2) To cast off from above, to throw down: tela ex vallo, se ex muro in mare; a. se exanimatus, to throw himself down as lifeless upon the earth; a. se ad pedes alicujus; a. belluam. Hence, trop.—a) natura ceteras animantes ad pastum a., has made the other creatures prone to the ground (opp. to hominem erexit—b) = to bring down, to weaken, auctoritatem senatus — e) s intercessorem, to dishearten, to silence — d) a. se = to lower, to degrade one's self (of a person who has given up his sense of honour and his independence) — e) a. se, also, a. animum, to lose all courage.

AB-JŪDICO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To take away by a judgment or sentence, to declare that something does not belong to one: a. aliquid ab aliquo; a. libertatem sibi; trop., a. me a vita = to wish no longer to live.

AB-JUNGO, junxi, junctum, 3. v. tr. 1) To unyoke, juvenecum. 2) Trop., to separate, to remove, aliquem, se a re aliqua.

AB-JŪRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To deny on oath, to abjure, pecuniam, creditum.

ABLĀTIVUS, a, um, adj. Gramm. tech. t. (sc. casus), the ablative case.

ABLEGATIO, ōnis, f. [ablego]. A sending away.

AB-LĒGO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To send away or forth, to remove, aliquem; also, legatio me a. ab adventu fratris, keeps me away from.

AB-LIGŪRIO, ūvi, ūtum, 4. v. tr. To waste in daintiness and luxury, to squander, fortunas suas.

*AB-LŌCO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To let for hire, domum.

*AB-LŪDO, lūsi, lūsum, 3. v. intr. (Poet.) To differ from, to be unlike, ab aliquo.

AB-LUO, ūi, ūtum, 3. v. tr. 1) To wash off, away, or out, to remove by cleansing, maculas e veste, squalorem sibi. Hence — a) trop., of moral stains: animi perturbatio abluitur, is washed away — b) torrens a. villas, overflows, washes away — c) (Poet.) a. sitim, to quench the thirst. 2) To wash, to cleanse by washing, pedes alicujus, corpus, caput.

AB-NĒGO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Poet. & Lat.) To refuse, to deny, alicui aliquid; a. adhibere manus, to refuse to apply the hands; also, a. depositum; a. se comitem, to refuse to accompany any one.

AB-NĒPOS, ōtis, m. (Lat.) A great-great-grandson (son of a pronepos).

AB-NEPTIS, is, f. A great-great-granddaughter (daughter of a proneptis).

AB-NŌBA, ae, m. The Abenau mountain-range (northern part of the Black Forest), in which the Danube rises.

AB-NOCTO, —, —, 1. v. intr. To stay out of the house all night.

*AB-NORMIS, e, adj. [norma]. Irregular: a. sapiens, who belongs to no particular sect.

AB-NUO, ūi, ūtum, 3. v. tr. To refuse by a nod or sign. 1) To refuse, to decline doing anything (milder than renuo), alicui aliquid (seld. alicui de re al.); a. pacem; a. certamen, pugnam, to refuse to fight; a. cognomen, linguam Romanam, omen, to reject; a. facere aliquid. Hence (Poet. & Lat.), spes illud a., I cannot hope for that; locus a. impetum, does not permit. 2) To deny, to disclaim (prop., by nod and gesture, comp. nego), crimen, illud factum esse; illi aa. se leges accepturos esse.

ABNŪTO, ātus, ātum, 1. v. intr. [intens. of abnuo]. To deny decidedly by some sign or gesture.

ĀB-ŪLEO, āvi, ūtum, 2. v. tr. (Not found in any writer anterior to Livy.) 1) To annihilate, to destroy, so as to remove every trace of a thing: a. monumenta, statuas, aedes, vires. Hence — a) a. memoriam, to extinguish; so, also, a. dedecus armis, to wipe away the disgrace — b) a. alicui magistratum, to take away for ever — c) a. privata certamina communi utilitate, to settle private quarrels for the sake of the common weal — d) = to abolish, to abrogate, to annul: a. ritus, religionem, testamentum; abolita et abrogata, obsolete. 2) (Poet.) To free from a bad odour = to purify: a. viscera.

ĀBŪLESCO, āvi, —, 3. v. intr. [inch. of aboleo]. To pass away, to become extinct, gratia, nomen, memoria alicujus rei.

ĀBŪLITIO, ōnis, f. [aboleo]. (Lat.) The entire removing away of any thing: — 1) An abrogation, abolition. 2) In partic. = an amnesty (a forgetting of the past): deoernere a. facti.

ĀBOLLA, ae, f. (Lat.) An upper garment without sleeves; a mantle of thick woollen stuff.

ĀB-ŌMĪNO, āvi, ātum (ante-cl.), and ĀB-ŌMINOR, ātus, dep., 1. v. tr. & intr. 1) To wish away from one's self, i. e., whatever in any thing might be an evil omen: quod abominor! = which God avert! 2) To abominate, to detest.

ĀB-ŌRIGĪNES, um, m. pl. [ab-origo?]. A people who, in remote antiquity, drove the Siculi out of Latium, and to whom the non-Greek element of the Latin language belongs = the ancestors of the Romans; used by Latin writers as an appellative noun = original inhabitants, aborigines.

ĀB-ŌRIOR, ortus, 4. v. dep. intr. (Poet. & lat.) To pass away — a) of the heavenly bodies, to set — b) fetus a., miscarries; vox a., ceases.

ĀBORTIO, ōnis, f. [aborior]. An untimely delivery.

ĀBORTIVUS, a, um, adj. [aborior]. Pertaining to an untimely delivery. 1) Prematurely born. 2) Producing premature labour; hence, subet., -vum, i. n., that which causes abortion.

ĀBORTUS, ūs, m. [aborior] = abortio. Facere a., to miscarry; trop., of books, which have been made public prematurely, literary abortions; also, of trees, which degenerate, &c.

AB-RĀDO, si, sum, 3. v. tr. To scratch or to scrape off or away; esp. with a razor, a. barbam, supercilia, also, hominem = to shave; trop., to take away, to extort, any thing from a person, aliquid ab aliquo.

ABRIPPIO, rīpi, reptum, 3. v. tr. [rapio]. To carry off, to take away, to drag away by force: a. vina de mensis; a. aliquem de convivio in vincula, in servitute; a. se, to run away; in partic., a. aliquam, to abduct; a. filium a similitudine patris, to cause the son to look unlike his father.

ABRŪGATIO, ōnis, f. [abrogo]. The annulling of a law.

AB-RŪGO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) Tech. t. After previous inquiry of the people — a) to abrogate, legem — b) to demand back, to take away, alicui magistratum. 2) Hence also, in gen., to take away; a. fidem alicui, to withdraw confidence from; a. fidem iurjurandi, to impair the credit of; scriptis nimium a., to disparage.

ABRŌTŌNUM, i, n., and ABRŌTŌNUS, i, m. [= abrotanum]. An odoriferous plant, used as a medicine, southern-wood.

AB-RUMPO, rūpi, ruptum, 3. v. tr. 1) To break off, to tear loose, to tear asunder, to rend: a. vincula; ingeminant abruptis nubibus ignes (Virg., of clouds torn asunder by frequent flashes of lightning); but, ignes abrupti nubibus (Lucr.), lightnings torn loose from the clouds, bursting out of the clouds; a. venas, to open one's veins. 2) Trop. — a) to make an end of a thing quickly or unexpectedly: a. vitam, or (lat.) fata, to make a sudden end of one's life; a. sermonem, to break off discourse suddenly; in gen., to break off, to end abruptly, conjugium, dissimulationem, studia — b) a. fas, to violate — c) to separate, to sever, ordines; a. vitam a civitate, to refuse to live in the state.

ABRUPTĒ, adv. [abrumpe]. (Lat.) Prop., torn off; trop. = precipitately — a) of discourse, abruptly, incipere — b) over-hastily.

ABRUPTIO, ōnis, f. [abrumpe]. A breaking off, a tearing asunder; trop. = divorce.

ABRUPTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [abrumpe]. Prop., torn off. 1) Precipitous, steep, inaccessible, locus, saxa; in abruptum, down into the abyss. 2) Trop. — a) a. contumacia, stubborn, per abrupta, through the opposition made by obstinate behaviour — b) procellae aa., violent storms — c) a. sermonis genus, disconnected, abrupt, initia, without proper introduction.

ABS-CEDO, cessi, cessum, 3. v. intr. 1) To go away, to depart, to retire: a. a curia; a. e fora; ira, aegritudo a., disappears; (Com.) latere tecto hinc a., to get away with a whole skin. 2) Trop. — a) = to desist from a thing: a. ab incepto, to give up a design — b) = to be lost, to go off from any thing: ne quid a.; urbes aa., are (in consequence of their revolts) lost to the kingdom.

ABSCISSIO, ōnis, f. [abscedo]. A going away, departure.

ABSCESSUS, ūs, m. [abscedo]. A going away, departure: continuus a., absence.

ABS-CIDO, idi, isum, 3. v. tr. [caedo]. To hew off, to cut off (to separate with a sharp instrument, comp. abscido), dextram alicujus; trop., a. spem, to extinguish, to frustrate.

AB-SCINDO, scidi, scissum, 3. v. tr. To tear off, to rend asunder (with the hand or the like, comp. abscido), tunicam a pectore, comas; a. terras oceano, to separate; a. venas, to open, to cut; trop., to destroy, to take away, omnium rerum respectum, reditus dulces.

ABSCISE, adv. [abscido]. (Lat.) Briefly, concisely.

ABSCISSIO, ōnis, f. [abscido]. A breaking off in the midst of a discourse.

ABSCISUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [abscido]. Prop., cut off. 1) Of places, steep, precipitous, saxum. 2) Trop. (Lat.), rude, harsh, severe, responsum, justitia.

ABSCONDĪTE, adv. [absconditus]. 1) Obscurely. 2) Abstrusely.

ABSCONDĪTUS, a, um [abscondo]. 1) Concealed, secret, insidiae. 2) Obscure, res.

ABS-CONDO, condi (seld. condidi), dĭtum, 3. v. tr. To conceal, to hide (in a quiet, careful, and orderly way, comp. abdo, condo, etc.): a. aurum, gladios, fugam. Hence — a) (Poet.) a. ensem in vulnere (comp. abdo); fumus a. coelum, veils, covers the sky, so that it cannot be seen; so also, sol absconditur, is no more visible; a. arces Phaeacum (Poet.), are lost from sight — b) (Lat.) a. pueritiam, to live through quickly (so as to lose sight of it).

ABSENS, ntis, adj. [absum]. Absent: me, absente, in my absence; sometimes the place, where one is not, is styled a. (laudetur Romae Chios absens).

ABSENTIA, ae, f. [absum]. Absence.

AB-SILIO, ii & ui, —, 4. v. intr. [salio]. To leap away, procul.

AB-SĪMĪLIS, e, adj. (Lat.) Unlike, alicui.

ABSINTHIĀTUS, a, um, adj. (Lat.) Mixed with wormwood.

ABSINTHIUM, ii, n. [= ἀψίνθιον]. Wormwood; trop. = something bitter, but wholesome.

ABSIS, idis, f. [= ἀψίς]. 1) An arch, vault. 2) The orbit of a planet.

AB-SISTO, stiti, —, 3. v. intr. 1) To go away, to step aside, ab signis; (poet.) a. limine; imago a., disappears; scintillae aa., leap, fly. 2) To desist from, to leave off, obsidione; a. sequendo, to cease pursuing; a. benefacere illis.

ABSŌLŪTE, adv. with comp. and sup. [absolutus]. 1) Completely, perfectly. 2) Unconditionally, directly.

ABSŌLŪTIO, ōnis, f. [absolvo]. 1) An acquittal, declaring one free: a. majestatis, from the charge of high treason. 2) Perfection, consummation, 3) In rhetoric, completeness.

ABSOLUTORIUS, a, um, adj. [absolve]. (Lat.) Pertaining to an acquittal.

ABSOLUTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of absolve]. 1) Accomplished, finished, complete, often in the comb. 'perfectus atque absolutus.' 2) Without limitation, unconditional, absolute, necessitudo.

AB-SOLVO, vi, ūtum, 8. v. tr. 1) *Prop., to set loose from, to disengage:—*1) (Com.) To dispatch, to dismiss, aliquem brevi; in partic., to dismiss a creditor by paying him, to pay off. 2) To set free, to deliver: a. se ab aliquo, populum bello; also (lat.), a. aliquem timoris. 3) To acquit, to absolve from a charge: a. aliquem injuriarum, capitis, de praevicatione; absolvit eum Veneri = absolved him from his obligation to Venus (i. e., to her temple). 4) In partic., of a work of art: to complete, to make perfect (comp. perficere); a. beneficium, to make complete; trop., of a historical recital: a. aliquid paucis, to relate briefly, a. de re, to finish the story.

AB-SÖNUS, a, um, adj. 1) Discordant, deviating from the right tone. 2) Trop., Not agreeing with, not agreeing with: motus a. voce, also dicta a. fortunis (dat.); abs. = unfit, unsuitable.

AB-SORBEO, bui (seld. psi), ptum, 2. v. tr. *To swallow, to sup down, frequently of a sea, &c., which takes any thing into itself, to devour, oceanus a. tot res. Hence, trop.—*a) *a. aliquem (of a harlot) = to devour (i. e., to squander) all his property—*b) *aestus gloriae eum a., carries him away—*c) ille a. orationem meam, claims for itself alone.

ABSPELLO, v. Aspello.

ABSQUE (rar., most in the Com. writ., prob. also once in Cic.), prep. w. abl. 1) (Com.) A. me (te, illo) esset, if it were not for me (you, him); a. hac una re foret, if it were not for this one thing. 2) (Lat.)—a) *a. sententia, contrary to his intention, against his will—*b) a. paucis syllabis, a few syllables excepted, deducted.

ABSTĒMIUS, a, um, adj. [tēmetum]. (Poet.) Abstaining from intoxicating drinks, temperate, hence, in gen., abstinent, vint.

AB-TERGEO, rsi, rsum, 2. v. tr. To wipe off, to dry, with the accus. both of the object which is dried and cleansed by wiping (a. label-lum, vulnera) and of the moisture or dirt which is removed (a. sudorem, lacrimas). 2) To strip off, remos = to break off in sailing by. 3) To free one's self from, to drive away, to banish: a. dolorem, molestias.

AB-TERREO, ui, itum, 2. v. tr. To frighten from, to scare away: a. homines a pecuniis capi-endis; a. anseres de frumento; a. leonem aedi-bus; (poet.) a. sibi aliquid, to repel one's self; a. aliquem a congressu alicujus, in gen. = to keep off, to deter from.

ABSTINENS, ntis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [abs-tineo]. Abstinent, disinterested, manus, homo; (Poet.) a. pecuniae, in respect to money.

ABSTINENTER, adv. [abstineo]. Abstinent-ly, disinterestedly.

ABSTINENTIA, ae, f. [abstineo]. 1) Ab-stinence, disinterestedness, integrity (it refers always to some object abstained from; but the syn., continentia, to the subject, and den. self-restraint; e. g., conciliare benevolentiam abstinentiā et continentiā). 2) (Lat.) In partic., abstinence from food and drink, hunger, fasting (= inedia).

ABSTĪNEO, tñui, tentum. 2. [teneo]. 1) Tr., To hold off, to keep back or away from, militem a praeda, manus et oculos a rebus alienis; a. vim hostium, to restrain; a. iram ab aliquo, not to express anger against one; a. se ab re aliqua; a. manus a se, not to lay violent hands upon one's self; in the s. sense, a. vim uxore. 2) Intr., To abstain from a thing: a. re or a re aliqua; also (poet.), a. irarum; seldom, a. ne (or quin, quominus, after a negation); (poet.) a. facere aliquid. In partic., a. manibus, not to use (not to have re-course to) violence; a. publico, not to go out; non a. auribus alicujus, a. ab inermi = to spare.

AB-STO, —, —, 1. v. intr. (Very rare, and Poet.). To stand off, longius.

ABS-TRĀHO, xi, etum, 8. v. tr. To draw away, to drag away, naves a portu; a. se, to de-part; trop., to draw or to turn away, to mislead, aliquem a bono in pravam, also de ore realiqua; abstrahor a consuetudine, I depart from a practice, I am drawn away from it; a. milites ab ali-quo, to induce to revolt from any one, aliquem a sollicitudine, to free from; animus a. se a cor-pore, tears itself away from.

ABS-TRŪDO, ūsi, ūsum, 8. v. tr. Prop., to thrust away; hence, to hide, to conceal, aurum, se in silvam, to betake one's self far into the wood.

ABSTRŪSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [abstrudō]. Hidden, concealed; disputatio paulo abstrusior, requiring a rather deeper investigation, treating of recondite subjects; homo a., a man shut up in himself.

AB-SUM, abui, abesse, v. intr. 1) To be absent, to be away, to be distant, a domo, ab aliquo, ab or ex urbe; a. domo et foro. The extent of the distance is often given: a. ab urbe mille passus; a. longe, multum; propius a., to be nearer. Of abstract objects: to be far from, a vero, a spe; ille longe aberit ut credat, he will be very far from believing. Hence, impera-, tantum abest ut — ut, so far is it from the fact (case) that — that rather (which latter word is very seldom expressed in Lat. by contra or potius): tantum abest ut mors malum sit, ut verear ne, etc.; so, paulum (not parum), haud multum, longe a. quin, it is not far from, &c. Sometimes instead of the second ut, there is another construction, or the simple tantum abest ut forms the sole conclusion. 2) — a) To be separated from something disagreeable; hence, therefore, to be free from, a culpa, a reprehensione; a. molestiis — b) to keep one's self aloof from a thing, to take no part in, a consilio fugiendi, ab istis studiis, not to meddle with — c) to be different, to differ from: homo a. natura ferarum = stands above them; is multum ab iis a., is by far their inferior — d) to be wanting, not to be found with a person or thing (comp. desum): mihi multa a., much is lacking to me, I lack much — e) a. alicui, or ab aliquo, not to help one, to profit nothing — f) (poet.) a. dolori, not to feel the pain, to forget it.

*ABSUMEDO, inis, f. [absumo]. A punning word, made by Pl. = a consumption, waste.

AB-SUMO, sumpei (or sumsi), sumptum, 3. v. tr. To take away. 1) Of things = to consume, to spend, vinum, pecuniam, tempus, res paternas = to squander. 2) — a) Of things: to destroy utterly, incendium a. domum — b) of persons: to kill, to carry off, fames a. aliquem; absumi veneno; absumpti sumus, we are lost.

AB-SURDE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [absurdus].

1) Disoordinantly, canere a., to sing falsely. 2) Absurdly.

AB-SURDUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. 1) Disoordinant, dissonant, vox, sonus. 2) Trop.: A) preposterous, senseless, absurd, homo, ratio; bene dicere non a. est, is not a thing to be dispised; B) incapable, unsuitable: homo plane a.; ingenium haud a.

ABSURTIS, idis, f. An island, with a town of the same name, in the Adriatic sea.

ABSURTUS, i. m. A brother of Medea, whom she killed in her flight, and scattered by pieces along the way, to prevent pursuit by her father Aetes.

ABUNDANS, antis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of abundo]. 1) Abundant, at hand in great abundance, pecunia, multitudo. 2) Abounding in: a. lactis, omnium rerum, or ingenio, copiâ rerum (so, freq., of a copiousness of thoughts or words); abs. = living in affluence, opulent; oratio a. (expressing censure), overladen.

ABUNDANTER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [abundans]. Abundantly, richly.

ABUNDANTIA, ae, f. [abundans]. 1) An abundance, a full supply of any thing, omnium rerum. 2) Abs. = wealth.

ABUNDE, adv. [unda]. Plentifully, profusely, more than sufficiently: a. magna praesidia; a. ei satisfactum est; also, a. frumenti est, there is a superabundance of corn.

AB-UNDO, âvi, âtum, 1. v. intr. 1) To overflow, to break forth from the banks, to swell: amnis a. 2) To overflow with any thing, to have a superabundance of, divitiis, lacte; trop., pectus

a. laetitiâ, overflows with joy; abs. = to be rich, to live in affluence (the syn. redundare den. such a fulness as must be blamed, comp. Eng. abundance and redundancy). 3) To be in abundance, in great quantity: omnia aa., pecunia a.; herbae aa. de terra, spring up with great luxuriance.

ABUSIO, ònis, f. [abutor]. (Rhet.) A harsh use of tropes.

AB-USQUE, prep. (poet. & lat.) = usque ab. From, even from, a. monte, a. mane ad vesperum.

AB-USUS, ūs, m. [abutor]. (Rar.) A using up, a consuming.

AB-ÛTOR, ūsus, 3. v. dep. 1) To consume, to use up entirely, divitiis, omni tempore; a. sagacitate canum, to take the utmost advantage of; a. libero mendacio, to lie straight on; (Com.) also, a. aliquid. 2) To abuse, legibus ad quaestum, patientiâ alicujus; (Com.) a. aliquid and haec abusa sunt; se abutendum praebere, to let one's self be abused.

ABYDËNI, òrum, m. pl. The inhabitants of Abydus.

ABYDËNUS, a, um, adj. From Abydus, pertaining to Abydus.

ABYDUS, i, f. & m. [= "Αβδος]. 1) A town of Asia Minor, on the Hellespont, and opposite Sestus. 2) An old town in Egypt.

ABYLA, ae, f. [= "Αβύλα]. A high, steep mountain, on the north coast of Africa (at the Straits of Gibraltar), and opposite Calpe in Spain.

AC (before consonants, exc. h) and ATQUE, conj. 1) And, with the conception of co-ordination and equality — a) when used with single words, it either unites them as co-ordinate, or, by means of it, a stronger and more important thought is added (= and indeed): ex plurimis periculis a. ex media morte; when used in this sense, etiam, adeo, etc. (and even, or rather, or more properly), frequently follow it, and also a pron., hic, is (and that too) — b) when connecting entire sentences, 'ac' or 'atque' denotes a going over or proceeding to something new, special, or strange; sometimes, to a contrast (then, in gen., ac tamen, yet, notwithstanding) — c) (mostly poet. & lat.) it connects two actions or events immediately following each other, in which case it can be translated immediately, and then: quum ad portum venio, atque ego illam video. Here is to be referred the use of ac or atque in the comb. simul a., as soon as. 2) With words which den. similarity, equality, or dissimilarity, inequality = as, than: talis honos paucis delatus est a. mihi; aliquid ab isto simile atque a ceteris factum; pro eo ac debeo, as far as it is my duty; ego aequae ac tu; perinde ac si, just as if; illi sunt alio ingenio ac tu; also (poet.), after a compar., artius a. hederâ astringitur illex, more closely than the oak is shaped by the ivy. Sometimes the word indicating comparison is wanting: sum esse amicum ratus sum a., ipse sum mihi (Pl.), as much as I am to myself. 3) When the same thought is expressed first negatively and then positively, ac (like que and et) must be rendered by but: nostrorum militum impetum hostes ferre non potuerunt ac terga verterunt.

ACĀDĒMIA, ae, f. [= Ἀκαδημία]. The Academy, a gymnasium (a pleasure-grove, with porches, shaded walks, resting places, and seats), not far from Athens, named after the hero Academus. Because Plato usually taught there, the word is used to den. the Platonic doctrine or sect. Cicero named after the A. — a) a similar place on his Tusculan estate — b) an estate belonging to him in Campania, near Puteoli, where he wrote his Academica.

ACĀDĒMICUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to the Academy (in the various signif. of the word), Academic.

ACĀDĒMUS, i, m. A Grecian hero, to whom the grove Academia, near Athens, was sacred.

ACĀLANTHIS, Idis, f. [= ἀκαλάνθις]. The thistle-finch, gold-finch.

ACĀMAS, antis, m. [Ἀκάμας]. 1) A son of Theseus and Phaedra. 2) A promontory in Cyprus.

ACANTHUS, i, m. [ἀκανθός]. 1) Bear's foot (a plant). 2) An evergreen thorny tree, in Egypt, the acacia.

ACANTHIS, Idis, f. [ἀκανθίς] = Acalanthis.

ACANTHUS, i, f. A seaport on the eastern point of the Macedonian peninsula Chalcidice.

ACARNĀNES, um, m. pl. The inhabitants of Acarnania.

ACARNĀNIA, ae, f. A province of Greece, situated between Epirus and Ætolia.

ACARNĀNICUS, a, um, adj. Acarnanian.

ACASTUS, i, m. [= Ἀκάστος]. A son of the Thessalian king Pelias, and brother of Alceste. Persuaded by his wife, he sought the life of Pelias, at that time his guest, but was afterwards slain by him.

ACĀTIUM, i, n. [ἀκτίον]. A small, fast-sailing-boat, called also scapha.

ACCA LĀRENTIA, ae, f. The wife of the herdsman Faustulus, who suckled Romulus and Remus. After the death of Faust, she married a rich man, Tarrutius, after whose decease, she gave her vast possessions to the Roman people. In honour of her, the Romans celebrated, in December, the festival Larentalia or Accalia.

AC-CEDO, cessi, cessum, 3. v. intr. 1) To approach, to come near: a. ad aliquem, ad urbem; a. Romam; freq., in Sall., a. aliquem, a. locum, as also, in the poets, a. fontes, scopulos; a. in senatum, in Macedoniam, to enter into M., in funus alicujus, to join a funeral train; abs., a. propius; also, fama a. ad nos, reaches us, a. ad aures meas, comes to my ears. Hence, in partic., A)

a. ad hastam, to step forth as a bidder at an auction. B) trop. — a) (Com.) stultitia tibi accessit, you have become a fool — b) to enter upon any business, to undertake, to occupy one's self with: accedere ad rempublicam, to begin devoting one's self to the service of the state (by undertaking an office); ad vectigalia, to engage in collecting the revenues; ad periculum, causam alicujus, to undertake any one's cause; ad bona, to take possession of property — c) to come near in resemblance, to be almost like, a. propius ad deos; Philippus ei proxime a. — d) to assent to, to agree to, alicui, sententiae, or ad sententiam alicujus; a. ad condiciones, to accept the conditions. 2) To be added as an increase: nihil a. potest ad virtutes; animus ei a., he acquires more courage; quo plus ei ætatis a., the older he becomes; pretium a. agris, the lands advance in price (opp. to ab eo); in the s. sense, plurimum a. pretio. In partic., impers. accedit, with a sentence as subject, add to this, besides: a. (or huc, eo a.) quod patrem amo; and, ad senectutem accessit ut caecus esset.

ACCĒLĒRĀTIO, ōnis, f. [accelero]. A hastening, acceleration.

AC-CĒLĒRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. 1) Tr., to accelerate, to hasten, iter, oppugnationem. 2) Intr., to make haste: si a. volent.

AC-CENDO, ndi, nsum, 3. v. tr. [candeo]. 1) (Mostly poet.) To kindle (above, that it may burn downward, comp. succendo and incendo), to set on fire, urbem; meton., a. aras, focum, to kindle the fire on the altar, the hearth; a. aurum, to make glow; a. calcem, to slake; luna accensa radiis solis, made shining, illuminated by. 2) Trop., A) to inflame, to set on fire, to instigate, to rouse up, aliquem contra aliquem, ad libidinem, in rabiem, bello, to incite to war; but, a. bellum, seditionem, to enkindle the flames of war, of sedition; a. alicui ingentem curam, to cause, to occasion. B) To increase, to make stronger and more vehement, proelium, vim venti, invidiam; a. pretium, to raise.

AC-CENSEO, ui, itum, or nsum, 2. v. tr. To reckon among or with, to associate with, aliquos militibus.

ACCENSEO, i, m. [accenseo]. 1) A magistrate's messenger, a beadle, pursuivant, sergeant. 2) In the pl., soldier of a certain kind, the reserved or supernumerary battalions, citizens of the fifth class, or (properly) numbered among the fifth class. They made up fifteen companies, and followed the legions as light-armed troops. In battle, they stood in the hindmost rank of the triarii.

ACCENTUS, ūs, m. [accino]. (Lat.) 1) A blowing upon an instrument. 2) The tone, accentuation, accent of a word.

ACCEPTIO, ōnis, f. [accipio]. An accepting, receiving.

ACCEPTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [freq. of accipio]. (Ante-cl. & Lat.) To receive, rem.

ACCEPTOR, ōris, m. [accipio]. (Ante-cl.) Prop., an acceptor, an approver, one who takes a thing for a good article.

*ACCEPTRIX, icis, f. [accipio]. (Pl.) An acceptress.

ACCEPTUS, ā, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of accipio]. Well-received, i. e., welcome, acceptable, dear (conf. gratus; acceptus is the effect of gratus); alicui, and apud aliquem.

ACCESSIO, ōnis, f. [accedo]. 1) An approaching, a coming to or near: quid tibi ad hæc aedes a. est (Pl.), why comest thou near this house? aa. suis, by means of his frequent coming; a. morbi, an attack of illness. 2) An accession, an increase — a) abstr. = augmentation, increase, dignitatis, pecunie — b) concr. = the addition, the increasing object: adjungere accessionem aedibus suis, to build an addition to; Epirus fuit a. regno Macedoniae, an appendage to; aurum jam a. est, the gold is a mere accessory circumstance (on account of the great abundance of gems and pearls which are there besides). In partic., used of presents which had to be given as an addition to the taxes due, aa. numorum ad singulas decumas. In rhet., used of an addition (a completing clause) to a definition.

*ACCESSITO, 1. v. intr. [freq. of accedo]. (Ante-cl.) To approach repeatedly.

ACCESSUS, ūs, m. [accedo]. 1) A going or coming to or near to, an approach: solis a. et discessus; nocturnus a. ad urbem; dare (negare) aliqui accessum, admittance. 2) (Poet. & lat.) An entrance, lustrare omnem a.

ACCIDENS, tis, n. [part. of accido]. (Lat.) only in plur. 1) The accidental, the unessential in any thing. 2) An unfortunate occurrence, an accident.

AC-CIDO, Idi, —, 3. v. intr. [cado]. 1) To fall down somewhere, to fall, to come to a place by falling (thus mostly poet. and ante-classical): a. terrae or ad terram, rosa a. in menas; tela aa. ab omni parte. In partic.: A) a. ad pedes alicujus or alicui ad genua, to fall down at the feet or knees of any one, to cast one's self down, to entreat one as a suppliant. B) = To reach, to come to a place: vox a. ad hostes, reached, i. e., penetrated the ears of the enemy; fama a., sermo a. ad aures alicujus, comes to the ears; tela aa. = hit (the mark, or some one). 2) Trop. — a) hoc a. in illum, falls to him, i. e., suits him — b) to fall out, to end: quorsum hoc accidet, how will this turn out? bene, pejus mihi a. — c) to happen, to chance, to come to pass (in partic., of surprising and unexpected occurrences, whether agreeable or otherwise, — cf. evenio, contingo): si quid adversi a.; calamitas a.; omnia gratissima tibi aa. Frequently, impers., a. ut (seld. quod or accus. w. inf.), it happened, came to pass that; si quid mihi (ei) a., if any thing human should happen to me, i. e., if I should die — d) (lat., rhet., & gramm. term) to belong to.

AC-CIDO, Idi, isum, 3. v. tr. [caedo]. To cut on or into, to hew down partially, arborem. Hence, trop., to weaken, to diminish, to impair, res hostium, robur juventutis, opes, copias alicujus; (poet.) a. dapes = to consume a part of; freq., res accisae, a bad state of things, disordered affairs. 2) (Lat.) To cut off, crines.

*AC-CIEO, —, —, 2. (Pl.) = Accio.

AC-CINGO, nxi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) (Poet.) To gird on, to bind on, ensem lateri. 2) To gird around or about; hence, in gen., to equip, to furnish, to endow; mostly, pass., accingor ense, accinctus facibus; abs., miles accinctus, equipped; a. se juveno, to provide one's self (by adoption) with a young man as a stay or support. Rarely, a. aliquem ad aliquid, to make one ready, to equip one for any thing. 3) Trop., refl., accingere se, or pass., accingi, to make one's self ready, to prepare, for any thing: a. se praedae, ad or in rem, to enter upon; accingere, up and be doing! (poet.) accingor magicas artes, I have recourse to, and omnes accingunt operi, lay hold of the work.

AC-CIO, Ivi, itum, 4. v. tr. To call or summon, to make come, aliquem Etruriā, doctorem filio, to procure; trop., a. mortem = to kill one's self.

AC-CĪPIO, cēpi, ceptum, 3. v. tr. [capio]. To receive. 1) = To get, to obtain, to receive (in cases where the receiver is passive; of a thing, whether good or bad, given to or brought upon one person by another, — cf. nanciscor, adipiscor, etc.): a. epistolam ab aliquo, rem a majoribus (by inheritance), provinciam; a. vulnera; a. detrimentum, calamitatem, to suffer. Hence, A) = to hear, to perceive, to learn, by word of mouth, or by means of writing: quæ gerantur, accipies ex illo; freq., accipimus illud factum esse = they tell us, the tradition informs us; accipio patres id aegre tulisse = I learn from the accounts. B) To understand, to comprehend, a. quæ traduntur; a. aliquid recte, to set forth correctly. C) In partic., in money affairs, to receive, to take in money. Hence, acceptum = receipts, income: tabulae, ratio accepti or acceptorum = the credit side; referre aliquid acceptum (also, in acceptum), to enter in one's account-book as received; alicui, to place to one's credit (comp. expendo.) In the a. manner, acceptum facere sponsonem, to make out a receipt for the sp. Hence, trop., acceptum referre alicui aliquid, to owe or be indebted to one for any thing. 2) = To take into (in cases where the receiver is conceived as active — cf. moreover excipio, recipio): a. armatos in arcem, aliquem in amicitiam, in civitatem; amnis a. fugientes. Hence, A) To receive as a guest, a. aliquem; whence also, in gen., to treat well or ill, aliquem bene, male; miseris modis, to maltreat. B) = To accept, to approve, to agree to, conditionem, legem, or rogationem; a. excusationem alicujus; a. nomen alicujus, to accept the name of a candidate, i. e., to admit to election; a. omen or in omen, to recognize as a good omen; a. iudicium, to engage in a lawsuit. C) To take a thing in any sense, to construe, to interpret, aliquid in contumeliam, in bonam (malam) partem; (lat.) urbis appellatio Roma accipitur, by the appellation 'the city' Rome is to be understood; a. aliquid aliter, to consider it otherwise than. D) To be susceptible of any thing, dolorem; res a. interitum = can be destroyed.

ACCIPITER, tris, m. A hawk or falcon; used, trop., of a rapacious man.

ACCITUS, ūs, m. [accio]. Only in abl. sing. A summons, a call; accitu genitoris, at the call of.

ACCLAMATIO, ōnis, f. [acclamo]. A calling to, an acclamation, expressive of either applause or disapprobation.

AC-CLAMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. To call to, to cry out at (as well approving as disapproving), alicui; a. aliquem liberatorem, to call one a deliverer with loud acclamations.

*AC-CLARO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Obsol.) To make clear = to reveal, to show clearly, signa.

ACCLINIS, e, adj. [acclino]. (Poet.) Inclined to, leaning on, arbori, on a tree; trop., animus a. falsis, inclined to the false.

AC-CLINO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [κλίνω]. To lean on, to incline to anything, se in aliquem; trop., a. se ad causam senatus, to join, to support the cause of.

ACCLIVIS, e, adj. [clivus]. Rising upwards, ascending obliquely (cf. declivis), via.

ACCLIVITAS, ātis, f. [acclivis]. An obliquely ascending direction, an acclivity.

ACCLIVUS, a, um, adj. = acclivis.

ACCŌLA, ae, m. [ad-colo]. A dweller by a place, a neighbour (comp. incolae), montis, fluvii; fluvii accolae (Tac.), tributary streams (which fall into the Tiber).

AC-CŌLO, cōlui, cultum, 3. v. tr. To dwell by or near any thing, locum, fluvium; fluvius accolitur oppidis, has towns near its banks.

ACCOMMŌDĀTE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [accommodatus]. Fitly, agreeably, suitably.

ACCOMMŌDATIO, ōnis, f. [accommodo]. 1) The fitting or adjusting of one thing to another: a. sententiarum ad inventionem. 2) Compliance, courteousness.

ACCOMMŌDATUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [accommodo]. Suitable, properly adjusted, adapted to: oratio a. ad persuadendum or a. temporibus.

AC-COMMŌDO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To adjust one thing to another, to lay or put it on so that it fits; a. sibi coronam ad caput, to place upon one's head; gladium dextrae, to take into the hand; ensem lateri; to gird on. 2) Trop. To accommodate, to adapt or to conform to any thing: accommodo consilium meum ad tuum, sumptus ad mercedes; a. orationem auribus (dat.) auditorum; a. alicui verba, to put words into one's mouth. Hence, A) refl., To occupy one's self with something, to apply one's self to something; a. se (animum) ad res gerendas, humanitati, to be devoted to. B) To apply to or to devote to, operam studiis; a. se ducem, to give one's self as a leader; a. se ad rempublicam, a. versum ad aliam rem, to apply it to something else. C) Lat., a. se alicui = to side with one. E) Abs., a. alicui de re aliqua, to be compliant to one in any thing; a. tempus litis orandae, to fix the time of pleading the case to the advantage of any one.

*AC-CONGĒRO, gessi, gestum, 3. v. tr. (Pl.) To bring to, dona alicui.

AC-CREDO, didi, ditum, 3. v. tr. To believe one about a thing, alicui aliquid.

AC-CRESCO, ēvi, ētum, 3. v. intr. 1) To grow to, to be added to as an increase: nova negotia aa. veteribus; fides a. rei, obtains (more) credit; nomen a. rei, gets a (new) name. 2) To grow, to increase, fluvius, labor.

ACCRĒTIO, ōnis, f. [accresco]. A growing, an increasing.

ACCŪBITIO, ōnis, f. [accubo]. A reclining at table.

AC-CŪBO, uli, itum, 1. v. intr. 1) To lie near or by a person or thing: a. juxta; theatrum a. monti, beside the mountain. 2) In partic., To recline at table, in convivio; (Pl.) a. aliquem, with any one.

*ACCŪBUO, adv. A punning word made by Plaut. (corresponding to assiduo) = lying near.

*AC-CŪDO, 3. v. tr. (Pl.) To add to (prop., by stamping or coining), tres minas.

AC-CUMBO, cūbui, cūbitum, 3. v. intr. 1) To lay one's self down at or on a place, in via. 2) in partic., To recline at table, in epulo; a. epulis divum.

ACCŪMŪLĀTE, adv. w. sup. [accumulo]. Abundantly.

*ACCŪMŪLATIO, ōnis, m. [accumulo]. (Lat.) A heaping up, the heaping up of earth about the roots of trees.

*ACCŪMŪLĀTOR, ōris, m. [accumulo]. (Lat.) An accumulator, opum.

AC-CŪMŪLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To add by heaping to something already great, still to heap upon: venti aa. arenam; a. pecuniam; trop. a. caedem caedi, to heap murder upon murder; a. alicui honorem, to overload one with honours; (poet.) a. animam alicujus donis, to offer gifts to the shade of any one.

ACCURATE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [accuratus]. Carefully, accurately.

ACCURATIO, ōnis, f. [accuro]. (Rar.) Great carefulness, accuracy.

ACCURATUS, a, um, adj. with comp. & sup. [part. of accuro]. Executed with care, careful, exact (of things — 'diligens' is used of persons), dicendi genus, oratio, diligentia; litterae a., a full (detailed) letter: malitia a., studied.

AC-CURO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Mostly coll.) To provide or to perform with care, to bestow care upon, rem, prandium, ut aliquid fiat; a. hospitem, to care for a guest, to entertain him; accurato opus est (Pl.), there is need of care.

AC-CURRO, curri (seld. cūcurri), cursum, 3. v. intr. To run to or up to, to come with haste to, ad aliquem, Romam, in auxilium; in aliquem equo admisso a., to come suddenly upon one.

ACCURSUS, ūs, m. [accurro]. (Lat.) A running to.

ACCUSABILIS, e, adj. [accuso]. Blameworthy.

ACCUSATIO, ōnis, f. [accuso]. 1) An accusation, indictment for a crime (comp. actio). 2) meton., A bill of indictment, legere a.

ACCUSATIVUS, i, m. (Lat.) Gramm. term. The fourth case.

ACCUSATOR, ōris, m. [accuso]. An accuser, a prosecutor in criminal cases (comp. petitor, actor); often, an accuser, in gen., whether in public or private cases.

ACCUSATORIE, adv. [accusatorius]. In the manner of an accuser, accusingly.

ACCUSATORIUS, a, um, adj. [accusator]. Accusatory, pertaining to an accuser, vita, mos, spiritus.

ACCUSATRIX, icis, f. [accuso]. She that accuses, a (female) accuser.

ACCUSITO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [accuso]. (Pl.) To accuse, deum.

AC-CUSO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [causa]. 1) To complain of a person or thing; hence, to blame, aliquem de (on account of) epistolarum infrequentia; ambo accusandi estis, you both deserve censure. 2) To accuse before a tribunal, aliquem furti, also illo crimine, de vi, inter sicarios; a. eum illud, to charge him with that; a. aliquem lege Sempronia, of an infraction of the S. law; a. aliquem capitis, of a capital crime.

ACE, ĕs, f. [Ἀκρ]. A town in Galilee, called afterwards Ptolemais or Acca (now Acre).

ACER, ĕris, n. The maple-tree; also, maple-wood.

ACER, acris, acre, adj. with comp. & sup. [ἀκρῆς]. 1) Pointed, sharp, cutting (cf. acutus), arma, ferrum. Hence, 2) of the perceptions of and impressions upon the senses = sharp, biting, penetrating, stinging, &c.: a. sonitus, odor, cibus; oculi aa., sharp eyes; splendor a., dazzling; a. hiems, rough; frigus, severe; sol, burning, fames, gnawing; morbus, acute, violent. 3) Of the soul: A) of the disposition and character — a) in a good sense = ardent, zealous, equus, miles — b) in a bad sense = violent, passionate, severe, pater, uxor; of animals — wild, raging — c) of inclination in gen.: strong, passionate, amor: B) of the understanding, acute, penetrating, subtle, ingenium, judicium. 4) Of other things: hot, violent, cruel, severe &c., impetus, bellum, supplicium, judicium.

ACERBITAS, ātis, f. [acerbus]. 1) Harshness, the harsh taste of unripe fruits. 2) Trop. — a) harshness, cruelty, severity — b) unkindness, moroseness in behaviour — c) sadness, bitterness of feeling, a. luctus — d) = trouble, calamity.

ACERBO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [acerbus]. (Poet.) To make harsh or bitter; trop., to make something unpleasant still worse, crimen.

ACERBUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [ācer]. 1) Harsh, astringent to the taste (opp. to mitis; cf. amarus), e. g., sea-water. 2) Unripe, uva; trop., virgo a., not grown; in gen. = unripe, immature, partus. 3) Trop. — a) harsh, bitter, violent, dominus, inimicus; a. supplicium, cruel; imperium, severe, hard — b) frigus a., sharp, biting; vox a., shrill — c) sorrowful, painful, distressing, mors, vulnus, memoria.

ACERNUS, a, um, adj. [acer]. Of maple-wood, made of maple.

ACERRA, ae, f. An incense-box.

ACERRAE, ārum, f. pl. A town in Campania.

ACERRANI, ōrum, m. pl. The inhabitants of Acerrae.

ACERSECOMES, ae, m. [= ἀκροσεκόμης]. (Poet.) With the hair of the head unshorn (= intonsus), a surname of Apollo and of Bacchus; hence, of any effeminate young man.

ACERVĀLIS, e, adj. Heaped up; a translation attempted by Cicero of the Greek word σαρπηγῆς, v. Sorites.

ACERVĀTIM, adv. [acervus]. 1) By or in heaps. 2) Trop., crowded together, briefly and compactly, dicere.

ACERVO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [acervus]. To heap up, to pile up: trop., a. leges, to heap law upon law.

ACERVUS, i, m. 1) A heap (conf. cumulus, strues), frumenti; in gen., a mass, a multitude, pecuniae, facinorum (Poet.); abs. = a pile of money. 2) = sorites, q. v.

ACESCO, —, —, 3. v. intr. [aceo]. To become sour.

ACESTES, ae, m. [= Ἀκτῆς]. A son of the Sicilian river-god Crimæus and of a Trojan woman: he founded the town of Egæta, or Segesta, and kindly entertained Æneas there.

ACETABULUM, i, n. [acetum]. A cup (properly, a vinegar cup).

ACETUM, i, n. [aceo]. Vinegar; trop., = wit, understanding.

ACHAEL, ἄραμ, m. pl. [= 'Αχαεῖ]. The Achaean, one of the chief tribes of the Grecian people dwelling, in later times, principally in the northern part of the Peloponnesus; originally, they possessed the greater part of this peninsula, and from thence planted colonies, chiefly into Asia Minor. In Homer, A. is a general designation for the whole Greek people. Their mythical ancestor was Achaeus, son of Xuthus, and brother of Ion.

ACHAEMENES, ἰς, m. [= 'Αχαίμενης]. The ancestor of the Persian kings, grandfather of Cyrus, and the founder of the family of the Achaemenidae.

ACHAEMENIUS, α, um, adj. [Achaemenes]. Persian.

ACHAEUS, α, um, adj. ['Αχαεύς]. (Poet.) Achaean.

ACHAIA, or Achaja, αε, f. 1) The north-western portion of the Peloponnesus. 2) After 146 B. C., the name for Greece as a Roman province.

ACHAÏAS, ἄδης [Achaja], f. (Poet.) A Greek woman.

ACHAÏCUS, α, um, adj. Achaean or Grecian.

ACHAÏS, ἰδης ἰδος, f. (Poet.) 1) An Achaean woman. 2) Greece.

ACHAÏUS, α, um, adj. (Poet.) = Achaicus.

ACHARNAE, ἄραμ, f. pl. [= 'Αχαρναί]. A town in Attica.

ACHARNANUS, α, um, adj. A native of Acharne.

ACHATES, αε, m. [= 'Αχάτης]. A companion and friend of Aeneas.

ACHÉLOÏAS, ἄδης, } f. [= 'Αχέλωϊς]. Daugh-ACHÉLOIS, ἰδης, } ter of Achelous; in pl.
(poet.), the Sirens.

ACHÉLOUS, ἰ, m. [= 'Αχέλωϊς]. A river in western Greece, on the borders of Acaernania and Ætolia. The river-god A. fought with Hercules for the possession of Dejanira, but was conquered by him.

ACHÉLOÏUS, α, um, adj. Pertaining to Achelous.

ACHÉRON, τῖς, m. [= 'Αχέρων]. 1) A river of Thesprotia in Epirus, which flows through the lake or marsh Acherusia into the Ionian sea. 2) A river in the Lower World; hence, in the poets, Ach. often denotes the Lower World itself.

ACHÉRONTIA, αε, f. A small town in Apulia, on the borders of Calabria.

ACHÉRUNS, τῖς, comm. The old form for Acheron; trop. (Pl.), Acheruntis pabulum, food for hell, of a reprobate man; Acheruntis ostium, of a badly-smelling place; Acheruns ulmorum, of the back of a slave, on which, because he was so often whipped, the rods, as it were, died, i. e., were broken up, worn out.

ACHÉRUNTICUS, } α, um, adj. Belonging
ACHÉRUNTIUS, } to Acheruns or to the Lower World; senex A., near to death.

ACHÉRUSIA, αε, f. 1) v. Acheron. 2) A lake in Campania. 3) A cave in Bithynia, through which, according to some accounts, Hercules dragged up Cerberus.

ACHÉRUSIUS, α, um, adj. 1) Pertaining to the river Acheron, aqua. 2) Pertaining to the Lower World; hence, meton. = sad, gloomy, vita.

ACHILLEA, or Achillis (insula), αε, f. An island, at the mouth of the Borysthenes, containing a sanctuary of Achilles—an island of the blessed, where Achilles, with others, judged the dead.

ACHILLES, ἰς, m. [= 'Αχιλλεύς]; hence also, poet., gen. Achillei or Achilli, acc. Achillea, voc. Achille. The famous Grecian hero, son of Peleus and Thetis, and father of Pyrrhus or Neoptolemus.

ACHILLEIS, ἰδης, f. An (unfinished) epic poem of the Roman poet Statius.

ACHILLEUM, εἰ, n. [= 'Αχιλλεῖον]. A fortified place on the promontory Sigeum, containing the tomb of Achilles.

ACHILLEUS CURSUS ['Αχιλλεύς ἑρμης]. A peninsula, at the mouth of the Borysthenes, where Achilles is said to have celebrated races.

ACHILLEUS, α, um, adj. Pertaining to Achilles, Achillean, especially in the comb.: 1) A cothurnus, the earnest, lofty style of tragedy, in which Achilles was often a prominent character: 2) statue A., statues which were naked and grasped a lance.

ACHILLIDES, αε, patron. [= 'Αχιλλιδῆς]. A descendant of Achilles.

ACHIVI = Achaei.

ACHOLLA, αε, f. [= 'Αχόλλη]. A Carthaginian town in Byzacium.

ACHRĀDĪNA, αε, f. [= 'Αχράδιν]. The most important part of the city of Syracuse.

ACIDĀLIA, αε, f. [= 'Ακιδάλια]. A surname of Venus, from the fountain of the same name in Boetia.

ACIDŪLUS, α, um, adj. [dim. of acidus]. Sourish, somewhat sour.

ACIDUS, α, um, adj. [aceo]. Sour; trop., disagreeable.

ACIES, ὄϊ, f. 1) A point or sharp edge: a rostri, hastae, gladii. 2) Hence, A) of the eye—a) keenness, power of vision, a. oculorum; a. incolumis, opp. to caecitas; hence, trop., a. stellarum, brightness—b) a looking at any thing, the eye in general; flectere a., trop. (Pl.) = attention, habeo a. ad eam rem—c) the pupil of the eye: B) of the soul (always with a gen., as ingenii, animi): the sharpness of the mental eye = acuteness, penetration, genius. 3) In military lang.: A) the line or order of battle (of an army drawn up in array—conf. agmen, exercitus): prima a., the vanguard; dextra a., the right wing: B) a battle: decernere acie; trop., a disputation, a word-strife, in a lawsuit.

ACINACES, in, m. [= ακινάκης]. (Poet. & lat.) A Persian sabre.

ACINUS, i, m. } A berry; esp., the grape.

ACIPENSER, ōris, m. } A costly fish (prob. the sturgeon).

ACIS, Idis [= Ἀκίς]. 1) m., A river of Sicily, at the northern side of Aetna. 2) M., a herdsman, who was a lover of Galatea. 3) F., one of the Cyclopes, called later Siphnus.

ACLIS, Idis, f. (Poet.) A small javelin.

ACMONENSIS, e, adj.; subst., -ses, ium, m. The inhabitants of Acomia.

ACMONIA, ae, f. [= Ἀκμονία]. A town in Great Phrygia.

ACONITUM, i, n. [= ἀκόνιτον]. A poisonous plant, wolf's-bane, aconite.

ACONTIUS, ii, m. 1) A mountain in Boetia. 2) A lover of Cydippe.

ACOR, ōris, m. [aceo]. (Lat.) Sourness, a sour taste.

AC-QUIESCO, ēvi, ētum, 3. v. intr. 1) To come to rest, to find rest, to rest, a lassitude, in lecto; trop., res familiaris a., is not encroached upon. Hence, meton.: a) = to sleep — b) = to die, or to be dead. 2) Trop., to come to rest, with respect to one's wishes, desires; therefore — a) to be satisfied with any thing, to acquiesce in: a. in re aliqua — b) = to rejoice in any thing, to be rejoiced by it, morte Clodii, in caritate adolescentium — c) to be satisfied with respect to one's doubts, or with the reasons adduced by any one; hence (lat.), to assent, to give credit to, aliquid.

AC-QUIRO, quisivi, quisitum, 3. v. tr. [quaero]. 1) To acquire, to get (besides that already in possession), aliquid ad vitae fructum; a. vires; a. fidem, to increase one's credit; nihil jam acquirerebatur, I could get nothing more. 2) In a general sense, to get, to procure, to obtain, sibi aliquid, dignitatem alicui; a. alicui periculum (lat.), to get one into danger; (lat.) abs. = to acquire money or riches.

ACRAEUS, a, um, adj. [= ἀκραίος]. Worshipped on high places, a surname of Juno, and of Jupiter.

ACRAGĀS, antis, m. [= Ἀκράγας]. The Greek name of the city of Agrigentum.

ACRATOPHORUM, i, n. [= ἀκρατοφόρον]. A vessel for holding unmixed wine.

ACREDŪLA, ae, f. The name of an unknown bird, prob. = the owl.

ACRICŪLUS, a, um, adj. dim. [acer]. Slightly sharp.

ACRIMŌNIA, ae, f. [acer]. 1) Sharpness of taste, pungency. 2) Trop., energy, penetration, force.

ACRISIŌNE, es, f. [= Ἀκρίσιον]. The daughter of Acrisius, i. e., Danaë.

ACRISIŌNEUS, a, um, adj. [= Ἀκρίσιδης]. Pertaining to Acrisius.

ACRISIŌNIĀDES, ae, m. [= Ἀκρίσιωνίδης]. A descendant of Acrisius = Perseus.

ACRISIUS, ii, m. [= Ἀκρίσιος]. A king of Argos, son of Abas, father of Danaë, and grandfather of Perseus, by whom he was unintentionally killed.

ACRITER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [acer]. Sharply — a) = violently, passionately, hotly — b) ardently, zealously — c) strongly, powerfully — d) = sagaciously, acutely.

ACRITŪDO, inis, f. [acer]. Sharpness; trop., vivacity.

ACROĀMA, ātis, n. [= ἀκρόαμα]. 1) An entertainment of the ear by music and song, reading or conversation. 2) Melom., a person who affords such entertainment; hence (esp. at table), a reader, a humorous narrator, or esp. a buffoon.

ACROĀSIS, is, f. [= ἀκρόασις]. 1) An assembly for hearing a learned discourse, an auditory. 2) (Lat.) A discourse.

*ACROĀMĀTĪCUS, a, um, adj., v. Acroaticus.

*ACROĀTĪCUS, a, um, adj. [ἀκροατικός] (the reading 'acroamaticus' is incorrect). (Lat.) Intended for hearing, for oral recital.

ACROCĒRAUNIA, ōrum, n. pl. [= τὰ Ἀκροκεράυνια]. A high mountain-range, running along the coast of Epirus.

ACROCŌRINTHUS, i, f. [= Ἀκροκόρινθος]. The citadel of Corinth.

ACTA, ōrum, n. pl. (very seld. in sing.) [ago].

1) Acts, finished works, aa. Herculis. 2) Public transactions of a state or magistrate: aa. Pompeii, tribunatus tui. 3) For commentarii actorum, the reports of any occurrence, especially of any public undertaking: viz., A) aa. senatus (also called aa. patrum, commentarii senatus), the record of the proceedings of the senate, in which the resolutions passed, together with the chief topics of discussion and the statements of witnesses, were set down: B) aa. publica (populi), diurna, urbana, etc., a kind of daily journal or chronicle of the news of the city, in which occurrences in the imperial family and in the families of private citizens, such as births, deaths, &c., and also resolutions of the senate and imperial ordinances (probably only their chief contents), were recorded.

ACTA, ae, f. [= ἀκτῆ]. A charming seashore with a fine prospect, &c.

ACTAEŌN, ōnis, m. [Ἀκταίων]. A son of Aristaeus and Autonoe, and grandson of Cadmus. Having seen Diana bathing, he was changed by her into a stag, and was torn into pieces by his own dogs.

ACTAEUS, a, um, adj. [= Ἀκταίος]. (Poet.) Of or pertaining to Attica, Attic.

ACTE, es, f. [= Ἀκτῆ, 'the Coast-Land']. An ancient name of Attica.

ACTIACUS, a, um, adj. Relating to Actium: from A., of laurel branches, legiones Aa., which fought at Actium, triumphus, after the victory at Actium.

ACTIÄS, ädis, f. [= äktias]. (Poet.) An Athenian woman.

ACTIO, önis, f. [ago]. 1) The doing, performing, carrying out, of any thing, rerum illarum; a. gratiarum, the giving of thanks. 2) An action, act, an activity: a. honesta, suscipere a.; a. vitae, practical life. 3) An official function, action in public life; generally, public deliberation or negotiation, a motion or proposition made to the people; thus, e. g., aa. magistratus, the laws which they have proposed; aa. senatorum, the votes of the senators at a division; a. de pace; seditiosae aa. tribunorum; aa. Ciceronis, Gracchorum, the whole public life, as apparent by their proposals, speeches, &c. 4) In partic., a judicial action: A) in gen., the suit, usually on the part of the plaintiff or accuser, therefore = the accusation, in abstr. (a. furti or de furto); intendere actionem alicui, to bring suit against any one, to go to law with one; rarely on the part of the defendant, a. causae, the carrying on of a suit: B) permission for an action at law, the admission to the carrying on of a suit; dare alicui a., habere, postulare, accipere a.: C) the form of accusation; hence, in gen., judicial forms, legal proceedings: D) the accusation in concr., the indictment, the charge: E) any particular action at law, the day of trial, altera, tertia a. 5) The outward bearing of a speaker or actor, the carriage and action of the body, the gesture, the modulation of the voice, &c. — N. B. Cic. Fam. 5, 12, the reading 'aa. consiliorum et temporum' is corrupt.

ACTITO, ävi, ätum, 1. v. tr. freq. [ago]. To do any thing much or often: a. causas, to conduct, tragoedias, to play.

ACTIUM, ii, n. [= Äktion]. 1) A promontory in Acarnania, near which Octavius (81 B. C.) conquered Antony. In earlier times, it contained only a temple of Apollo; but, at a later period, Augustus built there a town, and renewed the temple. 2) A harbour and roadstead in Corcyra.

ACTIUS, a, um, adj. (Poet.) = Actiacus.

ACTIUNCULA, ae, f. dim. [actio]. A short judicial harangue.

ACTIVUS, a, um, adj. [ago]. (Lat.) Active, effective.

ACTOR, öris, m. [ago]. 1) He who drives any thing, a. pecoris = a herdsman. 2) A doer, performer, manager, rerum. 3) (Lat.) A manager of an estate, an agent; a. summarum, a cashier; a. publicus, the administrator of the public property, the superintendent of the state-domain. 4) The plaintiff, esp. in private cases = petitioner; hence, in gen., an attorney. 5) One who performs any public act (actio), a public speaker.

6) A player of a part, a play-actor, a. primarium partium.

ACTOR, öris, m. [Äktor]. The father of Menoetius, and grandfather of Patroclus, who was from him called Actorides.

ACTUÄRIÖLA, ae, f. [actuarius], sc. navis. A small rowboat.

ACTUÄRIÖLUM, i, n. = Actuariola.

ACTUÄRIUS, a, um, adj. [ago]. That which is driven (rapidly), swift: a. navis or navigium, a light fast-sailing galley.

ACTUÄRIUS, ii, m. A shorthand writer.

ACTUÖSE, adv. [actuosus]. Energetically.

ACTUÖSUS, a, um, adj. [ago.] Effective, active, full of life and activity, vita, oratio.

ACTUS, ūs, m. [ago]. 1) A driving, a setting in motion, an impulse: fertur mons magno a., with a mighty fall; hence, meton. = the right to drive cattle through a place. 2) (Lat.) The doing, the performing, of any thing, esp. of a public or official action. 3) The outward bearing, action or delivery of a speaker or player = actio, 5, q. v. 4) An act, principal part of a play.

ACTÜTUM, adv. [uno actu?]. (Mostly Com.) Immediately, on the spot.

ÄCÜLEÄTUS, a, um, adj. [aculeus]. 1) (Lat.) Furnished with prickles, prickly. 2) Trop. — a) sharp, stinging, litterae — b) subtle.

ÄCÜLEUS, i, m. [acus]. 1) A sting: a. apis; hence, a. sagittae, the point. 2) Trop., of everything that stings or wounds — a) of sorrow: a. sollicitudinis, severitatis — b) of sharp and stinging language, bitter scorn, &c.: aa. contumeliarum, orationis — c) habere a. ad animos stimulos = a spur.

ÄCÜMEN, inis, n. [acus]. 1) A point, hastae, stilli. 2) Trop. — a) sharp-sightedness, wit, acuteness: a. ingenii, or simply a. — b) subtlety — c) deceit, craftiness.

ÄCUO, ui, ätum, 3. v. tr. [acus]. 1) To make pointed, to sharpen, to whet, sudes, serram, dentes. 2) Trop.: A) to sharpen = to exercise, to make more penetrating, linguam, mentem: B) to incite, to spur on, aliquem ad crudelitatem: C) (mostly poet. & lat.) to excite, to provoke, iram, furores: D) gramm. tech. t., to accent: a. syllabam.

ÄCUS, ūs, f. A needle: pingere acu, to stitch, to embroider; prov., rem acu tetigisti, you have hit the nail on the head; si acum qua ereres, acum invenisses, who looks carefully will find.

ÄCÜTE, adv. with comp. and sup. [acutus]. 1) Pointedly, sharply. 2) Trop. — a) acutely: a. audire — b) of a tone, sharply — c) of the understanding, keenly, wittily.

ÄCÜTÜLUS, a, um, adj. [acutus]. Somewhat sagacious or subtle, conclusiones.

ACUTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [acuo].

1) Pointed, sharp, esp. = made pointed, sharpened, by means of art (comp. acer): cuspis, sagitta, aures, nasus; pinus a., with pointed leaves. 2) Meton.: A) = acting sharply upon the outward senses, sharp, sapor, odor, frigus; (poet.) sol a., the burning heat of the sun; in partic., of a sound, clear, high, treble (opp. to gravis, 'deep'), vox, sonus; stridor a., piercing, as also hinnitus: B) of the senses themselves, sharp, fine; yet, only trop., nares aa. = nicety of judgment: C) gramm. tech. t.: syllaba a., accented. 3) Trop.: A) of intellectual qualities, acute, sagacious: a. homo, ingenium: a. morbus, febris, violent; acuta belli (poet.), perils of war.

AD, prep. w. acc. To, expressing direction or motion to a place, but not entrance into it (comp. in; opp. to ab).

1) Of space: A) in gen., to, toward — a) with expressions of motion (proper and improper), venire, proficisci, ad urbem, ad aliquem, to any one, to his house; impetum facere ad aliquem, against one; with the names of towns, this prep. is, in gen., used only where the environs are chiefly thought of, or when an adjective, or an appellative noun in the way of apposition, is added — b) it denotes situation, inclination, &c. = toward, vergere ad septentriones: B) to, up to, extendere agmen ad mare; trop., usque ad necem caedi: C) since we pass from a state of motion to a state of rest in a place — a) = by, near by, at, esse ad exercitum, stare ad curiam, jacere ad pedes alicujus; in partic., esse ad urbem, to remain before the city, of a general returning from his province, or departing thither, who, so long as he had not laid down his imperium, (espec. when granted a triumph), could not enter the city, but had to remain at least 1000 paces from it; ad omnia pulvinaria; in partic., frequently ad (aedem) Bellonae, Castoris, etc.; magna auctoritate ad (= apud) plebem esse; res famam habitura ad posteros; so ad Caesarem; ad vina, at the drinking bout, ad tibicinem, with the accompaniment of a flute, ad omnia templa — b) hence, by means of an unexact expression, almost = in, at, on, ad portem, ad forum; ad dextram, on (to) the right hand; ut ad locum miles paratus esset, at his place: D) with names of persons, to, scribere ad aliquem; hence, to denote the person to whom a book is dedicated, Ciceronis ad M. Brutum Orator.

3) Of time: A) = until, just up to, ad meridiem; usque ad summam senectutem: B) denoting, approximately, any point of time, toward, about, shortly before or after, ad vesperum, ad hiemem, ad mediam noctem; ad lucem, at daybreak: C) denoting a limit, at, on, upon, ad diem (dictam), on the day appointed; ad horam destinatum; nos te hic ad mensem Januarium expectamus; ad tempus, at the right time: D) = within, after, nihil interest utrum illuc nunc an ad decem annos veniam; videbam eum ad annum tribunalum pl. fore, after a year: E) to, for, when a limitation is indicated, ad breve tempus, ad tempus, for some time.

3) Of relations of number: A) about, frequentes fuimus ad ducentos; emi eam ad quadraginta minas (Pl.); often as adv., occisis ad hominum millibus quatuor: B) ad assem, ad numum, to the last cent; ad unum omnes, all together.

4) Of other relations, wherein the fundamental conception is likewise that of direction or approximation towards: A) it denotes the end, the aim, postulare legatum ad tantum bellum; canes alere ad venandum; ad id, for this, for this purpose: B) of the use which one makes of any thing, of that to which it is adapted, serves, pertains, res quae sunt ad incendia; quae signa sunt ad salutem (Com.); utilis, aptus ad dicendum; nihil ad nos, it is nothing to us; quid id ad me, what is that to me? C) = with regard to, in relation to, as to, mentis ad omnia caecitas; difficilis ad credendum; ad cetera, as to the rest: D) for the expression of a rule of action, measure, after, according to, agere omnia ad praescriptum; ad naturam, conformably to nature; ad similitudinem (effigiem) alicujus; ad speciem, for show; ad hunc modum, after this manner; quem ad modum, as; ad hanc faciem (Com.), of this kind; ad verbum, to the letter, literally; hence = because of, in consequence of, upon, ad illorum preces, upon their entreaty; ad ea, because of this: E) for the expression of that which is placed beside any thing for the sake of comparison, compared with, in comparison with, by the side of, vir bonus, sed nihil ad Persium: F) it expresses any thing that is added, besides, in addition to, ad cetera vulnera; ad hoc (haec), moreover; ad id quod, besides that.

5) Different adverbial phrases are formed with ad, as ad tempus, ad praesens, ad summam, ad extremum, etc.; these are treated under the various words.

ADACTIO, ōnis, f. [adigo]. Prop., a driving to: a. jurisjurandi, the binding by an oath.

*ADACTUS, ūs, m. [adigo]. (Lucr.) A driving together: a. dentis, a bite.

AD-AEQUE, adv., used only in Pl., and with negatives = aequè 2.

AD-AEQUO, āvi, ātum, l. v. tr. 1) To make equal to, fortunam cum virtute, aliquem alicui, to equalize: a. tecta solo, to level to the ground; trop. (lat.) = to compare with, to place by the side of. 2) Intr., to equal, to reach by equalling, aliquid, and (lat.) rei alicui; abs., urna equitum a., showed an equally divided vote, as many votes 'for' as 'against.'

ADAGIUM, ii, n. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A proverb.

ADAMANTEUS, a, um, } adj. [adamas].
 ADAMANTINUS, a, um, } (Poet.) Made of steel; hence, trop. — a) impenetrable — b) hard as steel, adamantine.

*ADAMAS, antis, m. [= ἀδάμας]. (Poet.) Steel, the hardest iron; trop., a hard, cruel, inflexible character.

AD-AMBULO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. (Pl.)
 To walk near by any thing.

AD-AMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To become fond of, to take a liking to any thing, to begin to love, aliquem. 2) (Poet. & lat.) To love passionately.

AD-APĒRIO, ui, ertum, 4. v. tr. 1) (Lat.)
 To uncover, to make bare, rem, caput; adapertus, visible. 2) To open, portas.

AD-APTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (only in the part. adaptatus). (Lat.) To fit, to put on by fitting, aliquid capiti.

AD-ĀQUOR, ātus, 1. dep. intr. 1) Of men: to fetch water. 2) Of animals: to go to water.

*AD-AUCTUS, ūs, m. (Lucr., doubt.) An increase, augmentation.

AD-AUGEO, xi, ctum, 2. v. tr. 1) To make greater, to increase, maleficia aliis nefaria. 2)
 (Pl.) To devote, to offer, victimam.

AD-AUGESCO, —, —, 3. v. intr. To increase, to grow.

AD-BĪBO, bībi, bībitum, 3. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To take to one's self by drinking, to drink, paullo plus; trop., to drink in a discourse, admonitions, i. e., to impress upon one's self, to take to heart.

AD-BĪTO, —, —, 3. v. intr. (Pl.) To come near.

AD-DĒCET, —, —, 2. impera. (Ante-cl.) It is fit, it becomes: ut me a.; a. te illud facere.

*AD-DENSEO, 2. (doubt. r.) } v. tr. (Poet. & AD-DENSO, 1. } lat.) To make more compact, to close together, aciem.

AD-DICO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) Tech. term, in augural language, to assent to, to be propitious to: aves, auspicia aa. 2) Tech. term, in judicial lang., to award, to adjudge, to award a thing by a decree to a person as his property, ali-cui aliquid; a. liberum hominem in servitatem (of an insolvent debtor), a. bona alicujus in publicum = to confiscate. 3) Tech. t., in auctions, or in leases, to strike down to the best bidder; therefore, to deliver over to, to sell (with price in abl.), aliquid alicui; a. regnum pecuniā. 4) Trop.: A) in a good sense = to devote, to consecrate to;
 a. se senatui, to be entirely devoted to; is mihi addictus est, altogether given up to: B) gen., in a bad sense = to abandon; a. se alicui, to surrender one's self slavishly to any person or thing, to give one's self entirely up; a. alicui fidem suam, to sacrifice his integrity to any one; a. Galliam servituti; addictus alicui, the slave of any one;
 (poet.) addictus jurare, slavishly bound to swear.

*ADDICTIO, ōnis, f. [addico]. An adjudging
 (as property), v. addico. 2.

ADDICTUS, i, m. [addico]. T. t. A debtor, who has been adjudged as a servant to his creditor
 (a bondman, but not properly a slave).

AD-DISCO, didici, 3. v. intr. 1) To learn in addition to (what one already knows), aliquid. 2) (Lat.) To learn, to hear.

ADDITAMENTUM, i, n. [addo]. An addition, appendix.

ADDITIO, ōnis, f. [addo]. (Lat.) An addition, adding to.

AD-DO, didi, ditum, 3. v. tr. 1) To bring, to put, to lay, a thing any where; a. epistolas in eundem fasciculum; a. manus in arma (poet.)
 = to take up arms; a. equo calcaria, to put spurs to the horse, frena, to put on the reins; a. alicui custodem, to set a guard over any one; (poet.)
 Juno addita Teucris, who is associated with the T. as persecutor, i. e., who never forsakes them, but always persecutes. Sometimes, the signif. of the prep. almost entirely disappears, so that, in general, the word = to give, to impart, &c.: a. ali-cui virtutem, metum, animum, to make timid, courageous; a. rebus nomina, to give. 2) To add by way of increase, to join to: a. laborem ad quotidiana opera; a. aliquid in orationem;
 a. rem rei alicui; a. aliam insuper injuriam;
 a. gradum, to quicken the pace. In partic., of an addition to a discourse or a writing: addidit etiam illud; often, esp. in the imperat., adde, add to this, besides (when the preceding thought is, by means of a new thought or circumstance, expanded, or a new reason is added): coqui, pistores, etc.; a. huc unguentarios; a. quod, besides that; in the sing., also, when several are addressed.

AD-DŌCEO, cui, ctum, 2. v. tr. (Rar.) To teach in addition to, artes.

AD-DORMISCO, —, —, 3. v. intr. [dormio].
 (Lat.) To fall asleep.

AD-DUBITO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. To doubt, to fall into or be in doubt, de or in re ali-qua, about any thing, quid dicas, what you say; res addubitatur, is a matter of doubt, is questionable.

AD-DŪCO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) To lead, to guide, to bring near or to: aliquem secum, ad negros medicum, ad coenam; a. exercitum in Italiam; a. aliquem in judicium or jus, to summon one before a court. Hence, 2) Trop.: A) to bring into a certain position or condition, a. rem ad interregnum, aliquem in discrimen ultimum; res est adducta in eum locum ut, the affair is brought to such a point that, &c.: B) to lead, to bring, to a certain state of feeling or to a certain act, to move, to prompt, one to it, a. aliquem ad misericordiam, in expectationem; a. aliquem ut, etc.; and espec., often adduci ut, to be induced, to be prevailed upon; also, freq. his rebus adductus, being induced by this. Hence, adducor (when ut credam is to be supplied) with accus. c. inf. = I am induced to believe, I am convinced, I believe: jam a. hanc esse patriam meam; in same sense, illud adduci vix possum ut haec tibi vera non videantur, I cannot be persuaded that you do not believe this. 3) To draw to one's self, to draw near: a. sagittam, when one bends a bow; a. habenas, to draw tight, to tighten, arcum, to bend. 4) To draw together, to wrinkle, frontem.

ADDUCTIUS, adv. in comp. [adduco]. More or severally.

ADDUCTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [prop. part. of adduco]. Drawn tight, contracted, wrinkled, frows; hence, of character, serious, grave.

AD-EDO, ēdi, ēsum, 3. v. inch. tr. To eat off of, to bite on, to gnaw, rem; lapides adesi, abraded by water, and hence, smooth.

ADELPHI, ōrum, m. pl. [= 'Adελφai, 'the Brothers']. The title of a play of Terence

AD-EMPTIO, ōnis, f. A taking away, depriving.

AD-EO, Ivi, oftener ii, Itum, 4. v. tr. and intr. 1) To go to, to approach, ad aliquem, Romam in jus. 2) To go to any one for some specific purpose: A) to accost, to address, to apply to, to petition for something: a. aliquem, to approach one; so, also, a. aliquem per epistolam, to address one by letter; a. deos, aras deorum, to supplicate or to petition the gods for any thing; a. libros (Sibyllinos), oraculum, to inquire of: B) to visit, to go to see: a. hiberna; a. urbes, to travel for the purpose of examining: C) (poet.) to visit with a hostile design (= aggredior), to attack, to fall upon any one: D) to visit in order to undertake the care or the direction of any thing, to undertake or to enter upon a specific business (cf. accedo): a. ad causas publicas, ad rempublicam; a. hereditatem, to enter upon, nomen, to assume, gaudium, to be willing to enjoy; hence = to take upon one's self, to undergo, periculum or ad periculum, inimicitias: E) (Pl.) a. manum alicui, prob. = to make fun of one, to tease, deceive.

AD-EŌ, adv. 1) So far, to the point: A) (ante-cl.) prop., in space, usque a. quo, as far as, &c.; trop., a. res rediit, the affair has reached such a point: B) in time, so long; often, usque a. (with donec, quoad, dum, etc., following). 2) In expressions of degree and of measure, so very, so; adeo ferus est; gaudere a. coepit ut, etc.; a. summa observatio erat; a. non (nihil, etc.), so little; non a., not so very. In the Com. writers, a., foll. by ut = so - as: adeone quemque infelicem esse ut ego sum! 3) (Com.) = moreover, besides; is tibi a. lectus dabitur ubi, etc. 4) Often, it gives emphasis to some word (espec. a pronoun, adverb, or adjective), to which it is added almost enclitically = even, indeed or just, precisely; hinc a., hence indeed; tute a. verba ejus audies; id a. malum multos post annos in civitatem reverterat; id a. ex ipse senatusconsulto cognoscite; tres a. annos, full three years. In partic. — a) ei (nisi) a., if truly, if indeed — b) atque a., and even; when a stronger expression is added, posco atque adeo flagito crimen, β) or rather, hoc consilio atque adeo amentia impulsus.

ADEPS, ipis, m. Fat. Hence — a) of men = fatness, and conseq. unwieldiness — b) of a discourse, bombast.

ADEPTIO, ōnis, f. [adipiscor]. An obtaining.

AD-EQUITO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. 1) To ride to, castris (dat.) Syracusas, in primos ordines, towards. 2) To ride close by, near by, circa, juxta aliuem.

*AD-ESŪRIO, —, —, 4. v. intr. (Pl.) To be very hungry.

AD-HAEREO, haesi, haesum, 2. v. intr. (Mostly poet. & lat.) 1) To hang fast to any thing, to hang on, to stick to; tela aa. in visceribus ejus; cuspis a. fronte alicujus; a. corpus (Lucr), upon the body. 2) Trop.: A) to be near to any thing; silva a. vineis; pectus a. lateri; tempus adhaerens, the next (immediately following) time: B) a. alicui, not to leave the side of, to stick to like a bar; hence, nomen ei a., sticks to him, i. e., he retains the name (against his will); Cominus gravis lateri a., keeps for ever closely to them: C) animus ejus nulli fortunae a. (of a very unstable man): D) ultimus adhaesisti, you have come in at the end of the poll, i. e., you have been barely elected.

AD-HAERESCO, haesi, haesum, 3. v. inch. intr. 1) Prop., but rare, to continue hanging, cleaving or sticking to any thing, to cling to: tragula a. ad turrim; ignis a., lays hold, kindles: a. in loco, to remain, to stay long. 2) Trop.: A) to hold fast, to adhere or to cleave to: a. ad disciplinam; a. justitiae, not to deviate from justice: B) of an enduring impression, ratio a., makes a deep impression; quae prava sunt, adhaerescunt, stick in the memory: C) oratio a., comes to a stop: D) hoc ad vestrum studium a., suavis, corresponds to: E) prov., in Scyllae illo aeris alieni freto a. ad columnam = to be punished as a bad or dishonest debtor.

*ADHAESF, adv. [adhaereo]. Stammeringly, loqui.

*ADHAESIO, ōnis, f. (doubt. reading.) }
*ADHAESITATIO, ōnis, f. (doubt. read.) }
ADHAESUS, ūs, m. (Lucr.) }

[adhaereo]. An adhering, adhesion, adherence.

AD-HIBEO, ui, Itum, 2. v. tr. [habeo]. To hold one thing to another, to bring to, to convey to; a. manus medicas ad vulnera, to lay upon; a. odores ad deos, to offer; a. animum ad aliquid, to direct the thoughts to any subject: so also, a. aures huc; a. alicui vincula (poet.), to put chains upon; a. alicui calcaria, fig. = to spur on any one, opp. to frenos, to tighten the reins upon any one = to hold back: a. aliquid ad panem, to eat something with (the) bread. Hence: A) trop., a. alicui motum, to call forth an emotion in any one, studium, to give one's interest to a person, preces, to offer prayers to any one; a. manus vectignibus, to seize upon the revenues of the state; a. rebus lumen, alicui voluptates, to procure; a. memoriam rei, to recollect any thing: B) of things, to add to, aliquid rei alicui or ad rem: C) of persons, to take along with, to admit as a participant, to bring with, medicum, testem, aliquem in auxilium, ad or in consilium; espec., a. aliquem in convivium, coenae, to admit as a guest, i. e., to invite. 2) To employ, to make use of, for any end or purpose, vestem ad ornatum, machinas ad tenendum, saevitiam in famulos, in salute reipublicae, where the question is concerning the weal of the state, fidem et diligentiam in periculis amicorum; a. cautionem rebus suis, in one's own affairs: a. vim, fraudem alicui, to commit, to practise, upon any one; a. modum voluptati, to set limits to enjoyment; a. memoriam. 3) With an adv.: A) to treat, aliquem liberaliter: B) a. se sic, to behave.

AD-HINNIO, ivi or ii, Itum, 4. v. intr. To neigh to, equae or equam; trop., den. the excitation of sensual desire.

ADHORTATIO, ōnis, f. [adhortor]. An exhortation.

ADHORTATOR, ōris, m. [adhortor]. An exhorter, an inciter.

ADHORTOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. To exhort, to summon to, to incite to, aliquem ad laudem, ad aliquid faciendum, in ultionem sui, ut (ne) aliquid faciat, also a. aliquem abeat; abs., a. milites, to rouse to bravery; a. aliquem de re aliqua, in relation to any thing.

AD-HUC, adv. 1) (Seld.) Of space: to this place; mostly, trop., of the point to which a person is come in a discourse or writing: a. ea dixi quae. 2) Of time: as yet, hitherto, until now (up to the present point of time); a. res in tuto est; usque a. probe actum est, thus far all goes well; *a. locorum (Pl.), up to this moment; a. non, neque a., until now not, not yet. Hence: A) (mostly lat.) in the expression of a limitation of time in the past = etiam tum, till that time; ille vidit, quot fuissent a. sententiae; scripsi (olim), me eloquentem a. cognosce neminem: B) = yet, still (the French 'toujours'), of a thing whose continuance is unexpected, or, at all events, surprising: stertis a. 3) (Lat.) Besides, further: unum a. addam; a. impudens erat, into the bargain. 4) (Lat.) Used with comparatives (for the purpose of augmentation, instead of etiam): yet, still; villior a.

ADIABENE, es, f. A province of Assyria, about = Kurdistan.

ADIABENI, ōrum, m. pl. The inhabitants of Adiabene.

ADIABENICUS, i, m. A surname of the Emperor Severus, from his having subdued the Adiabeni.

ADIABENUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Adiabene.

ADIATÖRIX, Igis, m. A king of the Comani, captured by Octavius at Actium; afterwards taken to Rome in triumph, and finally put to death.

AD-IGO, ēgi, actum, 3. v. tr. [ad-ago]. 1) To drive, take, or bring a person or thing to a place: a. oves illuc, pecus e vicis longioribus, aliquos Italiam (poet.); a. clavum in arborem, to drive into, ferrum per corpus (also sibi gladium), to plunge; a. telum, to hurl the spear to the mark; a. vulnus, to inflict a wound; (poet.) a. aliquem fulmine, to strike down; (poet.) tempus adigitur, the time approaches. Hence, a. aliquem (ad) arbitrum, to compel any one to appear before an arbiter, to summon. 2) Trop.: A) to drive one to any act or state of mind: a. aliquem ad insaniam; also (poet.), with ut or an inf. following = to compel, to force: B) a. aliquem iusjurandum or ad j. and iurejurando (sacramento), to administer an oath to one, in verba, e. g., principis (according to a form dictated by any one) = to cause one to swear fidelity to a prince; hence, adigi sacramento alicuius or in verba alicuius, to swear fidelity and obedience to any one; sometimes (lat.) abs. in same signif.

ADIMO, ēmi, emptum, 3. v. tr. [kindred with emo, demo; but the 'ad' is obscure]. To take from, to take away (without the idea of violence; cf. aufero, eripio, etc.), vincula, alicui pecuniam, militibus arma, alicui vitam, to rob one of life; a. alicui puellam, to snatch away; but also (poet.) of something disagreeable = to take away, to free one from any thing: a. alicui compedes, metum, dolores; (poet.) a. cantare severis, to forbid; (poet.) nox a. diem, sweeps it away; (poet.) ademptus morte, carried off.

ADIPATUS, a, um, adj. [adeeps]. Supplied with fat, fatty; trop., dictionis genus a., bombastic.

ADIPISCOR, adeptus sum, 3. dep. v. tr. [ad-apisco]. 1) Of space: to reach, to overtake, aliquem. 2) To attain, to reach, to obtain by toil and the overcoming of obstacles (cf. accipio, nanciscor, etc.), laudem, summus honores a populo; *a. rerum (Tac.) = potiri, to seize upon supreme power; a. mortem (lat.), to commit suicide.

ADITIÁLIS, e, adj. [aditus]. Pertaining to the entrance upon an office, sc. coena, an inaugural banquet (which was given by a magistrate or priest at the time of entrance upon office).

ADITIO, ōnis, f. [adeo]. A going to, an approach: quid tibi haec aditio est (Com.), why hast thou to go to her?

ADĪTUS, ūs, m. [adeo]. 1) A going to, an approach: a. atque abitus; urbes uno a. atque adventu captae, approach and arrival. Hence; A) = the right, the possibility, the opportunity of approaching, access: habere a. ad aliquem; esse rari, difficilis aditus, not easily accessible; facilis aditus, easy of access: B) trop. — a) the approach to a subject, the entrance upon a discussion or discourse, ab hoc adita, januaque, primus a. et postulatio ejus haec fuit — b) in gen., possibility, opportunity, access: a. sermonis, a. mihi est de illa re agendi. 2) The place through which one goes to another place, an entrance, an approach: claudere omnes aa. Hence, trop., a. laudis (of a rostrum).

AD-JĀCEO, cui, —, 2 v. intr. To lie near to, to border upon, munitioni and a. illud mare.

ADJECTIO, ōnis, f. [adjicio]. 1) An adding to, annexation: a. populi Albani; familiarum adjectiones Hispaniensibus dedit, he permitted the Sp. to receive new families. Hence, 2): A) at sales and auctions, an addition to a bid, illiberalis (the addition of too small a sum): B) rhet., the repetition of a word.

ADJECTUS, ūs, m. [adjicio]. (Ante-cl. and lat.) = adjectio 1.

AD-JĪCIO, fēci, jectum, 3. v. tr. 1) To throw to, to cast to or at any thing: a. olivas in vas, telum aliquo; in partic., abs., a. telum, to send the spear to the mark with effect; voces auribus alicujus adjectae, which have reached the ears of any one; a. rei calculum album, trop. = to vote for a thing. Hence, in partic., to turn, to direct towards: a. oculos rei alicui or ad rem aliquam, also, trop., to direct one's aim towards; a. animum ad puellam, to begin to think about the damsel (with a view to getting her into his power), ad consilium (or consilio), to fall upon a conclusion. 2) To add to: a. gloriam ingenii ad bellicam laudem; a. alicui auctoritatem, to procure; a. alicui animos (lat.), to inspire with greater courage, expectationem, to increase the expectations of any one. Hence: A) (lat.) without an accus., to add to any thing, to increase it: a. celeritati alicujus, magnitudini Pori: B) at sales and auctions, to bid more, supra a.: C) (poet. & lat.) to add a thought or statement in discourse: is a., in domo illius venenum esse inventum; in partic., impers., adice = adde.

AD-JŪDĪCO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To assign, to award, judicially, something to one as his property, alicui domum; a. alicui causam, to decide the suit in favour of any one; (poet.) a. aliquid Italis armis = to subject. 2) Trop., to ascribe something to any one, alicui salutem imperii. *3) (Pl.) To decide.

ADJŪMENTUM, i, n. [adjuvo]. A means of help, help, ad rem aliquam or in re aliqua.

AD-JUNCTIO, ōnis, f. [adjungo]. 1) A joining or binding to: a. animi = inclination towards, attachment; si, etc., nulla potest esse homini ad hominem adjunctio. 2) An adding to, addition: sententiae in quibus nulla est virtutis adjunctio, in which nothing derived from the consideration of virtue is adduced. 3) Rhet., a limiting and restricting addition to a sentence.

ADJUNCTOR, ōris, m. [adjungo]. One who adds, joins, &c.

ADJUNCTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. from adjungo]. 1) Of place: lying near to, bordering upon, locus. 2) Trop., espec. n. pl. — a) (poet.) = that which is suitable, fitting, natural — b) that which is closely and necessarily connected with a subject, an adjunct: adjunctum rei alicui (prob. also rei alicujus).

ADJUNGO, nxi, nctum, 3. v. tr. 1) (Poet. & lat.) To join by a yoke, to yoke to, tauros aratro. 2) To annex, to join or bind to, to add to by uniting: a. agros civitati, Ciliciam ad imperium. In partic., often: A) to unite, to link, a person to another or to one's self by the bonds of friendship, kindness, &c.: a. aliquem sibi, to make one a friend, socium, an associate, uxorem, to take a wife; a. se alicui, a. sibi auxilium, to obtain, to procure; a. urbem in civitatem or ad amicitiam, to receive: B) = to turn to, to direct towards, animum ad aliquid; a. diligentiam alicujus, towards one's self: C) a. fidem rei alicui or ad rem, to give credit to a thing; crimen et suspicionem potius ad praedam quam ad egestatem a., to fasten the crime and the suspicion rather upon him who has the spoil, than upon him who has only poverty. 2) To add to, accessionem aedibus. In partic., of a discourse = to add something, aliquid.

AD-JŪRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) (Rar.) To swear to something besides, in addition, aliquid, praeter commune jusjurandum. 2) In gen., to swear, to assert upon oath: ego a., eam esse filiam meam; (poet.) adjuro teque, tuumque caput, by thee, &c.

ADJŪTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. freq. tr. [adjuvo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To help, to support, aliquem aliquid, in any thing; a. alicui onus, to help only carry the burden; a. voluntatem alicujus, to promote.

AD-JŪTOR, ōris, m. [adjuvo]. A helper, an assistant: adjutorem esse alicui in re aliqua; a. iracundiae alicujus, voluntatis, a promoter.

AD-JŪTRIX, icis, f. [adjuvo]. She who helps, supports, further, sceleris alicujus; in partic., legio a. (Tac.), a designation of the first and of the second legion, composed of seamen, as subsidiaries.

AD-JŪVO, jŭvi, jŭtum, 1. v. tr. 1) To help, to support, to stand by (any one who would accomplish a thing, and whose efficiency is by that means increased; cf. auxilior, subvenio, etc.): a. aliquem in re aliqua, ad aliquid faciendum; also, a. ut, etc., to help so that, &c

3) To promote, to foster, insaniam alicujus; a. milites clamore, to inspire; (lat.) a. alicui messem, to help any one at harvest; abs. = to be useful, to profit.

ADL, etc., v. ALL., etc.

*AD-MĀTŪRO, —, —, 1. v. tr. To make ripe, to hasten, seditionem.

AD-MĒTIOR, mensus, 4. v. dep. tr. To measure out to, alicui frumentum.

ADMĒTUS, i, m. A king of Phœæ, in Thebæis, whose sheep were for a long time tended by Apollo.

*AD-MIGRO, —, —, 1. v. intr. (Pl.) To wander to; trop., to be added to.

*ADMĒNICŪLĀTOR, ōris, m. [adminiculator]. (Lat.) A supporter.

ADMĒNICŪLĀTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of adminiculator]. (Lat.) Supported by = well furnished with any thing.

ADMĒNICŪLO, āvi, ātum, 1. (ante-cl. & lat.) = adminiculator.

ADMĒNICŪLOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. [adminiculum]. To prop up, to support, vitem.

ADMĒNICŪLUM, i, n. [manus? or admineo?]

1) A prop, post or stake: ipsa aa. prolapsi, of the hands and knees, when one rests upon them in order to raise himself up. 2) Trop. — a) a means of help, an implement — b) = a support: id a. senectuti meae erit.

AD-MĒNISTER, tri, m. 1) He who is at one's hand, a servant or waiter at table: a. victus quotidiani, he who brings food to any one. 2) Trop., a helper (esp. in a bad sense), tool, accomplice: a. negotiorum omnium; a. audaciae alicujus.

AD-MĒNISTRA, æ, f. A (female) helper, servant.

ADMĒNISTRĀTIO, ōnis, f. [administro]. 1) Help, assistance, agency, ministration. 2) The management, administration or care of a thing: a. rerum publicarum; a. tormentorum, the working of; a. belli, the carrying on, conducting; abs. officia et aa., affairs of state.

ADMĒNISTRĀTIVUS, a, um, adj. [administro]. (Lat.) Pertaining to the care of a thing, practical.

ADMĒNISTRĀTOR, ōris, m. [administro]. A manager, administrator, rerum.

ADMĒNISTRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To be at one's hand, to wait upon: a. alicui ad rem divinam, at a sacrifice. 2) To give into one's hands, to offer, as a servant or waiter: a. mel in secundam mensam. 3) To manage, to administer, to take care of: a. negotium, rem familiarem, rempublicam, provinciam; a. navem, to steer; freq., of a war, a. imperium, to hold the chief command; a. exercitum, to lead; a. bellum, to conduct; milites omnis per se administrabant, adopted all measures themselves; abs. = to do one's duty, to put the hand to, to labour, neque milites sine periculo administrare poterant.

ADMĒRĀBĪLIS, e, adj. w. comp. & sup. [admiror]. 1) Worthy of admiration. 2) Wonderful, strange.

ADMĒRĀBĪLITAS, ātis, f. [admirabilis]. Admirableness, wonderfulness; facere a., to excite admiration.

ADMĒRĀBĪLITER, adv. [admirabilis]. Admirably, wonderfully.

ADMĒRĀTIO, ōnis, f. [admiror]. 1) Admiration, alicujus, for any one; admiratione affici, to be an object of admiration; as philos. term = passionate longing. 2) Wonder, astonishment, rei alicujus, at any thing.

ADMĒRĀTOR, ōris, m. [admiror]. An admirer.

AD-MĒROR, ātus, 1. v. dep. 1) To admire, aliquem, rem aliquam; often = to long, to wish for, or to strive after a thing, from a passionate admiration of it. 2) To wonder at, or to be astonished at a thing, to consider it strange or astonishing: a. brevitatem epistolæ; *a. in re aliqua; de illo a., at him, as regards him; a., cur hoc factum sit; admiratus sum quod tu scripsisses, that you, &c.

AD-MĒSCĒO, scui, xtum (rar. stum), 2. v. tr. 1) To mix with, to add by mixing: a. radicem lacti, versus orationi, sagittarios funditoribus. Hence, trop. — a) a. se erroribus, to entangle one's self in errors — b) to take in a person as a participator in any thing, to involve, to mix up with: a. se or admisceri ad consilium, in any measure; Trebatium non est quod isto (adv.) admisceas = leave T. out of the play. 2) To mingle, to intermix: aer multo calore admixtus; trop., hoc cum his rationibus admisceri nolo.

AD-MĒSSĀRIUS, ii, m. [admitto]. Trop., a dissolute man; prop., a stallion.

ADMISSIO, ōnis, f. [admitto]. 1) (Agricul. term.) The admission of a stallion to a mare. 2) (Lat.) An admittance to a prince or potentate, an audience: primæ, secundæ aa., the first, second classes of courtiers or clients, according as they were admitted to an audience.

ADMISSUM, i, n. [admitto]. A transgression, a fault.

AD-MITTO, mīsi, missum, 3. v. tr. 1) To admit, to permit to go or come to a place, to let in: a. aliquem ad capsas, lucem in cubiculum; a. aliquem domum ad se. Hence: A) = To give any thing free course — a) a. equum, to give the reins to a horse, equo admisso = at a gallop — b) (poet.) a. fluctus, aquam, to let the water flow; (poet.) aquæ admissæ = a rapid stream, admissa rota, a rapidly revolving wheel, comæ, jubæ admissæ, flowing loosely, waving; a. equum in aliquem, to ride impetuously upon any one — c) a. equum equæ, etc., to admit to copulation:

B) trop. — a) a. aliquem ad consilium, to admit one to a deliberation, in numerum, ad honores; a. aliquid ad animum, to take a thing to heart, ad aures or auribus, to listen to a thing, to lend an ear to it — b) (ante-cl. & lat.) to permit a thing, to let it come to pass, aliquid; hence — c) in the language of the augurs, aves aa. = adducit, q. v. 2) To permit a person or thing to come to one's self, to give admittance: a. aliquem ad se, and simply a. aliquem; in partic., of princes and such persons, who admit any one to an audience. Hence: A) a. preces alienius = to accept, to grant: B) to give a bad act admittance to one's self, to be guilty of it, to commit it: scelus, dedecus a. or in se a.; facinus miserabile admittitur.

ADMIXTIO, ōnis, f. [admisceo]. An admixture.

*ADMŌDĒRĀTE, adv. [admoderor]. (Lucr.) Suitably.

*AD-MŌDĒROR, āri, 1. v. dep. (Pl.) To moderate, to keep within right limits: a. se risu, to moderate his laughter.

AD-MŌDUM, adv. 1) With adjectives, adverbs, and substantives used as adjectives, very, very much, exceedingly (it is placed both before and after the word to which it belongs): a. gratus; nuper a.; also (ante-cl. & lat.) with quam after it, but in the same sense (a. quam suavis est, she is exceedingly lovely). Joined with a negation = at all: a. nihil and nihil a., nothing at all. 2) With verbs: A) (rarely) sufficiently; hence = tolerably: animi a. mitigati erant: B) very, very much. 3) With expressions of number, time, measure, &c. = just, as many as, well on to, fully, at least, to denote that something reaches at least a certain measure or number: decem a. annos habens, fully ten years old; quinque millia a. Romanorum caesa sunt; mille a. equites praemisera. 4) (Colloq.) In emphatic answers, yes, certainly: advenis modo? admodum.

*AD-MŌENIO, —, —, 4. v. tr. [moenia]. (Pl.) To besiege, urbem.

AD-MŌLIOR, itus, 4. v. dep. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) Tr., to bring, to put or to lay upon, to throw upon, to heap up: natura rupes praealtas admolita est, has piled up; a. manus rei alicui, to lay hands upon. 2) Intr., to struggle towards, to make for.

*AD-MŌNĒFĀCIO, fēci, factum, 3. v. tr. (doubtful reading) = admoneo.

AD-MŌNEO, ui, Itum, 2. v. tr. 1) To put in mind, to remind (in a mild and friendly way; cf. moneo): A) to recall a thing to one's remembrance: a. aliquem rei alicujus, de re aliqua, also aliquid (rar. with acc. of a subst.); illud non sunt admonendi, they need not to be reminded of that; admonuit eos, urbem esse captam, quanta vis esset amoris: B) to admonish = to call upon, to urge: res me admonet ut (ne) etc.; (poet.) sol a. decedere, querns (us) to depart, (rar.) admoneor ad thesaurum quaerendum, am induced to seek for the treasure. 3) In partic.: A) in discourse = to note, to mention, to remind of any thing, aliquid or de re aliqua: B) of a creditor, to dun: C) (poet. & lat.) to urge on, equos, aliquem verberibus.

ADMŌNĪTIO, ōnis, f. [admoneo]. An admonition. 1) = A reminding of any thing, the recalling of a thing to one's remembrance: a. verbi unius, of a single word; tanta est in locis admonitio = such power of calling to mind (to such a degree can places be turned to account in recalling a thing to mind). 2) = Admonition, advice, correction.

ADMŌNĪTOR, ōris, m. } [admoneo]. A re-
ADMŌNĪTRIX, icia, f. } minder, an admonisher; a. operum, one who incites to labour.

ADMŌNĪTUM, i, n. [admoneo] = admonition.

ADMŌNĪTUS, us, m. [admoneo] = admonition, but only in abl. sing.: admonitu tuo, in accordance with thy suggestion; levi a., with slight persuasion.

AD-MORDEO, mordi, morsum, 2. v. tr. (Poet.) To bite at: a. stirpem, to gnaw into; trop., a. aliquem, to cheat one, to get away his money, to fleece him.

*ADMŌTIO, ōnis, f. [admoveo]. A moving to, digitorum a., fingering (in playing a stringed instrument).

AD-MŌVEO, mōvi, mōtum, 2. v. tr. 1) To move, to bring, to conduct, near or to any thing: a. fasciolum ad nares, exercitum propius Romam, copias in locum; a. alicui stimulum = to urge on, facem alicui rei, hostiam arae, labra poculo; a. machinam, to bring near, and thus, abs., a. propius, to draw near, to approach. In partic. — a) a. aliquem ad convivium, to introduce; a. medicum alicui, to call in a physician for any one; a. oscula alicui = to kiss, filium collo, to press to the heart — b) a. diem, to hasten — c) = to bring near, to approach. In partic., admotus = near to, brought near to: Africa a. Nilo; (poet.) a. supremis, near to death. 2) Trop.: A) a. aurem, to apply the ear for the purpose of listening = to give attention to: B) a. manus, to put the hand to any thing — a) in order to occupy one's self therewith, to labour at it, operi — b) with a hostile intention, nocentibus, to lay hands upon, vectigalibus, to seize: C) a. orationem animo alicujus, to direct the discourse to the feelings, to inspire, to excite: D) more Agrippae admovit propius Neronem Caesari, brought N. closer to C., made the relationship between N. and C. more intimate; a. se ad aliquid, to unite one's self to any thing: E) a. preces, to offer; curationem ad aliquem, to apply a cure to any one; a. acumen rei alicui, to direct one's talents to any subject.

AL-MÜGIO, īvi, itum, 4. v. intr. (Poet.) To bellow to, tauro.

ADMURMÜRATIO, ōnis, f. [admurmuro]. A murmuring in a low tone, as an expression either of satisfaction or of disapproval.

AD-MURMŪRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. To murmur at, to express approval or disapproval of any thing by murmuring, to talk together in an undertone; admurmuratum est, they spoke in a low voice to each other.

AD-MURMŪROR, ātus, 1. v. dep. = admurmuro.

AD-MŪTĪLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. Prop., to clip, to shear; trop., to cheat, to fleece, aliquem usque ad cutem.

ADN., etc., v. ANN., etc.

AD-OLEO (I.), ōlui, ultum, 2. v. tr. (related to adoleo II., as its causative, and den. to make to smell, to cause to go up in smoke). 1) To burn a sacrificial offering, to consume by burning, verbenas, viscera tauri; (poet.) a. honores diis, to honour the gods with burnt-offerings. 2) Of the place to which the offering is brought, to honour with offerings: a. altaria donis, penates flammis, to keep the fire burning on the hearth where the penates stood; (lat.) precibus et igne puro altaria adolentur. 3) To burn up (without reference to sacrifice), stipulas, librum.

AD-OLEO (II.), —, —, 2. v. intr. To emit an odour or smell.

AD-OLESCENS, tis [part. of adoleseo]. 1) (Rar.) Adj. w. comp., growing up, young, homo, Academia. 2) Subst. comm., a youth, a young man or woman, in gen., from the 17th to the 25th year; sometimes without any limitation (hence here and there applied to a man of forty years and upwards).

AD-OLESCENTIA, ae, f. [adolescens]. The age or period of youth, youth, the age of an adolescens, q. v.

AD-OLESCENTŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of adolescens]. A very young woman, little maiden: (Pl.) salveto, adolescentula!

AD-OLESCENTŪLUS, i, m. [dim. of adolescens]. A very young man, youth: imberbis a.

*AD-OLESCO, —, —, 3. v. intr. [adoleo]. (Poet.) To burn: aras aa. ignibus, the fire burns upon the altar.

AD-OLESCO, āvi, ultum, 3. v. intr. 1) To grow up, to grow, puella, seges; (poet.) aetas, ver a., ripens apace, advances; a. in justam magnitudinem, in longitudinem, in solitam speciem, with reference to the direction in which any thing grows. 2) To increase, to become greater or stronger, cupiditas, ratio, res Persarum.

AD-ONEUS, ei, m. [Adonis]. (Poet.) = Adonis.

AD-ONIA, ōrum, n. pl. [= rā 'Adonia]. The festival of Adonis.

AD-ONIS, is or Idis, m. [Adonis]. A son of Cinyras, king of Cyprus. On account of his extraordinary beauty, he was beloved by Venus, but was torn to pieces, while hunting, by a boar. His death afflicted Venus with inconsolable grief. The entire story of Adonis is of a northern Asiatic rather than of a Grecian origin, and has a mystical reference to the dying and the reviving again of nature, in the fall and the spring.

AD-OPĒRIO, ōrui, ertum, 4. v. tr. (mostly poet. & lat., and almost exclusively in the pass. adoptus). To cover over, to cover, to envelop: humus adopta floribus, caput adoptertum.

*AD-ŌPINOR, āri, 1. v. dep. tr. To conjecture or to think besides, aliquid.

AD-OPĀTICIUS, a, um, adj. [adopto]. (Pl.) Taken in the place of a child, adopted.

AD-OPĀTIO, ōnis, f. [adopto] = adoptio.

AD-OPĀTOR, ōris, m. [adopto]. (Lat.) He who receives some one in the place of a child, an adoptive father.

AD-OPTIO, ōnis, f. [adopto]. The receiving of one in the place of a child, adoption (in the strictest sense, of a minor; whereas the adoption of one who was homo sui juris, was also called arrogatio, q. v.): dare se alicui in adoptionem, to let one's self be adopted; ascire aliquem in adoptionem = adoptare; per a., by adoption.

AD-OPTIVUS, a, um, adj. [adopto]. 1) Pertaining to adoption, acquired by adoption, adoptive, filius, nobilitas, sacra. 2) (Poet.) Engrafted, ramus.

AD-OPTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To choose, to select, to accept for one's self: a. aliquem patronum, socium, sibi defensorem. Hence (mostly poet. & lat.): A) to adopt: a. aliquem in regnum, as a successor to the throne; a. ramum (by grafting); a. nomen, to take: B) a. se alicui, to give or to attach one's self to a person: C) (poet.) a. opes Etruscas, to seek help from. 2) In partic., of domestic relations (opp. to abdicare), to receive into one's family, and, especially, to adopt as a child: adoptare sibi aliquem; adoptare aliquem in familiam; adoptatus patricius a plebeio, elevated from a plebeian to a patrician by adoption.

AD-OR (only in nom. and acc.), n. A kind of grain, spelt.

AD-ORATIO, ōnis, f. [adoro]. Reverence; trop. = the slavish homage (σπουδαι) which in later times, and especially under the emperors, was rendered, after the manner of the East, to princes and emperors.

AD-ŌREA, ae, f. [ador]. A reward of valour, consisting of a portion of spelt, given to soldiers; hence, trop. = renown, glory.

AD-ŌREUS, a, um, adj. [ador]. Pertaining to spelt, consisting of spelt, semen, liba.

AD-ŌRIOR, ortus sum, 4. v. dep. tr. 1) Antec. To approach any one, aliquem. Hence 2): A) To approach any one with a hostile purpose, to fall upon, to attack (mostly from the vicinity and stealthily; of. aggredior), aliquem, urbem: B) to enter upon a course of action, to begin, to undertake, any thing (esp. any thing difficult and dangerous): a. rem, oppugnare urbem.

ADORNATE, adv. [adorno]. (Lat.) Chicely, elegantly.

AD-ORNO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To prepare, to provide, to get ready, to furnish: a. viaticum ad fugam, nuptias; a. bellum, to make every preparation for the war, accusationem, for the charge or accusation; a. testes, in general, to witness. 2) To equip, to fit out, classem. 3) To furnish a thing with something, in partic., to adorn, to decorate, aliquem insigni veste, maria classibus et praesidiis; trop., a. aliquid verbis, to commend, to praise.

AD-ORO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. Prop., to accost, to speak to; but, in the class., 1) to beseech, to entreat, to supplicate; hence, in general, to adore, to worship: a. pacem deūm; a. deum ut, etc., to supplicate that, &c.; a. deos. 2) (Poet. & lat.) To render slavish homage to a prince, to do homage to him by adoratio (q. v.), regem, imagines Caesarum; trop., to praise excessively.

ADP., etc., v. APP., etc.

ADR. etc., for most of words beginning with ADR., see ARR.

AD-RĀDO, rāsi, rūsum, 3. v. tr. To scratch, to scrape; (poet.) to shave off part of one's beard.

ADRĀMYTTĒNUS, a, um, adj. From Adra-myttēum; in pl. = the inhabitants of Adr.

ADRĀMYTTĒOS, ei, f. } A mari-ADRĀMYTTIUM & -ĒUM, i, n. } time town in Mysia, now Edramit.

ADRĀNA, ae, f. A river in western Germany, now the Eder, which flows into the Fulda.

ADRĀSTĒA, } ae, f. [= Ἀδράστεια]. A sur-
ADRĀSTĪA, } name of the goddess Nemesis: according to some, she was so called from an altar dedicated to her by Adrastus; according to others, the name denotes the inevitable.

ADRĀSTUS, i, m. [Ἀδραστός]. King of Argos, father-in-law of Tydeus and Polynices, and promoter, according to the poets, of the celebrated war of the "Seven against Thebes."

AD-REMIGO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. (Lat.) To row towards.

ADRIA, ae, f. & m. 1) (F.) A town in Gallia Cisalpina. 2) (M., poet.) The Adriatic sea.

ADRIĀCUS, } a, um, adj. Pertaining to ADRIĀNUS, }
ADRIĀTICUS, } Adria, Adriatic.

ADS., etc., v. ASS., etc.

ADT., etc., v. ATT., etc.

ADUĀTŪCA, ae, f. A fortified town, in the territory of the Eburones (Belgian Gaul).

ADUĀTŪCI, ōrum, m. pl. A people in Gallia Belgica.

ADULĀBĪLIS, e, adj. [adulor]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Easy to soothe or to pacify.

ADULANS, tis, adj. w. comp. [part. of adulor] Flattering.

ADULĀTIO, ōnis, f. [adulor]. 1) Of a dog: a fawning upon. 2) Of a cringing, servile flatterer: adulation, sycophancy.

ADULĀTOR, ōris, m. [adulor]. A cringing flatterer, a lick-spittle.

ADULĀTORIUS, a, ūm, adj. (Lat.) Flattering, adulatory.

ADULOR, ātus, dep. } 1. v. tr. 1) Of a ADŪLO, āvi, ātum, (rar.) } dog, to fawn upon, to cling to. 2) (Old poet.) To wipe off, sanguinem. 3) Trop., of servile behaviour, to flatter, to cringe before one, to act the sycophant (of. blandior, assentior), aliquem, and (seld.) alicui; in partic. = adorare 2.

ADULTER, tēra, tērum, adj. Adulterous, unchaste, mens; crines aa., dressed after the manner of a courtesan.

ADULTER, ēri, m. } An adulterer, an adul-
ADULTĒRA, ae, f. } teress; (poet.) in gen., of unlawful love, a paramour.

ADULTĒRINUS, a, um, adj. [adulter]. 1) (Lat.) Adulterous, sanguis. 2) Trop. = false, not genuine, counterfeit, crines, numus, clavis.

ADULTĒRIUM, li, n. [adulter]. Adultery.

ADULTĒRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. [adulter]. 1) (Intr.) To commit adultery. 2) (Tr.) A) to dishonour by seducing, aliquam; trop., columba adulteratur milvo, the dove has unnatural intercourse with the kite: B) to falsify, jus, naturam, formam suam, to change into something bad.

ADULTUS, a, um, adj. [adoleasco]. Grown up, adult, catulus, virgo, vitis; a. aetas; trop. = grown to be strong, conjuration, pestis; Athenis jam aa., when Athens had already become powerful; (poet.) ubera aa. lacte, distended with milk; adulta nocte, aestate, in the middle of night, of summer.

*ADUMBRĀTĪM, adv. [adumbro]. (Lucr.) In sketch or outline.

ADUMBRĀTIO, ōnis, f. [adumbro]. Prop., a sketch in shadow; trop., a first sketch, an incomplete representation.

ADUMBRĀTUS, a, um, adj. [prop., part. of adumbro]. Sketched only in outline — a) = indistinct, incomplete, imago, signum, res; aa. intelligentiae, imperfectly developed notions — b) = that has semblance only, false, feigned; comitia aa., that have only the name; Pippae vir a., who has only the name of the husband of P. (whilst, in fact, Verres lived with her as husband); dii Epicuri aa., feigned gods (who had no bodies).

AD-UMBRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To shade, espec. in painting, to sketch a thing and at the same time to shade it: quis pictor omnia a. potest? Hence, trop. — a) to picture something by means of language, oral or written: a. aliquid dicendo — b) in gen., to represent: a. aliquid ementiendo = to feign, to invent — c) = to imitate: a. mores Persarum.

ADUNCITAS, ātis, f. [aduncus]. An inward curvature, hookedness, rostri.

AD-UNCUS, a, um, adj. Bent inward, hooked, nasus, cornu.

AD-ŪNO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To unite, to make one.

AD-URGEO, —, —, 2. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) Prop., to press to or upon; hence, trop., to pursue eagerly, aliquem.

AD-ŪRO, ussi, ustum, 3. v. tr. To set fire to, to scorch; hence, to burn up slowly, capillos; loca adusta sole, burned by the heat of the sun. Hence, of a hurt which is similar in its effects to burning: membra adusta nivibus, frozen limbs; trop., Venus a. te igni, excites in thee an ardent love.

AD-USQUE, prep. & adv. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Prep. w. acc. = usque ad, all the way to, up to: a. columnas. 2) Adv., throughout, everywhere.

ADUSTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of aduro]. Burned, scorched, color, sun-burnt.

ADVECTICIUS, a, um, adj. [adveho]. Imported, foreign.

ADVECTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To convey to a place with great exertions.

ADVECTOR, ōris, m. [adveho]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) One who conveys a thing to a place, a carrier.

ADVECTUS, ūs, m. [adveho]. A conveying to, transportation.

AD-VĒHO, xi, otum, 3. v. tr. 1) To convey, to conduct, to transport, frumentum Romam, mulierem; unda a. rates (poet.). 2) Pass., advehi (equo, curru), to ride to (on horseback, in a carriage); (navi), to sail to, ad ripam; (poet.) a. aliquem, to any one, orae, to the shore.

AD-VELO, 1. v. tr. (Poet.) Prop., to veil; trop., to wreath, tempora lauro.

ADVĒNA, ae, m. [advenio]. 1) A new-comer, a stranger, one who comes to a foreign country; cf. peregrinus. 2) A stranger to a thing, one who is ignorant, uninformed.

AD-VĒNIO, vēni, ventum, 4. v. intr. 1) To come to, to arrive at, Romam, in provinciam; (lat.) litterae aa. Hence: A) of time, dies adventi, the day has come: B) of events — a) of any thing bad, to approach, to come near, morbus, periculum a. — b) of any thing good, to fall to one's share: res a. ad me — c) (Lucr.) adventi = accedit, add to this that, &c.

ADVENTICIUM, ii, n. [advenio]. Only in the comb. ex adventicio fulget, shines with an adventitious brilliancy.

ADVENTICIUS, a, um, adj. [advenio]. 1) (Lat.) Pertaining to an arrival, coena, a banquet given at one's arrival. 2) Coming to one from abroad (without one's own exertions, by chance, inheritance, &c.): copiae aa.; doctrina a., received from another people, foreign; visio a., proceeding from something external (in opp. to the soul); pecunia a., obtained otherwise than by inheritance; fructus a., accidental.

ADVENTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. [freq. of advenio]. To advance, to come continually nearer (it involves the idea of haste): a. Romam, ad urbem, also (lat.) a. urbi; tempus, senectus a.

ADVENTOR, ōris, m. [advenio]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A visitor, a guest; esp., one who visits a tavern or house of bad repute.

ADVENTUS, ūs, m. [advenio]. An arrival: nocturnus a. in urbem; adventibus se offerre, to go to meet them as they arrive; a. lucis, daybreak.

ADVERBIUM, ii, n. [ad-verbum]. (Lat.) Gramm. t., an adverb.

ADVERSARIA, ōrum, n. pl. [adversus]. A waste-book (always lying before the eye), a journal or day-book, for domestic and instant use, wherein the daily receipts and expenditures were temporarily entered, to be transferred afterwards to the principal book or ledger.

ADVERSARIA, ae, f. [adversus]. A female antagonist.

ADVERSARIUS, a, um, adj. [adversus]. Opposed to, opposite or against: opinio a. oratori, disadvantageous to; argumenta aa., the arguments of an antagonist; factio a., the adverse party.

ADVERSARIUS, ii, m. [adversus]. An antagonist, adversary, esp. in court, but also in general (cf. inimicus, hostis): aa. sunt in fuga = the enemy.

ADVERSATRIX, icis, f. [adversor]. (Com.) = adversa.

ADVERSIO, ōnis, f. [adverto] (doubt. read.). A turning or directing of any thing to, animi.

ADVERSO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. [adverto]. (Pl.) To attend to, sedulo animo.

ADVERSOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. [adversus]. 1) To be against, ventus. 2) Trop., to oppose, to resist, commodis alicujus, libidini; (lat.) a. aliquem.

ADVERSUM, } [adverto]. I. Prep. w. accus.
ADVERSUS, } 1) Opposite to, aliquem.

Hence, trop.: A) before any one, in the presence of one, before the face, mentiri a. aliquem: B) = with respect to any one, in relation to any thing: respondere a. aliquid; excusatio a. aliquem, an apology to one; omnia a. aliquem audere, for the sake of any one; lentae a. imperium aures: C) in comparison with, compared with, nihil est a. patrem; comparare aliquem a. patrem. 2) Toward: bene se gerere a. aliquem; fides a. aliquem. 3) Freq., to den. opposition, against: mittere imperatorem a. Gallos; a. legem. 4) Of direction in space, toward: impetum facere a. montem. II. Adv. Opposite to, against, resistere; a. ire, to go to meet (in a friendly way); arma ferre a.

ADVERSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [adverto]. 1) Turned towards one, with the face towards one; hence, before, in front of, opposite: intueri aliquem adversum, to look into the face of; dentes aa., the front teeth; vulnus a. and adverso corpore acceptum, on the front of the body; in adversum os vulneratus, in the face; adversos stare or adversis vestigiis contra (nostra) vestigia stare, to stand with their feet directly opposite ours, i. e., to be our antipodes; adversis hostibus occurrere, to go to meet the enemy; adverso antro, in the forepart of a cave; ventus a., a contrary wind; itinera aa., marches against the enemy; adverso colle ire, to go up hill (a hill being always in front of those ascending it); flumine adverso ire, up stream; adversâ viâ (Pl.), straight on. In partic., adversum, n.: tenere a., to be against; adversum or in a. subit, goes to meet; ex adverso, opposite to (urbi, opposite the city); in adversum, to the opposite side. 3) Trop.: A) adverse, unfavourable, unpropitious, unsuccessful, fortuna, casus, proellum; res (casus) aa. (also in the sing.), misfortune, calamity; a. valetudo, sickness; annus a.: B) hostile to, alieni; multos adversarios (subst.) habet, many opposers; a. partium populi (doubt read.), an opposer of the people's cause: C) = odious, hateful, mihi illud est a.

AD-VERTO, ti, sum, 3. v. tr. 1) To turn, to direct to or towards, oculos in partem aliquam, classem in portum, to steer the fleet to; a. proram terrae, to turn towards the land; (poet.) pass. w. intrans. signif., to turn to or towards, arenae, to the shore, Scythicas oras, to the Scythian coasts. Hence: A) to turn or to draw to or upon one's self — a) a. aures alicujus, oculos omnium, the eyes of all; freq., a. aliquem, the attention of a person to one's self — b) a. odium, to draw upon one's self: B) in partic., animum (or animos) advertere ad aliquid or rei alicui (also ne quid fiat) — a) to direct the attention to a thing, to give attention to — b) = animadvertere (which is more usual in classic prose), to observe, to perceive, aliquid, magnas ibi esse hostium copias. 2) (Poet. & lat.): A) advertere (by ellipsis) = animadvertere; advertē (imper.), attend; in the s. sense, but rar., a. animo; B) = animadvertere; hence, to punish, aliquem or in aliquem. AD-VEPERASCIT, rāvit, —, 3. v. impers. intr. It is getting to be evening.

AD-VIGILO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. To watch by a person or thing, aliqui; trop., to attend carefully, to give close attention to.

ADVOCATIO, ōnis, f. [advoco]. Prop., a calling to. 1) Abstr., assistance, legal aid (v. advocatus). 2) Concr., the friends who assisted in court, the company of legal assistants. 3) A consultation held by the legal advisers. 4) The time necessary for procuring legal aid: postulare jūnas aa.; hence, in lat. writers, in gen., an adjournment, delay. 5) (Lat.) The management of a lawsuit, attorneyship.

ADVOCATUS, i, m. 1) A legal assistant, counsellor, a respectable man, who, by his advice, testimony, or by his presence only, in court, gave assistance to a party, declaring himself his supporter by sitting on the benches with him; frequently, there were several aa. in one cause. 2) (Lat.) An advocate, attorney, who conducted a cause for any one. [Fr. advoco.]

AD-VOCO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To call or summon one to a place (espec. for a specific purpose, as an adviser, helper, &c.), aliquem ad obsignandum, aliquos in consilium; a. concionem; (poet.) advocari aegro, to be called to the relief of, convitiis, to be invited to. In partic., to summon one as a legal assistant, counsellor, &c. (v. advocatus): a. sibi aliquem; in gen., to call to one's aid; also (poet.) of things = to have recourse to, to employ, magicas artes.

*ADVOLATUS, ūs, m. [advolo]. (Old post.) A flying to (only in the abl. sing.).

AD-VOLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. To fly to or toward; hence = to hasten to; (poet.) fama a. Aeneae, flies quickly to; rar. w. acc., a. rostra, to hasten to the rostrum.

AD-VOLVO, volvi, vōlūtum, 3. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To roll to or toward, ulmos focis; trop., a. se or advolvi genibus (lat., also genua) alioquus, to throw one's self at the feet of a person.

ADVORSARIUS, adversors, etc. = adversarius, etc.

ĀDŸTUM, i, n. [= δῶρον]. (Poet.) The innermost part of a temple or of a consecrated place, which none but priests were allowed to enter, the sanctuary.

AEĀCIDĒIUS, a, um, adj. [Aeacides]. Pertaining to the Aeacids, regna = the island Ægina.

AEĀCIDES, ae, m. [= Αἰακίδης]. An Aeacide, a descendant of Aeacus. The word is used of — a) his three sons — b) his grandson Achilles — c) his great-grandson Pyrrhus, son of Achilles — d) Pyrrhus, king of Epirus (who waged war against Rome), a descendant of Pyrrhus, the son of Achilles — e) Perseus, king of Macedonia, also a descendant of Achilles.

*AEĀCIDINUS, a, um, adj. [Aeacides]. (Pl.) Pertaining to or worthy of an Aeacide.

AEĀCUS, i, m. [= Αἰακός]. A king of Ægina, son of Jupiter and Ægina, father of Telamon, Peleus, and Phocus. On account of his piety and justice, he was a favourite of the gods, and, after his death, was made (together with Minos and Rhadamanthus) a judge in the lower world.

AEAEA, ae, } f. [= Αἰαίη]. According to the AEAEAE, es, } fable, an island in the Mediterranean sea, inhabited by Circe.

AEAEUS, a, um, adj. [= Αἰαίος]. Pertaining to Æaea; hence — Ae. Circe, v. Aeaea — b) Ae. insula, the island of Circe; according to the later fables, the island of Calypso, who is therefore called Ae. puella.

AEBURA, ae, f. A town in Hispania Tarraconensis, now Cuerva.

AEBUTIUS, i, m. A Roman family-name; hence (adj.), lex Aebutia, given by Aebutius.

AEDEPOL, v. Edepol.

AEDES or AEDIS, is, f. 1) Sing. : A) (Com. & lat.) *an apartment, a room: per omnes aedes domi (Pl.); hence (poet.), the cells of bees: B) in partic., a dwelling for a god, originally prob. only a simple edifice, without side-buildings; hence, in gen., a temple, sanctuary (cf. templum); in this sense, used also, in the pl., of several temples. 2) Pl., a house, inasmuch as it consists of several rooms, a dwelling (cf. domus, aedificium); in mediis aedibus. *3) (Lat.) *Melon., a catafalque in the form of a temple.

AEDICŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of aedes]. 1) Sing., a little chapel, a small temple. 2) Pl., a small house.

AEDIFICATIO, ōnis, f. [aedifico]. 1) Abstr., a building. 2) Concr., a building, an edifice.

*AEDIFICATIUNCŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of aedificatio]. A little building.

AEDIFICATOR, ōris, m. [aedifico]. 1) A builder; trop., ae. mundi, the Creator. 2) Abs., est ae., is fond of building.

AEDIFICIUM, ii, n. [aedifoo]. A building in gen. (cf. aedes, domus).

AEDIFICŌ, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [aedes-facio]. To build, to erect a building, domum, navem; ae. mundum, to create; trop., ae. rempublicam, to found, establish; hence, melon. = to lay out, hortos.

AEDILICIUS, a, um, adj. [aedilis]. 1) Pertaining to an aedile, edictum, munus, exhibition; ae. repulsa, in seeking the aedileship. 2) (Homo, vir) ae., who has been an aedile, an ex-aedile.

AEDILIS, is, m. [aedes]. An aedile. There were at Rome, after 493 B. C., two plebeian, and after 366 B. C., two curule aediles. The former had charge of the ludi plebei, the latter of the ludi magni or Romani (v. ludus). It was their joint duty to see to the preservation of the public buildings, the cleaning, the repairing, and the safety of the public streets, the maintenance of good order at the market, the price and quality of the provisions brought there, in short, to all matters of internal police. To these four aediles J. Caesar added (44 B. C.) two aediles cereales, who were exclusively charged with the supplying of the city with provisions, until this duty was, under Augustus, transferred to the praefectus annonae.

AEDILITAS, ātis, f. [aedilis]. The office and dignity of an aedile, aedileship.

AEDITIMOR, AEDITIMUS, v. Aeditumor, Aeditumus.

*AEDITUENS, entis, n. [aedes-tueor] = aeditans

*AEDITŪMOR, 1. v. dep. intr. To take care of a temple. [Fr. aeditaus.]

AEDITŪMUS, } i, m. An overseer of a temple.
AEDITUUS, } ple, a sacristan, who opened and closed the doors, kept every thing clean, and conducted strangers through it; trop., the poets are called by Hor. 'aeditui,' in the temple of Merit = panegyrist, eulogists. [Fr. aedes.]

AEDON, ōnis, f. [= ἀιδών]. (Lat.) The nightingale (pure Latin 'lucinia'). In the fable, the wife of Zethus, who, from envy of her sister-in-law Niobe, intended to kill her eldest son, but killed by mistake her own son, and was then changed by Jupiter into a nightingale.

AEDUI, ōrum, m. pl. A Celtic tribe in Gaul, between the Arar (Saône) and the Liger (Loire).

AEETAEUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Aetes.

AEETA, } ae, m. [= Αἰετας]. A king of AEETAS, } Colchia, son of the Sun, father of AEETES, } Medea. To him Jason and the Argonauts came for the golden fleece.

AEETIAS, ādis, } f. Daughter of Aetes =
AEETINE, es, } Medea.

AEGAE, ārum, f. pl. [Αἶγαι]. 1) A town in Macedonia, in later times Edessa. 2) A town in Cilicia.

AEGAEON, ōnis, m. [= Αἰγαῖον]. A giant, who had a hundred eyes, son of Uranus, called sometimes also Briareus.

AEGAEUM, i, n., or Aegaeum mare (poet. fretum) [= Αἰγαῖον πᾶλος, Αἰγαῖος πόντος]. The Aegean sea, now the Archipelago.

AEGAEUS, a, um, adj. [Aegaeum]. Pertaining to the Aegean sea.

AEGATES, ium, f. pl. The Egates, islands in the Mediterranean sea, west of Sicily.

AEGEATES, ium, m. pl. The inhabitants of Aege.

AEGER, gra, gram, adj. Unwell, suffering, in gen. used both of the body and (more freq.) of the mind. 1) Of the body: indisposed, unwell, sick, homo, corpus; freq. with the addition of the part of the body affected or of the cause of illness, aeger morbo gravi, ex vulnere, from a wound; pedibus ae. esse, to have sore feet; ae. valetudo, bad health. Hence, trop.—a) of a precarious condition of the state, diseased, disordered; (poet.) seges ae. — b) ae. anhelitus, shortness of breath, genua, feeble. 2) Of the mind: suffering (of every painful excitement of the emotions and passions); hence = grieved, afflicted, distressed: animus ae. avaritiā, amore, curis; ae. animi, suffering in one's mind; (lat.) ae. rei aliquid, on account of a thing; (poet.) mortales aegri, mankind struggling with the troubles of life. 3) (Poet.) Painful, sad, afflicting, mors, dolor, luctus.

AEGEUS, a, um, v. Aegaeus.

AEGEUS, i, m. [= Αἰγέως]. A king of Athens son of Pandion, and father of Theseus.

AEGIALEUS, ei, m. [= Ἀγιάλες]. 1) A son of Æetes, and brother of Medea, commonly called Aegyrtus. 2) A son of Adrastus.

AEGIDES, ae, m. [= Ἀγίδης]. A descendant of Ægeus, esp. = Theseus.

AEGIENSIS, e, adj. Pertaining to Ægium; in plur. (subst.) the inhabitants of Ægium, AEGIMUROS, i, f. [= Ἀγίμυρος]. An island opposite Carthage, now at Daïmoor.

AEGINA, ae, f. [= Ἀγίνα]. 1) A nymph, the mother of Æacus. 2) An island in the Saronian Gulf, originally called Ænone.

AEGINENSES, ium, m. pl. The inhabitants of Ægina.

AEGINETA, ae, m. A native of Ægina.

AEGINIENSES, ium, m. pl. The inhabitants of Æginium.

AEGINIUM, ii, n. A town in Macedonia, opposite Thessaly, now Erkinia.

AEGIPAN, ānis, m. [= Ἀγίπαν]. (Lat.) 1) A sylvan god with goat's feet. 2) Plur., a fabulous race of men in Africa with goat's feet.

AEGIS, Idia, f. [= ἄγυς]. 1) In Homer, the shield of Jupiter, which he holds in his left hand, whilst he hurls lightnings with the right; in the middle of it there is the head of the Gorgon Medusa. 2) Later, the Ægis was supposed to belong exclusively to Minerva, and was represented sometimes as a shaggy hide thrown over her breast and shoulders, sometimes as a corselet, wreathed with serpents, and having the Medusa's head in the centre, sometimes as a shield worn by her on the left arm.

AEGISTHUS, i, m. [= Ἀγισθος]. A son of Thyestes, who murdered first his uncle Atreus, afterwards Agamemnon, the son of Atreus, in concert with Agamemnon's wife, Clytemnestra, and was himself slain by Agamemnon's son, Orestes. Pompey called Cæsar 'Ægisthus,' because he had seduced his wife Mucia.

AEGIUM, ii, n. [= Ἀγίον]. A town in Achaia.

AEGŪCĒROS, ōtis, m. [= Ἀγούκρος]. (Poet.) The wild goat, used only as a sign of the zodiac.

AEGOS flumen [= Ἀγὸς ποταμός]. The Goat River, a small river (and town) on the Thracian Chersonese, made famous by the battle fought there 406 B. C.

AEGRE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [aeger]. 1) Disagreeably, grievously, painfully: ae. est mihi (Com.), it grieves me; ae. alicui facere, to trouble some one; ae. aliquid ferre, to be indignant at, dissatisfied with a thing; hoc aegerrime tuli, I was much vexed at it; ae. aliquid pati (tolerare), to submit to a thing reluctantly. 2) With great ado, hardly, with difficulty, scarcely (subjectiv., when we think of the person who has trouble with any thing; cf. vix).

AEGREO, —, —, 2. v. intr. [aeger]. (Lucr.) To be sick.

AEGRESCO, —, —, 3. v. intr. [aeger]. (Poet.)

1) To become sick, to be taken ill. 2) Trop.: A) of something already bad, to become worse. B) to become anxious, to be afflicted.

AEGRIMŌNIA, ae, f. [aeger]. Affliction, grief, ill humour (subjectiv., cf. aerumna).

AEGRĪTUDO, Inis, f. [aeger]. In gen., ill ness: A) of the body (lat.) = indisposition B) of the soul, grief, sorrow, care.

AEGROR, ōris, m. [aeger]. (Lucr.) Sickness.

AEGRŌTĀTIO, ōnis, f. [aegroto]. A diseased condition, sickness (subjectiv., cf. morbus); trop. weakness of mind, a diseased state of the mind.

AEGRŌTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. [aegrotus]. To be sick, leviter, periculose, capite; trop., of the mind and abstract subjects, to suffer, animus, fama; artes, languish.

AEGRŌTUS, a, um, adj. [aeger]. Sick, homo, corpus; trop., animus; respublica, diseased.

AEGYPSOS, i, f. [aegyptus]. A town in Lower Æasia.

AEGYPTIUS, a, um, adj. [Aegyptus]. Egyptian; subst., -IUS, ii, m., an Egyptian.

AEGYPTIĀCUS, a, um = Aegyptius.

AEGYPTUS, i, m. [= Ἀίγυπτος]. A son of Belus, and brother of Danaus, after whom Egypt was named. He had fifty sons, who married the fifty daughters of Danaus.

AEGYPTUS, i, f. Egypt.

ÆLIĀNUS (I.), a, um, adj. [Aelius]. Pertaining to Ælius, espec. jus Aelianum, a collection of laws (legis actiones) named after the distinguished lawyer S. Ælius Pætus (consul 198 B. C.). To the same Ælius belong 'Studia Æliana' in Cic. de Or. 1, 43, 183.

ÆLIĀNUS (II.), i, m. (Lat.) A common Roman surname.

ÆLINOS, i, m. [= ἄλιος]. (Poet.) A dirge.

ÆLIUS, a, um, adj. The name of a plebeian gens in Rome, to which the families Pæti, Tuberones and others belonged.

ÆLLO, ūs, f. [= ἄλλω]. One of the harpies.

ÆLŪRUS, i, m. [= ἄλυρος]. A male cat.

ÆMĪLIĀNA, ōrum, m. pl. [Æmiliius]. A quarter of the city of Rome, outside of the walls, near the Campus Martius.

ÆMĪLIĀNUS, i, m. A surname of the younger Scipio Africanus, who was a son of L. Æmiliius Paulus Macedonicus.

ÆMĪLIUS, a, um, adj. The name of an old and celebrated gens in Rome, of which the families Lepidi, Pauli and Scarii were the most famous.

ÆMĪLIUS, a, um, adj. Æmilian, tribus; Ae. via, pons, ludus, named after their founders, persons of the Æmilian gens.

AEMŪLATIO, ōnis, f. [aemulor]. A striving to do like another in any thing. 1) In a good sense, emulation: ae. laudis alicujus. 2) In a bad sense, jealousy.

AEMULĀTOR, ōris, m. [aemulor]. In a good sense, an emulator, Catonia.

AEMULĀTUS, ūs, m. (lat.) = aemulatio.

AEMŪLOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. & intr. [aemulus]. To strive to do like another in any thing. 1) Tr., in a good sense, to emulate, to vie with, to strive to equal, aliquem, but also (lat.) alicui; hence, also, to equal. 2) Intr., in a bad sense, to be envious or jealous of, to vie with enviously: aemulari alicui or cum aliquo; aemulantur inter se; proverb, aemulari suas umbras, to be envious of one's own shadow = to be exceedingly jealous.

AEMŪLUS, a, um, adj. (often subst.). Striving to equal another: — 1) In a good sense, emulating; subst. = an emulator: a. alicui and (subst.) alicujus; ae. laudis alicujus, one who strives to reach the glory of another. 2) In a bad sense, emulating with jealousy, envious, jealous; subst. = a rival: ae. imperii Romani; in partio. = rivalis, a rival in love. 3) (Poet. & lat.) Of things, competing with, comparable to, rivalling: a. alicui.

AENĀRIA, ae, f. A volcanic island on the coast of Campania, called by some the landing-place of Aeneas. The Roman poets, from a wrong interpretation of the Homeric εἰς Ἀρήριος, called the island Inarime, and fabled that Typhoeus, slain by lightning, lay under it.

AENĒA, ae, f. [= Alveia]. A town in Ætolia on the Thermaic gulf.

AENEĀDES, ae, m. [= Αἰνεάδης — Aeneas]. A descendant of Aeneas: A) Ascanius: B) Augustus: C) pl. — a) the companions of Aeneas, or in gen., the Trojans — b) the Romans.

AENĒAS, ae, m. [= Αἰνείας]. A son of Anchises and Venus, the leader of the Trojans to Italy, and forefather of the Romans.

AENĒATES, um, n. pl. [= Αἰνεάται]. The inhabitants of Aeneas.

AENEĀTOR, ōris, m. [aeneus]. (Lat.) One who blows a horn of brass, a trumpeter.

AENĒIS, idis or idos, f. The Aeneid, the celebrated epic of Virgil.

AENĒIUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Aeneas.

ĀENEUS, a, um, adj. [aes]. Brassy, of copper, of bronze, status; ut aeneus stes, as a brassy statue; (poet.) lux a., of shining weapons; barba a., of the colour of bronze; trop., to denote that which is firm and impregnable, turris, jugum.

AENIA and AENIATES, v. Aenea and Aeneates.

AENIĀNES, um, n. pl. A tribe in southern Thessaly.

AENIGMA, ātis, n. [= αἰνίγμα]. 1) A riddle, an enigma, an allegory which is purposely kept obscure. 2) Meton., of every thing dark or enigmatical — a) an obscure hint, allusion: ae. alicujus, to some one — b) in rhet., an allegory which is too dark, and therefore vicious.

AENII, ōrum, m. pl. The inhabitants of Aenus.

AENĪPES, ēdis, adj. [aenus-pes]. (Post.) Brassy-footed.

AENŌBARBUS, i, m. [aenus-barba]. Prop., red-beard, a surname in the gens Domitia.

AENUM, i, n. [aes]. A brassy vessel, a caldron.

AENUS, a, um, adj. (poet.) = aeneus.

AENUS, i, f. & m. 1) (F.) A town in Thrace, at the mouth of the Hebrus, sometimes confounded with Aenia. 2) (M.) v. Oenus.

AEŌLES, um, m. pl. [= Αἰολεῖς]. The Æolians, one of the three principal tribes of the Hellenic people, which spread from Thessaly over Asia Minor, and settled in the province named after them Æolis or Æolia, and on the adjacent islands, espec. Lesbos.

AEŌLIA, ae, f. [= Αἰολία]. 1) = Aeolis II., the country in Asia Minor inhabited by the Æolians. 2) An island near Sicily.

AEŌLICUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to the Æolians.

AEŌLIDES, ae, m. [= Αἰολίδης]. A descendant of Aeolus: A) of Aeolus I. — a) his sons Athamas, Sisyphus, Salmoneus — b) his grandson Cephalus — c) Phrixus, son of Athamas — d) Ulysses, son of Sisyphus: B) of Aeolus II., Misenus, a companion of Aeneas.

AEŌLI, ōrum, n. pl. = Aeoles (q. v.) Æolii was the name given by the Romans to the Æolians in Asia Minor.

AEŌLIS (I.), idos, f. [Αἰολίς]. A (female) descendant of Aeolus I. — a) his daughter Canace — b) Alcione, q. v.

AEŌLIS (II.), idos, f. A country in Asia Minor, inhabited by the Æolians.

AEŌLIUS, a, um, adj. [= Αἰολίος]. 1) Relating to Aeolus. 2) Relating to Æolia.

AEŌLUS, i, m. [= Αἰολός]. 1) Aeolus I., a son of Hellen, forefather of the Æolians, father of Sisyphus, Athamas, Salmoneus, and others. 2) Aeolus II., a grandson of Aeolus I.; he disowned his daughter Arne, who was pregnant by Neptune. 3) Aeolus III., son of Aeolus II., and a favourite of the gods; he went to the Æolian island (insula Aeolia—in later poets several insulae Ae.), north of Sicily, where he had his residence as the ruler of the winds.

AEQUĀBĪLIS, e, adj. w. comp. [aequo]. 1) Equal, cum aliquo. 2) Remaining equal to itself, uniform, equable, motus, amnis perennis et ae., always flowing with an equal current; aequabilis cunctis vitae officiis. 3) Equal to all, equitable, partitio; hence, just, impartial, jus.

AEQUĀBĪLITAS, ātis, f. [aequabilis]. Equality, uniformity, equability: ae. orationis, an equable and quiet flow; esp. = equality before the law, equality of rights; legitima ae., hence equity, impartiality.

AEQUABILITER, adv. w. comp. [aequalis]. Equally, uniformly.

AEQUAEVUS, a, um, adj. [aequus-aeuvum]. (Post.) Of equal age, coeval, alicui.

AEQUALIS, e, adj. [aequus]. 1) (Sall. & lat.) Of place, uniform, even, locus. Hence, trop., remaining equal to itself, uniform, strepitus, imber. 2) In comparison with other objects, equal, equalling (esp. in respect to size, value, &c.; cf. par): tumuli aeq., equally high; aeq. alicui. 3) Hence, of time, of equal age, or, in a wider sense, contemporary, alicui; as subet. = an equal in years, a contemporary: aeq. meus, alicujus, benevolentia aeq. aetati, a good will as old as the life of one.

AEQUALITAS, ātis, f. [aequalis]. Equality. 1) (Lat.) = Evenness, maris. 2) = Equality — a) of a thing with itself = uniformity — b) equality of age — c) equality of rights. Thus: ae. fraternitas; cetera in summa ae. ponere, to deem of quite equal value.

AEQUALITER, adv. w. comp. [aequalis]. Equally, equitably, uniformly.

AEQUANIMITAS, ātis, f. [aequus-animus]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) Favour, good will. 2) Calmness, equanimity.

AEQUATIO, ōnis, f. [aequo]. An equalizing, equalization, honorum.

AEQUE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [aequus]. 1) To den. a comparison: A) abs., where a thing is compared with itself, equally: duae trabes ae. longae; benevolentia non omnes ae. egent, in an equal degree: B) where one thing is compared with another, ae; as much; usu. foll. in the second sentence by atque or ac, also et or quam (= as), in Com. and lat. writers, also by cum (ae. mecum, just as much as I), in Pl., even by an abl. (nullus est hoc meticulosus ae., so fearful as he); often the second member of the comparison is to be supplied: tu prope ae. doles (sc. atque ego). *2) Equitably.

AEQUI, ōrum, m. pl. The Equians, a people of Latium, who carried on war against Rome for a long time, until they were humbled by Camillus, and at last wholly subdued.

AEQUICULUS, i, m. An Equian.

AEQUICULUS, } a, um, adj. Pertaining to AEQUICUS, } the Equians.

AEQUILIBRITAS, ātis, f. [aequus-libra]. A translation attempted by Cicero of the Greek isolepis = the law of equality, i. e., the equal distribution of the powers of nature.

AEQUILIBRIUM, ii, n. [aequus-libra]. (Lat.) Equilibrium, horizontal position.

AEQUIMÆLIUM, i, ii, n. An open place in AEQUIMELIUM, } Rome, called after Sp. Mælius, whose house originally stood there. According to the legend, he was put to death for treason.

AEQUINOCTIALIS, e, adj. [aequinoctium].

(Lat.) Equinoctial, pertaining to the time of equal day and night; ae. circulus = the equator.

AEQUINOCTIUM, ii, n. [aequus-nox]. The equinox, the time of equal day and night.

AEQUIPARABILIS, e, adj. [aequiparo]. (Pl.) Comparable with, alicui and cum aliquo.

AEQUIPARATIO, ōnis, f. An equalizing, a comparison.

AEQŪ-PĀRO, āvi, ātum, i. v. tr. 1) To count things equal in judging of them, to compare, to consider equal, aliquem alicui and (Pl.) ae. meas virtutes ad tuas; perh. also ae. rem cum re aliqua. 2) To equal, to attain to by equalling, aliquem (aliqua re), (lat.) also alicui.

AEQUITAS, ātis, f. [aequus]. 1) (Lat.) Equality of parts, symmetry, proportion, membrorum. 2) In civil affairs, equality before the law. 3) Equity, just conduct. 4) Tranquility of mind, equanimity, patience: ae. animi.

AEQUO, āvi, ātum, i. v. tr. & intr. (Tr.) 1) To make even, to level, locum, aream, planiciem. Hence, 2) to make equal: A) to make a thing equal with itself, to distribute any thing equally, to make equally great for all: ae. frontem (tech. t., of an army), to form a straight line; velis aequatis, with sails equally filled; ae. omnium pericula, to make the danger of all equally great, pecunias, to equalize property; aequato jure omnium, the rights of all being made equal; aequato Marte = aequo M.; ae. foedus (poet.), to conclude a treaty with equal conditions; ae. sortes, to take care that the lots are in equal number, of equal material, and that each has its different name: B) to make a thing equal to another, to equalize: ae. rem rei or cum re; ae. ludum nocti (poet.), to make a play last as long as the night; esp., ae. templum solo, to level with the ground, i. e., to demolish: C) to count things equal in judging of them, to place on an equality, to compare, rem cum re, Philippum Hannibali. — (Intr.) To make one's self equal to another, i. e., to equal, to come up to: a. alicui or aliquem (cursu, in running), also cursum alicujus, to run as swiftly as; sagitta ae. ventum (poet.), flies as swiftly as the wind; ae. facta dictis, to represent the facts in discourse in a manner corresponding to their greatness.

AEQUOR, ōris, n. [aequus]. (Mostly poet. & lat.) An even, horizontal surface, campi, speculi; (poet.) = a field, in gen.; but esp. of the surface of the sea, and hence, the sea.

AEQUOREUS, a, um, adj. [aequor]. (Poet.) Pertaining to the sea.

AEQUUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. 1) Of space, even, level, horizontal (opp. to an ascending or descending slope — cf. planus), campus, locus; hence, ex aequo (loco) dicere, of an orator, if he and his hearers stand on the same level, i. e., in the senate, opp. to ex inferiore loco, in court, before judges sitting on raised seats, and to ex superiore loco, from the tribune, in the assembly of the people; sometimes subst., aequum = a level, a plain, campi. 2) Equal, equally great, praeda, pars; passibus non aequis (poet.), with unequal, i. e., shorter steps; esp., aequo Marte pugnare (aequâ manu or aequo proelio discedere), to fight with equal success, so that victory remains undecided; ae. pugna, an undecided battle. Hence: A) frons ae., even (milit. tech. t.): B) (poet.) corresponding to, agreeing with: poena ae. peccatis; materies ae. viribus: C) aequum, as subst., in certain comb. — a) ex aequo, in an equal degree, in like manner — b) in aequo esse or stare, to be equal (in respect to rights, circumstances, &c.) — c) in aequo ponere aliquem alicui, to put on an equality. 3) Favourable: A) = advantageous, convenient: locus, tempus ae. (poet.) = friendly, kind, alicui, and (seld.) in aliquem, (poet.) in aliquo. 4) Equitable, just (in accordance with the law of nature, whilst 'justus' den. conformity with positive law), lex, postulatio: judex ae., impartial. In partic. — a) subst., aequum, that which is equitable, equity; esp., ae. et bonum, that which is equitable and right; aequi bonique aliquid facere, to put up with a thing, to bear it — b) aequum est, it is right, equitable, becoming — c) abl., aequo, with comp. = (more) than is right and reasonable: largius ae., too large. 4) Of a mind that never loses its equilibrium, calm, composed, constant, patient: freq., ae. animus = calmness of mind, equanimity; aequo animo aliquid ferre (accipere pati), to bear a thing with equanimity.

AER, ãris, m. [= ãr]. The air, esp. the lower air, the atmosphere (cf. aether). Hence (poet.) — a) = mist, cloud — b) summus ae. arboris, the highest point of a tree.

AERARIA, ae, f. [aes] sc. fodina. A mine.

AERARIUM, ii, n. [aes]. The treasury at Rome: A) = the place, the building where the public money was kept, the temple of Saturn on the Capitoline hill, where were the public records, important documents of state, the military standards, &c.: B) = the public treasure (in the time of the emperors, usually opp. to fiscus).

AERARIUS, a, um, adj. [aes]. 1) Pertaining to brass or copper, metallum; ae. fornax, a smelting furnace. 2) Pertaining to money: ratio ae., the standard of coin.

AERARIUS, ii, m. [aes] sc. civis. A Roman citizen of the lowest class, who was excluded from military service, the right of voting and public office, and paid only a poll-tax.

AERATUS, a, um, adj. [aes]. 1) Furnished or covered with brass or copper: navis, classis ae., furnished with copper beaks, lectus, with copper feet. Hence, trop., homo ae. = very rich. 2) (Poet.) = aëneus, made of brass.

AEREUS, a, um, adj. [aes]. (Poet. & lat.)

1) (= aëneus), made of brass. 2) (= aeratus), covered with brass.

AEREUS, a, um, adj., v. Aërius.

AERIFER, ãra, ãrum, adj. [aes-fero]. (Poet.)

Bearing brass = bearing brazen cymbals, manus.

AERIPES, ãdis, adj. [aes-pea]. (Poet.) Brazen-footed.

AERIUS, a, um, adj. [aër]. (Poet.) 1)

Aërial, pertaining to or being in the air: volatus a., through the air; columba a., flying high in the air. 2) = very high, rising aloft in the air, mona.

AERÖPA, ae, } f. [= 'Aëpón]. A daughter

AERÖPE, es, } of Catreus, king of Crete, wife of Plisthenes, one of his father Atreus, and mother of Agamemnon and Menelaus.

AERÜGNÖSUS, a, um, adj. [aerugo]. (Lat.) Full of copper rust, rusty.

AERÜGO, inis, f. [aes]. 1) Rust of copper, verdigris. 2) Trop. — a) = envy, jealousy — b) = avarice, greediness of gain.

AERUMNA, ae, f. [aegrimonia?]. Distress, tribulation, need, trouble (object. — cf. aegrimonia.)

AERUMNÄBILIS, e, (Lucr.) } adj. [aerumna.]

AERUMNÖSUS, a, um, } Full of trouble, troubled, wretched, homo; mare ae. = stormy.

*AERUSCÄTOR, öris, m. [aerusco]. (Lat.) A mountebank, a wandering juggler.

AERUSCO, i, v. intr. [aes-äytlw?]. (Lat.) To make a living as a wandering mountebank, v. Aeruscator.

AES, aeris, n. 1) Ore, copper, in gen., brass, bronze; hence (oft. in pl.), things made of copper (statues, weapons, tablets, utensils of various kinds, trumpets, &c.); aes Corinthium, a mixture or alloy, whose properties are not well understood. 2) Money, coins, originally copper-money: aes grave, the old, heavy Italian money, of which the 'as' weighed a pound. Freq. aes, used collect. = asses: quingenta millia aeris = 50,000 asses; with numeral adverbs, in counting round sums of a million and upwards, the words 'centena millia' are left out (as with sesterrium): habere decies aeris, to possess ten millions of asses. Hence: A) it den. the various circumstances of debt: aes alienum (literally, another's money), a debt (facere or contrahere, to contract, solvere or persolvere, to pay off, habere aes al. or esse in aere al., to be in debt, aere alieno exire or exsolvî, to get free of debt); in meo aere sum, I am out of debt, but trop. is est in meo aere, he belongs to me, he is my friend: B) (Lat.) = value: esse alicujus aeris: C) mostly in pl., wages, esp. the pay of soldiers; hence, trop., like stipendia = the time of service, military service (trop., cognoscentur vetera illius aera, the time of his service in debauchery). 3) In partic. A) aes equestre, the sum of 10,000 asses, which every knight received from the state for the purchase of a horse: B) aes hordearium, the sum of 2000 asses, which every knight received yearly from the state for the keeping of his horse, which sum had to be paid by wealthy widows (viduae), who were exempted from other contributions.

AESĀCUS, i, m. A son of Priam.

AESAR, m. (Lat.) The Etruscan name of God.

AESAR, āris, m. [= Alarpes]. A river of Brutium, in Lower Italy.

AESĀREUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to the river Æsar.

AESCHĪNES, is, m. [= Ἀἰσχίνης]. 1) A philosopher of Athens, scholar of Socrates. 2) A philosopher of Neapolis, and teacher of the New Academy at Athens, about B. C. 109. 3) The celebrated orator of Athens, the antagonist of Demosthenes. 4) An orator of Miletus, and a contemporary of Cicero.

AESCHYLĒUS, a, um, adj. [Ἀἰσχύλειος]. Of or from Æschylus.

AESCHYLUS, i, m. [= Ἀἰσχύλος]. 1) The celebrated Greek tragic poet, and originator of the Greek drama. 2) A rhetorician of Chnidus, contemporary with Cicero.

AESCŪLĀPIUS, ii, m. [Ἀσκληπιός]. According to the common story, the son of Apollo and Coronis; in Homer, he is mentioned only as a distinguished physician; at a later period, he is the god of medicine, and pupil of Chiron.

AESCŪLETUM, i, n. [aesculus]. (Poet.) A forest of evergreen or winter-oaks.

AESCŪLEUS, a, um, adj. [aesculus]. (Poet.) Made of the winter-oak, frons.

AESCŪLUS, i, f. The winter-oak, sacred to Jupiter.

AESERNIA, ae, f. A town in Samnium.

AESERNINUS, a, um, adj. 1) Pertaining to Aesernia. 2) A surname of M. Marcellus. 3) The name of a celebrated gladiator. Subst., Aesernini, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Æsernia.

AESON, ōnis, m. [= Ἄϊων]. The son of Cretheus, father of Jason, and half-brother of Pelias, by whom he was expelled from the throne of Iolcus. According to Ovid, he was, in his old age, made young again by Medea.

AESŌNĪDES, ae, m. A son of Æson, Jason.

AESŌNIUS, a, um, adj. [Aeson]. Æsonian.

AESŌPEUS, a, um, adj. [Aesopus]. Æso-

AESŌPIUS, a, um, pl. [Aesop]. Æso-

AESŌPUS, i, m. 1) (= Ἀἰσώπης) Æsop, the Greek fabulist, who is said to have lived about the time of Solon. 2) Clodius Aes., a celebrated tragic player at Rome, contemporary with Cicero.

AESTAS, ātis, f. [ἄεθ, aestus]. The summer; (poet.) = a) summer air or summer heat — b) a year.

AESTĪ-FER, fēra, fērum, adj. [aestas-fero]. (Poet.) Heat-bringing.

AESTIL, ōrum, m. pl. A tribe on the eastern coast of Germany.

AESTĪMĀBĪLIS, e, adj. [aestimo]. Valuable, estimable.

AESTĪMĀTIO, ōnis, f. [aestimo]. 1) *The estimating of a thing according to its money-value, valuation, appraisement, frumenti, census; ae. litis, poenae, the determination of the punishment, v. aestimo; venire in aestimationem, to become subject to a valuation; facere, habere ae. In partic. — a) the valuation at a certain price, of real estate which was made over by a debtor to his creditor: an arrangement ordered by Julius Caesar, after the civil wars = payment by means of appraised property: accipere praedia in aestimationem; accipere ae. ab aliquo; malim numerato quam aestimatione, to prefer cash to an ae. — b) meton. = the property valued (in the way above described), and received in place of a money-payment: vendere aeae. suas. 2) *The valuation of a thing according to its intrinsic worth (cf. existimatio).

AESTĪMĀTOR, ōris, m. [aestimo]. An estimator — a) of the money-value of property, an appraiser — b) of the intrinsic value of any thing, a valuer, estimator, in gen.

AESTIMO, āvi, ātum, l. v. tr. [aes]. 1) *To determine the money-value of a thing, to appraise, to rate: ae. rem magni, high, so pluris, plurimi, also magno, etc.; ae. domum tribus denariis. In partic., ae. litem alicui or alicujus, to estimate the value of any thing litigated, or (oftener in a criminal action) the damages incurred, together with the costs of the suit, and thus to fix the sum which a loser or convicted person must pay; hence, ae. litem capitis, to make the penalty capital. 2) *To determine the intrinsic value of a thing, to value, to estimate (the terms expressing the value or the standard according to which the value is estimated are always added — cf. existimo): ae. rem ex veritate, ae. virtutem annis (according to truth, by years); ae. rem magni, seld. magno, or with an adv.; (lat.) ae., qualis illa pax sit, etc.

AESTIVA, ōrum, n. pl. (sc. loca or castra) [aestivus]. A summer resort: 1) Of cattle; hence (poet.) = a herd. 2) Of an army — a) a summer camp — b) the portion of the year suitable for a campaign, a campaign (military operations being usually, among the ancients, suspended in winter): conficere aestiva.

AESTIVE, adv. (Pl) [aestus]. Summer-like.
AESTIVO, āvi, ātum, l. v. intr. [aestas]. (Lat.) To spend the summer in a place.

AESTIVUS, a, um, adj. [aestas]. Pertaining to summer, summer-like, summer-, dies, a summer-day; saltus ae., the wood-land pastures frequented by the herds in summer; aves ae., which make their appearance in summer; in partic., castra aestiva, a summer camp.

AESTUĀRIUM, ii, n. [aestus]. A low part of the sea-coast, which during flood-tide, is over- flowed, and thereby becomes marshy, a lagoon. Hence — a) in gen. = a marsh — b) an inlet, a frith.

AESTUATIO, ōnis, f. [aestuo]. (Lat.) A heaving up (as of waves); trop. = unrest, agitation of mind.

AESTUO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. [aestus]. 1) Of fire (poet.), to blaze up, to rage. Hence: A) (poet.) object., to be hot, aēr, B) subject., to feel hot, to be overheated: homo ae. sub pondere. sweats. 2) (Poet.) Of water, esp. of the sea, to heave, to rise and fall in waves, to foam. 3) Trop., of the feelings—a) to be violently excited, to be in commotion: ae. desiderio, with longing — b) = to waver, to be undecided.

AESTUOSE, adv. w. comp. [aestuosis]. 1) Hotly. 2) Violently.

AESTUOSUS, a, um, adj. [aestus]. 1) Exceedingly hot, glowing with heat. 2) Heaving, surging.

AESTUS, ūs, m. [aἶθω]. In gen., of every undulating, billowy motion. 1) (Mostly poet.) Of fire, the flame, the heat, the glow: propiusque volvunt incendia aestus, the conflagration rolls its waves of flame still nearer; ae. febrisque = the heat of fever. 2) Of the sea: A) the swell, the surge; (poet.) also of boiling water: B) the tide of the sea, gen. in the comb. aestuum accessus, the flood, decessus or recessus aestuum, the ebb, aestus maxime tumens = spring-tide. 3) Of the feelings: A) a violent swelling up, agitation, commotion: ae. belli civilis, irarum, curarum; also, ae. consuetudinis nos abripit: ae. gloriae, consuming ambition: B) of a vacillating and irresolute state of mind, vacillation, irresolution, disquiet.

AESTYI, ōrum, m. pl. A maritime people of eastern Germany.

AESŪLA, ae, f. A small town in Latium.

AESŪLĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Aesula]. Pertaining to Aesula. Aesulani, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Aesula.

AETAS, ātis, f. [contr. from the ante-cl. aevitas f. aevum]. 1) Age = a definite part of the lifetime of men: ae. militaris; ae. tenera, infirma, childhood or tender youth; flos aetatis, youth; ae. constans = manly age, exacta, old age. Hence, meton. — a) = a man at any particular age: dedecora quae ipsius aetas per tulit — which he did in his youth — b) collectively, persons of any specific age: puerilis ae., boys; omnes ordines et aetates. 2) The lifetime of man, life: agere, degere aetatem. 3) An age, a generation, time: A) prop., abstr., usque ad hanc ae.: B) (mostly poet. & lat.) concr. = the men living in any particular age, any particular generation: dura ae.; aurea ae. 4) (Ante-cl.) Aetatem, as adv. — a) = always, throughout life — b) = a long time. 5) (Ante-cl.) In aetate, as adv. — a) = at times — b) = always.

AETĀTŪLA, ae, f. [dim. fr. aetas]. A tender age, childhood or youth.

AETERNITAS, ātis, f. [aeternus]. 1) Eternity, everlasting duration. 2) Imperishableness, immortality. Hence, in the time of the emperors, as a title of honour, ae. tua.

AETERNO, 1. v. tr. [aeternus] (only trop.). To immortalise, to make eternal, virtutes.

AETERNUS, a, um, adj. [= aeviternus from aevum]. 1) Eternal, raised above all limitations of time (cf. sempiternus). 2) Often = imperishable, immortal, ever-during. 3) Adv. — a) aeternum or aeterno, continually — b) in aeternum or (poet.) aeternum, forever.

AETHER, ēris, m. [aἰθήρ]. The upper, pure air, the ether (cf. aēr). Hence — a) (poet.) = heaven — b) = Air, in gen. — c) (poet.) onerare aethera votis = the gods.

AETHEREUS, } a, um, adj. [= αἰθερος]. Per-AETHERIUS, } taining to the ether, ethereal, both in a prop. and metaph. sense — v. Aether.

AETHIŌPIA, ae, f. [Αἰθιοπία]. Ethiopia, in the widest sense (with Homer and the later poets) = the entire southern part of the earth; in a narrower sense, the portion of Africa lying south of Egypt.

AETHIŌPICUS, a, um, adj. [= Αἰθιοπικός]. Ethiopian.

AETHIOPS, ōpis, [= Αἰθίοψ]. 1) Adj., Pertaining to Ethiopia, Ethiopian. 2) Subst., an inhabitant of Ethiopia, an Ethiopian.

AETHRA, ae, f. [= αἰθήρ]. The bright, serene sky, the clear, pure air.

AETHRA, ae, f. [Αἰθήρα]. A daughter of king Pittheus, in Troezen, and mother of Theseus. According to the (later) fable, she was a servant of Helen, and went with her to Troy. 3) A daughter of Oceanus and Tethys, called by others Pleione, q. v.

AETNA, ae, f. [= Αἴτνη]. 1) The volcano Aetna, in Sicily. According to fable, Typhoeus or Enceladus, when conquered, was buried under Aetna; according to another more common legend, Vulcan had here his workshop, in which he worked with the Cyclopa. 2) A town at the foot of Mount Aetna.

AETNAEUS, a, um, adj. [= Αἰτναίος]. Pertaining to Mount Aetna; fratres Ae. = the Cyclopes; deus = Vulcan; hence — a) Sicilian, tellus — b) = volcanic. ignes. Aetnaei, ōrum, m. pl., those who dwell on or near Mount Aetna.

AETNE, ēs, f. = Aetna.

AETNENSIS, e, adj. [Aetna]. Pertaining to the town Aetna; subst., Aetnensis, is, m., an inhabitant of the town Aetna.

AETŌLIA, ae, f. [= Αἰτωλία]. A province in Western Greece.

AETŌLICUS, a, um, adj. [= Ἀιτωλικός]. Ætolian, aper Ae., the Calydonian boar—v. Calydon.
AETOLIS, Idia, f. [= Ἀιτωλίας]. An Ætolian woman.

AETOLIUS, a, um, adj. [= Ἀιτωλός]. (Poet.) Ætalian, heros = Diomedes.

AETŌLUS, a, um, adj. [= Ἀιτωλός]. Ætalian; hence (poet.), Ae. plague, hunting-net, with an allusion to the Calydonian chase; urbs, campi Ae., of Ἀργί, in Italy, which was founded by the Ætolian Diomedes. Aetoli, ōrum, m. pl. (subst.), the Ætlians.

AEVITAS, ātis, f. [aevum]. Obsol. form of aetas, q. v.

AEVUM, i. n. [= αἰών]. (Mostly poet. & lat.)
 1) (Poet.) Eternity. 2) The lifetime of man, life: agere, degere ae.; aevi brevis, short-lived. 3) Age, a period of human life: meum ae.; hominis omnis aevi; primum ae., childhood. 4) Old age: obitus aevi. 5) An age or generation: ingenia nostri aevi.

AEVUS, i. m. (rar. & ante-cl.) = Aevum.

ÆFER, fra, frum, adj. African; subst., Æfer, Afri, m., an African.

AFFABĪLIS, e, adj. w. comp. [affor]. (Lat.) Easily approached, affable, friendly, condescending.
 AFFABĪLITAS, ātis, f. [affabilis]. Affability, kindness.

AFFABĪLITER, adv. w. sup. [affabilis]. (Lat.) affably, kindly.

AFFĀBRE, adv. [faber]. Skillfully.

AFFĀTIM, adv. [ad-fatim, kindred with fastidium]. To satisfaction, sufficiently, enough (subj., so that one wishes no more—cf. satis): parare commeatum a.; also w. a genit., affatim est hominum; edas usque a., until you have enough.

AFFĀTUS, ūs, m. [affor]. (Poet. & lat.) A speaking to, an address.

AFFECTĀTIO, ōnis, f. [affecto]. (Lat.) 1) An eager longing for or striving after a thing, sapientiae. 2) In rhet., affectation, an unnatural effort to imitate a thing or to say something in a striking and original manner.

AFFECTĀTOR, ōris, m. [affecto]. He who earnestly strives after a thing.

AFFECTIO, ōnis, f. [afficio]. 1) A disposition in a person, or a condition of any thing produced by an influence from without: affectio est animi aut corporis ex tempore commutatio, a transient change. 2) A permanent state or disposition of the mind: virtus est affectio animi constans, an unchanging disposition. 3) (Lat.) Esp., a. animi or only a. = kind disposition, affection, good-will, erga aliquem.

AFFECTO, āvi, ātum, l. v. tr. [freq. of afficio]. 1) To grasp, to seize, aliquem, navem; a. opus, to go about a thing. Hence: A) affectari morbo, to be attacked with illness: B) a. viam, (iter) ad rem aliquam, to take a way, in order to arrive at a certain point; a. speciem, to cherish. 2) Trop., to strive eagerly after a thing, to long for, to endeavour to possess one's self of it (either in a good or a bad sense): a. regnum; a. diligentiam; a. civitates, Gallias, to seek to draw to one's side. 3) (Lat.) To affect, to attempt to imitate, studium aliquod, rem.

AFFECTUS, a, um, adj. [part. f. afficio]. 1) Furnished, endowed, gifted, optima valetudine, honore, omnibus virtutibus. 2) Without an abl.: A) of the body, affected, attacked, weakened: manus tua sic affecta est; Caesarem graviter affectum videram: B) of the mind, affected, disposed, inclined (v. afficio): C) of the affairs of a person or the state, impaired, disordered: res affectae, disordered affairs; fides a., injured credit; aetas a. = old age.

AFFECTUS, ūs, m. [afficio]. 1) A condition, state, corporis, in partic., animi, disposition, affection: qualis cujusque animi a. esset. 2) (Lat.): A) = emotion, passion, desire: B) good-will, love, sympathy.

AFFERO, attūli, allātum, afferre, v. tr. [ad-fero]. 1) To bring, to take, to carry or to convey to a place (of inanimate objects, whilst 'adduco' is used of persons): a. pecuniam ad aliquem and alicui; a. litteras, to deliver; (poet.) a. me or afferor, I betake myself, I go or come to. Hence: A) trop. — a) = to bring (i. e., with one's self), animum vacuum ad scribendum; a. auctoritatem — b) a. consulatum in familiam suam, to be the first of a family to receive the consulship — e) a. manus (vim) alicui, to lay violent hands on (never = to help), thus also bonis alicujus, temple, to lay hands on the property of another, on the temple = to plunder, to rob; a. manus sibi = to commit suicide; a. manus vulneribus suis, to tear one's wounds open; a. manus beneficio suo, to render his benefaction useless, to nullify it: B) to bring a thing as news, to report, to announce: a. calamitatem, Darium male rem gerere: C) to cause, occasion, alicui molestiam, populo Romano magnam cladem, alicui metum. 2) = To bring forward, to produce, to allege as a reason, an excuse, &c.: a. causam, aetatem; nilhil a., to bring forward something of no account. 3) To contribute to a thing, to help, to assist: a. oratori aliquid, a. aliquid ad rempublicam, to be useful to the state. 4) (Rar.) To bring forth as a product, to bear, to produce: ager plus a. quam accipit.

AFFICIO, fēci, fectum, 3. v. tr. [facio]. To affect a person or thing, to treat in some way, and hence, to put in a certain state, position, &c.; accordingly, it may be rendered in different ways: A) freq. w. an abl., a. aliquem poenam, to punish, honore, to honour, laetitiam, to gladden, cruciatu (dolore), to torment, sepulturam, to bury, beneficio, to benefit, praemio, to reward, injuriam, to wrong, servitute, to bring into servitude, praedam, agro, to procure booty, land; a. aliquem admiratione, odio, to excite one's admiration, hatred, ignominy, to disgrace; affici morbo gravi, to fall seriously ill, difficultate, to be in difficulty, perplexity: B) without an abl. —a) of the body = to weaken, to attack: aestus et labor eos a. —b) of the mind, to produce a certain impression, to affect: diversissime and in diversum a.; litterae tuae me sic affecerunt; quomodo ille nos vivos a.

AF-FIGO, ixi, iotum, 3. v. tr. To attach, fasten, affix to: a. aliquem cruci, to crucify; a. ad terram, litteram ad caput; a. radicem terrae, to plant, set out; trop., senectus me lectulo affixit, has confined me to bed; (lat.) trop., a. aliquid animo, to impress upon the mind.

*AF-FIGURO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To form in addition (of new words, formed according to analogy).

AF-FINGO, inxi, iotum, 3. v. tr. 1) To form as an addition, to add by forming: a. manum statuæ; natura multa a.; hence, 2) trop., to invent as an appendage, to add by inventing, to impute a thing to one falsely: a. aliquid in moribus, to add something false; a. alicui crimen, falsam laudem.

AF-FINIS, e, adj. 1) (Rare, instead of 'confinis,' more freq.) Bordering upon, neighbouring to (of a people — cf. vicinus, finitimus): gens a. genti. 2) Both adj. & subst. comm.: A) taking part in, privy to, connected with: a. publicis negotiis, facinori, an accomplice of; a. illarum rerum: B) related by marriage (cf. consanguineus, cognatus, etc.): a. alicui; hence, a. meus, a brother-in-law, son-in-law, &c.

AFFINITAS, ātis, f. [affinis]. 1) (Lat.) Connection, affinity, litterarum, corporis et mentis. 2) Relationship by marriage — a) abstr. alicuius, to one: contrahere a. —b) (Pl.) concr. = the persons related: deserere a.

*AFFIRMANTER, } adv. [affirmo]. With AFFIRMATE, w. sup. } asseveration, with assurance, positively.

AF-FIRMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To confirm — a) = to strengthen, spem alicui, societatem — b) = to confirm a thing as true and correct, dieta alicujus; a. virtutem populi Romani armis (Tac.), to prove the valour of the Romans by arms. 2) To affirm, to assert, to aver, rem pro certo, aliquid esse factum.

AFFIXUS, a, um, adj. [part. of affigo]. Fastened or joined to, alicui; hence, trop., keeping closely to, cleaving to: anus a. foribus, who keeps at the door; homines aa. in ea regione, settled; res a. ad aliquid, closely connected with.

AFFLATUS, ūs, m. [afflo]. A blowing or breathing on, a breeze, blast, breath, venti, vaporis; a. e. terra; a. serpentis; trop., a. divinus or furoris = inspiration.

AF-FLEO, 2. v. intr. To weep at.

AFFLICTATIO, ōis, f. [afflicto]. (Rare.) Torment, pain.

*AFFLICTIO, ōis, f. [affligo]. (Lat.) Distress, grief.

AFFLICTOR, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [affligo]. 1) To toss or agitate with violence, to injure, to damage: tempestas a. naves; naves afficiuntur in vadis. 2) Trop., to use one ill, to vex, to torment: afflictori morbo; respublica afflictaur; a. Italiam luxuriā saevitiāque, to oppress. In partic., a. se or afflictori, to be anxious, to be troubled about a thing.

*AFFLICTOR, ōis, m. [affligo]. One who strikes a thing to the ground, dignitatis, a destroyer.

AFFLICTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of affligo]. 1) Ill-used, wretched, desperate, fortuna; res afflictae. 2) Dejected, desponding, luctu. 3) Of character, abandoned, vile.

AF-FLIGO, ixi, iotum, 3. v. tr. 1) To strike a thing to some place; esp., to strike to the ground, to strike or to cast down, to make fall: a. vasa parietibus; a. caput saxo, against a stone; a. arborem; a. aliquem terrae or ad terram; equi virique afficti sunt, tumbled down. Hence, 2) trop.: A) to ill-use, to damage, navem; senectus a. hominem, weakens: B) to cast down, to depress, to prostrate, to make unfortunate: a. aliquem sententia sua; virtus nostra nos a., has ruined us; fames a. hostes, comes upon; mors ejus omnes cives a., was a heavy blow to all the citizens; vexitigalia bello affliguntur, suffer by the war; religiones prostratae et affictae sunt, trampled under foot: C) to cast down = to discourage, to dishearten, animum; discessus tuus me a.: D) = to reduce, to lower in value: rem a. vituperando (opp. augere laudando): E) a. causam suscepam, to give up, to abandon.

AF-FLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. 1) (Tr.) With the thing blown upon another as object, to blow on or to, to convey to by blowing: odores afflatur e floribus; trop., aura voluntatis eorum ei afflatur, reaches him, is breathed to him; sol a. vaporem membris, imparts; also (poet.), a. oculis homores, to breathe beauty upon the eyes. 2) With the thing as object upon which something is blown, to blow or breathe to or on, erinem alicujus, ventus a. terga. Hence: A) of an influence similar to a current of air, afflari viribus ignis, incendio, to be touched by, to feel the effect of, fulminis telis (ventis), to be struck by a flash of lightning: B) afflari numine, spiritu divino, to be inspired by the gods, to be filled with the divinity. —(Intr.) To blow upon or toward, to come as a breeze: odores tibi afflabunt; mostly trop. —a) fortuna a., amor a. tibi = to be favourable — b) rumoris nescio quid afflaverat, a rumour had come there; odores a. tibi.

AFFLUENS, entis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of affluo]. 1) Flowing in abundance, at hand in abundance, aqua, copia; ex affluent (Tac.), in abundance. 2) Having a thing in abundance, rich in, opibus et copiis.

AFFLUENTER, adv. with comp. [affluens]. Richly, abundantly.

AFFLUENTIA, ae, f. [affluo]. Prop., a flowing to; hence, abundance, copiousness, affluence.

AF-FLUO, xi, um, 3. v. intr. 1) To flow or to stream to or towards: Rhenus a. ad ripam; (Lucr.) res a. corpus sensu, imbues. Hence: A) of persons (in gen., a great number or multitude), to hasten, to come to in haste: B) rumor a., reaches a place; amor a. alicui, arises in one: C) voluptas a. ad sensus cum voluntate, makes an agreeable impression: D) = to be in abundance: opes aa.; quod a. opibus vestris = in abundance. 2) To overflow with a thing, to have an abundance, to be abundantly supplied with, divitiis, honore, voluptatibus.

AF-(FOR), fātus, 1. v. dep. tr. (the first pers. of pres. indic. does not occur — mostly poet.). To speak to, to address, aliquem; a. deos, to invoke, to implore. In partic., a. mortuum, to say, vale (= the last farewell) to the dead at burial.

AF-FÖRE and AF-FÖREM, fr. assum, q. v.

AF-FORMIDO, 1. v. intr. (Pl.) To be very much afraid.

AF-FRICO, ui, etum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) Prop., to rub on or against a thing; hence, trop. = to impart by rubbing: a. alicui rubiginem suam.

AF-FULGEO, si, -, 2. v. intr. To shine, to beam upon, stella; trop., of something fortunate that shines or smiles upon us: vultus tuus, spes, gaudium a., fortuna a. alicui.

AF-FUNDO, ŭdi, ŭsum, 4. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To pour to, upon or into: a. venenum alicui in aqua frigida; os Mosae fluminis Rhenum Oceano affundit, the Rhine empties into the Ocean through the mouth of the river Mosae: amnis affusus oppido, flowing by the town, and oppidum affusum amne, washed by the stream; trop., equitum tria millia cornibus affundebantur, were added to the wings, i. e., were dispatched to.

AF-FŪSUS, a, um, adj. [part. of affundo]. Stretched out, prostrate: affusae tumulo, upon the tomb; esp., a. genibus alicujus, and aba., cast at the feet of one, cast upon the ground.

A-FÖREM and A-FÖRE, from abeum, q. v.

AFRĀNIĀNUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Afranius, legio.

AFRĀNIUS, ii, m. The name of a Roman gens. 1) Lucius A., a comic poet, who lived about 100 B. C. 2) Lucius A., an adherent of Pompey, and his lieutenant in Spain: after the battle of Thapsus, he was put to death, as a captive, by the soldiers of Cæsar.

AFRICA, ae, f. [Afer]. Africa; in its widest sense = the division of the world known by that name; in a narrower sense = the Roman province, the territory of Carthage, A. propria or provincia.

AFRICĀNUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Africa, African, bellum, possessiones; in partic., the surname of the two Scipios.

AFRĪCUS, a, um, adj. (Mostly lat.) African, Afric.

AFRĪCUS VENTUS or AFRĪCUS, i, m. The stormy south-west wind.

ĀGĀMEDES, is, m. [= 'Agamēdēs]. A son of Erichonius, and king of Orchomenus; he and his brother Trophonius built the temple of Apollo at Delphi, and received, as their reward from the god, a speedy death.

ĀGĀMEMNON, ōnis, m. [= 'Agamēmnon]. King of Mycenæ, son of Atreus, brother of Menelaus, and chief commander of the Greeks before Troy. After his return from Troy, he was murdered by his wife Clytemnestra and her paramour Ægisthus.

ĀGĀMEMNŌNĪDES, ae, m. ['Agamēmnonīdēs]. A male descendant of Agamemnon.

ĀGĀMEMNŌNIUS, a, um, adj. ['Agamēmnonīus]. Pertaining to Agamemnon, Agamemnonian, classis, puella, Orestes.

ĀGĀNIPPE, es, f. [= 'Aganippē]. A fountain sacred to the muses, at the foot of Mount Helicon, in Boeotia.

ĀGĀNIPPEUS, a, um, adj. ['Aganippēus]. Pertaining to the fountain Aganippe.

ĀGĀNIPPIS, idos, f. Of Aganippe.

ĀGĀSO, ōnis, m. [ago-asinus?]. An hostler, a groom; hence, in gen., a menial servant.

ĀGĀTHOCLES, is, m. ['Agathoklēs]. A tyrant of Syracuse, and king of Sicily, though a man of lowly origin, who lived about 340 B. C.

ĀGĀTHYRNA, ae, f. [= 'Agathyrna]. A town on the northern coast of Sicily.

ĀGĀTHYRSI, ōrum, m. pl. ['Agathyrsoi]. A Scythian people, who lived upon the river Maros, in what is now called Hungary.

ĀGĀVE, es, f. [= 'Agavē]. A daughter of Cadmus, wife of Echion, and mother of Pentheus, whom she tore in pieces for his contempt of the orgies of Bacchus.

ĀGĒLASTUS, i, m. [= 'Agēlaistos]. Prop., he who never laughs, a surname of M. Crassus, the grandfather of the triumvir.

ĀGĒLLŪLUS, i, m. [a double dim. of ager]. (Poet. & lat.) A very small field.

ĀGĒLLUS, i, m. [ager]. A little field.

ĀGĒMA, ātis, n. [= agmē]. The name of a corps or division of soldiers in the Macedonian army.

ĀGĒNDĪCUM, i, n. A town in Gallia Lugdunensis, now Sens, in Champagne.

ĀGĒNŌR, ōris, m. [= 'Agēnor]. A son of Neptune and Libya, king of Phœnicia, brother of Belus, and father of Cadmus and Europa.

ĀGĒNŌRĒUS, a, um, adj. [Agenor]. Pertaining to Agenor.

ĀGĒNŌRĪDES, ae, m. ['Agēnorīdēs]. A male descendant of Agenor — a) Cadmus — b) Perses (as a grandson of Danaus, and descendant of Belus).

AGENS, the adj. [part. from ago]. In rhet. Effective, powerful, imago, orator.

AGER, gri, m. [dyces]. 1) A field, a piece of land, used for tillage, pasture, or the rearing of flowers (cf. arvum): agrum colere; a. fertilis. 2) The country (in opp. to the town—cf. rus): concurrere ex aa. 3) The territory or domain belonging to a community, i. e., a city or people: a. Tusculanus, Helvetius. Hence, in gen., collect = a tract of country, a district, territory. 4) In surveying, in agrum = in depth (opp. to in fronte, in breadth.)

AGĒSILĀUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀγέσιλαος]. The celebrated Spartan king, who was victorious in the war of the Spartans against the Persians, and defeated the allied forces of Athens and Boeotia, at Coroneia, 394 B. C.

AGĒSIPŌLIS, is, m. ['Ἀγέσιπολις]. The name of several kings of Sparta.

AG-GĒMO, ui, —, 3. v. intr. (Poet.) To groan, to sigh at any thing, malis alicuius.

AGGER, ēris, m. [aggero]. 1) Materials gathered together, heaped or piled up, to make an elevation above ground; such as, earth, sand, stone, rubbish, sod, brush-wood, &c.: petere, comportare a; fossas (paludem) complere aggere. 2) The pile, the elevation made by the materials so brought together; and, according to its specific destination—a) = a clay or mud-wall (for defence) about a town or camp—b) = a dam or dike for the protection of a harbour—c) a military road—d) a mound, raised to sustain the battering engines which were used against the walls of a besieged city—e) = the slope of a shore or the shore itself—f) (poet.) of a mountain (aa. Alpium), a funeral pile, a great wave or billow, &c.

AGGERĀTIO, ōnis, f. [aggero]. (Lat.) A piling or heaping up; concr., a dike, a dam.

AGGĒRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [agger]. (Poet. & lat.) To heap up, to cast up, to pile up, cadavera; a. tramitem, to make with rubbish. Hence, trop., a. iras diotis, to increase.

AG-GĒRO, gessi, gestum, 3. v. tr. To bear, to bring, to carry to a place, aliquid ad aliquem; a. aquam, cespitem; a. opes opibus, to heap treasure upon treasure.

AGGESTUS, ūs, m. [aggero]. (Lat.) A carrying to, a procuring.

AG-GLŌMĒRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. Prop., to wind upon a ball; hence (poet.), to join to, to add to a crowd.

AG-GLŪTĪNO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To glue to = to fasten to, aliquid alicui rei; a. se alicui, to hang fast to any one.

AG-GRĀVESCO, —, —, 3. v. intr. (Ante-cl.) To become heavier; trop., to grow worse, morbus.

AG-GRĀVO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To make heavier, pondus. 2) Trop.: A) to make worse, to make more dangerous and critical: res aggra- vantur, the condition (i. e., of the state) becomes more critical: B) to incommode, to trouble, aliquem; res illa reum nihil a., is not prejudicial to his cause.

AGGRĒDIO, 3. v. tr. [a rare act. form of the follow. dep.]. To go to, to approach.

AGGRĒDIOR, gressus, 3. v. dep. tr. & intr. [ad-gradior]. 1) (Rar.) To go to, in gen., aliquo, somewhere, ad hominem or only hominem. 2) To go to a person or thing for a certain purpose: A) to approach one, to apply to one in order to speak to him, to ask something of him, &c.: a. aliquem de re aliqua; a. aliquem dictis, to address, precibus, to implore; a. aliquem pecuniā, to attempt to bribe; a. crudelitatem principis (Tac.), to use for one's purpose: B) to fall on one, to attack, to assault, milites palantes; a. aliquem vi: C) to go about, to undertake, to set one's self about a thing: a. ad disputationem illam, ad injuriam faciendam; a. causam ancipitem; a. dicere de illis rebus; also aba. = to begin, aggrediar, si pauca ante de fama mea dixerō.

AGGRĒGO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [ad-grex]. To add to a flock or crowd: a. ceteros naufragos eodem, to collect in the same place; a. aliquem in numerum nostrum, to receive. Hence, trop., a. se alicui, to unite one's self with, to join, se ad amicitiam alicuius, to join one as a friend; voluntatem meam ad dignitatem ejus aggrego, I show my readiness to promote his reputation; a. filium ad interitum patris, to ruin both father and son.

AGGRESSIO, ōnis, f. [aggredior]. (Rar.) 1) A proem, introduction to a speech. 2) (Lat.) A translation of the Greek ἐπιχρημα, a conclusion.

AG-GŪBERNO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To govern; trop., fortunā agubernante iter, to guide.

ĀGLĪS, e, adj. [ago]. (Mostly poet.) Moveable. 1) Of things, easily moved or driven, remus, rota. 2) Of persons: A) agile, nimble, quick, Diana, Mercurius: B) active, busy, homo, animus.

ĀGLĪTAS, ētis, f. [agilis]. Mobility, nimbleness: a. naturae, flexibility.

ĀGIS, Idis, m. [= 'Ἄγυ]. The name of several kings of Sparta.

ĀGITĀBĪLIS, e, adj. [agito]. (Poet.) = Agilis, 1.

ĀGITĀTIO, ōnis, f. [agito]. 1) A motion, agitation: a. fluctuum, commotion. 2) Trop.: A) prosecution, practice: a. studiorum, of literary pursuits: B) activity, mentis.

ĀGITĀTOR, ōris, m. [agito]. A driver, aselli; hence, esp. = a charioteer.

ĀGITO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. [freq. of ago]. (Tr.) 1) To set in motion, to agitate: A) to drive, capellas; (poet.) e. equos: B) of other objects, to move violently, to shake, caput, alas; ventus a. mare, arbores; numina Trojae agitata, tossed about (upon the sea); trop., rebus agitata, in troublesome times: C) to hunt, to chase, to pursue, feras: D) trop. = a) to stir up, to excite, plectum — b) to disquiet, to torment, to pursue: dii aa. to — e) diversus agitabatur, he was drawn hither and thither (of one wavering between fear and desire) — d) to assail with words, to blame, to scold, aliquem, rem. 2) Of time, to pass, to spend, aevum, vita agitabatur. 3) To urge on a thing, to be engaged in, to occupy one's self with, artem, legem; (poet.) a. fugam, to flee; a. bellum, to have war; a. inducias, to keep a truce; a. festum or convivium, to celebrate; a. custodiam, to keep guard; pax agitur, peace prevails; (poet.) a. molem, to erect. 4) Trop.: A) to intend, to think of, to deliberate upon, to meditate, rem aliquam, facere aliquid; a. de re aliqua; usually animo, in mente, secum, or the like, is added. 5) To speak or to treat of a thing, aliquid or de re aliqua. — 6) (Intr. or abs.): A) (abs., instead of a se) to live, to abide, to sojourn: Germani laeti, neque procul, aa.; jubet equitatum pro castris agitare; consul a. inter primos, was seen: B) to behave, to act, ferociter. *7) Sat agitare = satagere, q. v.

AGLĀIA, ae, f. [= 'Ἀγλαΐα]. The oldest of the three Graces.

AGLĀOPHON, ontis, m. [= 'Ἀγλαοφών]. A celebrated Greek painter of Thanaos, about 400 B.C.

*AGLASPIS, Idis, m. [ἀγλαΐς and ἰδής]. Having a bright, shining shield.

AGLAUROS, i, f. [= 'Ἀγλαυρὸς]. A daughter of Cecrops. Acc. to one fable, she was changed into a stone by Mercury; acc. to another, she threw herself, while deranged, into the sea.

AGMEN, Inis, n. [ago]. 1) A train, a crowd, a troop in motion; esp. of men, but also of animals and things; agmine ingredi (of two) to go together; (poet.) of water, lene a., stream; a. pulverulentum, a cloud of dust; a. remorum, the strokes of the oars; agmine certo, in an unerring course. 2) Esp., the train of an army, a march: pugnare in agmine, aggredi hostes in agmine; trop., agmina fati et volumina, the movements and windings of fate. 3) An army on a march (cf.acies, exercitus): a. primum, the vanguard, medium, the centre, extremum or novissimum, the rear-guard; cogere or claudere a., to close the train; a. quadratum, an army marching in the form of a square, and with the baggage placed in the centre, which was done when they expected to meet an enemy. Hence — a) an army, in gen., instructo agmine — b) a troop, a crowd, in gen., medium in agmen.

AGNA, ae, f. (Econ. & poet.) An ewe lamb.

AGNĀLIA, ium, n. pl. = Agonalia, q. v.

AG-NASCOR, ātus, 3, v. dep. intr. 1) To be born in addition to, i. e., after the father has disposed of his property by will. 2) (Lat.) To grow in addition to, dentes.

AGNĀTIO, ōnis, f. [agnascor]. Consanguinity on the father's side (cf. cognatio.)

AGNĀTUS, i, m. [part. of agnascor]. 1) An after-born child, i. e., after the father had made his will. 2) A relative on the father's side (cf. cognatus).

*AGNELUS, i, m. [dim. of agnus]. (Pl.) A little lamb.

AGNINA, ae, f. (sc. caro) [agnus]. Lamb's meat, lamb.

AGNINUS, a, um, adj. [agnus]. Pertaining to a lamb.

AGNĪTIO, ōnis, f. [agnosco]. A perceiving, knowledge, animi, of the nature of mind.

AGNŌMINĀTIO, ōnis, f. [ad-nomino]. (Rar.) Tech. t. in rhet. = paronomasia, a bringing together of two words, similar in sound, but differing in meaning: e. g., si lenones tamquam leones vitasses.

AGNŌNIDES, ae, m. An Athenian orator, the accuser of Phocion.

AGNOSCO, ōvi, Itum, 3, v. tr. [ad-nosco]. 1) To acknowledge as one's own, or to admit as due to one's self: a. aliquem filium; a. laudem Augusti = to claim for one's self; mihi tantum tribui dicis quantum ego nec a., etc., neither can admit as due to me. Hence, in gen., to acknowledge (that a thing is what it claims to be), to admit, to concede: a. gloriam illius facti, a. crimen, a. aliquem ducem; a. id meo jussu esse factum. 2) To recognize a thing already known: a. aliquid reminiscendo, a. Anchisen veterem amicum. 3) (= Cognoscere) To acquire knowledge of, to become acquainted with, deum ex operibus ejus; non quisvis haec a. potest, understand; hence also, in gen., to perceive, to notice: a. aliquid oculis, auribus; a. cantum, to hear.

AGNUS, i, m. A lamb; prov., conari agnum eripere lupo, to attempt an impossibility.

ĀGO, āgi, actum, 3, v. tr. [āye]. To set in motion. 1) To drive, to lead, pecudes, aliquem ante se. Hence: A) a. praedam, to carry off, to plunder, of men and animals taken as booty in war (in opp. to 'fero,' which is used of things, hence, freq., 'ferre et agere' = to plunder, to make booty of): B) agmen agitur, moves, marches, and (poet.), a. se = to go, to come; in (Pl.) abs., unde agis, whence come you? C) to chase, to pursue, to put to flight: canes aa. apros. Hence, trop. — a) a. aliquem furti, a. reum, to accuse — b) (poet.) to pursue, to persecute, to vex, to disturb: a. aliquem diris, to curse; verba agentia Lycamben, which drive L. to despair: D) trop. — a. aliquem praecipitem, to drive to desperate resolutions; a. aliquem in facinus, to urge one to crime: E) a. vineas, to bring nearer, to move forward; a. cloacam, aggerem, cuniculum, to make: F) (poet.) to steer, navem, cursum: G) = to drive, to throw forth or out: a. vocem = to speak or to scream, apumas = to foam; animum a., to give up the ghost; u. tela, to hurt; a. radices in profundum, to strike deep: H) a. viam, to make a way for one's self, rimas, to open in cracks or fissures; a. subleas, to drive in or down.

3) Of time, to spend, to pass, aetatem, vitam, diem; mensis septimus agitur, this is the seventh month; principium anni tum agebatur, it was at the beginning of the year; annum ago vicesimum, I am in my twentieth year. Hence (rar.) = to live, to be: incultus a., a. sine legibus.

3) To drive = to be engaged in any thing: A) = to act, to do, to be occupied: nihil a., to be idle; quid agis, how do you do? quid agitur, how goes it with you? how are you? B) to accomplish, to effect, nihil aut non multum: C) to perform, to carry out, to execute, rem, negotium, delectum census, to make; freq. it can be rendered, to have, a. triumphum; to keep, a. custodias, praesidium; a. silentium, to observe silence; forum a. (tech. t.), to hold court: D) to attend to something, to direct the attention to it: hoc age, give attention, attend; aliud or alias res a., to be inattentive, to think of something else: E) to strive, to labour for any thing, ut (ne) aliquid fiat: F) to guide, to manage, to carry on (cf. gero), bellum; a. proelium, to join battle; curam a., to take care of.

4) To transact business: A) of public affairs, to transact, to discuss any affair, and to bring it to a decision, aliquid or de re aliqua. In partic., a. cum populo (of a magistrate), to bring a proposition before the people for their approval or rejection; on the contrary, a. ad populum, simply to communicate, to report something to the people: B) in private affairs, to negotiate, to treat, to confer with any one about a request, a proposal, &c.: a. cum aliquo aliquid or de re aliqua, also ut (ne) aliquid fiat; agitur de re aliqua, the talk is about: C) with an adv., to deal with one, to treat one, bene, male a. cum aliquo; a. ferociter cum aliquo; freq. pass., bene agitur, it is well, mecum, I am well off: D) a. lege, (ex) jure, ex sponso, to make an accusation, to commence a suit, &c. (often in opp. to vi agere, to use violence): E) causam a., to conduct a suit; causam alicujus a., to defend one at law: F) res or de re agitur, the question is about such a thing; in partic., res (not de re) agitur, it concerns, it affects; caput meum a., my life is at stake, is in danger; vectigalia populi Romani aguntur: G) actum (or acta res) est, it is all over, all up, de me, with me.

5) To represent: A) of a public speaker, to pronounce, to rehearse: B) of a player, to play, to act, partes, a part, a character, amicum, the part of a friend: C) a. gratias, to return thanks.

6) A) refl., to behave, to conduct one's self, ferociter; also abs., a. pro victore, to deport one's self as a victor: B) abs., to loiter, to tarry, to live, to be somewhere: a. apud primos, circa muros; incultus, prope a mari a.

7) Imper., age, agite, up! come on! A) in encouragement and exhortation: B) in transitions in discourse, now then, well now: C) to express assent, well! good! right! (used also in the sing. when several are addressed, age abite). Sometimes the strengthening particle 'dum' is added, agedum.

AGON, ōnis. m. [= ἀγών]. (Lat.) A contest or combat in the public games, a prize-fight; proverb, nunc est agon, now is the time for action.

AGONALIA, ium, n. pl. A festival, celebrated at Rome on the ninth of January, in honour of Janus.

AGONALIS, e, adj. Pertaining to the Agonalia: lux A. = Agonalia.

*AGONIA, ōrum, n. pl. (Ovid) = Agonalia.

AGONŌTHĒTA, ae, m. [= ἀγονοθέτης]. The superintendent of public games.

AGORANŌMUS, i, m. [= ἀγοράνομος]. The superintendent of the market at Athens.

AGRARIUS, a, um, adj. [ager]. Pertaining to fields or lands, esp., a. lex, the agrarian law, by which public lands were divided among, or rather leased to, the poorer citizens; a. res, ratio, the whole subject of a division of public lands; triumvir a., one of the three who superintended the division of public lands. — Subst., agrarii, the friends and advocates of the leges agrariae.

AGRESTIS, e, adj. [ager]. 1) Pertaining or belonging to the country: A) of plants, in opp. to those improved by culture, wild, growing wild, pomum, palma: B) of animals, in opp. to those tamed and domesticated, wild: a. columba (opp. to a tams pigeon). 2) In opp. to the town, rural, rustic: a. hospitium, cultus; homo a., a countryman. 3) (Trop.): A) boorish, clownish, uncultivated, unpolished (mostly of manners which violate the laws of decorum — cf. rusticus): animus a. ac durus, unfeeling: B) (poet.) brutish, vultus, figura.

AGRICŌLA, ae, m. [ager-colo]. A countryman, a farmer; dñi aa., the tutelary deities of agriculture. 2) Proper name, Cn. Julius A., the father-in-law of the historian Tacitus.

AGRICULTIO, ōnis, f. [ager-colo]. (Rar.) = agriculture.

AGRICULTOR, ōria, m. [ager-colo]. (Rar.) = agricola.

AGRICULTŪRA, ae, f. [ager-colo]. Agriculture, husbandry.

AGRIGENTINUS, a, um, adj. Of or from Agrigentum. Subst., Agrigentini, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Agrigentum.

AGRIGENTUM, i, n. A rich and famous city on the southern coast of Sicily (originally a Greek colony), now Girgenti.

AGRIPĒTA, ae, m. [ager-peto]. One who strives for the possession of land.

AGRIPPA, ae, m. A Roman family name.
1) A. Menenius, consul b. c. 508, and known by his fable of the stomach and the limbs. 2) M. Vipsanius A., born b. c. 63, died 12 b. c., the well-known general and confidential friend of Augustus; he married first Pomponia, a daughter of Atticus, afterwards Marcella, the niece of Augustus, and finally Julia, the daughter of Augustus. 3) A. Posthumus, a son of the preceding, who was murdered by order of Tiberius.

AGRIPPINA, ae, f. The name of the women in the Agrippina family. 1) A daughter of M. Vipsanius Agrippa by Pomponia, and wife of Tiberius. 2) A daughter of M. Vipsanius Agrippa by Julia, wife of Germanicus and mother of Caligula, who died by starvation in exile. 3) A daughter of the preceding and Germanicus, sister of Caligula, and mother of Nero, by whose order she was at last murdered. She is notorious for her crimes and deeds of villany.

AGRIPPINA } COLONIA. The birth-
AGRIPPINENSIS } place of Agrippina 3; originally a hamlet in the territory of the Ubii, but enlarged by a Roman colony, a. d. 50, and then called after her; now Cologne.

AGYIEUS, ei, m. [= 'Αγυιεύς]. A surname of Apollo, as guardian of the streets.

AGYLLA, ae, f. [= 'Αγυλλα]. The original name of the town Caera in Etruria, now Cerveteri.

AGYLLINI, ōrum, n. pl. The inhabitants of Agylla.

AGYRINENSES, ium, m. pl. The inhabitants of Agyrum.

AGYRIUM, ii, n. [= 'Αγύριον]. A town in Sicily.

AH, rar. AHĀ, interj. Ah! alas! aha! den. sadness, indignation, surprise, raillery, &c.

AHĀLA, ae, m. The name of a Roman family, of which the most famous member was C. Servilius A., who, as magister equitum, slew Sp. Maelius, 440 b. c.

AHARNA, ae, f. A town in Etruria.

AIO, v. def. 1) To say yes (opp. to nego). 2) To assert, to avouch (cf. dico — almost always w. the orat. obliqua — cf. inquam): a. aliquem misum esse. In partic.: A) aiunt, it is said: B) ain' (instead of aisne), ain' tu (colloq.), to den. surprise, reproach, &c., indeed! it is possible! C) (colloq.) quid ais, what do you say? what do you mean? what do you think? — a) to denote surprise — b) when one wishes to ascertain the meaning or the opinion of another.

ĀJAX, ōcis m. [= Ἀΐας]. 1) The name of two Greek heroes at Troy: A) the son of Oileus, king of Locris, who, after the conquest of Troy, abused Cassandra, the daughter of Priam, and perished on his return in consequence of the wrath of Minerva: B) the son of Telamon, king of Salamis, and hence grandson of Æacus. When the arms of Achilles were adjudged to Ulysses he became deranged, and finally killed himself. 2) The title of an unfinished tragedy of the Emperor Augustus.

ĀLA, ae, f. [contr. from axilla]. 1) A wing of a bird; (poet.) aa. velorum, fulminis. 2) In men, the shoulder, esp. the cavity under the shoulder, the armpit; in animals, the hollow where the foreleg is joined to the shoulder; in plants, the hollow where the branch is joined to the stem; of buildings, a side-wing, a side-hall. 3) The wing of an army, which was composed of cavalry and the troops (esp. the horsemen) of the allies. The soldiers who formed the wings of an army were called 'alarii' — cf. legionarii).

ĀLABANDA, ae, f., & ōrum, n. pl. A town in Caria.

ĀLABANDENSIS, e, adj. Pertaining to Alabanda. (Subst.) Ālabandenses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Alabanda.

ĀLABANDENI, ōrum, m. pl. The inhabitants of Alabanda.

ĀLABANDEUS, ei, m. [= 'Αλαβανδέης]. A native of Alabanda. Hence, Alabandis or Alabandes [= 'Αλαβανδείης], the inhabitants of Alabanda.

ĀLABANDI, ōrum, m. pl. [= 'Αλαβανδοί]. The inhabitants of Alabanda.

ĀLABANDUS, i, m. The founder of Alabanda, who was honoured as a deity by the inhabitants of that town.

ĀLABARCHES, ae, m. (doubtful reading) v. Arabarches.

ĀLABASTER, tri, m. [= ἀλάβαστρος]. A box for unguents.

ĀLĀCER, oris, e, adj. w. comp. & sup. Lively, eager, roused to action, quick (cf. acer); esp. of joyous feelings, cheerful, joyful; also = merry (cf. laetus): a. ad aliquid faciendum; a. et promptus; equus a., a fiery horse; (poet.) a. voluptas.

ĀLACRITAS, ātis, f. Liveliness, briskness, alacrity, joy, gladness: (rar.) a. rei alicujus, on account of something.

ĀLĀNI, ōrum, m. pl. [= 'Αλανοί]. A warlike Scythian tribe, living upon the Tanais.

ĀLĀPA, ae, f. A box on the ear (given with the open hand — cf. colaphus): ducere sibi a., to give one's self a box on the ear. At the manumission of a slave a gentle slap on the ear was given him, and therefore alapa = manumission: multo majoris aa. mecum veneunt.

ĀLĀRIS, e, (rar.) } adj. [ala]. Pertaining ĀLĀRIUS, a, um, } to the wing of an army: alarii, the troops forming the wings (v. ala); aa. cohortes, the infantry, alarii or aa. equites, the cavalry.

ĀLĀTUS, a, um, adj. [ala]. Winged.

ĀLAUDA, ae, f. 1) The lark. 2) A Gallic legion, raised by Cæsar, so called from the decoration on their helmets.

ALAZON, ōnis, m. [= ἀλαζών]. (Pl.) A braggart, boaster (pure Latin, gloriosus).

ALBA, ae, f. The name of several towns: 1) A. Longa, a town in Latium, the mother-city of Rome, founded, acc. to the legend, by Ascanius, the son of Æneas. 2) A. Fuentia, a town in Samnium.

ALBĀNIA, ae, f. A province on the coast of the Caspian sea.

ALBĀNUS, a, um, adj. 1) Pertaining to Alba (Longa), Alban. 2) Pertaining to Albania. (Subst.) Albāni, ōrum, m. pl., 1) the inhabitants of Alba Longa; 2) the inhabitants of Albania.

ALBĀTUS, a, um, adj. [albo]. Clothed in white.

ALBENSIS, e, adj. Pertaining to Alba (Fuentia). (Subst.) Albenses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Alba Fuentia.

ALBEO, ui, —, 2. v. intr. [albus]. (Mostly poet. & lat.) To be white, albente coelo, at the dawn of day.

ALBESCO, bui, —, 3. v. intr. [inch. of albeo]. To become white; esp., to become bright by means of light, fire, &c.; lux a., ūdawns.

ALBIĀNUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Albias.

ALBICASCO, —, —, 3. v. intr. [albico]. (Ante-cl.) To become white = to become clear.

ALBICO, —, —, 1. v. intr. [albus]. (Poet. & lat.) To be white.

ALBIDUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [albus]. Whittish.

ALBINŌVĀNUS, i, m. Prop. name: 1) C. Peto A., an epic poet of Rome, and a contemporary of Ovid. 2) Celsus A., one of the acquaintances of Horace.

ALBINUS, i, m. A Roman family name, esp. in the gens Postumia.

ALBION, ōnis, f. An ancient name of Britain.

ALBIS, is, m. A river in Germany, the Elbe.

*ALBITŪDO, inis, f. [albus]. (Pl.) Whiteness.

ALBIUS, ii, m. A Roman family name. The most famous of the name were, 1) A. Tibullus, a renowned poet, and a contemporary of Horace. 2) Statius A. Oppianicus, whom Cluentius was accused of having murdered, against which charge Cicero defended Cl.

ALBŪLA, ae, f. [albulus]. 1) An ancient name for the river Tiber. 2) A rivulet near Tibur, formed by several springs.

ALBŪLUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of albus]. White, whittish.

ALBŪNEA, ae, f. A prophetic nymph (sibyl), to whom one of the springs near Tibur (v. Albula) was sacred; hence the fountain itself was so called.

ALBURNUS, i, m. A mountain in Lucania.

ALBUM, i, n. [albus]. 1) Whiteness, the white color: columnas albo polire, to polish white; maculis insignis et albo, white spots. 2) A white tablet (usually covered with gypsum) on which any thing was written for public inspection; in partic.: A) the tablets of the pontifex maximus, on which he inscribed the principal events of the year, and which he kept for inspection at his house (annales maximi): B) the tablets of the praetor, on which he made known his edicts. Hence, ad album sedentes = the lawyers; se ad a. transferre, to study the edicts of the praetors: C) a list of names, a roll; esp., a senatorium, a list of the names of the senators, the roll in the senate-house, which, after Augustus, was publicly exhibited; a. (judicum), the list of the judges.

ALBUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. White (prop., a dull, pale white, not shining; opp. to 'ater' — of candidus); (poet.) a. corpus, pale; trop., a. stella, favourable, promising happiness; ventus a. = dry. Prov. — a) albis dentibus deridere, to deride with great laughter — b) albus an ater sit nescio, I don't know any thing about him — c) albo reti aliquid oppugnare, with a white net, i. e., in a skilful manner — *d) albis equis procurrare aliquem, to excel one (a figure taken from a triumphing general, to whose chariot white horses were attached) — *e) a. avia, a white sparrow (= something uncommon) — *f) albae gallinae filius = a child of fortune — g) album calculum adjicere rei alioi — v. Calculus.

ALCAEUS, i, m. [= Ἀλκαίος]. A Greek lyric poet of Lesbos, who lived about 600 B. C.

ALCĀMĒNES, is, m. [= Ἀλκαμένης]. A Greek sculptor, a pupil of Phidias.

ALCĀTHŌĒ, es, f. [= Ἀλκαθῶν]. The castle of Megara.

ALCĀTHŌUS, i, m. [= Ἀλκαθῶς]. A son of Pelops, rebuilder of the walls of Megara.

ALCEDŌ, inis, f. [= ἀλκιδών]. (Ante-cl.) The kingfisher — v. Alcyon.

ALCEDŌNIA, ōrum, n. pl. [alcedo]. The time of the calmness of the sea, i. e., seven days before and seven days after the shortest day of the year, during which period the kingfisher, acc. to the opinion of the ancients, broods, and the sea is calm; hence, in gen., a calm, stillness, tranquillity.

ALCES, is, f. The elk.

ALCESTE, es, } f. [= Ἀλkestis]. Daughter

ALCESTIS, is, } of Pelias and wife of Admetus, who saved the life of her husband by dying in his stead. Afterwards, she was restored to Admetus by Hercules.

ALCEUS, ei, m. [= Ἀλκείος]. Son of Perceus, father of Amphitryon, and grandfather of Hercules — v. Alcides.

ALCIBIĀDES, is, m. [= Ἀλκιβιάδης]. A renowned Athenian, and a contemporary and disciple of Socrates.

ALCIDĀMAS, ae, m. [= Ἀλκιδᾶμας]. A Greek rhetorician, a scholar of Gorgias.

ALCIDES, æ, m. [Ἀλκίδης]. A male descendant of Alcæus = Hercules.

ALCIMÉDE, Æs, f. [= Ἀλκιμένης]. The wife of Æson and mother of Jason.

ALCIMÉDON, ontis, m. The name of a carver in wood.

ALCINOUS, i, m. [= Ἀλκίνοος]. A king of the Phæaciæns, on the island of Scheria, to whom Ulysses came in his wanderings. His luxurious life became proverbial (Alcinoi juvenus), as also his beautiful gardens; hence, poma dare Alcinoos = to do something superfluous.

ALCIS, Idis, f. [= Ἀλκίς, from ἀλκή, 'strength']. A surname of Minerva, in Macedonia.

*ALCIS, m. (doubtful reading). A deity of the Netherworld, in Germany.

ALCITHOË, Æs, f. A daughter of King Minyas, at Orchomenos, who, with her sisters, opposed the worship of Bacchus, for which they were changed into bats.

ALCMAEON, ðnis, m. [= Ἀλκμαίων]. Son of Amphiaræus and Euphyle, and leader of the Epigoniæns in the expedition against Troy; he killed his mother because she had caused the death of his father, and for this he was pursued by the furies.

ALCMAEONIUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Alcmæon.

ALCMÉNA, æ, f. Daughter of Electryon, ALCMÉNE, Æs, f. wife of Amphitryo, mother of Hercules (by Jupiter), and of Iphiclus (by Amphitryo).

ALCYON, ðnis, f. [= Ἀλκυών]. (Poet.) The kingfisher — v. Alcedo.

ALCYÖNE, Æs, f. [= Ἀλκυόνη]. A daughter of Æolus, wife of Ceyx, who threw herself into the sea in despair, because Ceyx had been drowned by shipwreck. Both were changed into kingfishers by Thetis. Acc. to others, this change was a punishment for their haughty conduct.

ALÆA, æ, f. 1) A game of dice, and, in gen., a game of chance or hazard. The Romans used two kinds of dice, 'tessera' and 'talus' (q. v.). 'Jacta alæa esto,' let the die be cast, the die is cast, Cæsar's memorable exclamation when he decided to pass the Rubicon and to march against Rome. 2) Trop., an accident, a venture, risk; in gen., any thing uncertain: rem in alæam dare, to risk, to stake; a. belli tuta est, it is safe to risk a war; in dubiam alæam rei aliojous ire, to stake recklessly; opus plenum periculosæ alææ, full of danger, in which much is risked.

ALÆATOR, ðris, m. [alæa]. A player with dice, a gambler.

ALÆATÖRIUS, a, um, adj. [alæator]. *Pertaining to a gambler; damna, loss in gaming; forum a. calfecimus, we have played deeply.

ALÆC, Æcis, n. Fish-brine.

ALÆCTO, (üs), f. [= Ἀλκτώ]. One of the three furies — v. Furiæ.

ALËÏ CAMPI [= τὰ Ἀλκίον πεδία]. A flat country in Cilicia, where, acc. to the legend, the frenzied Bellerophon wandered about.

ALËMANNI, ðrum, m. pl. The name of a confederacy of German tribes.

ALËMON, ðnis, m. [= Ἀλκμων, 'a wanderer']. The father of Myscelus, who was hence called Alemonides, q. v.

ALËMÖNIDES, æ, m. A descendant of Alemon = Myscelus, who founded Crotona, in lower Italy.

ALËO, ðnis, m. (poet. & rar.) = Aleator.

ALËS, Itis [ala]. (Poet. & lat.) I. adj., winged; hence, trop. = swift, ventus; II. subst., m. & f., a bird (of. volucris, mostly in elevated style and of a large bird — cf. avis), esp. in the language of augury, of a bird which gives a sign by its flight (cf. oscines). Hence (poet.), cum bona alite, with a good omen.

ALËSCO, —, —, 3. v. intr. [alo]. To grow up, to thrive.

ALËSIA, æ, f. [= Ἀλκία]. A town in Gaul.

ALËTRINAS, Ætis, adj. Pertaining to Aletrium. (Subst.) Aletrinâtes, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Aletrium.

ALËTRINENSIS, is, m. An inhabitant of Aletrium.

ALËTRIUM, ñ, n. A town in Latium.

ALËUAS, æ, m. [= Ἀλεῦας]. A descendant of Hercules, who reigned at Larissa, in Thessaly, and became the founder of a powerful dynasty (Aleuadæ, Ærum).

ALËXANDER, dri, m. [= Ἀλέξανδρος]. A frequently occurring name of antiquity. The most known of the name are: 1) A., son of Priam, usually called Paris, who afterwards received this name as one of honour (ἀσπ-ἀλξίω). 2) A., tyrant of Phæra, in Thessaly, who lived about 360 B. C., notorious for his cruelty. 3) Kings of Epirus — a) A., I. brother of Olympias, the wife of Philip of Macedonia — b) A., II. son of Pyrrhus, expelled by Demetrius, the son of Antigonus Gonatas. 4) Kings of Macedonia — a) A., I. an ally of Xerxes, in the second Persian war — b) A., II. (369–367 B. C.) brother of Philip, and uncle of A. the Great — c) A., III. the Great. 5) A king of Egypt.

ALËXANDRËA, } æ, f. [= Ἀλεξάνδρεια]. The ALËXANDRIA, } name of several towns. 1) A., in Lower Egypt, which still retains its original name. 2) A. Troas, south of Troy, on the sea-coast.

ALËXANDRINUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Alexandria. (Subst.) Alexandrini, ðrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Alexandria.

ALFENUS, i, m. (P. A. Varus). First a shoemaker, then a renowned lawyer under Augustus.

ALFIUS, ii, m. A Roman family name. 1) C. A., a friend of Cicero. 2) A famous usurer at Rome.

ALGA, ae, f. Sea-wood.

ALGEO, lei, —, 2. v. intr. To be cold, to feel cold (cf. frigeo).

ALGESCO, alsi, —, 3. v. intr. [algeo]. (Ante-cl.) To catch cold.

ALGIDUM, i, n. A small town on the mountain Algidus.

ALGIDUS, i, m. A mountain in Latium, near Rome; adj., Algidus, a, um, pertaining to the mountain Algidus.

ALGIDUS, a, um, adj. [algeo]. (Post.) Cold, icy cold.

ALGIFICUS, a, um, adj. [algeus-facio]. Causing cold, a translation of the Greek ψυχρονους.

ALGOR, oris, m. } [algeo]. Cold-
ALGUS, us, m. (Ante-cl.) } ness, chilliness, (subj. — cf. frigus).

ALIUS, adv. [alius]. 1) Of time, at another time: nunquam alias, at no other time; a. — a., at one time — at another time, sometimes — sometimes; a. aliud, aliter, etc., sometimes the one — sometimes the other, now so — now otherwise; semper a., always at other times. 2) (Lat.) Of place, elsewhere. 3) (Lat.) = alioquin, as to the rest, otherwise. 4) (Lat.) non a. quam, from no other reason, in no other case.

ALIBI, adv. [alius]. 1) Elsewhere, in another place; of persons = with another; esp., freq. of authors, a. invenies, in others; a. — a., at one place — at another; here — there; alius a., the one here — the other there. 2) In other things, in other respects, on other occasions: ne spes fuit a. quam in pace, they founded their hope in nothing else but peace.

ALICA, ae, f. 1) A kind of corn, spelt. 2) — b) grits prepared from spelt, spelt-grits — b) a drink prepared from these grits.

ALICARIUS, a, um, adj. [alica]. Pertaining to spelt; trop., reliquiae aa. (Pl) = prostitutes.

ALICUBI, adv. [aliquis]. Somewhere; hic a., somewhere whereabouts.

ALIO-UNDE, adv. [aliquis]. From somewhere; also of persons and things, pecuniam sumere a., from some one; a. nobis obicitur labor, from something.

*ALIDENSIS, e, adj. Pertaining to Alinda, a town in Caria, where splendid garments were manufactured. Hence, Alidensia, sc. vestimenta = a full dress, a court dress.

ALIENATIO, onis, f. [alieno]. An alienation. 1) a transfer of a thing from one's self to another. 2) trop. — a) a separation of one's self from another, estrangement, desertion, enmity: tua a me abalienatio ad impios cives — b) (lat.) loss of consciousness, delirium.

ALIENI-GENA, ae, m. [igno]. A foreigner, a stranger.

ALIENI-GENUS, a, um, adj. [igno]. 1) (Lucr.) Heterogeneous. 2) Foreign.

ALIENO, avi, atum, 1. v. tr. [alienus]. To alienate, to estrange. 1) To transfer a thing to the possession of another: nunquam tu me alienabis quin noster siem (Pl), you will never make me belong to another, and not to my own house. Hence: A) = *to sell, to convey to another, domum, rem a. se: B) = to remove, to keep off: a. occisos, to carry away; mulier alienata est a te, has been snatched away; a. aliquem = to thrust back (a candidate for an office). 2) Trop.: A) = to alienate, to draw away from one, to make disinclined or unfavourable, *aliquem (mentem, animum alicujus) ab aliquo or alicui; insulae alienatae, the rebellious islands; non alienatus vultu (Tac.), not showing any mark of disgrace in his countenance: B) a. mentem alicujus or alicui, to disorder the intellect of one, to make delirious, to drive mad: alienatus mente, sensibus, deprived of his reason, out of his senses; animo a sensu alienato, insensibile to pain; alienatus ad libidinem animo, beside one's self with desires: C) alienari a re, to have an aversion to a thing, to shun it.

ALIENUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [alius]. 1) Foreign = belonging to another, pecuniā a. locupletari; odit virtutem a., virtue in others; aes a., a debt; alieno Marte pugnabant, fought in an unaccustomed manner (of horsemen who had to fight on foot); largiri ex alieno, from the property of another; trop., Epicurus in physicis plane est a., dependent on others. 2) In opp. to consanguinity and friendship, foreign, not related, not connected by friendship, homo; also = belonging to a foreign country. 3) Trop.: A) Foreign from, unacquainted with a thing: a. ab re (also in re) alius, and (rar.) a. consilii, unconnected with the plan: B) = inadequate, unsuitable, not fitting, incompatible, re, also labor a. ab aetate, a dignitate, rar. (lat.) rei alicui or alicujus: C) = unfavourable, inconvenient, unsuitable, locus, tempus: D) = averse, hostile, of an unfriendly disposition: animus a. ab aliquo, rarely alioqui.

ALIGER, göra, gërum, adj. [ala-gero]. (Post.) Winged.

ALII, örum, m. pl. [Alis]. The inhabitants of Elys.

ALIMENTARIUS, a, um, adj. [alimentum]. Pertaining to nourishment, lex a., probably proposing a distribution of provisions among poor citizens.

ALIMENTUM, i, n. [alo]. 1) Nourishment, and concr., food, aliment. 2) In partic. [= θετροφή], the support of parents by their children, as a return for the sustenance given them in childhood.

ALIMONIA, ae, f. } [alo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.)
ALIMONIUM, ii, n. } Nourishment, sustenance.

ALIO, adv. [alius]. 1) Elsewhere, to another place; a. quo, to any other place. 2) Impropr., to another person or thing: orationem a. con- ferre, to direct to something else; hoc a. spectat, tends to something else; nusquam a. natus, born for nothing else. 3) A. ... a., hither ... thither; a. atque a., to different sides; alius a., one in one way, another in another.

ALIOQUI, } adv. 1) In other ALIOQUIN, (w. euphon. n.) } respects, as for the rest, triumphatum est de illis, a. victoria mitis fuit. 2) In general, et a. ... et, both in general ... and. 3) In itself (in himself, &c.), besides this, a. speciosus. 4) Else, otherwise, in the contrary case: brevitatis concedenda est, si causa permittet; a., etc.

ALIORSUM } adv. (rar. and not contr., ali-ALIORSUS } vrsus [alius-vertō]). 1) Elsewhere, to another place. 2) Trop., in another sense, with another design: dicere aliquid a.; accipere a., to take it differently.

ALIOVRSUM, adv. [alius-vertō] = aliorsum.
ALIPES, ēdis, adj. [ala-pes]. (Poet.) Having wings on the feet, wing-footed, Mercurius; trop. = swift, equus.

ALIPHERA, ae, f. [= 'Ἀλφειρα or 'Ἀλφειρα]. A town in Arcadia.

ALIPLUS, i, m. [ala-pilus]. (Lat.) A slave, who, in the baths, plucked the hairs from the arm-pits.

ALIPTA, } ae, m. [= Ἀλπτῆς]. 1) Among ALIPTES, } the Romans, a slave, who anointed and rubbed the bathers. 2) Among the Greeks, the anointer of the athletes; hence, the manager of a wrestling-school.

ALIQUA, adv. [aliquis, abl. sing. f.]. 1) Of place, to some place, somewhere. 2) Trop., of action, in some manner.

ALIQUAM, adv. [aliquis, acc. sing. f.]. Considerably, in some degree; used only in the comb. 'aliquamdiu' and 'aliquam multi.' 1) Aliquamdiu: A) for some time, a good while; often followed by deinde, postea, donec, etc.: B) (lat.) in reference to place, a tolerably long distance. 2) Aliquam multi, a good many.

ALIQUANDO, adv. [aliquis]. 1) Once, at one time, as well of the past as of the future: a. illucescet ille dies; a. tempus libertatis fuit; freq. si a., if ever. Hence, esp. = now finally, of a thing expected with impatience: collegi me a.; freq. connected with 'tandem,' by which it is strengthened: tandem a. Catilinam ex urbe eiecimus. 2) = Sometimes, occasionally (of events occurring more seldom than those of which 'nonnunquam' and 'interdum' are used): quidam homines et te nonnunquam a me alienarunt et me a. immutarunt tibi. In later writers, also a. — a., now — then, sometimes — sometimes.

ALIQUANTILLUM, i, n. [dim. of aliquantum]. (Pl.) A very little.

ALIQVANTISPER, adv. [aliquantus]. (Antecl. & lat.) For some time, awhile.

ALIQVANTVLVS, a, um, adj. [dim. of aliquantus]. Little, small. (Subst.) Aliquantulum, i, n., a little bit, a little.

ALIQVANTVS, a, um, adj. [aliquis]. Some, considerable, not small, numerus, spatium, timor. Mostly as subst.: Aliquantum, i, n. w. genit., some (not an inconsiderable) quantity, not a little, pecuniae, agri, negotii. Hence, freq. as adv., somewhat, in some degree, considerably — a) aliquantum: a. tumida, oratio regis eum a. movit, affected him not a little — b) aliquanto, w. a comp. or words of a comparative meaning: a. prius, amplius, crudelior; a. ante, post.

ALIQUA-TENVS, adv. 1) As far as a certain point or place. 2) To a certain degree. 3) In some measure, in some respects.

ALIQVI, qua (and quae), quid, adj. } [alius-ALIQVIS (also adj.), qua, quid, subst. } qui].
Prosa. indef., some, any — some one, any one (of a single undefined person or thing — cf. quia, quidam, quisquam): aliqui sensus, oasus aliquis; aliquod magnum malum, aliquis vestrum or ex vobis, aliquod negotii; si aliquis, instead of si quis (where the pronoun is esp. emphatic). In partic.: A) w. numbers, some, about: viginti aa. annos: B) = something considerable, great: se aliquid esse putant, they think they are something great, esse aliquem or aliquid, to be greatly esteemed: C) with the idea of 'alius' predominant = some or any other, some or any thing else: ira aut a. perturbatio: D) In connection with other words: unus a., a single one, alius a., (Com.), some or any other, something or any thing else; (Poet.) aliquis eam evocato, let some one of you call her out, exoriare a. ultor (where an avenger yet unknown is addressed).

ALIQVO, adv. [aliquis]. Somewhere, to some place, abire; a. rus eum abduxit, to some place in the country.

ALIQVOT, adj. indecl. Some, a tolerably large number (less than 'nonnulli').

ALIQVOTIES, adv. num. [aliquot]. Several times, more than once.

ALIQVO-VORSUM, adv. (Pl.) Toward some place.

ALIS, old form for alius, q. v.

ALIS = Elis [= Doric Ἀλῆς for Ἑλῆς].

ALISO, ōnis, m. A Roman fortress in Germany, on the Lippe, not far from Paderborn, now either Elsen or Liesborn.

ALITER, adv. [alius]. 1) In another manner, otherwise (followed by atque, ac, quam): haud a. quam = exactly in the same manner, just so; non a. nisi or quam ut, by no other means, on no other condition; a. res est, is of a different nature; a. ... a., in one way ... in another; alius a., the one in one way, the other in another. 2) Else = aliqui.

*ALITURA, ae, f. [alo]. A nourishing, a rearing.

ALI-ŪBI, adv. (lat., rar.) = alibi, which is a contr. from aliubi.

ALI-UNDE, adv. From elsewhere, from another place or object: venire a., hoc pendet a., depends on something else; mutuari, capere a., from another; a. alio, from here there, from there here.

ALIUS, a, ud, adj. [= ἄλλος]. 1) If it stands alone, another (of more than two — cf. alter). Usually it is followed by atque or ac; when a negation is added, by nisi or quam, rarely by praeter; in the poets also by an ablat. (as, with a comp., a. illo, than he). In partic.: nihil aliud quam (without any connection with the rest of the sentence) = tantum, modo, only, nothing else than: lictor n. a. q. prohibetur, is only kept off; likewise quid aliud quam admonemus, what else are we doing but advising? 2) When repeated (in opp. to each other) = the one — the other, pl., some — others. Hence: A) the use of alius twice in the same sentence, originating in contraction: alius alio tempore dixit, one at one time, another at another; alius alii subsidium ferunt, they succour each other; alius alio modo vivunt, they live each one in his own way: B) alius ex alio, super or post alium, one after another: C) a. atque a., a. aliusque, now this, now that, different; alio atque alio loco. 3) = Different; hence aliam facere, to change; alium fieri, to become another, to be changed; in alia omnia ire (transire, discedere), to agree with an entirely different opinion (hence = to disapprove or reject the thing proposed). 4) (= Reliquus, ceteri) The remaining: a. multitudo, a. superbia, his haughtiness on other occasions; a. desperatio salutis, despair of any other remedy. 5) (Rar.) = Alter, the one of two: duo Romani a. super alium.

ALIUS-MÖDI, adj. (Rar.) Of another kind, res a. est.

ALIUS-VIS, adj. [doubtful read.]. Any other.

AL-LĀBOR, lapsus, 3. v. dep. intr. To glide, to flow, to come to or near: humor allabitur extrinsecus, anguis a. ex oculo; (poet.) a. oris, to the shore (of a ship); sagitta a. viro, hits; fama a. aures, reaches.

AL-LĀBORO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. (Poet.) To labor at a thing; a. aliquid rei alicui, to add to with labour.

AL-LĀCRIMANS, ntis, adj. [part. of the unusual allacrimo or allacrimor]. Weeping at, shedding tears.

AL-LAMBO, —, —, 3. v. tr. (Lat.) To lick, rem aliquam.

AL-LAPSUS, ūs, m. [allabor]. (Poet. & lat., rar.) A gliding to, serpentis.

AL-LATRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Mostly lat.) To bark at — a) to use one roughly, to revile, aliquem — b) of the sea = to dash against.

ALLAUDĀBĪLIS, e, adj. [allaudo]. (Doubtful read., Pl.) Praiseworthy.

AL-LAUDO, 1. v. tr. (Pl.) To praise highly, rem.

ALLECTĀTIO, ōnis, f. [allecto]. An enticing, the soothing song of nurses.

ALLECTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. freq. [allicio]. To allure, to entice, aliquem ad agrum colendum.

ALLĒGĀTIO, ōnis, f. [allego]. A dispatching of a person as a negotiator, messenger, &c.

ALLĒGĀTUS, ūs, m. [allego] = Allegatio; it occurs only in the abl. sing.: a. meo venit, at my instance, by my order.

AL-LĒGO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To send one away with a commission (as a messenger, negotiator, &c.), to dispatch (cf. mitto, of private affairs only — cf. lēgo): a. amicos, aliquem ad negotium; a. aliquem alicui or ad aliquem; allegati alicujus = ambasciadors, deputies. Hence (Com.), to instigate one to a thing, esp. to an act of deceit. 2) (Lat.) To quote, to refer to, to mention, exemplum, merita sua, se primum ab Alexandro petium esse.

AL-LĒGO, lēgi, lectum, 3. v. tr. To select or elect one in addition (= to add one to a corporation by election): a. octo praetoribus duo; a. aliquem in senatum, inter patricios.

ALLĒGŌRIA, ae, f. [= ἀλληγορία]. (Lat.) An allegory.

ALLĒVĀMENTUM, i, n. [allevo]. A means of alleviating.

ALLĒVĀTIO, ōnis, f. [allevo]. (Lat.) 1) A raising up, humorum. 2) An alleviating (of pain) — var. read., levatio.

AL-LĒVO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) (Mostly lat.) Prop., To lift up, to raise up, scutos, pollicem, manum; allevatus re aliqua, raising one's self by means of something, leaning on it. 2) To lighten, to alleviate, onus. Hence, trop., to lighten and alleviate mental and physical troubles: A) of the person = to encourage, to cheer up, to revive, aliquem; more freq. pass. = to recover: B) of the trouble, to lighten, to lessen, to ease, sollicitudines suas; notae allevatae.

ALLEX, icis, m. (Pl.) The great toe; trop., a. viri, duodecimo-men, dwarfs.

ALLIA, ae, f. A small river in Latium.

ALLIĀTUM, i, n. [allium]. (Pl.) A mess of garlic (a kind of food used by poor people).

ALLICE-FĀCIO, ēci, actum, 3. (Lat., rar.) = Allicio.

ALLICIO, exi, ectum, 3. v. tr. [lacio]. To allure, to entice, to gain by alluring, aliquem ad se, multorum opes ad misericordiam; a. benevolentiam alicujus, to conciliate; magnes a. ferum, attracts.

ALLIDO, si, sum, 3. v. tr. [ad-laedo] To thrust against, to strike or dash one thing against another: a. aliquid trahi, against the beam.

allidi ad scopulos (of a ship), to strike against a rock; hence, a. virtutem, to have one's virtue damaged; Servius allisus est, has suffered shipwreck.

ALLIENSIS, e, adj. Pertaining to Allia: pugna A., the battle at A., 390 B. C., in which the Romans were defeated. Hence 'dies A.' was used proverbially of an unlucky day.

ALLIENUS, i, m. A Roman family name: C. Allienus, who was praetor 58 B. C.

ALLIFAB, ārum, f. pl. A town in Samnium, now Alife.

ALLIFANUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Allifani. Hence — a) Allifani, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Allifae — b) Allifana, ōrum, m. pl. (pocula), drinking cups made at Allifae.

AL-LIGO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To bind to something, aliquem ad palum. 2) In gen., to bind, to bind fast, to hold fast: ancora a. navem; alligatus = a slave. Hence: A) = to fetter, to entangle, to hold fast: impedire et a.; calculus alligatus, a piece (in a game of chess) that cannot be moved; trop., a. se scelere or (Com.) furti, to be guilty of a crime, of theft: B) = to oblige, to bind, aliquem jurejurando; lex a. omnes: C) a. verba lege quadam, to limit a discourse in accordance with a certain rule. 3) To bind round or up, caput, vulnus.

AL-LINO, lēvi, lītum, 3. v. tr. To besmear, to varnish over, to attach to, rei alicui colorem, atrum signum versibus incomptis; a. alicui vitia sua, to impart by intercourse or acquaintance.

ALLIUM, i, n. Garlic.

ALLOBROGICUS, a, um, adj. Allobrogian, pertaining to the Allobroges.

ALLOBROX, ōgis, m. An Allobrogian; more freq., Allobroges, um, m. pl., the Allobrogians, a tribe in Gallia Lugdunensis, whose capital was Geneva.

ALLŌCŪTIO, ōnis, f. (poet. & lat.) } [allo-

ALLŌQUIUM, ii, n. (mostly lat.) } quor].

A speaking to, an addressing, accosting, esp. for consolation, exhortation, &c.; hence = consolation, exhortation.

AL-LŌQUOR, locūtus, 3. v. dep. intr. To speak to one, esp. for the purpose of consoling, exhorting, &c.; hence = to console, to exhort, to pray: a. aliquem; a. deos, to invoke.

ALLŪBESCO, —, —, 3. v. intr. inch. (Pl.) To begin to please, femina.

AL-LŪCEO, xi, —, 2. v. intr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To shine upon: alicui a.; die non contentus nisi aliquis igniculus alluxerit. Trop., nequidquam tibi fortuna faculam allucere vult, fortune wishes a torch to shine upon you, i. e., to show you the way. (There is no necessity to give a transitive meaning to the verb, in this place, as some propose.)

ALLUCINATOR, ALLUCINATIO, ALLUCINOR, v. Alucinator, etc.

ALLŪDIO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. [alludo]. (Pl.) To jest with one, to caress.

AL-LŪDO, si, sum, 3. v. intr. & tr. 1) To play or to sport with, to jest or to joke with any thing: a. alicui or ad aliquem; alludens, he said it jestingly; nec plura alludens, not jesting any longer. 2) Hence (lat.) = to refer or to allude to jestingly: Phidias versibus Homeri egregio dicto a. 3) Impropr.: A) of impersonal objects, to clash against, to play upon: mare alludit littori, ripples upon, splashes against the shore; transil. (poet.), fluctus alludunt aliquid ad pedes alicujus, cast: B) trop. (lat.), a. sapientiae, to approach wisdom; alludentia spei nostrae, that which is within the reach of our hope.

AL-LUO, lui, —, 3. v. tr. To ripple upon, to wash: fluvius a. urbem.

ALLŪVIES, ei, f. [alluo]. The overflowing water of a sea or river, a land-flood: in proxima alluvie pueros exponunt.

ALLŪVIO, ōnis, f. [alluo]. (Tech. t.) An alluvion, the earth added to a shore by the flowing of water.

ALMO, ōnis, m. 1) A small river near Rome, now Aquataccio. 2) A river-god, father of the nymph Lara.

ALMUS, a, um, adj. [alo]. Nourishing, affording nourishment; hence = bountiful, kind, propitious, Ceres, vitis, sol, Venus, musae.

ALNEUS, a, um, adj. [alnus]. Made of alder-wood.

ALNUS, i, f. The alder; poet. = a ship.

ĀLO, ālui, altum & (lat.) āltum, 3. v. tr. To nourish, to support (in gen., so as to promote the development of any thing — cf. nutrio), hominem; terra a. arbores; trop., a. spem alicujus, luxuriam, to promote luxury; a. exercitum, to maintain an army; a. civitatem, to increase the power of.

ĀLOË, ēs, f. [= ἀλόη]. The aloe.

ĀLOËUS, ēi & ēos, m. A giant, the husband of Iphimedia, who had two giant sons by Neptune — v. Aloidae.

ĀLŌGIA, ae, f. [= ἀλογία]. (Lat.) Stillness, irrationality.

ĀLOIDAE, ārum, m. pl. [= Ἀλωΐδαι]. Otus and Ephialtes, the giant sons of Iphimedia and Neptune, so called from Aloeus, the husband of their mother. Attempting to storm heaven, they were slain by Apollo.

ĀLŌPE, es, f. [= Ἀλόπη]. 1) A daughter of Cereyon, loved by Neptune. 2) A town in Locria.

ALPES, v. Alpia.

ALPHA, n. indecl. [= ἄλφα]. The name of the first letter of the Greek alphabet; hoo discount ante alpha et beta, before the abc.

ALPHEIAS, ēdis, f. [= Ἀλφειάς]. A surname of the fountain Arethusa, from its supposed connexion with the river Alpheus, in the Peloponnesus — v. Alpheus.

ALPHESIBOEA, ae. f. [= 'Ἀλφειβοία]. Daughter of Phœgeus and wife of Alcmaeon; although deserted by her husband, she avenged his murder on her brothers.

ALPHEUS, ei, m. [= 'Ἀλφειός]. A river in the Peloponnesus, which, accord. to the ancients, disappeared several times under the earth. The river-god A. fell in love with the nymph Arethusa, and pursued her, after she had been changed into a fountain, as far as the island Ortygia, near Syracuse — cf. Arethusa.

ALPHEUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to the Alpheus: Pisae Alpheae, because it was founded by a colony from Pisa, in Elis, on the river A.

ALPICI, orum, m. pl. [Alpes]. The tribes dwelling upon the Alps.

ALPINUS, a, um, adj. [Alpes]. Of or pertaining to the Alps. The poet M. Furius Bibaculus was by Horace jestingly called 'Alpinus' on account of his bombastic verse: 'Jupiter hibernas cana nive conspuat Alpes.'

ALPIS, is, f. (only poet.), commonly Alpes, ium, f. pl. The Alps.

ALSIENSIS, e, adj. Pertaining to Alsium; subst., Alsienae, is, n., Pompey's villa at A.

ALSIUM, ii, n. [= 'Ἀλσιον]. A maritime town in Etruria.

ALSIUS, } a, um, adj. [algeo]. (Lucr.) Cold,
ALSUS, } chilly, cool, corpora.

ALTARIA, um, n. pl. (the sing. with doubtful nom., only in later writers) [altus?]. 1) The upper part of an altar, on which the victim was burned (cf. ara). 2) = Ara, an altar, esp., a high, splendid altar.

ALTE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [altus]. 1) On high, high; trop., nihil tam alte natura constituit. 2) Deep; a. petere, to bring from afar, expedire, to recount from the beginning.

ALTER, tra, trum (genit. commonly altērius, sometimes altērius), adj. 1) The one of two (cf. alium), the other. Freq. in opp. to the subject acting = a fellow-man, another (in gen.); a. — a., the one — the other; in plur., if the reference be to a plur. subst. or to two parties. Often = oppositae, adversae: a. factio, pars, the adverse party. Sometimes one alter is wanting; sometimes hic, ille or a subst. is used in its stead. 2) As a numeral = secundus, the second: a. vicesimus dies, the twenty-second day. Hence: A) unus et (atque) a., unus alterque, a) the one and the other = two, dies — b) of an undefined number, one and another = several: B) alterum tantum, as much again: altero tanto major, as large again: C) with subst., to denote a complete similarity, a second: a. parvas, a. Verres; alter ego, my second self; a. idem, a second self. 3) = alteruter: non uterque sed alter; sine alteris vestrum test in words, a dispute, altercation. 2) In rhet., an altercation, an effort to embarrass one's opponent by interposing a great number of questions — v. Altercor 2.

ALTERCATIO, ōnis, f. [altercor]. 1) A con-

ALTERCATOR, ōris, m. [altercor]. A disputant — v. Altercor 2.

ALTERCO, (Ter.) } 1. v. intr. [alter]. 1) ALTERCOR, ātus, dep. } To carry on a strife in words, to dispute, to wrangle, cum aliquo; aa. inter se. 2) In rhet., to strive to embarrass one's opponent in a court of justice by putting a great number of questions.

ALTERNE, adv. [alternus]. (Lat.) Alternately.

ALTERNO, avi, ātum, i. v. tr. & intr. (Poet. & lat.) To do a thing alternately, to alternate, to interchange with something: a. vices; also a. cum re; (poet.) haec alternanti, etc., weighing these things one after the other.

ALTERNUS, a, um, adj. [alter]. One after another, by turns, alternate: a. pede terram quatere, of persons dancing (poet.); aa. trabes et saxa, alternating in a fixed order; aa. sermones = dialogue; aa. paene verbis, with almost every other word; a. metus = mutual fear; aa. versus, alternating song; but esp., freq. = in alternate hexameters and pentameters = elegiac; aa. iudices rejicere, of the rejection of a certain number of the judges appointed by the praetor, which privilege was granted alternately to the accuser and the accused. Hence, alternis (sc. viribus), adv., alternately, canere.

ALTER-ŪTER, alterutra, alterutrum (genit. alterutrinus, etc. — both words are very rarely declined), adj. One of two, either one (no matter which): ne a. alterutri praecooccupet.

ALTI-CINCTUS, a, um, adj. (Phædr.) High-girded.

ALTILIS, e, adj. [alo]. (Mostly poet. & lat.) Fattened, fat; hence, trop. (Pl.), dos a., a rich dowry. (Subst.) Altilis, is, f. (sc. avis), a fattened fowl.

ALTINĀTES, ium, m. pl. The inhabitants of Altinum.

ALTINUM, i, n. [= 'Ἀλτινον]. A town in the country of the Veneti, now Altino.

ALTI-SŌNUS, a, um, adj. (Poet.) 1) Sound- ing from on high = thundering, Jupiter. 2) Of a poet, high-sounding = sublime.

ALTI-TŌNANS, tis, adj. (poet.) Thundering from on high.

ALTITŪDO, inis, f. [altus]. 1) Height, montis. 2) Trop., height = sublimity, animi, fortunae. 3) Depth; hence, trop., a. animi, unfathomableness (of a man whose real disposition and sentiments are not easily found out); most freq. of a serenity that conceals the real disposition; sometimes involving also censure: secrecy, reserve.

ALTUSCULUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of altus].
Rather high, calceamenta.

ALTĪ-VOLANS, tis, adj. (Poet.) Flying high.

ALTOR, ōris, m. [alo]. A nourisher.

ALTRINSECUS, adv. [alter]. (Pl.) On the other side.

ALTRIX, icis, f. [alo]. A (female) nourisher; in partic., terra a., mother-country, leonum, where lions dwell.

ALTRŌ-VORSUM, adv. (Pl.) On the other side.

ALTUM, i, n. [altus]. 1) A height, esp. (poet.) of heaven, in a., ex a. 2) A depth, esp. freq. = the deep sea, the deep: provehi in altum, jactari in alto.

ALTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [alo = grown or become great by nourishment]. 1) Seen from below, high (cf. celsus, sublimis), mons, arbor, domus. Hence, trop. — a) = elevated, a. dignitatis gradus; a. animus, aiming high; Jupiter a., august, majestic — b) of the voice = clear, distinct, high. 2) Seen from above, deep, mare, vulnus, radix. Hence: A) of any thing intense — a) a. quies, somnus, a deep sleep, likewise silentium — b) = hidden, dissimulatio — c) = profound, unfathomable, animus (cf. altitudo 3): B) ex alto repetere (cf. alte), to begin far off, to go far back. 3) (Poet.) Of that which goes far back in time = ancient, gens.

ALUCINATIO, ōnis, f. [alucino]. Idle talk, chattering.

ALUCINOR, ātus, i. v. intr. (better than all. and hal.) [alēo]. Trop., to wander in mind; hence, to talk idly or at random, to prate, to dream, aliquid; epistolae interdum a. debent, to pursue no definite train of thought, to leap from one subject to another.

ALUMEN, inis, n. Alumn.

ALUMNA, ae, f. — v. Alumnus.

ALUMNO, āvi, ātum, i. v. tr. (Lat.) To nourish, to bring up, to educate.

ALUMNUS, i, m., and ALUMNA, ae, f. [alo]. A foster-son, a foster-daughter, a pupil, alicujus; freq. (poet.) with the genit. of the place where a person was born or grew up: a. Italiae; a. regionum, a foster-child of the army, sutrinae tabernae, of the cobbler's stall; trop., a. Platonis = scholar.

ALUNTINUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Aluntium. Aluntini, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Aluntium.

ALUNTIUM, ii, n. [= 'Αλυντιον]. A town in Sicily.

ALUTA, ae, f. [alumen]. 1) Alum-leather, a very soft and fine leather tanned by means of alum. 2) Of things made up of such leather: A) a shoe: B) a purse: C) a patch put on the face for ornament.

ALVEARIUM, ii, n. [alveus]. A bee-hive.

ALVEOLUS, i, m. [dim. of alveus]. A little tray.

ALVEUS, i, m. [alvus]. 1) A hollow, a cavity: vitiosae illicis a. Hence, 2) a tray, trough, any hollowed, tray-shaped vessel. 3) The hold of a ship; hence — a) = a small boat, a skiff — b) = a ship. 4) A gaming-board with an edge or border around it; hence = a game at dice. 5) A water-basin, bathing-tub. 6) (Poet. & lat.) The bed of a river. 7) A bee-hive.

ALVUS, i, f. The belly, abdomen (the stomach, considered as the duct for the conveyance of nourishment — cf. venter): purgare, exonerare a. = to purge. Hence: A) = the excrements; deicere alvum, to purge (prop., a. inferiorem, as alvum superiorem deicere denotes to vomit): B) = venter: C) = uterus, the womb.

ALYATTES, is or ei, m. [= 'Αλυαττης]. A king of Lydia, father of Croesus.

ALYZIA, ae, f. [= 'Αλυζία]. A town in Acarnania, now Porto Canello.

AMABILIS, e, adj. w. comp. & sup. [amo]. Amiable, lovely; carmen a., a pleasant, beautiful song.

AMABILITER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [amabilis]. 1) Amiably. 2) Lovingly, a. in aliquem cogitare.

AMABILITAS, ātis, f. [amabilis]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Amiableness, loveliness.

AMALTHEA, ae, f. [= 'Αμάλθεια]. 1) The goat which suckled Jupiter when a child, in Crete, or the nymph who nursed and watched over Jupiter. 2) A sibyl.

AMALTHEA, ae, f. } 1) Prob., a sanctuary AMALTHEUM, i, n. } of Amalthea, near the villa of Atticus, in Epirus. 2) A similar sanctuary at Cicero's villa in Arpinum.

AMANDATIO, ōnis, f. [amando]. A sending away, a removing from one's self.

AMANDO, āvi, ātum, i. v. tr. To send away, to remove from one's self (with the access. idea of contempt or indignation), aliquem in ultimas terras.

AMANICUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Amanus. Pylae Amanicae, the name of one of the passes between Syria and Cilicia.

AMANIENSES, ium, m. pl. The inhabitants of the mountain Amanus.

AMANS, tis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of amo]. 1) Loving, affectionate, fond of a person or thing: a. patriae; subst., Amans, tis, m., a friend, alicujus, amantissimus tui, your very affectionate friend; abs. = a lover. 2) Of things, kind, friendly, verba.

AMANTER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [amans]. Lovingly, kindly, in a friendly manner.

AMANTIA, ae, f. [= 'Αμαντία]. A town in Grecian Illyria.

AMANTIANI, ōrum, m. pl. The inhabitants of Amantia.

AMANIENSIS, is, m. [a-manus]. (Lat.) A clerk, a secretary.

AMANUS, i, m. [= "Ἀμανός"]. A range of mountains (part of Taurus), separating Cilicia from Syria.

AMARACINUM, i, n. Oil or ointment of marjoram, a favourite perfume.

AMARACINUS, a, um, adj. [amaracus]. Of marjoram; oleum or unguentum a. = amara-cinum.

AMARACUM, i, n. } [= ἀμαράκων]. Mar-
AMARACUS, i, comm. } joram.

AMARANTUS, i, m. [= ἀμαράντος]. Amaranth.

AMARE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [amarus]. Bitterly; only trop. = harshly, offensively, in an acrimonious manner.

AMARITIES, ei, f. [amarus]. (Poet.) = Amaritudo l.

AMARITUDO, inis, f. [amarus]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) Bitterness, bitter taste. 2) Trop.: A) bitterness of mind or disposition, exasperation: B) offensiveness, disagreeableness, of a thing or person, carminum: C) harshness, vocis.

AMAROR, ōris, m. [amarus]. (Poet.) = Amaritudo l.

AMARUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. 1) Bitter, repugnant to the taste (opp. to dulcis — of acerbus), latex, sapor; also, improp. of smell, disagreeable, &c. 2) Trop., mostly poet.: A) disagreeable, adverse, calamitous; subet., Amara, ōrum, n. pl., adversity, bitterness: B) of the disposition, irritable, harsh, violent, mulier: C) of speech, sharp, biting, offensive.

AMARYNTHIS, idis, f. [= Ἀμαρύνθις]. A surname of Diana, from a small town Amarynthus [= Ἀμαρύνθες], in Euboea, where she had a temple.

AMASENUS, i, m. A river in Latium.

AMASIA, ae, f. [= Ἀμασία]. A town in Pontus, the birthplace of Strabo.

AMASIUNCULA, ae, f. } [dim. of amasius].

AMASIUNCULUS, i, m. } (Lat.) A mistress, a lover.

AMASIUS, ii, m. [amo]. (Poet. & lat.) A lover, a paramour.

AMASTRIACUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Amastria.

AMASTRIANI, ōrum, m. pl. The inhabitants of Amastria.

AMASTRIS, is, f. [= Ἀμαστρίς]. A town in Paphlagonia, now Amastro.

AMATA, ae, f. 1) The wife of King Latinus. 2) The name given to any vestal virgin, after she had been chosen by the pontifex maximus.

AMATHUS, untis, f. [= Ἀμαθούς]. A town in Cyprus, with a temple of Venus.

AMATHUSIA, ae, f. Of Amathus, a surname of Venus.

AMATHUSIACUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Amathus.

AMATIO, ōnis, f. [amo]. Love, a love-affair.

AMATOR, ōris, m. [amor]. A lover. 1) In a good sense, a friend, an admirer of a person or thing, sapientiae, urbis; a. meus. 2) In a bad sense, a paramour, lover, a. alicujus, and, in gen., without reference to the object of the passion, a voluptuary, one who is addicted to sensual love.

AMATORCULUS, i, m. [dim. of amator]. A (pitiful) lover.

AMATORIE, adv. [amatorius]. Amorously; epistola a. scripta, a love-letter.

AMATORIUM, i, n. [amatorius]. A philter, love-potion.

AMATORIUS, a, um, adj. [amator]. Pertaining to sensual love, amorous, gallant; (in a bad sense) sermo, voluptas.

AMATRIX, icis, f. [amo]. (Poet.) A (female) lover, a mistress, sweetheart.

AMAZON, ōnis, f. [= Ἀμαζών]. An Amazon. The Amazons were a mythical community of warlike women, who, according to the legend, dwelt on the northern coast of Asia Minor, on both sides of the river Thermodon, and made warlike expeditions westward, even as far as Greece.

AMAZONICUS, a, um, adj. [Amazon] [= Ἀμαζονιάς]. Amazonian.

AMAZONIS, idis, f. [= Ἀμαζονίς]. (Poet.) = Amazon.

AMAZONIUS, adj. [Amazon] [= Ἀμαζόνιος]. Amazonian. A. vir = Hippolytus, the son of an Amazon by Theseus.

AMBACTUS, i, m. [Celtic word]. A vassal, a dependant (upon a lord).

AMB (AM, AN) [ἀμφί]. An inseparable particle, which, in composition, signifies around, round about.

AMB-AD-ĒDO, ēdi, —, 3. v. tr. (Pl.) To eat around, uxoris dotem.

AMBAGES, um, f. pl. (of the sing. only the abl. ambago) [ambigo]. (Mostly poet. & lat.)

1) A roundabout way, a labyrinth, turnings, windings, tecti, itinerum. 2) Trop.: A) of speech — a) circumlocution, diffuseness, digression, evasion: mitte aa., renounce all evasions — b) (poet.) obscure and enigmatical language, enigma: B) transf. to actions, mysterious and enigmatical conduct: tacitae aa., symbolic actions; per aa., by means of a symbolic action.

AMBARRI, ōrum, m. pl. A tribe of Gaul, kindred to, and confederated with the Aeduians.

AMB-ĒDO, ēdi, ēsum, 3. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To eat or gnaw around, mensas, herbas.

AMBIANI, ōrum, m. pl. A people on the coast of Gallia Belgica.

AMB-IGO, —, —, 3. v. tr. & intr. [amb-ago]. Prop., to drive in two different directions; hence, 1) (Tac.) to hover, to go about or around a place, patriam. 2) To doubt or combat a thing, to be of a different or contrary opinion, to contend, to dispute, de re, res ambigitur, there are two different opinions, there is a contest about a thing. Hence = to litigate, to dispute, in gen., esp. in court, cum aliquo. 3) Intr., to waver, to hesitate, to be undecided, de re, quid faciendum sit.

AMBIGUE, adv. [ambiguus]. 1) Ambiguously, dicere. 2) In a wavering, indecisive manner: a. pugnatum est.

AMBIGUITAS, ātis, f. [ambiguus]. Ambiguity, double sense, nominis.

AMBIGUUS, a, um, adj. [ambigo]. Prop., driven to both sides; hence, 1) wavering between two, inclining to two sides: ambiguo inter marem et feminam sexu, of a hermaphrodite; aa. viri, of the Centaurs; Proteus a., the changing P., Sallamis, another, a second S.; ambiguus pudoris et metus (Tac.), wavering between shame and fear. 2) In gen., wavering, undecided: (Tac.) ambiguus futuri, undecided about the future, imperandi, whether he would command as emperor. 3) Uncertain, unreliable, wavering, fides, domus; res aa., critical circumstances; rex haud a., who was quite certain to become a king. 4) Of speech, &c., equivocal, obscure, ambiguous.

AMBIO, ivi & ii, itum, 4. v. tr. & intr. [ambio]. 1) (Poet. & lat.) In gen., to go around something: lunae cursus a. terram; hence (poet. & lat.) = to surround: mare a. terram; of an artist, a. oras auro, to border. 2) Usu., to go around and about for a certain purpose, esp. for the purpose of asking, seeking something, &c. (cf. ambulo, circumeo), and hence: A) tech. t., of those who sought office at Rome, to go around and solicit the votes of the citizens, to seek a person's favour and vote by attentions of every kind, to canvass for votes: a. populum, tribus, singulos ex senatu: B) (poet. & lat.) in gen., to solicit one for a thing, to petition, to implore, aliquem, deos; ambiuntur plurimum nuptiis, several fathers wish to give them their daughters in marriage: sometimes it is followed by a sentence as object, with ut, ne, that, &c., rarely by an infin.: C) (Pl.) a. magistratum, to seek after an office.

AMBITIO, ōnis, f. [ambio]. 1) The going about of candidates in Rome to canvass for votes, &c. (v. ambio), a soliciting of office (by just and lawful means — cf. ambitus): quid loquar de nostris aa., de cupiditate honorum. 2) A striving to please others, to obtain favour by attentions to them, by gratifying, flattering them, &c., an excessive desire of favour; a flattering, courting of the favour of the common people, &c.: ambitio re legata = without flattery; of judges = impartiality. 3) An immoderate desire of honour, ambition, vanity: a. mala; magna ambitio Platonem Syracusas deduxit, with a splendor calculated to create sensation. *4) (Lat.) = Urgent, submissive entreaty: aegre obtinere aliquid magna ambitio.

AMBITIOSE, adj. w. comp. & sup. [ambitiosus]. 1) Ambitiously, from ambition. 2) With an immoderate desire to please or to obtain favour.

AMBITIOSUS, a, um, adj. [ambitio]. 1) (Poet. & lat.) Going around, encompassing, embracing amnis a., with many windings; a. puella. 2) Desirous of pleasing, courting favour, obsequious, ambitious: ita est ambitiosus ut omnes quotidie persalutet; a. in aliquem, towards one, of a condescension originating in a desire to please; (poet.) esse a. pro aliquo, to intercede (with flattery) for one. 3) Of things and abstract ideas, ostentatious, vain, ambitious, calculated and planned to obtain favour and reputation: aa. rogationes, by which one would win the people, amicitiae, by which one seeks only favour and advantage. Hence, preces aa., urgent, insinuating; sententia a. (from desire of pleasing) partial; domus a., splendid, pulchritudo, showy; ornamenta aa., calculated for effect.

AMBITUS, ūs, m. [ambio]. 1) A moving around, a circular motion round a thing: luna currit brevior a. quam sol; trop., a. seculorum, revolution, expiration. 2) A circle, circumference, border: castra lato a., folia serrato a.; a. aedium = the space immediately around a house. 3) Trop.: A) in speech, circumlocution: facere multos aa. circa unam rem: B) a. verborum or only a. = a period. 4) The unlawful striving for posts of honour by bribery, &c. (cf. ambitio): accusare aliquem ambitus; effusae ambitus largitiones. 5) (Lat.) = ambitio, ostentation, vanity.

AMBIVĀRETI, ōrum, m. pl. A Gallic people in the neighbourhood of the Ambarri.

AMBIVĀRITI, ōrum, m. pl. A Gallic people on the Meuse (in the region of Breda).

AMBIVIUS (i, m.) TURPIO. A player at Rome, in the time of Terence, whose pieces he acted.

AMBO, ae, o, adj. pl. [ἀμφω]. Both (together, united — cf. uterque): a. fessi estis; diligo ambos.

AMBRĀCIA, ae, f. [= Ἀμβρακία]. A town on the southern boundary of Epirus, now Arta.

AMBRĀCIAS, ādis, adj. (Poet.) Ambracian, terra.

AMBRĀCIENSIS, e, adj. Ambracian; subst., Ambracienses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Ambracia.

AMBRĀCIOTĒS, ae, m. [= Ἀμβρακιώτης]. A native of Ambracia.

AMBRĀCIUS, a, um, adj. Ambracian, esp. sinus, now the bay of Arta.

AMBRŌNES, um, m. pl. A Celtic tribe.

AMBRŌSIA, ae, f. [= ἀμβροσία — ambrosius]. (Poet.) Ambrosia. 1) = The food of the gods. 2) = An unguent used by the gods.

AMBRŌSIUS, a, um, adj. [= ἀμβροσιος]. (Poet.) Pertaining to the gods, divine, comae.

AMBRYsus, i, f. [= Ἀμβρυς]. A town in Phocis, now Dystomo.

AMBUBAJA, ae, f. [a Syriac word]. (Poet. & lat.) A Syrian flute-player.

AMBULACRUM, i, n. [ambulo] = Ambulatio 2.

AMBULATIO, ōnis, f. [ambulo]. 1) A going back and forth, a walking, a walk. 2) A promenade, a walk in the neighbourhood of a house (usually set out with trees).

AMBULATORIUS, a, um, adj. [ambulo]. (Lat.) Moveable (as a tower, &c.).

AMBULO, āvi, ūtum, 1. v. tr. & intr. 1) Intr., To go about (without a definite purpose, mostly for pleasure and recreation — cf. ambio), to take a walk: milites ambulando bellum confecerunt, by mere walking, with comfortable marching. Hence: A) in gen. = to go, to travel, to betake one's self: quo ambulas tu? B) in partic., si recte ambulaverit is, if he has gone on as he ought; superbus ambulo, I step, stride proudly forth; (Com.) bene ambula, a safe journey to you! Nilus a. (lat.), flows. Also, with the distance gone over, a. tria millia passum. 2) Tr. (mostly poet.), with an acc. of that on which one goes: a. maria, to walk over the seas; a. viam, to travel a road.

AMB-ŪRO, ussi, ustum, 3. v. tr. 1) To burn around, to scorch, to set on fire: ambustus tamen evasit. Hence, artus ambusti vi frigoris, chilled, denumbed with cold. 2) To burn up, to destroy by fire, corpora mortuorum. 3) Trop., part. ambustus = of one who escapes trouble or danger with impaired health, fortune, fame, &c.: qui collegae damnatione et sua prope ambustus evaserat.

AMB-USTŪLATUS, a, um, adj. (Pl.) Burned around.

AMELLUS, i, m. The star-wort.

AMENANUS, i, m. [Ἀμνῆνας]. A river in Sicily.

AMENANUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to the river A., flumina.

A-MENS, tis, adj. w. comp. & sup. Out of one's senses, senseless, beside one's self (from passionate excitement — cf. insanus): a. errore, invidia; also, of abstract objects, a. consilium, furor.

AMENTATUS, a, um, adj. [amentum]. Furnished with a strap (for hurling), hasta; trop., to denote valid arguments.

AMENTIA, ae, f. [amens]. Madness, senselessness, a mad and passionate state of mind, senseless behavior.

AMENTUM, i, n. [ἄμτρον]. A strap, esp. one fastened to a missile weapon.

AMERIA, ae, f. A town in Umbria.

AMERINUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Ameria.

AMERIOLA, ae, f. A town in the territory of the Sabines.

AMES, Itis, m. A forked pole, on which a net was fastened for catching birds.

AMESTRATINUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Amestratus; subst., Amestratini, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of A.

AMESTRATUS, i, f. [= Ἀμῆστρατος]. A town on the northern coast of Sicily, now Mistretta.

AMETHYSTINUS, a, um, adj. [amethystus]. Of the colour of amethyst; subst., Amethystina, ōrum, n. pl. (sc. vestimenta), garments of the colour of amethyst.

AMETHYSTUS, i, f. [= ἀμῆστος]. The amethyst, a precious stone of a violet colour.

AMFLEXUS, a, um, adj. [part. of the unusual amflecto]. Curved around, ora.

AMFRACTUS — v. Anfractus.

AMICA, ae, f. [amicus]. 1) A female friend. 2) A mistress, a concubine.

AMICE, adv. [amicus]. In a friendly manner; a. vitae, philanthropically.

AMICIO, Ieui or ixi (both only poet.), ictum, 4. v. tr. [am-jacio]. Prop., to throw around. 1) A. se or pass. amiciri, to throw around one's self, to clothe one's self (with an upper garment — cf. vestio): amictus pallio, togā. Hence — a) simulacrum amiciebatur veste, was clothed — b) amictus nube, enveloped (as with a garment). 2) Trop. (only pass.), loca amicta nive, covered with snow; arbor a. vitibus, clad with vine-branches; quidquid chartis amicitur ineptis, is wrapped round with.

AMICITER, adv. (Pl.) = Amice.

AMICITIA, ae, f. [amicus]. Friendship: est mihi a. or sum in a. cum illo, I am in friendly relations with him, am his friend; contrahere, jungere, facere amicitiam, to form a friendship; freq. of nations or states = a treaty or league of friendship.

AMICITIES, ei, f. (Lucr.) = Amicitia.

AMICTUS, ūs, m. [amicio]. 1) A mode of dress, dress, clothing: imitari amictus alicujus; exoleverunt Graeci a. 2) An upper garment, a cloak, mantle (cf. vestis). 3) (Poet.) Trop. — a) a garment, in gen. — b) everything that envelops or surrounds an object: multus nebulae a., a thick envelopment of mist; coeli a., the air surrounding us.

AMICŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of amica]. A dear female friend, a mistress.

AMICŪLUM, i, n. [amicio] = Amictus 2.

AMICŪLUS, i, m. [dim. of amicus]. A dear friend.

AMICUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [amo]. Friendly, amicable, well-disposed, benevolent, homo, animus; homo mihi (but also meus, alicujus) amicissimus, my best friend; sus amica luto, that is fond of mud. Hence (poet.) — a) of things, favourable, advantageous, ventus, sidus — b) amicum mihi est, it is agreeable to me. Subst., Amicus, i, m., a friend a. alicujus, meus;

esp. in later writers, freq. aa. regis = courtiers, counsellors.

Ā-MIGRO, 1. v. intr. (doubtful read.). To depart from a place, to wander, Romam (found in the best MS., Liv. 1. 85).

ĀMINAEUS, } a, um, adj. [= 'Ἀμιναιος']. Pertaining to Aminaea, a region in the country of the Piceni, vites.

ĀMISIA, ae, f. } 1) A river in northern Germany. 2) A town at the mouth of the Ems, perhaps now Emden.

ĀMISSIO, ōnis, f. } [amitto]. A loss (of. ĀMISSUS, ūs, n. } jactura).

ĀMISUS, i, f. [= 'Ἀμισος']. A town in Pontus, now Samsun.

ĀMITA, ae, f. An aunt (= a father's sister — cf. matertera).

ĀMITERNINUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Amiternum. Subst., Amiternini, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Amiternum.

ĀMITERNUM, i, n. A very ancient town in the country of the Sabines, the birthplace of Sallust, now S. Vittorino.

ĀMITERNUS, a, um, adj. (poet.) = Amiterminus.

Ā-MITTO, īsi, issum, 3. v. tr. 1) (Ante-cl.) To send away from one's self, aliquem. 2) To let go or let slip from one's self, to dismiss: a. filium a se, hostem saucium e manibus, aliquem e conspectu, praedam ex oculis et manibus. Hence, trop., a. occasionem, tempus, to let pass by unimproved; a. fidem, to break one's word; sacramentum amittitur, becomes invalid, is annulled; a. spem, to give up. 3) To lose (so that a thing remains no longer in one's possession — cf. perdo): a. pecuniam; Decius amisit vitam at non perdidit, has lost his life, but has not thrown it away uselessly; a. litem, to lose a suit.

AMMON, ōnis, m. [= 'Ἀμμων']. A deity of Egypt and Lybia, worshipped afterwards in Greece and Rome as Zeus 'A., Jupiter Am., and represented as a ram, or as a man with a ram's head.

AMNESTIA, ae, f. [= ἀμνηστία]. An amnesty (pure Latin, oblivio).

AMNICŌLA, ae, m. [amnis-colo]. Growing by a river, salix.

AMNICŪLUS, i, m. [dim. of amnis]. A little river, a rivulet.

AMNIS, is, m. 1) A stream, a broad and deep river (cf. fluvius); (poet.) of all running waters, esp. such as flow rapidly = a river; secundo, adverso a., down stream, up stream. 2) (Poet.) = Water, liquid, in gen.

AMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To love (with the fundamental idea of affection and passion — cf. diligo): a. uxorem, filium, patriam; a. litteras, otium, to be fond of. Esp., freq. of love between persons of different sexes (in a good as well as in a bad sense); hence abs., filius meus amat, has a love-affair, has fallen in love with a maid. In partio.: A) (Com.) Ita (sic) me di (bene) ament or amabunt, so help me God! mea, assuredly! (usually followed by ut, etc.); also, as a salutation: dii te ament, God bless thee! B) (colloq.) amo te de (in) illa re, I am much obliged to you for it, under many obligations to you; also, a. te, quod illud fecisti: a. amorem tuum, I rejoice in your love: C) (colloq.) amabo te, Pray, be so good! sometimes followed by ut or ne: D) (mostly poet. & lat.) = to be accused, aliquid facere; also = to wish, to like: ira hoc fieri amat, wishes such a thing to be done.

ĀMOENE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [amoenus]. (Lat.) Delightfully, sweetly.

ĀMOENITAS, ātis, f. [amoenus]. 1) Of places, natural beauty, beautiful and charming situation, litorum. 2) (Ante-cl. & lat.) Pleasantness: a. vitae, a pleasant, luxurious life. 3) As a caressing address (Pl.), mea a., my sweet.

ĀMOENTER, adv. = Amoene.

ĀMOENUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. 1) Freq., of place, charming, delightful (object, in and of itself — cf. dulcis: latebrae dd., which seem beautiful to a person, aa., which really are so), locus, ora. 2) (Mostly lat.) Of other things, pleasant, agreeable, ingenium, fructus; cultus amoenior, a too showy dress.

Ā-MŌLIOR, itus, 4. v. dep. tr. 1) To move or carry away, to put away, to remove (with effort and trouble), aliquem, omnia e medio; a. se, to betake one's self away, to be off. 2) Trop., a. periculum, to avert; a. nomen alioquius, to pass over, to make no reference to; a. crimen, to refuse, to rebut.

ĀMŌLITIO, ōnis, f. [amolior]. A removing, infantis.

ĀMŌMUM, i, n. [= ἄμμορον]. An aromatic plant, from which balsam was prepared.

ĀMOR, ōris, m. [amo]. 1) Love (the subst. of the verb 'amo,' the fundamental meaning of which is also that of amor — cf. caritas): a. in (erga) me; a. patriae, litterarum. Esp. of love between persons of different sexes (in a good as well as a bad sense); also, in the plur., est mihi in amoribus or amore, I love him. Hence: A) = the beloved object, Roscius amores tui; addicere amores suos, to adjudge the beloved one to another as his property: B) personified = the god of love. 2) Trop., a strong desire, lust, longing for something: a. habendi; (poet.) amor est cognoscere, I have a wish to learn. 3) A means of producing love = hippomanes, q. v.

ĀMŌRĀBUNDUS, a, um, adj. [amo]. Amorous, mulier.

ĀMORGUS, i, f. [= Ἀμωργος]. One of the Sporades, in the Archipelago, now Amorgo or Morgo.

ĀMŌTIO, ōnis, f. [amoveo]. A removal, doloris.

Α-ΜΩΕΟ, mōvi, mōtum, 2. v. tr. To move or take away, to remove (often of things that are disagreeable or troublesome): a. aliquem ex aliquo loco, scripta Livii ex bibliothecis; a. se, to betake one's self away, to withdraw; (poet.) a. boves, to steal; (lat.) a. aliquem in insulam, to banish. Hence, trop., a. socrdiam ex pectore, metum, molestiam, to remove; culpam a. se, to clear one's self of; a. sensum doloris a sententia dicenda, not to suffer to exert influence upon the judgment; quod aetas amoveat (Lucr.), takes away with itself.

AMPĒLUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀμπῆλος, 'a vine']. A youth beloved by Bacchus.

AMPĒLUSIA, ae, f. [= 'Ἀμπέλους']. A promontory and town in Mauretania.

AMPHIARĀEUS, a, um, adj. Amphiaræan, pertaining to Amphiaræus.

AMPHIARĀIDES, ae, m. A descendant of Amphiaræus = Alcmaeon.

AMPHIARĀUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀμφιδραός']. A son of Oicles and Hypermnestra, the husband of Eriphyle, the father of Alcmaeon and Amphilocheus, and also a seer and interpreter of dreams, at Argos. In the expedition of the Seven against Thebes, he was swallowed up by the earth.

AMPHIBŌLIA, ae, f. [= 'Ἀμφιβολία']. In rhet., ambiguity.

AMPHIBRĀCHYS, ŷos, m. [= 'ἀμφιβραχὺς']. The amphibrach (- - -), a poetic foot.

AMPHICTYŌNES, um, m. pl. [= 'Ἀμφικτύωνες']. Associations of Greek states for religious rather than for political purposes, the Amphictyons; the most important of them were the association at Delphi and that at Thermopylae.

AMPHIDĀMAS, antis, m. [= 'Ἀμφιδάμας']. One of the Argonauts, son of Aleus, from Arcadia.

AMPHILŌCHI, orum, m. pl. [= 'Ἀμφιλοχοί']. The inhabitants of Amphilochia.

AMPHILŌCHIA, ae, f. [= 'Ἀμφιλοχία']. A small province in Acarnania.

AMPHILŌCHIUS, a, um, adj. Amphilocheian. Argos Amphilochium [= 'Ἀργὸς τὸ Ἀμφιλοχικόν'], the capital of Amphilochia.

AMPHILŌCHUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀμφιλοχὺς']. A son of Amphiaræus, and founder of Greek cities on the coast of Cilicia.

AMPHIMĀCER, cri, m. [= 'Ἀμφιμακρὸς']. The amphimacer (- - -), a poetic foot.

AMPHINŌMUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀμφινόμος']. A youth who, with his brother Anapis, bore his parents through the fire of Mount Etna.

AMPHION, onis, m. [= 'Ἀμφίων']. A son of Jupiter and Antiope, brother of Zeithus, and husband of Niobe. When he built the citadel of Thebes, the rocks and trees followed, of their own accord, the magical tones of his lyre. He committed suicide, after his own and Niobe's children had been killed by Apollo and Diana.

AMPHIŌNIUS, a, um, adj. [Amphion]. Amphionia.

AMPHIPŌLIS, is, f. [= 'Ἀμφίπολις']. A town in Macedonia, now Emboli.

AMPHIPŌLITĀNUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Amphipolis.

AMPHISSA, ae, f. [= 'Ἀμφισσα']. The chief town in Locri Ozolae.

AMPHISSIUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Amphissa.

AMPHISSUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀμφισσός']. A son of Apollo and Dryope, builder of the town Ceta.

AMPHITHEĀTRUM, i, n. [= 'ἀμφιθέατρον']. An amphitheatre, a circular building for the combats of gladiators and animals, with seats rising like terraces.

AMPHITRITE, es, f. [= 'Ἀμφιτρίτη']. A daughter of Nereus, wife of Neptune, and goddess of the sea.

AMPHITRYO, onis, f. [= 'Ἀμφιτρίτων']. A son of Alceus, king of Tiryns, and husband of Alcmene, who had by him Iphicles, and Hercules by Jupiter.

AMPHITRYONIĀDES, ae, m. [= 'Ἀμφιτρυωνιάδης']. A descendant of Amphitryo = Hercules.

AMPHŌRA, ae, f. [= 'ἀμφορεύς']. 1) A vessel, usually made of clay, with two handles, for preserving wine, &c., a jar, a jug. 2) A measure: A) for liquids = 2 urnae or 8 congi; hence, about = 24 quarts, 6 gallons: B) of the capacity of a ship (an 'a.' weighing about 80 pounds).

AMPHRYSIUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Amphrysus, vates A. = the Sibyl.

AMPHRYSUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀμφρύσιος']. A river in Thessaly, near which Apollo is said to have fed the flocks of King Admetus.

AMPLE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [amplius]. 1) Copiously, abundantly. 2) Splendidly, magnificently. — N. B. For the comp. 'amplius' a. bel.

AM-PECTOR, plexus sum, 3. v. dep. tr. Prop., to twine around a thing. 1) To elasp round, to embrace, to encompass (not so strong as 'complector'), aliquem. In partic., a. aliquem or aliquid amore, benevolentia, etc., to embrace one with love or good-will, and hence merely a. = to love, to value, to care for: a. artem, to study an art; a. rempublicam, to interest one's self for the state. 2) To surround, to encircle, to encompass: a. locum munimento; murus a. urbem. Hence, trop.: A) to comprehend with the mind = to understand, to consider, to weigh: a. aliquid consilio, cogitationem toto pectore: B) to comprehend, argumentum verbis, omnes res per scripturam: C) to include a thing in a name, to comprehend: a. aliquid virtutis nomine; sententia illa omnes crudelitates amplectitur.

AMPLEXO, avi, ātum, 1. v. tr. } intens. form
AMPLEXOR, ātus sum, 1. dep. } of amplector, q. v., used both properly and trop.

AMPLEXUS, ūs, m. [amplector]. (Mostly poet. & lat.) 1) An encircling, a surrounding

a. g., of a serpent, of a sea that surrounds the earth. 2) An embrace: dare a.; petere aliquem amplexu, to attempt to embrace a person.

AMPLIATIO, ōnis, f. [amplio]. A deferring of the decision of a judge — v. Amplio 2.

AMPLIFICATIO, ōnis, f. [amplifico]. An enlarging; an increasing, pecuniae; esp. in rhet., an amplification.

AMPLIFICATOR, ōris, m. [amplifico]. An amplifier, enlarger, dignitatis tuae.

AMPLIFICE, adv. [amplificus]. (Poet.) Splendidly.

AMPLIFICO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [amplifico]. To widen, to enlarge, to augment, to extend, urbem, auctoritatem; a. sonum, to strengthen; a. aliquem honore, to augment the honour of one. Esp. of an orator, a. rem = to place in a clearer light, to make very prominent (as well in order to praise as to blame a thing).

AMPLIO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [amplus]. 1) (Poet. & lat.) To widen, to enlarge, to extend. 2) T. t., of a judge, to defer a decision to another time (which the praetor expressed by the word 'amplius,' q. v.), to delay, to adjourn: a. aliquem or causam alicujus.

AMPLITER = Ample.

AMPLITUDO, inis, f. [amplus]. 1) Wide-ness, wide extent, largeness, urbis, simulacri. 2) Trop.: A) greatness = grandeur, sublimity, animi, rerum gestarum; B) reputation, dignity: splendor et a., in illo est summa a.; a. orationis, dignity and copiousness.

AMPLIUS, comp. of the adv. 'ample,' is used substantively, esp. of extension in space and time = more, farther, longer, particularly in connexion with a number (— the different constructions occurring here are explained in the grammar): a. sunt sex menses, it is more than six months; duas a. horas ibi fuit, longer than two hours; a. horis quatuor pugnabant; also, a. quam tres iudices; freq. with a negation, duo haud a. millia; non a., no longer. Hence: A) quid a., what further? alia a. = besides, more, moreover: B) nihil a., only this, nothing further; in later writers, freq. nihil a. quam, nec quidquam a. quam, elliptically, without a verb = only, but: illum nihil a. quam monuit, he only admonished him (did nothing else but admonish him); nec quidquam a. quam muscas captavit, did nothing but catch flies: C) tech. t., in the language of law — a) non (nihil) a. petere, not to demand any thing more, to make no further claim: b) 'amplius' pronounciare (by the judge), to delay a decision because the case is not yet clear to him — v. Amplio 2.

AMPLUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. 1) Wide, spacious, large, domus, res; (poet.) ter a., three-bodied. 2) Much, great, considerable, ample, divitiae, pecuniā, dona; aa. negotia, tedious; hence, amplius, more; a. obsidum, more hostages. Hence — a) (poet.) = strong, violent, morbus, ira, spes — b) of an orator, orator a., who speaks with dignity and copiousness. 3) Trop. (to denote the manner in which something appears to others): A) of things, splendid, magnificent, glorious, res gestae, triumphus, funus; amplum mihi est, it is honourable to me: B) of persons, illustrious, honourable, renowned, distinguished, homo, familia, genus; amplissimus ordo, of the senate, and likewise often as a title of honour in public life.

AMPULLA, ae, f. A vessel for holding wine (and sometimes ointment), having two handles, a narrow neck, and made wide and swelling in the middle, a flask, a jar. *Trop. (poet.), affected and bombastic language.

AMPULLARIUS, ii, m. [ampulla]. (Pl.) A flaskmaker.

*AMPULLOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. [ampulla]. To make use of bombastic and affected language.

AMPUTATIO, ōnis, f. [amputo]. A cutting off, lopping of twigs, sarmentorum.

AM-PŪTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To cut off, to cut around, ramos. Hence: A) in gen., to cut off, manus; humeros, to amputate; caput, to behead: B) trop. = to take away, to remove, errorem. 2) To lop, vitem. Hence, trop., a. colloquia, to shorten; numerum legionum, to diminish; amputata loqui, in abrupt sentences.

AMPYCIDES, ae, m. A son of Ampycus = Mopsus.

AMPYCUS, i, m. [= Ἀμύκος]. 1) A son of Jupiter, and priest of Ceres. 2) One of the Lapithae, son of Pelias, and father of the seer Mopsus.

AMPYX, ŷcis, m. [= Ἀμύξ]. 1) A companion of Phineus, changed with him into stone by Perseus. 2) One of the Lapithae.

AMSANCTUS, i, m. A lake in the country of the Hirpini, famous for its pestiferous exhalations, now Lago d'Ansante.

AMULETUM, i, n. An amulet, a talisman, or sympathetic preservative against sickness and other evils.

AMULIUS, ii, m. Brother of Numitor, and king of Alba.

AMURCA, ae, f. [= ἀμύρρα]. (Poet. & lat.) The scum of oil, the watery liquid that flows out in pressing oil.

AMUSSIS, is, f. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A ruler, a carpenters and masons' rule. Hence, ad a., and written in one word, as an adv., adamussim or examussim, exactly, accurately.

AMUSSITATUS, a, um, adj. (Pl.) Made according to rule, made accurately, indoles.

AMYCLAE, ārum, f. pl. [= Ἀμύκλαι]. 1) A town in Laconia, the birthplace of the Dioscuri, also of Helen and Clytemnestra. 2) An ancient town in Latium: tacitae A., because the conquest of the town was occasioned by a law forbidding any one to speak of the approach of an enemy.

AMYCLAEUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Amyclae (in Laconia).

AMYCLIDES, ae, m. A (male) descendant of Amyclae, the builder of Amyclae 1, i. e., his son Hyacinthus.

AMYCUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀμυκος']. 1) A son of Neptune, king of the Bebrycians, in Bithynia. When the Argonauts landed on his shores, he challenged the strongest of them to a pugilistic encounter, and was slain by Polydeuces. 2) A centaur.

AMYDON, ōnis, f. [= 'Ἀμυδών']. A town in Macedonia.

AMYGDALUM, i, n. [= 'ἀμυγδαλον']. An almond.

AMYMONE, ēs, f. [= 'Ἀμυμώνη']. 1) A daughter of Danaus, beloved by Neptune, who, for her sake, caused a new fountain to spring from the earth. 2) The fountain A., near Argos.

AMYMONIUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to the fountain Amymone.

AMYNANDER, dri, m. [= 'Ἀμύνανδρος']. A king of the Athamones, and an ally of the Romans in their war against Philip of Macedonia.

AMYNAS, ae, m. [= 'Ἀμυντας']. The name of several Macedonian kings.

AMYNIADES, ae, m. [= 'Ἀμυνιάδης']. A son of Amyntas, i. e., Philip, of Macedonia.

AMYNTOR, ōris, m. [= 'Ἀμύντωρ']. A king of the Dolopians, and father of Phœnix.

AMYNTORIDES, ae, m. [= 'Ἀμυντορίδης']. A son of Amyntor = Phœnix.

AMYSTIS, idis, f. [= 'Ἀμυστις']. A long draught, the emptying of a cup at once (a term denoting eager drinking).

AMYTHAON, ōnis, m. [= 'Ἀμυθάων']. The father of Melampus.

AMYTHAONIUS, a, um, adj. Descended from Amythaon.

AN, conj. 1) Prop. belongs to the second member of the sentence in which it is used; in disjunctive interrogations, at the beginning of the second (or third, &c.) sentence, in both direct and indirect discourse — or: utrum superbiam ejus primum memorem an crudelitatem? Vosne L. Domitium an L. Domitius vos deseruit? sortientur an non, or not? nescio, gratulerne tibi an timeam; the poets sometimes have 'an — an' in both members of a sentence.

2) When the first part of a disjunctive interrogation is not expressed (which is often the case), but is left to be supplied from the context, 'an' begins the interrogative sentence — or, or rather, even: De. Credam ego istuc, si esse te hilarum videro. Ar. An tu esse me tristem putas? (where 'nonne me hilarum vides' is implied); an hoc non dixisti? an me haec dicturum fuisse censes, or do you think that I would say such things? Freq. in double questions, which also contain an argumentative conclusion: an vero P. Scipio Tib. Gracchum privatus interfecit, Catilinam vero nos consules perferemus?

3) After haud scio, nescio, dubito (dubium or incertum est), sometimes too after other expressions of doubt and uncertainty — whether not, so that the entire phrase den. a conjecture that something may be so = perhaps: nescio an melius patientiam dicere possim, I might better, perhaps, say patience; dubito an Venusiam tendam, whether I should not hasten to V.; dubito an turpe non sit, perhaps it is not base; haud scio an ne opus quidem sit, perhaps it is not even necessary; (poet. & lat.) in dependent questions = num, whether, whether or not: nescio an profecturus sim, whether I shall go or not; opus nescio an superabile, magnum certe, a work, of which I do not know whether it is practicable, at all events, a difficult one; hence the later writers often have 'nescio an ullus, quidquam' where Cicero has 'an nullus, nihil.'

4) Sometimes it is used elliptically, without an expression of asking or doubting, to denote uncertainty, and a wavering between two ideas: quum ei Simonides, an quis alius, polliceretur (the sentence begins affirmatively, but 'a. q. a.' is inserted), or was it, perhaps, some one else? So, esp. in the later writers, an = sive, vel, and in connexion with the former particle: sive fatali recordia, an — ratus, or because he thought.

ANACES, um, m. pl. [= 'ἄνακες, instead of ἀνακτες']. The rulers, a name of the Dioscuri.

ANACHARSIS, idis, m. [= 'Ἀναχάρσις']. A Scythian, who, in the time of Solon, made a journey through Greece.

*ANACLINTERIUM, ii, n. [= 'ἀνακλιντήριον']. A cushion for leaning upon.

ANACREON, ontis, m. [= 'Ἀνακρέων']. A famous Greek lyric poet, born 559 B. C.

ANACREONTIUS, a, um, adj. [= 'Ἀνακρεόντιος']. Pertaining to Anacreon.

ANACTORIUM, ii, n. [= 'Ἀνακτόριον']. A promontory on the Ambracian bay.

ANADĒMA, ātis, n. [= 'ἀνάδημα']. A head-band, fillet.

ANAGNIA, ae, f. [= 'Ἀναγρία']. An old town in Latium, the capital of the Hernici.

ANAGNINUM, i, n. A country-seat near Anagnia.

ANAGNINUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Anagnia. Subst., Anagnini, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Anagnia.

ANAGNOSTES, ae, m. [= 'Ἀναγνώστης']. A reader. Among the Romans, the anagn. was a slave.

ANALECTA, ae, m. [= 'ἀναλεκτάς']. The collector of the crumbs, a slave who had to clear away the crumbs and fragments of a meal.

ANALECTRIS, Idis, f. [ἀναλεκτρος]. (Poet., doubtf. reading.) A little cushion or pad for the shoulders.

ANALŌGIA, ae, f. [= ἀναλογία]. (Lat.) Analogy; (gram. term) similarity, conformity in the formation of words, in the style, &c. 'Liber de Analogia,' a work written by Jul. Cæsar.

ANALŌGICUS, a, um, adj. [ἀναλογικός]. Pertaining to analogy: libri analogici, on analogy.

ANANCAEUM, i, n. [= ἀναγκαιον, 'that which is necessary']. A large drinking cup, that had to be emptied, for a wager, at a single draught.

ANĀPAESTUM, i, n. [anapestus]. A poem in anapestic verse.

ANĀPAESTUS, a, um, adj. [ἀνὰ παῖστος, prop. 'struck back']. Pes a., a metrical foot, the anapest = (- - -). Subst., Anapaestus, i, m., an anapest.

ANĀPHE, ēs, f. [= Ἀνάφη]. One of the Sporades, now Nansi.

ANĀPIS, is, } m. [= Ἀναπες]. 1) A Sicilian river in Sicily, falling into the Gulf of Syracuse, now Anapo.

ANARTES, um, m. pl. A people of Dacia.

ANAS, ae, m. A river in Spain, now Guadiana.

ANAS, ētis, f. A duck.

ANĀTICŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of anas]. (Pl.) A duckling; trop., as an expression of fondness, my duck!

ANĀTINUS, a, um, adj. [anas]. Of or belonging to ducks.

ANĀTŌCISMUS, i, m. [= ἀνατοκισμός]. Interest upon interest, compound interest.

ANAXĀGŌRAS, ae, m. [= Ἀναξαγόρας]. A Greek philosopher of the Ionian school, and friend of Pericles — lived about 500 B. C.

ANAXARCHUS, i, m. [= Ἀναξαρχος]. A Greek philosopher of Abdera, a follower of Democritus, and a contemporary of Alexander the Great.

ANAXĀRĒTE, ēs, f. [= Ἀναξαρτή]. A Grecian maiden, who, for her prudishness, was changed into a stone.

ANAXILĀUS, i, m. [= Ἀναξίλαος]. A ruler of Rhegium, and founder of Messina, in Sicily.

ANAXIMANDER, dri, m. [= Ἀναξίμανδρος]. A Greek philosopher of the Ionian school, who lived about 560 B. C.

ANAXIMĒNES, is, [= Ἀναξίμενης]. A Greek philosopher of the Ionian school, and pupil of Anaximander — lived about 560 B. C.

ANCAEUS, i, m. [= Ἀγκαιός]. An Arcadian, and one of the Argonauts, who was slain by the Calydonian boar.

ANCEPS, cipitis, adj. [am-caput]. 1) (Poet.) Having two heads, Janus; trop., of a mountain, having two peaks. 2) Extended to two different sides, two-sided; hence, often translated by two-fold, double, &c. (cf. duplex): a securis, two-edged; bestiae aa., of a twofold nature, amphibious; proelium, pugna, acies a., a battle, &c., on two sides, at two different points; periculum, terror a., proceeding from two different sides; tela aa., hurled from both sides; munimenta aa., facing in two different directions. 3) Trop.: A) undecided, uncertain, dubious, fortuna, casus; ancipiti Marte pugnare, so that the victory is undecided; likewise, proelium a.: B) insecure, untrustworthy: C) ambiguous, equivocal, oraculum; sententia, jus, that may be interpreted to the advantage of either party: D) critical, dangerous, perilous, via, locus; esse in ancipiti, in a critical situation.

ANCHĀRIĀNUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Ancharius.

ANCHĀRIUS, i, m. A Roman family name.

ANCHĒMŌLUS, i, m. Son of Rhoetus, and king of the Marubii.

ANCHIĀLOS, i, f. [= Ἀγχιάλος]. A small town in Thrace, on the Pontus Euxinus, now Akiali.

ANCHISES, ae, m. [= Ἀγχίσις]. A son of Capys and Themis (daughter of the Trojan king Ilus). He had, by Venus, Æneas, with whom he fled, after the downfall of Troy, as far as Sicily, where he died.

ANCHISEUS, a, um, adj. [= Ἀγχίσιος]. Pertaining to Anchises.

ANCHISIĀDES, ae, m. [= Ἀγχισιάδης]. A son of Anchises = Æneas.

ANCILE, is, n. A small, oval shield, which was said to have fallen from heaven, in the reign of Numa, and which was afterwards preserved, at Rome, as a sacred relic, together with eleven others made like it.

ANCILLA, ae, f. [dim. of the obsolete ancula, from the verb anclo, 'to serve' — cf. exanclo]. A maid-servant, a handmaid, a female slave.

ANCILLĀRIŌLUS, i, m. [ancilla]. (Poet. & lat.). One who runs after maid-servants.

ANCILLĀRIS, e, adj. [ancilla]. Relating to female servants, slavish, artificium.

ANCILLŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of ancilla]. A young maid-servant or handmaid.

ANCIPE (Pl.), obsolete form, instead of Anceps.

ANCISUS, part. of the unusual verb ancido [am-caedo]. (Lucr.) Cut around.

ANCON, ōnis, } f. [= Ἀγκών]. A town in Italy, on the Adriatic sea — still Ancona.

ANCONTĀNUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Ancona.

ANCŌRA, ae, f. [= ἄγκυρα]. An anchor. ancoram jacere, to cast, tollere, to weigh; in ancoris consistere (navem tenere), ad a. stare, to lie at anchor.

ANCŌRALE, is, n. [ancora]. A cable.

ANCUS (MARCUS) — v. Marcius.

ANCYRA, ae, f. [= Ἀγκυρα]. The capital of Galatia, now Angora.

ANCYRANUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Ancyra; hence, monumentum Ancyranum, a summary of the most important deeds and undertakings of the Emperor Augustus: a copy of the 'Index rerum gestarum' that was added to his testament.

ANDĀBĀTA, ae, m. A kind of gladiator, whose helmet had no opening before the eyes, and who therefore fought blindfolded.

ANDĀNIA, ae, f. [= Ἀνδανία]. A town in Messenia, now Andorossa.

ANDĒĀVI, ōrum, m. pl. A Gallic tribe, on the Lower Loire, with a capital of the same name—now Angers. Cæsar calls them 'Andes.'

ANDES, ium, m. pl. 1) A village near Mantua, the birthplace of Virgil. 2) [= Andegavi, q. v.] ANDRAEMON, ōnis, m. [= Ἀνδραμῶν]. 1) The husband of Dryope, and father of Amphissus. 2) A king of Calydon, the father of Thoas.

ANDRIA, ae, f. [= Ἀνδρία]. The Maid of Andros (a play written by Menander, and translated into Latin by Terence).

ANDRISCUS, i, m. [= Ἀνδρίσκος]. A slave who pretended to be a son of the Macedonian king Perseus, and waged war against the Romans, until he was taken captive and carried to Rome in triumph.

ANDRIUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to or born at Andros.

ANDROCLUS, i, m. [= Ἀνδρόκλος]. A slave, recognized and saved from death by a lion with which he had lived in the desert.

ANDROGEON = Androgeus.

ANDRŌGEONEUS, a, um, adj. [= Ἀνδρῳγεωνεύς]. Pertaining to Androgeos.

ANDRŌGEOS, } i, m. [= Ἀνδρόγεως]. A son
ANDRŌGEUS, } of Minos and Pasiphaë, who was murdered at Athens.

ANDRŌGYNES, is, comm. [= Ἀνδρῳγύνης]. 1) = Androgynus. 2) A heroic woman.

ANDRŌGYNUS, i, m. [= Ἀνδρῳγύνης]. A hermaphrodite.

ANDRŌMĀCHA, } ae, f. [= Ἀνδρομάχη]. A
ANDRŌMĀCHE, } daughter of Ætión, and wife of Hector, after whose death she became the captive of Pyrrhus, and was by him married to Helenus, the brother of Hector.

ANDRŌMĒDA, ae, f. [= Ἀνδρόπεδον]. A
ANDRŌMĒDE, es, f. } daughter of the Ethiopian king Cepheus and of Cassiopeia. Being exposed to the assaults of a sea-monster, she was rescued by Perseus.

ANDRON, ōnis, m. An entry. (The Greek ἀνδρῶν denotes 'that part of the house where the men resided and dined.')

ANDRŌNICUS, i, m. [= Ἀνδρόνικος]. A (Greek) proper name; thus, esp., T. Livius A., who was taken captive at the conquest of Ta- rentum, and became the slave of a certain Lāvry—he was the first dramatic poet among the Romans.

ANDRŌPHĀGI, ōrum, m. pl. [= Ἀνδρόφάγαι]. Man-eaters—v. Anthropophagi.

ANDROS, } i. f. [= Ἀνδρος]. The most north-
ANDRUS, } ern of the Cyclades, now Andri.

ANELLUS, i, m. [dim. of anulus]. (Pl.) A little ring.

ĀNĒMŪRIUM, ii, n. A promontory and town in Cilicia, now Anemur.

ĀNĒTHUM, i, n. [= ἄνθος]. A fragrant plant, dill.

ANFRACTUS, us, m. [am-frango]. A recurving, a bending up or back, esp., freq. of the windings of a road, &c., viarum, montium; a. annuus or solis, annual revolution: A) of discourse, digression, diffuseness, circuitio et a.: B) of legal affairs, quibbling, cavilling.

ANGELLUS, i, m. [dim. of angulus]. A little corner.

*ANGĒLUS, i, m. [= ἄγγελος]. A messenger (doubtful reading).

ANGINA, ae, f. [ango]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) The quinsy.

ANGİPORTUM, i, n. } [ango-portus]. A
ANGİPORTUS, us, m. } small and narrow lane, an alley.

ANGİTĪA, ae, f. According to Virgil, a sister of Medea and Circe, worshipped by the Marsi.

ANGLI, ōrum, m. pl. A people of Lower Germany.

ANGO, nxi (rar.), —, 3. v. tr. [ἄγω]. 1) (Poet.) To press together, esp. of the throat, to choke. 2) To oppress one's heart, to alarm, to trouble, to disquiet, aliquem, animum alicujus; esp. angere se animi (Pl.) or more freq. angī, to feel anguish, to trouble one's self, aliqua re or de aliqua re, on account of any thing; also, with a dependent interrogation, an acc. and inf. and with the conj. quod.

ANGOR, ōris, m. [ango]. 1) A contraction, compression of the throat: occupat fauces a., the quinsy; aestus et a., tormenting heat. 2) Trop., anguish, pro aliquo; confici angoribus, to be consumed with indignation, grief.

ANGRIVĀRII, ōrum, m. pl. A people of Germany, near the Teutoburg Forest.

ANGUICŌMUS, a, um, adj. [anguis-coma]. (Poet.) Having snaky hair, snake-haired.

ANGUICŪLUS, i, m. [dim. of anguis]. A small serpent.

ANGUİFER, fēra, fērum, adj. [anguis-fero]. (Poet.) Serpent-bearing.

ANGUİGĒNA, ae, m. [anguis-gigno]. (Poet.) Engendered of snakes.

ANGUİLLA, ae, f. [anguis]. An eel.

ANGUİMĀNUS, a, um, adj. [anguis-manus]. (Lucr.) Having serpent-arms (of the elephant, on account of the flexibility of his trunk)

ANGUINEUS, } a, um, adj. [anguis]. Of or ANGUINUS, } pertaining to a snake, snakey.

*ANGUIPES, edis, adj. [anguis-pes]. (Poet.)
Serpent-footed.

ANGUIS, is, m. & f. A serpent, a snake; as a constellation — a) = Draco, the Dragon — b) = Hydra, the water-serpent.

ANGUITENENS, tis, m. [anguis-tenens].
(Poet.) The Serpent-Holder, one of the constellations.

*ANGULATUS, a, um, adj. [angulus]. Cornered, angular.

ANGULOSUS, a, um, adj. [angulus]. Full of corners, angular.

ANGULUS, i, m. [ἄγκυλος]. 1) An angle, a corner: a. saxi, corner, point; in mathematics, an angle. 2) A corner = a secret, retired place, a hole, a nook, usually with the accessory notion of contempt.

ANGUSTE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [angustus].
1) Narrowly, closely, sedere; continere aliquem a., to confine one to a small space. 2) Of number and quantity, sparingly, scantily: frumentum angustius provenerat. 3) Of discourse, briefly, concisely.

ANGUSTIA, ae, f. (very rar.) = Angustiae.

ANGUSTIAE, arum, f. pl. [angustus]. 1) A narrow space, narrowness; freq. w. genit., itineris;
a. locorum, narrow passes, straits. 2) Trop.: A) of time, shortness, want, temporis: B) of pecuniary circumstances, &c., scarcity, want, indigence: aa. aerarii, rei frumentariae, a scarcity of provisions: C) of other circumstances, embarrassment, difficulty, perplexity: res erat in his aa.: D) of the mind, narrowness, littleness, animi: E) of scientific inquiries, &c., subtlety, verborum: F) of discourse, brevity.

*ANGUSTICLAVIUS, a, um, adj. [angustus-clavus]. (Lat.) With a narrow strip of purple on the tunic (the badge of a military tribune of plebeian rank — cf. laticlavus).

ANGUSTO, avi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [angustus].
(Lat.) To make narrow, to straiten, domum; trop. = to restrain, gaudia.

ANGUSTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [ango].
1) Of space, narrow, small, close, strait, via, pons, cella; hence, spiritus a., short breath. 2) Trop.:
A) in angustum concludere, deducere, etc., to confine, animi perturbationes, to restrain, to curb:
B) (poet.) of time, short, dies: C) of pecuniary circumstances and the like, limited, indigent, aedy, scanty, fortuna, mensa, res frumentaria;
a. pauperies: D) of other circumstances of life = critical, difficult: res aa., a bad condition of affairs, fides, impaired credit; subst., Angustum, i, a. = a critical condition, embarrassment, difficulty: E) of the mind, narrow, base, low-spirited, animus: F) of scientific inquiries, &c., subtle, minute, concertationes: G) of discourse, brief, concise, oratio.

ANHELATIO, ōnis, f. [anhele]. (Lat.) A panting, puffing. The classical word is 'anhelitus,' q. v.

ANHELATOR, ōris, m. [anhele]. (Lat.) One who has difficulty in breathing.

ANHELITUS, ūs, m. [anhele]. 1) A panting, puffing, shortness of breath: aa. moventur, are occasioned (if one goes too fast). 2) (Poet. & lat.) The breath, the air that one breathes in and out: aridus a. venit ab ore. 3) Exhalation, vapor, terrae.

ANHELO, avi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr.,
To pant, to puff: a. eximis pulmonibus; taurus
a. sub vomere; (poet.) ignis a., roars; inopia anhelans, neediness or want gasping for something.
2) Tr., to utter with panting, to breathe forth, verba; trop., a. aculus, to breathe out = to be intent upon.

ANHELUS, a, um, adj. [anhele]. (Poet.) 1)
Panting, puffing, equi, senes, short-breathed.
2) Making one pant, cursus, sitis, febris.

ANICIANUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Ani-cius, Anician: vinum A., from the consular year of L. A. Gallus (160 B. C.).

ANICULA, ae, f. [dim. of anus]. A little old woman.

ANIENSIS, e, } adj. [Anio]. Of or per-ANIENUS, a, um, } taining to the Anio.

ANIENUS, i, m. (Property.) = Anio, q. v.

ANIGROS, i, m. [= ἄνιγρος]. A small river in Elis.

ANILIS, e, adj. [anus]. Pertaining or proper to old women, old-womanish: passus aa., an old woman's steps, gait; often derisively, ineptiae, superstitiones aa.

ANILITAS, ātis, f. [anilis]. (Poet.) The old age of women.

ANILITER, adv. [anilis]. Like an old woman.

ANIMA, ae, f. [kindred to ἄνεμος, fr. ἄν, ἄνι].

1) (Poet.) A breath of air, a current of air, wind: aa. impellunt vela. 2) The air as an element (cf. coelum). 3) The air inhaled and ex-haled, breath (concr.—cf. spiritus): comprimere
a., to stop the breath, ducere, to take breath. 4)
The physical principle of life, breath of life, vital power, the soul (regarded physiologically as the principle of animal existence — cf. animus).
Hence: A) = life: adimere alicui animam; animam agere, efflare, edere, etc., to breathe one's lust; prov., animam debet = he is deeply in debt: B) (poet. & lat.) a living being: egregiae aa., noble souls: C) freq. of the souls of the dead, the shades of the lower world: piaae aa.:
D) as a kind address, a. mea (carissima), my soul! my life! 5) Sometimes = animus, the rational soul of man.

ANIMABILIS (doubtful read.) = Animalis, q. v.

ANIMADVERSIÓ, ōnis, f. [animadverto]. 1)
Attention, observation: a. et diligentia; quaestio et a., inquiry 3) Notice, observation, esp. a censuring observation = censure, reproach. effugere animadversionem. Hence, 3) punishment, a. alicujus, inflicted by some one; thus, a. censoria and censorum, q. v.

ANIMADVERSOR, ōris, m. [animadverto]. An observer, vitiorum.

ANIMADVERTO, ti, sum, 3, v. tr. [animum-adverto, q. v.]. 1) To direct the attention to a thing, to give heed to, to attend to, rem aliquam, quid factum sit. 2) To perceive, to notice, to observe, to see, puerum dormientem, aliquid ex re aliqua, quid existimandum sit, se alicui placere; res in qua nihil displicere, nihil animadverto possit, no disapproving remark can be made. Hence, 3) to notice an offence = to punish, a. rem, a thing, in aliquem, a person; res animadvertenda, something censurable.

ANIMAL, ālis, n. [animalis]. A living being, an animal (in the widest sense, also of man — cf. bestia, etc.).

ANIMALIS, e, adj. [anima]. 1) Airy, consisting of air, natura. 2) Living, animate, endowed with (animal) life: exemplum a., the living original.

ANIMANS, tis [anima]. 1) Adj., living. 2) Subst., m. f. & n., a living creature, an animal, also of a rational being, as man; but more freq. in opp. to man (— of. bestia).

*ANIMATIO, ōnis, f. [animo]. Prop., an animating, a quickening; trop., a living creature = Animal.

ANIMATUS, a, um, adj. [part. of animo]. 1) Living, animate (opp. to inanimatus). 2) With an adv. or the like, disposed, minded: bene (male) a. in aliquem; quemadmodum sis a., nescio. 3) (Ante-cl. & lat.) Courageous, miles; infirme a., with feeble courage.

ANIMO, āvi, ātum, 1, v. tr. 1) [Anima] To make alive, to animate, to quicken; (poet.) a. guttas in angues, to transform (lifeless) drops into (living) snakes. 2) [Animus] With an adv., to endow with a particular feeling or temper, to dispose (v. animatus) = a. pueros orientes sic.

ANIMOSE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [animosus]. 1) Courageously, boldly = a. aliquid facere. 2) Eagerly = a. votum solvere.

ANIMOSUS, a, um, adj. 1) [Anima]: A) living, full of life, signa, that seem to live: B) blowing hard, Eurus. 2) [Animus] With comp. & sup., courageous, spirited, stout-hearted, bold, vir; a. et fortis; (poet.) aa. guttura laqueo ligavit, tied up the bold throat; (poet.) a. re aliqua, proud of any thing.

ANIMULA, ae, f. [dim. of:] 1) [Anima] A little life: quiddam animulae restillare. 2) [Animus] A little or dear soul: unius mulierculae a.

ANIMULUS, i, m. [dim. of animus]. Used only in the voc.: mi animule, my dear heart!

ANIMUS, i, m. [ἀνιμος — cf. anima]. 1) The principle of intellectual life, the spirit (cf. anima): homo constat ex a. et corpore; but also, aa. bestiarum, the mental faculties, the instincts of animals. 2) The rational soul of man, comprising all his mental faculties (cf. mens). In particular: A) the faculty that wills = will, design, purpose, intention: in animo habeo or in animo mihi est, I intend; hoc animo, for this purpose; (poet.) a. fert or est, I have a desire, I intend; induco in animum or induco animum, to resolve, to make up one's mind: B) the emotional faculties — a) the heart, mind: ex a. amare, from the bottom of the heart: a. irā commotus; anxius animi; darc alicui animum, to give one's heart to a person; as a caressing address, mi a., my heart! — b) = character, temper: a. pusillus, mollis — c) of a particular feeling and state of mind, a) a. fortis, magnus, courage; a. bono, forti, magno esse, to be of good cheer (a. magni esse, to have a courageous character); esp. the plur. (in the poets) = courage: addere alicui animos, to inspire with courage; or = pride, haughtiness, arrogance: spiritus et aa. alicujus; β) = violent anger: vincere a.; γ) = inclination, desire, indulgere, obsequi animo, to gratify one's desire; animi causā (gratiā), for the sake of amusement, merely for fun — d) feeling, disposition toward a person: hoc animo in illum sum; bono animo, with a good design; ab optimo a. factum est, with the best intention: C) = mind, the thinking faculties (= mens): oogito cum or in animo, also only animo; advertere, appellere, attendere a., to direct one's mind to a thing; esp. of memory, consciousness, &c.: a. eum reliquit, he lost his consciousness, fainted away: D) (mostly Pl.) = opinion, judgment: meo quidem a., ut meus est a., according to my opinion. 3) (Poet. & lat.) = Anima 4, life, vital power.

ANIO, ēnis, m. [from the original, but unusual, nomin. Anien]. A river in Latium, passing by Tibur, and falling into the Tiber — now Teverone.

ANIUS, i, m. A king and priest in Delos.

ANNA (ae, f.) PERENNA. A Roman goddess, originally, according to the legend, a sister of Dido, who was said to have followed Aeneas to Italy.

ANNALIS, e, adj. [annus]. Pertaining or relating to years or age: lex a., the law which determined the year in which an office could be obtained. Annales, ium, m. pl., annals, chronicles, records of the events of a year in chronological order, esp. annales maximi, the annals which, down to the time of the Gracchi, the pontifex maximus had to compile for each year, and which he was required to hang up in his house for the information of the public (cf. album). Annalis, is, m. sing., is used only of a single book, ex. gr. the 'Annals' of Ennius.

AN-NĀTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) To swim to, insulae. 2) To swim by, lateri alicujus.

AN-NAVĪGO, 1. v. intr. To sail to or toward.

AN-NE, conj. = An 1.

AN-NECTO, exui, ectum, 3. v. tr. To tie or bind to, to annex, aliquid ad rem or rei alicui.

*ANNEXUS, ūa, m. [annecto]. (Lat.) A tying or binding to, connexion: a. gentium.

ANNIĀNUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Annianus.

ANNIĀNUS, i, m. A Roman poet, under the Emperor Hadrian.

ANNICĒRII, ōrum, m. pl. [= 'Annikēpeia']. A philosophical sect, a branch of the Cyrenaic school, so called after its founder Anniceris.

ANNICULUS, a, um, adj. [annus]. Only one year old, virgo.

ANNI-FER, ēra, ērum, adj. (Lat.) Bearing fruit the whole year.

AN-NITOR, nisus or nixus, 3. v. dep. intr. 1) To press upon or against, to lean or rest upon or against, rei or ad rem. 2) Trop., to take pains about a thing, to exert one's self: paululum a.; a. pro re aliqua, de triumpho; freq. followed by ut; also, ad aliquid obtinendum.

ANNIUS, ii, m. A Roman family name; thus, esp. T. A. Milo, the friend of Cicero, the opponent, and afterwards the murderer, of P. Clodius, for which crime he was banished to Massilia, where he perished.

ANNIVERSĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [annus-vertō]. Yearly, returning every year, sacra.

AN-NO, 1. v. tr. & intr. 1) To swim to, navem, terrae, ad litus; trop., of merchandise brought to a place by sea. 2) To swim by the side of, alicui.

ANNON = An non. Or not — v. An.

ANNŌNA, ae, f. [annus]. 1) The yearly produce of the earth, esp. corn, but also, in gen., other natural products: a. vini, salaria. 2) Corn and provisions, in gen., but almost always with reference to the price or profit: a. pretium non habet; vilitas annonae; subsidia annonae; *a. aliarum rerum (opp. to frumenti) = a supply. 3) The price of corn and of provisions, in gen.: a. nihil mutavit, the price is just the same; a. est gravis, the prices are high; levare (laxare) annonam, to lower the price; on the contrary (Pl.), flagellare a., to raise the price; trop., villis amicorum est a., friends may be obtained at a low price.

ANNŌSUS, a, um, adj. [annus]. (Poet. & lat.) Aged, old, anus, vinum.

ANNŌTATIO, ōnis, f. [annoto]. (Lat.) A written remark, annotation.

ANNŌTĀTIUNCŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of annotatio]. A brief written remark.

ANNŌTĀTOR, ōris, m. [annoto]. One who makes a remark, a remarker, observer.

ANNŌTĪNUS, a, um, adj. [annus]. (Rar.) Of last year, naves.

AN-NŌTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) (Lat.) To remark, to note down, to write down, aliquid. 2) To observe, to perceive, militem. 3) Litora annotantur piscibus, are distinguished, known by. 4) Tech. t., in judic. lang. (of a magistrate), to note or to designate one as condemned, and to order what shall be done with him: a. eos in urbem remittendos.

AN-NŪMĒRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To count to, alicui argentum; trop., a. litteras, to pronounce one by one. 2) To add to by counting or reckoning, to add to a former number: a. aliquem tertium illis duobus (dat.); (poet.) annumerari cum vivis, inter servos, in grege, to be counted with the multitude.

AN-NUO, ui, 3. v. tr. & intr. 1) Intr., to nod to, alicui. 2) To nod assent or approval, to assent, to agree, to consent, to approve: a. alicui petenti; ille imperat, ego a., I nod in order to indicate that I will obey; hence = to say 'yes,' to assent to; (poet.) annue coeptis, favour the undertaking; a. promissis, to fulfil. 3) Trans., to promise, alicui aliquid; a. se venturum esse; a. nutum numenque suum alicui (poet.), to promise protection to one. 4) To point out by nodding or winking: quos iste annuerat. 5) (Lat.) To affirm, falsa.

ANNUS, i, m. 1) A year; anno ineunte, at the beginning of the year, exeunte, extremo a., at the end of the year. Esp.: A) a. meus (tech. t.), the first year in which I am allowed (according to the 'lex annalis') to become a candidate for an office: B) anno — a) (mostly Pl.) = a year ago, last year — b) = during a whole year, for the space of a whole year — c) (lat.) = every year, bis anno, twice a year (classically, bis in anno): C) annum, for a year, for a whole year: D) ad annum, a year hence, for the coming year: E) in annum, for a year. 2) Trop.: A) exspectare a. = the produce of the year: B) (poet.) = age, time of life: a. integer rugis.

AN-NŪTO, 1. v. freq. intr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To nod often to.

ANNUUS, a, um, adj. [annus]. 1) Lasting a year, of a year, imperium; ut sinus aa., stay for one year (in the province). 2) Returning every year, yearly, commutationes, labor. Hence, subst., Annum, i, n., and, more freq., Annua, ōrum, n. pl., a yearly salary: accipere aa.

ANQUIRO, āvi, ātum, 3. v. tr. [an-quaero]. 1) To seek on all sides, to search after, aliquem. 2) To examine, to investigate (by looking around on all sides — cf. inquiri): mens semper aliquid a. aut agit. Esp. in legal affairs — a) (intr.) to institute a judicial inquiry, de perduellione, de morte alicujus — b) to accuse, to impeach, aliquem capite or capitia.

*ANQUISITE, adv. w. comp. [anquiro]. (Lat.) With careful examination.

ANSĀ, ae. f. 1) A haft, a handle, of a door, a jug, &c.; in gen., that part of a thing which we lay hold of, as the loop of a sandal for drawing the straps through. 2) An occasion, an opportunity: ansam dare reprehensionis or alicui ad reprehendum; a. controversionum.

ANSĀTUS, a, um, adj. [ansa]. Having a handle or handles; trop., homo a. = with his arms a-kimbo.

ANSER, ĕris, m. 1) A goose. 2) A poet, who was patronized by the triumvir Antony.

ANSIBĀRII, ōrum, m. pl. A Cheruscan tribe, on the western shore of the Weser.

ANTANDRIUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Antandros.

ANTANDROS, i, f. [= Ἀντάνδρος]. A town in Mysia.

ANTĀPŌDŌSIS, is, f. [= ἀνταπόδοσις]. In rhet., the application of a similitude to the object compared.

ANTARCTĪCUS, a, um, adj. [= ἀνταρκτικός]. Southern.

ANTE, I., prep. w. acc. 1) In space, before: a. pedes, aedes. Hence, trop., to denote preference, before: quem a. me diligo, better than myself; a. alios, more than others; esp., a. omnia: a) = before all things, principally; (3) (Quinct.) in enumerations = first. 2) Of time, before: a. luem; a. Socratem, before the time of Socrates; a. hoc factum, before this happened; a. aeditatem, before my aedileship; a. omnia, before any thing else is done; a. tempus, before the (due or legal) time; a. diem, before the time fixed (by fate); a. hunc diem nunquam (Com.), never as yet; a. diem quintum Kalendas Aprilis = on the 28th of March (cf. the grammar); also, ex (from) and in (on) a. diem — in which combinations 'ante-diem' was used as one word. In partic., 'a.' is used to state the distance in time: a. decem dies or a. decimum diem (also, decimum a. diem), ten days before, reckoned from a certain point of time; a. (hos) centum annos, 100 years ago, reckoned from the present moment; a. decem dies quam venit, ten days before his arrival.

II., adv. 1) Of space: A) before, in front: fluvius a. tergo, a. velut ripa: B) forwards: non ante, sed retro ingredi. 2) Of time, before, previously, ago: multis annis a.; multo a., long ago; decem diebus a. (also, decem a. diebus; rar., a. decem diebus) or decimo die a. (also, decimo a. die), 10 days before a certain point of time; sometimes = his decem diebus, 10 days ago, counted from the present moment = abhinc; anno a. quam mortuus est, one year before his death.

ANTEA, adv. [ante]. 1) Before, formerly, aforesaid, counted from another time or event stated or alluded to — cf. antehac: hac victoria elatus, quum a. semper audax fuisset, etc. 2) = Antehac: hunc videbant a., nunc praesentem vident, etc. 3) Antea quam, rar. = antequam.

ANTĒ-AMBŪLO, ōnis, m. [ambulo]. (Lat.) A forerunner, a servant who walked before his master in order to make room for him.

ANTĒ-CANIS, is, m. The Lesser Dog, a constellation.

ANTĒ-CĀPIO, cēpi, captum, 3. v. tr. 1) To take or obtain beforehand: informatio rei animo antecapta, a preconceived (innate) idea. 2) To take possession of beforehand, to preoccupy, pontem, ea quae bello usui sunt. 3) To anticipate a time, not to wait for: ante-noctem, sitim, famem, to anticipate by eating or drinking too early; antecapere omnia luxu; a. tempus legatorum, to take one's measures before the arrival of the ambassadors.

ANTĒ-CEDO, essi, essum, 3. v. tr. & intr. 1) Of space and time, to go before, to precede: a. legiones, Brutus me biduo antecessit, got a start of two days; haec res illi rei a. 2) Trop., to get the precedence of any one in a thing, to surpass, aliqui or aliquem; a. aliquem scientiā rei alicujus, in militia. Also, abs. = to excel, honore et aetate.

ANTĒ-CELLO, lui, —, 3. v. tr. & (rar.) intr. Prop., to project beyond or above something; hence, to distinguish one's self above any one, to surpass, alicui and (mostly lat.) aliquem re aliqua; also, abs., a. humanitate, to excel.

ANTĒCESSIO, ōnis, f. [antecedo]. 1) A going before. 2) An antecedent (and efficient) cause.

ANTĒCESSOR, ōris, m. [antecedo]. (Lat.) He who goes before, but only in the plur., an advance-guard = antecursores.

ANTĒCESSUS, ūs, m. (Lat.) Only in the comb. 'in antecessum,' as an adv., in advance, beforehand, solvere, dare.

ANTĒ-CURSOR, ōris, m. A forerunner, only as a military tech. t., in plur. = a detachment sent forward to select a place for an encampment, &c., an advance-guard.

ANTE-EO, Ivi or ii, —, 4. v. intr. & tr. 1) To go before, to precede: lictores aa.; a. aliquem. 2) Trop.: A) to surpass, to excel, to be superior to: virtus a. omnibus rebus, Sulpicius iis aetate a., is older than they; a. aliquem sapientiā, antei ab aliquo; also, abs., to distinguish one's self, operibus: B) (lat.) — a) to anticipate, damnationem — b) to resist, auctoritati parentis.

ANTĒ-FERO, tūli, lātum, ferre, v. tr. 1) (Lat.) To carry before, imagines (at a funeral): a. gressum (poet.), to go before. 2) Trop.: A) to prefer, aliquem alicui: B) a. a liquid c. nallio, to consider beforehand.

ANTE-FIXUS, a, um, adj. [part. of the unusual anteſigo]. Fastened before to any thing, nailed to. Antefixa, ōrum, m. pl., little ornaments, images, statues and the like affixed to the roofs of houses and temples.

ANTEGRĒDIOR, gressus, 3. v. dep. tr. & intr. [ante-gradior]. To go before, to precede: stella a. solem; caussae antegressae, antecedent.

ANTE-HABEO, 2. v. tr. (Lat.) To prefer, aliquem alicui.

ANTE-HĀC, adv. 1) Before this time, formerly, counted from the present time — cf. antea): quum a. tum hodie. 2) (Rar.) = antea; et saepe a. fidem prodiderat.

ANTEIDEA (Pl.), oba., instead of antea, q. v.

ANTELOGIUM, ii, n. [ante-λόγιον]. (Pl.) A prologue.

ANTE-LUCĀNUS, a, um, adj. [lux]. Before daybreak, tempus, industria; coena a., lasting the whole night till daybreak.

ANTE-MĒRIDĪANUS, a, um, adj. In or of the forenoon, ambulatio; a. litterae, that arrived before noon.

ANTE-MITTO, mīsi, missum, 3. v. tr. (Rar.) To send before, milites.

ANTEMNAE, ārum, f. pl. An ancient Sabine town.

ANTEMNĀTES, um, m. pl. The inhabitants of Antemnae.

ANTE-MOENIO, —, —, 4. v. tr. [munio]. (Pl.) To furnish with a protecting wall.

ANTENNA, ae, f. A sail-yard.

ANTENOR, ōris, m. [= 'Ἀντήρ]. A noble Trojan, who, after the fall of Troy, went to Italy with a band of his countrymen, and founded Patavium.

ANTENORĪDES, ae, m. A descendant of Antenor.

ANTE-PES, ēdis, m. (Poet. — only in the pl.)

*1) The forefoot. 2) A forerunner = antea-mulo.

ANTE-PILĀNI, ōrum, m. pl. The soldiers who fought before the pilani, i. e., the triarii = the hastati and the principes.

ANTE-PONO, sui, situm, 3. v. tr. 1) To set or to place before: a. locus equitum sedilibus plebis, to fix the places of the equites before the seats of the plebs; esp., a. alicui prandium, to set something to eat before one. 2) To prefer: a. aliquem alicui; a. amicitiā omnibus rebus, to esteem higher.

ANTE-PŪTENS, tis, adj. (Pl.) Superior in power, fortune, &c., voluptatibus, gaudiisque.

ANTE-QUAM, adv. (often separated in such a way that 'ante' stands in the first member of the sentence). Before, sooner than; sometimes (poet.) 'prius' is added pleonastically to the member in which 'ante' stands; sometimes 'quam' stands first: laurum, quam venit, ante vides. (For other particulars, see the grammar.)

ANTĒRŌS, ōtis, m. [= 'Ἀντήρ]. The avenging god of slighted love.

ANTES, ium, m. pl. Rows, e. g., of vines.

ANTĒ-SIGNĀNI, ōrum, m. pl. [signum] Prob., a band of choice soldiers, who stood before the standards, and had to defend them in battle. Hence, trop., in sing., Antesignanus, i, m., a leader, a commander.

ANTE-STO, stēti, —, 1. v. intr. & tr. Prop., to stand before; hence, trop., to surpass, alicui or (rar.) aliquem aliqua re; abs. = to distinguish one's self, re aliqua.

AN-TESTOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. [prob. = ante-testor]. To summon as a witness (esp. if the defendant refused to follow the plaintiff into court), aliquem.

ANTĒ-VĒNIO, ēni, entum, 4. v. tr. & intr. 1) To come before, to get the start of, exercitum. aliquem, also (Pl.), tempori huic. 2) Trop. — a) homines novi antea per virtutem nobilitatem antevenire soliti, were formerly wont to get the start of the noble by means of their merit, i. e., to be preferred to them, in suing for places of honour: ubi beneficia multum antevenere, if benefits surpass by far that limit — b) to anticipate = to meet, to frustrate, consilia hostium.

ANTĒ-VERTO, ti, sum, 3. v. intr.

ANTĒ-VERTOR, sus, 3. dep. (Pl.) } and tr. 1) Abs., to go before. 2) Trop.: A) to do one thing before another, to do first: a. aliquid omnibus rebus (consiliis), before all other things: B) = to anticipate, damnationem.

ANTHĒDON, ōnis, f. [= 'Ἀνθηδών']. A town, with a harbour, in Boeotia.

ANTHIAS, ae, m. [= Ἀνθίας]. A kind of sea-fish.

ANTHRŌPŌPHĀGI, ōrum, m. pl. [= Ἀνθρωποφάγοι]. Man-eaters.

ANTHŪPŌPHŌRA, ae, f. [= Ἀνθυποφώρα]. A rhetorical figure, in which one himself alleges the arguments which his adversary might adduce, and refutes them.

ANTIAS, ātis, adj. Pertaining to Antium. Subst., Antias, ātis, m., an inhabitant of Antium; usually, in the plur., Antiates, um, Antias, ātis, n., Cicero's villa, near Antium.

ANTIĀTINUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Antium.

ANTICĀTO, ōnis, m. [Ἀντι-Κάτο]. A polemic treatise written by Caesar against Cicero's book 'Cato.'

ANTICHTHŌNES, um, m. pl. [= Ἀντιχθόνες]. Antipodes.

ANTICIPĀTIO, ōnis, f. [anticipo]. A preconception of a thing, formed antecedently to any information or instruction respecting it (of anticipo): a. deorum, concerning the gods.

ANTĪ-CĪPO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [capio]. 1) To take before, to anticipate: id est anticipatum mentibus nostris (= anticipatio, an innate idea);

a. molestiam rei alicujus, to be distressed before there is any cause; a. mortem, to kill one's self before something (else) happens; anticipata via est (of dogs), they got the start of the rest. 2) (Ante-cl. & lat.) To come before or earlier.

ANTICLEA, ae, f. [= 'Ἀντίκλεια]. The wife of Laërtes, and mother of Ulysses (mistaken by Cic. for Euryclaea, the nurse of Ulysses).

ANTICUS, a, um, adj. [ante]. That which is in front, foremost, pars (when used of time, it is written 'antiquus').

ANTICYRA, ae, f. [= 'Ἀντίκυρα or Ἀντικύρα]. The name of two towns, the one in Phocis, opposite Cirrha, whence the name; and the other in Thessaly. The environs of each abounded in hellebore (helleborus), which was used as a remedy for insanity.

ANTIDEA, ANTIDEO, ANTIDHAC, ante-cl., instead of Antea, Anteso, Antehac, q. v.

ANTIDÖTUM, i, n. [= ἄντιδότης]. (Lat.) 1) A counter-poison. 2) In gen., an antidote, a counter-remedy.

ANTIGÖNA, ae, f. } [= 'Ἀντιγόνη']. 1) A daughter of Oedipus and Jocaste, celebrated in antiquity for her sisterly love of Polynices; being condemned, by Creon, to death, for burying her brother's corpse, she killed herself. 2) A daughter of King Laomedon of Troy, transformed, by Juno, into a stork. 3) A daughter of Eurymon, and wife of Peleus.

ANTIGÖNEA, a, f. [= 'Ἀντιγόνηα']. 1) A town in Epirus. 2) A town in Macedonia.

ANTIGÖNENSIS, e, adj. Pertaining to Antigonea.

ANTIGÖNUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀντιγόνης']. The name of several Syrian and Macedonian kings: the first of the name was the renowned general of Alexander, who lost his life in the battle at Ipsus — 301 B. C.

ANTILIBANUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀντιλίβανος']. A mountain in Syria, opposite Mount Libanus.

ANTIÖCHUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀντίοχος']. A son of Nestor, who was slain before Troy.

ANTIMÄCHUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀντιμάχης']. A Greek epic poet, a contemporary of Plato, author of a poem entitled 'Thebais.'

ANTIMETÄBÖLE, es, f. [= ἀντιμεταβολή]. (Lat.) (A rhetorical figure.) A reciprocal interchange (pure Latin, 'commutatio').

ANTINÖMIA, ae, f. [= ἄντινομία]. A contradiction between laws.

ANTINÖUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀντίνοος']. 1) A suitor of Penelope. 2) A beautiful youth, whom Hadrian greatly loved, and to whom, after his premature death in the waves of the Nile, divine honours were rendered by order of the emperor.

ANTIÖCHENSIS, e, adj. 1) Of or pertaining to King Antiochus (the Great). 2) Pertaining to Antiochia; subst., Antiochenses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Antiochia.

ANTIÖCHENUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Antiochus (the Great).

ANTIÖCHĒUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to the philosopher Antiochus.

ANTIÖCHIA, ae, f. [= 'Ἀντιόχεια']. The capital of Syria, on the Orontes, and residence of the Syrian kings — now Antakia. 2) A town in Caria. 3) The name of the district in which Antiochia, on the Orontes, is situated.

ANTIÖCHINUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Antiochus: 1) to King Antiochus the Great, bellum; 2) to the philosopher Antiochus, partes.

ANTIÖCHUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀντίοχος']. 1) The name of several Syrian kings: thus, esp., Antiochus III., the Great, and Antiochus IV., Epiphanes. 2) The name of several kings of Commagene. 3) Antiochus of Ascalon, a scholar of Philo, an academic philosopher, and teacher of Cicero, at Athens.

ANTIÖPA, ae, f. [= 'Ἀντιόπη']. 1) A daughter of Nycteus, and mother of Amphion and Zethus. A tragedy of this name was written by Pacuvius. 2) The wife of Pieros, and mother of the Muses. 3) An Amazon, daughter of Mars, and wife of Theseus.

ANTIÖPÄTER, tri, m. [= 'Ἀντιόπαρος']. 1) A general in the service of Philip and of Alexander of Macedonia, father of Cassander, and finally king of Macedonia. 2) His grandson, son of Cassander. 3) The name of several Greek philosophers: A) Antipater of Cyrene, a scholar of Aristippus: B) Antipater of Tarsus, a stoic, teacher of Panætius: C) Antipater of Tyre, a stoic, and a friend of the younger Cato.

ANTIÖPHÄTES, ae, m. [= 'Ἀντιόφᾱτης']. 1) A king of the Laestrigones, who killed and devoured several of the companions of Ulysses. 2) A son of Sarpedon, and companion of Aeneas.

ANTIÖPHO, önis, m. } [= 'Ἀντιόφᾱρ']. A re-ANTIÖPHON, ontis, m. } named sophist of Rhamnus, and a contemporary of Socrates.

ANTIÖPODES, um, m. pl. [= ἄντιόδοες]. Antipodes; ironically, of men who turn night into day and day into night.

ANTIÖQÄRIA, ae, f. [antiquus]. A (female) antiquarian.

ANTIÖQÄRIUS, ii, m. [antiquus]. One who loves ancient words, phrases, books, &c., an antiquarian.

ANTIÖQUE, adv. w. comp. [antiquus]. (Poet. & lat.) In an antique manner, after the fashion of the ancients, dicere.

ANTIÖQUITAS, ätis, f. [antiquus]. 1) Ancient time, antiquity: ab ultima a. repetere; a. obscura. Hence, meton.: A) = the men of ancient times: a. errabat in multis: B) = the events, the history of antiquity: tenenda est omnis a.; peritissimus antiquitatis; plur., 'Antiquitates rerum divinarum et humanarum' was the title of an antiquarian work of the elder Cato. 2) Trop. = primitive good manners, integrity, honesty: vir gravissimae antiquitatis.

ANTIQUITUS, adv. [antiquus]. 1) From ancient times: pertinacia jam inde a. inaitus ('inde' is often thus added). 2) In ancient times, of old, in old times: tectum a. constitutum.

ANTIQUO, avi, atum, 1. v. tr. [antiquus]. Prop., to declare any thing to be old, i. e., obsolete, invalid, &c.; hence, to reject, to annul, legem, rogationem.

ANTIQUUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [ante — cf. anticus]. 1) Ancient = belonging to antiquity and no longer to the present age (opp. to novus — cf. vetus), former: a. concordia, patria; aa. scriptores, in as much as they lived long ago; a. homo, a man of ancient times; subst., Antiqui, orum, m. pl., the ancients; antiquum obtinere, to retain the old fashion of living. Hence, A) old-fashioned, with the accessory idea of innocence, integrity, simplicity: a. virtus, officium; homines aa., people of the old honest stamp: B) = senex, aged. 2) = Vetus, old, that which has been in existence a long time, illex, hospes. 3) In the comp. and sup., trop. = more (most) important, urgent, holy, venerable, always with the verb 'habere' or 'esse' and a dat.: laus ei antiquior fuit quam regnum: esp. in the phrases 'longe antiquissimum reor,' 'nihil mihi antiquius est' or 'nihil antiquius habeo,' I deem nothing more holy, more important.

ANTISOPHISTA, ae, m. [= ἀντισοφιστής]. A counter-sophist, the antagonist of sophists.

ANTISSA, ae, f. [= Ἀντίσσα]. A town, with a harbour, on the island of Lesbos, now Petra.

ANTISSABI, orum, m. pl. The inhabitants of Antissa.

ANTISTES, Itis, m. & f. [antesto]. Prop., a president; always = a superintendent, or an overseer of a temple and of the service in it; hence = a high-priest, Jovis, sacri; trop., a. artis = a master.

ANTISTHÈNES, is, m. [= Ἀντισθένης]. A pupil of Socrates, and founder of the Cynic school of philosophy.

ANTISTITA, ae, f. [antesto] (= antistes, f.). A chief-priestess.

ANTISTITIUS, i, m. The name of a plebeian family. An Antistia was married for a short time to Pompey.

ANTITHETON, i, n. [= ἀντιθέτον]. A rhet. figure, an antithesis.

ANTIUM, ii, n. [= Ἀντίον]. A town in Latium, with a temple of Fortune, now Torre d'Anzo.

ANTIUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Antius, lex.

ANTLIA, ae, f. [= ἀντλία]. (Lat.) A water-pump, which was worked by the feet.

ANTONIĀNUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Antony; subst., Antoniāni, orum, m. pl., the adherents of M. Antony.

ANTONIĀNAE, arum, f. pl. Cicero's speeches against M. Antony.

ANTONINIĀNUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Antonine.

ANTONINUS, i, m. Antonine; the name of several Roman emperors.

ANTONIUS, ii, m. The name of a Roman gens. Thus, esp.: 1) Marcus Antonius, with the surname 'Orator,' a renowned orator, who was killed in the civil wars between Marius and Sulla. 2) M. A. Creticus, a son of the preceding, was killed, as commander against the pirates, in the attack on Crete — 74 B. C. 3) C. A. Hibrida, the colleague of Cicero in the consulship, secretly a favourer of the plans of Catiline. 4) M. A., son of A. 2, the renowned triumvir, Cicero's mortal enemy, who was defeated by Octavius, at Actium (31 B. C.), and then killed himself, in Egypt. 5) Antonia, ae, f., the name of the women of this family; thus, esp., the two daughters of the Triumvir Antony and Octavia: A) Ant. major, the wife of L. Domitius Ahenobarbus, and grandmother of the Emperor Nero: B) Ant. minor, the wife of Drusus, and by him mother of Germanicus and the Emperor Claudius.

ANTONOMĀSIA, ae, f. [= ἀντωνομασία]. (Lat.) A rhetorical figure, by which, instead of a proper name, an epithet is employed, ex. gr., instead of Juno — Saturnia.

ANTRON, ōnis, f. [= Ἀντρον]. A town in Thessaly.

ANTRUM, i, n. [= ἄντρον]. (Mostly poet.) A cave, cavern.

ĀNŪBIS, Idis, m. An Egyptian god, worshipped in the form of a dog.

ĀNŪLĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [anulus]. 1) Adj., pertaining to a ring. 2) Subst., Anularius, ii, m., a ring-maker.

ĀNŪLĀTUS, a, um, adj. [anulus]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Furnished with a ring.

ĀNŪLUS, i, m. [anulus]. 1) A ring = a finger-ring: jus anulorum = knighthood (because in the time of the Roman republic only knights were allowed to wear gold rings); hence, a. invenire = to become a knight. 2) (Lat.) In gen., any thing ring-shaped, e. g., a link of a chain.

ĀNUS, i, m. *1) (Pl., doubtf.) A ring = shackles for the feet. 2) The fundament.

ĀNUS, ūs, f. An old woman (married or unmarried), often implying contempt, scorn. Freq. as an adj. = old, aged: aa. matronae; also, of animals (a. cerva) and lifeless things of the feminine gender (abarta a.).

ANXIE, adv. [anxius]. Anxiously, a. ferresiliq. ANXIETAS, ātis, f. [anxius]. Anxiety; sometimes — a) = angor, anguish, fear — b) = anxious care, carefulness, accuracy.

ANXIFER, ēra, ērum, adj. [anxius-fero]. (Poet.) Causing anxiety: aa. curae.

ANXITUDO, inis, f. (Rar.) = Anxietas.

ANXIOUS, a, um, adj. [ango]. 1) Anxious, uneasy, solicitous: a. animi (mentis), in mind; anxius omniae adverso, because of an unfavourable omen, furti, apprehensive of theft, de fama, concerning one's fame, pro aliquo, on account of one. 2) Causing anxiety, distressing, cura.

ANXUR, ūris, n. An ancient town of the Volsci, afterwards called Terracina.

ANXURAS, ātis, adj. Of or pertaining to Anxur.

ANXURUS, a, um, adj. m. Of or pertaining to Anxur, a surname of Jupiter, because he had a temple at Anxur.

ANŪTUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀνυτός]. One of the accusers of Socrates.

ĀONES, um, m. pl. [= 'Ἄονες]. The name of the primitive inhabitants of Boeotia.

ĀONIA, ae, f. [= 'Ἄονια]. A mythical name of Boeotia.

ĀONIDES, um, f. pl. (Poet.) = The Muses, as dwelling on the Boeotian mountain Illicon.

ĀONIUS, a, um, adj. [= 'Ἀόνιος]. (Poet.) Āonian = Boeotian: A. vir = Hercules; A. deus = Bacchus; Aa. aquae = Aganippe; Aa. sorores = the Muses.

AORNOS, i, m. & f. [= ἀορνος, 'without birds']. 1) M., the Lake Avernus, in Campania. 2) F. — a) a very high rock in India — b) a town in Epirus.

ĀOUS, i, m. [= 'Ἄδός]. A river in Illyria, now Vauša.

ĀPAGE [= ἀπαγε = abige]. Away! with an accus. of another person: a. istas sorores, away with those sisters! Sometimes also with the pron. 'te': away with thee! begone! a. te a me; but also, in the same signification, abs.: a. hinc, a. a me.

ĀPĀMEA, ae, f. [= 'Ἀπάμεια]. The name of several towns, esp., 1) in Syria; 2) in Phrygia Major; 3) in Bithynia.

ĀPĀMEI, ōrum, m. pl. (Lat.) The inhabitants of Apamea (in Bithynia).

ĀPĀMENSIS, e, adj. Of or pertaining to Apamea (in Phrygia).

ĀPĀTHĪA, ae, f. [= ἀπάθεια]. (Lat.) Apathy, insensibility to pain and passion, the stoic principle of morals.

ĀPELLA, ae, m. The name of several Roman freedmen, esp., of a very credulous Jew, who lived in the time of Horace; hence, credat Judaeus Appella.

ĀPELLES, is, m. [= 'Ἀπελλης]. A celebrated Greek painter, and contemporary of Alexander the Great.

ĀPELLEUS, a, um, adj. [= 'Ἀπελλεύς]. Of or belonging to Apelles.

ĀPENNINICOLA, ae, m. [Ap.-colo]. (Poet.) An inhabitant of the Apennines.

ĀPENNINIGĒNA, ae, m. [Ap.-gigno]. (Poet.) Coming from the Apennines, Thybris.

ĀPENNĪNUS, i, m. The Apennines, a chain of mountains in Italy.

ĀPER, pri, m. [= ἀπέρ]. A boar; uno saltu duos aa. capere = to kill two birds with one stone.

ĀPERANTIA, ae, f. [= 'Ἀπεραντία]. A small province in Ætolia.

ĀPERANTH, ōrum, m. pl. The inhabitants of Aperantia.

ĀPERIO, ōrui, ertum, 4. v. tr. 1) To take the cover off of any thing, to uncover, to lay bare: a. patinam, caput, quasdam partes corporis: A) = to make visible, to show: unda dehiscens a. terram; terra procul a. montes: B) to reveal, to betray, to bring to light, to make known: a. sententiam suam, conjurationem; a. quis ille sit, hostes appropinquare, to announce; a. notitiam rei, to make plain, intelligible; in partic., a. se or aperiri, to reveal himself in his true character. 2) To open any thing that is closed or shut, to open, januam, oculos, epistolam, testamentum, fontes philosophiae. Hence: A) a. iter, viam, to open, to break a path: B) trop. — a) (poet.) a. annum = to begin; a. ludum, to open, to set up a school — b) to make accessible, to open the way to a place, Syriam, novas gentes; hence, a. pecuniam = to place at one's disposal, to offer to procure.

ĀPERTE, adv. w. comp. & sup. 1) *Openly (not secretly), in an open field, vincere. 2) = Plainly (not obscurely), clearly, distinctly, loqui. *ĀPERTO, 1. v. tr. [āpertus]. (Pl.) *To lay entirely bare, brachium.

ĀPERTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of aperio]. 1) Uncovered: navis a., without a deck; (poet.) coelum a., clear, cloudless. 2) Unclosed, open, free: locus a. et propatulus; a. aditus, campus; regio aperta alicui, accessible to any one; latus a. (in military language), uncovered, unprotected. Freq., subst. Apertum, i, n., a clear, open space (opp. to a place not distinctly visible on account of a thicket or a hill): castra ponere in a., fugere per a. 3) Trop.: A) open = evident, manifest, notorious, similitates, latrocinium: esse in aperto, to be evident, apparent: quis apertior in iudicium adductus, more evidently guilty: B) intelligible, narratio; scriptor a., clear, easy to understand: C) of character, open = open-hearted, frank, undisguised: animus a. et simplex; also, ironically, of one who shamelessly exposes his vices to observation.

ĀPEX, icis, m. The extreme slender point of any thing; in partic., the rod at the top of the cap of a priest (or Flamen); hence, meton.: 1) the cap of a Flamen, esp. the Flamen Dialis. 2) In gen., every high cap or hat, esp. the diadem of Asiatic princes; trop., a. senectutis est auctoritas, the highest ornament, the crown. 3) (Poet. & lat.) = the point, the summit, the pointed end: a. arboris, montis; a. flammae, the extreme end, the tongue. 4) — a) the sign (-) of a long vowel — b) the form of a letter, viz litterarum aa. comprehendere.

APHAREUS, ei, m. [= 'Αφαρής]. A king of the Messenians, the father of Idas and Lynceus.

3) A centaur.

APHRACTUS, i, f. [= ἀφρακτός, sc. ναός]. A vessel without a deck (navis aperta).

APHRŌDISIA, ōrum, n. pl. [= τὰ Ἀφροδίσια]. A festival in honour of Aphrodite or Venus.

APHRŌDISIAS, ādis, f. [= Ἀφροδισιάς]. The name of several places called after Aphrodite or Venus.

APHRŌDISIENSES, ium, m. pl. The inhabitants of Aphrodisias.

APIANUS, a, um, adj. [apis]. Belonging to bees, of bees.

APIARIUM, ii, n. [apis]. A bee-house, a bee-hive.

APIARIUS, ii, m. [apis]. A bee-keeper.

APICATUS, a, um, adj. [apex]. (Poet.) Adorned with a priest's cap.

APICIUS, ii, m. (M. Gabius A.) A famous gourmand and spendthrift, of the times of Augustus and Tiberius.

APICULA, ae, f. [dim. of apis]. A little bee.

APIDANUS, i, m. [= Ἀνιδανός]. A river in Thessaly.

APIS, is, m. [= Ἄπης]. The sacred ox, worshipped by the Egyptians.

APIS, is, f. The bee.

APISCOR, aptus, 8. v. dep. tr. (Mostly anted. & lat.) 1) To arrive at, to reach a place, mare. 2) To get, to gain, to acquire, to attain to (with effort and trouble), laudem, finem bonorum; also (Tac.), a. dominationis.

APIUM, ii, n. Parsley (a species of plants to which our celery, &c., belong), esp. loved by the bees, and, on account of its strong fragrance, often used for garlands.

APLŪDA, ae, f. (Lat.) 1) Chaff. 2) Bran.

APLUSTRE, is, n. [ἀπλαστρόν]. (Poet.) The curved stern of a ship, with its ornaments (streamers, ribbons, &c.).

APŌCLETI, ōrum, m. pl. [= ἀποκλήτοι]. The called, a permanent committee of the Ætolian Council.

APŌDICTICUS, a, um, adj. [= ἀποδεικτικός]. Demonstrative, apodictic.

APŌDIXIS, is, f. [= ἀποδείξις]. A demonstration.

APŌDYTERIUM, ii, n. [= ἀποδυτήριον]. The undressing-room in a bathing-house.

APŌLACTIZO, 1. v. tr. [= ἀπολακτίζω]. (Pl.) To thrust away from one's self with the foot, to spurn.

APOLLINAR, āris, n. A temple dedicated to Apollo.

APOLLINARIS, e, adj. Belonging or sacred to Apollo, laurea, sacrum.

APOLLINEUS, a, um, adj. (Poet.) Of or belonging to Apollo: vates A. = Orpheus; proles

A. = Æsculapius; mater A. = Latona; urbs A. = Delos.

APOLLO, Inis, m. [= Ἀπόλλων]. Apollo, son of Jupiter and Latona, and brother of Diana, the god of archery; also, of prophecy, poetry, music and medicine; in later writers only, described as god of the sun, and confounded by barbarian nations with similar deities (as, for example, in Curtius, with the Phœnician Baal). Hence, 1) urbs magna Apollinis, a town in Upper Egypt; 2) promontorium Apollinis, a promontory on the north-coast of Africa.

APOLLŌDŌRUS, i, m. [= Ἀπολλόδορος]. 1) A rhetorician of Pergamus, and teacher of Augustus in rhetoric. 2) A grammarian of Athens (about 140 B. C.), and author of a collection of mythical legends, still extant under the name Βιβλιοθήκη.

APOLLŌNIA, ae, f. [= Ἀπολλωνία]. 1) A small town of Locri Ozoletae. 2) A town in Illyria. 3) A town in Thrace. 4) A town in Macedonia.

APOLLŌNIATES, ae, m. A native of Apollonia; in pl. (also, Apolloniates, ium), the inhabitants of Apollonia.

APOLLŌNIENSIS, e, adj. Pertaining to Apollonia; subst., Apollonienses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Apollonia.

APOLLŌNIS, idis, f. [= Ἀπολλωνίς]. A town in Lydia. Apollōnidenses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Apollonia.

APOLLŌNIUS, ii, m. [= Ἀπολλώνιος]. A famous rhetorician of Rhodes, who lived about 210 B. C.

*APŌLŌGO, āvi, —, 1. v. tr. [= ἀπολέγω]. (Lat.) To reject.

APŌLŌGUS, i, m. [= ἀπολόγος]. A narrative; in partic., the Æsopie fable.

APŌNUS, i, m. [= ἀπονός, 'pain-relieving']. In gen., Aponi fons, a sulphur spring, in the neighbourhood of Padua.

APŌPHŌRĒTA, ōrum, n. pl. [= ἀποφώρητα]. (Lat.) Presents, which guests at the Saturnalia received, and carried home.

APŌPROEGMĒNA, ōrum, n. pl. [= ἀποπροηγμένα]. That which is to be cast aside or rejected (only in the philosophical language of the Stoics).

APŌSIŌPESIS, is, f. [= ἀποσιώπησις]. (Pure Latin, 'reticentia.') A rhetorical figure, suppression = a sudden breaking off in the midst of a discourse.

APŌSPHRĀGISMA, ātis, n. [= ἀποσφράγισμα]. (Lat.) The image or figure cut upon a signet-ring.

APŌTHECA, ae, f. [= ἀποθήκη]. A store-room, esp. for wine.

APPĀRĀTE, adv. w. comp. [apparatus]. With great preparation, magnificently.

APPĀRĀTIO, ōnis, f. [apparo]. 1) A preparation, esp. a magnificent and extensive preparation, munerum popularium. 2) A. et artificiosa diligentia = the preparation made by a speaker.

APPARATUS, us, m. [apparo]. 1) A preparing, a preparation, abstr., a making ready for something: a. belli, sacrorum; non cessare ab a. operum. 2) The preparation, in concr., provision, equipment, furniture, apparatus (instruments, machines, &c.): a. oppugnandarum urbium, military engines; in reliquo ejus a. etiam scrinium = household furniture; a. auxiliorum, of a body of auxiliary troops; a. vani timoris, the preparations for the excitation of a needless fear. 3) In partic., magnificent preparation = magnificence, splendour, pomp: a. regius, magnificus; a. ludorum venationumque.

APPARATUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of apparo]. 1) Of persons, ready, prepared. 2) Of things, well-provided, well-furnished, domus. 3) Magnificent, brilliant, ludi. 4) Of discourse, laboured, artificial, studied.

AP-PAREO, ui, itum, 2. v. tr. 1) To come to view, to appear, to show one's self; hence, in gen., to be visible (not so strong as 'emineo'): ille nusquam a.; a. alicui, to show one's self to a person, to be seen by any one. 2) Trop., to be evident, to become known, apparent, certain, &c.: res illa a. etiam caeco; causa a. plebi; in partic., freq. impers., apparet, it is evident, clear, quid tu feceris, eum victum iri. Hence: labores nostri non aa. = are not known, not recognized; ratio a., is correct; promissa aa., are fulfilled. 3) Tech. t., to attend a magistrate as a public servant or assistant, to serve, alicui; hence the legal formula, sacerdotes apparento diis, shall, by the observance of what is due (i. e., by means of expiations, serve the gods = shall bring to the gods propitiatory offerings.

AP-PARIO, —, —, 3. v. tr. (Lucr.) To gain, to acquire, aliquid.

APPARITOR, oris, m. [appareo]. The public servant of a magistrate (a scribe, herald, interpreter, lictor, &c.), an inferior officer.

AP-PARO, avi, atum, 1. v. tr. To provide, to prepare, to arrange, to make ready, coenam, nuptias, ludos; a. bellum, to prepare for war; a. iter, to break a path, aggerem, to build, arma, to provide; a. crimina in aliquem, to seek to bring some (matter of) accusation against any one, auxilium alicui, to procure. Rar. (lat.): a. facere aliquid, to get ready to do something; abs., a. = to get ready, to set one's self about; (Pl.) a. ut faciam or me facere aliquid.

APPELLATIO, onis, f. 1) An addressing, speaking to. 2) Tech t., an appeal, the calling upon an equal or higher authority, esp. the tribunes of the people, by any one who thought himself wronged: a. tribunorum, to the tribunes. 3) A name, a title, an appellation: a. inanis; aa. regum venales erant, the title of king. 4) T. t. — a) pronunciation — b) = a substantive.

APPELLATOR, oris, m. [appello]. An appellant, one who appeals — v. Provocatio 2.

APPELLITO, 1. v. tr. [appello]. (Lat.) To name often, repeatedly, rem.

APPELLO, avi, atum, 1. v. tr. 1) To address, to speak to: a. aliquem asperere, benigne; appellatus est ab iis, they addressed themselves to him. Hence: A) to address a petition or request to any one = to beseech, to implore, to entreat, deos, senatum; a. aliquem ut, etc.: B) to invite one to something (bad), to make a proposal to any one: a. aliquem de scelere, respecting a crime, also with 'ut' following: C) in the language of law, to call upon some magistrate for assistance, to appeal to him, tribunos, collegium; a. tribunos a praetore, to appeal from the praetor to the tribunes: D) to speak to one about the payment of money, to dun, aliquem de pecunia or (lat.) pecuniâ; hence (lat.), a. mercedem, to demand: E) to accuse, to bring a legal accusation against, aliquem de proditiione. 2) To name, to call, to designate a person or thing by some name: a. aliquem falso nomine, aliquem patrem. Hence: A) to mention, to cite by name, illos hoc loco, auctores: B) to indicate: a. aliquem nutu et significatione. *3) To pronounce, literas.

AP-PELLO, pûli, pulsum, 3. v. tr. To drive, move, bring, carry to or towards: a. boves ad litora, turres ad opera Caesaris; (poet.) me appulit oris vestris; a. aliquem ad arbitrum, to bring one before an arbitrator (= to compel him to appear). Hence: A) in partic., a. navem (rar. & lat., nave), and abs. appello or appellor, also (lat.) navis appellit and appellitur, to bring to land, to land, ad ripam; pater a. ad idem litus: B) (Com.) trop. — a) a. animum ad scribendum, ad uxorem, to direct one's thoughts to something, to begin to think of — b) to bring one into any condition, aliquem ad mortem, ad damnum, to occasion death or loss to any one.

APPENDICULA, ae, f. [dim. of appendix]. A small appendage.

APPENDIX, icis, f. [appendo]. 1) (Lat.) That which hangs upon another thing, an appendage. 2) An appendage = an addition, a supplement: corpus est a. animi; Carpetani cum aa. Olcadum, with the auxiliaries from the Olc. added.

AP-PENDO, ndi, nsum, 3. v. tr. To weigh to, alicui aliquid; trop., a. verba non numerare = to regard the import and force of words more than their number.

APPETENS, tis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of appeto]. Striving eagerly for, greatly desirous of something, rei alicujus; in partic. = avaricious.

APPETENTER, adv. [appetens]. Eagerly, covetously, APPETENTIA, ae, f. [appeto]. (Rar.) A striving for something, longing, desire, rei alicujus.

APPETITIO, onis, f. [appetere]. *1) A grasping at any thing: triplex a. 2) An earnest longing or striving after, desire, alieni, principatus; in gen. = the faculty of desire. 3) (Lat.) In partic. = the desire of food, appetite.

APPETITUS, us, m. [appeto]. 1) = Appetitio 2. 2) In gen., passion, appetite: efficiendum est ut aa. rationi obediant.

AP-PETO, (ad-p.), ivi or ii, Itum, 3. v. tr. & intr. 1) (Rar.) To tend towards, to approach, to move towards: mare a. terram, presses upon the land: urbs crescebat munitionibus alia atque alia loca appetendo, by their continually approaching, with their structures, new ground. Hence abs., and consequently intrans., of time, and events which arrive at a fixed period, and therefore mark a point of time, to approach, to draw near: dies septimus a.; consularia comitia aa. 3) To fall upon one, to assail, to attack: a. humerum gladio, vitam filii ferro atque insidiis. 3) To try to seize any thing, to grasp or snatch at, aliquem, placentam; a. manum oculis, to seize the hand for the purpose of kissing it, appetor = the people seize my hand to kiss it. 4) To long passionately for, to strive zealously for, to desire earnestly, bona, amicitiam alicuius; (rar.) with an infin., animus a. agere aliquid.

APPĪA, ae, f. — see Appius.

APPĪANUS, a, um, adj. 1) [Appia] Of or pertaining to Appia, in Phrygia. Subst., Appiani, orum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Appia. 2) [Appius] Pertaining to Appius, Appian, caedes, libido.

APPĪAS, adis, f. [Appius]. 1) The statue of a nymph, near the fountain called Aqua Appia. 2) Appiades deae, statues at the temple of Venus, which stood near the above fountain. 3) A surname of Minerva, given to her by Cicero.

*APPĪETAS, atis, f. A sportive word formed by Cicero from 'pietas' = the respect due to the Appian family.

AP-PINGO, 3. v. tr. 1) To paint in or upon: a. delphinum silvis, to put, in painting a picture, a dolphin in a forest. 2) To add to by writing: a. aliquid novi.

APPIUS, ii, m. & APPĪA, ae, f. A Roman praenomen, esp. in the gens Claudia. Appii Forum, a borough of Latium, in the middle of the Pontine marshes, founded by A. Claudius Caecus.

APPIUS, a, um, adj. Appian: Appia via, the famous military road, running from Rome to Capua, and, after the time of Trajan, from thence to Brundisium, called after A. Claudius Caecus, who was censor, 312 B.C.; aqua Appia, an aqueduct, made by and called after the same Appius.

AP-PLAUDO, si, sum, 3. v. tr. & intr. 1) To strike upon or against, to clap: a. corpus palmas. 2) To clap the hands as a sign of approbation, to applaud, alicui.

APPLAUSOR, oris, m. [applaudo]. An applauder.

APPLICATIO, onis, f. [appono]. 1) An uniting, an attaching: a. animi, an attachment, an inclination to unite in friendship with any one. 2) Clientship, the relation of a client to a patron, hence, jus applicationis, the right of a patron to inherit his client's property.

AP-PLICO, cavi or (more freq.) cui, cātum or citum, 1. v. tr. 1) To affix, join, put or place to or near to: a. se ad arbores, humeros ad saxa, to lean against, to rest on; also, a. se trunco. Hence, elephanti applicantur corporibus, press close together; a. castra flumini, to pitch the camp close to the river, cornu sinistram ad urbem, to draw up near the town; a. se alicui, to attach one's self to a person as his companion; a. se ad flammam, to approach the flame; a. boves huc, to drive hither; quis te nostris applicat oris (poet.), drives thee to our shores. In partic., a. navem, or aba. a. and pass. applicari, to direct a ship towards any place in order to land, to land, ad terram, (poet.) in terram; also, of a ship, to come to land, quocumque litore naves aa. 2) Trop.: A) to add, to unite one thing to another, voluptatem ad honestatem, verba verbis: B) to attach one's self to a person, to apply one's self to something: a. se or animum ad aliquem, ad familiaritatem, societatem alicujus, to form a friendship, a union with any one; a. se ad conviviam, ad philosophiam: C) (lat.) a. alicui, crimina, to charge upon.

AP-PLORO, 1. v. intr. (Poet. & lat.) To lament on account of any one, to bewail, to deplore, alicui.

AP-PONO, pōui, pōsitum, 3. v. tr. 1) To set, place or put near or to: a. machinum, a. notam ad verum, epistolae; a. manum ad os, to place before the mouth, aurum ad gladium, to add. Hence, in partic.: A) to set food before one, to serve up, coenam, patellam: B) to associate one person with another for any purpose, hence, to designate for any business or service, to commission and duly instruct (sometimes with odium implied): a. accusatorem, illicitatorem. 2) Trop.: A) (poet. & lat.) to add, to adjoin, laborem ad damnum, annos alicui: B) (poet.) to reckon, to consider as something: a. aliquid gratiae, lucro.

*APPORRECTUS, adj. [ad-, part. of porrigo]. (Poet.) Stretched near or by the side of any thing.

AP-PORTO, avi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To carry, bring or convey to: a. magnas divitias domum, ornamenta populo Romano, novam comœdiam, to bring upon the stage; in partic. = to bring with itself, to bring on, to occasion, damnum.

AP-POSCO, 3. v. tr. (Poet.) To demand in addition, plura.

APPŌSITE, adv. [appositus]. Fitly, suitably, properly: dicere a. ad perasendum.

APPŌSITIO, onis, f. [appono]. (Lat.) An adding.

APPOS[ITUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [appono]. 1) Of place, placed near to something, contiguous to: regio a. mari. 2) Fit, suitable, serviceable: argumentatio a. ad iudicacionem; mensis a. ad agendum. 3) (Lat.) Inclined to, leaning to, juri, iniquo. 4) Subst., Appositum, i, n. (gramm. t.), an epithet, an adjective.

AP-POTUS, a, um, adj. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Very drunk.

AP-PRĒCOR, i. dep. tr. v. (Poet. & lat.) To pray to, to supplicate, deos.

AP-PRĒHENDO (poet. APPRENDO), di, sum, 3. v. tr. 1) To seize, to take hold of, aliquem manu, with the hand; but, a. aliquem pallio, to lay hold of his mantle; a. furem = to seize, to arrest. Hence, trop. — a) to touch upon any thing in speaking = to mention, to bring forward — b) a. aliquid caute et cum iudicio, to take hold of, to handle, to treat — c) = to take possession of, to seize, Hispanias.

APPRIME, adv. [from an obsolete adj. — apprimus]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Especially, very: a. nobilibus, utilis.

APPRIMO, pressi, pressum, 3. v. tr. [adpremo]. (Lat.) To press to, carnes ad ossa, scutum pectori.

*AP-PRIMUS, a, um, adj. (Ante-cl. & obsol.) By far the first.

APPRŌBATIO, ōnis, f. [approbo]. 1) Approval, satisfaction, acquiescence: a. popularis; movere aa. hominum, to obtain general approval. 2) Proof, confirmation by means of proof: hoc non eget a.

APPRŌBATOR, ōris, m. [approbo]. (Rar.) An approver, he who gives any thing his approval.

APPRŌBE, adv. [approbus]. (Ante-cl.) Perfectly.

AP-PRŌBO, ōvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To approve, to assent to, to be satisfied with: a. sententiam alienius, aliquid magno clamore; dii id approbent, may the gods show their approbation of this! = may they give it their favour and blessing! 2) To prove, to show, to demonstrate: a. aliquid, eum degenerasse a more civili. 3) (Lat.) To do (to manage) to one's satisfaction: is a. opus, the work done by him was approved.

AP-PRŌBUS, a, um, adj. Very good.

*AP-PRŌMITTO, 3. v. tr. To promise in addition to.

AP-PRŌPĒRO, ōvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To accelerate, opus, mortem; (poet.) a. portas intrare, to make haste to pass in through the gate. 2) Intr., to hasten.

APPRŌPINQUATIO, ōnis, f. [appropinquo]. An approach (in time), nearness, mortis.

AP-PRŌPINQUO, ōvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. To approach, to draw near, ad portam, illi loco; of time, to be near, to be at hand, hiems, dies semitiarum. Hence, is a. primis ordinibus, was near to the highest rank; illi poena, nobis libertas a., is at hand; qui jam appropinquat ut videat, is already near to seeing.

AP-PUGNO, 1. v. tr. (Tac.) To attack, to storm, castellum, castra.

APPŪLEIANUS, a, um, adj. [Appuleius]. Of or from an Appuleius.

APPŪLEIUS, i, m. A Roman family name: esp., 1) L. A. Saturnius, a demagogue of the time of Marius, put to death by order of the senate.

2) L. Appuleius, of Medaura in Africa, a celebrated writer of the second century — author of 'Metamorphoseon,' sc. de Asino Aureo. Adj., Appŭlius, a, um, of or from an Appuleius, APPŪLIA, ae, f. A province in Lower Italy. APPŪLICUS, a, um, adj. [Appulia]. Appulian, mare, the Adriatic sea.

APPŪLUS, a, um = Appulicus; subst., Appuli, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Appulia.

APPULUS, ūs, m. [appello]. 1) An approach: pars terrae appulsu solis exarsit; hence, the effect of an approach: frigoris et caloris aa. sentire. 2) A landing, a coming to land, liturum.

APRICATIO, ōnis, f. [apricor]. A sunning one's self, a basking in the sun.

APRICITAS, ātis, f. [apricus]. (Lat.) The quality denoted by apricus, sunniness.

APRICOR, 1. v. dep. intr. [apricus]. To sun one's self, to bask in the sunshine.

APRICUS, a, um, adj. [aperio]. Prop., open; hence, exposed to the sunshine, sunny (lighted and warmed by the sun), locus, hortus, campus. Hence (poet.), arbor, flos a., loving the sunshine; dies a. (lat.), serene (warmed by the sunbeams); flatus aa., warm breezes; trop., proferre in apricum, to bring to light, to make known.

APRILIS, e, adj. [contracted for aperilis, from aperio]. Pertaining to the month April, kalendae, idus; often subst., Aprilis, is, m. (sc. mensis), the month April, the month in which the earth opens, and becomes again productive.

APRINEUS, a, um, adj. [aper]. Of or belonging to the wild boar.

APRONIANUS, a, um, adj. [Apronius]. Of or belonging to Apronius.

APRONIUS, ii, m. The name of a Roman gens, thus: 1) Qu. A., an accomplice of Verres. 2) L. A., governor of Africa under Augustus, and afterwards of Germany.

APRUGNUS, a, um, adj. [aper] (Ante-cl. & lat.) Of or belonging to the wild boar.

APS., etc. — see ABS., etc.

APSŌROS, } i, m. An island in the Adriatic APSŪRUS, } sea.

APSUS, i, m. A river in Illyria, now Krovasta.

APTE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [aptus]. 1) Accurately joined, closely united: a. cohaerere, pileam a. capiti reponere. 2) Fitly, suitably, properly, dicere.

APTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [aptus]. (Mostly poet. & lat.) 1) To fit on, to put on, to tie on, to add by fitting, vincula collo, sagittam nervo; a. ensem dextrae, to grasp the sword with the right hand; a. bella modis citharae, to unite the song of war with the tones of the lyre. 2) To fit, to make ready, to prepare: a. arma pugnae, classem ad pugnam; a. orationem locis, to adapt; a. se armis, to get ready for battle by putting on the armour, classem velis, to get under sail; a. se, to get one's self ready; aptatus ad aliquid, fitted, calculated for any thing.

APTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of the obsol. verb apo or apio — erro]. I. As a part.: 1) fastened, joined to: gladius e lacunari setâ equinâ aptus, hanging from the ceiling by a single horse-hair; (poet.) a. terrae, attached to the earth (by means of roots). 2) Trop.: A) joined, united together: causas alias ex aliis aptas: B) dependent, depending upon something: vita a. est ex virtute: C) (poet.) = furnished, endowed with: aptus pennis, winged; coelum a. stellis, adorned with.

II. Adj. w. comp. & sup.: 1) joined together, hanging together, connected: dissolvere apta; applied to discourse, it denotes a harmonious combination of single qualities: oratio apta, rounded, rhythmical. 2) Fit, suitable, proper, convenient, serviceable (prop., by means of an external operation upon the object — cf. idoneus); exorcitus a. = ready for battle, tempus, appropriately chosen; locus a. ad excurrendum; res apta illi aetati; a. qui illud loquatur, the proper one to say that; *aptus in aliquid, (poet.) a. facere illud, the proper one to do that.

APUANI, ōrum, m. pl. A Ligurian people, on the southern side of the Apennines.

APUD (older form, APUT), prep. w. accus., denotes 'nearness to a thing,' esp. of persons and of a state of rest, while 'ad' implies a preceding state of motion (cf. also penes, in). 1) Of persons, by, with: esse a. aliquem. In partic.: A) a. aliquem, in any one's house; a. me domi: B) = before, in the presence of (esp. of a person who has at the time the power of deciding or judging): dicere a. iudices, verba facere a. senatum; queri a. aliquem; (Tac.) sacrificare a. deos (as it were, before the eyes of the gods), to offer sacrifices to the gods: C) of several persons among whom something takes place, among: a. nostros iustitia culta est: D) in other relations, with: gratiam consequi a. aliquem: E) of a writer = in the writings of; in: a. Xenophontem Cyrus haec dicit: F) (Com.) esse a. se, to be one's self, to be in one's senses, to be sane: G) sometimes = in, with abl. (sui a. eum magnus juris civilis usus). 3) Of place, by, near by, at: a. ignem esse; morari a. oppidum; sometimes, a. urbem, in the city and its vicinity. 3) (Ante-cl. & rar.) To a place (with verbs of motion): eo a. hunc vicinum.

APŪLEIUS, etc. — see Appuleius.

APŪLIA, etc. — see Appulia.

AQUA, ae, f. 1) Water; in partic. (poet.) = the sea (aquâ, on the sea); also, any particular sea (a. Albana), a river (a. Tusca — the Tiber); a. pluvialis, rain; augur aquae, who foretells rain. In partic.: A) (poet.) from the use of water at table, aquam praebere = to entertain any one: B) from the indispensableness of water for the support of life, aquâ et igni interdicere aliquem, to put under the ban, to banish: C) from the use of water in reviving faint persons (prov., Pl.), aquam alicui aspergere, to animate, to inspire with courage: D) esp. of the water in the water-clock (Clepsydra), which was used for measuring the time of legal proceedings; hence — a) (lat.) aquam dare, to give an advocate a certain amount of time for speaking — b) (lat.) aquam perdere, to lose, to waste the time — e) aqua (mihi) haeret = I am embarrassed, at a loss: E) a. intercus, dropsy; F) Aqua, the name of a constellation—Greek, Ἰδρυς. 2) Plur., Aquae, medicinal springs, baths: Aquae Sextiae, now Aix, in France.

AQUAEDUCTUS, ūs, m. (more correctly written 'aquae ductus'). 1) An aqueduct. 2) The right of conducting water in or through a place.

AQUALICŪLUS, i, m. [dim. of aqualis]. (Lat.) Prop., a small vessel for water. 1) The stomach. 2) The lower part of the belly, the paunch.

AQUĀLIS, e, adj. [aqua]. (Ante-cl.) Of or pertaining to water; subst., Aqualis, is, comm., a vessel for water, a wash-basin.

AQUĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [aqua]. Of or relating to water; subst., Aquarius, ii, m.: 1) (lat.) a water-carrier. 2) A superintendent of the aqueducts, a conduit-master. 3) The Water-Bearer (a constellation).

AQUĀTICUS, a, um, adj. [aqua]. (Lat.) 1) Found in or near the water, aquatic, avis. 2) (Poet.) Watery, moist, Notus; Aquatica, n. pl., damp places.

AQUĀTILIS, e, adj. [aqua]. 1) Living, found in water, bestia. 2) (Lat.) Having a watery taste, succus.

AQUATIO, ōnis, f. [aquor]. 1) A fetching of water: aquationis causa prodire, for the purpose of fetching water (esp. of soldiers in a camp). 2) (Lat.) The place whence water is brought, a watering-place.

AQUĀTOR, ōris, m. [aquor]. A water-carrier, in the pl. only, and as a military tech. t.

AQUĀTUS, a, um, adj. [aqua]. Mingled with water, watery, thin, medicamentum.

AQUILA, ae, f. 1) The eagle. 2) The military eagle, the principal standard of the Roman legion (signa, the standards of single cohorts); hence, sometimes = a legion. 3) (Tac.) Eagle-shaped ornaments, upon the front of a temple. 4) The Eagle, the name of a constellation.

AQUILA, ae, m. A Roman family name.

AQUILARIA, ae, f. A town in Africa Pro-pria, now probably Lawharsah.

AQUILEIA, ae, f. [= 'Ακυλία]. A town in Upper Italy, not far from Tergeste (Trieste), founded by the Romans, 182 B. C., still known by the same name.

AQUILEIENSIS, e, adj. Of or belonging to Aquileia, ager; subst., Aquileienses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Aquileia.

AQUI-LEX, ēgis, m. [aqua-lego]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A conduit-master, a well-digger, a person who understood the finding of water-springs and the making of wells.

AQUILIFER, ēri, m. [aquila-fero]. An eagle-bearer, a standard-bearer.

AQUILINUS, a, um, adj. [aquila]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Of or pertaining to an eagle.

AQUILLIANUS, a, um, adj. Aquillian, coming from the lawyer Aquilius.

AQUILLIUS, ii, m., and AQUILLIA, ae, f. A Roman gentile name: thus, esp., C. A. Gallus, a learned jurist, and a friend of Cicero.

AQUILLIUS, a, um, adj. Of or belonging to an Aquilius, lex.

AQUILO, ōnis, m. 1) The north-wind. 2) Meton. = the north-country, the north. 3) The name of a mythical personage, identical with the Greek Boreas.

AQUILONARIS, e, adj. [aquilo]. Northerly, northern.

AQUILONIA, ae, f. A town of the Hirpini, on the river Aufidus.

AQUILONIUS, a, um, adj. [aquilo]. 1) (Lat.) Northerly. 2) (Poet.) Of or belonging to Aquilo, or the north-wind personified.

AQUILUS, a, um, adj. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Dark-coloured, swarthy.

AQUINAS, ātis, adj. Of or from Aquinum, Aquinatian, fucus; subst., Aquinates, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Aquinum.

AQUINUM, i, n. A Volscian town in Latium, famous for its purple dye — now Aquino.

AQUINUS, or AQUINIUS, i, m. A bad poet, and friend of Cicero.

AQUITANIA, ae, f. A province of Southern Gaul.

AQUITANUS, a, um, adj. Aquitanian; subst., Aquitani, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of A.

AQUOR, ātus, l. v. dep. intr. [aqua]. 1) Of soldiers, to fetch water. 2) (Poet. & lat.) Of bees, to suck in water, to drink.

AQUOSUS, a, um, adj. [aqua]. 1) Fall of water, watery, moist, locus, nubes; a. hiems, rainy; Orion a., bringing rain. 2) Clear as water, crystallus.

AQUULA, ae, f. [dim. of aqua]. A little water.

AB, an old form for AD.

ARA, ae, f. [related to aipe]. 1) Any eleva- tion of stone, earth, turf, &c., esp. one designed for religious uses, an altar (cf. altaria). Altars were to be found not only in temples and public places, but also in nearly every private house; hence, aa. et foci, for the entire house as the home of the family; pro aris et fociis pugnare, for house and hearth, for what is dearest to one. 2) Criminals fled for refuge to the altars, hence = a place of refuge, shelter, protection: confugere ad a.; a. sociorum; a. tribunatus, legum. 3) Meton. — a) a stone monument — b) (poet.) a. sepulchri, a funeral-pile. 4) The Altar, a constellation in the southern hemisphere. 5) Arae, pl., the Altars, the name of several rocks in the Mediterranean sea, between Sicily and Africa.

ARABARCHES, ae, m. [= 'Αραβάρχης] or Alabarches. A collector or receiver of taxes in Egypt: Pompey was ironically so called by Cicero, because he boasted of having increased the revenues of the Roman people.

ARABIA, ae, f. [= 'Αραβία]. Arabia.

ARABICE, adv. [Arabicus]. After the Arabian manner: a. olere, to diffuse Arabian odours.

ARABICUS, a, um, adj. [Arabia]. Of or from Arabia, Arabian, odor, sinus.

ARABITAE, ārum, m. pl. [= 'Αραβίται]. A people in Gedrosia, on the borders of India.

ARABIUS, a, um, adj. (Poet.) Arabian, terra, limen.

ARABS, ābis, adj. Arabio; subst., an Arabian; (poet.) palmiferi Arabes = Arabia.

ARABUS, i, m., a, um, adj. Arabian; subst., Arabus, i, m.: 1) an Arabian; 2) a river of Gedrosia, now Korkes.

ARACHNE, es, f. [= 'Αράχνη]. A Greek maiden, who had, with Minerva, a trial of skill in spinning, and was changed by her into a spider.

ARACHOSIA, ae, f. [= 'Αραχωσία]. A province of Eastern Persia, now Afghanistan; subst., Arachosii, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of A.

ARACHTUS, i, m. [= 'Αραχτός]. A river in Epirus, now Arta.

ARACYNTHUS, i, m. [= 'Αράκυνθος]. A mountain between Boeotia and Attica, now Zigos.

ARADIUS, a, um, adj. Of or belonging to Aradus; subst., Aradii, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Aradus.

ARADUS, i, f. [= 'Αραδός]. A Phoenician island-town, now Rouad.

ARANEAE, ae, f. 1) The spider. 2) The spider's web.

ARANEOLA, ae, f. [dim. of aranea]. A small spider.

ARANEOLUS, i, m. [dim. of araneus]. A small spider.

ARANEOSUS, a, um, adj. [aranea]. 1) (Poet.) Fall of cobwebs. 2) (Lat.) Like a cobweb.

ARANEUS, i, m. [= 'Αράχνη]. (Lat.) A spider.

ARANEUS, a, um, adj. [aranea]. Of or be- belonging to a spider; subst., Araneum, i, n., a spider's web.

ARAR or ARARIS, is, m. A river of Gaul, now the Saône.

ARATEUS, } a, um, adj. [= 'Ἀράτειος]. Of ARATIUS, } or belonging to the poet Aratus, Arateus, carmen; subst., Aratea, ōrum, n. pl.,
the poems of Aratus, translated by Cicero.

ARATIO, ōnis, f. [aro]. 1) A ploughing, and hence, in gen., agriculture. 2) Melon, ploughed land; in partic., plur., the public farms owned and rented by the state (agri publici).

ARATIUNCULA, ae, f. [dim. of aratio]. A small estate.

ARATOR, ōris, m. [aro]. 1) A ploughman: bos a., a plough-ox. 2) In gen., a countryman, a farmer; in partic., freq. in pl., the renters of the public lands.

ARATRUM, i, n. [aro]. A plough.

ARATUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀράτος]. 1) A Greek poet of the Alexandrian period, author of an astronomical poem, entitled ἑρμῆα, of which Cicero, in his youth, made a translation, still extant.
2) Of Sicyon, a famous Greek general, and founder of the Achæan league.

ARAURIS, is, m. A river of Gallia Narbon-ensis, now Hérault.

ARAUSIO, ōnis, f. [= 'Ἀραύσιον]. A town of Gallia Narbonensis, now Orange.

ARAXES, is, m. [= 'Ἀράξης]. 1) A river of Great Armenia, now Arrasch. 2) A river of Persia, now Bend-Emir.

ARBACES, is, m. [= 'Ἀρβάκης]. The first king of the Medes.

ARBELA, ōrum, n. pl. [= 'Ἀρβηλα]. A town of Assyria, made famous by the battle fought in its vicinity between Darius and Alexander the Great, 331 B. C. — now called Erbil.

ARBITER, tri, m. [ar = ad-bito]. 1) Any one who goes to a thing in order to hear and see it;
hence, a person present, an eye-witness, a hearer, spectator: ejicere aa.; arbitris remotis, sine aa., between ourselves. 2) One who goes to a thing in order to decide it; hence, an arbiter, umpire, judge, who pronounces sentence in accordance with his own views of right and equity — oppos.
to 'judex,' a judge, who decided according to written laws: ire ad a.; capere aliquem a. (in ancient times, the 'a.' was probably chosen by the contending parties, but afterwards by the prætor); after the enactment of the Lex Aebu-tia, the difference between 'arbiter' and 'judex' disappeared. Hence: A) an arbiter, in gen.:
a. pugnae: a. inter Academiam et Zenonem:
B) (poet. & lat.) a ruler, a lord: Augustus a. imperii; a. bibendi, the master of the feast or revel; Notus a. maris, the lord of the sea (inas-much as he agitates it at his pleasure): C) of places: locus a. maris; Taurus innumerarum gentium arbiter, i. e., that sets boundaries to: D)
Eurystheus a. irae Junonis, the executor.

*ARBÏTRA, ae, f. [arbitr]. (Poet.) A female witness.

ARBÏTRARIO, adv. [arbitrarius]. (Pl.) Uncertainly, arbitrarily.

ARBÏTRARIUS, a, um, adj. [arbitr]. 1) (Pl.) Not sure, uncertain. 2) (Lat.) Arbitrary.

ARBÏTRATUS, ūs, m. [arbitr]. 1) Opinion, sentiment, discretion, liking, almost always in
abl. sing. with a genit. or poss. pron.: a. meo, tuo, alicujus, according to my, your, any one's pleasure. In partic., ejus arbitratu de pace agitur, with him as plenipotentiary; dedere se in ali-cujus arbitratum, to surrender at discretion, i. e., without any stipulation or terms. 2) Oversight, management, direction: educari arbitratu alicujus.

ARBÏTRIUM, ii, n. [arbitr]. 1) (Poet. & lat.)
A being present at any thing, presence. 2) The decision of an arbitrator (v. Arbitr 2): aa., quibus additur 'Ex fide bona'; a. rei uxoriae.
Hence, in gen. = sentence, judgment, decision:
vestrum a., vestra existimatio valebit; res ab opinionis arbitrio se junctae, which are not decided according to personal, arbitrary views; a. auris, the judgment. 3) Will, power, mastery, dominion: Jupiter, oujus nutu et a. omnia reguntur; venire, dare se in arbitrium alicujus;
a. rei alicujus, the power to decide about any thing;
esse arbitri sui, one's own master; a. mortis, muneris, a free choice. 4) Aa. funeris, the expenses of a funeral (fixed by an arbitrator).

ARBÏTROR, ōtus, 1. v. dep. tr. & intr. [arbitr].
1) (Ante-cl. & lat.) To observe, to listen to, to hear, dicta nostra. 2) Tech. t., of witnesses, to state, to testify. 3) In gen., to think, to consider,
to believe, to be of opinion: a. te scelestum, id bellum celeriter confectum posse. 4) (Pl.)
A. alicui, to give credit to any one. — The passive use of 'a.' is rare: bellum confectum a., was supposed to be finished.

ARBOR, ōris, f. (poet. also -os). 1) A tree.
2) Melon., things made of wood, e. g., an oar, a mast of a ship, a javelin; a. infelix = a gibbet.

ARBÖRARIUS, a, um, adj. [arbor]. (Lat.)
Of or belonging to trees.

ARBÖRETUM, i, n. [arbor] = Arbustum.
A plantation.

ARBÖREUS, a, um, adj. [arbor]. (Poet. & lat.) Belonging to a tree, made of a tree, tree-like, frondes, telum; cornu aa.

ARBUSCULA, ae, f. [dim. of arbor]. A small tree.

ARBUSCULA, ae, f. The name of a mimic actress in the time of Cicero.

ARBUSTUM, i, n. [from arbosetum, arboretum fr. arbor]. 1) A place where trees are planted, an orchard, plantation, esp. of trees upon which vines were trained (cf. vinea). 2) (Poet.) A grove, a wood (mostly plur.).

ARBUSTUS, a, um, adj. [arbor]. Planted with trees, ager.

ARBÛTEUS, a, um, adj. [arbutus]. Of or belonging to the arbuté or strawberry tree.

ARBÛTUM, i, n. 1) The fruit of the arbuté or strawberry tree, an arbuté-berry. 2) (Poet.) = Arbutus.

ARBÛTUS, i, f. The strawberry or arbuté tree.

ARCA, ae, f. 1) A box, trunk, chest, in which any thing was kept or locked up. In partic.: A) a money-chest, money-box: solvere ex a. = to pay cash; confidit arcae (meae), rely upon my coffer, i. e., my means, ability to pay: B) a coffin. 2) Trop., a small and narrow prison, a cell: conficere aliquem in arcem.

ARCÁDIA, ae, f. [= 'Αρκάδία]. Arcadia, the central province of the Peloponnesus.

ARCÁDICUS, a, um, adj. [= 'Αρκάδικός]. Arcadian: juvenis A., a simpleton.

ARCÁDIUS, a, um, adj. [= 'Αρκάδιος]. Arcadian: dea A. = Carmenta; virgo A. = Arethusa; deus A. = Pan; aper A., the Erymanthian boar.

ARCANO, adv. [arcanus]. Secretly, privately.

ARCÁNUS, a, um, adj. [arca]. Secret, private, hidden (esp. of things which, for religious reasons, were kept concealed, as though they were sacred): aa. consilia, sacra. Hence — a) (poet.) = silent, that keeps any thing secret, nox, homo — b) subst., Arcanum, i, n., a secret, a mystery.

ARCAS, ádis, m. [= 'Αρκάς]. 1) The mythical progenitor of the Arcadians, the son of Jupiter and Callisto, after his death, made one of the constellations (the Bear-keeper—Arctophylax). 2) An Arcadian, an inhabitant of Arcadia, hence, Arcádes, um, m. pl. ['Αρκάδες], the Arcadians.

ARCEO, cui, —, 2. v. tr. [αἰρῶ]. Prop., to fence in. 1) To enclose, to confine, to hold: a. ámen (by means of a dam); alvus arcet quod accipit. 2) To forbid access to, to keep or ward off, to keep at a distance, hostium copias, injurias; a. aliquem ab injuria; also, with the simple abl., a. aliquem aditu, sacris. Hence (poet.), with infin. as object, pl. ['Αρκάδες], to hinder, to prevent; a. aliquem morbo, classem aquilonibus = to preserve, to protect; a. aliquid alicui, to keep off something from one.

ARCERA, ae, f. [arca]. A covered carriage for sick persons.

ARCÉSILAS, a, m. [= 'Αρκείλας]. A Greek philosopher, founder of the Middle Academy — lived about 300 B. C.

ARCESSITOR, ōris, m. [arcesso]. (Lat.) One who calls or fetches another; in the language of law, an accuser.

ARCESSITUS, us, m. [arcesso]. A calling for, summoning, only in the abl. sing., a. tuo, at thy summons.

ARCESSÍTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of arcesso]. Far-fetched, forced, unnatural, dictum, jocus.

ARCESSO or ACCERSO, Ivi, Itum, 3. v. tr.

[ad-cieo or ad-cedo]. 1) To fetch, to call, to send for (of living beings, that have in themselves the power of motion — cf. peto): a. aliquem, illum ad me; trop., a. somnum, quietem, to invite to, to cause, sleep, rest; (poet.) of things = peto, to bring along: sin melius quid habes, arcesso. 2) Of abstract objects = to derive, to fetch, to draw: comoedia a. res ex medio; res illa orationi splendorem arcessit, gives to. 3) To summon or bring before a judge, to accuse, aliquem hoc iudicio, capitis, maiestatis.

ARCHE, es, f. [= ἀρχή]. One of the four Muses, according to Cic. Nat. D. 8. 21.

ARCHÉLAUS, i, m. [= 'Αρχέλαος]. A philosopher of Miletus, a scholar of Anaxagoras. 2) A king of Macedonia, from 418 B. C., and a friend of Euripides. 3) A general in the service of Mithridates. 4) A son of Archelaus 3., son-in-law and adversary of the Egyptian king Ptolemaeus Auletes. 5) The grandson of Archelaus 4., and king of Cappadocia, from 84 B. C.; afterwards decoyed by Tiberius to Rome, where he died, A. D. 17.

ARCHÉNOR, ōris, m. [= 'Αρχήνωρ]. A son of Amphion and Niobe.

ARCHÉTYPUS, a, um, adj. [= ἀρχέτυπος]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) First made, original; hence, subst., Archetypum, i, n., an original.

ARCHIA, ae, f. The daughter of Oceanus, and wife of Inachus.

ARCHIAS, ae, m. [= 'Αρχίας]. 1) L. Lici-nius A., a Greek poet of Antioch, made famous by Cicero's oration in his defence. 2) A cabinet-maker at Rome.

ARCHIÁCUS, a, um, adj. [Archias]. Made by the cabinet-maker Archias, lecti.

ARCHIŁÓCHIUS, a, um, adj. [= 'Αρχιλόχιος]. 1) Archilochian. 2) Appellatively = severe biting.

ARCHIŁÓCHUS, i, m. [= 'Αρχιλόχος]. A Greek poet of Paros, the inventor of Iambic verse, and author of exceedingly severe satires — lived about 680 B. C.

ARCHIMÁGIRUS, i, m. [= ἀρχιμάγειρος]. (Lat.) A chief-cook.

ARCHIMÉDES, is, m. [= 'Αρχιμήδης]. The celebrated Greek mathematician and mechanician, slain at the taking of his native city Syracuse, 312 B. C.

ARCHIMEDEUS or -IUS, a, um, adj. [= 'Αρχιμήδειος]. Archimedian.

ARCHIMÍMUS, i, m. [= ἀρχίμιμος]. The chief of the mimic actors or the pantomimes (v. Mimus).

ARCHÍPIRÁTA, ae, m. [= ἀρχιπειρατής]. A captain of pirates.

ARCHÍTECTON, ōnis, m. [= ἀρχιτέκτων]. (Pl.) 1) = Architectus. 2) Trop., an arch-intriguer, a contriver of cunning plots ARCHITECTOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. [architectus]. 1) To construct, to build; architectatus (used passively), built. 2) Trop., to devise, to procure, volupates.

ARCHITECTŪRA, ae, f. [architectus]. The art of building, architecture.

ARCHITECTUS, i, m. [ἀρχιτέκτων]. 1) A master-builder, an architect. 2) Trop., an author, inventor, creator, vitae beatæ, mundi.

ARCHON, ontis, m. [= ἀρχων]. The chief magistrate at Athens, an archon.

ARCHYTAS, ae, m. [= Ἀρχύτας]. A Greek philosopher of the Pythagorean school—lived about 380 B. C.

ARCTĒNENS, tis, m. [arctus-teneo]. (Poet.) 1) Adj., carrying a bow; generally of Apollo, also as subst. 2) Subst., a constellation, the Archer.

ARCTOPHYLAX, ācis, m. [= ἀρκτοφύλαξ]. The Keeper of the Bear, a constellation, also called Bootes — v. Arctos.

ARCTOS, i, f. [= ἀρκτος]. 1) Prop., the Bear, the name of a double constellation at the north pole, the Greater and the Lesser Bear. Both constellations are sometimes represented as a wagon (plaustra, Charles's Wain); five of the seven stars of which each is composed being considered the wagon, and the two others the oxen (triones). Hence the expressions (poet.): septentrio major (minor), gemini triones, ursæ major (minor), q. v. The lesser constellation is also called Arctophylax (q. v.) when the greater one is represented as a bear; but Bootes (q. v.) when it is described as a wagon. 2) (Poet.): A) the north pole, or the north, in gen.: B) night.

ARCTŪS, a, um, adj. [= ἀρκτικός]. (Poet.) Northern.

ARCTŪRUS, i, m. [= ἀρκτοῦρος]. 1) The brightest star in Bootes. 2) = Bootes, the Lesser Bear. Hence (poet.) = autumn (since Arcturus rises in the beginning of September).

ARCUATIM, adv. [arcus]. (Lat.) In the form of a bow.

ARCUATUS, a, um, adj. [arcus 2: A]. Prop., covered with the colour of the rainbow; hence, a., morbus, jaundice; subst., Arcuatus, i, m., one who is affected with jaundice.

ARCUATUS, a, um, adj. [part. of arcuo]. Made in the form of a bow, curved, curvus.

ARCŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of arca]. A small box. ARCULĀRIUS, ii, m. [arcula]. (Pl.) A maker of little boxes or jewel-caskets.

ARCUO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To curve or bend in the form of a bow.

ARCUS, ūs, m. 1) A bow. 2) Trop. (mostly poet.): A) the rainbow, a. pluvius: B) a triumphal arch: C) an arch or vault in a building: D) any thing curved or bow-shaped, e. g., a wave, snake, bay; esp. in mathematics = an arc of a circle.

ARDEA, ae, f. The heron.

ARDEA, ae, f. The capital of the Rutuli in Latium.

ARDEAS, ātis, adj. Of or belonging to Ardea; subst., Ardeātes, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Ardea.

ARDEĀTINUS, a, um, adj. = Ardeas.

ARDELIO, ōnis, m. [ardeo = 'to perform eagerly?'] A busybody.

ARDENS, tis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of ardeo]. Burning, glowing, hot, aqua, tempus; trop., ardent, passionate, fiery; oculi aa., sparkling.

ARDENTER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [ardens]. Hotly, vehemently.

ARDEO, si, sum, 2. v. intr. 1) To burn, to be on fire (of. candeo, flagro): domus a.; lapides aa., are glowing. 2) Trop.: A) oculi aa., sparkle; fauces aa. siti, are parched with thirst: B) freq. of strong passions and emotions of mind, a. amore, irā, dolore, cupiditate, to be inflamed; (poet. & lat.) a. in arma, in caedem, to burn with a desire for; also, a. scire, to be exceedingly desirous of learning; esp. (poet.), a. aliquā, in aliquā or (rar.) in aliquam, to be consumed with love for: C) Africa a. bello, war rages in Africa; Gallia a., is in a great ferment; conjuratio a., is in full activity: D) a. invidia, to be the object of a raging hatred: E) sometimes with an accus.: pastor Corydon a. Alexin, was violently in love with.

ARDESCO, arsi, —, 3. v. tr. [ardeo]. (Poet.) 1) To begin to burn, to take fire. 2) Trop. — a) undae aa. fulmineis ignibus, glitter, gleam — b) of violent passions and emotions, to be inflamed, excited, in iras, caede.

ARDOR, ōris, m. [ardeo]. 1) A burning or glowing fire, burning heat (of. fervor), a flame: a. flammæ; a. coeli, of a fiery meteor. 2) Trop. — a) a. oculorum, vultus, brilliancy — b) of every passionate excitement, heat, fire, ardour: a. cupiditatum, animi; a. edendi, a. armorum, heat of battle. Esp. = the flame of love: a. virginis, ardent love of a virgin; a. meus, ultimus mihi a. = the beloved object, flame.

ARDUENNA, ae, f. (sc. silva). The Ardenne, a forest in Gaul.

ARDUUS, a, um, adj. 1) Steep, via, mons; hence, in gen. (poet.) = lofty, elevated (rising steeply from the ground — cf. sublimis). 2) Trop.: A) difficult to reach, difficult, arduous, opus: B) disagreeable, adverse; rebus in arduis, in adversity.

AREA, ae, f. 1) (Poet.) An open place, in gen., a. campi. In partic. — a) a ground-plot, a spot for building, a site for a house — b) the yard or court of a house — c) a threshing-floor, which was, among the ancients, an open space near the house — d) a play-ground, an open space for gymnastic exercises; also, a race-ground, a place of combat; trop., a. digna animo meo; a. vitae, the source of life. *2) A halo around the sun or moon, as a translation of the Greek ἄλως. 3) In geom. = planum, a plane.

*ARECCAEUS, a, um, adj. (Poet.) Prop., pertaining to the Assyrio-Babylonian town Arech; hence = Babylonian.

ARĒ-FÁCIO, feci, factum, 3. v. tr. (Ante-cl., poet. & lat.) To make dry, rem (once transposed in Lucr., facit are = arefacit).

ÁRELAS, átis, f. } [= 'Ἀρῆλας]. A town in ÁRELÁTE, is, n. } Gallia Narbonensis, now Arles.

ÁRELÁTENSIS, e, adj. Of or pertaining to Arélate.

ÁRENA, ae, f. 1) Sand: a. mollis, bibula; (poet. & lat.) freq. in the plur.; prov., semina mandare arenae = to begin something useless. 2) A sandy place, a. aliqua; esp. (mostly poet. & lat.): A) a sandy desert: B) the sea-shore, the strand: C) the place of combat in the amphitheatre covered with sand, the arena: mittere aliquem in arenam, to make one appear upon the arena; dare se in a., to offer one's self for. Hence, in gen., any place of combat, theatre: Italia est a. belli civilis.

ÁRENÁCEUS, a, um, adj. [arena]. (Lat.) Sandy.

ÁRENÁCUM, i, n. A town in Belgium, now Arnheim.

ÁRENÁRIA, ae, f. (sc. fodina) [arena]. A sand-pit.

ÁRENÁTUS, a, um, adj. [arena]. Mixed with sand.

ÁRENOSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [arena]. (Poet. & lat.) Sandy.

ÁREO, ui, —, 2. v. intr. (Mostly poet. & lat.) To be dry: tellus a.; fauces aa. siti; sitis arena, a burning thirst.

ÁREÓLA, ae, f. [dim. of area]. A small open place.

ÁREÓPÁGITES, ae, m. [= 'Ἀρεοπαγίτης]. An Areopagite.

ÁREÓPÁGUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀρεος πάγος]. Prop., Mars' Hill at Athens; hence, the supreme court of justice at Athens, the Areopagus, which held its sessions on that hill.

ÁRES, is, m. [= 'Ἄρης]. (Pl.) The god of War = Mars.

ÁRESCO, —, —, 3. v. intr. [insh. of areo]. To become dry, to dry up.

ÁRESTÓRIDES, ae, m. [= 'Ἀρεστορίδης]. A son of Arestor, i. e., Argus.

ÁRETÁLOGUS, i, m. [= ἀρεταλογος]. (Lat.) A prater about virtue, a kind of philosophic buffoons, mostly Stoics or Cynics.

ÁRĒTHO, ótis, m. } [= 'Ἀρῆθω]. Another
ÁRĒTHON, ótis, m. } name of the river Arachthus, q. v.

ÁRĒTHUSA, ae, f. [= 'Ἀρῆθουσα]. 1) A nymph who was pursued by the river-god Alpheus (q. v.)

as far as Syracuse. 2) A fountain near Syracuse, into which the nymph Arethusa was said to have been transformed.

ÁRĒTHUSIS, idis, adj. Pertaining to the fountain Arethusa, Syracusae.

ÁREUS, a, um, adj. [= 'Ἄρεος']. (Lat.) Pertaining to Ares: A. judicium = Areopagus.

ARGANTHÓNIUS, ii, m. [= 'Ἀργανθώνιος']. A king of Tartessus, remarkable for his great age.

ARGANTHUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀργανθώνιον ὄρος']. A mountain of Bithynia.

ARGEI, ōrum, m. pl. 1) Certain places in Rome, which were set apart by Numa for the performance of sacred ceremonies. 2) Images of men, made of rushes, which were annually, on the ides of May, thrown into the Tiber, from the Pons Sublucius (prob. as a substitute for former human sacrifices).

ARGENTĀNUM, i, n. A town of the Brutii, now S. Marco.

ARGENTĀRIA, ae, f. [argentarius]. 1) (Sc. taberna) A banker's stall, a bank. 2) (Sc. ars) The banking business; a. facere, to have. 3) (Sc. fodina) A silver mine.

ARGENTĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [argentum]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Of or pertaining to silver: a. metallum, a silver mine. 2) Of or pertaining to money: inopia a., want of money; taberna a., a banker's stall; subet., Argentarius, ii, m., a money-changer, a banker.

ARGENTĀTUS, a, um, adj. [argentum]. Silvered over, covered or ornamented with silver: miles a., whose shield is covered with silver: trop. (Pl.) querimonia a., accompanied with money.

ARGENTEÓLUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of argenteus]. Of silver.

ARGENTEUM, i, n. } A river in Gaul, now
ARGENTEUS, i, m. } Argens.

ARGENTEUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to the river Argenteum.

ARGENTEUS, a, um, adj. [argentum]. 1) Made of silver, silver, vas; (Com.) amica facta est a., is silvered = sold; salus a., a silver greeting = money. 2) A) ornamented with silver, scena, acies: B) silvery, color, fons; subet., Argenteus, i, m. (sc. denarius) = denarius, q. v.

ARGENTI-EXTĒRĒBRŌNIDES, ae, m. [exterebro]. (Pl.) A word formed in jest — one who extorts money.

ARGENTŌRÁTUS, i, f. A town of the Vangiones, now Strasburg.

ARGENTUM, i, n. [= ἄργυρος]. 1) Silver: a. factum, wrought; a. signatum, coined; a. infectum, not wrought. 2) Things made of silver: A) silver plate, silver vessels; a. purum, plain, not chased: B) silver money, and hence, money in gen. 3) A. vivum, quicksilver.

ARGEUS, a, um, adj. [= 'Ἀργεῖος'] = Argivus, q. v.]

ARGILETANUS, a, um, adj. Of or standing upon the Argiletum.

ARGILETUM, i, m. A part of the city of Rome, where, at least in later times, handicraftsmen and booksellers had their stalls.

*ARGILIUS, ii, m. [= 'Αργίλιος]. An Argillian, a native of Argilus, in Macedonia.

ARGILLA, ae, f. [= 'Αργίλλος]. Clay.

*ARGILLACEUS, a, um, adj. [argilla]. (Lat.) Clayey, of clay.

ARGILLŌSUS, a, um, adj. [argilla]. Full of clay, abounding in clay.

ARGINŌSAE, ārum, f. pl. [= 'Αργινώσαι]. Three small islands near the coast of Æolia, made famous by a naval battle — 406 B. C.

ARGIVUS, a, um, adj. [= 'Αργίος, with the Æolic digamma]. Of Argos, Argive; hence (poet.) — Greek, in gen.; Augur A. = Amphiarus; colonus A. = Tiburnus; subst. Argivi, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Argos, the Argives, and in gen., the Greeks.

ARGO, ūs, f. [= 'Αργέ, genit. -οῦς]. The ship of the Argonauts.

ARGŌLICUS, a, um, adj. [= 'Αργολικός]. Argolian, belonging to Argolis; hence (poet.) = Argian.

ARGŌLIS, Idis, f. [= 'Αργελίς]. 1) Adj. = Argive. 2) Subst., a district of the Peloponnese.

ARGŌNAUTAE, ārum, m. pl. [= 'Αργοναυται]. The Argonauts, Greek heroes, who went with Jason to Colchis for the golden fleece.

ARGOS, n., only nom. and acc., genit. -ōrum, dat. and abl. -is (as from a nom. pl. — Argi) [= 'Αργε, 'a plain']. 1) The capital of Argolis, and chief place of the worship of Juno. Sometimes = the whole Peloponnese (freq. opp. to Hellas). 2) A. Amphilocheum — v. Amphilocheus. 3) A. Pelasgiacum, a town in Thessaly.

ARGŌUS, a, um, adj. [= 'Αργῆος]. Of or pertaining to the ship Argo or to the Argonauts.

ARGUMENTATIO, ōnis, f. [argumentor]. 1) An adducing of a proof, argumentation. *2) A proof. 3) A conclusion.

ARGUMENTOR, ātus, i. v. dep. tr. & intr. 1) Intr. : A) to adduce proof of a thing: non refert a., jure an injuriā caesi sint: B) to draw a conclusion, to conclude. 2) Tr., to adduce something as a proof, aliquid, multa.

ARGUMENTŌSUS, a, um, adj. [argumentum]. Rich in contents, opus.

ARGUMENTUM, i, n. [arguo]. 1) A sign, mark, token: a. animi laeti, amoris. 2) A proof, argument, rei alicujus; multis argumentis docere deos esse; mihi hoc est argumentum, serves me for proof. 3) A conclusion, a syllogism: concludere a., to make. 4) The materials, subject, contents, matter of a writing or composition, &c.: a. tragoediae, comoediae, carminis, illius epistolae; a. scribendi or ad scribendum, for writing; fabulam argumento serere, to compose a whole dramatic poem on one subject; fabulae sine a., devoid of worth, empty. Hence: A) of works of art (painting, sculpture, embroidery, &c.), a subject, a. tabulae: B) (poet.) = a dramatic poem, a play: argumenti exitus.

ARGUO, ui, ūtum, 3. v. tr. 1) (Post.) To make known, to give to understand, to show, to prove, to characterise, to betray: timor a. animas degeneres; virtus arguitur malis, proves itself in adversity. 2) To accuse, to impeach, to charge with (originally, with the accessory idea of success in convicting the accused — cf. accuso): a. aliquem coram; a. aliquem criminis, crimine, de crimine; a. illum patrem occidisse (pass., arguo hoc fecisse); (lat.) a. aliquem ut tyrannum: sometimes (mostly lat.) also a. culpam alicujus. Hence: A) = to blame, to censure, to reproach, pudorem quorundam, aliquid fieri: B) = to refute, to show a thing to be false, aliquid, rar. aliquem.

ARGUS, i, m. [= 'Αργεῖς]. A hundred-eyed monster, who guarded Io.

*ARGŪTATIO, ōnis, f. [argutor]. (Post.) A creaking noise.

*ARGŪTATOR, ōris, m. [argutus]. A subtle disputant.

ARGŪTE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [argutus]. 1) Ingeniously, acutely. 2) Cunningly.

ARGŪTIAE, ārum, f. pl. (sing. in Gell.) [argutus]. 1) That which produces a strong impression, liveliness, vigour of expression: a. vultus (of a picture), a lively expression; a. oculorum; a. digitorum, a lively and expressive motion of the fingers; (poet.) also of the singing of a nightingale, of loquacity. 2) Of mental faculties: A) acuteness, wit, a striking and ingenious remark or observation: B) = subtlety, cunning.

ARGŪTIOLA, ae, f. [dim. of argutiae]. A small kind of subtlety.

ARGŪTOR, ātus, i. v. dep. intr. [argutus]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To prattle much and loudly.

ARGŪTŪLUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of argutus]. Somewhat subtle, libri.

ARGŪTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of arguo]. 1) Expressive, making distinctly known, showing, betraying: aa. oculi, manus (of gesticulation, esp. of an orator); a. solea (poet.), showing distinctly the shape of the foot, i. e., fitting neatly; a. caput equi (from its liveliness and graceful action); a. omen, significant; aa. exta, giving clear indications. 2) Of sounds, penetrating, clear-sounding: a. serra, whistling, illex, rustling, avis, singing loud, chorda, resounding, forum, noisy. Hence, trop.: A) of poets (of whom, in every language, the expression 'to sing' is used), Tibullus a., singing: B) homo a., verbose, talkative; litterae aa., an explicit and minute letter: C) (lat.) of smell = sharp. 3) Of mental qualities: A) acute, ingenious, orator; also, esp. of discourse = witty, neat, dicta, sententia: B) cunning, crafty, calo.

ARGYRANCHE, es, f. [= ἀργυράνη]. A pun upon ἀργύρεα, quincy, as it were, a silver quincy (if one, being bribed, pleaded a sore throat as the cause of his silence).

ARGYRASPIIS, idis, adj. [= ἀργυράσπις]. Armed with a silver shield. (Lat.)

ARGYRIPA, ae, f. = Arpi, q. v.

ARIA, ae, f. [= Ἀρία]. A province of Persia, now Afghanistan.

ARIADNA, ae, f. [= Ἀριάδνη]. A daughter

ARIADNE, es, f. of Minos and Pasiphaë, who helped Theseus out of the Labyrinth.

ARIADNAEUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Ariadne, sidus, because the crown of Ariadne was changed into a constellation.

ARIANA, ae, f. The Eastern part of the kingdom of Persia, now Iran.

ARICIA, ae, f. 1) An ancient town of Latium, with a famous grove and temple sacred to Diana, where, at a very early period, human sacrifices were offered. 2) A nymph, wife of Hippolytus.

ARICINUS, a, um, adj. [Aricia]. Arician.

ARIDITAS, atis, f. [aridus]. (Lat.) Dryness, aridity.

ARIDULUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of aridus]. A little dry.

ARIDUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [areo].

1) Dry (inwardly, through and through — of siccus), campus, folia; subst., Aridum, i, n., dry land, a dry place: subducere naves in a.; (poet.) a. sitis, febris; sonus a. (as when one breaks dry wood) = crackling. 2) Trop.: A) = lean, reduced to skin and bone, crura: B) = meagre, scanty, poor, cibus, victus: C) of dis-course, dry, poor, without fullness or beauty, oratio: D) puer a. = raw, ignorant: E) (Pl.) = niggardly, stingy, homo: F) (Pl.) argentum a. = clear money.

ARIES, etis, m. 1) A ram. 2) A battering-ram, used by the Romans, in sieges, for battering down walls: a. murum percussit. 3) A sign of the Zodiac. 4) A crossbeam, a prop or buttress.

ARIETATIO, onis, f. [aries]. (Lat.) A butting like a ram.

ARIETINUS, a, um, adj. [aries]. Of or pertaining to a ram; trop., oraculum a., ambiguous, like the diverging horns of a ram.

ARIËTO, avi, atum, i. v. tr. & intr. [aries]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) To butt like a ram; hence, in gen., to strike violently: a. aedes = to knock at; also, a. in aliquem; a. arma inter se, to strike the weapons violently against one another. 2) Trop.: A) (poet.) a. in portas, to thunder at: B) (lat.) a. animum alicujus, to disturb, to harass: *C) (lat.) et labaris oportet, et arietes, to stumble, to commit a fault.

ARIMASPI, orum, m. pl. [= Ἀριμασποι]. A Scythian people in the north of Europe.

ARIMINENSIS, e, adj. [Ariminum]. Of or belonging to Ariminum; subst., Ariminen-ses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Ariminum.

ARIMINUM, i, n. [= Ἀριμινον]. A town in Umbria, on the Adriatic sea, now Rimini.

ARIOBARZANES, ia, m. [= Ἀριοβαρζάνης]. The name of a Persian satrap, and also of several kings of Cappadocia.

ARION, onis, m. [= Ἀρίων]. 1) A celebrated poet of Lesbos and player upon the Cithara, saved from drowning by a dolphin — lived about 600 B. C. 2) A horse presented by Neptune to Adrastus, said to have been endowed with the gift of speech and of prophecy.

ARIOVISTUS, i, m. A king of the Germans, conquered by Caesar.

ARISBA, ae, f. [= Ἀριεβη]. 1) A town in Troas. 2) A town on the island of Lesbos.

ARISTA, ae, f. 1) The point or beard of an ear of grain. 2) In gen., an ear of grain.

ARISTAEUS, i, m. [= Ἀρισταίος]. An ancient Grecian hero, son of Uranus and Gaia (or of Apollo and Cyrene), who was reputed to have taught men the management of bees and the rearing of cattle.

ARISTARCHUS, i, m. [= Ἀρισταρχος]. A celebrated grammarian and critic of Alexandria — lived about 250 B. C.

ARISTIDES, is, m. [= Ἀριστείδης]. 1) The celebrated Athenian statesman, distinguished for his integrity — lived about 500 B. C. 2) An obscure poet of Miletus.

ARISTIPPEUS, a, um, adj. [Aristippus]. Of or pertaining to Aristippus.

ARISTIPPUS, i, m. [= Ἀριστιππος]. A Greek philosopher, a pupil of Socrates, and founder of the Cyrenaic school — lived about 380 B. C.

ARISTIUS, ii, m. A Roman family name; thus, esp., Aristius Fuscus, a learned poet and grammarian, and friend of Horace.

ARISTO, onis, m. [= Ἀρίστων]. 1) Of Chios, a Greek philosopher of the Stoic school, though leaning in some of his speculations to the sceptical philosophy — lived about 260 B. C. 2) Of Ceos, a peripatetic philosopher — about 226 B. C.

ARISTODEMUS, i, m. [= Ἀριστοδῆμος]. 1) The leader of the Messenians in the first war against Sparta. 2) The tyrant of Cumae in Campania — lived about 500 B. C.

ARISTOGITO, onis, m. [= Ἀριστογίτων]. An Athenian youth, who, in conjunction with his friend Harmodius, slew Hipparchus, the son of Pisistratus, and thereby overthrew the dominion of the Pisistratides.

ARISTOLŒCHIA, ae, f. [= Ἀριστολόχηα]. Birth-wort, a plant considered useful in child-birth.

ARISTOMACHE, es, f. [= Ἀριστομαχη]. The sister of Dion, and wife of the elder Dionysius of Syracuse.

ARISTOMENES, is, m. [= Ἀριστομένης]. The leader of the Messenians in the second war with Sparta.

ARISTONEUS, a, um, adj. [Aristo]. Of or pertaining to Aristot.

ARISTONICUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀριστωνικός']. 1) A tyrant of Methymnae in Lesbos. 2) The son of Eumenes II., king of Pergamus.

ARISTOPHĀNES, is, m. [= 'Ἀριστοφάνης']. 1) The celebrated comic poet of Athens, a contemporary of Socrates. 2) Of Byzantium, a celebrated grammarian, and teacher of Aristarchus.

ARISTOPHĀNEUS, } a, um, adj. [Aristopha-
ARISTOPHĀNIUS, } nes]. Of or belonging to the poet Aristophanes, Aristophanic.

ARISTOTĒLES, is, m. [= 'Ἀριστοτέλης']. Aristotle, a famous Greek philosopher, pupil of Plato, teacher of Alexander the Great, and founder of the Peripatetic philosophy.

ARISTOTĒLEUS, } a, um, adj. [Aristoteles].
ARISTOTĒLIUS, } Aristotelian.

ARISTOXĒNUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀριστοξένος']. A philosopher and musician, pupil of Aristotle.

ARISTUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀρίστος']. An Academic philosopher at Athens, a friend of Cicero, and teacher of M. Brutus.

ARITHMĒTICUS, a, um, adj. [= ἀριθμητικός]. Arithmetical; subst., Arithmetica, ōrum, n. pl., Arithmetia.

ARITHMĒTICA, ae, } f. [= ἀριθμητική, sc.
ARITHMĒTICE, es, } ῥήγνυ]. Arithmetia.

ARITŪDO, inis, f. [aridus]. (Ante-cl.) Dryness, aridity.

ARMA, ōrum, n. pl. 1) Arms, weapons, partly defensive, as the shield, coat-of-mail, &c.; partly offensive, esp. for close contest, as the sword, club, &c. (opp. to 'tela,' which were used at a distance): esse in armis, to be armed; vocare ad aa.; deponere aa.; aa. ac tela; often figuratively = armour, defence: aa. prudentiae, etc. Hence, 2) trop.: A) = war: aa. externa, pia, anniversaria, renewed every year; res ad aa. spectat, it looks like war; aa. inferre, to commence the war; ferri in aa., to rush into the battle: B) = warriors, soldiers, troops: liberemus aa. Romana. 3) (Poet.) Implements, utensils: aa. Cerealia, for grinding corn and baking bread; freq. = the rigging and tackle of a ship (as the masts, sails, cables, &c.); hence (poet.) = wings; also = agricultural implements.

ARMĀMAXA, ae, f. [= ἄρμαμαξα]. (Lat.) A covered Persian carriage, esp. for women and children.

ARMĀMENTA, ōrum, n. pl. [arma]. Implements, esp. the tackling of a ship: aa. vinearum, props.

ARMĀMENTĀRIUM, ii, n. [armamentum]. An armory, arsenal.

ARMĀRIOLUM, i, n. [dim. of armarium]. A little closet or safe.

ARMĀRIUM, ii, n. [arma]. A closet, press, or safe for food, clothes, books, &c.: aa. muricibus praefixum, the chest armed with spikes, in which Regulus was put to death.

ARMĀTŪRA, ae, f. [armo]. 1) Armour, equipment: a. varia, levis. 2) = Armed soldiers, almost always in the comb. 'levis a.,' the light-armed troops.

ARMĀTUS, a, um, adj. w. sup. [part. of armo]. Armed, furnished with arms or with things serving for arms; subst., Armati, ōrum, m. pl., armed men, soldiers.

ARMĀTUS, ūs, m. [armo]. 1) Armour, equipment. 2) Soldiers (always in abl. sing.).

ARMĒNIA, ae, f. [= 'Ἀρμενία']. Armenia, a country of Asia, divided by the Euphrates into two parts: A. major (Eastern — now Turcomania and Kurdistan), and A. minor (Western — now Anatolia).

ARMĒNIUS, a, um, adj. [Armenia]. Armenian, reges; hence, subst., Armenius, ii, m., an Armenian.

ARMENTĀLIS, e, adj. [armentum]. (Poet. & lat.) Pertaining to a herd of cattle, equa.

ARMENTĀRIUS, a, um, adj. Belonging to a herd of cattle; hence, subst., Armentarius, ii, m., a herdsman.

ARMENTOSUS, a, um, adj. [armentum]. Abounding in herds.

ARMENTUM, i, n. [aro]. Plough-cattle, beasts which were used for ploughing, esp. horned cattle (cf. pecus; also, jumentum). Hence: A) (poet.) centum aa., a hundred head of cattle: B) of other large animals, esp. horses: C) (lat.) = a herd, a drove: a. equorum bovumque.

ARMĪFER, ěra, ōrum, adj. [arma-fero]. (Poet.) Bearing weapons, armed; hence = warlike.

ARMĪGER, ěra, ōrum, adj. [arma-gero]. Bearing arms; subst., Armiger, ěri, m., and Armigera, erae, f., an armour-bearer; trop., an accomplice: a. Catilinae.

ARMILLA, ae, f. [armus]. An armlet, a bracelet.

ARMILLĀTUS, a, um, adj. [armilla]. 1) Ornamented with an armlet. 2) Wearing a collar, canis.

ARMĪ-LUSTRUM, ii, n. A place in Rome, where, once a year, a sacrifice was offered by armed citizens, and their weapons were consecrated. The festival was called 'Armilustrum.'

ARMĪNIUS, ii, n. Herman, a chief of the Cherusci, who defeated Varus, 9 A.D.

ARMĪ-PŌTENS, tis, adj. Powerful in arms, warlike, Mars.

ARMĪ-SŌNUS, a, um, adj. Resounding with arms.

ARMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [arma]. 1) To arm, to provide with arms, milites; in (contra, adversus) aliquem, against one; hence, trop.: A) a. se imprudentia alicujus = to avail one's self off; ingenium to ad omnia armat, makes you fit for every thing: B) to enrage, to excite, consules in tribunus. 3) To equip, to fit out, provide with every thing needful, navem.

ARMORICUS, a, um, adj. [from the Celtic, ar, 'on,' and mor, 'sea'; hence = maritime]. Civitates Aa., the northern provinces of Gaul, now Bretagne and a part of Normandy.

ARMUS, i, m. [ἀρμός, 'a joining']. 1) (Rar.) Of men (= humerus), the shoulder, upper-arm, where it joins the shoulder-blade (cf. scapula). 2) Of animals, the forequarter, the upper part of the foreleg: ex humeris armi fiunt (poet.), of a transformation from man into beast.

ARNIENSIS, e, adj. Of or belonging to the Arnus: tribus A. (the most distant from Rome).

ARNUS, i, m. [= Ἀρνος]. A river of Etruria, now Arno.

ARO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. [ἀρώ]. 1) To plough, terram; also, abs. and intr. = to pursue agriculture: cives, qui aa. in Sicilia. Hence, trop.: A) (poet.) a. aequor = to sail through: B) (poet.) rugae aa. corpus, draw furrows over: C) prov., a. litus = semina mandare arenae — v. Arena l. 2) To gain by ploughing, i. e., by agriculture, to reap: a. decem mediuna ex jugero; quidquid erat impiger Appulus = the produce of the field.

ARPI, ōrum, m. pl. A town of Apulia, founded, acc. to the fable, by Diomedes (cf. Argyripa).

ARPINAS, ātis, adj. Of or belonging to Arpinum; subst., Arpinas, ātis: 1) m., a native of Arpinum; pl., Arpinates, the inhabitants of Arpinum: 2) n., Cicero's villa, near Arpinum.

ARPINUM, i, n. A town in Latium, the birth-place of Cicero and Marius.

ARPINUS, a, um, adj. 1) Of or belonging to Arpi; subst., Arpini, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Arpi. 2) Of or belonging to Arpinum.

ARQUATUS — v. Arcuatus.

ARRECTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of arrigo]. Steep.

AR-RĒPO, psi, ptum, 3. v. intr. 1) To creep or sneak to or towards. 2) Trop., a. ad amicitiam aliojus and (lat.) a. animis, to ingratiate one's self with.

ARRĒTINUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Arretium; subst., Arretini, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Arretium.

ARRĒTIUM, ii, n. A town in Etruria, the birthplace of Mæcenas — now Arezzo.

ARRHA, ae, f. and (more freq.) ARRHĀBO, ōnis, m. [= ἀρραβών, originally a Hebrew word]. The earnest-money, purchase-money, a pledge given, i. e., a part of the money paid in advance on a contract, purchase, &c. (opp. to 'pignus,' a pledge to be restored when the contract was performed or the business finished): dare aliquid arrhaboni, as a pledge.

ARRHIDAEUS, i, m. [= Ἀρριδαίος]. An ediotic half-brother of Alexander the Great, murdered 317 B. C.

ARRIA, ae, f. The heroic wife of Paetus.

AR-RĪDO, si, sum, 2. v. tr. & intr. 1) To laugh or smile at or upon, aliquid, at a thing; a. ridentibus, to laugh with; omnibus a., to smile upon with approbation; a. aliquid, to smile upon; arrideri, to be derided. Hence, trop., fortuna mihi a. = favours me. 2) Trop. (intr.), to please: id mihi valde a.

ARRĪGO, rexi, rectum, 3. v. tr. [ad-rego]. 1) To raise, to lift up, comas; a. aures, to prick up. 2) Trop., to arouse, to excite, to encourage, aliquid; a. animum aliojus, to inflame one's courage; Itali arrexere animos, became attentive, were startled.

ARRĪPIO, rīpi, reptum, 3. v. tr. [ad-rapio]. 1) To draw to one's self, to snatch, to seize or to lay hold of hastily: a. arma; a. aliquid medium, by the body, barbā, by the beard; a. aliquid ad reprehendendum; a. dictum, to take up with eagerness; a. cohortes, to draw quickly to himself; a. patrem familias ex aliquo circulo, to seize upon. 2) Trop.: A) a. occasionem, caussam, impedimentum, to seize promptly, to avail one's self of quickly; a. studia litterarum, to pursue eagerly; a. litteras, to learn quickly; a. cognomen, to procure, imperium, to seize upon, to usurp: B) (poet.) a. naves, to go quickly on board, to take possession of quickly; a. terram velis, to sail quickly to the land: C) (poet. & lat.) to attack, castra; a. primores populi, to reproach: D) to accuse, to drag one to a court of justice = in jus rapio.

ARRĪSIO, ōnis, f. [arrideo]. A smiling upon with approbation.

ARRĪSOR, ōris, m. [arrideo]. One who smiles on another = a flatterer.

AR-RŌDO, rōsi, rōsum, 3. v. tr. To gnaw at; trop., rempublicam.

ARRŌGANS, ntis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of arrog]. Arrogant, haughty.

ARRŌGANTER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [arrogans]. Arrogantly, proudly.

ARRŌGANTIA, ae, f. [arrogans]. Arrogance, haughtiness; a. Antipatri, obstinacy.

ARRŌGĀTIO, ōnis, f. [arrog]. A solemn adoption of one who is of age (homo sui juris) in the place of a child.

AR-RŌGO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. Prop., to ask in addition; hence, *1) to associate with: a. consuli dictatorem, to place a dictator by the side of a consul, the people being previously consulted. 2) To usurp, to appropriate to one's self that which does not belong to one: a. sibi aliquid. 3) (Poet.) To procure, to confer upon: nihil non a. armis, to adjudge every thing to arms. *4) (Pl.) To ask, aliquid.

ARRŌSOR, ōris, m. [arroso]. One who gnaws at a thing, a gnawer, nibbler: stultorum divitum arrosor et arrior.

ARS, tis, f. [from ἀρσ, 'to join'; prop., skill in joining]. 1) An art, handicraft, trade, partly (according to Cicero) aa. liberales or ingenuae (e. g., music, eloquence), partly aa. illiberales or sordidae (e. g., handicrafts): a. gymnastica, musica; a. mea. 2) A science, a scientific system: a. recondita et multiplex; ad artem redigere, arte comprehendere aliquid, to bring into a system, into a scientific form; optima: aa.; a. disserendi, dialectica. 3) The theory which is the foundation of any art or science: res facultate (in practice) praeclara, arte mediocris. Hence = a text-book ('a system'), esp. in rhetoric or grammar: hoc ex antiquis aa. elegit; aa. oratoriae. 4) Skill, dexterity, art: opus est vel arte vel diligentia. Hence (poet.) = craft, cunning, trick. 5) (Poet.) A work of art: aa. quas protulit Parrhasius. 6) Transferred from the province of intellect to that of morals, the manner of thinking and acting, conduct or practice: aa. bonae, eximiae, praeiustae exertiones; aa. bonae malaeque = virtues and vices; laus bonae a.; malae aa., bad habits.

ARSACES, ae, m. [= Ἀρσάκης]. The first king of Parthia — about 250 B. C.

ARSACIDAE, ārum, m. pl. The descendants and successors of Arsaces; poet. = the Parthians.

ARSAMOSATA, ae, f. [= Ἀρσάμοσατα]. A fortress in Armenia Major.

ARSIA, ae, f. 1) A river in Illyria, with a town of the same name, now called Arsa. 2) Arsia Silva, a forest in Etruria.

ARSINOE, es, f. [= Ἀρσινόη]. The daughter of Ptolemaeus Lagus and Berenice, wife of Lysimachus, and, afterwards, of her brother Ptolemaeus Philadelphus; worshipped, after her death, as Venus Zephyritis. 2) Daughter of Ptolemaeus Auletes, and sister of Cleopatra. 3) The name of several towns.

ARTABANUS, i, m. [= Ἀρτάβαρος]. 1) One of the generals in the service of Xerxes. 2) One of the Arsacidae, king of Parthia.

ARTABAZUS, i, m. [= Ἀρταβάζος]. A governor of Bithynia under Xerxes.

ARTACIE, es, f. [= Ἀρτακίη]. A fountain in the country of the Lacetrigenes.

ARTATUS, a, um, adj. [part. of arto]. Contracted into a small space; hence, narrow, short.

ARTAVASDES or ARTUASDES, is, m. The name of several kings of Armenia.

ARTAXATA, ōrum, n. pl., or -a, ae, f. The chief town of Armenia Major, now Ardashir.

ARTAXERXES, is, m. [= Ἀρταξέρξης]. The name of several kings of Persia.

ARTE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [artus]. 1) Narrowly, closely, tightly. 2) Trop., dormire, soundly, amare, ardently.

ARTEMIDORUS, i, m. [= Ἀρτεμιδορος]. 1)

Of Ephesus, a geographer. 2) Of Tralles, a wrestler. 3) A philosopher.

ARTEMISIA, ae, f. [= Ἀρτεμισία]. 1) The wife of Mausolus, king of Caria. 2) An earlier queen of Caria, who accompanied Xerxes in his expedition against Greece.

ARTEMISIUM, ii, n. [= Ἀρτεμισιον]. A promontory of Euboea, opposite Magnesia.

ARTERIA, ae, f. [= ἀρτηρία]. 1) The windpipe, on account of the roughness of its interior surface called also 'arteria aspera'; once only (Lucr.) Arterium, ii, n. 2) An artery.

ARTHRITICUS, a, um, adj. [= ἀρθριτικός]. Gouty, afflicted with the gout.

ARTHRITIS, idis, f. [= ἀρθριτις]. (Lat.) Lameness in the joints, gout (pure Latin, morbus articulatorum).

ARTICULARIS, e, and -ARIUS, a, um, adj. [articulus]. (Lat.) Of or pertaining to the gout: morbus a., gout.

ARTICULATE, adv. [articulus]. Distinctly, articulately, loqui.

ARTICULATIM, adv. [articulus]. 1) Limb by limb, piecemeal: aliquem a. concidere. 2) Trop. (of discourse), with proper divisions; hence, clearly, distinctly.

ARTICULO, āvi, ātum, l. v. tr. [articulus]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Prop., to joint, to divide at the joints; hence, trop. (of speech), to articulate, to utter the sounds separately and distinctly.

ARTICULOSUS, a, um, adj. [articulus]. 1) Of plants, full of joints or knots. 2) Trop. (of speech), full of minute divisions and subdivisions, partitio a.

ARTICULUS, i, m. [artus]. 1) A joint, a knuckle: digiti habent ternos aa.; dolor articulatorum, the gout; molli articulo aliquem tangere, to touch lightly. Hence (poet.) = a limb, esp. = a finger. 2) Of plants, &c., joints, knots: seges it in articulum, gets joints. 3) Trop.: A) of discourse = a member, part, division: B) in grammar = the article; also = the pronoun: C) of time, a point of time, a moment; freq. in connexion with the genit. temporis: ipso a. temporis, at the critical moment; and, with the same signif., in ipso a., and also a. rerum mearum: D) (lat.) of other things, a division, point, degree: per eodem aa. et gradus, the greater and lesser degrees of honour.

ARTIFEX, icis, I. subet. m. 1) An artist, artificer, a master of any liberal art (cf. opifex): a. talium operum; a. dicendi, an orator; as also of an actor, author, architect, a physician. 2) A master, author, contriver, creator, in gen.: a. voluptatum comparandarum; also, a. in re aliqua; a. mundi, creator. II. adj. 1) In an active sense, skilled, skilful, dexterous: homo a. rei alienius; manus a.; a. formae, skilful, by the use of art, in increasing her beauty; (lat.) also esse a. ad aliquid faciendum, in jocos. 3) In a passive sense (poet. & lat.), ingenious, skilfully made, bos; equus a., well-trained. [Ars-facio.]

ARTIFICIĀLIS, e, adj. [artificium]. (Lat.) Artificial, according to the rules of art (the Ciceronian word is 'artificiosus').

ARTIFICIOSE, adv. [artificiosus]. According to art, artificially.

ARTIFICIOSUS, adj. w. comp. & sup. [artificium]. 1) In an active sense, skilful, artistic, ingenious, rhetor; quod si artificiosum est intelligere, etc., if it requires skill to understand, &c. 2) Passively, skilfully made, ingenious, opus, res. 3) Artificial, according to the rules of art (opp. to naturalis): genus divinandī a.

ARTIFICIUM, ii, n. [artifex]. 1) An art, a handicraft, an occupation, a trade: aa. liberalia, sordida; a. accusatorium. 2) A theory, system: eloquentia non nata est ex a., sed artificium ex eloquentia. 3) Skilfulness, dexterity, knowledge: opus singulari opere artificisque confectum. 4) Dexterity, in a bad sense, cunning, craftiness, artifice: opus est artificio. 5) Meton., a work of art: opera atque aa.

ARTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To press close together, to make close, rem, angustias. 2) Trop., to narrow, to limit, to shorten, omnia in honoribus.

ARTOCREAS, ātis, n. [= ἀρτόκρεας]. (Lat.) A dish made of bread and meat, a meat-pie.

ARTOLĀGĀNUS, a, m. [= ἀρτολάγανος]. A bread-cake, perhaps a pan-cake.

ARTOPTA, ae, m. [= ἀρτόπτης]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) A baker. 2) A bake-pan, a bread-pan.

ARTUS, ūs, m. (gen. in pl., and only with lat. writers in sing.) [ἄρτω]. 1) A joint: dolor artuum, the gout; trop., nervi et aa. sapientiae = strength, power. 2) (Mostly poet. & lat.) The limbs, the extremities of the body as distinguished from the trunk (cf. membrum).

ARTUS (better than Arctus), a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [arceo or ἄρτω]. Prop., confined, pressed together; hence, 1) narrow, close, tight, confined: aa. vincula; a. toga, narrow, without folds; a. theatrum, convivium, where the place is contracted, and the people are pressed closely together; subet., Artum, i, n., narrowness, a narrow place: in arto haerere. 2) Trop.: A) somnus a., deep; tenebrae aa. (lat.), thick darkness: B) a. spes, small, limited, petitio, with but little prospect of the desired result, comestus, small, scanty; res aa., needy, straitened, distressed circumstances; res est in arto, is in a bad way.

ARŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of ara]. A small altar.

*ARUNDĪ-FER, ēra, ērum, adj. [arundo-fero]. (Poet.) Bearing reeds.

ARUNDINĀOEUS, a, um, adj. [arundo]. (Lat.) Like a reed.

ARUNDINETUM, i, n. [arundo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A thicket of reeds.

ARUNDĪNEUS, a, um, adj. [arundo]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Of reeds, reedy; trop. (poet.), carmen a., a shepherd's song. 2) Like a reed.

ARUNDO, inia, f. 1) A reed (longer and thinner than 'canna'—cf. calamus). 2) (Mostly poet.) things made of reeds: A) a reed pipe, a shepherd's pipe: B) an angling rod: C) lime twigs for catching birds: D) the shaft of an arrow; hence, an arrow: a. haeret lateri: E) a reed pen, a pen: trop., tristis a. = style: G) a stick used for a hobby-horse: H) a stick for chastising: I) a reed for brushing down cobwebs: J) splints used by surgeons for holding together the injured parts of the body.

ARUNS, ntis, m. An Etruscan name of younger sons, the elder being called Lar, or Lars: thus, esp., 1) a brother of Lucumo; 2) a younger son of Tarquin the Proud; 3) a son of Porcenna.

ARUSPEX — v. Haruspex.

ARVĀLIS, e, adj. [arvum]. Of or belonging to arable land; used only in the comb. 'fratres arvales,' a college of twelve priests, established by Romulus, who made yearly offerings to the field Lares for the increase of the produce of the fields.

ARVERNI, ōrum, m. pl. A people of Gaul, in what is now Auvergne.

ARVINA, ae, f. (Poet.) 1) Fat, lard. 2) A surname of the dictator A. Cornelius Cossus.

ARVUS, a, um, adj. [arō]. Ploughed, or intended for ploughing, arable, ager; hence, subet., a) Arva, ae, f. (ante-cl.) an arable field, a corn-field — b) Arvum, i, n., arable land, ploughed land, a sown field (cf. ager). Hence (poet.), in gen. = a region, country; also, a field, a plain, a meadow; aa. Neptunia, the sea; tenere a., to reach the shore.

ARX, cis, f. [arceo]. 1) A castle, fortress, citadel, a fortified height, esp. the fortified upper-town (Greek ἀκρόπολις), as distinguished from the lower part of a town; in Rome, the capitol. Hence: A) (poet.) a. coeli, the citadel of heaven; aa. igneae, aetherae = the heavens; arx sacra, a temple on an eminence; (lat.) a. corporis, the head: B) trop. = a place of refuge, defence, shelter, protection: Roma est a. omnium gentium. 2) (Mostly poet. & lat.): A) as citadels were usually built on lofty places, a height, summit, pinnacle: a. Parnassi; aa. Arpium: B) as a citadel was the seat of power (trop. & lat.) = power, supremacy: C) prov., facere arcem e cloaca, to make a mountain out of a mole-hill.

AS, assis, m. [ās?]. 1) A pound (of metal). 2) A Roman copper coin, at first weighing a pound, but gradually reduced to one-twenty-fourth of its original weight; hence, ad a. = to the last farthing. The 'as' was divided into twelve unciae, and for these parts there were different names: uncia = one-twelfth; sextans = one-sixth, (two-twelfths); quadrans = one-fourth (three-twelfths); triens = one-third (four-twelfths); quincunx = five-twelfths; semis = one-half (six-twelfths); septunx = seven-twelfths; bes (instead of be-is = binæ partes assis) = two-thirds (eight-twelfths); dodrans = three-fourths (nine-twelfths); dextans = five-sixths (ten-twelfths); deunx = eleven-twelfths. 3) Finally, the word 'as' was used to denote the whole as unity, in opp. to its parts, which were designated by the names of the fractions of the 'as': thus, esp. of inheritances and the like, heres ex asse, a sole heir; heres ex dodrante, an heir to three-fourths of the estate; viritum diviserunt terna jugera et septunces (three and seven-twelfths jugera to each); fenus ex triente factum erat bessibus, was raised from one-third to two-thirds.

ASCĀLĀPHUS, i, m. [= 'Ἀσκάλαφος]. A son of Acheron, who disclosed to Pluto that Proserpine had eaten some grains of a pomegranate, in the lower world, and was for this changed by her into an owl.

ASCĀLO, ōnis, f. [= 'Ἀσκαλὼν]. A seaport in the south of Palestine, now Ascalon.

ASCĀNIUS, ii, m. [= 'Ἀσκανίους]. A son of Æneas, king of Lavinium, and founder of Alba Longa.

ASCENDO, ndi, nsum, 3. v. tr. & intr. [ascendo]. 1) Intr., to climb, to mount up, to ascend, in coelum; in navem, to go on board; a. in concionem, to ascend the rostrum; also (rar.) with the prep. 'ad.' Hence: A) trop. = to rise, to get up to something, in summum locum civitatis, ad majora, ad honores: B) abs., without statement of the place whither = to ascend, protegere suos ascendentes. 2) Tr., to climb, murum, equum; mons erat ascendendus.

ASCENSIO, ōnis, f. [ascendo]. 1) An ascending, an ascent. 2) A rising, soaring (of an orator).

ASCENSUS, ūs, m. [ascendo]. 1) An ascending, an ascent: tentare aa., to try, at several places, to get up; also, with a gen., templi aditus et a.; (poet.) superare fastigia tecti ascensu. Hence, trop., a rising, reaching of something higher, ad honoris gradum. 2) Concr., the way by which one ascends, an ascent; trop., in virtute sunt multa aa., degrees.

ASCIA, ae, f. 1) A carpenter's axe or hatchet (cf. securis); prov., asciam sibi in crus impingere or illidere, to cut or wound one's self. 2) A trowel.

ASCIBURGIUM, ii, n. A town in Gallia Belgica, on the Lower Rhine, now Asburg.

ASCIO, ivi, —, 4. v. tr. [ad-scio]. (Poet. & lat.). To take to one's self, to receive, to admit, socios, aliquem per adoptionem.

A-SCISCO (ada.), ivi, itum, 3. v. tr. 1) To take, to receive in some capacity or into some relation, aliquem civem, socium, as a citizen, an ally; a. aliquem in civitatem, into citizenship, inter patridos, ad foedus; (poet.) superis (dat.) ascitus, received among the gods. Hence: A) to take or receive to one's self, to appropriate, amicitiam, consuetudinem; a. nova verba, to adopt into a language: B) = to lay claim to any thing for one's self, to arrogate: prudentiam sibi a. 2) = To approve, legem, aliquid.

ASCĪTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of ascisco]. Far-fetched, unnatural, affected.

*ASCĪTUS, ūs, m. [ascisco]. A receiving.

ASCLEPIĀDES, ae, m. [= 'Ἀσκληπιάδης]. 1) A distinguished physician of Prusa, in Bithynia. 2) A blind philosopher of Eretria. 3) A Greek poet, inventor of the metrum Asclepiadeum.

ASCŌPĒRA, ae, f. [ἀσκήρα]. (Lat.) A leather travelling-bag.

ASCRA, ae, f. [Ἄσκρα]. A little town in Boeotia, the birthplace of Hesiod.

ASCRAEUS, a, um, adj. [= 'Ἀσκραίος]. A Boeotian; poeta (senex) A. = Hesiod; hence (poet.), a) = Hesiodic, i. e., rural, carmen A. — b) = Heliconian, fons.

A-SCRIBO (adscr.), psi, ptum, 3. v. tr. 1) To write in addition, to add by writing, aliquid; a. nomen emptioni, aliquid in legem, to subjoin as an additional enactment; a. diem in literis, to add the date to a letter; a. alicui salutem, to add a greeting, or one's kind regards; a., illum perisse; a. alicui aliquid heredem, to add some one to a will as joint-heir; a. alicui legatum (lat.), to leave a legacy to any one; a. aliquid marmor, to inscribe, to add as an inscription. In partic. as a political tech. t., a. aliquem civitati or in civitatem, to write down, to register, to enroll any one as a citizen; so, likewise, a. colonos Venu- sianam, as colonists, to be conveyed to Venusia. 2) To count, to reckon with any class or company, to number amongst: a. aliquem (in) ad numerum priorum; ascribi ordinibus deorum, to be received into the number of the gods; rogavit eos, ut se tertium ad amicitiam ascriberent, that they would reckon him as the third friend; so, likewise, utinam tertius vobis amicus ascriberer; a. poetas Satyris. 3) Trop.: A) to impute, to ascribe, to attribute, incommodum Scipioni: B) (poet.) a. illud exemplum sibi, to apply; dies ascriptus poenae, fixed for the punishment.

ASCRĪPTĪCIUS, a, um, adj. [ascribo]. Entered in a list, enrolled, civis.

ASCRĪPTIO, ōnis, f. [ascribo]. An addition in writing.

ASCRĪPTIVUS, a, um, adj. [ascribo]. (Pl.) Of soldiers, enrolled as supernumeraries.

ASCRĪPTOR, ōris, m. [ascribo]. He who, by subscribing his name, approves of any thing, an approver.

ASCULĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Asculum]. Of or belonging to Asculum, Asculanian: triumphus A.,

of Cn. Pompey; subst., Asculani, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Asculum.

ASDRUBAL, etc. — see Hasdrubal, etc.

ASCŪLUM, i. n. 1) A. Picenum, the capital of Picenum, now Ascoli. 2) A. Appulum, a town in Appulia.

ASELLA, ae, f. [dim. of asina]. A little she-ass.

ASELLIO, ōnis, m. An early Roman historian.

ASELLUS, i. m. [dim. of asinus]. 1) A young ass, an ass's colt; prov., narrare fabulam surdo asello, to preach to the deaf. 2) A star. 3) A Roman surname.

ASIA, ae, f. [= 'Asia]. Asia: 1) = the division of the earth of that name; 2) = Asia Minor, esp. Pergamus or Troas; 3) the Roman province Asia, comprising the western districts of Asia Minor.

ASIAGĒNES, is, m. [= 'Asiagēns, 'he who was born in Asia']. A surname of L. Scipio Asiaticus — v. Asiaticus.

ASIĀNE, adv. [Asianus]. After the manner of the Asiatics, loqui.

ASIĀNUS, a, um, adj. [= 'Asiāns]. Of or belonging to the province of Asia, Asiatic; subst., Asiani, ōrum, m. pl.: A) the inhabitants of the province of Asia: B) the farmers-general of Asia: C) the orators who practised the Asiatic (i. e., a redundant and bombastic) style of speaking.

ASIĀTĪCUS, a, um, adj. [= 'Asiātikos]. Asiatic: bellum A., the war in Asia, i. e., against Mithridates; oratores A. = Asiani; subst., Asiaticus, i. m., a surname of Cornelius Scipio, as the conqueror of Antiochus.

ASILUS, i. m. [ante-cl.]. A gad-fly, a horse-fly.

ASĪNA, ae, f. A she-ass.

ASĪNAEUS, a, um, adj. [Asine]. Of or belonging to Asine in Messinia.

ASĪNARIUS, a, um, adj. [asinus]. Of or belonging to an ass; subst., a) Asinarius, ii, m., an ass-driver — b) Asinaria, ae, f., the title of a comedy of Plautus.

ASĪNIANUS, a, um, adj. Of or belonging to an Asinius.

ASĪNINUS, a, um, adj. Of or belonging to an ass, stercus, pullus.

ASĪNIUS, ii, m. The name of a Roman gens: the most celebrated of this name was C. Asinius Pollio, the friend of Augustus, and founder of the first public library in Rome, an orator, a poet, a critic, and a writer of history.

ASĪNUS, i. m. An ass; trop., a simpleton, a blockhead, an ass.

ASIS, Idis, accus. asida, adj. (Poet.) Asiatic.

ASIUS, a, um, adj. [Asia]. Of or belonging to the district of Asia, in Lydia, on the Caystrus.

ASŌPIĀDES, ae, m. [= 'Asōpiādes]. The grandson of Asopus = Æacus.

ASŌPIS, Idis, f. [= 'Asōpis]. 1) The daughter of Asopus = Ægina, the mother of Æacus by Jupiter. 2) His daughter Evadne. 3) The island Euboea.

ASŌPUS, i. m. [= 'Asōpis]. 1) A river in Boeotia; as a river-god, the son of Oceanus and Thetis, father of Ægina, Evadne, and Euboea, and grandfather of Æacus. 2) A river in Thessaly.

ASŌTĪA, ae, f. [= 'Asōtēia]. (Lat.) Dissoluteness, debauchery.

ASŌTUS, i. m. [= 'Asōtos]. A debauchee, a dissolute person.

ASPĀRĀGIUM, ii, n. A town of Illyric, now Iskarpar.

ASPĀSĪA, ae, f. [= 'Aspasēia]. 1) A Greek courtesan, the friend of Socrates, and afterwards wife of Pericles. 2) A mistress of the younger Cyrus.

ASPECTĀBĪLIS, e, adj. [aspecto]. (Bar.) Visible.

ASPECTO (adsp.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. intens. tr.

1) To look at or upon with esteem, longing, expectation, &c., aliquem. 2) Trop., to observe, to pay attention to, jussa principis. 3) Of place (poet. & lat.), to lie towards or opposite: Britannia a Hispaniam.

ASPECTUS, ūs, m. [aspicio]. 1) Act.: A) A looking at or towards, a look, a glance: vitare aspectum hominum; uno a., at a single glance, with a single look; praeclarus ad a., splendid to look upon; convertere a. ad aliquem: B) the faculty or sense of seeing, sight: amittere a.; cadere sub aspectum, to be visible. 2) Pass.: A) a being visible, appearance: a. siderum, the rising; a. alicujus: B) the manner of appearance, aspect: jucundus a. pomorum.

AS-PELLO (absp.), pŭlli, pulsum, 3. v. tr. To drive away, aliquem; a. metum, to banish.

ASPENDIUS, a, um, adj. [aspensus]. Of or belonging to Aspendos; Aspendius citharista, a harper of Aspendos, who played with his left hand, with the strings of his instrument turned inwards, and consequently unintelligibly to his hearers (hence, prov., of one who thinks only of his own profit); subst., Aspendii, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Aspendus.

ASPENDUS, i. f. [= 'Aspendos]. A town of Pamphylia, now Minugat.

ASPER, ēra, ērum, adj. w. comp. & sup. 1) Rough (to the touch), rugged, uneven, lingua, locus, saxa; mare a., stormy; barba, sentes, piercing; (poet.) pocula aspera signis, with raised work, figures in bas-relief; numus a., new, not worn smooth by use. Hence, subst., Asperum, i. n. (lat.), a rough place, roughness: aspera maris = mare asperum. 2) Impropr. and partly trop.: A) of that which is tasted or smelt, sharp, harsh, pungent, strong, sapor, odor: B) of sound, rough, harsh, grating, pronuntiatio: C) of discourse, harsh, rugged, uneven, compositio, oratio: D) of moral qualities, manners, behaviour, &c., rough, harsh, insolent, or hard, cruel severe, &c. : a. et durus ; a. et iniquus ; asper cladibus (poet.), exasperated by defeat ; a. alicui (poet.), towards one ; a. ad condiciones pacis, of one who rudely refuses conditions of peace ; doctina a., hard, austere ; gens a., warlike ; anguis, taurus a. (poet.), wild, savage, dangerous ; odium a., violent, bitter hatred : E) of circumstances, critical, troublesome, oppressive, unfortunate, adverse, res, bellum, pugna ; multa aa., many adversities : F) of discourse, bitter, abusive, stinging : facetiae aa.

ASPER, ĕri, m. A Roman surname : thus, L. Tribonius Asper, a severe tribune of the people.

ASPERĒ, adv. w. comp. & sup. [asper]. 1) Roughly. 2) Harshly, austerely : a. agere, to use harsh measures. 3) Of discourse, bitterly, abusively.

ASPERGO (ad-sp.), rsi, rsuŕ, 3. v. tr. 1) To sprinkle at or on, to scatter or strew one thing on another, guttam flori ; also, a. pigmenta in tabula, to dash. Hence, trop. : A) a. alicui labeculam, to cast an aspersion upon any one, molestiam alicui, to occasion trouble : B) to add, to join, to mix with, comitatem severitati : a. sales orationi, to season discourse with wit ; hoc aspersi, this I have (opportunately) added ; also, of an inheritance, to bequeath something to : sextulam a. 2) To sprinkle one thing with another, to besprinkle, terram sanguine ; a. aliquid mendaciunculis, to put in fŕs here and there. Hence, trop. : A) to asperse, to sully, to dishonour, aliquem infamia, contumeliā : B) (lat.) a. aures gemitu, to bring a complaint to the ears of the king.

ASPERGO, ĩnis, f. [aspergo]. (Mostly poet.) 1) A sprinkling, spattering, aquarum. 2) Meton., that which is sprinkled, sprinkled drops : sales a., the spray of the sea ; a. nimborum = rain.

ASPERĪTAS, ātis, f. [asper]. 1) Roughness, unevenness, viarum, locorum. 2) Trop. : A) to the taste, harshness, sharpness, vini : B) to the ears, roughness, shrillness, a. vocis : C) a. hiemis, raviness, severity : D) of behaviour and manners, roughness, harshness, rudeness, severity, austeritŕ, a. Stoicorum, a. agrestis : E) of discourse, harshness, causticity, bitterness, violence : F) of circumstances and events, difficulty, danger, adversity, rerum, belli.

ASPERĪTER, adv. [asper]. (Ante-cl., for Aspere.) Roughly, harshly.

ASPERNĀBĪLIS, e, adj. [aspernor]. (Lat.) Despicable.

ASPERNĀTIO, ōnis, f. [aspernor]. A disdain, a rejecting with contempt, rationis, naturalia.

ASPERNOB, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. [sperno]. 1) To refuse or reject with contempt, to disdain, in contempt (cf. sperno) : a. pacem, preces alicuius, conditionem, hanc proscŕptionem ; a. patriam = to deny ; (lat.) a. facere aliquid, to refuse disdainfully to do a thing. 2) (Rar.) To keep off, to remove something from another : dii furorem alicujus a templis suis aa. 3) Passively, qui est pauper aspernatur, is despised, held in contempt.

ASPERŌ, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [asper]. (Poet. and lat.) 1) To make rough or uneven, undas, to make rough or boisterous. 2) To whet, to sharpen, sagittas, pugionem. 3) Trop., to excite, to arouse, aliquem ; a. crimina, to make more severe or bitter (opp. to lenire).

ASPERŖIO, ōnis, f. [aspergo]. A sprinkling upon, besprinkling, aquae.

ASPERŖUS, ūs, m. [aspergo]. (Lat., and only in abl. sing.) = Aspersio.

ASPHALTĪTES, ae, m. (sc. lacus) [Ἀσφαλτῖτες]. The Dead Sea, in Palestine.

ASPICIO, exi, ectum, 3. v. tr. [ad-specio]. 1) To look at or upon a thing, to behold, aliquem, templum ; also (ante-cl.), a. ad locum, ad aliquem. Hence, in partic. : A) = to look upon with respect and admiration : milites aa. Chabriam : B) = to look directly in the face = not to be afraid of : Boeotii ante Lacedaemonias a. non ausi sunt : C) to look upon a thing in order to examine it, to examine, opus, res sociorum ; a. Boeotiam, to take a view of. Hence = to look upon something with the mind, to consider, to ponder. In partic. — a) imper., aspice, see to it, consider — b) = to have regard to, to help, aliquem : D) of place, to lie towards, to have a look-out upon, terra a. meridiem. 2) Inch., to get a sight of a thing, to descry, aliquem : trop., a. lucem, to see the light = to be born.

ASPIRĀTIO, ōnis, f. [aspiro]. 1) A blowing or breathing to or upon : a. aëris, a blowing of the air upon one. Hence, in gram. = the pronunciation of a vowel with an h, aspiration. 2) Evaporation, exhalation, terrae.

A-SPIRO (ad-sp.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. Intr. : 1) To blow or breathe to or towards (mostly poet.) : aura a. ad illum locum ; hence, in gram., a. consonantibus, to pronounce with a breathing, to aspirate. Hence : A) tibia a. choris, accompanies : B) flos a., emits fragrances (towards one). 2) (Rar.) To breathe, to exhale ; pulmones aa. 3) Trop. : A) to favour, to assist, alicui : B) to strive to reach, to approach : a. aliquo ; a. ad aliquem, to come up to ; a. in curiam, in campum, to strive to reach the senate-house, the field ; thus, likewise, a. ad pecuniam alicujus. Hence : C) in gen., to long for something, ad rem and rei alicui. — Tr. (Poet. & lat.) : 1) To blow or breathe to or upon : a. alicui ventos, to let (favourable) winds blow upon one. 2) Trop., to infuse, to instil, alicui amorem.

ASPIŖ, ĩdis, f. [= dovis]. An adder, a viper. *ASPORTĀTIO, ōnis, f. [asporto]. A carrying away.

AS-PORTO (abs-p.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To carry bear, or take something away, res suas Salamina; a. hominem, to steal, to carry off.

ASPRETUM, i, n. [asper]. An uneven, rugged place.

ASSARÁCUS, i, m. [= 'Assdparos']. A son of Tros, brother of Ganymede and Ilus, father of Capys, and grandfather of Anchises. Assaraci nurus = Venus.

ASSECLA or ASSECULA, ae, m. [assequor]. One who follows in the train of another as a parasite; therefore, with the accessory idea of contempt, a follower, companion (cf. assecutor, sectator).

ASSECTATIO, ōnis, f. [assecutor]. A constant accompanying — v. Assecutor.

ASSECTATOR, ōris, m. [assecutor]. A constant companion, who follows in one's train, in order to show him respectful or friendly attention; therefore, a client, friend (cf. assecula). Hence: A) in gen., a disciple: a. illius philosophiae: B) (lat.) one who constantly pursues or eagerly strives after a thing: a. rei alicujus.

AS-SECTOR (ad-s.), ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. To attend or accompany one constantly, to be of his train or among his companions (v. Assecutor), aliquem; freq. of clients and friends who accompanied candidates for office.

ASSENSIO, ōnis, f. [assentior]. Assent, approbation; freq., in philosophical treatises = a holding as true: aut a. tollenda, or nothing can be relied upon.

ASSENSOR, ōris, m. [assentio]. He who assents or approves.

ASSENSUS, ūs, m. [assentior]. 1) = Assensio. 2) An echo.

ASSENTATIO, ōnis, f. [assentor]. A flattering assent or approbation, flattery.

ASSENTATIUNCULA, ae, f. [dim. of assentatio]. A little flattery.

ASSENTATOR, ōris, m. [assentor]. One who always assents or approves in order to ingratiate himself, a flatterer.

*ASSENTATORIE, adv. [assentator]. After the manner of flatterers, flatteringly, fawningly.

AS-SENTIO (ad-s.), si, sup. (rar.) } 4. v. intr.

AS-SENTIOR (ad-s.), sensus, dep. } To agree with one, to assent or give assent to, to approve, alicui or verbis alicujus, sententiae alicui; assensum est Bibulo, the opinion of Bibulus was approved of; a. alicui aliquid, to agree with one concerning a thing; assensae, things which are held as true, whose truth is admitted.

ASSENTOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. [assentior]. To agree with one always or in everything, to assent to in everything; hence, to flatter (cf. assentior, blandior, adulator): a. alicui hominibus omnia, in everything.

AS-SEQUOR (ad-s.), cūtus, 3. v. dep. tr. 1) To reach by pursuing; hence, to overtake, to come up with, aliquem in itinere. 2) Trop.:

A) to gain, to obtain (by exertion — cf. nanciscor), immortalitatem, magistratus: B) to come up to one in any quality, to equal one, aliquem, merita alicujus: C) to understand, to comprehend, aliquid, cogitationem alicujus; a. aliquid conjecturā, to divine, to guess.

ASSER, ōris, m. A pole, stake, esp. the pole of a sedan-chair.

ASSERCŪLUM, i, n. } [dim. of asser]. A ASSERCŪLUS, i, m. } small pole or pale.

AS-SERO (ad-s.), sēvi, situm, 3. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & poet.) To sow or plant near a thing, arborem.

AS-SERO (ad-s.), rui, rtum, 3. v. tr. Prop., to join to; hence, 1) to appropriate, to attribute, to assert a thing to be one's own or any one else's property: a. sibi dominationem, nomen sapientis, laudes alienas, to claim; asserere me coelo (poet.), assert me to the heavens, i. e., make me certain, by your assurance, that I am of celestial origin. Hence: A) as a tech. t., in the language of law, to assert or declare officially that one is lawfully of a certain condition or rank; thus, a. aliquem in libertatem (also, in ingenuitatem, or, ante-cl., liberali causa), to declare free, to assert that one is free; a. in servitutem, to assert that one, according to law, is a slave; sometimes 'manu' was added, i. e., by laying the hand upon; also (poet. & lat.), abs., a. = a. in libertatem, to set free, in gen.: a. pisces hosce (Pl.): B) = a. in libertatem, to free from, to protect, to defend, aliquem ab injuria, dignitatem alicujus. 2) (Lat.) To affirm, to assert, to assure.

ASSERTIO, ōnis, f. [asserō 2]. (Lat.) A judicial affirmation that any one is a freeman or a slave.

ASSERTOR, ōris, m. [asserō 2]. 1) He who asserts a thing to be his property, a claimant, puellae. 2) He who asserts, in court, the freedom of one who cannot plead his cause himself (of a slave, a young girl, &c.). Hence, 3) trop. (poet. & lat.), a deliverer, protector.

*ASSERVIO (ads.), 4. v. intr. To serve, to second, contentioni vocis.

AS-SERVO (ad-s.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To keep or preserve carefully, tabulas. 2) To observe, to watch, arcem, aliquem domi suae.

*ASSESSIO, ōnis, f. [assideo]. A sitting near one in order to console him.

ASSESSOR, ōris, m. [assideo]. An assessor, assistant of any officer, esp. in court.

ASSESSUS, ūs, m. [assideo]. (Poet.) = Assessio.

ASSEVERANTER, adv. w. comp. [assevero]. Earnestly, with a positive assurance.

ASSEVERATE, adv. [assevero]. Earnestly, strictly.

ASSEVERATIO, ōnis, f. [assevero]. 1) An earnest assertion. 2) (Tac.) Gravity, severity. 3) In gram. = an asseverating interjection.

AS-SEVERO (ad-s.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. [ad-severus]. 1) Intr., to speak or act earnestly (opp. to jocos). 2) Tr.: A) to assert earnestly, to assure positively, aliquid, de re aliqua, se ab aliquo esse destitutam: B) trop. (Tac.) — a) = to prove, to show: haec aa. originem Germanicam — b) a. gravitatem, to assume the appearance of.

AS-SICCO (ad-s.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To dry entirely, to dry up, rem, lacrimas.

AS-SIDEO (ad-s.), sēdi, sessum, 2. v. intr. To sit by or near a person or thing, alicui, apud aliquos, in schola; esp. = to be an 'assessor' or assistant in court. Hence: A) = to be at one's side helping, to help, to aid, to assist, alicui, consuli, aegroti, to attend upon one; in the same signif., a. valetudini (lat.), in his sickness: B) to stay at or before a place, esp. with a hostile intention = to besiege, moenibus (dat.) and prope moenia; also (poet.), a. urbem: C) (lat.) to be assiduously occupied with a thing: tota vita a. litteris. D) (poet.) = to be like, to be near a person in any quality: a. insano, to be near being a madman.

AS-SIDO (ad-s.) sēdi, sessum, 3. v. intr. 1) To seat one's self anywhere, to sit down: a. in sella apud aliquem and (rar.) a. aliquem; a. humi: aves aa.; orator a.

ASSIDUE, adv. w. sup. [assiduus 1]. Constantly, continually, frequently.

ASSIDUITAS, ātis, f. [assiduus]. 1) A constant attendance on any one, in order to show him attention or reverence, to help or please him; hence, esp. of clients, &c., a. amicorum, advocatorum; but also, a. medicorum, a careful attendance; esp., freq. of the candidates, when they had to appear frequently before the people and to solicit their favour. 2) Of persons, unremitting activity, perseverance: perficere aliquid assiduitate, consilio, diligentia. 3) Of things, frequency, frequent occurrence, uninterrupted repetition of a thing: a. molestiarum, frequent troubles, epistolarum, uninterrupted epistolary correspondence, dicendi, frequent exercise in speaking.

ASSIDUO, adv. (rar.) = Assidue, q. v.

ASSIDUUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [as-sideo]. 1) That stays constantly or is continually present anywhere: Romae fuit assiduus; boni assiduique domini, who are much at home; flamen Jovi assiduus, who is a constant worshipper of Jupiter. 2) Of persons, assiduous, persevering, active, agricola; flagitator a., unremitting, hostis, incessantly attacking. 3) Of things, unremitting, uninterrupted, constant, imber, opera, libido.

ASSIDUUS, i, m. [as-do?]. One liable to taxation, a rate-payer, a citizen who has property for which he is taxed (also = locuples, q. v.). The 'assidui' were so called by Servius Tullius, in opp. to the 'proletarii.' 2) — a) (Pl.) = a rich, wealthy person — b) trop., scriptor a. = a classical writer.

ASSIGNATIO, ōnis, f. [assigno]. An assignment, allotment, a distribution by assignment.

AS-SIGNIFICO (ad-s.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To point out, locum.

AS-SIGNO (ad-s.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To assign, to give to one by assigning, alicui aliquid; freq. of the division of public lands to colonists or others. Hence: A) = to give (prop., to assign) a commission, to direct, alicui aliquid faciendum: B) trop., a. aliquem famae (lat.), to make known: C) a. aliquid auditori (lat.), to impress upon, to impart as a thing of importance. 2) Trop., to ascribe, to impute a thing to one as a fault or as a matter of merit, aliquid non homini, sed tempori. 3) To affix a mark to, to seal, tabellas.

AS-SILIO (ad-s), silui, —, 4. v. intr. [ad-salio]. To leap up to a thing, to spring up upon: a. moenibus = to assault; aqua a. (poet.), ripples, dashes; trop., a. ad aliud genus orationis, to pass over hastily.

AS-SIMILIS (ad-s.) e, adj. (Mostly poet.) Very similar, alicui, sui, to one's self.

ASSIMULATIO, ōnis, f. [assimulo]. (Lat.) Prop., a making like. 1) Similarity. 2) In rhet., a pretended approaching of a speaker to the opinion of his hearers.

ASSIMULATUS, a, um, adj. [part. of assimulo]. 1) Similar, like, alicui. 2) Feigned, imitated, counterfeit: species virtutis a.

AS-SIMŪLO (ad-s.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To make one thing similar to another: a. deos in speciem oris humani, to represent the gods as similar to men in appearance. Hence: A) to compare, grandia parvis: B) to imitate falsely, to pretend, to simulate, to feign (= simulo): a. anum (poet.), to assume the figure of an old woman; a. se amicum; a. se insanire; a. quasi exeam (Pl.).

ASSIS = Axis, q. v.

AS-SISTO (ad-s.), stiti, —, 3. v. intr. 1) To place one's self at or near, to step to, ad fores, contra hostes, to post one's self. 2) Of motion finished: A) to stand at or near, to be present at, rei alicui, tribunali, to appear in court: B) (lat.) = to assist, to aid, esp. in court: C) = to stand: talus recte a., stands upright.

AS-SŪLEO (ad-s.), —, —, 2. v. intr., used only in the third pers. sing. & pl. To be used, to be wont; mostly impers., ut assolet, as it usually happens, as usual.

AS-SŪNO (ad-s.), —, —, 1. v. intr. To sound to or with: plangentibus assonat Echo, responds to their complaints.

AS-SŪDASSO (ad-s.), —, 3. v. intr. [intens. of sudo]. (Pl. — doubtf. read; others read assudesco). To sweat profusely.

AS-SŪDESCO, 3. v. intr. [inch. of sudo]. To begin to sweat.

ASSUE-FÁCIO, feci, factum, 3. v. intr. [assuesco]. To accustom one to a thing, aliquem aliqua re, (rar.) rei alicui, ad rem aliquam ; a. aliquem facere aliquid.

AS-SUESCO (ad-s.), ēvi, ētum, 3. v. intr. & tr. 1) Trans., to accustom one to a thing, mentem pluribus; also (poet. & lat.), aliquem in aliquam rem. 2) Intrans., to accustom one's self to, re aliqua, rei alicui or ad rem; (poet.) a. bella, to accustom one's mind to war; a. mulieri, to have carnal intercourse with; freq., assuevi = I am accustomed.

ASSUETUDO, Inis, f. [assuesco]. 1) A being accustomed to: a. mali, to misfortune. 2) Custom, habit: a. mulieris, carnal intercourse with.

ASSUETUS, a, um, adj. [part. of assuesco]. 1) Accustomed to any thing, re aliqua, rei alicui, ad (in) rem aliquam, facere aliquid, *rei alicujus; (poet.) assuetus in via, accustomed to impassable places. 2) That to which one is accustomed, customary, usual, known: a. locus, ars; motus corporum cuique genti assueti.

*AS-SŪGO (ad-s.), otum, 3. v. tr. To suck.

ASSŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of axis]. A chip or splinter (Pl.) foribus facere assulas, to break the door in pieces.

ASSŪLATIM, (ante-cl.) } adv. [assula]. In

*ASSŪLOSE, (lat.) } chips or splinters.

*ASSULTIM, adv. [assilio]. By leaps or bounds.

ASSULTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & (rar.) tr. [intens. of assilio]. (Lat.) To leap to or upon, to approach impetuously, esp. to rush against with a hostile intention, to assail, castris (dat.), latera exercitus.

ASSULTUS, ūs, m. [assilio]. (Poet. & lat.) A leaping to or upon = an assault, attack.

AS-SUM (ad-s.), affui, adesse, v. intr. 1) To be at, to be present, rei alicui, at any thing, esp. as a witness: a. coram, personally, ante portam, in tabernaculo; a. scribendo — v. scribo; a. alicui (poet.), to accompany one, to be with one. Hence: A) of time, events, &c., to be at hand, dies, occasio a.; morbus, tempestas a.: B) a. animo, to pay attention, to be attentive, to have presence of mind: C) to appear, to make one's appearance, to come, ex Africa, hic; (poet.) huc ades, come here; hostes aa., will be here in a moment. 2) To be present actively, esp. with assistance, to assist, to aid, to help, esp. to assist in court, to defend, alicui et rebus alicujus; a. in caussa aliqua.

AS-SŪMO (ad-s.), mpsi, mptum, 3. v. tr. 1) To take something to one's self, to receive, to accept, cibum, sacra Cereris, uxorem; a. aliquos in societatem; a. sibi laudem ex re aliqua, to procure. Hence, sometimes in a blaming sense = to assume, to usurp, aliquid sibi. 2) To take in addition to, to add to, aliquos alicui, socios; nihil laudi nostrae assumptum est. Hence: A) philos. tech. t. = to add to a syllogism the minor proposition: B) in gram., verba assumpta — a) epithets — b) tropical expressions.

ASSUMPTIO, ōnis, f. [assumo]. 1) Acceptance, esp. approving acceptance, approbation. 2) The minor proposition of a syllogism.

ASSUMPTIVUS, a, um, adj. [assumo]. A juridical tech. t., caussa a., a cause in which the arguments for the defence are taken from extrinsic circumstances.

*AS-SUO (ad-s.), 3. v. tr. To sew on, to patch on, pannum.

AS-SURGO (ad-s.), surrexi, surrectum, 3. v. intr. To lift up one's self, to rise up, to stand up: resupinare regem assurgentem; adjuvare se manibus in assurgendo. Hence: A) ventus a., stella a., rises; collis a., ascends; Delos a. Cynthio monte: B) (poet.) assurgere dextrā, to lift one's self up with the right hand = to lift up the right hand: C) trop., of mind and discourse, to rise high, to soar: D) in partic. to rise from a sick-bed: E) a. alicui, to rise up to one out of respect; hence, trop., to yield, to give the preference to.

ASSUS, a, um, adj. [ἄσως]. 1) Dry: a. femina or nutrix, a dry-nurse; a. sol, a basking in the sun without previous anointing; a. sudatio, a sweat or vapour bath, i. e., without water; hence, subst., Assa, ōrum, n. pl. = a room for a sweat or vapour bath; trop., a. vox, without an instrumental accompaniment. 2) (Lat.) Roasted (as in 'roasting' water and sauce were not used — opp. to elixus), cibus; subst., Assum, i, n., roasted meat: a. vitulinum, roast-veal.

ASSŪRIA, ae, f. [= Ἀσσυρία]. Assyria, a province of Asia, between Media, Mesopotamia, and Babylonia — now Kurdistan; in the widest sense, the ancient kingdom of Assyria.

ASSŪRIUS, a, um, adj. [= Ἀσσυρίος]. Assyrian; (poet.) = Oriental, Median, Phœnician, Indian, &c.; subst., Assŷrii, ōrum, m. pl., the Assyrians.

AST, an old form of At, q. v.

ASTA, ae, f. 1) A town in Liguria, now Asti. 2) A town of Hispania Baetica.

ASTĀBŌRAS, ae, m. [= Ἀστὰβόρας]. The eastern branch of the Nile, now the Takazze.

ASTĀCUS (I.), i, f. [= Ἀστὰς]. A town in Bithynia, now Mashik.

ASTĀCUS (II.), i, m. [= Ἀστὰς]. The father of Menalippus, who is therefore called Astacides.

ASTĀPA, ae, f. A town in Hispania Baetica.

ASTĀPE, es, f. } [= Ἀστὰπες]. The eastern ASTĀPUS, i, m. } arm of the Nile, as it flows through Ethiopia, now the Azrek.

ASTARTE, es, f. [= Ἀστάρτη]. The Syro-Phœnician goddess of the Moon.

ASTENSIS, e, adj. [Asta]. Of or belonging to Asta; subst., Astenses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Asta.

ASTERIA, ae, f. [= Ἀστέρια]. 1) The mother of Polus and Phoebe. 2) The daughter of the Titans Coeus and Phoebe, changed by Jupiter into a quail, and thrown into the sea. In the place where she fell the island of Delos (anciently called Asteria or Ortygia) rose.

*A-STERNO (ad-st.), 8. v. tr. Only in pass., with mid. signif. To stretch one's self, to be stretched at full length, sepulchro.

ASTIPULATIO, ōnis, f. [astipulor]. 1) A confirmation of an assertion or matter of fact. 2) The modulation of the voice according to the sense of a word.

ASTIPULATOR, ōris, m. [astipulor]. 1) T. t., a legal assistant of a stipulator, to whom a promise given by a contracting party was, for the sake of greater security, repeated. 2) An approver, in gen., one who assents to another's opinion: a Stoicorum.

A-STIPULOR (ad-st.), ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. 1) In law, to join or take part in a stipulation. 2) Trop., to assent to, to agree with, alioqui.

A-STITUO, ui, ūtum, 8. v. tr. [ad-statuo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To place by the side of, aliquem ad lectum.

A-STO (ad-st.), stitī, —, 1. v. intr. 1) To stand by, at or near: a. ante ostium, in ripa, ad tumulum; (poet. & lat.) a. alioqui, by the side of one. 2) Trop. (poet.) — a) finis a. mortalibus, avulsis — b) a. alioqui, to assist — c) squamae a., stand spright — d) astante ope barbarica, while it yet existed, endured.

ASTRAEA, ae, f. [= 'Aerpaia]. The virgin goddess of Justice, who, after the golden age, withdrew from men, and was placed as a constellation ('Virgo') in the heavens.

ASTRAEUS, i, m. [= 'Aerpaies]. A Titan, husband of Aurora, and father of the winds, which are therefore called 'Astraei fratres.'

A-STRĒPO (ad-str.), —, —, 8. v. intr. & tr. (Lat.) 1) Intr., to make a noise at or to, mare, vulgus a.; in partic. = to shout applause. 2) Tr.: A) (lat.) a. eadem, the same (as the rest) = to repeat a cry: B) to fill with a clamor, to deafen, aures principis.

ASTRICTE, adv. [astringo]. 1) Closely. 2) Of discourse, briefly, concisely.

ASTRICTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of astringo]. 1) Drawn together, tight, close: soccus a., fastened, tied; corpora a. (Tac.), of a sparseness which is at the same time strong and sinewy; limen a., a locked door. 2) Trop.: A) (lat.) close, parsimonious: B) of discourse, compressed, concise, short: C) v. Astringo 2.

A-STRINGO (ad-str.), inxi, ictum, 3. v. tr. 1) To bind fast, to tie, aliquem ad columnam; hence, to draw, tie or bind together, fauces, vineula; often of the effect of cold, to draw together, to congeal: glacies astricta ventis (of an icicle): frigus a. corpus, makes stiff. 2) Trop.: A) = to bind faster, to strengthen, to make closer, affinitatem nostram, fidem, servitutem: B) in a moral sense, to bind to any thing, to oblige, a. milites ad certam formulam, orationem numeris. Freq., therefore, in the passive (esp. in the part. 'astrictus'): astringi jurejurando, religione, by an oath, by a religious obligation, sacris, obliged to the maintenance of certain religious rites, voluptatibus, to let one's self be fettered by pleasure, majoribus, to be occupied with weightier matters, lege, by the law: C) a. se scelerare and (ante-cl.) furti, to render one's self guilty: D) of discourse, to compress, to bring into a small compass, luxuriantia.

ASTRÖLÖGIA, ae, f. [= ἀστρολογία]. 1) The knowledge of the stars, astronomy. 2) The interpretation of the stars, astrology.

ASTRÖLÖGUS, i, m. [= ἀστρολόγος]. 1) An astronomer. 2) An astrologer.

ASTRÖNÖMIA, ae, f. [= ἀστρονομία]. (Lat.) Astronomy.

ASTRÖNÖMICUS, a, um, adj. [ἀστρονομικός]. Astronomical; subst., Astronomica, ōrum, n. pl., the title of a poem by Manilius and of a treatise by Hyginus.

ASTRUM, i, n. [ἀστρον]. (Poet. and in more elevated prose.) Every large and shining heavenly body, a star (cf. stella, sidus): sometimes also = a constellation. Hence, trop., tollere ad aa., to extol to the skies; sic itur ad aa. (poet.), thus man attains immortal renown; decidere ex aa. = to lose all one's glory.

A-STRUO (ad-str.), xi, otum, 3. v. tr. 1) To build in addition to, novum aedificium veteri. 2) (Poet. & lat.) Trop.: A) to add to: a. animum formae, hanc laudem ceteris: B) to reckon one thing to another, to reckon with, aliquem priorum aetati. 3) To furnish with any thing by building, contignationem laterculo; trop., a. aliquos falsis criminibus, to furnish with.

ASTU, indecl. n. [= ἀστυ]. A city, esp. Athens (as 'urbs' for Rome): venire in (ad) a.

A-STÜPEO (ad-st.), 2. v. intr. (Poet., rar.) To be astonished at.

ASTUR, ūris, adj. Of or belonging to the province of Asturia, Asturian; subst., an Asturian.

ASTŪRA, ae, f. 1) A river in Latium, with a town of the same name. 2) A river in Hispania Tarraconensis.

ASTURCO, ōnis, m. [Astur]. An Asturian horse.

ASTŪRIA, ae, f. The north-western province of Spain.

ASTŪRICUS, a, um, adj. [Asturia]. Asturian.

ASTUS, ūs, m. A stroke of cunning, a cunning action (cf. astutia), mostly in the abl. sing.

ASTŪTE, adv. v. comp. & sup. [astute]. Cunningly, craftily.

ASTŪTIA, ae, f. [astus]. 1) Craftiness, cunningness, subtlety (cf. astus). 2) (Pl.) = astus aa. meae, tricks.

ASTUTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. Crafty, cunning (gen. in a bad sense), adroit, homo, ratio, sollertia.

ASTYANAX, actis, m. [= 'Ἀστυναξ]. 1) Son of Hector and Andromache, slain by the Greeks, at the destruction of Troy. 2) A tragic actor, in the time of Cicero.

ASTYLOS, i, m. [= 'Ἀστυλος]. A centaur, who opposed the war with the Lapithæ.

ASTYPALAEA, a, e, f. [= 'Ἀστυπάλαια]. One of the Sporades, near Crete, now Stampalia.

ASTYPALAEENSES, ium, m. The inhabitants of Astypalaea.

ASTYPALÆIUS, a, um, adj. [Astypalæa]. Of or belonging to Astypalæa.

ASYLUM, i, n. [= 'ἄσυλον]. A place of refuge, an asylum: aperire a.

ASYMBŎLUS, a, um, adj. [= ἀσύμβολος]. (Ante-cl.). That makes no contribution to an entertainment.

AT (Ast, obsol.), [ἀτράπ]. The strongest adversative conj. — but. 1) When a new and entirely opposite thought is added, to denote a real and object. contrast: brevis a naturâ nobis vita data est, at memoria bene redditæ vitæ sempiterna. Hence: A) when an objection is made in one's own or another's name = but, yet, however (= it might be objected, one might say); freq. 'enim' is added to indicate the reason for the objection expressed by 'at' (= 'but to this something may be objected, for,' or, 'but this is not quite correct, for'): B) when, in preceding sentences or expressions, something is admitted, and this admission is limited = but at least, yet at least: res si non splendidae at tolerabiles; atque ei, etsi nequaquam parem illius ingenio, at pro nostro tamen studio meritam gratiam referemus. 2) To add a different, although not entirely opposite, thought: thus, in a transition to a new section of a tale or description. In partic.: A) in an emphatic exclamation, where astonishment, indignation, &c., is expressed, esp. interrogatively: at, per deos immortales, quid est quod dici possit? at quem hominem tu tantâ injuriâ affecisti? una oppugnat mater; at quæ mater? B) in wishes, threats, imprecations, &c.: at te Jupiter diique omnes perdant! at tibi dii bene faciant omnes! at ego tibi oculum excutiam tuum!

ATABŬLUS, i, m. A burning, hot south-east wind in Apulia, the sirocco.

ATACINUS, a, um, adj. Of or belonging to the river Atax, Atacian: P. Terentius Varro Atacinus, a poet of that region, in the time of Cæsar, and author of an Argonautica; subst., Atacini, ōrum, m. pl., the people dwelling by the Atax = the inhabitants of Gallia Narbonensis.

ATALANTA, ae, } f. [= 'Ἀτаланτή']. 1) A ATALANTE, es, } daughter of Jasus (Jason) and Chymene, and participator in the Calydonian boar-hunt. 2) A daughter of Schoeneus, king of Boeotia. 3) A small island between Euboea and the continent, now Talanti.

ATAT or ATTAT, also several times Attatae, Attâtâtâtæ [= ἄτταται]. interj. (Com.) An exclamation of astonishment, joy, encouragement, &c., ah! oh! hey! heigh!

ATAVUS, i, m. [avus]. A great-great-grandfather, the father of an abavus, q. v.; (poet.) in gen., an ancestor.

ATAX, æcis, m. A maritime town in Gallia Narbonensis, now Aude.

ATEIUS, i, m. A Roman family name: thus, esp., C. At. Capito, a tribune of the people, 55 B. C., and his son, a renowned lawyer.

ATELLA, ae, f. An old town of the Osci, in Campania, near the present Aversa.

ATELLANICUS, (lat.) } a, um, adj. Pertaining ATELLANIUS, (Cic.) } ing to an Atellan farce.

ATELLANUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Atella, Atellan; esp., fabula A. or only At., a kind of popular drama or farce that originated in Atella, but was early transplanted to Rome, and afterwards highly relished there. Hence, subst.: A) Atellāni, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Atella: B) Atellānus, i, m., an Atellan actor.

ATER, tra, trum, adj. 1) Black, dark (without gloss, opp. to albus — cf. niger), carbo, nox; nubes, spelunca a.; nemus a.; (poet.) a. mare, stormy, dark; lictores aa., dressed in black (at a funeral). 2) Trop. (mostly poet.), to denote any thing unfortunate, shocking, fatal, &c., gloomy, sad, unfortunate, mors, cura, serpens; esp. of everything belonging to death and the realms of the dead: dies aa., fatal, unlucky, i. e., those days on which any misfortune had befallen the state; a. versus, deus, malignant, virulent.

ATERNIUS, ii, m. A Roman family name: thus, esp., A. Aternius Varus Fontinalis, consul 454 B. C., and author of the lex Aternia.

ATERNUM, i, n. A town of Samnium, at the mouth of the Aternus, now Pescara.

ATERNUS, i, m. A river emptying into the Adriatic sea, now Pescara.

ATESTE, is, n. A town in Italy, in the country of the Veneti, now Este.

ATESTINUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Ateste, Atestan.

ATHAMANIA, ae, f. [= 'Ἀθαμανία']. A district of southern Epirus.

ATHAMANES, um, m. pl. [= 'Ἀθαμᾶνες']. The inhabitants of Athamania.

ATHAMANIS, idis, f. An Athamanian woman.

ATHAMANTIÆDES, ae, m. [= 'Ἀθαμαντιᾶδης']. The son of Athamas = Palaemon.

ATHAMANTIS, idis, f. [Athamas]. The daughter of Athamas = Helle.

ATHĀMĀNUS, a, um, adj. Of or belonging to Athamania, Athamanian.

ATHĀMAS, antis, m. [= 'Aθμας]. A mythical king of Orchomenos, son of Æolus, father of Phryxus and Helle by Nephele, and of Melicertes and Learchus by Ino. He was persecuted by Juno, and for a time deranged.

ATHĀNĀGIA, ae, f. A town in Hispania Tarraconensis.

ATHĒNÆ, ārum, f. pl. [= 'Aθῆναι]. Athens, the celebrated capital of Attica; Aa. novae, a name of honour for Mediolanum.

ATHĒNÆUM, i, n. [= 'Aθῆναιον]. (Lat.) 1) A temple of Athens, i. e., Minerva, at Athens, in which scholars and poets read their works; also, a scientific institution for the same purpose at Rome, built by the Emperor Hadrian. 2) A fortress in Athamania.

ATHĒNÆUS, a, um, adj. [= 'Aθῆναίος]. (Ante-cl.) Athenian.

ATHĒNIENSIS, e, adj. Athenian; subst., Athenienses, ium, m. pl., the Athenians.

ATHĒNIO, ōnis, m. [= 'Aθῆνιος]. A shepherd, and leader of the Sicilian slaves in their insurrection, 102 B. C.; applied contemptuously, by Cicero, to Sext. Clodius, because he attempted to stir up the slaves of Rome to rebellion.

ATHĒNŌDORUS, i, m. [= 'Aθῆνόδορος]. A Stoic philosopher of Tarsus, friend and counsellor of Augustus.

ATHEOS, i, m. [= ἄθεος]. An atheist.

ATHĒSIS, is, m. A river in Upper Italy, now Adigo or Etsch.

ATHLĒTA, ae, m. [= ἄθλητής]. 1) An athlete, a prize-fighter, a wrestler at the public games of the Greeks. 2) Trop. (ante-cl.), he who excels in any thing, a hero, master; a. pecuarius, comitiorum.

ATHLĒTICE, adv. [athleticus]. (Pl.) Athletically.

ATHLĒTICUS, a, um, adj. [= ἄθλητικός]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Athletic; subst., Athletica, ae, f. (sc. ars), the art of the athletes, the athletic art.

ATHON, ōnis, } m. [= 'Αθως]. Athos, a ATHOS, ois, } mountain on the eastern shore of Macedonia, now Monte Santo.

ATINA, ae, f. A town of the Volsci in Latium, still Atina.

ATINAS, ātis, adj. Of or pertaining to Atina; subst.: 1) Atinae, ātis, n., the territory of the Atinates, in Atinati; 2) Atinates, um, m. pl., the inhabitants of Atina.

ATINIUS, i, m. The name of a Roman gens: thus, C. A. Laeoe, a tribune of the people, 180 B. C., and author of the 'lex Atinia.'

ATINTĀNIA, ae, f. A district of Epirus.

ATLANTEUS, a, um, adj. 1) Of or pertaining to Mount Atlas; poet. = Libyan. 2) Of or pertaining to King Atlas.

ATLANTIĀDES, ae, m. A male descendant of Atlas — a) = Mercury — b) Hermaphroditus, son of Mercury.

ATLANTĪCUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Mount Atlas: mare A., the Atlantic ocean.

ATLANTIS, Idis, f. A female descendant of Atlas — a) = Electra, one of the Pleiades — b) Calypso; pl., Atlantides, the Pleiades and Hyades as constellations.

ATLANTIUS, ii, m. A descendant of Atlas = Hermaphroditus.

ATLAS, antis, m. [= 'Ατλας]. 1) In geogr., a high mountain in Mauriliana. 2) In mythology, a son of Jupiter and Clymene, father of the Pleiades, Hyades, and Calypso. He was changed by Perseus, by means of Medusa's head, into Mount Atlas.

ATŌMUS, a, um, adj. [= ἄτομος]. Indivisible; subst., Atomus, i, f., an indivisible corpuscle, an atom.

ATQUE — v. Ac.

ATQUI, advers. conj. Used, 1) to connect an objection or a contrary and opposing affirmation with the foregoing, but yet, notwithstanding, nevertheless, and yet: O rem, inquis, difficilem et inexplicabilem: a. explicanda est. Sometimes ironically, so that by means of 'atqui' a confirmatory thought is added = indeed, certainly, by all means: me improbitatis patrociniū suscipere vultis: a. id tibi, inquit, verendum est, etc. 2) In a syllogism, to connect or add the minor proposition, but then: quod si virtutes sunt pares, paria etiam vitia esse necesse est: a. pares esse virtutes facile perspicitur: ergo, etc.

ATRĀCIDES, ae, m. [Atrax]. A Thessalian, esp., Caeneus.

ATRĀCIS, Idis, f. [Atrax]. A Thessalian woman, esp., Hippodamia.

ATRĀCIUS, a, um, adj. [Atrax]. Of or belonging to the river Atrax, in Ætolia, Atracian. 2) Of or belonging to the Thessalian town Atrax, Atracian; poet., for Thessalian: ars a., sorcery, which was especially practised by the Thessalians.

ATRĀMENTUM, i, n. [ater]. Any black liquid, in partic. = writing-ink, ink; also = black paint, dye, varnish: sutorium a., shoes or leather blacking (copperas, vitriol).

ATRĀTUS, a, um, adj. [ater]. 1) Blackened, made black: fluvius a. sanguine. 2) Clothed in black as a sign of mourning.

ATRĀTUS, i, m. A small river in the neighbourhood of Rome.

ATRAK, ācis [= 'Ατρας]. 1) M., a river in Ætolia; hence, Atraces, um, pl., the people living on the Atrax. 2) F., a town in Thessaly.

ATREBAS, ātis, m. An Atrebatian; plur., Atrēbātes, tum, a people of Gallia Belgica.

ATREVS, ei, m. [= 'Ατρεὺς]. King of Myene, son of Pelops and Hippodamia, brother of Thyestes, and father of Agamemnon and Menelaus.

ATRIDAS, } ae, m. [= 'Ατρίδης]. A son of ATRIDES, } Atreus; plur., Atridae, Agamemnon and Menelaus.

ATRIENSIS, is, m. [atrium]. (Prop., an adj. Pertaining to the atrium.) The overseer of the atrium; hence, in gen., an overseer of the house, a steward (among the Romans, a slave).

ATRIOLUM, i, n. [dim. of atrium]. A little fore-court or entrance-hall.

ATRIUM, ii, n. 1) A hall, the principal apartment of a Roman dwelling-house; it was the room nearest the front or main entrance, and was always roofed (to be distinguished therefore from the 'cavaedium,' which was uncovered)—here were the ancestral images, and also the 'lectus genialis'; clients, likewise, who sought to pay their respects, were received in this apartment; also, meton., for the entire house. 2) The hall or fore-court of a temple (a Vestae). 3) Of other public buildings: a. auctionarium, an auction hall, where auctions were held; a. sutorium, the shoemakers' hall.

ATROCITAS, ātis, f. [atrox]. 1) Horribleness, frightfulness, that which is horrible and revolting in any thing. 2) Of disposition and manners, harshness, fierceness, savageness, atrocity, animi, verborum, sceleris. 3) In philos. and law, strictness, severity.

ATROCITER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [atrox]. Harshly, fiercely: a. accipere aliquid (Tac.), to bear something with indignation.

ATROTUS, a, um, adj. [= ἄτρετος]. Invaluable.

ATROX, ōcis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [ater]. (That which is, in a moral sense, dark or gloomy.)

1) Horrible, hideous, dreadful, atrocious, res, facinus, bellum. 2) Harsh, severe, savage, cruel, fierce, &c.: a. imperium, responsum, oratio, violent, excited; odium a., bitter, pugna, bloody; a. animus Catonis, unyielding.

ATTA, ae, m. A Roman surname: thus, C. Quinctius A., a Roman writer of comedies—lived about 120 B. C.

ATTACTION, ūs, m. [attingo]. Rar., and only in abl. sing. A touching, touch.

ATTAGEN, ōnis, m. [= ἄτταγεν]. A heath-cock, wood-cock.

ATTALENSES, ium, m. pl. The inhabitants of a town Attalia: 1) in Pamphylia, 2) in Mysia.

ATTALICUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Attalus, Attalian; urbes, Pergamean; conditiones, brilliant like those of Attalus; vestes, interwoven with gold.

ATTALIS, Idis, f. [= 'Ατταλίς]. The Attalian tribe at Athens, called after King Attalus.

ATTALUS, i, m. [= Ἀττάλος]. A Greek proper name:—1) An uncle of Cleopatra (the wife of Philip of Macedonia), and an enemy of Alexander. 2) A general in the service of Alexander. 3) The name of three kings of Pergamus, (241–138 B. C.), the last of whom, Attalus III., made the Roman people the heir of his kingdom and wealth.

AT-TÄMEN, conj. (Rar.) But yet, nevertheless: better written as two words, and almost always separated by another word.

AT-TÄMINO (ad-t.), i, v. tr. (Lat.) Prop., to touch; hence, 1) to rob, to take, canem; 2) trop., to dishonour: a. virginem.

ATTEGIA, ae, f. [an Arabic word]. A cottage.

ATTEMPERATE, adv. [attempero]. (Anteol.) Opportunely, in the nick of time.

AT-TEMPERO (ad-t.), āvi, ātum, i, v. tr. To join to, to fit, to adjust, aliquid sibi.

AT-TENDO (ad-t.), di, tum, 3. v. tr. 1) (Rar.) To stretch in any direction, arcum; hence, in gen., to direct towards. 2) A. animum, animos, or abs., to direct one's mind to any thing, either = to think of, to meditate upon, or to attend to, to give heed to: a. animum ad cavendum; a. animum quid velis, to what you wish; attendite, attend, mark! attendere aliquid or aliquem, to listen to a person or a thing; (rar.) a. de re or rei aliquid. In part. (lat.), to apply one's self to, to occupy one's self with, rei aliquid.

ATTENTE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [attentus]. Attentively, carefully.

ATTENTIO, ōnis, f. [attendo]. Prop., a stretching towards something: a. animi, or only a. Attention, attentiveness.

AT-TENTO (ad-t.), āvi, ātum, i, v. tr. 1) To attempt, to try, to make an attempt at, defectionem. 2) Trop.: A) a. Capuam, to try to seduce to revolt, to tamper with, fidem alicujus, to try to shake: B) to inquire into, to sound, aliquid: C) (poet. & lat.) to attack, aliquem.

ATTENTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [attendo]. Prop., intent upon any thing. 1) Attentive. 2) Intent upon one's advantage or profit, industrius, assiduus; and, in a bad sense, close, avaricious, niggardly, vita, paterfamilias; homo a. ad rem, that holds on to the money.

ATTENUATE, adv. [attenuatus]. Of discourse, poorly, without rhetorical ornament.

ATTENUATIO, ōnis, f. [attenuo]. (Lat.) 1) A lessening, a weakening. 2) A. verborum, a simple, unornamented style.

ATTENUATUS, a, um, adj. [part. of attenuo]. 1) Impaired, weak, fortuna, vox. 2) Trop., of discourse: A) (lat.) = meagre, without ornament: B) = shortened, short: C) over-refined, affected.

ATTENUO, āvi, ātum, i, v. tr. [ad-tenuis]. 1) To make thinner and weaker, to thin, to weaken, legionem proeliis; sortes sua sponte attenuatae, of themselves shrunk, become smaller.

3) Trop., to diminish, to lessen, to enfeeble, &c., vires, bellum, to make less dangerous or threatening; (poet.) a. opes suas, to waste, curas, to mitigate; a. aliquem, virtutem, to depreciate, to abase; vox attenuata, suppressed.

AT-TĒRO (ad-t.), trivi, tritum, 3. v. tr. 1) To rub one thing on another, to rub against, caudam, a. se rei alicui; hence, to rub away, to wear out by rubbing, rem aliquam; arenae attritae (poet.), sands rolled and rubbed together by the water running over them. 2) Trop.: A) = to diminish, to weaken, to destroy, exercitum, pudorem; a. Italian, to lay waste; publicani aa. eos, drain them dry, harass them; a. vires, manus, to weary: B) (lat.) frons attrita = a shameless, impudent brow.

AT-TESTOR (ad-t.), ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. (Lat.) To attest, to confirm, aliquid; fulmina attestata (tech. t., in the language of augurs), lightning confirming that which was made known by previous lightnings.

AT-TEXO (ad-t.), exui, extum, 3. v. tr. Prop., to weave on or to. 1) To plait on to, loricas ex oratibus. 2) Trop., to add to, partem ad aliquid.

ATTHIS or ATTIS, Idis, adj. f., [= 'Attis]. 1) Attie, Athenian; also, subst. (sc. terra) = Attica. 2) An Athenian woman; in partic. (lat.) — a) Philomela, and, as she was changed into a nightingale, hence = a nightingale — b) Procne, who was changed into a swallow, hence = a swallow. 3) A female friend of Sappho.

ATTIĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Attius]. Of or belonging to Attius, Attian: A. Versus, of the poet Attius; A. Milites, of the praetor Attius.

ATTICA, ae, f. [= 'Attika]. Attica, the most famous district of Greece, of which Athens was the capital.

ATTICA, ae, f. (also Atticōla). A daughter of Atticus.

ATTICE, adv. [Attica]. In the Attic or Athenian manner.

ATTICISSO, 1. v. intr. [attikizō]. (Pl.) To imitate the Athenian manner of speaking, to Atticise.

ATTICUS, a, um, adj. [= 'Attika]. 1) Pertaining to Attica or to Athens, Attie, Athenian; used esp. of art, science, or of culture and taste in gen.; hence, freq. = fine, excellent, cultivated; subst., Attici, ōrum, m. pl. — a) the inhabitants of Attica — b) Attic orators, i. e., of the Attic style. 2) An epithet given to T. Pomponius, the friend of Cicero, for his eloquence.

ATTIGO, for Attingo, q. v.

ATTILIĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Attilius]. Of or belonging to Attilius, Attilian.

ATTILIUS, a, um, adj. Attilian, lex, introduced by the tribune L. Attilius, 311 B. C.

ATTILIUS, ii, m. The name of a Roman gens: thus, esp. 1) A. Regulus, commander of the Roman forces in the first Punic war; 2) C. A. Serranus, an opponent of Cicero; 3) an old Roman poet.

ATTINEO, tīnui, tentum, 2. v. tr. & intr. [ad-teneo]. I. Tr. 1) To hold near; hence, in gen., to hold, to hold fast, to hold back, aliquem, manum alicujus; trop., a. aliquem spe pacis, to detain, to amuse. 2) (Ante-cl. & lat.) To defend, to maintain, ripam Danubii. II. Intr. 1) Of place, to extend, stretch or reach: Scythae aa. ad Tanaim. 2) Trop., to belong somewhere, to pertain to something, mostly in third pers. sing.: a) hoc (id, res, quid) a. ad me, ad agrum colendum, ad rem — b) a. me, it concerns me; also, a. custodiam religionis — c) abs., hoc a., freq. nihil a., it is of no use, no avail, no importance; quid a. illud facere, what's the advantage in doing that?

ATTINGO, attigi, attactum, 3. v. tr. [ad-tango]. 1) To touch, to touch upon, rem; aries a. muros. Hence: A) to touch in a hostile manner, to strike: puerum ne attingas; a. aliquem bello, to attack: B) a. herbam = to eat: C) = to touch a place, to reach, to arrive at, Asiam, Britanniam navibus, domum, montem: D) to border upon a place, to be contiguous to, regionem. 2) Trop.: A) to touch, to reach, to affect, to concern: cura, voluptas a. me; labor non a. deum; causa haec te non a.: B) to touch upon any thing in speaking, to mention slightly, aliquid: C) to undertake, to be occupied with, to apply one's self to, litteras Graecas, poeticam, forum (public business): D) to pertain to, naturam humanam; a. aliquem necessitudine, to stand in close connection with: E) to approach in quality or property, to come near to anything, aliquem, solium Jovis.

ATTIS — v. Atys.

ATTIUS (less correctly Accius), ii, m. The name of a Roman gens: thus, esp. 1) A. Naevius, the Augur, who lived during the reign of Tarquinius Priscus; 2) a celebrated tragic poet of the ante-classical period, 186 B. C.; 3) C. Attius Pignus, belonged to the Pompeian party, and committed suicide at Sulmo, B. C. 49; 4) P. A. Varus, an adherent of Pompey, praetor in Africa, during the civil war between Caesar and Pompey.

AT-TOLLO (ad-t.), —, —, 3. v. tr. 1) To lift or raise up, to lift on high, to raise, manus ad coelum; a. jacentem, to help up; (poet.) anguis a. iras, lifts itself up in anger; hence, of buildings, &c. = to erect, turrim, arcem. 2) To raise, to elevate, to sustain, animos; in partic., in reference to power, consideration, &c. = to exalt, to aggrandize, rempublicam; hence = to magnify, to praise, rem aliquam triumphi insignibus, to distinguish; a. cuncta in majus, to make greater by means of discourses; orator attollitur supra modum sermonis, elevates his voice above the tone of ordinary conversation.

AT-TONDEO (ad-t.) di, sum, 2. v. tr. 1) To shave, to shear, to clip, to lop, vitem; (poet.) capellae aa. virgulta, gnaw at. 2) Trop.: A) = to diminish, laudem alicujus: B) (Com.) — a) = to cheat — b) = to beat soundly.

ATTONĪTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of attono]. Prop., struck by thunder — always trop. 1) Stunned, amazed, astounded, stupefied, re aliqua, by any thing. 2) Filled or seized with inspiration, inspired.

AT-TŌNO (ad-t.), ui, itum, 1. v. tr. (Poet.) Prop., to thunder at; hence, trop., to stun, to stupefy, to bewilder, mentem alicujus.

ATTONSUS, a, um, part. of attondeo, q. v.

*AT-TORQUEO (ad-t.), —, —, 2. v. tr. To hurl, jaculum.

*ATTRACTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of attraho]. Contracted, wrinkled, frons.

AT-TRAHO (ad-tr.), xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) To draw somewhere: a. aliquem Romam, ad se; trop., ea res me ad hoc negotium a., has moved, has prompted. 2) To draw to one's self, to draw towards, arcum, animam, lora.

ATTRECTĀTIO, ōnis, f. [attrecto]. (Lat.) A touching, handling.

*ATTRECTĀTUS, ūs, m. [attrecto]. (Old poet.) = Attrectatio.

ATTRECTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [ad-tracto]. 1) To touch, to handle (esp. in an unlawful manner), rem aliquam. 2) Trop.: A) to appropriate to one's self, gazas regias: B) to occupy one's self with.

*AT-TREPIDO (ad-tr.), 1. v. intr. To hobble along.

AT-TRIBUO (ad-tr.), ui, ūtum, 3. v. tr. 1) To allot, to assign, to bestow: a. servis equos; a. illis agros urbesque, to assign for habitation. In partic.: A) to assign to a person something to be performed, administered, &c.: attribuit nos trucidandos Cethego, illis curam rei alicujus; thus, esp. = to place under one's command: a. alicui legiones, praefectis equites: B) = to subject, to incorporate, Suessiones Remis, insulas Rhodiis: C) senae horae in orbem operi attributae sunt, are devoted: D) a. legi orationem, to put a speech into the mouth of, to introduce as speaking: E) = to give, to bestow, in gen.: pudor quem mihi natura attribuit. 2) Tech. t., in pecuniary affairs, to assign, to cause a payment to be made through another, pecuniam, aliquid ex aerario. Hence, a. aliquem, to refer one for payment to another: attributus meus (mihi), he to whom I have been referred for payment. 3) to associate, to add, alicui aliquos, (rar.) rem ad aliquid. 4) To ascribe, to impute, alicui causam calamitatis. 5) To lay on as a tax.

ATTRIBŪTIO, ōnis, f. [attribuo]. 1) An assignment of money. 2) = Attributum.

ATTRIBŪTUM, i, n. [attribuo]. Tech. t., in gram., a predicate, an attribute.

ATTRITIO, ōnis, f. } [attero]. (Lat.) A rub-ATTRITUS, ūs, m. } bing against.

ATTRITUS, a, um, part. of attero, q. v.

ATTUĀRII, ōrum, m. pl. A people of Germany, between the Rhine and the Elbe.

ĀTYPUS, a, um, adj. [= ἀτυπος]. Pronouncing indistinctly, = that stammers rather than pronounces.

ATYS (ATTYS, ATTIS), Ἰῶς, m. [ἄτυς, ἄττυς, ἄττις]. 1) A Phrygian shepherd, whom Cybele loved, but afterwards made mad, because he had broken his vow of chastity. 2) A son of Hercules and Omphale, and the progenitor of the Lydian kings, who were therefore called Atyadae.

AU or HAU, interj. (Cóm.) Oh! ah!

AUCĒPS, cūpis, m. [avis-capio]. 1) A bird-catcher, fowler. 2) Trop., one who hunts eagerly after any thing: peritissimus a. voluptatum, very experienced in finding out and procuring sensual pleasure; a. syllabarum, a caviller or quibbler, a lawyer who tries to extort advantage from the letter of a law; ne quis auceps sermoni nostro sit, as eaves-dropper.

AUCHĒTAE, ārum, m. pl. [Ἀυχῆται]. A Scythian people, on the Hypanis (Bog), in the present Ukraine.

AUCTĀRIUM, ii, n. [augeo]. (Ante-cl.) An augmentation of a measure, an addition.

*AUCTIFICUS, a, um, adj. [auctus-facio]. (Lucr.) Increasing, promoting the growth of any thing.

AUCTIO, ōnis, f. [augeo]. Prop., an increase.

1) A public sale, an auction: proponere, proscrivere a., to make known, facere, to hold. *2) (Doubt.) Goods to be sold at an auction.

AUCTIŌNĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [auctio]. Pertaining to an auction: tabulae aa., catalogues of the goods to be sold at an auction.

AUCTIŌNOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. To hold an auction.

AUCTITO, 1. v. tr. [freq. of aucto]. (Lat.) To increase or augment much.

AUCTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [freq. of augeo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To increase or enlarge much, aliquid; trop., a. aliquem spe, to increase one's hopes greatly.

AUCTOR, ōris, m. [augeo] (used also of women). Hence, 1): A) an author, vulneris, facinoris, beneficii, a benefactor; a. teli (poet.), he who has thrown the dart: B) a founder: a. nobilitatis tuae; a. gentis or originis: sometimes also abs. a., a progenitor: C) (poet. & lat.) a builder, establisher, founder, urbis, operis, domus: D) freq., an author of a writing, a writer (mostly, however, of historians — cf. No. 3): a. rerum Romanarum, a writer of Roman history; bonus a.; legere, evolvere auctorem. 2) He by whose advice or influence any thing is done, an adviser, instigator, promoter encourager &c.:

a. sum pacis, I go for peace, aliquid faciendi; vehementer a. tibi sum ut absis, I advise you to, &c.; is a. erat in me restituendo; in partic., me (te, illo) auctore, by my (your, his) advice; auctoribus qui aderant, by the advice of those present. Hence, tech. t.: A) of a person, a. legis: a) (rar.) = lator legis, he by whom a law is first proposed, a mover, proposer; β) (= suasor legis, but stronger) he who with all his influence favours and urges the passage of a proposed law; thus, likewise, a. deditionis, etc.: B) α) of the senate, a. ratifier, who confirms any thing, and thus makes it valid (according to the ancient constitution of the republic): a. legis, also judiciorum; hence, freq. in Livy, patres aa. fiunt, the senators consent, and ratify the resolutions of the people; β) a. consilii publici, a senator whose opinion was of decisive influence, a leader, spokesman.

3) A voucher, security, guarantee, authority: Fabium auctorem habeo; a. levis, unreliable, gravis, trustworthy; aa. sumus, tutum illud fore, we pledge ourselves, that, &c.; certis aa. illud comperi, from good sources; also (lat.), in gen., a narrator, relator. 4) A teacher: versari in philosophia illo a., to study philosophy under his guidance; (poet.) a. naturae, a teacher of natural science; a. dicendi, a teacher of rhetoric. 5) A pattern, example, model, an authority, &c.: unum cedo auctorem facti tui, name to me a single one who has done before what you do; Cato omnium virtutum a. 6) A spokesman, champion, an agent of others: a. societatis, querelarum alicujus.

7) Tech. t., in the lang. of business: A) a seller, inasmuch as he must warrant (cf. No. 3) the title to the thing to be sold; hence, malus a., who is unable to prove his right of possession: B) a guardian, trustee, of minors and women who could not act for themselves in law or in pecuniary affairs: feminam nihil agere decet sine a.: C) nuptiarum aa., at espousals, a witness, who certified the marriage contract by signing it; nubit nullis aa., without witnesses.

AUCTORAMENTUM, i. n. [auctor]. 1) That for which one binds himself to the performance of any service (as a gladiator, soldier, &c.), pay, hire, wages: a. servitutis. 2) (Lat.) A contract, a stipulation to perform service; a. turpissimum.

AUCTORITAS, ātis, f. [auctor]. 1) (Rar.) A production, invention, cause of any thing: a. rumoris; a. et inventio. 2) An example, pattern, authority: repudiare omnium superiorum auctoritatem; dare a.; a. majorum, an example given from the forefathers. 3) Counsel, advice, incitement, encouragement: valuit ejus auctoritas, his advice was followed; a. ejus mihi vivit, I follow his counsel still, after his death; per a. illarum civitatum, by means of the intervention (interposition) of those states; defugio auctoritatem consulatus mei, I will not consent, that the events of my consulship should be ascribed to my influence. *4) Important opinion, opinion: defendere a. suam.

5) Will, command, decree, order: consilium et a. eorum qui scripserunt; conferre se ad (or sequi) a. alicujus. In partic.: A) senatus a. = a decree of the senate, by means of which the laws and the resolutions of the people or of the magistrates became valid and binding, both in the ancient times, and in the later period when a vote of the senate was a mere form; hence, called sometimes — a) the will of the senate: contra a. senatus; sometimes — b) a decree of the senate = senatus consultum: vetus senatus a. de Bacchanalibus, ex a. senatus; sometimes — c) a resolution of the senate, i. e., which was invalidated by the protest of the tribunes or in some other way, and therefore did not become a decree (senatus consultum), but simply the senate's declaration, judgment, opinion: si quis intercedat senatus consulto, contentus ero auctoritate: B) a. populi, the will, decision of the people; also, a. collegii (pontificum).

6) The might, power, which one legitimately possessed: a. legum dandarum. 7) Of things, weight, significance, importance, value: antiqua verba plus auctoritatis habent; preces habent a.; a. vetustatis, the weight which any thing has from its antiquity; a. hujus loci, this honourable, exalted place; a. formae, dignity of appearance. 8) Of persons, consideration, influence, dignity, authority: a. imperatoria; afferre, facere a., to give, to procure; philosophi summa auctoritate; legem confirmare auctoritate alicujus, by adducing some one as authority; tribuere amicis a.

9) Trustworthiness, validity, credibility: a. est in illo testimonio; a. somniorum tollitur. 10) That which gives validity and credibility: A) the record, paper, document: aa. publicae; aa. civitatum: B) the name of a person who is warranty for a thing, an authority: contemnitis aa. In partic., aa. praescriptae, the names of those senators who were present at the drawing up of a decree, and who added their signatures to it. 11) The right of possession (against every other person who might set up a claim to the thing): lex usum et a. fundi jubet esse biennium; adversus hostem aeterna a. = a stranger cannot, by the usufruct of a thing, obtain the right of possessing it.

AUCTORO, āvi, ātum, l. v. tr. [auctor]. (Mostly lat.) 1) A. se or pass. auctoror, to obligate one's self, to hire one's self out for something, esp. of a gladiator. *2) = To prepare, to procure, alicui victoriam.

AUCTUMNALIS, e, adj. [auctumnus]. Of or pertaining to autumn, autumnal, rosa, frigus.

AUCTUMNUS, i, m. [augeo]. Autumn, the season of plenty and abundance.

AUCTUMNUS, a, um, adj. (Poet. & lat.) Autumnal.

AUCTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of augeo]. Increased, enlarged: auctior majestas, greater dignity; socii honore auctiores, distinguished with greater honour.

AUCTUS, ūs, m. [augeo]. An increasing, enlarging, increase, growth, corporis, arboris, fluminis.

AUCŪPATIO, ōnis, f. [aucupor]. (Lat.) Bird-catching.

AUCŪPATORIUS, a, um, adj. [aucupor]. (Lat.) Useful for bird-catching, arundo.

AUCŪPIUM, ii, n. [auceps]. 1) Bird-catching, fowling. Hence, trop. = a chasing, striving after or grasping at any thing: a. verborum, a catching at words, quibbling; hoc novum est a. (Com.), this is a new way of making money; facere a. auribus (Com.) = to listen. 2) (Poet. & lat.) The birds caught.

AUCŪPO, 1. v. tr. [auceps]. (Ante-cl. for aucupor.) To watch for, to hunt after.

AUCŪPOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. [auceps]. 1) To catch birds, to go a fowling. 2) Trop., to give chase to any thing, to hunt or strive after, to lie in wait for: a. occasionem, favorem populi, absentiam alicujus.

AUDACIA, ae, f. [audax]. Boldness — a) in a good sense = courage, daring: spes salutis est in a.; audacia verbis datur, a bold manner of expression is allowed — b) in a bad sense = audacity, temerity: a. impudens; aa., daring, hazardous acts.

AUDACITER, } adv. w. comp. & sup. [audax].
AUDACTER, } Boldly, courageously, daringly, rashly.

AUDACŪLUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of audax]. (Rar. & lat.) A little bold.

AUDAX, ācis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [audeo]. Bold; partly in a good sense = courageous, unterrified; partly, and mostly in a bad sense = audacious, rash, presumptuous: a. et amens; a. et protervus; a. ad id facinus; (poet.) a. omnia perpeti, bold enough to encounter any thing; a. proeliis, for the conflict; a. viribus, confident in his strength. Also (poet. & lat.), of things and abstract conceptions, a. facinus, consilium, spes; a. paupertas (poet.), making bold; verba aa., of boldness in the use of figures, tropes, &c.

AUDENS, tis, adj. w. comp. [part. of audeo]. (Poet. & lat.) Bold, daring (in a good sense).

AUDENTER, adv. [audens]. Boldly, fearlessly.

AUDENTIA, ae, f. [audens]. Boldness, confidence, courage; also = boldness in the use of forms of speech, tropes, &c.

AUDEO, ausus sum, —, 2. v. tr. [old future subjunct., ausim]. To dare, to venture, to be bold enough to do, tantum rem; res est audenda; a. dicere; (*Pl.) non a. quin. Also, without any object added = to be bold, courageous, to behave courageously; longius a. (Tac.), to venture farther; a. in proelia (poet.), to have courage for the strife.

AUDIENS, entis [part. of audio]. 1) Adj., obedient: dicto audientem esse alicui. 2) Subst., a hearer: ad animos audientium permovendos.

AUDIO, īvi or īi, Itum, 4. v. tr. 1) To hear, to perceive, to learn by hearing (cf. ausculto): a. strepitum; a. aliquid ex (ab, rarely de) aliquo, from some one; audio, eum mortuum esse; audi mus, they say; nemo eum quereutem audit, heard him complain; saepe ex eo audi vi quum diceret, I have often heard him say; audi vi, majores hoc dixisse, I have learned that, &c.; Camillus auditus eos terruit, the name of Camillus terrified them. Also, a. aliquid de aliquo, to hear something about any one, aliquid in aliquem, to hear any thing against one; (poet.) a. pugnas, about battles. In partic., in the language of conversation: A) audi, hear! listen! B) audin' = audisne, do you hear? (in urging one to something). 2) To listen to any person or thing, to give a thing one's attention, aliquem and aliquid. In partic.: A) of a pupil, to hear a teacher, i. e., to enjoy his instructions: B) of a judge, to listen to = to institute an examination, de ambitu, to give any one a hearing: servum cras audiam. C) rex audit de pace, listened to the proposed conditions of peace: D) to grant: dii aa. preces meas; a. aliquem, to grant one's request. 3) To listen to any person or thing approvingly, to approve of, to assent to, to grant, to allow, aliquid and aliquem. Hence, abs., audio = I grant or allow that; non audio, that I do not grant. 4) To hear a person or thing obediently, to obey, to follow, aliquem; istam sapientiam, currus non a. habenas (poet.). 5) To have a name or character, to hear one's self called somehow, to be reputed, to be esteemed; freq., bene (male) a., to have a good (bad) reputation; (poet.) si curas esse quod audis, if you strive to be what you are taken for: rex audio, I hear myself called king. 6) (Lat.) In pass., of a word to be supplied in a sentence, to be understood.

AUDITIO, ōnis, f. [audio]. 1) A hearing, a listening to. 2) Hearsay, report, news: fictae aa.; auditione et famā aliquid accipere.

AUDITOR, ōris, m. [audio]. 1) A hearer. 2) A constant hearer = a scholar, a disciple.

AUDITORIUM, ii, n. [audio]. (Lat.) 1) A lecture-room, an audience-room; also, a school. 2) An assembly of persons, an audience, auditory.

AUDITUS, ūs, m. [audio]. 1) (Lat.) A hearing, listening: brevis a.; accipi plurimum auditu, to be heard by several. Hence = hearsay, rumor: a. prior animos occupaverat. 2) The hearing = the sense of hearing.

AUFÉJUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to the gens Aufeja: A. lex, a law named after the tribune Aufejus.

AUFÉRO, abetŭli, ablātum, auferre, v. tr. [abs-fero]. 1) To carry off or away, to take away: a. rem ab janua, multa domum suam, plura de medio; a. se (colloq.), to detach one's self away, to be off. In partic.: A) (mostly poet.) in pass., of things or persons, to be carried off, to be borne away, by waves, by a wind, on wings, &c.: auferri pennis, vento secundo: B) trop., to carry away from a fixed aim or course, to divert, to withdraw, to mislead: ne aliorum consilia te auferant: C) trop., to carry off = to sweep off, to destroy, to consume: mors citum a.; ignis a. urbem. 2) To take away from, to snatch away, to rob: a. pecuniam de acriario, alicui imperium, spem, somnum; a. alicui fugam, to make one's flight impossible; a. alicui caput, to behead. Hence: A) (lat.) = to separate, to sever: a. Europam Asiae: B) (colloq.) freq. imper., aufer = away with, leave off, cease: a. mihi oportet, away with that word 'oportet'; a. nugas; a. me vultu terrere: C) (lat.) = to rescue, to extricate, auferri periculo. 3) To carry off something received, obtained, or gained = to receive, to obtain, to gain: a. responsum ab aliquo; a. pretium, praemium; a. ut, etc., to bring about that, &c.; nunquam id inultum auferet, he shall never do that with impunity; thus, likewise, haud sic auferet, that shall not pass (ex. fero). Hence, a. aliquid ex re aliqua = to perceive, to understand.

AUFIDÉNA, ae, f. A town in Samnium, now Alfidena.

AUFIDÉNATES, um, m. pl. The inhabitants of Aufidena.

AUFIDIÁNUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Aufidena, Aufidian.

AUFIDIUS, ii, m., and AUFIDIA, ae, f. The name of a Roman gens: thus, esp. 1) Cn. A., tribune of the people (114 B. C.), praetor (108 B. C.), and author of a history of Greece; 2) Cn. A. Orestes Aurelianus, an adopted son of the preceding, and consul 71 B. C.; 3) M. A. Lurco, a tribune of the people (61 B. C.); 4) Auf. Bassus, a Roman historian under Augustus.

AUFIDUS, i, m. A river in Apulia, now Ofanto.

AUFÜGIO (ab-f.), fūgi, 3. v. intr. To flee away, hinc; (poet.) a. blanditias, aspectum patriae, to flee from.

AUGE, es, f. [= Ἀγυή]. 1) One of the Horae. 2) A daughter of Aleus, and mother of Telephus by Hercules.

AUGEQ, xi, ctum, 2. v. tr. [ἀύξω]. 1) To increase, to augment, to enlarge, to heighten, to strengthen, possessiones, classem, dolorem alicui, benevolentiam, animum alicujus, suspicionem: a. numerum coelestium (poet.) = to be received among the gods. Hence, trop., to amplify by words = to magnify, to praise, to set off, munus suum, aliquid verbis or laudando; metus a. omnia in majus, exaggerates. 2) To furnish any one abundantly with a thing, to enrich, to load, to bless: a. aliquem divitiis, scientiis; a. aliquem benevolentia, honore, to bestow great favour, great honour on one. Hence: A) a. aliquem, to make one richer, more powerful, to elevate, to promote; a. atque ornare; a. et adjuvare; a. se, to aggrandize one's self: B) (poet.) a. aram, deum, to honour by offerings: C) aer terram augeat imbris, makes fruitful. — Intr. (Ante-cl., poet. & lat.) To grow, to increase.

AUGESCO, —, —, 3. v. intr. To grow, to increase: mare et terra, semen, aegritudo, licentia a.

AUGIAS or AUGĒAS, ae, m. [= Ἀγέλας]. A king of Elis, whose stable, uncleansed for thirty years, was cleansed by Hercules in one day: hence, prov., cloacas Augiae purgare, i. e., to perform a difficult and unpleasant labour.

AUGMEN, inia, } n. [augeo]. (Ante-cl. & AUGMENTUM, i, } lat.) An increase, growth, corpora.

AUGUR, ūris, m. 1) A soothsayer, who interpreted the omens taken from the flight or the notes of birds or the feeding of fowls, &c., an augur (cf. auspex). The Aa. formed a college of priests in Rome, whose origin and doctrines were derived from Etruria. 2) Comm. (Poet.) A soothsayer, a seer, in gen.: a. imaginis nocturnae, an interpreter of a night-vision; annosa cornix augur aquae, rain-foreboding.

AUGŪRĀLIS, e, adj. [augur]. Of or pertaining to Augurs, jus; coena a., which an augur, on entering upon his office, gave to his future colleagues. Hence, subst., Augurāle, is, n. (lat.): A) a place in a Roman camp to the right of the general's tent, where the auspices were taken; also = the principal tent: B) an augur's staff.

AUGŪRĀTIO, ōnis, f. [auguror]. A divination.

AUGŪRĀTO, adv. [auguro]. After observing the omens.

AUGŪRĀTUS, ūs, [augur]. The office of an augur.

AUGŪRIUM, ii, n. 1) The observation and interpretation of omens, augury, agere. 2) An omen, augury: capere, dare, accipere a. 3) In gen., = divination, prophecy: a. rerum futurarum. Hence: A) a foreboding, presentiment: inhaeret in mentibus quasi a. seculorum futurorum: B) (poet.) the art of divining or prophesying: Apollo ei dedit a. [Fr. augur.]

AUGŪRIUS, a, um, adj. [augur]. (Rar.) = Auguralis.

AUGŪRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To investigate and interpret by means of omens (in an old formula of law): a. salutem populi. 2) To consecrate after observing the auguries, locum. 3) = Auguror. 4) (Pl.) To search, to examine carefully. [Fr. augur].

AUGUROR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to perform the services of an augur, to observe and interpret omens, to make auguries. 2) Tr.: A) to presage, to prophesy, to divine after observing the omens, res futuras, annos belli Trojanī; also, in gen., to prophesy, to divine, alicui mortem, quid ille facturus sit: B) to forebode, to conjecture, to foresee, aliquid mente (conjecturā).

AUGUSTA, ae, f. [Augustus]. In the time of the emperors, a title of honour given to the wife, mother, daughters, sisters of the emperor, 'Imperial Majesty.' 2) The name of several towns, e. g., A. Taurinorum = Turin.

AUGUSTĀLIS, e, adj. [Augustus]. Relating to (the Emperor) Augustus: ludi Aa., in honour of Augustus, celebrated on the twelfth day of October, the day of his return to Rome; sodales (sacerdotes) Augustales, a college of twenty-five priests, instituted in honour of A. by Tiberius.

AUGUSTĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Augustus]. Prop., pertaining to an emperor. Hence, subst., Augustāni, ōrum, m. pl., Roman knights appointed by Nero to military service.

AUGUSTE, adv. w. comp. [Augustus]. Reverently, with religious awe: a. deos venerari.

AUGUSTĪANUS, } a, um, adj. [Augustus].

AUGUSTINUS, } Of or pertaining to Augustus.

AUGUSTŌDŪNUM, i, n. A town of the Aedui, in Gaul, now Autun.

AUGUSTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [augeo]. Sacred, majestic, august, locus, templum, initia urbis, habitus.

AUGUSTUS, i, m. A surname of C. Octavianus Cæsar, and, after him, of his successors, like the modern 'Imperial Majesty.' Hence, adj., Augustus, a, um: 1) pertaining to Augustus, mensis, the month of August, called after him, its former name being Sextilis; 2) pertaining to an emperor: historia A., the history of the emperors.

AULA, ae, f. [= αὐλή]. 1) (Mostly poet.) A fore-court, court: a. pastoris, a court-yard for cattle. 2) (Poet.) = atrium, the inner court of a house: lectus genialis in a. est. 3) A prince's court, a castle, a palace: a. invidenda; vivere in a., at court. Hence, trop.: A) princely dignity: potiri aulā; auctoritas aulae: B) the court = courtiers: a. in eum prona.

AULAEUM, i, n. [= αὐλαία]. In gen., richly embroidered or wrought cloth. 1) A curtain, esp. of a theatre, which (contrary to modern usage) was fastened below, and consequently fell down (a. premitur) at the beginning of a play, and was drawn up (a. tollitur) at the end. 2) A covering for chairs, sofas, &c., tapestry; also, a kind of canopy, a curtain stretched, in the form of a tent, round the table to keep off the dust from the roof: coenae sine aa., suspensa aa. 3) (Lat. & poet.) An embroidered upper garment.

AULERCI, ōrum, m. pl. A people in northern Gaul. Cæsar divides them into three branches: 1) A. Eburovices or Eburones, in the present Département de l'Eure; 2) A. Cenomani, now Département de la Sarthe; 3) A. Brannovices, now le Briennais.

*AULETES, ae, m. [= αὐλητής]. (Doubtful reading.) A flute-player: a surname of the exiled King Ptolemy of Egypt.

AULICUS, a, um, adj. [aula]. Belonging to a court, court-like, princely, apparatus; subst., Aulici, ōrum, m. pl., courtiers.

AULIS, Idis, f. [= Ἀῤῥῖς]. A maritime town in Boeotia, where the Greeks assembled for their expedition against Troy, and where Iphigenia was immolated.

AULOEDUS, i, m. [= αὐλοῖδης]. One who sings to the flute.

AULON, ōnis, m. A mountain not far from Tarentum, famous for its wine.

AULŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of aula]. (Lat.) A small pot.

AULŪLĀRIA, ae, f. [aulula]. The title of a comedy of Plautus, the hero of which is an old miser, who buried a pot of gold.

AULUS, i, m. A Roman praenomen, usually written A.

AURA, ae, f. [= ἀῆρ]. 1) (Mostly poet.) The air in gentle motion, a breath of air, a gentle current of air: aër frequentius habet a. quam ventos; omnes aa. me terrent. Hence, trop.: A) a. rumoris, spei, etc. (to denote the insignificance or uncertainty of such objects): captare a. libertatis, to catch at a faint appearance or feeble hope of freedom: B) esp., a. popularis or only a. = popular favour: ferri aurā, to be actuated by a desire for popular applause. 2) (Poet.) In gen. = wind: a. rapida, stridens. 3) (Poet. & lat.) Air: discedere in auras; ducere or capere a. = to breathe; vesci aurā, to enjoy the vital air = to live. In partic.: A) in (ad) auras assurgere, aliquid erigere, on high, up towards heaven: B) venire ad (in) aa., the upper world (in opp. to the lower world): C) = daylight; trop., publicity: ferre aliquid sub auras, to make known, to bring to light. 4) (Poet.): A) lustre: a. auri: B) a sound, tone: a. puellae clamantis: C) odour, exhalation: dulcis a. spiravit crinibus compositis.

AURĀRIA, ae, f. (sc. fodina) [aurarius]. A gold mine.

AURĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [aurum]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Of or pertaining to gold, gold, negotium.

AURĀTŪRA, ae, f. [aurum]. (Lat., doubtful.) Gilding.

AURĀTUS, a, um, adj. [aurum]. 1) Furnished or decked with gold, gilded or gilt, vestis, tectum; miles a., having a golden or gilded shield; tempora aa., covered with a golden helmet; sinus a., ornamented with a golden clasp. 2) (Poet. = aureus.) Golden, monilia. 3) (Lat.) Gold-coloured: guttae aa.

AURELIUS (ii, m.) and AURELIA (ae, f.) *The name of a Roman gens, in which the family of the Cottae was the most distinguished: thus, Caius A. Cotta, a friend of the tribune M. Livius Drusus, consul 75 B. C., and a renowned orator. Cicero introduces him as an interlocutor in his treatise De Oratore and in the third book De Natura Deorum. Adj., Aurelius, a, um, of or pertaining to an Aurelius. Hence—*a) via Aurelia, extending from Rome to Pisa, and, later, to Arelate —b) forum Aurelium, a town in Etruria, on the via Aurelia, now Castellaccio —c) tribunal Aurelium or gradus Aurelii, a tribunal in the forum of Rome —d) lex Aurelia, introduced by an Aurelius, esp. lex A. judiciaria, named after the praetor L. Aurelius Cotta, by which the judges had to be drawn from three different ranks: senatores, equites, and tribuni aerarii.

AUREOLUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of aureus]. Golden, anellus; trop. = excellent, libellus.

AUREUS, a, um, adj. [aurum]. 1) Mode of gold, golden, patera, corona; a. numus, or subst. Aureus, i, m., a gold coin, in value = 25 denarii of silver or 100 sestertii; (poet.) vis a., the power to change everything into gold. 2) = Auratus, gilded, gilt: templum, sella a. 3) (Poet.) Gold-coloured, shining like gold: a. color ignis, luna, sol, coma. 4) Trop. = magnificent, beautiful, splendid, excellent, porticus, Venus, littus, mores, dicta.

AURICOMUS, a, um, adj. [aurum-coma]. (Poet.) Prop., with golden hair: a. fetus arboris, with golden foliage.

AURICULA, ae, f. [dim. of auris]. 1) The ear-lap: pervellere alicui auriculam, to pull one's ear. 2) In gen., the ear: avidi auricularum, v. Avidus.

AURIFER, ěra, ěrum, adj. [aurum-fero]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Carrying gold along with itself, amnia. 2) Producing gold: terra a.; arbor a., bearing golden fruit.

AURIFEX, Icīs, m. [aurum-facio]. A worker in gold, a goldsmith.

AURI-FODINA, ae, f. [aurum]. A gold mine.

AURIGA, ae, m. [from an obsolete word, aurea, 'the bridle of a horse,' and ago]. A charioteer, driver; also, a groom, an hostler; (poet.) of a woman: soror a.; esp., a charioteer in the ludi Circenses.

AURIGĀRIUS, ii, m. (Lat.) = Auriga.

AURIGATIO, ōnis, f. [aurigo]. (Lat.) A driving in a chariot = a contest in driving chariots

AURIGĒNA, ae, m. [aurum-gigno]. (Poet.) Sprung from gold (an epithet of Perseus, q. v., AURIGER, ěra, ěrum, adj. [aurum-gero]. (Poet.) Bearing or wearing gold.

AURIGO, āvi, ātum, l. v. intr. [auriga]. (Lat.) 1) To drive a chariot = to contend in a chariot-race. 2) In gen., to guide: stellis aurigantibus.

AURIS, is, f. 1) The ear: erigere, arrigere aa., to prick up the ears, to listen attentively; adhibere (admove, praebere, dare) alicui a., to lend an ear to one, to listen; in auribus (Tac. also apud aures) alicujus, so that it is heard by one; in aurem or in aure dicere (loqui) alicui aliquid, to whisper in one's ear; thus, likewise, admonere ad aurem, to warn or admonish in a low tone of voice; aurem vellere alicui, to pull one's ear = to admonish, to warn; servire or aliquid dare auribus alicujus, to gratify one's ears, to speak to one's will; prov. (trop.), dormire in utramque (or dextram) a. = to be unconcerned, without care. Freq., the disposition and character of auditors are attributed to the ears; hence, aures = hearers, auditors: aa. hebetes, acutae, amiose, defessae. 2) (Poet.) The mould-board or earth-board of a plough.

AURITULUS, i, m. [dim. auritus]. (Phaedr.) A long-eared animal, i. e., the ass.

AURITUS, a, um, adj. [auris]. 1) Having long or large ears, long-eared, asinus, lepus. 2) Trop.: A) (poet.) = listening, attentive, quercus: B) testis a., who has only heard, not seen, a thing (opp. to oculatus, q. v.). 3) (Plin.) Ear-shaped.

AURŌRA, ae, f. [aurea hora?]. 1) The redness of the dawn, dawn, daybreak: primā aurorā or ad primam a., at the first dawn. 2) (Personified) = The goddess of the Morning ('Hés), daughter of Hyperion, wife of Tithonus, and mother of Memnon. 3) (Poet.) = The East, the Orient, and the nations living there.

AURUM, i, n. 1) Gold; prov., montes auri polliceri, to promise whole mountains of gold. 2) (Poet.): A) = various things made of gold, as golden vessels or utensils, goblets, chains, rings; freq., esp. money: B) = the colour or lustre of gold: spicas nitido flaventes auro: C) the Golden Age: tempora redeunt in a. priscum.

AURUNCI, ōrum, m. pl. The Aurnadi (another name of the Ausones).

AURUNCUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to the Aurnadi; subst., Aurunca, ae, f. = Sues-sa Aurunca, q. v.

AURUNCŪLEIUS, i, m. A Roman proper name; aa, L. A. Cotta, one of Caesar's legates, in Gaul.

AUSCI, ōrum, m. pl. A people in Aquitania, in the present Département du Gers. At a later period, their capital was likewise called Ausci, now Auch.

AUSCULTATIO, ōnis, f. [ausculto]. 1) (Lat.) A listening to. 2) (Ante-cl.) An obeying.

AUSCULTATOR, ōris, m. [ausculto]. 1) A hearer, listener. 2) (Lat.) One who obeys.

AUSCULTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. [auscūla, for auricula]. 1) To listen to a person or thing (cf. audio): a. et animum adverto; a. aliquem. Hence: A) (Pl.) to listen secretly to a thing, to overhear, to find out by eaves-dropping, omnia haec, quid is habet sermonis: *B) (Pl.) to listen to believingly = to believe, to give credit to, crimina. 2) To listen to obediently = to obey, alicui; auscultabitur = it shall be done.

AUSER, ēris, m. A river in Etruria, now Serchio.

AUSĒTĀNI, ōrum, m. pl. A people in Spain, in the present Catalonia.

AUSĒTĀNUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to the Ausetanians, ager.

AUSŌNA, ae, f. An ancient town of the Ausonians, not far from Minturnae.

AUSŌNES, um, m. pl. The Ausonians, the primitive inhabitants of Middle and Lower Italy.

AUSŌNIA, ae, f. The country of the Ausonians, Lower Italy; sometimes (poet.) used for the whole of Italy.

AUSŌNIDAE, ārum, m. pl. (Poet.) 1) The inhabitants of Ausonia. 2) The inhabitants of Italy.

AUSŌNIS, Idis, f. adj. = Ausonius.

AUSŌNIUS, a, um, adj. Ausonian; (poet.) = Italian, Roman, in gen.

AUSPEX, icis, comm. [avis-specio]. 1) A bird-seer, one who divines from the flight, singing or feeding of birds (an older form for 'augur,' which was exclusively used at a later period). 2) Since, in all perilous undertakings, the omens had to be consulted, (poet.) a leader, protector, favourer: diis auspiciis, under the guidance of the gods; Teucro duce et auspice. 3) Tech. t., a person who assisted at the marriage ceremony, and witnessed the marriage contract, a groom's-man.

AUSPĪCĀTO, adv. [abl. abs. from auspicio]. 1) After observing the auguries, condere urbem. 2) With favourable omens = in a good hour or time: domum a. ingredi; haud a. huc me attuli.

AUSPĪCĀTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of auspicio]. 1) Consecrated, hallowed by the taking of the auspices, comitia. 2) Favourable, fortunate, auspicious, omina; bellum male a., commenced with unfavourable omens, unfortunate.

*AUSPĪCĀTUS, ūs, m. [auspicio]. (Lat.) The observation of the auspices.

AUSPĪCIUM, ii, n. [auspex]. 1) Abstr.: A) the observation of the auguries given by birds, the inspection of birds (cf. augurium): mittere pullarium in a.: B) the right of taking the auspices (or of having them taken by others):

habere aa. All magistrates had this right in time of peace, but the chief commander only in time of war. Hence — a) = the chief command: auspicio meo, or, more freq., auspiciis meis (tuis, Caesaris), under my command — b) (poet.) in gen. = sway, power: aa. paribus regere. 2) Concr., an omen from birds, an auspice: a. optimum, felix; facere a., to give an omen; trop. = libido facit omen diviti, incites him to change.

AUSPĪCO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. [auspex]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) Intr., to observe or take the auspices, rei alicui (rei alicujus causa or super re aliqua), on account of a thing. 2) Tr. (Ante-cl.), to accept as an omen, mustelam. (Part. Auspicatus, and Auspicato, see above.)

AUSPĪCOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. & intr. [auspex]. 1) = Auspico 1. 2) To begin any thing solemnly or for the sake of good omens (e. g., on the first day of the year, because enterprises commenced on that day were expected to turn out fortunately): auspiciandi causa. 3) To begin, to commence, in gen., militiam, cantare.

AUSTER, tri, m. 1) The south wind. 2) The South.

AUSTĒRE, adv. [austerus]. Trop., severely, rigidly.

AUSTĒRITAS, ātis, f. [austerus]. (Lat.) 1) Harshness, a sour and harsh taste, vini. Hence: A) of smell, pungency: B) of colour, darkness. 2) Trop., severity, austerity, magistri.

AUSTĒRUS, a, um, adj. [= aberrans]. 1) (Lat.) Contracting the tongue, harsh, tart, sour, vinum, gustus. Hence: A) of smell, pungent: B) of colour, dark. 2) Trop., severe, austere (opp. to wanton and effeminate), simple, mos, vir. Hence: A) of discourse, etc., serious, dry, without sprightliness and grace, poema: B) troublesome, hard, labor, curatio.

AUSTRĀLIS, e, adj. [auster]. Southern.

AUSTRINUS, a, um, adj. (Poet. & lat.) = Australis.

AUSUM, i, n. [part. of audio]. (Poet. & lat.) A daring attempt.

AUT, disjunct. conj. 1) Or — it expresses an objective and real difference (of. vel, sive): vita aut mors. In partic.: A) (freq. after a negation) when something stronger and more important is added = or rather, or even: non multum aut omnino nihil: B) when something not so strong is added = or yet, or at least: nunquam a. raro: C) in opp. to a condition that is alluded to, but not completely expressed = or else, else, otherwise: audendum est aliquid universis, a. omnia singulis patiendi; effodiantur bulbi ante ver, a. deteriores sunt. 2) Aut — aut, indicates likewise a contrast in which one thing excludes another, either — or: a. vivum a. moriar. Poets sometimes connect aut — vel or ve. 3) In partic., after a negation: A) when a negation precedes, and belongs to each of the two following clauses, the second clause may be annexed by means of 'aut' (instead of the negation being repeated): neque enim mari venturum a. ea parte virium dimicaturum hostem credebant: B) when the negation stands first, each of the two clauses to which it belongs is annexed by means of a. — a.: consociorum nemo a. latuit a. fugit: C) (poet.) in subjoining a new negative clause, sometimes neque — a. is used, instead of neque — neque: neque ego fugam speravi, nec conjugis praetendi taedas, a. haec in foedera veni.

AUTEM, advers. conj. But, on the contrary, however, yet — denotes not an objective contrast, but generally annexes something different; freq., it serves merely to continue what precedes, to make a remark on it, &c. (of at, sed, verum). Hence 'autem' is used, in partic.: A) to denote a transition, where, freq., it may be rendered by and, besides, now, &c.: B) to introduce a sentence that is added as a parenthesis: C) in emphatic interrogations: quem te a. deum nominem? D) when a word of the preceding sentence is repeated, esp. when it is repeated with emphasis: nunc quod agitur agamus; agitur a., liberine vivamus an mortem obeamus: E) = atqui, in subjoining the second member of a syllogism: F) (poet.) sometimes, in emphatic interrogations, 'sed' and 'autem' are connected: sed quid ego haec a. nequidquam ingrata revolvo? G) sometimes, with an interjection: heja a.; ecce a.

AUTHEPSA, ae, f. [= αὐτήψα, 'a self-boiler']. A cooking utensil, like our tea-urn.

AUTOGRAPHUS, a, um, adj. [= αὐτογράφος]. (Lat.) Written with one's own hand.

AUTOLYCUS, i, m. [= Ἀὐτολύκος]. A son of Mercury, father of Anticlea, and a dexterous robber; hence, meton. = a thievish man.

AUTOMATUS, a, um, adj. [= αὐτόματος]. (Lat.) Self-moving, spontaneous; and hence, subst. Automatum, i, n., a self-moving machine, an automaton.

AUTOMEDON, ontis, m. [= Ἀὐτομήδων]. A son of Dioreas, and charioteer of Achilles; hence, meton. = a skilful charioteer.

AUTONOE, ae, f. [= Ἀὐτονοή]. A daughter of Cadmus, and mother of Actaeon.

AUTONOEIUS, a, um, adj. Descending from Autonoe: heros A. = Actaeon.

AUTRONIANUS, a, um, adj. [Autronius]. Autronian.

AUTRONIUS, ii, m. A Roman proper name; A. C. Paetus, who was a quaestor with Cicero in Sicily.

AUTUMNALIS, etc. — v. Autumnalis, etc. AUTUMO, avi, atum, 1. v. intr. [aio?]. (Antecl. & lat.) Orig., to say 'yes' (opp. to nego, so easy 'no'). To say, to affirm, to name; hence = to affirm in one's mind, to believe, omnes istas res, te istas esse.

AUVONA, ae, f. A river in Britain, now the Avon.

AUXILIARIS, e, adj. [auxilium]. 1) Serviceable for aiding, helping, aiding, carmen (of a magic formula), undae; esp., cohortes, equites aa., or (subst.) Auxiliares, ium, m. pl., auxiliaries, auxiliary troops. 2) (Tac.) Of or belonging to auxiliaries, stipendia.

AUXILIARIUS, a, um, adj. (rar.) = Auxiliaris.

AUXILIATOR, oris, m. [auxilior]. (Lat.) A helper, an assistant.

*AUXILIATUS, us, m. [auxilior]. (Lucr.) Help.

AUXILIOR, atus, 1. v. dep. intr. [auxilium]. To help, to assist, to succour (= auxilium fero — it supposes always a person in trouble and embarrassment — of. juvo), alicui; also (poet. & lat.), to aid against something, to relieve, morbo.

AUXILIUM, ii, n. [augoe]. 1) Help, aid, assistance, succour: auxilio esse alicui, to assist one; auxilio venire, mittere, (poet.) auxilia vocare, to call for help. Sometimes = a source of aid, resource: a. extremum; a. elephanthorum, the aid afforded by the elephants; also, in plur., aa. magna, ultima. 2) Plur., auxiliaries (usually of the allies and light-armed troops, in opp. to the legions). 3) (Rar.) Military force, troops, in gen.: infirmis aa. proficisci.

AUXIMATES, um, m. pl. The inhabitants of Auximum.

AUXIMUM, i, n. A town in Picenum, now Osimo.

AVARE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [avarus]. Avariciously, greedily.

AVARICENSIS, e, adj. Of or belonging to Avaricum.

AVARICUM, i, n. The capital of the Bituriges in Gaul, now Bourges.

AVARITER, adv. (Ante-cl.) = Avere.

AVARITIA, ae, f. [avarus]. Greediness for money, covetousness, avarice: a. est injuriosa appetitio alienorum; omnes aa., all sorts of greediness, selfishness; in gen., an immoderate desire, glorio: also = gluttony.

AVARITIES, ei, f. (Lucr.) = Avaritia.

AVARUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [aveo]. Greedy for money, covetous, avaricious: a. pecuniae publicae; (poet.) in gen., eagerly desirous of any thing, laudis; a. agricola, desirous of an abundant harvest; a. venter, insatiable; a. mare, always demanding new victims.

A-VEHO, exi, ectum, 3. v. tr. To conduct or carry off or away, aliquem e patria, equites in Aegyptum; pass., avehi, to ride away (in a carriage or on horseback), to sail away.

A-VELLO, elli or ulsi, ultum, 3. v. tr. 1) To tear off or away, to tear loose, to take away, poma ex arbore, simulacrum e templo. 2) Trop.

== to separate or remove forcibly, aliquem de complexu alicujus; a. aliquem ab errore, to undeceive.

ĀVENA, ae, f. 1) Oats, both the common and wild oats. 2) (Poet. & lat.) A stalk, in gen.; hence, a reed pipe, a shepherd's pipe.

AVĒNIO, ōnis, f. A town in Gallia Narbonensis, now Avignon.

AVENTĪCUM, i, n. The capital of the Helvetians, not far from Murten.

ĀVENTINIENSIS, e, adj. = Aventinus, a, um.

ĀVENTINUM, i, n. = Aventinus 1.

ĀVENTINUS, i, m. 1) Aventine, one of the seven hills of Rome. 2) A mythical king of Alba, after whom the hill was said to have been named. 3) A son of Hercules, and companion of Turnus.

ĀVENTINUS, a, um, adj. Of or belonging to the Aventine hill: jugum A.; Diana A., because she had a temple there.

ĀVEO, 2. v. defect., of which only the imper. ave, aveto, and the inf. avere, are in use, as forms of salutation. A) at one's arrival = hail! be well! good-day! Marcus avere jubet, sends his respects: B) in taking leave = farewell!

ĀVEO, —, —, 2. v. tr. To long for something vehemently, to crave for, to be very desirous of: valde a. scire; a. aliquid; (poet.) refrénare fluvios aventes, the rivers demanding to flow further.

ĀVERNĀLIS, e, adj. Of or belonging to Lake Avernus.

ĀVERNUS, i, m. [= depross, 'without birds'], also lacus Avernī. A lake in a volcanic region of Campania, not far from Cumæ, now Lago d'Averno. It was surrounded by steep and wooded hills; the water was so sulphureous, and the exhalations so deadly, that birds could not fly over it (hence the name). Here was, according to the fable, the entrance to the Lower World, the grove of Hecate, and the grotto of the Cumæan Sibyl.

ĀVERNUS, a, um, adj. 1) Of or belonging to Lake Avernus: loca Aa., the environs of the Lake Avernus. 2) Of or belonging to the Lower World: Juno Av. = Proserpine; loca Av., the Lower World.

Ā-VERBUNCO, 1. v. intr. [averto?]. Tech. t., in the language of religion (otherwise obsol.). To avert, to keep off, to remove, calamitates, iram deorum, prodigia.

ĀVERBUNCUS, i, m. [averrunco]. (Lat.) A deity supposed to avert evil.

ĀVERSĀBILIS, e, adj. [aversor]. (Lucr.) Abominable.

ĀVERSĀTIO, ōnis, f. [aversor]. An aversion.

ĀVERSIO, ōnis, f. [averto]. 1) A turning away; only in the adverbial comb. 'ex a.', turned away, from behind, aliquem jugulare. 2) A rhet. figure, a striving to turn the hearer from the proper subject.

ĀVERSOR, ōris, m. [averto]. A purloiner, pecunie publicae.

ĀVERSOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. & tr. [intens. of averto]. 1) To turn one's self away from (with indignation, contempt, &c.), to turn aside. 2) Trop., to turn one's self away from a person or thing = to disdain, to refuse, to reject, to decline, filium, proes, crimina.

ĀVERSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [averto]. 1) Having the side or the front turned away, turning the back toward one, turned off or away: vulnerare aliquem aversum, behind, in the back; adgredi nostros aa.; trahere aliquem a., to drag one backward; subst., Aversa, ōrum, n. pl.: aa. urbis, the back part of the city, insulae, the opposite part of the island. 2) Trop., unfavourable, disinclined, hostile: deus a.; a. ab aliquo, to one; a. a vero; (poet. & lat.) also, a. rei alioi; voluntas a., enmity; amici aa., disagreeing.

Ā-VERTO, ū, sum, 8. v. tr. 1) To turn off or away, to avert: a. flumen; a. iter ab Arari, to turn the march from the Arar; a. se ab itinere, to take another way; a. hostem (in fugam), to put to flight; a. barbaros a castris, to repel. Hence: a. castra or oculos militum in se, to draw off the attention from another and to turn it to one's self; is a. Hannibalem in Hispaniam, is of opinion that Hannibal should be sent to Spain. 2) Trop.: A) to purloin, to embezzle, to carry off, pecuniam publicam, aliquid domum suam: B) to divert or turn away one from a thing, aliquem ab incepto, a pietate, a spe; auster a. me a tanta infamia, delivered me from so great a reproach; a. aliquem ab amicitia alicujus or ab aliquo, to draw away from friendship or alliance with one; hence = to make disinclined, to alienate, animum alicujus a se, animos Galliae, to induce to revolt: C) = to ward off, to keep off or away, pestem ab aliquo, bellum, periculum. 3) Intr., and likewise the pass., averti = to turn one's self away: prora avertit (poet.), turns away. Hence (poet.), to shun, to turn one's self away from with aversion: equus avertitur fontes.

ĀVIA, ae, f. [avus]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A grandmother; trop. = things inherited from a grandmother: de a. nihil superest, of fortune; veteres aa., prejudices.

ĀVIĀRIUM, ii, n. [aviarius]. A bird-house, an aviary; (poet.) a place in a wood where wild birds resort.

ĀVIĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [avis]. Of or belonging to birds or fowls, bird-, rete; subst., Aviarus, ii, m., a bird-keeper.

ĀVICULA, ae, f. [dim. of avis]. A little bird.

ĀVIDE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [avidus]. Eagerly, with vehement desire.

ĀVIDITAS, ātis, f. [avidus]. A vehement and impatient desire, eagerness, a longing for something, pecunie, legendi. In partic.: A) = avaritia, greediness for money, covetousness: B) = appetite, facere.

AVIDUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [aveo 3].
1) Longing for a thing vehemently and impatiently, eagerly desirous, divitiarum, belligerendi, laudis; (poet.) avidus cognoscere, eager to learn; (rar.) a. in novas res, in direptiones, ad pugnam; (lat.) a. subiti, longing for unexpected advantages; (Lucr.) humanum genus est avidum nimis auricularum, in respect to their ears, i. e., always desirous of hearing something new. 2) In partic.: A) eager for pleasure, insatiable, libido, amor, oculi: B) = avarus, greedy for money, covetous, avaricious: C) desirous of food, hungry: D) = eager for combat: F) (Lucr.) of space, wide.

AVIS, is, f. 1) A bird (cf. ales). 2) As omens were principally taken from birds = an omen: avibus bonis, secundis; avi malâ.

AVITUS, a, um, adj. [avus]. Of or pertaining to a grandfather, ancestral.

AVIUS, a, um, adj. [a-via]. 1) Situate apart from a road, lonely, out of the way, locus, virgulta, itinera, little frequented; loca avia commeatibus, far distant from supplies; freq., subst., Avia, òrum, n. pl., an out-of-the-way place, nemorum, lonely woods, oceani, remote parts of the ocean. 2) Trop., homo a., departing from the right way; animus a., erring, without counsel.

AVOCAMENTUM, i, n. [avoco]. (Lat.) That which calls or diverts from sadness = a means of diversion, consolation.

AVOCATIO, ònis, f. [avoco]. A calling off = 1) A diversion. 2) Disturbance, sine a.

AVOCO, avi, àtum, 1. v. tr. 1) To call off or away, partem exercitus ad bellum, pubem Albanam in urbem, senatum in prata Flaminia. 2) To withdraw, to divert or remove one from a thing, to make one desist from: a. aliquem a societate, a proeliis, a rebus gerendis. 3) Trop., to divert, to cheer (by work or pleasure), animum.

AVOLO, avi, àtum, 1. v. intr. To fly away; trop., to hasten away.

AVUNCULUS, i, m. [dim. of avus]. 1) An uncle = a mother's brother — of patruus. Hence, a. magnus (sometimes major), a brother of the grandmother, grand-uncle. 2) (Lat.): A) the husband of the mother's sister: B) = a. magnus.

AVUS, i, m. 1) A grandfather; sometimes = proavus, a great grandfather. 2) (Poet.) An ancestor, in gen.

AXENUS, a, um, adj. [= ἄξενος]. (Poet.) Inhospitable: Pontus A., the original name of the Pontus Euxinus.

AXICIA, ae, f. [seco]. (Pl., doubtf.) A pair of scissors.

AXICULUS, i, m. [dim. of axis]. A small axletree.

AXILLA, ae, f. [dim. of ala]. An armpit.

AXIS, is, m. 1) An axletree of a wagon hence (poet.) = a wagon. 2) The axis of the earth; hence (poet.) — a) = the pole, esp. the north-pole — b) = the heavens, in gen.: nudo sub aetheris axe, under the open heaven — c) = a region of the heavens, a climate: a. boreus, the North. 3) Also written 'assis' in the signif.: a board or plank.

AXIUS, ii, m. [= Ἀξίος]. A river of Macedonia, now Vardar.

AXONA, ae, f. A river of Gaul, now Aisne.

AXUNGIA, ae, f. [axis-ungo]. (Lat.) Wagon-grease, grease for an axletree.

BABAE, interj. [= βαβα]. (Com. & lat.) An exclamation of astonishment or joy: Odd! strange! wonderful!

BABYLO, ònis, m. [Babylon]. (Com.) A Babylonian; hence = a money-exchanger, banker.

BABYLON, ònis, f. [= Βαβυλών]. Babylon, the capital of Babylonia, on the Euphrates.

BABYLONIA, ae, f. [= Βαβυλωνία]. A Syrian province, between the rivers Euphrates and Tigris; sometimes = the whole Assyro-Babylonian empire, now Irák Arabi.

BABYLONICUS, a, um, adj. Babylonian; subst., Babylonia, òrum, n. pl., Babylonian (i. e., skilfully embroidered) coverings or tapestry.

BABYLONIENSIS, e, adj. = Babylonius.

BABYLONIUS, a, um, adj. Babylonian; subst., Babylonii, òrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Babylonia.

BACCA or BACA, ae, f. 1) A berry, any small berry-shaped fruit, esp., freq. bacca olivae, and hence b. alone = an olive. 2) In gen., the fruit of a tree: bb. arborum. 3) (Poet.) = a pearl.

BACCALIA, ae, f. [bacca]. A kind of laurel abounding in berries.

BACCAR, áris, n. } [= βακκάρης]. (Poet. & BACCARIS, is, f. } lat.) A plant, having a fragrant root, from which an oil was prepared (valerian).

BACCATUS, a, um, adj. [bacca]. (Poet.) Adorned with pearls.

BACCHA, ae, f. [= Βάκχη]. A raving woman, in the train of Bacchus, a Bacchant or Bacchanalian.

BACCHABUNDUS, a, um, adj. [bacchor]. (Lat.) Revelling in the manner of the Bacchantes.

BACCHANAL, ális, n. [Bacchus]. 1) A place sacred to Bacchus. 2) Usually in the pl., Bacchanalia, ium or òrum, the festival of Bacchus, the orgies of Bacchus, celebrated at Rome every third year, but finally suppressed by the senate, 186 B. C.

BACCHANALIS, e, adj. [Bacchus]. (Lat.) Of or pertaining to Bacchus, Bacchanalian.

BACCHATIO, ònis, f. [bacchor]. A revelling or raving like the Bacchanalians.

BACCHEIUS, } a, um, adj. [= Βακχέιος].
BACCHEUS, } Of or belonging to Bacchus, Bacchips.

BACCHIADAE, ἄρυν, m. pl. [= Βακχιδᾶι].
The descendants of the Heracidae Bacchis, an ancient and powerful family of Corinth.

BACCHIS, ἰδία, f. [= Βακχίς]. (Poet.) = Baccha.

BACCHICUS, a, um, adj. = Baccheius.

BACCHIU, a, um, adj. [Bacchus]. (Poet.) = Baccheius.

BACCHOR, ἄτυς, 1. v. dep. intr. 1) (Poet. & lat.) To celebrate the festival of Bacchus. 2) Melon., to revel, to rave or rage like the Bacchae; b. in vestra caede, in tanta voluptate; (poet.) b. per urbem, to run through the city in a wild, raving manner; ventus b., rages; esp. of passionate language, raving cries, &c., b. Evos, to shout Evos; b. carmen (poet.) to write poetry with wild enthusiasm; (poet.) bacchata jugis Naxos, on whose mountains the feast of Bacchus was celebrated.

BACCHUS, i, m. [= Βακχης]. 1) The youthful god of wine, and, hence, of civilization and enthusiasm, the son of Zeus and Semele. 2) Trop. (poet.) — a) = the vine — b) = wine.

BACCHYLIDES, is, m. [= Βακχυλλίδης]. A Greek lyric poet of Cos — lived about 470 B. C.

BACCIFER, ἔρα, ἔρυν, adj. [bacca-fero]. (Poet. & lat.) Bearing berries, esp. bearing olives.

BACCULA, ae, f. [dim. of bacca]. A small berry.

BACENIS, is, f. A wooded mountainous region in Germany, the western part of the present Thuringian forest.

*BACEÖLUS, a, um, adj. Foolish — said to have been used by Augustus, instead of 'stultus.'

BACILLUM, i, n. [dim. of baculum]. A small stick; esp., a lictor's staff.

BACTRA, ὄρυν, n. pl. [= Βακτρα]. The capital of Bactriana, now Balk.

BACTRI, ὄρυν, m. pl. (Ante-cl.) The inhabitants of Bactra or Bactriana.

BACTRIA, ae, f. = Bactriana, q. v.

BACTRIANUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Bactra or Bactriana, Bactrian; hence, subst.: A) Bactriana, ae, f. [= Βακτριανή], a province of the Persian empire, now Balk: B) Bactriani, ὄρυν, m. pl., the inhabitants of Bactra or Bactriana.

BACTRIUS, a, um, adj. [= Βακτριος]. Of or pertaining to Bactra, Bactrian.

BACTRUS, i, m. [= Βακτρος]. A river near Bactra, now Balk.

BACULUM, i, n. } A stick, staff (of.

BACULUS, i, m. (rar.) } scipie, fustis.

BADIA, ae, f. [= Βαδία]. A town in Spain, now Badajoz.

*BADIZO, 1. v. intr. [Badiζω]. (Pl.) To go, to step.

BÄDUHENNAE LUCUS. (Tac.) A forest in Friesland.

BAEBIUS, ii, m., and BAEBIA, ae, f. The name of a Roman gens; thus, C. B. Sulca, a tribune of the people, 111 B. C., who was bribed by Jugurtha.

BAECULA, ae, f. [= Βαεκυλα]. A town in Spain, now Baylen.

BAETIS, is, m. [= Βαίτις]. The chief river in Southern Spain, now Guadalquivir.

BAETICUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to the Baetis: provincia B., about = the present Andalusia.

BÄGAUDAE, ἄρυν, m. pl. (Lat.) The name of the country-people in Gaul, who rebelled in the time of the Emperor Diocletian, and were finally conquered by Maximian.

BÄGÖAS, ae, } m. [= Βαγῶας and Βαγῶας].

BÄGÖUS, i, } The name of several Persian eunuchs; (poet.) appell. = any guard of women.

BÄGRADA, ae, m. [= Βαγρῶδας]. A river in the territory of Carthage, now Medscherda.

BÄIAE, ἄρυν, f. pl. A town on the sea-shore of Campania, famous for its warm baths, and much frequented by wealthy and luxurious Romans — now Baia.

BÄIANUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Baiae, Baian; subst., Baianum, i, n., the country around Baiae.

BÄJULO, 1. v. tr. (Poet.) To bear something heavy to bear a burden (cf. fero, etc.), sarcinas; also, abs., non didici b.

BÄJULUS, i, m. [bnjulo]. A carrier, porter.

BÄLAENA, ae, f. [= φάλαινα]. A whale.

*BÄLÄNÄTUS, a, um, adj. [balanus]. Embalmed.

BÄLÄNUS, i, f. & m. [= βάλανος]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) An acorn. 2) A date. 3) A behen-zut, from whose kernel an oil was extracted. 4) A species of sea-muscle.

BÄLÄTRO, ōnis, m. [kindred to blatero]. (Poet., ante-cl. & lat.) A jester, a buffoon; hence, a good-for-nothing fellow.

BÄLÄTUS, ūs, m. [balo]. The bleating of sheep: exercere b., to bleat.

BALBE, adv. [balbus]. Stammeringly.

BALBUS, a, um, adj. 1) Stammering (cf. blaesus), homo, os pueri; (poet.) verba bb. 2) A Roman surname.

BALBÜTIO, 4. v. intr. & tr. [balbus]. 1) Intr., to stammer; trop. = to speak indistinctly and confusedly, de re aliqua. 2) Trans., to stammer forth, to pronounce stammeringly, Scaurum, the name of S.; trop., to say something indistinctly and confusedly, pauca.

BÄLEÄRES, ium, f. pl. [= Βαλεαρις]. The Balearic islands in the Mediterranean sea, Majorca and Minorca; hence, adj., Balearis, e, Balearic, terra, funditor, from the Balearic islands; insulae Bb. = Baleares.

BĀLINEAE, BĀLINEUM—v. Balneae, Balneum.

BĀLIŪLUS, a, um, adj. (Pl.) Chestnut-coloured.

BALLIO, ōnis, m. The name of a worthless character in the Pseudolus of Plautus; hence, in gen. = a worthless man.

BĀLISTA, } ae, f. [= βάλλω]. 1) A military engine for throwing or slinging stones. 2) (Pl.) That which was slung by such an engine, a missile weapon; trop., b. infortunii (Pl.).

BĀLISTĀRIUM, ii, n. [ballista]. (Pl.) = Ballista.

BALLUX, ūcis, f. [a Spanish word]. Gold-dust.

BALNEAE, ārum, f. pl. A bathing-house, a bath, containing several rooms, hence the pl. bb. publicae, meae (of. balneum).

BALNEĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [balneum]. Of or pertaining to a bath; subst., Balnearia, ōrum, n. pl., bathing-rooms.

BALNEĀTOR, ōris, m. [balneum]. A bath-keeper.

BALNEŌLUM, i, n., pl. Balneolae, ārum, f. [dim. of balneum]. A little bath.

BALNEUM, i, n. [= βαλνείον]. 1) A bath, a place for bathing (of. balneae). 2) A bathing, a bath: a balneis, after the bath.

BĀLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. To bleat.

BALSĀMUM, i, n. [= βάλαμον]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Balsam. 2) The balsam-tree.

BALTEŌLUS, i, m. [dim. of balteus]. A small girdle.

BALTEUM, i, n. (rar.) } Prop., an edge, a border.
BALTEUS, i, m. } der. circle; hence, a girdle, belt, esp. a sword-belt; also, the girdle of a woman.

BAMBĀLIO, ōnis, m. [= βαμβαλίον, 'the stammerer']. A surname of M. Fulvius, father of Fulvia, the wife of Antony.

BANDŪSIA, ae, f. A fountain near Venusia, the town where Horace was born.

BANTIA, ae, f. A town in Appulia.

BANTĪNUS, a, um, adj. [Bantia]. Of or pertaining to Bantia; subst., Bantīni, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Bantia.

BAPTAE, ārum, m. pl. [βάπται]. Prop., the Baptists, priests of a Thracian goddess.

BAPTISTĒRIUM, ii, n. [= βαπτιστήριον]. (Lat.) A basin, in the bathing-houses, for bathing and swimming.

BĀRĀTHRUM, i, n. [= βάραθρον]. (Mostly poet.) A chasm, abyss, depth; trop., jocosely, of the maw; b. macelli, = a very gluttonous man.

BĀRĀTHRUS, i, m. [= βάραθρος, 'a man worthy of the infernal regions']. (Lucr.) A worthless fellow.

BARBA, ae, f. The beard, of men and animals: submittere (promittere) barbam, to let grow; (poet.) sapienter pascere b., i. e., to study the Stoic philosophy.

BARBĀNA, ae, f. A river in Illyria, now Bojana.

BARBĀRE, adv. [barbarus]. 1) After the manner of foreigners, barbarously: b. vertere = latine (as the Greeks called all other nations 'barbarians'). 2) Rudely, in an uncultivated manner: loqui b.

BARBĀRIA, ae, f. [barbarus]. 1) A foreign country, in opp. to Greece and Rome. 2) Trop., used to denote the intellectual and moral condition of foreign countries — a) intellectual barbarism = rudeness, ignorance, absence of cultivation — b) moral barbarism = savageness, rudeness, cruelty.

BARBĀRICE, adv. [barbaricus]. (Lat.) = Barbare.

BARBĀRIES, ēi, f. (Mostly poet. & lat.) = Barbaria, q. v.

BARBĀRICUS, a, um, adj. [= βαρβαρικός]. (Poet. & lat.) Of or pertaining to a barbarian, foreign, outlandish; subst., Barbaricum, i, n., a foreign country.

BARBĀRISMUS, i, m. [= βαρβαρισμός]. (Lat.) A speaking like a foreigner, a barbarism in language.

BARBĀRUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [= βαρβαρος]. 1) Outlandish, foreign, barbarous, i. e., with the Greeks = not Grecian; with the Romans = not Grecian nor Roman; in partio., subst. Barbarus, i, m., a foreigner, barbarian; in barbarum (Tac.), adverbially = after the manner of foreigners. 2) Meton., having the intellectual or moral qualities of foreigners — a) of the intellectual qualities, uncultivated, unpolished, rude: inhumanus ac b. — b) of the moral qualities, savage, cruel, rude: consuetudo immanis ac b.

BARBĀTŪLUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of barbarus]. A little-bearded.

BARBĀTUS, a, um, adj. [barba]. Bearded: bene b., with a long beard; hence (poet.) = old; freq., barbati, of the Romans of the olden time, before it had become a custom to shave the beard.

BARBĪGER, ēra, ērum, adj. [barba-gero]. (Lucr.) = Barbatus.

BARBĪTOS (only in nom., acc. & voc.), m. & f. [= βάρβιτος]. (Lat.) A lute, lyre.

BARBŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of barba]. 1) A little beard. 2) A surname of Q. Æmilius.

BARCAEI, ōrum, m. pl. The inhabitants of the region of Barce, a nomadic tribe.

BARCAS, ae, m. [= βάρκας]. The progenitor of a Carthaginian family, to which Hannibal, Hasdrubal, &c., belonged.

BARCE, es, f. [= βάρεα]. A town in Cyrenaica, afterwards called Ptolemais, now Tolmeta or Dolmeita.

BARCINO, ónis, f. A town in Northern Spain, now Barcelona.

BARDAEI, ōrum, m. pl. A people of Illyria.

BARDAICUS, a, um, adj. Of or belonging to the Bardai: calceus b., a kind of felt boot, used by the Centurions; hence (poet.) = a Centurion.

BARDITUS, another reading for Baritus, q. v.

BARDUS, a, um, adj. [= βαρύς]. (Rar.) Dull, slow, stupid (cf. stupidus, brutus, etc.).

BARGÜSII, ōrum, m. pl. A people of Spain, living near the Pyrenees.

BARGYLIAE, ārum, f. pl. [Βαργύλια]. A town of Caria.

BARGYLETAE, ārum, m. pl. The inhabitants of Barygliae.

BARGYLĒTICUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Barygliae.

BĀRIS, Idis, f. [= βαρίς]. (An Egyptian word.) A small Egyptian rowboat.

BARĪTUS, ūs, m. (Lat. — a Germanic word.) The war-cri, battle-cri of the Germans. Tac. uses it, erroneously, in the signif. of battle-song.

BĀRIUM, ii, n. A town of Appulia, with a harbour, now Bari.

BĀRO, ōnis, m. A foolish, stupid fellow, a blockhead, simpleton.

BARRUS, i, m. (An Indian word — poet. & lat.) 1) An elephant. 2) A surname of T. Betucius.

BASCAUDA, ae, f. (A Britannic word.) A rinsing-bowl, slop-basin.

BĀSIĀTIO, ōnis, f. [basio]. (Poet.) A kissing; meton., a kiss.

BĀSIĀTOR, ōris, m. [basio]. (Lat.) A kisser.

BĀSĪLICA, ae, f. [= βασιλική, sc. οἶκος or στέγη]. A splendid public building, with porticoes, near the forum. Afterwards, several 'bb.' were built.

BĀSĪLICE, adv. [basilicus]. (Ante-cl.) Royally = magnificently, splendidly.

BĀSĪLICUM, i, n. [basilicus]. (Pl.) A magnificent robe.

BĀSĪLICUS, a, um, adj. [= βασιλικός]. (Ante-cl.) Royal, splendid, magnificent; subet., Basilicus, i, m. (sc. jactus) = jactus Venerens, the king's throw, the fortunate throw of dice (v. Venerens).

BĀSĪLISCUS, i, m. [= βασιλίσκος]. 1) A basilisk. 2) A surname of Cn. Pompey.

BĀSĪO, āvi, ātum, i. v. tr. [basium]. To kiss, aliquam.

BĀSIS, is, f. [= βάσις]. A foot, pedestal, base of a column, building, &c., statuæ; b. villæ, foundation-wall; b. trianguli, the fundamental line, base.

BĀSIUM, ii, n. (Poet.) A kiss (cf. osculum, suaviūm).

BASSĀNIA, ae, f. A town in Illyria, now Elbassan.

BASSĀNITAE, ārum, m. pl. The inhabitants of Bassania.

BASSĀREUS, ei, m. [= Βασσαρεύς, from βασσα, 'a fox,' with the skin of which the Bacchantes frequently clothed themselves]. A surname of Bacchus.

BASSĀRICUS, a, um, adj. [Bassareus]. Of or belonging to Bacchus.

BASSĀRIS, Idis, f. A Bacchantess.

BASTARNAE, ārum, m. pl. A Germanic tribe in Galicia, Ukraine, &c.

BASTŪLI, ōrum, m. pl. A tribe in Southern Spain.

BAT (Pl. — jocosely) = At, q. v.

BĀTĀVI, ōrum, m. pl. The Batavians, a tribe originally Celtic, who dwelt in Holland, between the northern arm of the Rhine and the Meuse, on the insula Batavorum.

BĀTHYLLUS, i, m. [= Βαθύλλος]. 1) A boy beloved by Anacreon. 2) A freedman of Maecenas, who, with his rival Pylades, introduced the pantomime into Rome.

BĀTILLUM, i, n. (Mostly poet. & lat.) 1) A shovel. 2) A coal-pan, an incense-pan.

BĀTIŪLA, ae, f. (Pl.) A small drinking-vessel, a goblet.

BATTIĀDES, ae, m. [= Βαττιάδης]. A descendant of Battus, q. v.; hence, in gen. = an inhabitant of Cyrene. In partic. = the poet Callimachus of Cyrene.

BATTIS, Idis, f. [Barris]. The sweetheart of the poet Philotas of Cos.

BATTUS, i, m. [= Βάττος, 'a stammerer']. 1) A surname of the Thracian Aristaeus or Aristoteles, the founder of Cyrene (630 B. C.) 2) A herdsman of Nelus.

BĀTŪLUM, i, n. A town in Campania.

BĀTUO, ui, —, 3. v. tr. & intr. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Tr., to beat, to pound, aliquem. 2) Intr., b. cum aliquo, to fence.

BAUBOR, 1. v. dep. intr. (Lucr.) Of a dog, to bark gently (cf. latro), to yelp.

BAUCIS, Idis, f. 1) The wife of Philemon the Phrygian, who, with her husband, entertained Jupiter and Mercury in a very hospitable manner. 2) Meton., an old woman, in gen.

BAULI, ōrum, m. pl. [= Βαῦλοι, fr. βοῦς αὐλῆς, because Hercules had sheltered there the cattle of Geryon]. A place in Campania, now Bacolo.

BĀVIUS, ii, m. A bad poet in the time of Virgil.

BAXEA, ae, f. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A kind of shoe.

BDELLIUM, ii, n. [= βδέλλιον]. 1) The vine-palm. 2) The fragrant gum of this tree, trop. (Pl.), as a term of endearment, tu b., my sweet!

BEĀTE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [beatus]. Happily.

BEĀTITAS, ātis, and BEĀTĪTUDO, īnis, f. [beatus]. (Both words were coined by Cicero, but, it seems, not used by him again.) A blessed condition, happiness.

BEATUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [beo]. 1) Happy, blessed (of one who feels himself happy in every respect — cf. felix, fortunatus, etc.); (poet.) beatus parvo (= contentus), content with; subst., Beatum, i, n. = happiness, felicity: ipsum b. 2) Rich, opulent, wealthy, homo, civitas. 3) (Poet.) Of things, splendid, magnificent, rich, gaza, rara, fertile (blessed) fields.

BEBYCES, eum, m. pl. [= Βεβρυκες]. An ancient tribe of Bithynia.

BEBYCIA, ae, f. The country inhabited by the Bebyces, afterwards Bithynia.

BEBYCIUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to the Bebyces, Bebycian; or, in gen., Bithynian.

BECCUS, ii, m. (A Gallic word.) The beak of a cock (French, le bec).

BEDRIACENSIS, e, adj. Of or pertaining to Bedriacum.

BEDRIACUM, i, n. A little town of Northern Italy, made famous by the battle in which the Emperor Otho lost his life — now Beverara.

BEGORRITES LACUS. A lake in Macedonia.

BELBINATES AGER. The territory of Belbina (Βελβίνα) in Arcadia.

BELGAE, ūrum, m. pl. The Belgians, a tribe in the north of Gaul, of German and Celtic origin.

BELGICUS, a, um, adj. Belgian.

BELGIUM, ii, n. A part of Gallia Belgica.

BELIAS, ōdis, f. A descendant of Belus.

BELIDES, ae, m. [= Βελιδης]. A descendant of Belus.

BELIS, Idia, f. (Usually plur., Belides.) A descendant of Belus.

BELLARIA, ōrum, n. pl. [bellus]. (Com. & lat.) A dessert (fruits, nuts, confectionery, sweet vines, &c.).

BELLATOR, ōris, m. [bello]. 1) A warrior, combatant (with the accessory idea of 'courage' and 'strength' — cf. miles); jocosely (Pl.), of a great drinker. 2) (Poet.) Adj., warlike, martial, courageous, homo, equus, trop., ensis; b. deus, the god of war.

BELLATŌRIUS, a, um, adj. [bellator]. (Rar. & lat.) Pertaining to war, warlike: stilus b., a pugnacious, polemic style.

BELLATRIX, icia, f. adj. [bello]. Warlike, martial, diva = Minerva; Roma, belua = an elephant; iracundia b.

BELLATŪLUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of bellus]. Pretty.

BELLE, ade. w. sup. [bellus]. Prettily, finely, elegantly, fairly, scribere, navigare, most agreeably, negare, civilly, aliquid ferre, with great tranquillity; b. curiosus, rather curious. In particular: A) in exclamations of applause, bravo! well! B) of health, b. esse, habere, or se habere, to be well.

BELLERŌPHON, ntis, } m. [= Βελλεροφῶν
BELLERŌPHONTES, ae, } or -φόντης]. A son of Glaucus, who was sent by Proetus with a letter to Jobates, in which the latter was requested to put him to death. By order of Jobates, he slew the Chimaera, a monster infesting Lycia. Prov. (Pl.), of a man who carries a letter whose contents are unfavourable to himself.

BELLICŌSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [bellicus]. Warlike, martial, war-loving, natio, provincia; annus b., of continual war.

BELLICUS, a, um, adj. [bellum]. 1) Pertaining to war, military: b. res, military affairs; gloria b., military glory; subst., Bellioum, i, n. (sc. signum), a signal; always in the comb. 'bellicum canere,' to give the signal to march or for an attack. 2) (Poet.) = Bellicosus.

BELLIGER, ēra, ērum, adj. [bellum-gero]. (Poet.) Waging war, warlike.

BELLIGERO, āvi, ātum, i. v. intr. [bellum-gero]. To wage or carry on war, cum aliquo, adversus hostes.

BELLIGEROR, ātus, i. v. dep. intr. (Hyg.) = Belligero.

BELLĪ-PŌTENS, ntis, adj. (Poet.) Powerful in war; as subst. = Mars.

BELLO, āvi, ātum, i. v. intr. [bellum]. To wage or carry on war, to war, cum aliquo, pro aliquo, adversus aliquem; b. hoc bellum, to carry on this war; (poet.) = to fight, in gen.

BELLŌCASSI, ōrum, m. pl. A tribe on the Seine in Gaul.

BELLŌNA, ae, f. The goddess of war, sister and companion of Mars. She had a temple at Rome, outside of the city, where the senate received those ambassadors whom they would not suffer to enter within; likewise, the generals who claimed a triumph.

BELLOR, ātus, i. v. dep. intr. (Virg.) = Bello.

BELLŌVĀCI, ōrum, m. pl. A tribe in Northern Gaul, in the region of the present Beauvais.

BELLŪLUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of bellus]. (Pl.) Pretty, lovely.

BELLUM, i, n. [from the obsol. duellum; hence, prop., a fight between two]. War: bellum gerere, to wage, to carry on, facere, to begin, ducere, trahere, to protract; b. civile, civil war, Macedonicum, against the Macedonians, regium (rar. regie), against the king (Mithridates), Asiaticum, in Asia; bello Latinorum, at the time of the war against the Latins; bello suo defungi, to have done with one's participation in the war; sometimes in opp. to 'a single battle,' non proelio modo sed bello victus erat. In partic.: A) adverbially, belli (rar. bello or in bello), in war, in opp. to 'domi,' in peace: belli domique, et belli et domi: B) (mostly poet.) = proelium, a battle: C) trop., b. tribunicium, a contest with the tribunes; b. indicere philosophiae.

BELLUS, a, um, adj. w. sup. [contr. from bellulus = dim. of bonus]. Pretty, fine, agreeable, lovely, charming (a less degree of beauty than 'pulcher,' q. v. — it belongs mostly to the lang. of conversation), puella, locus, epistola, vinum. Hence, fac bellus revertare, safe and sound.

BELUA or BELLUA, ae, f. 1) An animal (big and clumsy; as, an elephant, whale, &c. — of. animal, bestia), a monster; sometimes, an animal, in gen.: natura hominis pecudibus reliquisque bb. antecedit.

BELUATUS, a, um, adj. [belua]. (Pl.) Embroidered with animals, i. e., figures of animals.

BELUINUS, a, um, adj. [belua]. (Lat.) Brutal, bestial, voluptates.

BELUOSUS, a, um, adj. [belua]. (Poet.) Abounding in large animals or monsters, Oceanus.

BELUS, i, m. [= Βήλος]. 1) The builder of Babylon, and founder of the Babylonian kingdom. 2) A king in Egypt, son of Poseidon, father of Danaus and Ægyptus, and progenitor of the kings of Tyre. 3) The father of Dido, and conqueror of Cyprus, which he afterwards gave to Teucer. 4) An Indian deity, resembling the Greek Hercules. 5) A rivulet on the coast of Phœnicia.

BENACUS, i, m. [= Βήνακος]. A lake in Upper Italy, now Lago di Garda.

BENDIDIUS, a, um, adj. [Βενδίδιος]. Of or pertaining to Bendis, the Thracian goddess of the Moon, templum.

BENĒ, adv. w. comp. (melius) & sup. (optime) [bonus]. 1) With verbs, well: ager b. cultus; b. habitare. In particular combinations: A) b. dicere (or benedicere) — a) well = correctly, qui optime dicunt, the best orators — b) (Pl.) to use words of good omen [= εὐφημῶν] — c) b. dicere alicui, to speak well of one = to praise one; also, abs., bene dicere. Hence: bene dictum (also benedictum) = praise, commendation: B) b. facere — a) to do anything rightly, well: b. fecit qui transegerit, it was well he brought the affair to an end — b) bene facis, fecisti (freq. in the lang. of conversation) = excellent! very well! I thank you; thus, likewise, b. factum — c) b. facere (also in one word, benefacere) alicui or erga aliquem, to do any one good, to confer a benefit upon; hence, part., Benefacta, ōrum, n. pl. (more correctly, however, written as separate words), a) = good and noble deeds, actions; β) (rar. & poet.) benefita (= beneficia): C) bene est, habet, agitur illi, it is well with him, aliqua re, in respect to something = to be well provided with, to have an abundance of; b. habent tibi principia, you begin well: D) b. vocas (Pl.), you are very kind, I thank you: E) b. emere = cheap; b. vendere = dear: F) b. ambula (Pl.), a pleasant journey to you: G) of time, very opportunely, in the nick of time, venire. 2) With adjectives and adverbs, very, right, exceedingly: b. magna caterva; b. mane; (poet.) non b., not quite, scarcely. 3) (Poet.) elliptically, in drinking one's health, b. te, illum or tibi, illi, your health, good health to you.

BENĒDICE, adv. [bene-dico]. (Pl.) Kindly, with friendly words.

BENĒDICO, BENĒDICTUM — v. Bene 1, A. BENĒFACIO, BENĒFACTUM — v. Bene 1, B. BENĒFICE, adv. [beneficus]. Beneficently. BENĒFICIENTIA, ae, f. [beneficus]. Beneficence, kindness.

BENĒFICIARIUS, a, um, adj. [beneficium]. (Lat.) Relating to a favour: res b. = a favour, benefit; miles b., or subst., Beneficiarius, ii, m., tech. t., a privileged soldier, who, through the favour of the commander (for honour's sake, or as a reward) was exempt from some of the hard and menial labours of the camp (as, fetching water, throwing up intrenchments, &c.).

BENĒFICIUM, ii, n. [bene-facio]. 1) A benefit, favour, service (rendered by one who holds a higher rank, and of his own accord — cf. officium): accipere b.; b. in aliquem conferre, etc., to confer upon. In partic., abl. sing. = through the exertions of a person or by means of a thing; tuo b., by your help; sortium b., by lot; longissimae aetatis b., since he had lived so long. 2) In political life = a favour, distinction, promotion (conferred by the people, senate, or some magistrate): bb. populi, freq. of the offices in Rome: cooptatio collegiorum ad populi b. transferebatur, was made dependent on the favour of the people; in beneficiis ad aerarium deferri, to be registered, in the public archives of the treasury, among those who were to be rewarded for services done to the commonwealth.

BENĒFICUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. (beneficentior) & sup. (beneficentissimus) [bene-facio]. Beneficent, kind.

BENĒVENTANUS, a, um, adj. [Beneventum]. Of or belonging to Beneventum; subst., Beneventani, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of B.

BENĒVENTUM, i, n. A city of the Hirpini, in Samnium, now Benevento.

BENĒVŌLE, adv. w. comp. (benevolentius) & sup. (benevolentissime) [benevolus]. Benevolently, kindly.

BENĒVŌLENTIA, ntis, adj. [bene-volo]. (Com.) = Benevolus, q. v.

BENĒVŌLENTIA, ae, f. [benevolens]. Good-will, benevolence, friendly disposition, erga aliquem; praestare b. alicui or erga aliquem.

BENĒVŌLUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. (benevolentior) & sup. (benevolentissimus) [bene-volo]. Well-wishing, kind, benevolent, friendly, alicui and erga aliquem.

BENIGNE, adv. [benignus]. Kindly, both in respect to feeling = in a friendly manner, benevolently, and in respect to action = beneficently, generously. In partic. : A) b. polliceri, to make good promises, audire, with favour, arma capere, winningly : B) = abundantly : comestus b. ad-rehere : b. aliquid praebere : C) b. facere alicui = bene facere : D) b. dicia, or, in conversation, etc. b., as a form of thanks for something offered = I thank you very much ! you are very kind, I am much obliged, both when the proffer is accepted ('I thank you, yes') and when it is declined ('No, I thank you').

BENIGNITAS, ātis, f. [benignus]. Goodness : A. in feeling and outward behaviour = kindness, friendliness, benevolence, benignity : B) in action = beneficence, obligingness, kindness.

BENIGNUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [bene]. Of a good, kind nature : A) in feeling and external bearing = kind, friendly, benevolent : B) in action = beneficent, obliging, liberal. Bence—a) (poet.) b. vini somnique, a hard drinker and a great sleeper — b) (Pl.) = prodigal, wasteful — c) (poet. & lat.) of inanimate things = plentiful, abundant, yielding or bestowing abundantly, rich, daps, ager, materia, vena ; sermo etc. a long conversation.

BEO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Poet.) 1) To make happy, to bless, to rejoice, allicum ; hoc me beat ; (colloq.) beas or beasti me, that (which you are and or done) rejoices me very much. 2) To present with, to reward with, to make happy : b. se vino, to enjoy one's self with wine ; b. lacum divite lingua, to enrich with.

BĒRECYNTAE, ārum, or -NTES, tum, m. pl. [Berecyn-tis]. A people in Phrygia.

BĒRECYNTIĀCUS, a, um, adj. = Berecyn-tis, q. v.

BĒRECYNTIĀDES, ae, m. [Berecynthus]. 1) A Berecyntian.

BĒRECYNTIUS, a, um, adj. [Berecynthus].

2) Of or pertaining to Mount Berecynthus, Berescyn-tis : poet.) A) = Phrygian : B) Mater B. = Cybele. 2) Of or pertaining to Cybele : A) heros = Vias : B) tibia B. = a crooked Phrygian.

3) used at the festivals of Cybele.

BĒRECYNTUS, i, m. A mountain in Phrygia.

BĒRENICE (BĒrōnice), es, f. [= Bepwvix].

1) A female name, of which the most famous persons were : 1) the wife of the Egyptian king Ptolemæus Euergetes, whose beautiful hair was used by the poets among the constellations ; 2) a daughter of the Jewish king Agrippa I., sent to Rome by Titus. II. The name of several towns in Cyrenaica and Arabia.

BĒRENICEUS, a, um, adj. [Berenice]. Of or belonging to Berenice.

BĒRGISTĀNI or VERGISTĀNI, ōrum, m. pl. Community of robbers, in Hispania Tarraconensis.

BĒRGŌMULA, -ae, n. A town in Upper Italy, in Bergamo.

BĒROĒ, es, f. [Bepw]. 1) The nurse of Scamela, 2) A daughter of Oceanus. 3) The wife of Drychus.

BĒROEA, ae, f. [= Bepwa]. A town in Macedonia, afterwards Irenopolis, now Veria or Karsaferga.

BĒROEAEUS, i, m. An inhabitant of Beroea.

BĒROEENSES, ium, m. pl. The inhabitants of B.

BĒRŌNES, num, m. pl. [= Bēpwvix]. A people in Hispania Tarraconensis.

BĒRYLLUS, i, m. [= Bēpυλλος]. (Lat.) The beryl, a precious stone, from India, of sea-green colour.

BĒRYTUS, i, f. [= Bepwvix]. A seaport in Phoenicia, now Beyrout.

BES, bessis, m. [be-as, i. e., binae partes assis]. Two-thirds of a whole — v. AS.

BESSI, ōrum, m. pl. A Thracian people, living on Mount Haemus.

BESSICUS, a, um, adj. [Bessi]. Of or belonging to the Bessi.

BESTIA, ae, f. A beast (as a creature without reason or speech — cf. animal, belus, fera) : b. fera, a beast of prey. In partic. (lat.) = a beast destined for public contest with gladiators or criminals ; hence, ad bestias mittere, condemnare, to send, to condemn to a contest with wild beasts.

BESTIARIUS, a, um, adj. [bestia]. Of or belonging to wild beasts, ludus ; subst., Bestiarius, ii, m., a beast-fighter, one who fought at the public spectacles with wild beasts.

BESTIŌLA, ae, f. [dim. of bestia]. A little beast, a small animal.

BĒTA, n. indecl. The Greek name of the second letter of the alphabet.

BĒTA, ae, f. A garden-plant, the beet.

BĒTASII, ōrum, m. pl. A people of Gallia Belgica.

BĒTIZĀRE or BĒTISSĀRE (from the softness of the beet). A word used by Augustus, for 'languere.'

BĒTO or BĒTO, 3. v. intr. [eo, βιβω]. (Ante-cl.) To go.

BĒTŪLA, ae, f. The birch.

BIĀNOR, ōris, m. 1) A Centaur slain by Theseus. 2) An old hero of Mantua.

BIAS, antis, m. [= Bias]. A philosopher of Priene, contemporary with Croesus, one of the seven wise men of Greece.

BĒBERIUS CALDIUS MĒRO. A name given satirically to the emperor Tiberius Claudius Nero, on account of his love of strong drink.

BIBLIŌPŌLA, ae, m. [= βιβλιοπώλης]. (Lat.) A bookseller.

BIBLIŌTHECA, ae, f. [= βιβλιοθήκη]. A library — a) = a library-room or book-case — b) = a collection of books.

BĒBO, bibi, —, 3. v. tr. 1) To drink (from thirst, and for the satisfaction of the cravings of nature (cf. poto): b. vinum; b. ex fonte; (poet.) b. uvam, pocula; dare (ministrare) alicui bibere, to give (or pour out) a drink to one at table (of a servant). In partic., in the poets and colloq.: A) pro summo b. (Pl.), to drink very eagerly and hastily: B) bibe si bibis (Pl.), drink on! C) b. mandata, to drink till one has forgotten his errand: D) b. nomen alicujus, to drink as many cups as there are letters in one's name: E) b. flumen, to drink out of a river, i. e., to live by it. 2) (Poet. & lat.) of inanimate objects = to imbibe, to absorb, to drink: amphora b. fumum; hasta b. cruorem. 3) Trop. (poet.), b. sanguinem alicujus = to long passionately for any thing, to be desirous of; b. aëre pugnas, to drink in the accounts of the battles.

BIBOSUS, a, um, adj. [bibo]. (Lat.) Given to drink, fond of drink.

BIBRACTE, is, n. The capital of the Ædui, in Gaul, now Autun.

BIBRAX, actis, f. A town in Gaul, in the territory of the Remi, now Bievre.

BIBRŌCI, ōrum, m. pl. A people in Britain.

BIBŪLUS, a, um, adj. [bibo]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Drinking readily or freely: b. vini. 2) Of inanimate things, absorbing moisture strongly and easily, arena, favilla; talaria bb., that have absorbed moisture = moistened.

BICEPS, cēptis, adj. [bis-caput]. Having two heads, two-headed: (poet.) of mountains, having two summits; also, of the state, divided into two parties or factions.

BICLINIUM, ii, n. [clivus]. (Pl.) A dining-couch for two persons.

BICOLOR, ōris, adj. (Poet. & lat.) Two-coloured.

BICORNIGER, ōra, ōrum, adj. [cornu-gero]. Two-horned, an epithet of Bacchus.

BICORNIS, e, adj. [cornu]. (Poet. & lat.) Having two horns, double-horned, caper, Fauni, luna (the new moon); melon., Rhenus b., with two mouths; furca b., with two prongs.

BICORPOR, ōris, adj. [bis-corpus]. (Antecl.) Having two bodies, double-bodied.

BIDENS, tis, 1) Adj. (poet. & lat.), having two teeth, agnus; trop., ancora, double-pronged. 2) Subst.: A) m., a hoe, with two crooked iron teeth: B) f., an animal for sacrifice, esp. a sheep, that has its two rows of teeth complete; (rar.) = a sheep, in gen.

BIDENSIS, e, adj. [Bidis]. Of or belonging to Bida.

BIDENTAL, ālis, n. [bidens], A place struck by lightning, and afterwards consecrated by the offering of a bidens, and enclosed (cf. puteal).

BIDINI, ōrum, m. pl. The inhabitants of Bidis.

BIDIS, is, f. A little town in Sicily, north-west of Syracuse.

BIDUUS, a, um, adj. [bis-dies]. Of two days, continuing two days, tempus; subst., Biduus, i, n., the space of two days.

BIENNIS, e, adj. [bis-annus]. Lasting two years.

BIENNIUM, ii, n. [bis-annus]. A space of two years.

BIFARIAM, adv. [bis]. On two sides, in two parts, double, dividere, distribuere; duo b. proelia, fought in two places.

BIFIDUS, a, um, adj. [bis-findo]. (Poet. & lat.) Split or divided into two parts, arbor.

BIFŌRIS, e, adj. [bis-fores]. (Poet.) Having two doors or door-folds; trop., tibia dat cantum b., through two different openings, i. e., in a tapping key (now high, now low).

BI-FORMATUS, a, um, adj. (Old poet.) = Biformis.

BI-FORMIS, e, adj. [bis-forma]. Double-shaped, having two forms.

BI-FRONS, tis, adj. (Rar., poet.) Having two foreheads = double-faced, Janus.

BI-FURCUS, a, um, adj. [bis-furca]. Having two forks or prongs, two-pronged, vallus.

BIGAE, ārum, f. pl. (lat., Biga, ae) [contr. for bijugae, from bis and jugum]. A span of horses, two draught-animals harnessed to one carriage: jungere bb., to harness.

BIGĀTUS, a, um, adj. [bigae]. Only of silver coin, stamped with the figure of a biga, argentum; hence, subst., Bigatus, i, m. (sc. numus), a silver coin with the stamp of a biga, a denarius.

BIGERRAE, ae, f. A town in Hyspania Tarraconensis, in the territory of the Bastitani.

BIGERRIŌNES, num, m. pl. A Gallic people in Aquitania, now Bigorre.

BIJUGIS, e, } adj. [bis-jugum]. (Poet. & lat.)

BIJUGUS, a, um, } 1) With two horses, drawn by two horses, currus; certamen b., a contest of bigae. 2) Yoked two together: leones bb., subst., Bijugi, ōrum, m. pl., a pair of horses: desilire bijugis, to leap down from a two-horse chariot.

BILBĪLIS, is, m. & f. 1) M., a town in Hyspania Tarraconensis, the birthplace of the poet Martial, now Baubola. 2) F., the river Sals near Bilbilis, now Xalon.

BI-LIBRA, ae, f. Two pounds.

BILIBRIS, e, adj. [bis-libra]. (Poet. & lat.) Weighing or containing two pounds, nullus cornu.

BILINGUIS, e, adj. [bis-lingua]. *1) (Pl.) Having two tongues. 2) (Poet. & lat.) Trip double-tongued, false, hypocritical. 3) Speaking two languages.

BILIS, is, f. 1) Bile, most freq. of men (cf. fel, which signifies 'the vessel containing the bilis') 2) Trop.: A) anger, displeasure, commovers b.: B) melancholy, sadness, atra or l. gra b.: C) = frenzy, madness.

BILIX, icis, adj. [bis-licium]. (Poet.) Having a double thread, two-threaded.

BILUSTRIS, e, adj. [bis-lustrum]. (Poet.) Lasting two lustrum or ten years.

BIMARIS, e, adj. [bis-mare]. (Poet.) Situated on two seas, Corinthia.

BIMARITUS, i, m. The husband of two wives.

BIMATER, tris, m. (Poet.) Having two mothers (an epithet of Bacchus).

BIMEMBRIS, e, adj. [bis-membrum]. (Poet.) Having two kinds of limbs: b. puer, half man, half beast; a poetic epithet of the Centaurs (half man and half horse); subst., Bimembres, um, m. pl. = the Centaurs.

BIMESTRIS, e, adj. [bis-mensis]. Of two months, lasting two months, consulatus, of two months, stipendium, for two months, porcus, two months old.

BIMULUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of bimus]. Two years old.

BIMUS, a, um, adj. [bis]. 1) Two years old, of two years: legio b., that has served two years. 2) Trop., sententia b., a vote that the administration of any one shall be prolonged for two years.

BINGIUM, ii, m. A town in Belgian Gaul, opposite the present Bingen.

BINI, ae, a, distr. num. adj. [bis]. (Sing. in laer.) 1) Two by two, two to each: cum bb. testamentis exierunt. 2) With substantives, plural only = two: bb. castra, millia; bb. litterae, two letters (duae litterae = two letters of the alphabet). 3) In multiplying, bis bina, two times two. 4) Of things in pairs, bb. boves, a pair of oxen; hence, in sing., binum corpus, a pair of oxen, double.

BINOCTIUM, ii, n. [bis-nox]. (Rar. & lat.) A space of two nights, two nights.

BINOMINIS, e, adj. [bis-nomen]. (Ovid.) Having two names.

BION, onis, m. [= Blon]. 1) A Cyrenaic philosopher, who lived about 250 B. C., celebrated for his sarcastic wit. 2) A bucolic poet, who lived 280 B. C.

BIONEUS, a, um, adj. [Bion]. Of or belonging to the philosopher Bion, witty, sarcastic.

BIPALMIS, e, adj. [bis-palma]. (Rar.) Two palms long or broad.

BIPARTIO (bipert.), no perf., Itum, 4. v. tr. [bis-partior]. To divide into two parts. (Used most freq. in the part. bipartitus.)

BIPARTITO, adv. [bipartitus]. In two parts or divisions, in a twofold manner: classem b. distribuere; signa b. inferre; esse b.

BIPATENS, tis, adj. [bis-pateo]. (Poet.) Opening in two directions = with double or folding doors, porta, tectum.

BIPEDALIS, e, adj. [bis-pes]. Two feet long, wide, or thick.

BIPENNIFER, era, erum, adj. [bipennis]. (Poet.) Bearing a two-edged axe.

BIPENNIS, e, adj. [penna]. 1) (Lat. & rar.) Having two wings, two-winged, insectum. 2) (Rar.) Two-edged; hence, subst., Bipennis, is, f. (sc. securis — poet. & lat.), a two-edged axe, a battle-axe; crebrae bb., frequent strokes with the axe.

BIPES, edis, adj. (Poet. & lat.) Two-footed.

BIREMIS, e, adj. [bis-remus]. 1) Having two oars, two-oared, scapha. 2) Subst., Biremis, is, f. (sc. navis), a galley with two banks of oars, a bireme.

BIS, num. adv. Twice: b. in die, twice a day; also, b. die; b. bina, two times two; (poet.) b. mille, two thousand; b. centum corpora, two hundred persons; b. tantum or tanto quam, twice as much as; prov., b. ad eundem lapidem (offendere, to commit the same fault twice).

BISALTAE, arum, m. pl. [= Bisaltrai]. A people in Thrace, on the river Strymon.

BISALTICA, ae, f. The region inhabited by Bisaltia, } the Bisaltiae.

BISALTIS, idis, f. [= Bisaltris]. Theophane, the daughter of Bisaltis, changed by Neptune into a sheep.

BISANTHE, es, f. [= Bisandria]. A Thracian town, on the Propontis, now Rodosto.

BISTONES, um, m. pl. [= Bistones]. A Thracian people, living south of Mount Rhodope; hence (poet.) = the Thracians.

BISTONIS, idis, adj. f. Of or pertaining to the Bistones, Thracian: B. ales = Procne, wife of the Thracian king Tereus; subst., a Thracian woman, esp. a Thracian Bacchant.

BISTONIUS, a, um, adj. [Bistones]. 1) Of or belonging to the Bistones, Bistonian. 2) Thracian, in gen.

BISULCUS, a, um, adj. [bis-sulcus, 'two-furrowed']. (Poet. & lat.) Split or divided into two parts, cloven; subst., Bisulcum, i, n. (sc. animal), an animal with cloven hoofs.

BITHYNIA, ae, f. [Bithynia]. A province of Asia Minor, between the Propontis and the Black Sea — now Anadol.

BITHYNICUS, a, um, adj. [Bithynia]. Of or belonging to Bithynia, Bithynian; subst., Bithynicus, i, m., a surname of Q. Pompeius, as conqueror of Bithynia.

BITHYNIS, idis, f. [Bithynis]. 1) (Poet.) A Bithynian woman. 2) A town on the island Thynias, in the Pontus Euxinus.

BITHYNIUS, a, um, adj. (Lat.) = Bithynus.

BITHYNUS, a, um, adj. [Bithynia]. Of or pertaining to Bithynia, Bithynian; subst., Bithyni, erum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Bithynia.

BITO — v. Beto.

BITO or BITON, onis, m. [Biton]. A son of on Argive priestess, and brother of Cleobis: they were both distinguished for their filial affection.

BITUMEN, inis, n. (Poet. & lat.) Bitumen, a kind of mineral pitch.

BITUMINATUS, a, um, adj. [Bitumen]. (Lat.) Impregnated with bitumen, bituminous.

BITUMINEUS, a, um, adj. [Bitumen]. (Poet.) Consisting of bitumen, bituminous.

BITURIGES, um, m. pl. The Bituriges, a people of Gallia Aquitania.

BIVIVS, a, um, adj. [bis-via]. (Rar.) Having two ways or passages: fauces, that form a double entrance; subst., Bivium, ii, n., a place where two ways meet, a place with two ways; also (poet.), of a twofold love.

BLAESUS, a, um, adj. [= βλαστός]. (Poet.) Lisper, stammering, speaking indistinctly, os, lingua (of a parrot, also of drunken persons): subst., Blaesus, i, m., a surname in the Sempsonian gens.

BLANDA, ae, and BLANDAE, arum, f. 1) A town on the coast of Lucania, near the present S. Biasio. 2) A small town on the coast of Hispania Tarraconensis, near the modern village Blanes.

BLANDE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [blandus]. Flatteringly, soothingly.

BLANDI-DICUS, a, um, adj. (Pl.) Speaking coaxingly or soothingly.

BLANDI-LÔQUENTIA, ae, f. [blandiloquus]. (Old poet.) Coaxing language.

BLANDI-LÔQUENTÛLUS, a, um, adj. [blandiloquens]. (Pl.) Flattering, speaking smoothly.

BLANDI-LÔQUUS, a, um, adj. [blandusloquor]. (Poet.) Flattering, speaking smoothly, smooth-tongued.

BLANDIMENTUM, i, n. [blandior]. 1) Coaxing conduct and language, flattery: bb. muliebris. 2) Trop., an enticing object or quality, a charm, delight, allurements: b. vitae; expellere famem sine bb., without dainties, spices.

BLANDIOR, itus, 4. v. dep. intr. [blandus].

1) To caress, to endeavour to ingratiate one's self by smooth words or gentle insinuations, to fondle, to coax: b. alicui; columbae bb. inter se; blandita est patri ut, etc., asked her father caressingly. 2): A) to flatter, to fawn upon, to make flattering speeches to (cf. adulator), alicui: B) of inanimate objects, to entice, to allure, to delight: inertia b.; voluptas b. sensibus; fortuna b. coeptis, favours.

BLANDITER, adv. (Ante-cl.) = Blande.

BLANDITIA, ae, f. [blandus]. 1) Coaxing language and conduct (thus mostly in the pl.), a caressing, flattering: bb. muliebres, puerorum. 2) Trop., a charm, blandishment, enticement, delight: bb. voluptatum.

BLANDITIM, adv. [blandior]. (Lucr.) Caressingly.

BLANDUS, a, um, adj. with comp. & sup. 1) Ingratiating one's self, caressing, flattering, coaxing, homo, femina, amicus; voluptates dominae bb. 2) Of things, enticing, alluring, charming, pleasant, verba, amor, otium, preces, quercula.

BLATERO (I), 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl., poet & lat.) To babble, to prate, to talk foolishly.

BLATERO (II), onis, m. [blatero I]. (Lat.) A babbler.

BLATTA (I), ae, f. An insect that shuns the light, the moth.

BLATTA (II), ae, f. (Lat.) Purple.

BLATTARIUS, a, um, adj. [blatta I]. (Lat.) Pertaining to the moth, hence = dark.

BLATTEUS, a, um, adj. [blatta II]. (Lat.) Purple-coloured, purple.

BLÉMYAE, arum, } m. pl. A fabulous Ethi-

BLÉMYES, um, } opian people.

BLENNUS, i, m. [βλεννός]. (Pl.) A delt simpton.

BLITEUS, a, um, adj. [blitum]. (Ante-cl.) Insipid, silly, flat.

BLITUM, i, n. [= βλίτον]. (Ante-cl. & lat.)

A kitchen vegetable, of itself tasteless, (perhaps spinage).

BOARIUS, a, um, adj. [bos]. Pertaining to oxen, ex-: b. forum, the ox-market.

BOCCAR, aris, m. 1) A king of Mauritania in the time of the second Punic war. 2) A general in the service of Syphax. 3) (Poet.) Apparently = an African.

BOCCHUS, i, m. 1) A king of Mauritania, in the time of Jugurtha. 2) (Poet.) A plant, named after him.

BÖDOTRIA, ae, f. A bay in Scotland, now the Frith of Forth.

BOEBE, es, f. [= Βοβη]. A village in the Thessalian provinces Pelasgiotis.

BOEBEIS, Idia, f. [= Βοιβηίς Ἰδία]. A lake on the shore of which the village of Boebe was situated; it was called 'holy' by one poet, because Minerva was said to have bathed her feet in it.

BOEÖTARCHES, ae, m. [= Βοιωτάρχης]. The chief magistrate of Boeotia, Boeotarch.

BOEÖTIA, ae, f. [= Βοιωτία]. Boeotia, a province of Greece proper, between Phocia and Attica, whose inhabitants were noted for rudeness and stupidity.

BOEÖTICUS, a, um, adj. (Lat.) = Boeotian.

BOEÖTIS, Idia, f. (Lat.) = Boeotia.

BOEÖTIUS, a, um, adj. [= Βοιωτικός]. Boeotian; subst., Boeotii, orum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Boeotia.

BOEÖTUS, a, um, adj. [Βοιωτός]. Boeotian; subst., Boeoti, orum, m. pl. = Boeotii.

BOETHUS, i, m. [= Βοηθός]. 1) A Stoic philosopher. 2) A renowned sculptor, and engraver in silver — lived about 370 B. C.

BÖGUD, Idia, m. A king of Mauritania Flegitana, and an ally of Caesar.

BOIA, ae, f. 1) The capital of the Boii. 2) (Com.) A woman of the Boii.

BOIAE, ārum, f. pl. A collar for the neck, put upon slaves as a punishment.

BOII, ōrum, m. pl. A Celtic people, living originally in Gallia Lugdunensis, afterwards in Upper Italy and Germany, where the modern Bohemia (Boihemum, or Bojohemum, better than Bojemum), is said to have been called after them.

BOLA, ae, f., or BOLAE, ārum, f. pl. A town of the Aequi in Latium, now Lugnano.

BOLANUS, a, um, adj. Pertaining to Bela; subst., Bolani, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Bela.

BOLĒTUS, i, m. [βολῆτης]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A kind of mushroom, the champignon.

BOLUS, i, m. [= βῶλος]. 1) (Ante-cl. & lat.) A throw or cast—a) of dice—b) of a fishing-net; trop., bolo aliquem tangere or multare, to occasion a loss to one. 2) Meton. = that which is caught, a draught: emere b.; trop., gain, advantage.

BOMBAX, interj. [= βομβᾶξ]. (Pl.) Denotes an ironical surprise, why the deuce! odds!

BOMBOMACHIDES, ae, m. [βομβομαχηδης]. A comic name of a boasting soldier.

BOMBUS, i, m. [= βομβος]. (Poet & lat.) A hollow and deep sound, a humming, buzzing, apum, cornuum.

BOMBYCINUS, a, um, adj. [bombyx]. (Poet. & lat.) Silken, of silk.

BOMBYX, ūcis, m. [= βομβυξ]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) The silk-worm. 2) Silk.

BOMILCAR, āris, m. 1) A Carthaginian general—lived about 810 B. C. 2) A companion and friend of Jugurtha, afterwards put to death by him.

BONA DEA. The goddess of Chastity, worshipped by the Roman women. At her festival, which was celebrated on the first of May in the house of one of the consuls, no man was allowed to be present.

BONITAS, ātis, f. [bonus]. The good quality of a thing, goodness. 1) Of material objects = excellence, superiority: b. praediorum, aquae, vocis. 2) Of abstract objects—a) b. ingenii, good natural talent—b) of character, goodness, kindness, probity, integrity: fides et b. alicujus; naturalis b., kind-heartedness; b. erga aliquem.

BONUM, i, n. [neut. of bonus]. 1) Sing.: A) a good: summum b. or finis bonorum, the highest, chief good: B) = advantage, profit, welfare, happiness: est mihi bono, it is for my advantage; b. publicum, the common weal. 2) In the pl., goods, wealth, riches: bb. patria: esse in bonis, to be in possession of an estate.

BONUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. (melior) & sup. (optimus). Good. 1) Of physical qualities and external circumstances, ager, vinum, valetudo; natus b. = genuine; aetas b. = youth. In *partic.: A) = considerable, great: bona pars, a good deal; b. copia: B) (colloq.) wealthy, solvent in pecuniary affairs; hence, b. nomen, a solvent debtor (v. nomen): C) of birth, high, noble: b. genus; esp., bb. viri or optimus quisque (sometimes optimi) = optimates, the nobility, aristocracy (in Cicero, usually = the patriots): D) res bonae—a) = prosperity, good condition: in bonis tuis rebus, whilst you are well off—b) (= τὰ ἀγαθὰ) dainties, delicacies*. 2) Of moral qualities and abstract objects: dux, defensor, poeta b. = able, skilful, brave, gallant; thus, likewise, paco belloque bonus; (poet.) melior = stronger, superior: pugna melior = victor in battle; (lat.) melior furandi, more skilful in stealing. In particular: A) = honest, reliable: socii bb.: B) bono animo esse—a) to be of good courage, of good cheer; also, b. animum habere—b) to be well disposed toward, in aliquem: C) bono animo aliquid facere, to do something with a good intention, with an upright mind: D) upright, honest: b. vir; also, abs. boni, the good; sometimes, in voc., ironically, bone vir, my good fellow! E) in a political sense, boni = the well-disposed, the patriotic: F) (Sall.) = brave, opp. to ignavus: G) bb. dicta, sallies of wit, witticisms: H) bona venia or cum bona venia tua (ejus), with your (his) good leave. 3) With reference to—a) a person, to whom any person or thing is good = well-disposed, favourable, advantageous, alicui and in (erga) aliquem—b) a thing, for which any other thing is good = serviceable, useful, appropriate, ad aliquid or rei alicui. In partic., bb. verba (poet.), in the lang. of religion, words of good omen; hence (Ter.), bb. verba, quaesio, ironically = pray, think better of me.

BOO, i. v. intr. [= βοῶ]. (Ante-cl. & poet.) To sound aloud = to roar.

BOOTES, ae, m. [= βούτης, 'the neat-herd']. The constellation Bootes = Arctophylax, q. v. (of Arctos).

BORA, ae, m. A mountain in Macedonia.

BOREAS, ae, m. [= βορέας]. (Mostly poet.) The north wind; (poet.) = the North.

BORĒUS, a, um, adj. [= βόρειος]. (Poet.) Of or belonging to Boreas, northern.

BORYSTHĒNES, is, m. [= Βορυσθῆνης]. A river in Sarmatia, now the Dnieper.

BORYSTHĒNIDAE, ārum, m. pl. The dwellers on the Borysthenes.

BORYSTHĒNIS, idis, f. A town on the Borysthenes, now Kudak.

BORYSTHĒNIUS, a, um, adj. Of or belonging to the Borysthenes.

BOS, ōvis, m. & f. [bos]. 1) M., an ox. F., a cow. In partic.: A) jocosely = a whip cut from neat's leather, a raw hide: B) prov., bovi imponere clitellas = to give one a commission for which he is not qualified. 2) A sea fish.

BOSPÖRĀNUS, a, um, adj. Of or relating to the Bosporus, bellum; subst., Bosporani, ōrum, m. pl., the dwellers on or near the Cimmerian Bosporus.

BOSPÖRICUS, a, um, adj. (Lat.) = Bosporanus.

BOSPÖRIUS, a, um, adj. (Poet.) = Bosporanus.

BOSPÖRUS, i, m. [Bόσπορος, 'the heifer's ford' (Ox-ford), from the passage of Io there in the form of a heifer]. 1) B. Thracicus = the Straits of Constantinople. 2) B. Cimmerius = the Cimmerian Bosporus, leading from the Black Sea to the Sea of Azof, now the Straits of Caffa.

BÖTHYNOS, i, m. [= Βόθυνος, 'a pit']. (Lat.) A fiery meteor in the form of a pit.

BÖTULĀRIUS, ii, m. [botulus]. (Lat.) A sausage-maker.

BÖTULUS, i, m. (Lat.) A sausage.

BÖVIĀNUM, i, n. A town in Samnium.

BÖVILLAE, ārum, f. pl. A small town, 1) in Latium; 2) in Arpinum.

BÖVILLĀNUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Bovillæ (1 or 2).

BÖVILLUS, a, um, adj. (Ante-cl.) = Bulbus, q. v.

BRĀBEUTA, ae, m. [= βραβευτής]. One who presided at the public games, an umpire, a distributor of the prizes.

BRĀCAE or BRACCAE, ārum, f. pl. (Rar. in sing.) Trowsers, breeches (not worn by the Romans).

BRĀCĀTUS, a, um, adj. [bracae]. 1) Wearing trowsers; hence, 2) — a) in gen. = foreign — b) Gallia b. = Gallia Transalpina, or Narbonensis, France; cognatio b., relationship with the people of Gallia b.; also, bracatorum pueri, boys from Gallia Narbonensis.

BRĀCHIĀLIS, e, adj. [brachium]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Of or pertaining to the arm: nervus b.; crassitudo b., the thickness of an arm.

BRĀCHIŌLUM, i, n. [dim. of brachium]. A small arm.

BRĀCHIUM, ii, n. 1) The lower arm (from the hand to the elbow — cf. lacertus): bb. et lacerti. 2) In gen., the (whole) arm. Prov. — a) levi b. aliquid agere, to do something superficially, negligently — b) molli b. aliquid oburgare, to rebuke one gently — c) dirigere b. contra torrentem, to swim against the current — d) praeberē bb. sceleri = to support, to foster, to promote. 3) (Mostly poet.) Of things similar in shape to arms: A) the claws of craw-fish, &c.: B) the branches of trees: C) an arm of the sea: D) the spurs of a mountain: E) a sail-yard, intendere brachium velis: F) an arm or a side-work in fortifications or preparations for besieging, generally for the purpose of connecting two points, a line of communication, brachium muro injungere. [= βραχίον.]

BRACHMĀNAE, ārum, } m. pl. [= Βραχμᾶναι].
BRACHMĀNES, um, } The caste of priests among the Hindoos, Brahmins.

BRACTEA, ae, f. (Poet. & lat.) A thin plate or leaf of metal (cf. lamina), esp. gold-leaf.

BRACTEĀTUS, a, um, adj. [bractea]. (Lat.) Prop., covered with gold-plate; trop. — a) leo b., with yellow mane — b) felicitas b., gilded, delusive happiness.

BRACTEŌLA, ae, f. [dim. of bractea]. A thin leaf of gold.

BRANCHIDAE, ārum, m. pl. Priests in the temple of Apollo, at Didyma, in the territory of Miletus.

BRANCHUS, i, m. [= Βράχχης]. A son or favourite of Apollo, and ancestor of the Branchidae.

BRASSICA, ae, f. Cabbage.

BRATUSPANTIUM, ii, n. A town in Gallia Belgica, near the present Breteuil.

BRENNUS, i, m. 1) The chief of the Senonian Gauls, who conquered Rome, 390 B. C. 2) The chief of a Gallic tribe, which devastated Macedonia, 278 B. C., and advanced into Greece as far as Delphi.

BREUNI, ōrum, m. pl. A people of Rhætia in the Upper Valley of the Inn.

BREVIĀRIUM, ii, n. [brevis]. (Lat.) A summary, an epitome, a short catalogue, rationum, officiorum; b. imperii, a short statistical view.

BREVICŪLUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of brevis]. Somewhat short.

BREVI-LOQUENS, tis, adj. [brevis-loquor]. Speaking briefly or concisely, short.

BREVILOQUENTIA, ae, f. [brevilocus]. Brevity of speech.

BREVIŌ, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [brevis]. (Lat.) To abbreviate, to shorten, versus, services; hence, b. syllabam = to pronounce short.

BREVIS, e, adj. w. comp. & sup. Short (by nature — cf. curtus): 1) of extent in space: A) in length or breadth, short, little, small, &c.; via, iter; aqua, narrow; vitae curriculum; li-brum in breve cogere, to roll up tight: B) in height = low, small, mons, homo: C) (poet.) in depth, shallow, not deep; hence, subet., Bre-via, ium, m. pl., shallows, shoals, shallow places: D) (poet.) in gen. = small, little, insignificant, caput, mus; trop., impensa, coena: E) trop., as the idea of space is transferred to abstract objects — a) of speech, brief, short, concise: b. nar-ratio, sententia — b) of the person speaking, brief, short: brevem fieri in scribendo — c. brevi aliquid comprehendere, perscribere, etc. briefly, in few words — d) *breve faciam, I will be short — e) in breve cogere, to comprise in few words. 2) In time, short, of a short duration, tempus, dolor; rosa b., soon withering. In par-ticular: A) brevi tempore (spatio) and in brevi tempore (spatio), also brevis or in brevis, in a short time, shortly; de itinere ipsi brevis tempore judicabitis; brevis ante quam, shortly before: *B) ad breve, for a short time: C) syllaba b., a short syllable.

BREVITAS, ætis, f. [brevis]. Shortness: 1) (rar.) = smallness, small size: b. corporis; b. Gallorum, small stature; b. freti, narrowness. 2) Of time, diel; hence, b. syllabarum, shortness of syllables (in prosody). 3) Trop., of speech, brevity.

BREVITER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [brevis]. Shortly, seldom of space; usually of brevity in expression (= briefly, in few words), or in prosody.

BRIAREUS, ei, m. [= Βριάρεως]. A son of Uranus and Gaia, called also Ægeon [= Αἰγέων], one of the hundred-armed giants (Centimani); according to others, a giant with one hundred bodies.

BRIGANTES, tum, m. pl. A powerful people in Northern England.

BRIGANTIA, ae, f. or BRIGANTIUM, ii, n. 1) A small town in Eastern France, now Briançon. 2) A town on the Lake of Constance, now Bregenz.

BRIGANTICUS, a, um, adj. Prop., of or pertaining to the Brigantes — a surname of Julius, a sister's son of Civilis.

BRIGANTINUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Brigantia; espec., lacus Br. = the Lake of Constance.

BRIMO, ūs, f. [= Βρῆμος, 'the Angry One']. (Poet.) A surname of Hecate.

BRINIATES, tum, m. pl. A tribe of Ligurians, living near the modern Brignolo.

BRISEIS, Idis, f. [= Βρισηΐς]. A daughter of the priest Briseis, and the favourite slave of Achilles, from whom she was taken by Agamemnon.

BRITANNIA, ae, f. Great Britain, i. e., England and Scotland.

BRITANNICUS, a, um, adj. 1) Of or pertaining to Britain, British. 2) A surname given to several conquerors of British tribes; thus, to the son of the Emperor Claudius and Messalina, who was previously called Germanicus.

BRITANNUS, a, um, adj. British; subst., Britannus, i, m., a Briton.

BRITO, ōnis, m. (Lat.) 1) A Briton. 2) An inhabitant of Bretagne in France.

BRITOMARTIS, is, f. [= Βριτομαρτίς]. A Cretan nymph and attendant of Diana, inventress of the hunting-net.

BRIXELLUM, i, n. A small town in Upper Italy, now Bersello.

BRIXIA, ae, f. A town in Upper Italy, now Brescia.

BRIXIANUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Brixia, Brixian.

BRŌGĪTĀRUS, i, m. A son-in-law of King Delotarus.

BRŌMIUS, ii, m. [= Βρόμιος, 'the Noisy One'] A surname of Bacchus.

BRŌTEAS, ae, m. [= Βροτάς]. 1) A son of Vulcan and Minerva. 2) A companion of Perseus. 3) One of the Lapithas.

BRUCTERĪ, ōrum, m. pl. A Germanic tribe, in North-western Germany, on the Ems.

BRUCTERUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to the Bructeri.

BRŪGES, um, m. pl. (Ante-cl.) = Phryges, q. v.

BRŪMA, ae, f. [contr. out of brevis, se. dies]. 1) The shortest day in the year, the winter solstice. 2) (Mostly poet.) The winter, in gen.; per b., in the winter.

BRŪMALIS, e, adj. [bruma]. 1) Of or pertaining to the winter solstice. 2) Wintry, of winter.

BRUNDĪSIUM, ii, n. A town in Calabria, with a harbor, where travellers embarked for Greece and the East.

BRUNDĪSINUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Brundisium; subst., Brundisini, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Brundisium.

BRŪTIĀNUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to a Brutus, castra.

BRŪTĪDIUS, ii, m. (Niger.) A Roman historian, in the time of Tiberius.

BRŪTĪNUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to a Brutus, consilia.

BRŪTTIĀNUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to the Bruttii; subst., Bruttiani, ōrum, m. pl., a certain class of servants to the magistrates.

BRŪTTIUS, ii, m. A Bruttian, an inhabitant of the southern part of Italy; usually in the pl., Bruttii, ōrum, the Bruttii; very freq. meton. = the country of the Bruttii, esse in Bruttiiis.

BRŪTTIUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to the Bruttii.

BRŪTUS, a, um, adj. (Poet. & rar.) 1) Heavy, unwieldy, immovable, pondus, tellus. 2) Dull, stupid, insensible, irrational, animal; pira b., with a woolly covering like the stupid sheep.

BRŪTUS, i, m. [brutus, adj.]. A surname of a Roman family in the gens Junia; thus, esp. 1) their ancestor, Lucius J. B., who, in order to escape the cruelty of Tarquinius Superbus, feigned stupidity. Afterwards, he freed Rome from the royal power. 2) Marcus J. B., the murderer of Caesar, a friend of Cicero, and a celebrated orator and philosopher. 3) Decius J. B., a fellow-conspirator of the preceding.

BŪBASIS, Idis, f. } adj. Of or pertaining to Bubassus.

BŪBASSIUS, a, um, } to Bubassus.

BŪBASSUS, i, f. [= Βούβασις]. A town in Caria.

BŪBASTIS, is, f. [= Βούβαστις]. 1) A town in Egypt, on the Pelusian arm of the Nile, now Tell-Basta. 2) An Egyptian goddess, worshipped there, who was freq. confounded with Diana.

BUBILE, is, a. [bos]. An ox-stall, a cow-house.

BUBO, ōnis, m. An owl.

BUBULCITO, and BUBULCITOR, dep., 1. v. intr. [bubulcus]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To drive oxen, to be a herdsman.

BUBULCUS, i, m. [bos]. 1) One who ploughs with oxen, a driver of oxen. 2) (Lat.) A herdsman.

BUBŪLUS, a, um, adj. [bos]. Of or pertaining to neat cattle or oxen, caro; coria bb., thongs or straps of ox-hide.

BUCAEDA, ae, m. [bos-caedo]. (Pl.) One who is whipped with straps of ox-hide.

BUCCA, ae, f. The cheek (inflated or filled out in speaking, eating, &c.—cf. gena). Hence: A) loqui quidquid in buccam venit, whatever comes uppermost: B) of a person whose cheeks are puffed out—a parasite—b) a declaimer, a bawler (of an attorney who speaks much and loudly without adducing any important arguments): C) = a mouthful.

BUCCEA, ae, f. [bucca]. A mouthful.

BUCCO, ōnis, m. [bucca]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A comical personage in the old popular comedy (the 'Atellana', q. v.), a clown, blockhead.

BUCCŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of bucca]. 1) (Lat.) A cheek, mouth. 2) The beaver or cheek-piece of a helmet.

BUCCŪLENTUS, a, um, adj. [buccula]. (Pl.) Having large or full cheeks.

BUCĒPHĀLA, ōrum, n. pl., also, -a, ae, f., -ia, iae, f., -e, es, f. [= Βουκέφαλα]. A town in India, on the Hydaspes, built by Alexander, and named after his horse Bucephalus—now Djelim.

BUCĒPHĀLAS, ae, m. [= Βουκέφαλος], 'having the head of an ox'. The favourite horse of Alexander the Great.

BUCĒPHĀLOS, i, m. [= Βουκέφαλος]. 1) = Bucephalus. 2) A promontory of the Peloponnesus.

BUCĒRIUS or BUCĒRUS, a, um, adj. [= Βούκεριος]. (Poet.) Ox-horned.

BUCĪNA or BUCCĪNA, ae, f. [bucca, buccina]. A horn (spiral—cf. tuba); esp: A) a shepherd's horn: B) the war-trumpet (a short trumpet with which the signal for changing the watches, &c., was given): b. canit, is blown; hence, ad tertiam b., at the third nightwatch.

BUCĪNATOR (Bucc.), ōris, m. [bucina]. A trumpeter; trop., b. exstimationis meae, one who trumpets forth, proclaims.

BUCĪNO (Bucc.), 1. v. intr. [bucina]. (Lat.) To blow the buccina, to give a signal with the trumpet.

BUCŪLICUS, a, um, adj. [= Βουκολικός]. (Poet. & lat.) Of or pertaining to shepherds, bucolic, pastoral: poema b.; also, subst., Bucolica, ōrum, n. pl., bucolic poems, bucolics.

BUCŪLA, ae, f. } [dim. of bos]. A young
BUCŪLUS, i, m. } cow; a young ox.

BŪFO, ōnis, m. A toad.

BULBUS, i, m. [= βολβός]. 1) A bulb, bulbous root of a flower. 2) An onion.

BŪLE, es, f. [= βουλή]. (Lat.) A (Greek) senate.

BŪLEUTA, ae, m. [= βουλευτής]. (Lat.) A (Greek) senator.

BŪLEUTĒRIUM, ii, n. [= βουλευτήριον]. The (Greek) senate-house.

BŪLIMUS, i, m. [= βέλμιος]. (Lat.) Extreme hunger.

BULLA, ae, f. Any thing swelling up and thus becoming round. 1) (Poet. & lat.) A water-bubble. 2) A boss, stud (of doors, girdles, &c.) 3) A kind of amulet, usually of gold, which was worn by triumphers, and afterwards by patrician boys, hanging from the neck upon the breast. The boys laid it aside at the same time with the 'toga praetexta'; hence, bullā dignus = childish.

BULLĀTUS, a, um, adj. [bulla]. (Poet. & lat.) Furnished with a bulla. Hence, 1) (poet.) trop., empty, transient like a bubble, nugae (doubtful reading). 2) Wearing a (golden) bulla about the neck, puer.

BULLĒNSIS, e, adj. Of or pertaining to Bullis; subst., Bullidenses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Bullis.

BULLIENSES, ium, m. pl. (Doubtful reading.) = Bullidenses.

BULLINUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Bullis; subst., Bullini, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Bullis.

BULLIO, ivi, itum, 4. v. intr. [bulla]. (Lat.) To bubble, to boil.

BULLIS, idis, f. A town in Illyria, now probably Gradista.

BŪMASTUS, a, um, adj. [= βοῦμαστος], 'having large breasts'. (Poet. & lat.) A species of grape with large clusters.

BŪPĀLUS, i, m. [= Βούπαλος]. A statuary of Chios, and an enemy of the poet Hipponax—lived 530 B. C.

BŪRA, ae, f. = Buris, q. v.

BURDIGĀLA, ae, f. A town in Aquitania, now Bordeaux.

BURDIGĀLENSIS, e, adj. Of or belonging to Burdigala.

BURGUNDIONES, um, m. pl. A Germanic tribe, living on both sides of the Oder.

BURI, } ōrum, m. pl. A tribe in North-eastern BURII, } Germany.

BŪRIS, is, m. The crooked timber or hinder part of a plough.

BŪSIRIS, idis, m. A king of Egypt, who sacrificed the strangers coming into his territories.

BUSTIRĀPUS, i, m. [bustum-rapio]. (Pl.) A robber of tombs (a term of reproach).

BUSTUARIUS, ii, m. [bustum]. Pertaining to the place where dead bodies were burned; b. gladiator, who fought in games celebrated at a funeral-pile in honour of the dead.

BUSTUM, i. n. [buro = uro]. A place where a dead body was burned and buried; hence, in gen. (mostly poet.), a burial-place, sepulchre, tomb. Hence, trop., vivum b., of the maw of a man-eating animal; b. nati, of Tereus, who had eaten his own son; Philippi bb. civilia, because so many citizens were slain and buried there; b. reipublicae, also b. legum, of one who overthrows the constitution of the state.

BUTHRŌTIUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Buthrotum; subst., Buthrotii, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Buthrotum.

BUTHRŌTUM, i. n. [= Βουθροτόν]. A town of Epirus, opposite Corcyra, now Butrinto.

BUTHYSIA, ae, f. [= Βουθυσία]. (Sueton.) A sacrifice of oxen.

BUTRŌTUS, i. m. A river of Bruttium, now Bruciano.

BŪTRŪM, i. n. [= βούτρον]. Butter.

BUXENTUM, i. n. A town of Lucania, now Policastro.

BUXĪFER, ōra, ōrum, adj. [buxus-fero]. (Poet.) Bearing box-trees.

BUXUM, i. n. 1) Box-wood; hence, things made of box-wood, as a top, comb, writing-tablet, &c. 2) (Rar.) = Buxus.

BUXUS, i, f. [= βύξ]. 1) A box-tree. 2) = Buxum: b. Berecynthia, a Phrygian flute made of box-wood.

BYBLIS, Idia, f. [= Βυβλίς]. A daughter of Miletus, who fell in love with her brother, and was changed into a fountain.

BYRSA, ae, f. [= Βύρσα]. The citadel of Carthage.

BŶZACIUM, ii, n. A province of Africa Propria.

BŶZANTIUM, ii, n. [= Βοζάντιον]. A city on the Thracian Bosphorus, now Constantinople, called by the Turks Stambul.

CABALLUS, i, m. [= καβάλλης]. (Poet. & lat.) An inferior kind of a horse, a nag, hack, pony: prov., optat ephippia bos piger, optat arare caballus, no one is satisfied with his own condition.

CABILLONUM, i. n. [= Καβιλλίνον]. An Eduan town on the Arar, in Gallia Lugdunensis, now Chalons sur Saône.

CABĪRI, ōrum, m. pl. [Καβίριοι]. The Cabiri, deities worshipped by the Pelasgians, esp. at Lemnos and Samothrace, with secret, mystic rites.

CACHINNATIO, ōnis, f. [cachinno]. Loud or immoderate laughter.

CACHINNO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. To laugh loudly or immoderately. [Fr. cachinnus.]

CACHINNUS, i, m. 1) Loud, excessive laughter: tollere, edere c., to break out into a roar of laughter; so also effundi in c. 2) (Poet.) the splashing of the sea.

CĀDO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. 1) Intr., to go to stool. 2) Tr.: A) to emit from one's self at stool, odorem: B) to besmear with excrement, charta cacata.

CĀCOĒTHES, indecl. n. [= κακόςθετος]. 1) (Lat.) A malignant disease. 2) Trop. (poet.), an incurable passion for writing.

CĀCŌSYNTHĒTON, i, n. [= κακόςυνθετον]. In rhet., incorrect or faulty construction.

CĀCŌZĒLIA, ae, f. [= κακοζήλια]. (Lat.) A faulty imitation or affectation of a brilliant style.

CĀCŌZĒLUS, a, um, adj. [= κακόζηλος]. (Lat.) That imitates awkwardly.

CĀCŪLA, ae, m. (Poet., rar.) A soldier's, esp. an officer's servant.

CĀCŪMEN, inis, n. [acumen, with the prefix c]. 1) The extreme end, the point, the summit-top of any thing (cf. culmen, fastigium), montis, arboris, rami. 2) Trop. (Lucr.), the end, limit: ad summam c. venire.

CĀCŪMĪNO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [cacumen]. (Poet. & lat., rare.) To make pointed, to point: c. aures.

CĀCUS, i, m. [= Κάκος]. A giant, son of Vulcan, and a notorious robber—slain by Hercules.

CĀDĀVER, ōris, n. [cado]. 1) A dead body of a man or beast, a corpse; considered as offensive = a carcass (cf. corpus mortuum): c. Clodii cruentum. 2) Trop. — a) as a term of reproach = a worthless, contemptible man — b) cc. oppidorum, the ruins of.

CĀDĀVERŌSUS, a, um, adj. [cadaver]. (Com.) Like a corpse, cādaverous, facies.

CADMEIS, Idia, f. adj. [Καδμήης]. Of Cadmus, Cadmean; hence (poet.) = Theban; subst. sing. = Semele; pl. = the daughters of Cadmus.

CADMEIUS, a, um, adj. [Καδμείος]. Cad-CADMEUS, } mean, and poet. = Theban; subst., Cadmēa, ae, f., the citadel of Thebes founded by Cadmus.

CADMUS, i, m. [= Κάδμος]. 1) Son of the Phoenician king Agenor, brother of Europa, and husband of Harmonia; founder of Thebes, and the reputed inventor of letters. 2) A historian of Miletus. 3) An executioner, in the time of Horace.

CĀDO, cēcidi, cūsum, 3. v. intr. To fall. 1) Prop.: A) to fall down from a higher to a lower point (mostly poet.; in prose the compounds are more frequent), to tumble, to be precipitated (cf. labor): c. a summo, de coelo, ex equo, in aquam; arma de manibus civium impiorum delapsa ceciderunt. In partic. — a) sol c. (poet. & lat.), sets, goes down; so likewise dies c. — b) flumen c. in mare, falls, empties into — c) folia cc., fall off: B) to fall from an upright to a prostrate position: prolapsus cecidit; montes cc., sink, settle down. Hence, in partic. = to fall dead, to die, to be slain, esp. in battle: c. in acie; (poet.) c. ab aliquo, by the hand of some one; hostia c. = is slaughtered. 2) Trop.: A) to fall into, to come or to fall somewhere, to be subjected to something, &c.: c. in morbum, to be taken ill, in bonaspectum, to become visible, sub sensus, to be perceived by the senses; c. ad servitiū, to fall into the hands of slaves, in potestatem, or sub imperium alicujus; res c. in cogitationem, in offensionem, suspicionem alicujus, becomes a subject of thought, a matter of suspicion, &c., with some one. Hence: B) of time, to hit, to fall upon, in tempus alienissimum; hoc c. in adventum tuum, coincides with your arrival; numi co. in eum diem, are due on that day: C) to fit, to suit, to become, to agree or accord with, to take place with, &c.: aegritudo non c. in sapientem, does not befall a wise man; mentiri non c. in virum bonum, cannot be conceived of in an upright man; hoc c. sub eandem rationem, belongs to the same category: D) = to happen, to fall to one, to fall out, to occur, to come to pass, &c.: hoc mihi c. peropportune; cecidit mihi ut, etc.; omnia honesta mihi co., fall to my lot; res aliter c., turned out otherwise; quorsum hoc cecidit, how did it turn out? vota co. (poet.) = are fulfilled; res in (ad) irritum or in cassum (also irrita) c., miscarries, is fruitless: E) = to decline in value, worth, &c., to decrease, to diminish, to sink, to decay, &c., ira, vires, laus; ventus c., dies away; cado animo or animus mihi cadit, my courage fails me; pretium c., the price falls. Hence — a) c. causā or formulā, to lose one's suit — b) fabula cadit, the piece falls through = is condemned. 3) Tech. t., of words or syllables, to terminate, to end in, inane literam, in this letter, in longiores syllabas; oratio numerose c., has at the close of the sentence a rythmical, full-sounding cadence.

CADUCEATOR, ōris, m. [caduceus]. A herald sent to the enemy, an officer with a flag of truce.

CADUCEUM, ei, n. } [caduceus]. A herald's staff.

CADUCIFER, ōris, m. [caduceus-fero]. (Poet.) Bearing a herald's staff, a surname of Mercury.

CADUCUS, a, um, adj. [cado]. 1) (Mostly poet.) Fallen; fallen or sunk down, folia, fulmen; trop., caducus bello, fallen in battle = slain; lignum c. in caput domini, that fell against, i. e., almost on the head of the master. 2) Inclined or ready to fall, that easily falls, liable to fall off: flos c.; vitis naturā est c.; trop., juvenis c. (poet.), destined to an early death. 3) Trop., frail, perishable, vain, res humanae, spes, tempus. 4) Tech. t., hereditas, possessio c., vacant, to which there is no (rightful) heir or possessor.

CADURCI, ōrum, m. pl. A tribe of Gallia Aquitania, who occupied what is now Quercy, with the capital Cahors.

CADURCUM, i, n. A kind of coverlet made by the Cadurci; meton. = a bed ornamented with a Cadurcian coverlet, a marriage-bed.

CADURCUS, a, um, adj. [Cadurci]. Of or belonging to the Cadurci.

CADUS, i, m. [= κάδος]. (Poet. & lat.) A large earthen jar, for holding liquids as well as dry things; esp. for wine, but also for honey, oil, &c.

CADUSII, ōrum, m. pl. A tribe on the south-east side of the Caspian Sea.

CAECIAS, ae, m. [= κακίας]. (Lat.) The north-east wind.

*CAECIGENUS, a, um, adj. [caecus-gigno]. (Lucr.) Born blind.

CAECILIANUS (I.), a, um, adj. Of or belonging to a Caecilius, Caecilian.

CAECILIANUS (II.) i, m. (Lat.) A Roman proper name.

CAECILIA, ae, f. } The name of a Roman CAECILIUS, ii, m. } gens, of which the family of the Metelli was most famous. 1) Q. C. M. Macedonicus, conquered Macedonia, 146 B. C. 2) Q. C. M. Celer, was praetor during the consulship of Cicero. 3) Q. C. M. Nepos, a brother of Q. C. M. Celer, an adversary of Cicero. 4) Q. C. M. Numidicus, carried on the war against Jugurtha with great fame, but had to surrender the chief command to C. Marius. 5) Q. C. M. Creticus, as consul, conquered Crete, and subdued the pirates, on account of which some jealousy sprang up between him and his contemporary Pompey. 6) Caec. Statius, was a Roman writer of comedies, and a contemporary of Ennius.

CAECILIUS, a, um, adj. Of or belonging to a Caecilius, Caecilian.

CAECINA, ae, m. A surname in the gens Licinia; thus, esp. A. Licinius C., in behalf of whose citizenship Cicero made the speech 'pro Caecina.'

CAECITAS, ātis, f. [caecus]. Blindness; trop., animi c.

CAECO, āvi, ātum, i. v. tr. [caecus]. 1) (Rar., poet. & lat.) To make blind: sol c. 2) Trop.: A) to blind, to dazzle, mentem; caecus libidine: B) oratio caecata, dark, equivocal.

CAECUBUM, i, n. A marshy place in Southern Latium, renowned for the excellence of its wines.

CAECUBUS, a, um, adj. Of or belonging to Caecubum, Caecuban; subet., Caecubum, i, n., Caecuban wine.

CAECUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. 1) Act., that can not see: A) blind, catulus; corpus c., the blind part of the body, the back: B) trop. — a) mentally blind, mens c.; praeceps et c. fertur; caecus crudelitate; c. ad belli artes, who does not understand the stratagems of war — b) of the passions or emotions, c. timiditas, timor. 2) Pass., that can not be seen: A) concealed, hid den, invisible, fores, fossa, venenum; vulnus c., *concealed, hidden; ictus c., a blow on the back; murmur c., smothered, indistinct; manus c., unseen: B) uncertain, unknown, causa, fata, eventus; crimen c., that can not be proved: C) (Pl.) caecā die emere aliquid, on credit for an indefinite period. 3) Neutr., where one can not see, dark, gloomy, opaque, nox, tenebrae, domus. 4) Trop., vain, empty, ineffectual, ignes, exsecratio.

CAEDES, is, f. [caedo]. 1) (Rare, lat.) A falling, cutting, topping off, ligni. 2) A killing; both, of an individual = a murder, manslaughter; and, of a number = a slaughter, massacre, carnage (esp. in war): c. privatorum; magnam civium c. facere, edere, to make a great slaughter of the citizens; (rar.) facere caedem in aliquem = to slay one; also, of animals, c. fenum. Hence, trop. (poet. & lat.): A) acervi caedis, the persons slain, the slain: B) = the blood shed by murder: madere caede.

CAEDO, cecidi, caesum, 3. v. tr. [kindred w. cado]. 1) To fell, to hew, to cut, to cut down: c. arbores, silvam; c. frondes, comam; c. murum, montes; toga apte caesa, cut out. 2) = To kill, to slay, hominem; esp. in military lang., either of a single enemy or of a hostile army, to cut down, to slaughter, to put to the sword: c. hostes, legiones; also, of animals, to slaughter, to sacrifice: c. gregem, bestias. 3) In gen., to strike, to beat, to cudgel: c. silicem rostro; c. aliquem pugnīs, with the fist; c. aliquem verberibus (virgis), also abs. c. = to flog; prov., c. stimulos pugnīs = to make an evil worse by useless resistance; trop., caedi testibus = to be embarrassed by the witnesses. 4) (Colloq.) C. sermones, to chat, to converse. 5) C. pignora — v. Pignus. 6) Part. Caesa, n. pl.: A) ruta c., or ruta et c. (tech t. in the lang. of law), prop., everything that is dug out (ruo) and felled (caedo) on an estate and retained by the seller; hence, in gen. = the moveable things, furniture, &c.: B) prov., inter caesa et porrecta, between the slaughtering of the victim and the placing of the entrails on the altar, i. e., whilst one is occupied with any thing = inopportunately.

CAELĀMEN, Inis, n. [caelo]. (Poet. & lat., rare.) A bas-relief.

CAELĀTOR, ōris, m. [caelo]. An artisan in carved work, a carver or sculptor in relief.

CAELĀTURA, ae, f. [caelo]. (Lat.) 1) A carving of reliefs in metal, &c. 2) Trop., the figures in relief: cc. attritae.

CAELEBS, libis, adj. Unmarried (of a widow as well as of a bachelor). Hence (poet.): A) vita, lectus c., solitary, single: B) platanus c., to which no vine is attached (and, as it were, married).

CAELĪBĀTUS, ūs, m. [caelebs]. Celibacy.

CAELESTIS, CAELUM, etc. — v. Coelestis, etc.

CAELO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [caelum]. 1) To execute in relief upon metals, &c., to engrave (lat. also to cast), to carve in relief, vasa; aurum caelatum, with figures in relief; c. fortia facta in auro, to represent in relief upon gold; sq. also, c. flumina auro; (poet.) of similar work upon wood, stone, &c. 2) Trop. (poet. & lat.) of other works of art = to produce, to execute, velamina; opus novem Musis caelatum.

CAELUM, i, n. A chisel, graver.

CAEMENTUM, i, n. [instead of caedimentum, from caedo]. A rough stone, as it comes from the quarry.

CAENA, etc. — v. Coena, etc.

CAENEUS, ei, m. [= Καῖνός]. A Thessalian, originally a girl, named Caenis; afterwards changed by Neptune into a boy.

CAENINA, ae, f. A small town in Latium.

CAENINENSES, ium, m. pl. [Caenina]. The inhabitants of Caenina.

CAENINUS, a, um, adj. [Caenina]. Of or belonging to Caenina.

CAENUM — v. Coenum.

CAEPA, ae, f., and CAEPE, n. (only in the nom. and acc.). An onion.

CAERE, indecl. n. An ancient town in Etruria, now Cerveteri.

CAERES, Itis and ōtis, adj. [Caere]. Of or belonging to Caere; subst., Caerites, and Caeretes, um, m. pl., the inhabitants of Caere. For assistance rendered to the Romans in the Gallic war, they obtained the Roman citizenship, but without the right of voting. Hence it denoted, afterwards, in gen., a citizen without the right of voting; and, in tabulas Caeritum, or (as adj.) Caerites referri = to become a citizen without political rights, i. e., without the right of voting or of holding public office; and, Caerite cerā (= tabulā) dignus, deserving to be deprived of political rights.

CAERIMŌNIA (also Cer.), ae, f. 1) Venerableness, sanctity, legationis. 2) A religious awe, reverence, veneration: metus et c. decorum; summa religione et c. sacra conficere. 3) A holy act, a religious usage, a sacred ceremony: sacra et cc.; cc. peregrinae; cc. sepulcrorum, that take place at sepulchres; virginitas (of the vestals) aliaeque cc., and other religious ordinances.

*CAERŪLEĀTUS, a, um, adj. [caeruleus]. (Lat.) = Caeruleus, q. v.

CAERŪLEUS, } a, um, adj. 1) Dark-CAERŪLUS (poet.), } blue (as the sky and the sea), mare, pontus; cc. campi, the surface of the sea; subst., Caerula, ōrum, n. pl., the blue surface of the sea; verrunt cc.; caerula mundi, the blue sky. Hence: A) of objects belonging to the sea, dii, curus Neptuni: B) of other dark-blue objects, serpens, oculi. 2) (Poet.) In gen., dark-coloured, dark, black, vittae, equi Platonis, mors, imber; c. quercus, prata, dark-green.

CAESAR Aris, m. The name of a renowned family in the gens Julia. Thus, esp. 1) Lucius J. C., slain by Fimbria, as an adherent of Marius and Cinna. 2) Caius J. C. Strabo, a brother of Lucius J. C., and a renowned orator, slain together with his brother. 3) Caius J. C., the celebrated general, statesman, and orator, triumvir with Pompey and Crassus (60 B. C.), elected dictator for life (45 B. C.), but murdered the next year. 4) C. Julius Caesar Octavianus, a sister's son of the preceding, the first emperor (from 81 B. C. — died 14 A. D.). After him, all the emperors bore the cognomen 'Caesar,' until, under Hadrian, the practice arose of calling the ruling emperor Caesar 'Augustus,' but the designated heir to the throne 'Caesar' only.

CAESAR-AUGUSTA, ae, f. A town in the north-east of Spain, now Saragoza.

CAESAREA, ae, f. [Καίσαρεια]. The name of several towns; thus, esp. 1) C. ad Argaem, the capital of Cappadocia. 2) C. Palaestinae, on the sea, embellished by Herod with several palaces — now Kaisariëk. 3) C. Mauritaniae, on the sea — now Tenes (acc. to others, Algiers).

CAESAREUS, a, um, adj. 1) Of or relating to C. J. Caesar, the dictator. 2) (Lat.) Imperial.

CAESARIANUS, a, um, adj. = Caesareus; subst., Caesariani, örum, m. pl., the adherents of Caesar in the civil war.

CAESARIATUS, a, um, adj. [caesaries]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Having long or bushy hair.

CAESARIENSIS, e, adj. A surname of several districts, esp. Mauritania C.

CAESARIES, ei, f. (Mostly poet.) A (luxuriant and beautiful) head of hair (cf. coma and capillus); (poet.) c. barbae, a long beard.

CAESARINUS, a, um, adj. = Caesareus 1.

CAESARIO, önis, m. A son of C. J. Caesar (3), the dictator, and Cleopatra.

CAESENA, ae, f. A town in Gallia Cispadana, now Cesena.

CAESENNIUS, ii, m., & -a, ae, f. The name of a Roman family.

CAESIA SILVA. A forest in North-western Germany, now Dämmerwald and Häserwald, on the borders of Cleves and Münster.

CAESIUS, or Caesitius, a, um, adj. [caesus]. Of a bluish colour, bluish.

CAESIM, adv. [caedo]. 1) By cutting, with cuts; in military lang., with the edge of the sword (opp. to punctim, 'with the point'), petere hostem. 2) Trop., of discourse, brokenly, in short clauses.

CAESIUS, a, um, adj. (Rar.) Blue, bluish-grey (only of the eyes): virgo c., blue-eyed.

CAESIUS, ii, m. A Roman proper name.

CAESO (Kaesö), önis, m. A Roman family name, esp. in the Fabian gens.

CAESONIUS, a, m. and f. A Roman family name; Milonia C., was the favourite and afterwards the wife of the Emperor Caligula.

CAESPES — v. Cespes.

CAESTUS or CESTUS, üs, m. A leather strap (or glove), with balls of lead or iron fastened in, which a boxer wound about his hand, so as to strike harder blows — the cestus.

CAIÄNUS, a, um, adj. [Caius]. Of or pertaining to the Emperor Caligula.

CAICUS, i, m. [= Καίκος]. 1) A river of Greater Mysia. 2) One of the companions of Aeneas.

CAIUS, i, m., and CAIA, ae, f. A Roman praenomen; thus, esp. 1) A distinguished Roman jurist (the name is also written Gaius), who lived in the time of the Emperor Adrian. 2) The Emperor Caius Caligula.

CAJETA, ae, f. 1) The nurse of Aeneas. 2) A town and harbor in Latium, now Gaëta.

CAJETÄNUS, a, um, adj. [Cajeta]. Of or pertaining to Cajeta.

CÄLÄBER, bra, brum, adj. Calabrian; subst., Calabri, örum, m. pl., the Calabrians.

CÄLÄBRIA, ae, f. The south-eastern peninsula of Italy, now Terra d'Otranto.

CÄLACTA, ae, f. A town on the north coast of Sicily, now Caronia.

CÄLACTINUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Calacta; subst., Calactini, örum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Calacta.

CÄLÄGÜRIS, is, f. 1) A town of Hispania Tarraconensis, now Loharra. 2) A town of the Vascones in Spain, and birth-place of Quintilian — now Calahorra.

CÄLÄGÜRITÄNI, örum, m. pl. The inhabitants of Calaguria.

CÄLAIS, idis, m. [= Καλαίς]. The winged son of Boreas, who, with his brother Zethes, took part in the Argonautic expedition.

CÄLÄMIS, idis, m. [= Καλαμῖς]. A celebrated Greek sculptor, in the time of Phidias.

CÄLÄMISTER, tri, m. (ante-cl. & lat. also CÄLÄMISTRUM, i, n.) [calamus]. 1) A long, hollow iron for curling the hair, a curling-iron. 2) Plur., trop., of discourse, an excess of ornament, artificialness, flourish of words.

CÄLÄMISTRÄTUS, a, um, adj. [calamister]. Curled with a curling-iron (a mark of effeminacy), homo, coma.

CÄLÄMITAS, ätis, f. [accord. to some from calamus, originally = injury done by the weather to the growing crops, kindred with incolumis]. Loss, damage, mischief, misfortune, calamity: accipere c., to suffer; eesse in magnä c.; c. fructuum, failure; freq. in the historical writers = the misfortunes of war, defeat, disaster: proeliis et calamitatibus fracti, accidit illa c. apud Leontora.

CALAMITOSE, adv. [calamitosus]. Calamitously, unfortunately.

CALAMITOSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [calamitas]. 1) Act., causing damage and loss, injurious, pernicious, destructive, tempestas, bellum. 2) Pass. — a) exposed to great damage or injury, locus, agri, vectigal coelo ac loco calamitosum — b) suffering damage, unfortunate, miserable.

CALAMUS, i, m. [= κλάμος]. 1) A reed (in gen. — cf. arundo and canna; as a hollow substance, cf. culmus). 2) Hence: A) a reed-pen: B) (poet.) a reed-pipe: C) (poet.) an arrow: D) (poet.) an angling-rod: E) (poet. & lat.) a Hemitig for catching birds: F) (poet. & lat.) a stalk, straw, in gen.: G) (lat.) a graft, a scion.

CALANUS, i, m. An Indian philosopher (Gymnosophist), in the time of Alexander the Great.

CALATHISCUS, i, m. [dim. of calathus]. A small wicker-basket.

CALĀTHUS, i, m. [= κλάδος]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) A wicker-basket, in which flowers, fruits, wool, &c., were carried. 2) A basket-shaped vessel of metal or wood, for milk, &c., a bowl, a cup.

CALĀTIA, ae. } f. A town in Com-
CALĀTIAE, arum, (Lat.) } pania, on the Via Appia, now Guajazzo.

CALĀTINI, orum, m. pl. The inhabitants of Calatia.

CALĀTINUS, i, m. A surname of M. Attilius.

CALĀTOR, oris, m. (Poet. & lat.) Prop., a crier; a servant, esp. a priest's servant.

CALĀURĒA, ae. } f. [= Καλαύρεια]. An island
CALĀURIA, ae. } in the Saronic Gulf, now Porro.

CALAUTICA, ae, f. (Rar.) A female head-dress, a hood or veil.

CALCAR, aris, n. [calx II.]. (Mostly in pl.) 1) A spur: subdere, addere (equo) calcaria, to spur (a horse). 2) Trop., a spur, stimulus, incitement.

CALCEAMENTUM, i, n., or (lat.) Calceāmen, inis, n., and (lat.) Calceātus, ūs, m. [calceus]. A covering for the foot, a shoe.

CALCEĀRIUM, ii, n. [calceus]. (Lat.) Money for shoes, shoe-money.

CALCEO (Calcio), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To furnish with shoes, to shoe. [Fr. calceus.]

CALCEOLĀRIUS, ii, m. [calceolus]. (Pl.) A shoemaker.

CALCEOLUS, i, m. [dim. of calceus]. A little shoe.

CALCEUS, i, m. A shoe covering part of the leg, a half-boot (cf. soles): c. habilis et aptus ad pedem. In partic.: A) calceos poscere — to rise from the table, because the Romans, when they reclined at table, laid aside their shoes: B) calceos mutare — to become a senator, as the senators wore shoes of a particular kind.

CALCHAS, antis, m. [= Καλχες]. A Greek seer, in the camp before Troy.

CALCIĀRIUM, CALCIĀTUS, etc. — v. Calcearium, etc.

CALCITRO, 1. v. intr. [calx II.]. 1) To strike backward with the feet, to kick; (poet.) of a dying person, to kick convulsively. 2) Trop., to make resistance, to be stubborn or refractory.

CALCITRO, ōnis, m. [calx II.]. (Ante-cl.) One who knocks violently, a blusterer, noisy fellow.

CALCO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [calx II.]. 1) To tread upon any thing, viperam: c. uvam, to tread. 2) (Poet.) To tread upon, to visit, to pass over, viam, litora; c. agrum, to tread down, to press close together. 3) Trop. — a) to tread under foot, to trample upon, to oppress, gentem, libertatem — b) (poet. & lat.) to mock, to scorn, to insult.

CALCŪLUS, i, m. [dim. of calx I.]. 1) A small, smooth stone (cf. lapis, scrupulus). 2) In particular: A) a stone used in the game of draughts, called 'duodecim scripta,' a draughtsman: B) a stone used on a reckoning-board; hence, trop. = reckoning, computation: calculos subducere, to compute or cast up the whole amount; vocare aliquid ad cc., to subject to a calculation, aliquem, to reckon with, to settle accounts with any one: C) in the ancient times, a stone for voting, a voting-stone, 'white' to express assent or acquittal, 'black' for the contrary; hence, prov., album calculum rei alicui adicere = to assent to, to consent: D) a stone in the bladder.

CALDĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [instead of calidarius, from calidus]. (Lat.) Pertaining to warming, warm: cella c., or subst., Caldarium, ii, n., a warm bath (room), a hot bath.

CALDIUS, ii, m. [caldo]. A nickname (made from Claudius), given to the Emperor Tiberius (= "he who grows with wine").

CALDOR, ōris, m. [caleo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Warmth, heat.

CALDUS = Calidus.

CALĒDŌNIA, ae, f. The highlands of Scotland, Caledonia.

CALĒDŌNIUS, a, um, adj. [Caledonia]. Caledonian.

CALĒFĀCIO (or Calf.), fēci, factum, 8. v. tr. [caleo]. 1) To warm, to make warm, to heat, corpus. 2) Trop.: A) to keep any one in a heat = to disquiet, to trouble: B) (poet.) to put into a passion, to excite, to rouse up, corda: C) (lat.) to pursue any thing eagerly, c. forum aleatorium, to play passionately.

CALĒFACTO, 1. v. tr. [freq. of calefacio]. (Rar., poet. & lat.) To warm, to make warm; trop., c. aliquem virgis, to whip soundly.

CALENDÆ (also written Kal.), arum, f. pl. [calo]. The first day of the Roman month: cc. Januariae, Apriles; cc. tristes, because on this day (each month) interest was paid: prov., sol vere ad Græcos co. = never, "to the end of the world" (because the Greeks did not reckon in this manner).

CALENDARIUM, ii, n. [calendæ]. (Lat.) A debt or interest-book, showing the amount of interest due on the first of the month.

CALENUS, a, um, adj. Of Cales, Calenian.

CALĒO, ui, —, 2. v. intr. 1) To be warm or hot (cf. aestuo, which is subjective, while caleo is objective): ignis c.; arae co. ture. 2) Trop.: A) of the mind, and of passion, to be heated, reused, warmed, inflamed, to glow: Romani co. ab recenti pugna; animi co. spe; c. studio, ira, &c.; c. in dicendo, to speak with warmth; omnes co., all are full of zeal; in partic., of the passion of love, c. feminâ, to be enamoured of a woman; c. ad lucrum (poet.), to seek gain with eager desire; also abs., to be in a state of disquiet or suspense, to be perplexed: B) of abstract things, to be urged or carried on with great zeal: judicium co.; crimen c. = is much talked about; res satis c., is ripe for execution: C) = to be yet fresh and new, res, rumor.

CĀLES, is, or pl. ium, f. A town in Campania, celebrated for its excellent wine, now Calvi.

CĀLESCO, lui, —, 3. v. intr. [inch. of caleo]. To grow or become warm; trop. (poet.), of the passions, to glow, to begin to burn with any thing: c. flammâ propiore.

CĀLIDE, adv. [calidus]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Trop., 1) hotly, dicere. 2) Promptly = on the spot.

CĀLIDUS or (ante-cl., poet. & lat.) CALDUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. 1) Warm, hot, fons, vapor; hence, subst.: A) (lat.) Calda or CĀlida, ae, f. (sc. aqua), warm water: B) Caldum or CĀlidum, i, n., warm drink, a mixture of wine and hot water. 2) Trop., fiery, hot, passionate, violent, equus, homo; c. redemptor, eager; c. consilium, a resolution made under excitement, hence = inconsiderate, rash. Hence (ante-cl.) = prompt, procured with dispatch, pecunia, mendacium, a newly coined lie.

CĀLIENDRUM, i, n. (Rar., poet.) A kind of head-dress of the Roman women.

CĀLIGA, ae, f. 1) A leather shoe or half-boot worn by soldiers, a soldier's boot. 2) Trop., military service: c. Marius dimisit, is discharged from military service.

CĀLIGĀTUS, a, um, adj. [caliga]. (Lat.) Wearing soldiers' boots, booted; hence, subst. = a common soldier.

CĀLIGINŌSUS, a, um, adj. w. sup. [caligo]. Covered with mist and vapour; hence = dark, gloomy, obscure, coelum, tenebrae, nox.

CĀLIGO, inis, f. 1) (Mostly poet. & lat.) A mist, vapour, fog: humida c. exhalatur a terra. 2) Darkness, obscurity, produced by a mist or fog (stronger than 'tenebrae'): c. et tenebrae. Hence: A) offundere caliginem oculis alicujus, to make one dizzy: B) trop. — a) inducere c. alicui, to eclipse any one — b) of mental darkness = uncertainty, perplexity of mind, &c.: c. mentis; offundere c. animis — e) = calamity, misfortune: c. illorum temporum.

CĀLIGO, —, —, 1. v. intr. & tr. [caligo] 1) Intr.: A) to be veiled in darkness = to be dark, lusus; oculi co., it grows dark before the eyes: B) of persons, to grope about in darkness = not to be able to perceive, to lack clear perception: c. ad videndum quid sit quod vitam beatam efficiat; prov., c. in sole, to grope about in broad daylight = to understand nothing in the midst of the greatest clearness. 2) (Rar.) Tr., to darken, to make dark: fenestras co. (by their height); nubes co.

CĀLIGŪLA, ae, m. [dim. of caliga, 'a small military boot']. A surname of the Emperor Caligula (because he had grown up in the camp among soldiers).

CĀLIX, Icis, m. [καλίσ]. 1) A cup, goblet: fecundi co., full. 2) (Ante-cl. & poet.) A dish, pot.

CALLEO, ui, —, 2. v. intr. & tr. [callum]. 1) Intr.: A) (ante-cl. & lat.) to have a hard and thick skin, (from much and hard work, &c.): costas co. plagis: *B) to be dull, insensible, callous: C) (ante-cl. & lat.) to be wise from experience and practice, to be practised or versed in, to be skilled in: omnes homines co. ad quaestum suum; c. in re aliqua. 2) Tr., to know a thing by experience and practice, to understand: c. urbanas res, illam artem; (rar.) c. facere aliquid; c. (I know) quo pacto id fieri soleat.

CALLICRĀTĪDAS, ae, m. [= Καλλικράτης]. A Spartan general, who lost his life in the battle near the Arginusae (406 B. C.).

CALLICŪLA, ae, f. A mountain in Campania, now Cajanello.

CALLIDE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [callidus]. 1) Prudently, skilfully, in an intelligent manner; (Com.) c. aliquid intelligere = very well, right well. 2) Shrewdly, craftily.

CALLIDITAS, ātis, f. [callidus]. Skill, prudence. 1) In a good sense, wisdom, intelligence, shrewdness: c. et celeritas ingenii. 2) In a bad sense, cunning, craftiness, subtlety; pl., cc. alicujus, tricks, crafty artifices.

CALLIDUS, a, um, adj. [calleo]. Skilled, wise from experience and practice. 1) In a good sense: A) of persons, prudent, expert, clever, intelligent: c. in re aliqua, ad suum quaestum; (poet. & lat.) c. rei alicujus, in any thing; (poet.) c. condere, in concealing: B) of things, ingenious, ingeniously contrived, artificium, inventum. 2) In a bad sense, crafty, cunning, sly: c. et subdolus; c. et versutus; c. ad fraudem, in disputando; also, of things, c. dolus, cumtatio.

CALLIFÆ, Ærum, f. pl. A town in the region of the Hirpini, perhaps the present Carife.

CALLIMACHUS, i. m. [= Καλλίμαχος]. A distinguished Alexandrian poet (250 B. C.).

CALLIOPE, es, and CALLIOPEA, ae, f. [= Καλλιόπη, 'having a beautiful voice']. One of the nine Muses, the goddess of (esp. epic) poetry. Hence (poet.) — a) musæ, in gen. — b) = poetry.

CALLIPHON, ontis, m. [= Καλλιφών]. A Greek philosopher, perhaps of the Pythagorean school.

CALLIRHOË (poet. Calirhoe), es, f. [= Καλλιρρόη]. Daughter of the river Achelous, and second wife of Alcæmon.

CALLIS, is, m. (rar. f.) A narrow footpath over mountains and through forests, esp. one made by cattle, a mountain-path (cf. trames and semita).

CALLISTHÈNES, is, m. [= Καλλισθένης]. A Greek philosopher, friend and companion of Alexander the Great, put to death by him for his freedom of speech.

CALLISTO, ûs, f. [= Καλλιστώ]. A daughter of the Arcadian king Lycaon, mother of Arcas by Jupiter, changed by Juno into a bear, and afterwards placed among the stars as Ursa Major.

CALLISTRATUS, i, m. [= Καλλιστρατός]. A distinguished Athenian orator (378 B. C.).

CALLOSUS, a, um, adj. [callum]. (Poet. & lat.) Hard or thick-skinned, callous, olivæ, ovum, cutis, thick or hard.

CALLUM, i, n. 1) Hardened, thick skin on the body: a. solorum. Hence: A) (ante-cl. & lat.) = tough flesh, a. aprugnum, of a wild boar: B) (Plin.) the hard skin or rind of certain fruits: a. pirorum: C) the hard crust of the earth, terrae. 2) Trop., of the mind, dulness, insensibility: callum obducere (inducere, ducere) animo alicujus, to make callous, to dull; but, a. dolori, stomacho, to make callous to pain, anger, to make pain to be less felt.

CALO, avi, âtum, 1. v. tr. [καλέω]. (Lat.) Prop., to call out, to proclaim (only as tech. t.): A) a. nonas, of the pontifex, who, in ancient times, made known on the 'calends' how many days there were until the next 'nonas': B) comitia calata (called together by the priest), a peculiar kind of comitia curiata (perhaps also of centuriata), at which the pontiffes presided, and where sometimes certain priests (rex sacrorum and flamines) were consecrated, and certain family transactions (esp. the 'detestationes sacrorum' and wills) were ratified.

CALO, onis, m. A soldier's servant, a soldier's boy, who attended to the baggage (cf. lixa); hence, in gen., a servant.

CALOR, oris, m. [caleo]. 1) Heat, warmth, esp. = the warmth of summer (mediis co., in the midst of summer); the heat of a fever; a. vitalis, vital warmth. 2) Trop. (poet. & lat.), of the mind, a passionate excitement, fire, zeal: a. cogitationis, dicendi; trahere c. = to fall in love, in pl. = love, love-affairs.

*CALORIFICUS, a, um, adj. [calor-facio]. (Gell.) Quasiing warmth.

CALPE, es, f. [= Καλη]. A high mountain on the Straits of Gibraltar, one of the Pillars of Hercules (cf. Abyla).

CALPURNIA, ae, f. } The name of a Roman gens, of which the family of the Pisones was the most important.

1) C. P. Frugi, a son-in-law and faithful friend of Cicero, who died when still a youth. 2) Lucius C. P. Caesôninus, the father-in-law of Caesar, consul 58 B. C., and an opponent of Cicero. 3) Cneius C. P., who, under Tiberius, succeeded Germanicus in Asia, and probably poisoned him. 4) L. C. Bestia, consul, and commander of an army against Jugurtha (111 B. C.), by whom he was bribed. 5) Marcus C. Bibulus, an opponent and colleague of Caesar, in almost all public offices.

CALTHA, ae, f. (Poet. & lat.) A yellowish, strong-smelling flower, probably the marigold.

*CALTHULA, ae, f. [caltha]. A woman's garment of a yellow colour.

CALUMNIA, ae, f. [calvor]. 1) Tech. t., in the lang. of law, chicanery, a perversion of law = A) chicanery, by means of a false accusation of one who is innocent, intrigues: a. et malitiosa juris interpretatio; jurare calumniam, to swear that one does not make a malicious accusation: B) An accusation concerning such an intrigue: effugere c.; afferre a. ad pontifices; ferre c. = to be declared a false accuser. 2) In gen.: A) intrigue, artifice, chicanery: calumniâ dicendi tempus eximere, to keep on speaking purposely until the time (of the senate's session) is up: B) a false and groundless pretext: a. religionis, derived from religious scrupulosity: C) sophistry, sophistical interpretation, reasoning, &c.: a. Arceasilæ; adhibere c.: D) trop., a. timoris, an unfair accusation of one's self caused by the exaggerations of fear; thus likewise inimica contra se c., an exaggerated severity in judging one's self (see Calumniator 2, and Calumnior 2, a).

CALUMNIATOR, oris, m. [calumnior]. 1) Tech. t., one who brings a false and malicious accusation against another, a pettifogger, a perverter of law: a. sequitur scriptum (sticks to the latter), bonus iudex voluntatem scriptoris defendit. 2) (Lat.) C. sui, one who is too severe in judging of his own work.

CALUMNIOR, âtus, 1. v. dep. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to contrive intrigues, to bring a false and malicious accusation against one: aperte ludificari et c.; calumniari ipse, I contrived an unfair and unmerited accusation against myself (i. e., deliberated what others might unjustly say against me). 2) Tr.: A) a. aliquem, to accuse one maliciously and unjustly: B) in gen., to attack, to censure in a sophistical manner, aliquem, festinationem alicujus: C) (lat.) c. se, to criticize one's own work too severely and anxiously.

CALVA, ae, f. [calvus]. The (bald) skull.

CALVĒNA, ae, m. [calvus]. A fictitious name for the bald-headed C. Matius, a friend of Cæsar.

CALVĪSIUS, ii, m. The name of a Roman gens; thus, esp. C. Calv. Sabinus, a general under Cæsar (48 B. C.), afterwards prætor in Africa.

CALVĪTIES, ei, f. [calvus]. (Lat.) Baldness.

CALVĪTIUM, ii, n. [calvus]. A bald place on the head, (partial) baldness.

CALVOR, —, 8. v. dep. intr. 1) (XII tabb.) To use subterfuges (of one who is summoned to court). 2) (Ante-cl.) To deceive by not appearing, aliquem.

CALVUS, a, um, adj. Bald.

CALX (I.), cis, f. (rar. m.). 1) (Ante-cl.) A small stone, counter, used in gaming = calculus. 2) Limestone, lime; (lat.) c. viva, unslaked, macerata or exstincta, slaked; coquere c., to burn. 3) Since, in ancient times, the goal of a race-course was marked out with lime (later with chalk), trop., the goal, end of a race-course: ad c. pervenire; ad carceres a c. revocari, to return from the end to the beginning.

CALX (II.), cis, f. (rar. m.) [λᾱξ]. The heel, of man as well as of animals: remittere c. or calcibus (aliquem) petere, to kick. Prov. — a) pugnis et calcibus, with one's hands and feet — b) (colloq.) adversus stimulum calces (sc. jacitare), to kick against the pricks, to make an evil worse by useless resistance.

CALYCADNUS, i, m. [= Καλύκαδνος]. A promontory and river in Cilicia.

CALYDON, ōnis, f. [= Καλυδών]. A town in Ætolia, on the river Evenus, near the present Kurtaga. It is famous for the Calydonian chase (v. Meleager).

CALYDŌNIS, idis, f. adj. Calydonian; subet., a Calydonian woman; in partic. = Dejanira, the daughter of King Æneus of Calydonia.

CALYDŌNIUS, a, um, adj. Calydonian; C. heros = Meleager, amnis = Achelous, regna, the kingdom of Diomedes in Lower Italy.

CALYMNE, es, f. [= Κάλυμνος]. An island in the Ægean Sea, not far from Rhodes.

CALYPSO, ūs, and (rar.) -ōnis, f. [= Καλύψω]. A nymph living on the island Ogygia, daughter of Atlas, who hospitably received Ulysses, and detained him on her island for seven years.

CAMĀRĪNA, ae, f. [= Καμαρίνα]. A town on the south-west coast of Sicily, now Camarana.

CAMBŪNII MONTES. Boundary-mountains between Thessaly and Macedonia.

CAMBŪSES, is, m. [= Καμβύσης]. 1) The father of the elder Cyrus, and husband of Mandane. 2) The son and successor of Cyrus.

CAMELLA, ae, f. (Poet. & lat.) A kind of drinking-cup.

CAMELOPARDĀLIS, is, f. [= καμηλοπάρδαλις]. A camelopard, giraffe.

CAMELUS, i, m. [= κάμλος]. A camel.

CAMĒNA, ae, f. [instead of casmena, carmena, from cano]. 1) A Muse. 2) (Poet.) A poem: prima c.

CAMĒRA, or CAMĀRA, ae, f. [= καμάρα]. 1) An arch, an arched roof or ceiling. 2) (Lat.) A ship with an arched covering, used on the Black Sea.

CAMĒRIA, ae, f. A Sabine town in Latium.

CAMĒRĪNUM, i, n. A town in Umbria, now Camerino.

CAMĒRĪNUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Cameria; subet., Camerini, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Cameria; Camerinus, i, m., a surname of the illustrious gens Sulpicia; hence poet. for people of distinction and rank.

CAMERS, tis, adj. Of Camerinum, Camertian; subet., Camertes, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Camerinum.

CAMERTINUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Camerinum.

CAMILLUS, i, m. A noble youth employed in religious services, esp. by the Flamen Dialis.

CAMILLUS, i, m. A family name in the gens Furia; esp. Fur. Cam., who conquered the Veii, and delivered Rome from the Gauls.

CAMINUS, i, m. [= κάμινος]. A furnace: 1) A smelting-furnace, a forge. 2) A warming-furnace for a room, a fire-place; also, meton., a fire. Prov., oleum addere camino, to pour oil upon a fire, to make an evil greater.

CAMIRUS, i, m. [= Κάμιρος]. A town in Rhodes, founded, according to the legend, by a hero of the same name.

CAMPĀNIA, ae, f. A rich and fruitful district in Middle Italy, south of Latium.

CAMPĀNICUS, a, um, adj. (Ante-cl.) = Campanus.

CAMPĀNUS, a, um, adj. Campanian; morbus C., a wart on the face, endemic in Campania; subet., Campani, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Campania.

CAMPAS, ātis, adj. (Ante-cl.) Campanian.

CAMPA, ae, f. [κάμπη]. (Ante-cl. & lat.)

CAMPE, es, } A caterpillar (pure Latin, eruca); hence, appellat., campos dicere, to seek evasions.

CAMPESTER, stris, stre, adj. [campus]. 1) Of or pertaining to a level, open plain, urbs, locus (flat); iter c., through the plain; Scythae cc., who dwell on the plains; hostis c., fighting on the plain; n. pl., Campestria, ium (lat.), flat land or country. 2) In partic., of or pertaining to the field of Mars (campus Martius), hence: A) = pertaining to the comitia held in the Campus Martius: certamen c., gratia c., quæstus c., money, which the people received from the candidates for office: B) pertaining to the athletic exercises in the Campus Martius (proelia, exercitationes cc.). Hence, Campestre, is, n. (so. velamentum), a leather apron or girdle, worn about the loins by combatants.

CAMPUS, i, m. 1) An even, open plain, a flat or level field (as distinguished from woods and hills—cf. ager and planities); (poet.) every plain or level surface, as the surface of the sea (caerulei cc.), the surface of a hill, &c. 2) In partic. = the field of Mars (campus Martius), a plain along the Tiber, originally belonging to the Tarquins, but after their expulsion made the property of the state, and consecrated to Mars. The 'comitia centuriata' were held there; the name 'campus M.' often = the comitia. It was also used for games and military exercises (which were freq. designated by the term 'campus M.'). Hence, 3) trop. = a space, a field for any kind of action: ex hoc c. aequitatis; c. honoris et gloriæ; hic tantus c., this so wide a field.

CAMULÓDUNUM, i, n. A Roman town in Britain, probably the modern Colchester.

CAMCURUS, a, um, adj. (Poet., very rar.) Bent inward, curved, cornu.

CANACE, æ, f. [= Kadyx]. 1) The daughter of Æolus, who was guilty of incest. 2) The name of a dog.

CANÁLIS, ia, m., rar. (ante-cl. & lat.) f. A pipe, gutter, channel; in partic., a water-pipe, conduit, canal.

CANCELLI, ōrum, m. pl. A grating, bars or railings, fori, theatri; trop. = boundaries, limits, in gen.

CANCER, cri (ante-cl. -ceris), m. 1) A crab; freq. (poet.) = the Crab, the sign of the zodiac, where the sun is at the time of the summer solstice, and hence — a) = heat — b) = the south. 2) The cancer (as a disease).

CANDÁVIA, æ, f. A mountainous region in Illyria.

CANDÉ-FÁCIO, fœci, factum, 3. v. tr. [candeo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) To make brilliantly white, argentum. 2) To make glowing, to cause to glow.

CANDELA, æ, f. [candeo]. 1) (Lat.) A light made of wax or tallow, a wax or tallow candle (in later times less used than lamps). *2) (Doubtful.) A cord covered with wax.

CANDELABRUM, i, n. [candela]. A candlestick, usually = a chandelier.

CANDEO, ui, —, 2. v. intr. 1) (Poet. & lat.) To be shining white, to glisten, ebur, humeri. 2) To glow, to be at a glowing heat, ferrum.

CANDESCO, dui, —, 3. v. intr. [candeo]. (Poet.) 1) To become glitteringly white, to become bright, ær. 2) To begin to glow, to come to a glowing heat, ferrum.

CANDIDĀTŌRIUS, a, um, adj. [candidatus] Of or pertaining to a candidate for office.

CANDIDĀTUS, a, um, adj. [candidus]. 1) (Ante-cl. & lat.) Clothed in white. 2) Subst.. Candidatus, i, m., a suitor for a place of honour, a solicitor of office, a candidate (because such a person wore a shining white toga): c. consularius, aedilicius, and (lat.) c. consulatus, aedilitatis, a candidate for the office of consul, for the aedileship; co. principis, the quaestors appointed by the emperor, whose duty it was to read his rescripts. Hence (lat.), trop., one who strives for a thing, lays claim to a thing: c. eloquentiæ Atticæ; c. immortalitatis.

CANDĪDE, adv. [candidus]. 1) In white. 2) Trop., uprightly.

CANDĪDŪLUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of candidus]. Shining white, dentes.

CANDĪDUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [candeo]. 1) Shining white, as white as snow (cf. albus), stella, nix, humeri, barba, populus (poplar), toga. Hence, 2): A) (poet.) = beautiful, charming, Dido, Bacchus: B) (poet.) Favonius c., giving a bright and clear atmosphere: C) = candidatus, turba c., clothed in white. 3) Trop., of everything pure and spotless: A) of the voice, pure, clear: B) of discourse, clear, artless, unaffected: purum et quasi quoddam c. dicendi genus; also (lat.), orator c.: C) (mostly poet.) of disposition and character, pure, sincere, upright, honest, impartial, &c., ingenium, judex: D) of the circumstances of life, joyful, happy, convivium, pax.

CANDOR, ōris, m. [candeo]. 1) A shining, dazzling white colour, whiteness, brightness, brilliancy: c. solis, coeli, nivis; hence = beauty, in gen., corporis, equi. 2) Trop.: A) of discourse, brilliancy, splendour: fucatus c. et rubor; also = simplificity, naturalness: B) (poet. & lat.) of character, honesty, uprightness, candour: c. animi; veritas et c.

CĀNEO, —, —, 2. v. intr. [canus]. (Poet. & lat.) To be gray or whitish-gray, cinis, senectus c.

CĀNĒPHŌROS, i, f. [κανέφος]. A basket-carrier; used in partic. in pl., of paintings and statues of Athenian maidens, carrying on their heads baskets of utensils and vessels used at sacrifices.

CĀNESCO, —, —, 3. v. intr. [inch. of caneo]. (Poet. & lat.) To become gray or hoary, hence, to become old; trop., oratio c.

CANGI, ōrum, m. pl. A small tribe in Britain, in the present Caernarvon, Denby, and Flintshire.

CĀNĪCŪLA, æ, f. [dim. of canis]. 1) A small dog or bitch. 2) A sea-dog. 3) The dog-star. 4) An unlucky throw of dice, the dog-throw CANIDIA, ae, f. A sorceress, satirized by Horace.

CANIDIUS, ii, m. The name of a Roman gens: Publius C. Crassus, served under Lepidus, but, after the battle of Actium, was put to death by Octavius as an adherent of Antony.

CANINEFAS, ātis, adj. Of or pertaining to the Caninefates.

CANINEFATES, um, m. pl. A people dwelling in the time of Tacitus on the Batavian peninsula; also sing., Caninefas, ātis.

CANINIĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Caninius]. Of or belonging to Caninius; tempus, the time when Caninius, the tribune, proposed the restoration of Ptolemy.

CANINIUS, ii, m. The name of a Roman gens; e. g., Caius C. Rebilus, legate of Cæsar in Gaul, and consul for a few hours only, having been elected on the 31st of December.

CĀNINUS, a, um, adj. [canis]. 1) Of or pertaining to a dog, canine: c. scaeva, a good omen taken from the barking of a dog. 2) Trop., c. prandium (ante-cl.), in which no wine is drunk, mean; c. litera, the letter R, because of its snarling sound; c. facundia, abusive.

CĀNIS, is, comm. 1) A dog: cave canem, 'beware of the dog!' an inscription over a door, near which a dog was placed; prov., cane pejus et angue vitare aliquid = to shun sedulously. Hence, trop. — a) as a term of reproach, dog! — b) as an expression of contempt = a hanger-on, a parasite: canibus suis multa opus esse dixit. 2) C. major et minor, a constellation, the Dog; according to fable, canis minor = the dog of Erigone. 3) The sea-dog; (poet.) mythically of the dogs of Scylla. 4) The worst throw at dice, dog's throw (v. tesserae and talus).

CĀNISTRUM, i, n. (but nearly always in pl.). A basket woven from reeds, used especially at sacrifices.

CĀNITIES, ei, f. (only the nom., acc. & abl. occur). 1) Gray colour, grayness, esp. of the hair. 2) (Poet.): A gray hair, canitiem pulverere foedere: B) = old age. [Fr. canus.]

CANNA, ae, f. [= κάνα]. (Poet. & lat.) A small and slender reed (cf. calamus, arundo). Hence: A) a reed flute: B) a small vessel, a gondola.

CANNĀBINUS, a, um, adj. [cannabis]. Of hemp, hempen.

CANNĀBIS, is, f. [= κάναβις]. Hemp.

CANNAE, ārum, f. pl. A town in Apulia, famous for the victory gained there by Hannibal over the Romans, 216 B. C.

CANNENSIS, e, adj. Of or pertaining to Cannae.

CANNINĒFATES, tum — v. Caninefates.

CĀNO, cōāni, cantum, 3. v. intr. & tr. In gen., to utter melodious and harmonious sounds, viz.: I. Intr., 1) with the voice: A) of men, to sing: c. voce; festum celebrare canendo; c. de re aliqua; of an orator = to speak in a sing-song tone: B) of animals, volucres, aves cc., sing; corvus c., screams; gallus c., crows; ranae cc., croak. 2) With an instrument: A) of the person who produces the tones, to play: c. fidibus, tibiā, on the lute, flute: B) of the instrument itself, to sound, to resound: tibia modulate c.; hence (rar.) symphoniā c., is played, resounds, and signum (classicum) c., the signal is given (v. II. 4). — II. Tr., 1) with cognate objects, carmen, versus, verba, to sing, to play; sometimes also = to compose. 2) With general objects, to sing, to treat of or celebrate in a song or poem: ipse praecepta canam, haec canebam; c. Dianam, laudem alicujus. 3) Since oracles were delivered in verse, to announce, to foretell, to prophesy: vates c. aliquid fore; dii haec cc. 4) Tech. t. in military lang.: A) c. bellicum, classicum or signum, signal, also abs. c. only, to blow on the horn or trumpet = to give the signal for battle: B) c. receptui, to sound (i. e., to give the signal for) a retreat; also without a definite subject, receptui canit, the signal to retreat is given; thus also (poet.), canit receptus jussos.

CĀNŌN, ōnis, m. [= κανών]. (Lat.) 1) A ruler (for marking or measuring); a rule, canon. 2) A yearly tribute.

CĀNŌPUS, i, m. [Κάνωπος]. A town in Lower Egypt, founded, according to the legend, by the Spartans in honour of the pilot of Menelaus, who died there — near the present Abukir; meton. = Egypt.

CĀNŌPEUS, } a, um, adj. Of or belonging
CĀNŌPICUS, } to Canopus; subst., Cānōpītae, ārum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Canopus.

CĀNOR, ōris, m. [cano]. (Poet. & lat.) A song, tone, sound, melody, cygni, lyrae.

CĀNŌRUS, a, um, adj. [canor]. 1) Euphonious, clear-sounding, melodious, harmonious, vox Sirenium; on the contrary, of an orator (opp. to vox languens), as a fault, a singing tone. 2) Producing melodious tones, chorus; turba c., trumpeters; orator c., whose delivery has a rhythmic and euphonious cadence; (poet.) Triton c., the blowing; aves cc., the singing; fides c., loud-resounding; aes c. (= tuba), sounding.

CANTĀBER, bri, m. A Cantabrian, an inhabitant of Cantabria.

CANTABRIA, ae, f. A province in Northern Spain, in the region of the present Biscaya.

CANTABRICUS, a, um, adj. Cantabrian.

CANTĀMEN, inis, n. [canto]. (Poet.) A magic sentence, spell, charm.

CANTĀTIO, ōnis, f. [canto]. (Poet. & lat., doubtf. read. in Pl.) = Cantio.

CANTĀTOR, ōris, m. [canto]. (Poet. & lat.) A singer, musician.

CANTĒRINUS, a, um, adj. [canterius]. (Antepcl. & lat.) Of or pertaining to a gelding or horse, horse.

CANTĒRIUS, ii, m. A gelding. Hence: A) prov., minime, sis, canterium in fossam (sc. deice) = don't do such a foolish thing: B) trop. = a decrepit man.

CANTHĀRIS, idīs, f. [= καθαρίς]. The Spanish fly.

CANTHĀRUS, i, m. [= καθαρος]. (Poet.) A large drinking-vessel with wide belly and handles, from which the wine was poured into the goblets; a pot, tankard.

CANTHUS, i, m. [= κάθος]. (Lat.) A iron wheel-band, tire; hence, meton. = a wheel.

CANTĪCUM, i, n. [cano]. 1) (A kind of interlude in the Roman comedy) A monody, solo or monologue, which was delivered in a singing tone, and accompanied with flute-playing. The actor stood by the side of the singer (cantor), whose song he accompanied with appropriate dancing and gesticulation. Hence, 2) a song, in gen.: rhetorum epilogos pæne c., = a singing tone or style of elocution.

CANTĪLENA, ae, f. [canto]. 1) An expression of contempt, an old and trite song, an old story; prov., cantilenam eandem canis, ever the old tune. 2) (Lat.) A song, in gen.

CANTIO, ōnis, f. [cano]. 1) (Ante-cl. & lat.) A song. 2) A charm, spell, magic sentence.

CANTITO, āvi, ātum, i. v. tr. [freq. of canto]. To sing often or repeatedly: c. carmen; c. cum aliquo.

CANTIUM, ii, n. A country and promontory in South-east Britain, now Kent and Ramsgate.

*CANTIUNCŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of cantio]. An alluring song.

CANTO, āvi, ātum, i. v. intr. & tr. [intens. of cano]. (In gen. = Cano.) I. Intr.: 1) A) of men, to sing: c. ad chordarum usum; hence, of a singing tone, in an orator, si lēgis, cantas: B) of animals (rar.): galli c., crow; aves c., sing. 2) To play, tibiā, on the flute. 3) (Poet.) To resound, tibiā c. 4) Tech. t., to repeat magic formulas, to utter spells, incipi c. — II. Tr., 1) to sing: c. carmen. 2) To sing, to celebrate in a song or poem, to glorify: c. Caesarem, proelia; c. convivia. Hence, esp. (lat.) of an actor who plays a part, to rehearse, to play: c. Nioben, tragoedias. 3) (Com.) To foretell, to announce, to prophecy, vera; hence to inculcate, to advise: haec dies noctesque tibi canto, ut caveas, etc. 4) Tech. t.: A) to bewitch, to constrain by spells or charms, herbas, lunam: B) to call forth or up by charms, umbra.

CANTOR, ōris, m. [cano]. 1) One who plays or sings, a singer, musician; esp. of a singer in a play (v. Canticum); also = one who sings in a choir, a chorister. 2) Trop.: A) one who rehearses a thing in a thoughtless and sing-song manner: B) one who repeats in an irrational and slavish manner what another has said, an extoller c. Euphronis.

CANTRIX, iois, f. [cano]. (Ante-cl.) A female musician or singer.

CANTUS, ūs, m. [cano]. 1) Singing, music, melody, song: c. avium, symphoniae, tibiae; c. vocum et nervorum, vocal and instrumental music; c. galli, the crowing of a cock. 2) (Poet.) A) an incantation: cantus e curru lunam deducit: B) prophecy, divination.

CĀNŪLEIA, ae, f. } The name of a Roman CĀNŪLEIUS, i, m. } gens; thus, 1) C. Canuleius, a tribune of the people (445 B. C.), and author of the law according to which marriage between patricians and plebeians was allowed. 2) L. Canuleius, a legate of Caesar.

CĀNUS, a, um, adj. Gray, grayish, lupus, nix, aristae; freq. of gray hair, c. capilli; hence, subst., Cāni, ōrum, m. pl., gray hair, even with an adj., c. falsi, rari; (poet.) c. senectus, gray-haired; c. amator, old.

CĀNŪSINĀTUS, a, um, adj. [Canusium]. (Lat.) Wearing a garment of Canusian wool.

CĀNŪSINUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Canusium; subst. — a) Canusinus, i, m., an inhabitant of Canusium — b) Cantusina, ae, f. (sc. vestis), a garment of Canusian wool.

CĀNŪSIUM, ii, n. A town in Apulia, celebrated for its wool — now Canosa.

CĀPĀCITAS, ātis, f. [capax]. Capaciousness, capacity, uteri; si c. quaedam in animo est.

CĀPĀNEUS, ei, m. [= Καπανεός]. One of the the seven princes who besieged Thebes, the husband of Evadne (q. v.); he was struck with lightning by Jupiter.

CĀPAX, ēdis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [capio]. 1) (Poet. & lat.) Containing much, capacious, spacious, domus, urna, pharetra; with a genit., circus c. populi; homo c. cibi vinique, who can hold or take in much. 2) Trop., susceptible or capable of, fit or suitable for: animus c. ad praeccepta; freq. with a genit., animal c. mentis altioris, capable of receiving higher mental faculties, i. e., man; c. imperii, fit to reign; aures c., capable of receiving much and easily.

CĀPEDO, inis, f. [capis]. A sacrificial cup.

CĀPEDUNCŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of capedo]. A small sacrificial cup.

CĀPELLA, ae, f. [dim. of capra]. A young she-goat.

CĀPENĀ, ae, f. A town of Etruria.

CĀPENAS, ātis, adj. Of or belonging to Capena; subst., Cāpēnātes, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Capena.

CĀPENUS, a, um, adj. Of or belonging to Capena; C. porta, a gate of Rome.

CĀPER, pri, m. 1) A he-goat. 2) (Poet.) meton., the disagreeable smell arising from the armpits.

CÁPĒRO, 1. v. tr. & intr. (Ante-cl. & lat.)
1) Tr., to wrinkle, to draw together in wrinkles, frontem. 2) Intr., to be wrinkled, frons c.

CÁPĒSSO, sivi, sĭtum, 3. v. tr. 1) To seize, to catch at eagerly, cibum (of animals), arma. 2) Of a course of action, to seize or lay hold of eagerly, to undertake, to take upon one's self, to engage in: c. fugam, to take to flight; c. bellum, partem pugnae, imperium, magistratus; c. rempublicam, to occupy one's self with affairs of state (cf. accedo ad remp.); c. inimicitias, to commence, to make; c. meliora, curas imperii; c. provinciam, to undertake the administration of the provinces; (lat.) sensus naturae, to understand. 3) To strive for or after a place, to endeavour to reach, to hasten to: c. locum; animus c. superiores; c. Italiam. 4) (A) (Com.) c. se in (ad) locum aliquem, to betake one's self to a place; trop., ad vitam aliquam, to adopt a certain mode of life: B) (poet.) = to attain, to, to overtake, aliquem.

CÁPĒREUS, ei, m. [= Καπερός]. A rocky promontory on the southern coast of Euboea, now Capo del Oro (cf. Nauplius and Palamedes).

CÁPĪLLAMENTUM, i, n. [capillus]. (Lat.) The hair; esp. = false hair, a wig, peruke.

CÁPĪLLĀTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [capillus]. Hairy, having a head of hair: bene c.

CÁPĪLLOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. [capillus]. (Lat.) To be hairy.

CÁPĪLLUS, i, m. 1) The hair of the head (cf. crinis and coma, caesaries), both in sing. collect. (c. compositus, delibutus) and in pl. in the same signification; in the latter case, 'capillus' denotes a single hair of the head. 2) Both in sing. collect. and in pl. — a) the hair of the beard: adurere c., the beard — b) (poet. & lat.) the hair of animals.

CÁPĪO, cāpi, captum, 8. v. tr. 1) To take, to lay hold of, to seize (mostly with the accessory idea of taking possession of and obtaining some power over the object): c. arma, aliquid manu or in manum; c. cibum. Hence, of abstract objects, c. exemplum de aliquo, c. consilium, to make a resolution, occasionem, to embrace; c. prospectum, to enjoy, to look out from a high place.

2) With the accessory idea of design, to take for some purpose, to choose, to elect: c. aliquem iudicem, locum castris, for a camp; (poet.) aves co. terras, choose their places on the ground. In partic., tech. t., of the election to a priestly office: c. aliquam (virginem) vestalem, aliquem flaminem, etc.; so also, c. tabernaculum, templum (q. v.).

3) With the accessory idea of force or violence: A) of living beings, to seize, to catch, to take captive; of animals, to capture; of inanimate things = to take, to capture: c. aliquem (in Pl. also trop. = to convince), legiones;

c. pisces, avem; c. urbem, classem; c. oppidum de or ex hostibus, to take a town from the enemy; hence = to occupy (so that an enemy cannot enter the place), locum: B) trop. — a) pass., capi: a) of the body, to be hindered from the free use of a limb, to be lamed or disabled in a limb: omnibus membris captus; altero oculo capitur, he becomes blind in one eye; β) of the mind, in the comb. mente captus, impaired in understanding = deranged, and (rar.) viri velut mente capta, as if crazed, mad — b) of feeling and will, to captivate, to enchain, to gain, in a bad sense = to lude, to mislead, to ensnare, &c.: pictura nos e.; is humanitate sua me c.; most freq. in pass., capi dulcedine vocis, voluptate, amore — c) of condition and state = to master or overcome some one, to attack one: libido, metus, etc., c., aliquem, takes possession of, seizes him; satiatus eum c., he is satiated (with something); oblivio rei alicujus me c., I forget (or I am confused); capio desiderium ex aliquo, I feel the absence of some one; c. satietatem ejus, I am tired of him; c. laetitiam ex illa re, I rejoice therein; (rar.) = to surprise, to come suddenly upon one: periculum me c.

4) Of things in space, to take into itself, to include, to contain: domus eos non c.; Italia amentium ejus non c., is not large enough for. Hence, trop.: A) of the understanding, to take in, to comprehend, to understand: mens eorum hoc non c.: B) = to be fit for, to be capable of any thing: angustiae pectoris tui non cc. tantam personam, thy little mind is not capable of comprehending so exalted a character, has not grown up to the measure of it.

5) Esp. of ships, to reach, to arrive at a place: c. insulam, portum; rarely = capesso, to hasten anywhere, to strive to reach: c. montes proximos fugā.

6) Of a course of action, to undertake, to take upon one's self, to enter upon, &c., rempublicam, honores (= capesso).

7) To get, to receive, to obtain, consulatam, nomen ex re aliqua; c. detrimentum, to suffer; c. fructum rei alicujus or ex re aliqua, to reap; freq. of the revenues and profits of something: ex his praediis centena sestertia c., has a yearly income of 100 a.; testamentum alicui c. = to inherit; so likewise c. aliquid ex hereditate.

CÁPIS, Idia, f. (Rar.) A bowl with one handle, used esp. in sacrifices.

CÁPĪSTRO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. [capistrum]. To tie or fasten with a halter, bovem.

CÁPĪSTRUM, i, n. A halter.

CÁPĪTĀL, ālis, n. [caput]. Tech. t., a crime which is punished by the taking away of natural or civil life (v. Caput 2, A, b), a capital crime (a. most always with the verb 'esse'): praesidio decedere apud Romanos c. est.

CÁPĪTĀLIS, e, adj. w. comp. [caput]. 1) Relating to life, whereby natural or civil life may be lost (v. Caput 2, A, b), capital: A) (ante-cl. & lat.) periculum c., peril of life; morbus c., dangerous, mortal disease: B) tech. t., res (rar. fraus, etc.) c. = capital: vindices rerum capitalium; so likewise poena, suplicium c. = capital punishment, in gen.; hence, subst., Căpităle, is, n. = capital: C) = very dangerous, menacing life: inimicus c., mortal; oratio c., pernicious; odium c., deadly hatred. 2) (Rar.) Pre-eminent, principal, chief, ingenium, scriptor.

CĀPITINUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to the town Caputium, in Southern Sicily—now Capizzi.

CĀPITO, ōnis, m. [caput]. A big head, a person who has a large head.

CĀPITOLINUS, a, um, adj. [Capitolium]. Of or pertaining to the Capitol, Capitoline: ludi, certamen c., in honour of Jupiter; C. quercūs, a wreath of oak presented to the victor in the Capitoline games; subst., Capitolini, ōrum, m. pl., the directors of the 'ludi Capitolini.' In the sing., Capitolinus, i, a surname of M. Manlius, because he saved the Capitol.

CĀPITOLIUM, ii, n. [caput]. 1) The summit of mons Capitolinus (one of the seven hills of Rome), with the temple of Jupiter and the citadel thereon, the Capitol—now Campidoglio. 2) The citadels of other cities.

CĀPITŪLĀTĪM, adv. [capitulum]. (Rar.) By heads, summarily.

CĀPITŪLUM, i, n. [dim. of caput]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A little head; hence (Com.), as a term of endearment = man: lepidissimum c.

CĀPO, ōnis, m. [= κεφαλή]. A capon.

CAPPĀDŌCIA, ae, f. [= Καππαδοκία]. A province of Asia Minor, between the Taurus and Pontus Euxinus—now Caramania.

CAPPĀDŌCIUS, a, um, adj. [Cappadocia]. Cappadocian.

CAPPĀDŌCUS, a, um, adj. = Cappadocius.

CAPPĀDOX, ōis, m. [= Καππαδόξ]. An inhabitant of Cappadocia, a Cappadocian.

CAPPĀRIS, is, f. [= καπρίσις]. The caper-bush, the caper.

CAPRA, ae, f. [caper]. 1) A she-goat. 2) Trop.: A) (lat.) a man with bristly hair: B) (poet.) the odorous moisture under the armpits: C) a star: D) Caprae or Capreae palus, the place in Rome where Romulus disappeared.

CAPRĀBIA, ae, f. [capra]. Prop., 'Goat Island.' 1) An island on the southern side of Balearis Major. 2) An island (also Caprasia) near the northernmost point of Corsica.

CAPREA, ae, f. (Poet. & lat.) A wild she-goat, a roe; prov., jungere capreas lupis, to undertake something impossible.

CAPREAE PALUS—v. Capra, 2, D.

CAPREAĒ, ārum, f. pl. A beautiful island on the Campanian coast, where Tiberius spent his seven last years—now Capri.

CAPRĒENSIS, e, adj. [Capreae]. Of or belonging to the island Capreae: C. secessus, the retreat of the Emperor Tiberius on that island.

CAPRĒŪS, i, m. [caper]. 1) A kind of wild goat, the chamois, roebuck. 2) Tech. t. in architecture, props, stays, supporting timbers.

CAPRICORNUS, i, m. [caper-cornu]. (Poet.) Capricorn (the wild goat), one of the constellations of the zodiac.

CAPRI-FICUS, i, f. (Poet. & lat.) 1) The wild fig-tree. 2) The fruit of the wild fig-tree, the wild fig. *3) (Poet.) Any thing strange or foreign, because the gall-insect, which proceeds from this tree, ripens the fruit of the cultivated fig-tree by piercing it.

CAPRIGĒNUS, a, um, adj. [caper-gigno]. (Poet.) Proceeding from a goat, of a goat, pecus; subst., Caprigeni, ōrum, & -ae, ārum m. & f. pl., goats, she-goats.

CAPRĪMULGUS, i, m. [caper - mulgeo]. (Poet. & lat.) A milker of goats = a countryman.

CAPRINĒUS, i, m. An epithet applied to the Emperor Tiberius, in allusion to his lasciviousness and his residence at Capreae.

CAPRINUS, a, um, adj. [caper]. Of or belonging to goats; prov., de lana c. rixari = to contend about trifles.

CAPRI-PES, ēdis, adj. Goat-footed, Satyri.

CAPSA (I.), ae, f. A chest, box, satchel (esp. for the preservation of books and documents).

CAPSA (II.), ae, f. A town of Byzacium in Africa, now Gafsa or Cafa.

CAPSĀRIUS, ii, m. [capsa]. (Lat.) The satchel-carrier, a slave who carried the books and writing-materials of a patrician boy going to school.

CAPSENSES, ium, m. pl., The inhabitants of Capsa.

CAPSŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of capsa]. A small box or chest: homo totus de c. = over-nicely dressed, 'as if just out of a band-box.'

CAPTĀTIO, ōnis, f. [capto]. 1) A reaching after, catching at something, verborum, testamenti, a hunting after legacies. 2) In the language of fencing, a feint.

CAPTĀTOR, ōris, m. [capto]. One who eagerly catches at or strives after a thing: c. aurae popularis; in partic., one who hunts after legacies, a legacy-hunter.

CAPTĪĀNĪ, ōrum, m. pl. A people in Asia Minor.

CAPTIO, ōnis, f. [capie]. Prop., a seizing, a catching, used trop. only. 1) A trick, a fraud, a deception: nihil in re captiois est. 2) Partia., in dialectics, a fallacy, a sophism: inducere se in c.; discutere c. 3) (Pl.) An injury, a disadvantage: res est mihi captioni.

CAPTIOSE, adv. [captiosus]. Captiously, deceptively.

CAPTIOSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [captio]. 1) Fallacious, deceptive, societas. 2) In dialectics, captious, sophistical, probabilitas, interrogationes; subst., Captiosa, ōrum, n. pl., sophisms.

CAPTITO, ēvi, —, 1. v. tr. [capto]. (Lat.) To snatch eagerly at, to strive eagerly after.

CAPTIUNCŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of captio]. A sophism, a fallacy.

CAPTIVITAS, ātis, f. [captivus]. (Lat.) 1) Of living beings, captivity. 2) Of towns and provinces, a taking, a capture, urbium, Africae.

CAPTIVUS, a, um, adj. [capio]. 1) Of living beings: A) of persons, caught, captured, esp., taken captive in war; hence, freq. subst. = a captive; (poet.) cc. corpora = the booty in men and animals, the captives; (poet.) = pertaining to a captive: c. eror, the blood of the captives; cc. lacerti: B) (poet. & lat.) of animals = captured, slain: cc. pisces. 2) Of inanimate things, captured, plundered, taken as booty, naves, agri; trop., mens c. capitulata.

CAPTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [capio]. 1) (Poet. & lat.) To seize eagerly upon any thing, to catch or snatch at, to strive to get possession of: Tantalus c. aquam; c. aurum naribus; and hence, trop., c. aurum libertatis, to watch eagerly every circumstance on which a hope of liberty might be founded; c. sonitum aure, to strive to catch = to listen to with earliness: c. sermonem = to eavesdrop, to overhear. 2) Trop.: A) to strive earnestly after a thing, to seek, to endeavour to obtain: c. misericordiam, brevitem; c. occasionem, to endeavour to find; c. sermonem (poet.), to introduce, to strive to begin; (poet. & lat.) c. laedere aliquem, to try to injure; variis omnibus c. an, etc., to try to ascertain whether, &c.: B) to try to catch or take, to seek to gain, allure or entrap some person or thing: c. aliquem, hostem insidiis, gentem Boeotorum; also abs., duo reges cc. inter se, try to deceive one another; so likewise (Pl.), c. cum aliquo, to try to entrap one with artful and cunning talk. Hence — a) (Pl.), c. aliquem impudicitiae = to try to convict of — b) in particular, freq. = to hunt after legacies: c. testamenta senum, aliquem.

CAPTŪRA, ae, f. [capio]. (Lat.) 1) A catching of animals. 2) Concr., that which is caught = a capture. 3) Contemptuously, gain, reward.

CAPTUS, ūs, m. [capio]. (Rar., lat.) 1) A seizing, laying hold of, grasping, digitorum, with the fingers. 2) Power of comprehension, understanding, only in the comb. 'ut est c.': Geta non malus, ut est captus servorum, as much as (non malus) can be the case in a slave; Graeci prudentes satis, ut est c. hominum, as much as this quality (prudentia) can be at all attributed to men.

CĀPUA, ae, f. [Kēpū]. The capital of Campania, celebrated for its riches and luxury.

Its ruins are found near the present S. Maria delle Grazie.

CĀPŪLĀRIS, e, adj. [capulus]. (Ante-cl.) Pertaining to a coffin: homo c., at death's door.

CĀPULO, 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) To pour off. 2) To catch (animals).

CĀPŪLUS, i, m. [capio]. 1) (Ante-cl.) A coffin: capuli decus = homo capularis. 2) A hilt, handle, esp. of a sword.

CĀPUT, pītis, n. 1) The head of men and animals: c. aperire, to uncover, take off the hat, operire, to cover, put on the hat; capita conferre, to put heads together = to confer secretly; esse supra c. (of a threatening danger); per c. pedesque, over head and heels; prov., nec c. nec pedes, neither head nor tail, neither beginning nor end; trop. (poet.) = intellect. Hence: A) of things, the head = the point, top, summit, upper part, extremity: c. tigni, papaveris, jecoris (in the lang. of augury): B) (the part instead of the whole) = man, person, animal: c. innoxium, ridiculous; cc. vilissima, ignota; c. hoc = I; c. tuum = thou; trecenos numos in capita conferre, to each. 2) Trop.: A) = life — a) physical life: capitis periculum adire, to risk one's life; capitis aliquem accusare, to accuse one of a capital crime; thus also damnare, absolvere, etc.; tergo ac capite puniri — b) = civil life, the sum of all rights of an individual as to freedom, citizenship and family: capitis iudicium; capitis deminutio, the loss or limitation of civil and other rights (such a 'cap. deminutio' was 'maxima' if all three kinds of rights were lost, 'minima' if certain personal rights only): mulier illa capite se deminuit, has lost (by her marriage) the rights of the family to which she formerly belonged: B) = that which is the most important, pre-eminent in any thing — a) of persons, the chief person, head, leader, &c.: qui capita rerum erant; c. nominis Latini; c. rei alicujus faciendae; capita conjurationis virgis caesi sunt — b) of things, the chief matter, main point, chief part: c. patrimonii; jus nigrum erat coenae c.; c. est nosse rempublicam; thus likewise c. oratoris est, etc., main duty; c. literarum, chief contents — c) of places = the capital, chief point: Thebae c. totius Graeciae; Praeneste c. belli, the main seat — d) of writings, the chief division, chapter: a primo c. legis usque ad extremum — e) of money, the capital, the principal sum (is opp. to 'the interest'): de c. deducere quod usuris pernumeratum est.

CĀPYS, ūos, m. [= Kēpυς]. 1) A son of Asaracus, and the father of Anchises. 2) A companion of Aeneas. 3) The eighth king of Alba.

CAR, āris, m. An inhabitant of Caria, a Carian; pl., Cares, um, the Carians.

CĀRACALLA, ae, and CARACALLIS, is, f. [a Gallic word]. 1) A Gallic mantle. Hence, 2) a surname of a Roman emperor (Antoninus C.).

CĀRĀLES, um, m. pl. A promontory near the town Caralis.

CĀRĀLIS, is, f. The capital of Sardinia, now Cagliari.

CĀRĀLITĀNUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Caralis; subst., CĀRĀLITĀNĭ, ōrum, m. pl. the inhabitants of Caralis.

CĀRĀLITIS, is, f. A lake in Pisidia.

CARBĀSEUS, or Carbasinus, and (poet.) Carbasus, a, um, adj. [carbasus]. Made of fine Spanish linen.

CARBĀSUS, i, f. [καρπασος]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Fine Spanish flax. 2) Things made of such flax, fine Spanish linen; esp. in the pl., Carbasa, ōrum, n. = a) a garment — b) a sail — c) a curtain, stretched over a theatre.

CARBĀTĪNA, ae, f. [καρπατινα]. (Poet.) A kind of peasant's shoe.

CARBO, ōnis, m. A coal (both glowing and dead); trop. — a) prov., to denote any thing unimportant: invenire c. pro thesauro — b) on account of its black colour = any thing unfortunate or unfavourable: notare aliquid carbone = to mark as distressing or bad; carbonēs elogiorum, derisive inscriptions, on doors, &c.

CARBŌNĀRIUS, ii, m. [carbo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A collier, i. e., one who burns wood into coal.

CARBUNCŪLUS, i, m. [dim. of carbo]. 1) A small coal. 2) (Lat.) A kind of sandstone, red top. 3) A precious (reddish) stone. 4) A disease of men and plants, an ulcer, boil, carbuncle. 5) Trop. (Pl.) = grief, anger.

CARCER, ĕris, m. 1) A dungeon, prison; trop.: A) = imprisoned criminals: effudisti carcerem in me: B) as a term of reproach, rascal. 2) Plur. (only in poets in the sing.), the fenced off space of a race-course, from which the horses and chariots were let out at the beginning of the race, a barrier, starting-place: exire e cc.; trop. = the beginning, of a course of action or a state: a calce (from the end) revocare ad cc.

CARCĒRĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [carcer]. Pertaining to a prison: quaestus c., which one makes as a jailor.

CARCHĒDŌNIUS, a, um, adj. [= καρχηδόνιος]. (Pl.) Carhedonian, i. e., Carthaginian (καρχηδόν = Carthago).

CARCHĒSIUM, ii, n. [= καρχησιον]. (Poet.) A drinking-vessel with handles, which was narrower in the middle than at the ends.

CARCĪNOMĀ, ātis, n. [= καρκινωμα]. (Lat.) = Cancer 3, a cancer; also as a term of reproach for a wicked person.

CARDĀCES, cum, m. pl. [= καρδακες, from the Persian word carda = strong]. A kind of Persian soldiers.

CARDIA, ae, f. A town on the Thracian Chersonesus.

CARDIĀCUS, a, um, adj. [= καρδιαιος].

(Lat.) Of or belonging to the stomach: c. morbus, a disease of the stomach; subst., Cardiacus, i, m., one who has a disease of the stomach.

CARDIĀNUS, a, um, adj. Of Cardia.

CARDO, inis, m. 1) A hinge. 2) A point around which something turns, a pole: promontorium illud in medio velut c. fuit; c. coeli = the North Pole; quatuor cc. mundi, the four quarters of the world; cardo anni, the summer solstice. Hence (poet. & lat.) = that on which a matter turns, the main point, chief matter: c. litium; haud tanto rerum cardine cessabit, in such a decisive moment.

CARDO, ōnis, f. A town in Northern Spain.

CARDUUS, i, m. (Poet. & lat.) A thistle.

CĀRE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [carus]. Dearly: carius aestimare, to estimate at a higher price.

CĀRECTUM, i, n. [carex]. (Poet. & lat.) A place abounding in sedge.

CĀREO, ui, itum, 2. v. intr. 1) To be without or not to have something, both of acceptable things = to want, to be devoid of, and of disagreeable ones = to be free from: animus c. sensu; c. loquendi facultate; c. febri, dolore, suspitione, vitio. Hence = to abstain from a thing, to keep away or to hold one's self aloof from a place: c. vino; Pompeius c. foro; c. patriā, to be absent from one's native country. 2) With the accessory idea of feeling the absence of a thing, to miss, to want (but of desirable things only — cf. egeo): c. consuetudine amicorum, commodis omnibus, libertate; (ante-cl.) c. alicujus and c. id quod ames.

CĀREX, icis, f. (poet. & lat.) Reed-grass, sedge.

CĀRIA, ae, f. [= Καρία]. The southernmost provinces of Asia Minor.

CĀRICA (sc. ficus), ae, f. [Caricus]. A kind of dried fig.

CĀRICUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Caria.

CĀRIES, ei, f. (Poet. & lat.) Rottenness, decay, caries.

CĀRĪNA, ae, f. 1) The keel of a ship; trop. (poet.) = a ship. 2) Carinae, ārum, f. pl., was the name of a quarter in Rome.

CĀRĪNĀRIUS, ii, m. [καρπης]. (Pl.) One who dyes in wax-yellow colour, a dyer in yellow.

CĀRĪŌSUS, a, um, adj. [caries]. (Poet. & lat.) Rotten, decayed, palmula, dentes; vina, mellow.

CĀRIS, idis, f. [= καρίς]. (Poet.) A kind of sea-crab.

CĀRĪTAS, ātis, f. [carus]. 1) Dearness, high price: c. annonae, vini; hence, abs. = dearth: quum est c.; annus est in summa c. 2) Trop.: A) pass., regard, esteem, love, enjoyed by one: succedere tantae caritati Hieronis, to succeed to the much-beloved H.: B) act., regard which one has for another, affection, love, springing from astem (love without sensual desire, never of sensual love — cf. amor): a. quae est inter natos et parentes; very often with a genit. object.: a. patriae (also c. erga aliquem); sometimes also with a genit. subject.: credo vos caritatem civium concupisse.

CARMELUS, i, m. 1) A mountain in Galilee, now El Karmel. 2) A hill and town near Hebron in Palestine.

CARMEN, inis, n. [= casmen, from cano]. 1) Song, music, a tone, sound: canere c.; co. concordant nervis; c. lyrae, citharae; tibia effundit c.; c. feralis bubonis, the cry of an owl. 2) A poem, poetry, any composition in verse (cf. poema): c. epicum; c. tragicum; Saliorum co., the religious songs of the S.; c. funebre, a funeral song; c. famosum, a satirical poem. In partic.: A) = lyric poetry: carmine tu gaudes, hic delectatur iambis: *B) (Lucr.) a part of a long poem, a book, canto: primo c.: C) = an inscription in verse: tumulo addere c. 3) (Mostly poet.) A prophecy, prediction, response of an oracle: c. in libris Sibyllinis inventum. 4) (Poet. & lat.) In the pl., a magic formula, incantation. 5) A formula in religion or law (because in ancient times it was composed in Saturnian verse): lex horrendi carminis; c. rogationis.

CARMENTIS, is, and CARMENTA, ae, f. [Καρμῆντις, from carmen, 'a prophetic']. The mother of Evander, who came with him from Arcadia to Latium, and was afterwards worshipped as a prophetic and healing divinity.

CARMENTĀLIA, ium, n. pl. The festival of Carmentis, celebrated on the 11th of January.

CARMENTĀLIS, e, adj. Of or pertaining to Carmentis; in partic., C. porta, a gate of Rome, near the temple of Carmentis, one of whose arches, through which the Fabii marched on their fatal expedition against Veii, was afterwards called 'porta scelerata' (i. e., fatal).

CARMĪNO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [from a subst., carmen, 'a card' — v. Caro II.]. To eard.

CARNA, ae, f. [caro]. A tutelary goddess of the body, esp. the nobler parts.

CARNĀRIUM, ii, n. [caro]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) A flesh-hook. 2) A larder, pantry.

CARNEĀDES, is, m. [= Καρνεάδης]. A philosopher of Cyrene (180 B. C.), and founder of the New Academy.

CARNEĀDEUS, } a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Carneades.

CARNI, ōrum, m. pl. A Celtic tribe living on the Eastern Alps, which were named after them.

CARNĪCUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to the Carni, Carnie.

CARNĪFEX, icis, m. [caro-facio]. An executioner, hangman (an officer who executed criminals of the lowest rank (slaves, foreigners), and also administered torturing, flogging, &c.; trop., as a term of reproach, rascal, scoundrel.

CARNĪFICĪNA, ae, f. [carnifex]. 1) The office of executioner: facere c., to be executioner. 2) A place of torture: ductus in ergastulum et c. 3) Torture, torment, the rack: subire quamvis c.; hence, trop., of mental torment = grief, sorrow.

CARNĪFĪCO, 1. v. tr. [carnifex]. (Rar.) To execute, to behead, aliquem.

CARNŌSUS, a, um, adj. [caro]. (Pl.) 1) Fleishy. 2) Fleish-like.

CARNUNTUM, i, n. An ancient town on the Danube, in Pannonia.

CARNŪTES, um, or CARNŪTI, ōrum, m. pl. A tribe in Gaul, in the region of the present Orleans.

CĀRO (I), nis, f. 1) Fleish; also, meton., of the pulp of fruits, the inner, white part of wood, and the soft part of precious stones. 2) Trop.: A) c. putida, as a term of reproach applied to a man: B) of style = softness (lack of strength).

CĀRO (II), 8. v. tr. [καίρω]. (Ante-cl.) To card, lanam.

CARPĀTHIUS, a, um, adj. [= Carpathus]. Carpathian.

CARPĀTHUS, i, f. [= Κάρπαθος]. An island in the Aegean sea, now Scarpanto.

CARPENTUM, i, n. A carriage with two wheels, used esp. by ladies and priests (cf. essedum, plaustrum, etc.).

CARPETĀNI, or CARPESII, ōrum, m. pl. The inhabitants of Carpetania.

CARPETĀNIA, ae, f. A province of Spain, now Castilia and Extremadura.

CARPI, ōrum, m. pl. A people of Dacia.

CARPO, psi, ptum, 8. v. tr. To take, to take away in small portions by plucking, &c. 1) With the hand, to pluck, to pluck off, to pull, poma, herbas, folia de (ex, ab) arbore and (poet.) arbore only. 2) Of animals, esp. those feeding on plants, to pluck off, to crop, to eat: equi ca. gramen (herbas); c. escam (of birds of prey; sometimes of men); c. leporem. 3) (Poet.) To tear off, to take away, in gen.: c. setas, coronam ex oculo; c. lanam, vellera = to spin. 4) Trop., in gen. = to take with haste (i. e., to snatch), by degrees, in part: A) c. oscula, to kiss, aliquid ex his libris, to take or draw from these books; c. paucos ad poemam, to pick out, to choose: B) (poet.) = to append, to enjoy, to pass, aetatem, auras vitales, gaudia: C) (poet.) = to go, to tread upon, to travel over, to wander through, to proceed along, viam, iter, mare, etc.; c. prata fugā, to flee over the meadows; c. terram pedibus, pontum remis, aëra alis: D) = to divide, to cut into pieces, to parcel out, exercitum in multas partes; c. fluvium (by means of canals); c. cibum, to carve: E) in a hostile sense — a) (mostly poet. & lat.) to consume, to enervate, to weaken, vires, corpus; carpi igni (of a passionate love), ourā — b) in military lang. = to harass, to attack incessantly, to annoy with repeated attacks: hostis c. vires Romanas; thus, esp. c. novissimos or novissimum agmen — c) to attack with words, to censure, to carp at, to calumniate, aliquem maledico dente; c. recte facta; carpi militum vocibus.

CARPTIM, adv. [carpo]. Partly, by pieces, in small parts: res Romanas carptim perscribere. Hence: A) = at different places: hostes c. aggreddi: B) at different times: dimissi sunt c. et singuli.

CARPTOR, ōris, m. [carpo]. (Lat. poet.) A carver of food.

CARRAE, ōrum, f. pl. A town in Mesopotamia.

CARRUCA, ae, f. (Lat.) A kind of four-wheeled carriage.

CARRUS, i, m. (rar. Carrum, i, n.). A four-wheeled wagon or cart.

CARSEOLANUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Carseoli.

CARSEOLI, ōrum, m. pl. A town in Latium, now Arsoili.

CARSULAE, ōrum, f. pl. A town of Umbria.

CARSULANUM, i, n. A villa near Carsulae.

CARTEJA, ae, f. 1) An ancient town in Southern Spain, now San Roque. 2) A town in the north-east of Spain, now Orgaz.

CARTEJANUS, } a, um, adj. Of or belong-
CARTEJENSIS, } ing to Carteja 1.

CARTHAEA, ae, f. [Καρδαία]. A town of the island Ceos, now Poles.

CARTHAGINIENSIS, e, adj. [Carthago]. Carthaginian; subst., Carthaginienses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Carthage, and = the Carthaginian people, in gen.

CARTHAGO, Inia, f. 1) The renowned city of Carthage in Northern Africa, founded, according to the legend, by Dido (about 888 B. C.), and destroyed by Scipio Africanus (146 B. C.) — its ruins are near the present Tunis. 2) C. Nova, a town in the south-east of Spain, and a colony of Carthage 1 — now Carthagena.

CARTHEIUS, a, um, adj. [Carthaea]. (Poet.) Carthaeian.

CARTILAGINEUS, a, um, adj. [cartilago]. Gristly, cartilaginous.

CARTILAGINOSUS, a, um, adj. [cartilago]. Full of gristle, gristly, cartilaginous.

CARTILAGO, Inia, f. Cartilage, gristle.

CARUNCULA, ae, f. [dim. of caro]. A little piece of flesh.

CARUS (L), a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. 1) Dear = high in price, piscis, annona, amor, that costs much money; (Pl.) res cara est trecentis minis, costs 300 minas. 2) Dear = highly esteemed, loved (cf. caritas), parentes, liberi; quae mihi cariora sunt; aliquem c. habere; (Pl.) cum caris meis, with my beloved ones. Sometimes (poet.) 'carus,' as in Homer φείας, is added to a substantive only in the sense of a poss. pron.: c. genitrix.

CĀRUS (II.), i, m. 1) A poet of the Augustan age. 2) A Roman emperor (282 A. D.).

CARVENTANUS, a, um, adj. Of or belonging to Carventum.

CARVENTUM, i, n. A town in Latium.

CARVILIUS, i, m. 1) A Roman proper name. 2) A king of Britain.

CĀRYAE, ōrum, f. pl. [= Καρταί]. A village in Laconia with a temple of Diana.

CĀRYŌTA, ae, f. [= καρυῖς]. (Lat.) A kind of date.

CĀRYSTĒUS, } a, um, adj. [Carystos]. Ca-
CĀRYSTIUS, } rystian; subst., Carystii, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Carystus.

CĀRYSTOS, i, f. [= Κάρυστος]. 1) A town on the south coast of Euboea, now Carysto. 2) A town in Liguria, now Carosio.

CĀSA, ae, f. A hut, cottage, cabin, a villa, country-house; prov., ita fugias ne praeter casam, do not flee so inconsiderately as to pass by the best place of refuge, i. e., do not run into the lion's jaws.

CASCA, ae, m. A Roman surname in the gens Servilia; esp. P. and C. Servilius C., the murderers of Caesar.

CASCE, adv. [cascus]. (Lat.) In an old-fashioned manner.

CASCUS, a, um, adj. (Ante-cl., obsolete.) Very old, very ancient.

CĀSEUS, i, m. (ante-cl. also Caseum, i, n.). Cheese; (Com.) as a term of endearment, 'my sweet!'

CĀSIA, ae, f. [= κασία]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Wild cinnamon. 2) A fragrant shrub.

CĀSILINĀTES, um, } m. pl. The inhabit-
CĀSILINENSES, ium, } ants of Casilinum.

CĀSILINUM, i, n. A town of Campania.

CĀSĪNA, ae, f. The title of one of the comedias of Plautus.

CĀSĪNAS, ātis, adj. Of or belonging to Casinum.

CĀSĪNUM, i, n. A town in Latium, now Monte Casino.

CĀSIUS (ii) MONS [Κάσιος ὄρος]. A mountain: 1) of Syria, now Djebel Okrab; 2) of Lower Egypt, now El Kaz.

CĀSO, —, —, 1. v. intr. [intens. of cado]. (Pl.) To be about to fall, to totter.

CASPĒRIA, ae, f. A small town of the Sabinians, now Aspra.

CASPIĀNI, ōrum, m. pl. = Caspii.

CASPIUM MARE. The Caspian Sea.

CASPIUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to the Caspian Sea, Caspian; subst., Caspii, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of the Caspian sea-coasts.

CASSANDER, dri, m. [= Κάσσανδρος]. Son of Antipater, governor and afterwards king of Macedonia (until 298 B. C.).

CASSANTRA, ae, f. [= Κασσανδρά]. A daughter of Priam and Hecuba, on whom Apollo had bestowed the gift of prophesy, but so that her prophecies were never believed. After the downfall of Troy, she fell, as a captive, to the lot of Agamemnon, along with whom she was murdered by Clytemnestra.

CASSANDRĒA (-īa), ae, f. [= Κασσανδρεία]. A town of Macedonia, called after Cassander.

CASSANDRENSES, ium, m. pl. The inhabitants of Cassandrea.

CASSANDREUS (trisyll.) ei, m. [= Κασσανδρέυς]. Of Cassandrea; a surname of Apollodorus, the tyrant of Cassandrea.

CASSE, adv. [cassus]. In vain, fruitlessly.

CASSES, ium, m. pl. (of the sing. only the acc., -em, and abl., -e, are found in poets and later writers). A hunting-net, tell: ponere, tendere co. Hence: A) (poet.) = a spider's web: B) trop. = snares.

CASSIANUS, a, um, adj. Of or belonging to a Cassius, Cassian: bellum C. (v. Cassius 1, B); partes CC., the party of Cassius (1, C) and Brutus; schola C. (of Cassius 1, D).

CASSIDA, ae, f. = Cassis.

CASSIÖPE, es, f. [= Κασσιόπη]. 1) The wife of Cepheus, mother of Andromeda (q. v.), placed afterwards as a constellation in the heavens. 2) A town of Corcyra, now Cassopo.

CASSIS, idis, f. 1) A helmet (of metal — cf. galea). 2) (Poet. & lat.) = War: patiens pelagi et cassidis.

CASSIUS, ii, m. and CASSIA, ae, f. The name of a Roman gens; thus, esp. 1) the family of the Longini: A) C. L. Ravilla, a very severe and just judge; hence, prov., iudex Cassianus, a judge like C.: B) Lucius C., consul (107 B. C.), conquered and killed by the Helvetians: C) Caius C. L., the murderer of Caesar: D) Caius C. L., a celebrated jurist, under Tiberius. 2) C. Parmensis (from Parma), a poet, in the time of Horace, ridiculed as a hasty and careless composer.

CASSUS, a, um, adj. [careo?]. 1) Prop. (poet.), hollow, empty, nux, canna. Hence (poet.), with a genit. or abl., lacking, devoid of, deprived of: corpus c. animæ; ensis c. luminis; cassus lumine = dead. 2) Trop., vain, empty, futile, useless: c. copia verborum; c. quiddam. In partic., as adv., in cassum or incassum = in vain, fruitlessly, uselessly.

CASTĀLIA, ae, f. [= Καστάλια]. A fountain on Mount Parnassus, not far from Delphi, sacred to Apollo and the Muses.

CASTĀLIS, idis, adj. f. Castalian, sorores, the Muses.

CASTĀLIUS, a, um, adj. Castalian: arbor C. = the laurel; umbra C., the shade of the laurel, antrum, the cavern of the oracle at Delphi.

CASTĀNEA, ae, f. [= Κασταλία]. 1) A chestnut-tree. 2) A chestnut.

CASTE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [castus]. Purely, innocently. In partic.: A) = chastely, modestly: B) plonally, devoutly: c. deos colere, with a pious spirit, scrupulously; pure ac c.

CASTELLĀNUS, a, um, adj. [castellum]. *Of or pertaining to a castle: 1) triumphī oc., for the capture of a castle or fortress. 2) Subst., Castellaniŏrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of a castle or of a town on a high elevation.

CASTELLĀTIM, adv. [castellum]. By castles, castle by castle: c. dissipati, among the various castles.

CASTELLUM, i, n. [dim. of castrum]. A castle, fort, fortress, stronghold. Hence: A) (poet.) a dwelling situated on an eminence: B) trop. = a defence, refuge: tribunal Appii fuit c. omnium scelerum.

CASTĒRIA, ae, f. A part of a ship where the rowers rested.

CASTĪFĪCUS, a, um, adj. [castus-facio]. (Lat.) Pure.

CASTĪGĀBĪLIS, e, adj. [castigo]. (Pl.) Deserving punishment, worthy of chastisement, culpa.

CASTĪGĀTE, adv. [castigatus]. Within bounds, restrictedly.

CASTĪGĀTĪO, ōnis, f. [castigo]. 1) Correction, both by words = censure, reproof, and esp. by action = chastisement, punishment. 2) A pruning, lopping of plants.

CASTĪGĀTOR, ōris, m. [castigo]. A chastiser, reprover, corrector, minorum, of the young, c. lacrimarum; hence (lat.) = he who restrains or holds one close.

CASTĪGĀTORĪUS, a, um, adj. [castigator]. After the manner of a reprover, reproaching.

CASTĪGĀTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of castigo]. Restrained, compressed; hence, 1) small (in body), slender; 2) tamed, checked.

CASTĪGŌ, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To correct, to castigate, both by words = to reprove, to reprove, and by some act = to punish: c. aliquem dictis, aliquem in illa re, segnitiam hominum; c. pueros non verbis solum sed etiam verberibus. 2) (Poet. & lat.) To correct any thing faulty, to amend, carmen. 3) To restrain, to curb, to keep in check, plebem, animi dolorem; c. equum frenis. [Fr. castum-ago — cf. purgo.]

CASTĪMŌNĪA, ae, f. [castus]. 1) Bodily purity, chastity, the requisite preparation for religious services: c. corporis. 2) Moral purity, morality: gravitas et c.

CASTĪTAS, ātis, f. [castus]. 1) (Lat.) Purity of morals, morality, in gen. 2) Chastity.

CASTOR (L.), ōris, m. [= Κάστωρ]. The son of the Spartan king Tyndareus and Leda, and brother of Pollux; the two brothers were called

'Dioscuri,' q. v.; 'ecastor' or 'mecastor,' by Castor, a form of oath among the Romans.

CASTOR (II.), ὄρις, m. [= καστορ]. A castor, beaver.

CASTOREUM, i, n. Castor, or castoreum.

CASTOREUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to the hero Castor.

CASTRENSIS, e, adj. [castra]. Of or belonging to the camp, camp-, ratio, consilium; exsilium c. = continual military service; corona c., the reward of those who first entered the camp of the enemy.

CASTRICIANUS, a, um, adj. [Castricius]. Of or pertaining to a Castricius.

CASTRICIUS, ii, m. The name of a Roman gens.

CASTRO, ἄνι, ἄνι, l. v. tr. 1) To castrate, to geld, to emasculate. 2) Of plants, to lop, to trim, arbores, to thin. 3) In gen., to cut off, to shorten, caudam. 4) C. vina = to filter. 5) Trop. = to weaken, to diminish (an expression censured by Cicero).

CASTRUM, i, n. I. Sing. (more rar. than castellum): 1) a castle, fortress, fortified place. 2) Used freq. as a proper name: Castrum Truentinum, a place in Picenum, now Torre Segura; Castrum Novum, a Roman colony in Etruria, now Marinello, &c. II. Plur.: 1) a camp, a military encampment: cc. stativa, a standing camp (one which was occupied for a long time), partly cc. aestiva, a summer camp, partly cc. hiberna, a winter camp, winter quarters; cc. navalia or nautica, a camp for the protection of ships, which lay at anchor, or were (which was the usual practice) drawn to the shore, so that the camp encircled them; cc. metari, to mark or lay out the camp, facere, ponere, collocare, to pitch the camp; cc. movere, to break up, promovere, to advance, to move forward, removere, to march back. Hence: A) used to denote war, military service, uti castris, habere usum in castris; trop., coniecimus nos in Epicuri castra: B) = Castra Praetoria, the permanent camp of the Praetorian guard, in the suburbs of the city. 2) As the camp was pitched at the close of each day's march = a day's march: secundis cc. eo pervenit. 3) As a proper name: Castra Cornelia, on the north coast of Africa, the place where the elder Scipio Africanus first pitched his camp; Castra Julia, a town of Lusitania, &c.

CASTULO, ὄνις m. [Κασταλὸν or Καστλόν]. The chief town of the Oretani, in Hispania Baetica, now Caslona.

CASTULONENSIS, e, adj. Of or pertaining to Castulo; subel., Castulonenses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Castulo.

CASTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. 1) In gen., morally pure, spotless, blameless, vita, mens; homo c. ac non cupidus = disinterested, upright; castus a culpa, a cruore free from, not stained with. 2) In partic., chaste, continent, virgo, vultus. 3) In respect to religion: A) of persons, pious, sacerdos: B) of things, holy sacred, festum, donum, lucus.

CASULA, ae, f. [dim. of casa]. 1) A little house, hut. 2) A sepulchre. (Lat.)

CASUS, ūs, m. [cado]. 1) Prop., a falling; particularly: A) = a falling down, nix: B) = overthrow: graviore casu decidunt turres altae. 2) Trop.: *A) (poet.) of time = the end, hiemis: B) in a moral sense, a false step, an error, a fall: adolescentia vix sine aliquo c. illis viis insistere potest: C) that which happens unexpectedly, an event, occurrence, accident novi cc. temporum; cc. bellorum, the accidents of war; res casum aliquem recipit, is associated with danger, there is some risk in it; in aleam tanti casus se regnumque dare, to stake himself and his kingdom upon so uncertain a cast; in partic., the abl. casu freq. as adv., by chance, by accident: sive c. sive consilio deorum; accidit c. ut, etc.: D) = opportunity, occasion: fortuna illi casum praeclari facinoris dedit, a chance for a brilliant achievement: E) usually in comb. with an adj., an unfortunate occurrence or event, a misfortune: doleo casum civitatis; c. gravis; hence = destruction, death, fall: c. Gracchorum, urbis: F) in gramm., a case: c. rectus; cc. conversi = obliqui (the other cases besides the nom. and voc.); c. genitivus.

CATĀBATHMOS, i, m. [= Κατάβατος]. A region between Egypt and Libya, with a city of the same name.

CATĀDRŌMUS, i, m. [= κατὰδρόμος]. (Lat.) A stretched rope (inclining downwards), used by rope-dancers.

CATĀDŪPA, ōrum, n. pl. [= Κατάδουρα]. The cataract of the Nile, on the borders of Ethiopia, now Chellal.

CĀTAEGIS, Idia, f. [= καταιγίς]. (Lat.) A violent storm of wind, a hurricane.

CĀTĀMITUS, i, m. [corrupted from Ganymedes]. The Latin name of Ganymedes (q. v.); hence = Pathicus.

CĀTAŌNIA, ae, f. [= Καταόνια]. A province in Southern Cappadocia.

CĀTĀPHRACTES, ae, m. [= καταφράκτες]. (Lat.) A coat-of-mail furnished with iron scales.

CĀTĀPHRACTUS, a, um, adj. [= καταφράκτος]. Mailed, clad in mail.

CĀTĀPULTA, ae, f. [= καταπέλτης]. (Antecl. & lat.) 1) A military engine for throwing large arrows, lances, &c., a catapult (cf. ballista). 2) (Pl.) A missile hurled from a catapult.

CĀTĀRACTA, ae, f. [= καταράκτες]. 1) (Lat.) A water-fall, esp. the cataract of the Nile. 2) A porticulis. 3) A sluice, flood-gate.

CĀTĀRACTES, } ae, m. [Καταράκτες] A
CĀTARRHACTES, } river in Pamphylia, now Duden.

CÁTASCOPIUM, ii, n. (Gell.) = Catascopus.
CÁTASCOPIUS, i, m. [= κατασκοπός]. A spyship (pure Latin, navigium speculatorium).

CÁTASTA, ae, f. [καταστάς]. (Poet. & lat.) A scaffold or stage on which slaves were exposed to sale.

CÁTASTRÖPHA, ae, f. [καταστροφή]. The point on which any thing turns, a catastrophe.

CÁTE, adv. [catue]. Skillfully, discreetly, cunningly.

CÁTEIA, ae, f. (Poet. & lat.) A missile weapon, used by the Germans and Celts.

CÁTELLA (I.), ae, f. [dim. of catulus]. A little dog.

CÁTELLA (II.), ae, f. [dim. of catena]. A small chain.

CÁTELLUS (I.), i, m. [dim. of catulus]. A little dog, puppy.

CÁTELLUS (II.), i, m. [dim. of catena]. (Pl.) A small chain.

CÁTENA, ae, f. 1) A chain, a fetter (of metal — cf. vinculum): conjiungere aliquem in catenas; injicere alicui catenas; in catenis aliquem Romam mittere; trop., oo. legum. 2) (Lucr.) A chain = a series of things connected with each other: catenas ludunt, to dance in links or rows. 3) Trop., a barrier, restraint, fetter.

CÁTENÁRIUS, a, um, adj. [catena]. Of or pertaining to a chain, canis.

CÁTENÁTUS, a, um, adj. [catena; prop. part. of a verb, cateno, 1.]. 1) Chained, bound with a chain, fettered, janitor (of Cerberus). 2) (Lat.) Linked together, versus; uninterrupted, labores.

CÁTERVA, ae, f. Any great number of men in company, a crowd, troop. Hence, in partic.: A) a company of players: B) in military lang., a troop, a division of troops, a band, company, esp. of the allied forces, as distinguished from the legionary soldiers.

CÁTERVÁRIUS, a, um, adj. [caterva]. (Lat.) Of or belonging to a troop: pugiles co., fighting in troops or bands.

CÁTERVÁTİM, adv. [caterva]. In companies or troops.

CÁTHEDRA, ae, f. [= καθέδρα]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) A chair, an arm-chair, furnished with cushions, used esp. by women. 2) A teacher's chair. 3) A sedan chair.

CÁTHEDRÁRIUS, a, um, adj. [cathedra]. Pertaining to an arm-chair; philosophus c., a teacher of philosophy.

CÁTIA and CÁTIENA, ae, f. Two dissolute women, mentioned by Horace and Juvenal.

CÁTILINÁRIUS, a, um, adj. [Catilina]. Of Catiline, Catilinarian.

CÁTILINA, ae, m. (Lucius Sergius.) The originator of the famous conspiracy at Rome, which was put down by Cicero.

CÁTILLO, avi, atum, 1. v. tr. [catillus]. (Ante-cl.) To lick plates.

CÁTILLUS (I.), i, m. [dim. of catinus]. A small plate.

CÁTILLUS (II.), i, m. A son of Amphiarauus, who, with his brothers Coras and Tiburtus, migrated from Argos into Italy, and there founded Tibur.

CÁTINA, ae, f. [= Κατάνη]. A town on the eastern coast of Sicily, now Catania.

CÁTINENSIS, e, adj. [Catina]. Of or pertaining to Catina; subst., Catinenses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Catina.

CÁTINUS, i, m., and (rar.) CÁTINUM, i, n. 1) A pot for cooking food or melting metal. 2) A broad flat dish, a platter.

CÁTIUS, ii, m. An Epicurean philosopher, who lived about 50 B. C.

CÁTO, ónis, m. A Roman family name in the gens Porcia; the most famous of the name were: 1) Marcus P. C., Major or Censorius, an honest and upright man, but stern and severe, a zealous maintainer of the old Roman discipline, an opposer of all novelties, e. g., the Greek literature and philosophy, and an inveterate enemy of Carthage. 2) Marcus P. C. Uticensis, great-grandson of the former, and like him zealous for the ancient customs and institutions of Rome, hence, an ardent republican and opposer of Caesar, in the course of the civil war with whom he committed suicide, at Utica, 46 B. C.

CÁTÖNIÁNIUS, a, um, adj. [Cato]. Catonian.
CÁTÖNINI, orum, m. pl. [Cato]. The friends and adherents of Cato.

CÁTÖNIUM, ii, n. [catru]. (Obsolete.) The lower world. Hence the proverb, vereor ne in Catonium Catoninos, he would like to send the friends of Cato to the lower world.

CÁTULINUS, a, um, adj. [catulus]. Of or pertaining to a little dog, caro.

CÁTULLIÁNIUS, a, um, adj. Of Catullus.

CÁTULLUS, i, m. (Q. Valerius.) A Roman elegiac poet, born 87 B. C.

CÁTULUS (I.), i, m. [canis]. 1) A young dog, a whelp. 2) In gen., the young of any other animal (a lion, pig, cat, &c.).

CÁTULUS (II.), i, m. A surname in the gens Lutatia.

CÁTÜRIGES, um, m. pl. A Gallic tribe, in the depart. des Hautes-Alpes.

CÁTUS, a, um, adj. (Mostly ante-cl. & lat.) Prudent, sagacious, wise, both in a good sense (= intelligent, skilful: c. et prudens; c. jaculari, in slinging) and in a bad sense (= cunning, crafty: c. et callidus); (poet.) c. consilium.

CAUCÁSIUS, a, um, adj. [Caucasus]. Caucasian.

CAUCÁSUS, i, m. A range of high mountains in Asia, between the Pontus Euxinus and the Caspian Sea, the Caucasus.

CAUDA (also CODA), ae, f. A tail. Trop.: A) caudam jactare populo or caudam obterere, to fawn upon: B) (poet. & lat.) e. trahere = to wear a fool's cap (literally, to have a tail stuck on): C) the tail, i. e., end of a word.

CAUDEUS, a, um, adj. [caudex]. (Pl.) Wooden.

CAUDEX, or CODEX, is, m. 1) The trunk, stock or stem of a tree. Hence: A) the block of wood to which one was bound for punishment: B) contemptuously, blockhead! 2) (In the form 'oedex' only.) As the ancients originally wrote on wooden tablets, or boards coated over with wax, a book, a writing (cf. volumen). In particular = an account-book, ledger: referre in c. CAUDICALIS, e, adj. [caudex]. (Pl.) Pertaining to wood: provincia e. (humorously), the office of wood-cutting.

CAUDINUS, a, um, adj. Of Caudium, Caudine: fureculae or fauces Caudinae, a narrow pass near Caudium, where the Roman forces were shut up by the Samnites, and had to pass under the yoke (321 B. C.).

CAUDIUM, il, n. A town of Samnium, near Benevento.

CAULAE, ērum, f. pl. 1) (Lucr.) A hollow, an opening, corporis. 2) A fold, a pen, stall.

CAULICULUS, i, m. [dim. of caulis]. A small stalk or stem of a plant.

CAULIS, is, m. [καλός]. A stalk, stem, esp. the stalk of a cabbage, cabbage.

CAULON, ōnis, m. } A town of Bruttium, near CAULONIA, ae, f. } the modern Castel Vetere.

CAUNEUS, } a, um, adj. Of or pertaining CAUNIUS, } to Caunus, Caunian; subst., 1)

Caunei (-nii), ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Caunus; 2) Cauneae, ārum, f. pl. (so. fious), figs from Caunus.

CAUNUS, i, f. [Καῦνος]. A town of Caria, now Copi, according to others, Kingi.

CAUPO, ōnis, m. An innkeeper; also = a huckster, retailer.

CAUPONA, ae, f. [caupo]. A tavern, an inn.

CAUPONIUS, a, um, adj. [caupona]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Of or belonging to a tavern.

CAUPONOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. [caupona]. (Ante-cl.) To trade in any thing, to sell as a huckster, bellum.

CAUPONULA, ae, f. [dim. of caupona]. A small inn or tavern.

CAUPULUS, i, m. (Lat.) A kind of small ship.

CAURUS or CORUS, i, m. The north-west wind; also, as adj., ventus c.

CAUSA or CAUSSA, ae, f. 1) A cause, reason, occasion: c. belli, objurgandi; (poet.) quae fuit c. consurgere, of rising; (rar.) haec justa c. est ad objurgandum; c. veniendi fuit ut (ae, ut ne), in order that; haec (nulla) est c. (so likewise multae sunt cc.) cur (quare, quamobrem, prop-ter quam, quod, rar. ut) aliquid fiat, the reason why any thing happens; haec mihi dedit c. explicandae philosophiae, induced me; justam c. afferre cur, to adduce a valid reason why. In partic.: A) abl. causā, on account of, for the sake of: voluptatum adipiscendarum c.; honoris tui c.; ejus c. cupio (volo), I wish him well, and debeo, I am much obliged to him. Rarely (Com. & lat.), o. is placed before the subst.: c. sacrorum; c. meā: B) = an apology, excuse: nec erit justior non veniendi morbi c. quam mortis, sickness will be deemed a no less valid excuse for not appearing than death itself; accipere c., to be satisfied with an apology: C) a feigned cause, pretext, pretence; esp. per c. supplementi exercitus cogendi, under the pretence: D) (lat.) = a sickness (that hinders one, and affords him a valid excuse): E) (Com.) nihil causae or nullam causam dico quin, I have no objection; cum (non sine) c., not without good reason.

2) A matter, subject, cause: A) in the lang. of law, a lawsuit, a cause at law: c. privata, publica; c. capitis; agere causam, to manage, obtain, to gain, perdere, to lose = causā cadere; c. dicere, to make a defence, to plead either one's own cause (freq. = reum esse, to be accused) or another's: causam alicujus or pro aliquo dicere, to defend one at law; so, also, causae dictio; quod causam facit, the legal point in a case at law. Hence: B) in general, a cause which is supported or defended, a party, an interest: nemini in illa c. studio concessit; inclinatus in causam plebis; causam foederis egit (cf. A), he spoke in favour of: C) = a commission, business: dare alicui causam; qui missi erant super eadem c.: D) = situation, condition, position, circumstances: in eadem c. fuit Cato; in meliore c. erat: E) = a relation of friendship, connection: omnes cc. (the motives of friendship) et necessitudines mihi cum illo intercedebant; ratio et c. mihi est cum illo.

CAUSARIUS, a, um, adj. [causa]. 1) C. miles, a soldier discharged from military service on account of sickness or mutilation, an invalid. 2) (Lat.) Sickly, indisposed, corpus, partes (v. Causa 1, D).

CAUSATIO, ōnis, f. [causa]. (Lat.) An excuse.

CAUSIA, ae, f. [= καυία]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A white hat with a broad brim, worn by the Macedonians.

CAUSIDICUS, i, m. [causa-dico]. A pleader, an advocate (contemptuously, of a lawyer of low character and greedy of money).

CAUSIFICOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. [causa-facio]. (Rar., ante-cl. & lat.) To allege a cause, to make a pretext, to pretend.

CAUSOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. [causa]. (Mostly lat.) To make a pretext, to pretend, to allege, vaetudinem; c. se consulere velle, equos cor-rumpi; c. quod ille non sit secutus.

CAUSŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of causa]. 1) A trifling lawsuit. 2) An insignificant occasion.

CAUTE, adv. [cautus]. 1) Cautiously, carefully. 2) With security or warranty: scriptum c. ut, etc., with this stipulation for the sake of security, that, &c.

CAUTES, is, f. A rough, pointed rock, a crag (cf. saxum, scopulus).

CAUTIM, adv. [caveo]. (Ante-cl.) = Caute 1.

CAUTIO, ōnis, f. [caveo]. 1) A striving to take care, caution, carefulness, wariness: hujus rei una est c., ne, the only way of being cautious in this affair, is; c. et diligenter. In partic.: A) (Com.) (mihi cautio est, I must take care; mea cautio est, that's my business: B) res multas cc. habet, there is much in it of which one must beware; quae non habent cautionem, where caution is of no use (where one can only wait for the issue); alter erat locus cautionis, the second thing, of which one had to beware. 2) Tech. t.: A) means of precaution, precautionary advice, which advocates gave to their clients: praescriptionum cautionumque praeceptio: B) security, bail, for one's self or another — a) in writing = a bond, obligation: est in c., it is in the bond; c. chirographi — b) = an oral warranty, pledge: omni cautione devincire aliquem.

CAUTOR, ōris, m. [caveo]. 1) (Ante-cl.) One who is wary or on his guard. 2) One who is surety or bail for another: c. alieni periculi.

CAUTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [caveo]. 1) Pass., secured: numi cc., lent to solvent debtors; res erat ei cautior, her property was made more secure. 2) Act., cautious, wary, circumspect: c. in periculis, in scribendo; c. ad (adversus, erga) rem aliquam; (poet.) c. assumere dignos, careful to take only worthy persons (as friends).

CĀVAEDĪUM — v. Cavus.

CĀVEA, ae, f. [cavus]. 1) An inclosure for animals, e. g., a cage, stall, &c.: c. ferarum, apum = a beehive. 2) That part of the theatre where the spectators sat, the seats of spectators ascending in terraces: c. ima or prima, the place of the nobility; c. media, summa or ultima, of the lower classes. 3) A theatre, in gen.

CĀVEO, cāvī, cautum, 2. v. intr. 1) To be on one's guard, to take care, to beware: faciet nisi caveo; c. periculum, aliquem, of danger, of any one; cavenda est gloriae cupiditas, one must beware of ambition; c. a te, ab insidiis (of you, of snares); rar. (ante-cl.) c. aliquo, to be cautious with respect to one; caveo ne decipiar, cavendum tibi est ne bellum oriatur; freq. it simply introduces a prohibition, cave ne rem minuas, and oftener cave credas, facias, don't believe it, don't do it; c. te fratrum misereatur, have no compassion for your brothers. Hence, c. ut aliquid fiat, to take care that a thing be done, ut ne, that it be not done; rar. c. facere aliquid, to beware of doing a thing. Hence, tech. t. in the lang. of fencing, to parry a blow. 2) To be wary or careful for the sake of some one, to have a care for, to protect, to keep off a thing from: c. alicui, (lat.) c. securitati; cautum tibi volo, I wish you were made secure (safe). Hence, tech. t.: A) of a lawyer, to assist a client by his advice: B) c. ab aliquo, to take security from some one, to procure bail: C) to give security or bail, to guarantee, alicui; ei non satis cautum videbatur; obsidibus de pecunia cavent: D) to order, decree or provide for by a law or will: cautum est lege or in legibus ne, etc.; agri de quibus cautum est; c. alicui heredi, for the benefit of an heir.

CĀVERNA, ae, f. [cavus]. Mostly in plur. A hollow, cavity, cave, grotto, terrae. Hence, the hold of a ship.

CĀVILLA, ae, f. [dim. of cavus — prop., empty, vain talk]. (Rar., ante-cl. & lat.) A bantering jest, rally.

CĀVILLĀTIO, ōnis, f. [cavillor]. 1) A bantering joke, a banter, rally. 2) (Lat.) Sophistry, sophistical discourse.

CĀVILLĀTOR, ōris, m. [cavillor]. 1) A joker, jeerer, taunter. 2) (Lat.) A sophist.

CĀVILLĀTRIX, icis, f. [cavillor]. (Quinet.) 1) As an adj., sophistical: conclusio c. 2) A (female) sophist.

CĀVILLOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. & tr. [cavilla]. 1) Intr., to practise joking or jesting, to jest, cum aliquo; c. et joco; also, to reason sophistically, to quibble. 2) Tr., to banter, to rally, to satirise any person or thing, tribunos, togam ejus praetextam; c. in eo, grave esse amiculum, jokingly to say of him that, &c.

CĀVILLŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of cavilla]. (Pl.) A little jest, joke.

CĀVO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [cavus]. To make hollow, to hollow out, lapidem; (poet.) c. parmam gladio, to pierce through; c. tegmina capitum = to make round, to fabricate.

CĀVUS, a, um, adj. Hollow, hollowed, concha, vallis, truncus, nubes (in so far as a cloud envelopes something, hence with the same idea, c. umbra); (poet.) cc. flumina, with beds hollowed out of the rock. Hence, subst., Cavum; i, n., and (rar.) Cavus, i, m., a hollow, hole, cavity; in partic., cavum aedium, or Cavaedium, ii, n., the inner court of a Roman house, in the centre of which was the 'impluvium' (to be distinguished from the 'atrium').

CAYSTRIUS, a, um, adj. Of or belonging to the Caystros.

CAYSTROS and CAYSTRUS, i, m. [= Kästros]. A river of Ionia, falling into the sea at Ephesus, now Kara Su or Kutschuk-Meinder.

CĒ. An inseparable, demonstrative particle which, affixed to the stem, formed the pronoun hinc (instead of hi-cē, therefore, hincūce, hincē, etc.), illic, etc.; the adverbs hic, hinc, sic, tunc, etc.; when followed by the interrogative 'ne,' the forms are hicine, sicine (not hiccine, sic-cine).

CEA or CIA, ae, f., also Ceos (acc. Ceo), [= Κῆς]. One of the Cyclades, opposite Sunium, the birthplace of the poet Simonides; hence, adj., Ceus, q. v.

CEBENNA and CĒVENNA, ae, m. (sc. mons). A chain of mountains in Gaul, now les Cévennes. CEBREN, -nis, m. A river-god in Troas, father of Cēnone.

CEBRĒNIS, Idia, f. The daughter of Cebren, i. e., Cēnone.

CECRŌPIDES, ae, m. [= Κεκροπιδης]. A male descendant of Cecrops — a) = Theseus — b) appell. = a person of noble lineage — c) pl., Cecrōpidae, -arum = the Athenians.

CECRŌPIS, Idia, f. [= Κεκροπις]. 1) A female descendant of Cecrops, in partic. = a daughter of Cecrops or of Pandion. 2) An Athenian woman. 3) As an adj., Attic, of Attica: terra C.

CECRŌPIUS, a, um, adj. [= Κεκροπιος]. 1) Cecropian, arx; and hence, subst., Cecrōpia, ae, f., the citadel of Athens, built by Cecrops. 2) Attic, Athenian.

CECROPS, ōpis, m. [= Κεκροψ]. The most ancient king of Attica, and founder of the citadel of Athens, according to fable half man and half serpent; hence, C. geminus.

CĒDO, cessi, cessum, 3. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to go, to betake one's self: A) (poet., rar.) prop., c. ex transverso quasi cancer, to go sideways: B) = to come to, to arrive somewhere — a) (ante-cl.) miles ibi c., goes thither — b) trop. (ante-cl.), hoc c. ad factum, comes to its execution, performance — c) (lat.) omnes cc. in unum, they all agree — d) c. in aliquid, to become something, to pass into something, to turn out, to result in: injuria ei c. in gloriam; c. in proverbium; e. in praedam alicujus, became the booty of some one — e) to come to some one as property, to be the share of some one, to fall to: is quaeustus huius c.; potentia Pompeii in Caesarem c.; hence = to happen, to befall: quae captae urbi cc.: C) = to go from somewhere — a) prop., to go away, to depart, to withdraw: succus c. de corpore; c. ex ingrata patria; c. Italiā; freq. of troops, c. loco, de oppido, ex acie — b) c. vitā or e vita = to die — c) tempus c., passes by, vanishes — d) res c. memoriā, escapes (= is forgotten); pudor c. ex pectore, disappears — e) c. (alicui) possessione, bonis, to give up, to surrender — f) (lat.) c. foro, to leave the market, to become bankrupt: D) trop., of a course of action or an undertaking, to succeed, to prosper: haec ei prospere or prospera cc.: E) (lat.) c. pro re a qua, to go for something, to be worth, to be deemed equivalent to.

2) Intr., to yield to, alicui: A) = to yield to superior power, to submit to, to go out of the way of, fortunae: B) = to yield to in rank, honour — immortalitate diis cedimus; also, c. alicui in re aliqua: C) to yield to the wishes of any one = to comply with, to give way to, auctoritati alicujus, alicui blandienti: c. legibus = out of respect to the laws to go into exile: c. reipublicae = to bear any thing for the sake of the state; c. pudori, to be guided by modesty in one's actions.

3) Tr., to permit something to one, to concede, to allow, hosti victoriam, multa multis de jure suo; plebes cessit ut, etc.

CĒDO, pl. Cētte, (obsolete,) is used as an imper. = give here, hither with it: A) (Com.) prop., c. mihi pateram, reach me the cup; c. dextram, codicem, tabulas; c. senem, bring here the old man! B) = let us hear, out with it, tell me! c. istuc tuum consilium; c. unum auctorem facti tui; c. quid faciam; c. qui sit ordo somniorum; sometimes merely to call attention to a thing: c. mihi leges Atticas, let us hear the laws.

CĒDROSĪ, ōrum, m. pl. The inhabitants of Cedrosia.

CĒDROSIS, Idia, f. A region in Persia.

CEDRUS, i, f. [= κείδος]. 1) A kind of cedar-tree (the juniper cedar), which produced a superior oil, used as a preservative against decay. 2) Meton.: A) cedar-wood: B) the oil of cedar: carmina cedro digna = worthy of immortality.

CĒLAENAE, -arum, f. pl. [= Κελαίνας]. A town in Phrygia Major, the place of the combat between Apollo and Marsyas.

CĒLAENAEUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Celaeus, or (poet.) to Marsyas.

CĒLAENO, ūs, f. [= Κελαίνα]. 1) One of the Pleiads. 2) One of the Harpies; hence, appell. (poet.) = a rapacious woman.

CĒLATIM, adv. [celo]. (Ante-cl.) Secretly.

CĒLĀTOR, ōris, m. A concealer, hider.

CĒLEBER (rar. Celebris), bris, e, adj. w. comp. & sup. 1) Where a multitude often comes or is collected together, much frequented, populous, numerous: c. locus, portus, oraculum; c. hominum conventus, urbs, forum. Hence = celebrated by the coming together of a great multitude, solemn, festive, dies festus, funus, triumphus. 2) (Rar.) Frequent, verba. 3) (Mostly poet. & lat.) Much talked of and admired (cf. famosus); hence, distinguished, celebrated, famous: Dae-dalus celebrer ingenio; c. in hoc genere; nomen c.

CĒLEBERRĪME, adv. superl. [celeber]. Most frequently, very often.

CĒLEBRĀTIO, ōnis, f. [celebro]. 1) A numerous concourse = an assembly: hominum coetus et co. 2) A numerous concourse at a festival, the celebration of a festival by a large company or multitude: c. ludorum. 3) (Lat.) = Distinction, honour.

CĒLEBRATUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of celebro]. 1) Frequent, usual, customary, res. 2) Festive, solemn, dies. 3) (Lat.) Celebrated, famous.

CĒLEBRITAS, ātis, f. [celeber]. 1) The being much frequented or visited by many, loci, viae. 2) A numerous concourse or company, a multitude, a crowd: c. virorum ac mulierum, totius Graeciae; c. supremi diei, a solemn and largely attended funeral procession. 3) (Rar.) Frequency, periculum. 4) = Fame, renown, celebrity: c. eo nomen; c. sermonis hominum.

CĒLEBRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [celeber]. 1) To visit numerously, to go to a place often and in great numbers, to frequent: c. silvas, viam, domum, iter. Hence: A) to be present in great numbers at a festival, to celebrate a festival by a great assemblage or concourse: c. triumphum, supplicationem, nuptias, exsequias; c. epulas cantu: B) to honour, to show honour to any one, aliquem funere publico: C) c. aliquid aliqua re, to fill with something (prop., to visit something often with something): c. ripas carmine, aures alicujus novis nominibus; c. litora ludis, to celebrate solemn games upon the shore; convivium celebratur omnium laetitia et sermone, joy and social converse prevail at the feast. 2) Of an action often performed, to do a thing frequently, to be used to do, to practise, to repeat: c. et recolere artem; celebratur genus illud mortis, often occurs; c. jurisdictionem; c. cum aliquo seria et joca, to take part in often. 3) To mention often, to speak of frequently, to make known, rem; nuncii literaeque celebrant, Murenam consule esse factum. In partic. = to speak of in terms of praise, to extol, to celebrate, aliquem literis suis, nomen alicujus (poet.); c. virum lyrā, to celebrate in song.

CĒLELĀTES, tum, m. pl. A Ligurian tribe south of the Po, in what is now Montferat.

CĒLENDĒRIS, is, f. A town of Cilicia, 22 miles west of Seleucia — now Kelenderi or Kiliudria.

CĒLENNĀ, ae, f. A town in Campania.

CĒLER, ēris, e, adj. w. comp. & sup. Swift, quick, speedy, sagitta, curriculum, ventus, cerva; also of abstract subjects, oratio, victoria; homo c., quick in action; co. consilia, quick, resolute measures; sometimes with censure = rash, hasty; (poet.) c. irasci, in anger.

CĒLĒRES, rum, m. pl. [prob. fr. Cello = 'the elevated in rank']. The ancient name of the Roman knights (originally formed into three 'centuriae').

CĒLERĪ-PES, ēdis, adj. (Rar.) Swift-footed.

CĒLERĪTAS, ātis, f. [celer]. Swiftiness, quickness, speed: e. et vis eorum; c. dicendi or in dicendo, ad discendum; c. veneni, speedy effect; c. animorum, consilii, presence of mind.

CĒLERĪTER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [celer]. Swiftly, quickly, speedily.

CĒLERĪUSCŪLE, adv. [dim. of celeriter]. Somewhat quickly.

CĒLĒRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. [celer]. 1) Tr., to quicken, to hasten, fugam, iter; c. imperium alicujus, to execute with despatch. 2) Intr. (rar.), to hasten.

CĒLETRUM, i, n. A Macedonian town, on a peninsula of the lacus Castoris, now Castoria.

CĒLEUS, i, m. [= Κελεύς]. A king of Eleusis, who hospitably received the goddess Ceres, and was taught agriculture by her.

CELLA, ae, f. A room: A) a store-room, for corn, fruits, &c.; c. vinaria, olearia; hence, emere, etc., aliquid in cellam = for the kitchen, for family use: A) a room for animals, c. anserum, a coop for geese, columbarum, a dovecote; also, a beehive: C) a small room or chamber, esp. for slaves: D) that part of a temple where the image of a god stood, the chapel: c. Jovis.

CELLĀRIUS, ii, m. [cella]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Of or pertaining to a store-room; hence, subst., Cellarius, ii, m., an overseer of a store-room, a butler.

CELLŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of cella]. (Poet.) A small store-room.

CĒLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To keep one in ignorance of a thing, to conceal or hide from one: c. vos illud, to sermonem Appii; c. illum de insidiis, also abs., c. aliquem, not to tell one any thing; pass., only with a pron. in the neutr., celor illud (Com.), elsewhere celor de re aliqua, de maximis rebus a fratre celatus. 2) To keep a thing secret, to conceal, to hide (for subjective reasons — cf. occulto, etc.), tantum gaudium, sententiam, aurum terrā; c. aliquem, to hide one.

CĒLOX, ōcis, f. [originally an adj., sc. navis, kindred with celer und cello]. A fast-sailing ship or yacht; trop., prov. (Pl.) — a) ne mihi hanc operam celocem corbitam date = don't do slowly what should be done swiftly — b) dic mihi unde onustam celocem agere te praedicem, where did you take in your freight? (of a drunken man.)

CĒLSE, adv. w. comp. [celsus]. (Lat.) 1) Highly. 2) Nobly.

CĒLSITŪDO, inis, f. [celsus]. (Lat.) A lofty and upright carriage of the body, corporis.

CĒLSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [from the unusual cello, prop. = 'driven upward']. 1) High, lofty, towering (cf. altus, sublimis), mons, status oratoris, ingressus, turris. 2) Trop.: A) morally — a) in a good sense = highminded, noble, elevated, animus, homo — b) in a bad sense = haughty, proud: B) of rank, &c., high, noble, sedes dignitatis.

CELTAE, ārum, m. pl. The Celts, a people in North-western Europe, esp. in Gaul and Spain.

CELTIBER, ēri, m. [Celtiberia]. A Celtiberian.

CELTIBERIA, ae, f. [= Κελτιβηρία]. A part of Northern and Middle Spain.

CELTIBERICUS, a, um, adj. [Celtiberia]. Celtiberian.

CELTICUS, a, um, adj. [Celtae]. Celtic.

CENAEUM, i, n. [Κηναίων ἄκρον]. A promontory of Euboea, now Lithoda.

CENAEUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Censum; Jupiter C., who had a temple there.

CENCHREAE, ārum, f. pl. [= Κενχρεαί]. One of the three harbors of Corinth on the Saronic Gulf, now Kenkrie.

CENIMAGNI, ōrum, m. pl. A tribe in the south-east of Britain.

CENŌMĀNI, ōrum, m. pl. A Celtic tribe in Gaul, in the present dep. de la Sarthe.

CENSEO, sui, sum, 2. v. tr. 1) Tech. t.: A) to estimate the property of a Roman citizen (esp. his landed estate and other res mancipi), and according to it (as also to his rank and age) to enter him in a certain class of citizens on the censor's list; to estimate, to value, to tax: c. aliquem; ducenta millia capitem censa sunt; haec classis censetur XI millibus aeris, a citizen of this class must possess 11,000 asses; census equestrem summam numerum, one whose property reaches the amount required for a knight; capite censi, those citizens who had very little or no property, and who were enrolled in the lists by number only; legem censui cendendo dicere, to establish the formula according to which the census shall be taken: B) to have one's property entered on the lists, to give an account of one's property: suntne ista praedia censui censored? in qua tribu ista praedia censuisti? C) In gen., to value, to rate, to estimate, rem, ista praedia; censeri re aliqua (lat.), to be highly esteemed on account of a thing. 3) To deem, to think, to be of opinion, to deem right or serviceable (after considering the circumstances or reasons, therefore usually of an opinion expressed with some authority—cf. opinor, puto, etc.): quid censetis? sargendum censo; c. aequum esse. Hence, 4) tech. t., of political life: A) of a single senator, to vote, to vote for: plerique co. ut noctu iter faceret; c. arcessas copias, that you fetch the troops; c. captivos esse reddendos; (rar.) c. eruptionem, to vote for a sally: B) of the whole senate, to decree, to ordain: quae patres co.; senatus c. eos ab armis decedere, ut Aeduos defenderet; comitia non esse expectanda sed dictatorem dici; (lat.) c. alicui triumphum.

CENSIO, ōnis, f. [censo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) An estimating, a taxing; in particular, = census 1. 2) A punishment, chastisement: c. bubula (Pl.), a whipping (literally, a censuring with thongs of ox-hide).

CENSOR, ōris, m. [censo]. A censor, a Roman magistrate, whose duty it was to take the census (v. Censo 1, A), to superintend public morals, with authority to punish offenders by degrading them in civil rank, to make contracts for public works and buildings, and to farm out or lease the public revenues. Hence, trop. = a severe judge or critic.

CENSORIUS, a, um, adj. [censor]. 1) Of or pertaining to the censor, censorian, censorial, auctoritas, nota, animadversio; c. lex, a contract with the government for leasing or undertaking public buildings, also an order or decision of a censor; tabulae co., the lists of the censor. 2) Homo co., who had been censor. 3) Trop., severe, gravitas.

CENSUALIS, is, m. [census]. (Lat.) One who makes the censor's list.

CENSURA, ae, f. [censo]. 1) The office of censor, censorship: gerere co., to be invested with the office of censor, to be a censor; c. ejus gravis fuit, he showed himself a severe censor. 2) (Poet. & lat.) Severe judgment, censure, reproach, vivorum; facere co. de re aliqua.

CENSUS, ūs, m. 1) Tech. t., a valuation of the property of a Roman citizen and registering of his name in the censor's list, census (v. Censo 1, A): agere, habere, facere, censere co., to take a census. Hence: A) = the statement of one's property to the censor: accipere co.: B) = enumeration, in gen.: Helvetiorum qui redierant, census habito, repertus est numerus centum et decem: C) = a tax imposed on one: octuplicato censu eum aerarium fecerunt. 2) The censor's list, a register or roll of the citizens, &c.: in censum referre. 3) The property rated and entered on the censor's list: c. equester, tertine classis. 4) (Mostly poet. & lat.) Property, possessions, in gen.: c. exiguus; homo sine co.

CENTAUREUS, a, um, adj. [Centaurus]. Of or pertaining to the Centaurs.

CENTAURUS, i, m. [= Κένταυρος]. A Centaur. According to mythology, the Centaurs were sons of Ixion and a cloud; in Homer they appear as a wild tribe living on the Thessalian mountains; and, later, they were believed to be monsters—half man and half horse.

CENTENI, ae, a, pl. adj. num. distr. [centum]. A hundred each; also (poet. & lat.) = a hundred-fold.

CENTESIMUS, a, um, adj. num. ord. [centum]. The hundredth. Hence, subst., Centesima, ae, f., sc. pars, the hundredth part (as a tax), one per cent.; in the plur., one per cent. a month; hence, in our way of counting, twelve per cent. per annum.

*CENTICEPS, cipitis, adj. [centum-caput]. Hundred-headed.

CENTIES (Centiens), adv. [centum]. A hundred times.

CENTI-MĀNUS, a, um, adj. [centum-manus]. (Poet.) Hundred-handed.

CENTO, ōnis, m. A coat made of rags and shreds, a patched coat; trop., centones alicui sarcire = to impose upon one with falsehoods, to fill one's head with idle stories.

CENTRONES, num, m. pl. A Gallic tribe, partly in Gallia Narbonensis, and partly in Gallia Belgica.

CENTRUM, i, n. [= κέντρον]. (Lat.) 1) The middle point of a circle, the centre. 2) The kernel, hard knot, in wood or precious stones.

CENTUM, adj. num. card. A hundred; (poet.) of an indefinite, great number = a great many.

CENTUM CELLAE, ārum, f. pl. A seaport town in Etruria, now Civita Vecchia.

CENTUM-GĒMINUS, a, um, adj. (Poet.) The Hundred-fold (of the hundred-armed Briareus and the hundred-gated Thebes).

CENTUMPONDĪUM, ii, n. [centum-pondo]. (Ante-cl.) A weight of one hundred pounds.

CENTUMVĪRĀLIS, e, adj. Of or pertaining to the centumviri (q. v.), judicium; causa c., which came before the centumviri.

CENTUM-VĪRĪ, ōrum, m. pl. [vir]. A college of 106 (later, 180) judges for civil suits, esp. those relating to property and inheritances.

CENTUNCŪLUS, i, m. [dim. of cento]. A small garment made of rags.

CENTUPLEX, icis, adj. [centum-plico]. (Pl.) Hundred-fold.

CENTŪRIA, ae, f. [centum]. Originally, a division of a hundred; hence, 1) in the army, a century, a company of one hundred men = one-sixtieth of a legion (one-half of a manipule, one-sixth of a cohort): tres co. equitum (= celerum). 2) A century (in a political sense), one of the 193 or 194 divisions of Roman citizens, according to which they voted in the 'comitia centuriata.' Each of the five higher classes (v. Classis) contained a number of centuries, but the sixth formed one only. Later, each 'tribus' (q. v.) contained two centuries: cunctis co. renunciatu est consul; centurias non explere, not to obtain a sufficient number of votes.

CENTŪRIĀTIM, adv. [centuria]. By centuries: milites c. producti; populus c. vocatus.

CENTŪRIĀTUS, ūs, m. [centurio I.]. 1) A division into centuries. 2) The office of centurion.

CENTŪRIO (I.), āvi, ātum, l. v. tr. [centuria]. To divide into centuries: A) of the legionary troops, c. juventutem, pedites centuriati: B) of the Roman citizens, only in the part. centuriatus: comitia oc., in which they voted by centuries (v. Centuria); lex c., passed at the 'comitia centuriata.'

CENTŪRIO (II.), ōnis, m. [centuria]. The commander of a century or hundred, a centurion.

CENTŪRĪONĀTUS, ūs, m. [centurio II.]. (Lat.) An election of centurions.

CENTŪRĪPAE, ārum, f. pl., also CENTŪRĪPINUM, i, n., or CENTŪRĪPINA, ae, f. [κέντρον, Κεντροπίνα].

An old town in the interior of Sicily, now Centorbi.

CENTŪRĪPINUS, a, um, adj. Of Centuripa.

CEOS — v. CEA.

CEPA — v. Caepa.

CĒPHALLĒNIA (also Cephalenia), ae, f. [= Κεφαλληνία]. The largest of the Ionian islands, now Cephalonia.

CĒPHALLĒNES, um, m. pl. The inhabitants of Cephalenia.

CĒPHĀLOEDIS, is, f., or CĒPHĀLOEDĪUM, ii, n. [= Κεφαλοῖdis, Κεφαλοῖδιον]. A town with a harbor on the north coast of Sicily, now Cefali.

CĒPHĀLOEDITĀNUS, a, um, adj. Of Cephalœdis; subst., Cephalœditani, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Cephalœdis.

CĒPHĀLUS, i, m. [= Κεφαλος]. A son of Deion and Diomede, and husband of Procris, whom he accidentally killed while hunting. Subsequently to this, he became master of the island of Cephalenia, which was called after him.

CĒPHĒNES, um, m. pl. A fabulous people supposed to live in Ethiopia.

CĒPHĒIS, Idis, f. The daughter of Cepheus = Andromeda.

CĒPHĒIUS, a, um, adj. Of Cepheus; hence (poet.) = Ethiopian.

CĒPHĒUS, a, um, adj. = Cepheus.

CĒPHĒUS, ei or eos, m. [= Κεφεύς]. A king of Ethiopia, husband of Cassiope, and father of Andromeda, finally placed among the stars.

CĒPHĪSIAS (Cephiissias), ādis, adj. Of Cephisus: ora, the banks of the Attic Cephisus, where Procrustes lived.

CĒPHĪSIS (Cephiissis), Idis, adj. [= Κεφισίdis] Of Cephisus, Cephisian.

CĒPHĪSIUS (Cephiissius), a, um, adj. Cephisian; subst., Cephisius, ii, m., a Cephisian = Narcissus.

CĒPHĪSSUS (Cephisus), i, m. [= Κεφισεύς]. 1) A river in Phocis and Boeotia. 2) A river of Attica, to the west of Athens.

CĒRA, ae, f. [= κηρός]. Wax. Hence: A) a wooden tablet, covered over with wax, used for writing, a writing-tablet. Hence — a) a leaf or page of a book, &c. — b) any piece of writing, e. g., a will, letter, catalogue: B) a wax-seal: C) (poet.) a waxen image of an ancestor = imago.

CĒRĀMBUS, i, m. [= Κέραμβος]. A mythical person, who, at the time of the flood of Deucalion, was changed into a beetle.

CĒRĀMICUS (I.), i, m. [= κερμαῖκός]. The name of two places, one within, the other without, the city of Athens; in the latter were the monuments of warriors who had fallen in battle.

CĒRĀMICUS (II.), a, um, adj. — v. Ceramus.

CĒRĀMUS, i, m. [= Κέραμος]. A town on the coast of Caria (now Keramo), after which the Sinus Ceramicus (now G. di Stancio) was named.

CERĀRIA, ae, f. [cera.] (Ante-cl.) She who makes wax lights.

CERĀRIUM, ii, n. [cera]. A tax on the wax used for seals, levied by Verres.

CERĀSINUS, a, um, adj. [cerasus]. Cherry-coloured. (Lat.)

CERĀSTES, ae or is, m. [= κεράστης, 'horned']. The horned serpent; in plur. = a horned people (according to fable) in Cyprus.

CERĀSUS (I), i, f. [= κέρανος]. 1) The cherry-tree. 2) A cherry.

CERĀSUS (II), a, um, adj. [= Κερασός]. A town in Pontus, from whence cherries were brought into Europe — now Keresun.

CERĀTĪNA, ae, f. [= κερατίνα, from κέρα]. (Lat.) The horn syllogism, a sophistical argument about horns ('what you have not lost, you still have; but you have not lost horns, therefore you have horns').

CERĀTUS, a, um, adj. [cero]. Waxed, furnished with wax, tabula, a wax tablet, pennae, fastened with wax.

CERĀUNII MONTES, or Ceraunia, ōrum, n. pl. [= Κεραυνία ὄρη], also Ακρόεραυνία, ōrum, n. pl. (the last applies prop. to the promontory of that name, q. v.). A range of craggy mountains, running along the coast of Epirus — now Kimera or Monti della Chimera.

CERBĒREUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Cerberus.

CERBĒRUS, i, m. [= Κέρβερος]. Cerberus, the many-headed dog of Pluto, who guarded the entrance to the lower world.

CERCĒTIUS, ii, m. A mountain in Thessaly.

CERCĪNA, ae, f. [= Κερκίνα]. An island on the coast of Africa, at the entrance of the Syrtis Minor — now Kerkine.

CERCŌPES, pum, m. pl. [κέρκυρα = 'a monkey']. A thievish people on the island Pithecusa, changed by Jupiter into monkeys.

CERCŌPITHĒCUS, i, m. [= κερκονθικός]. (Lat.) A long-tailed monkey.

CERCŪRUS, i, m. [= κέρκυρος]. 1) A kind of light, fast-sailing ship, used by the Cyprians. 2) A sea-fish.

CERCŪO, ōnis, m. [= Κερκυών]. A robber of Attica, slain by Theseus.

CERDO, ōnis, m. [= κέρδος]. (Lat. poet.) A handicraftsman, a workman.

CERĒALIS, e, adj. [Ceres]. Of or pertaining to Ceres, and hence to agriculture, grain, corn, &c.: munera cc. = bread; arma cc., the utensils necessary for making bread; aediles cc., who had the superintendence of provisions; subst., Cerealia, n. pl., the festival of Ceres, celebrated on the 10th of April.

CERĒBELLUM, i, n. [dim. of cerebrum]. A small brain.

CERĒBRŌSUS, a, um, adj. [cerebrum]. (Poet.) Inclined to madness: A) = deranged, mentally disordered · B) hot-headed, passionate.

CERĒBRUM, i, n. 1) The brain: excutere alicui cerebrum, to disorder the mind of any one; cerebrum his aritur = they are greatly exasperated. 2) Trop. (poet.): A) = understanding B) = anger.

CĒRES, ēris, f. The daughter of Saturn and Ops, sister of Jupiter, mother of Proserpine, the goddess of agriculture, and hence of civilization: she was especially honoured in the 'mysteries,' particularly at Athens and Eleusis; hence (poet.) = corn, bread, grain, &c.

CĒREUS, a, um, adj. [cera]. Waxed, made of wax, imago. Hence: A) (poet.) = wax-coloured: B) (poet.) = soft, tender, brachia; trop. = flexible, easily moved (cereus in vitium fleo, so that he can be easily persuaded to vice): C) subst., Cereus, i, m. (sc. funis), a wax-light, a wax-taper.

CĒRINTHA, ae, f. [= κερυνθία]. A plant liked by bees, the wax-flower.

CĒRINUS, a, um, adj. [cera]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Wax-coloured, yellow like wax; hence, subst., Cerinum, i, n., a wax-coloured garment.

CERNO, crēvi, crētum, 3. v. tr. [related to κηρύσσω] (in the signifi. 2, A and B, without perf. and sup.). 1) Prop. (rar., poet. & lat.) to separate, particularly to sift, farinam cribro or per cribrum. 2) Trop.: A) to separate with the eyes, to distinguish, to see, to discern: c. aliquid oculis, ex hoc loco Cumanum tuum non c. Hence, c. aliquem, to look upon any one = to have a regard for: B) to distinguish with the mind, to apprehend, to perceive, to understand: c. aliquid animo; c. rem actam; nemo satis c., cui imperium permittat. Hence, pass., cerni re aliqua or in (rar. ex) re aliqua, to appear in something, to become known by means of or in something: fortis animus et magnus duabus rebus cernitur: C) to decide something disputed or contested: sors id c. In partic. — a) (rar., ante-cl. & poet.) to decide by combat, to fight: c. vitam, to fight for life, so likewise de victoria; c. certamen — b) (ante-cl. & poet.) to decide for something, to resolve upon, to determine: c. facere aliquid; quodcumque senatus c.: D) tech. t., c. hereditatem aliquam or aliqujus, to resolve, and to declare one's determination to enter upon an inheritance; hence, also = to enter upon an inheritance.

CERNŪLO, i. v. tr. [cernuus]. (Rar., lat.) To throw down headforemost, aliquem.

CERNUUS, a, um, adj. (Ante-cl. & lat.) With the head to the ground, headlong.

CĒRŌMA, ātis, n. [= κέρωμα]. (Lat.) 1) An ointment of wax, much used by wrestlers. 2) A wrestling-place, a place of combat.

CĒRŌMĀTĪCUS, a, um, adj. [ceroma]. (Lat. poet.) Besmeared with wax-ointment.

CĒRĒTĀNI, ōrum, m. pl. A people in Northern Spain.

CER[AL]TUS, a, um, adj. [prob. for cerebritus, from cerebrum]. (Poet.) Crased, mad.

CERTAMEN, Inis, n. [certo]. A contest, in which the contending parties try their strength, a struggle, a strife, as well friendly as hostile. Hence: A) in games, in music, poetry, &c.: c. citharodorum, equestre, luctandi, a wrestling-match; trop., c. Stoicorum et Peripateticorum, a disputation; c. honoris, eloquentiae (for the first rank in oratory); also, c. de re aliqua; c. inter eos fuit utrum, etc.: B) in war = an engagement, a fight, a battle: inire, conserere, serere c.; pugnatum est vario c., with various fortune; res venit ad c.

CERTATIM, adv. [certo]. Emulously, courrere.

CERTATIO, ōnis, f. [certo]. A contending; hence, a contest, strife: est mihi c. cum aliquo; certatio mulctae, a public discussion about the imposing of a fine.

CERTATOR, ōris, m. [certo]. (Lat., rar.) A contender in a disputation, a disputer.

CERTE, adv. [certus]. 1) Certainly, assuredly, undoubtedly, precisely, aliquid scire; c. statuere, videre. 2) In confirming an assertion, certainly, assuredly, really: c. illud eveniet; addit quae c. vera sunt. Hence: A) in strongly affirmative answers, certainly, to be sure, yes indeed: estne ipse annon est? c. est; also without a question preceding: at dignitatem non habet docere; c., si quasi in ludo. 3) In affirming with a restriction, yet surely, yet at least, at all events: res fortasse verae, c. graue; si non (minus), etc., at c.; so likewise, c. tamen or tamen c.; si non in capite, a. quidem in te est.

CERTO, adv. [certus]. Only in the comic poets = the more freq. certe, signif. 3 excepted; otherwise only in combination with the verbs scire, comperio, etc. — with certainty, surely, certainly: exspecto aliquid quasi c. futurum.

CERTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. [cerno]. 1) To carry on a strife, to contend, to strive: c. ingenio cum aliquo; certamus beneficiis inter nos; c. cum civibus de virtute; c. vino et joco; nautae cc., quis potissimum gabernet; (poet.) c. alicui. 2) To carry on a controversy, to contend at law, to discuss or prosecute one's case before a tribunal: c. maledictis, oratione cum aliquo (de aliqua re). 3) To fight, to contend in war (yet almost always so that the idea of emulation does not entirely disappear): c. cum hostibus pro salute; c. bello (acie) de re; (poet.) urbs certata, the possession of which had been contested. 4) (Poet. & lat.) To strive or struggle earnestly or emulously to do a thing: c. vincere; c. aliquem tol-lere laudibus.

CERTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [cerno]. 1) (v. Cerno 3, C): A) determined, resolved: only in the comb. certum (Com. also certa res) est (mihi) aliquid facere, it is my resolution, will: B) determined upon any thing, resolved, eundi, fugae (lat.) or c. mori (poet.), to die. 2) That of which the reality is fixed, determined, about which there is no doubt, certain, sure, settled: c. res; certum mihi est, I am sure; habere aliquid certum or pro certo, to consider as certain; pro c. negare, dicere, affirmare, as certain, as reliable; (poet.) certum, as adv. = certe; (Pl.) certum facere alicui, to give certainty to one. 3) That concerning which any thing has been determined, appointed, fixed, certain: dies c.; c. statumque vegetali; cc. limites; certa maris (Tac.), the regular movements of the sea. Hence, sometimes = quidam, a certain person or thing not precisely defined: habet certos sui studiosos, also (lat.) certae quaedam leges. 4) That on which one may rely, certain, reliable, true: A) of persons, amicus c.; cc. homines, quibus recte litras dem; dimittere certos; c. Apollo (poet.), infallible: B) of things, c. fructus; c. jus; hasta c., hitting surely; c. spes; haec sunt cb. et clara. 5) Of the person who is made certain about a thing, certain, esp. in the comb. facere aliquem certioriorem (rar., poet., also certum) rei alicujus or (more freq.) de re aliqua, to inform or apprise one of a thing; also faciam te certioriorem, quid egerim; eum certioriorem fecit, Helvetios abisse; ut de his rebus a me certior fias.

CERUCHI, ōrum, m. pl. [= κερύχες]. (Lat. poet.) Ropes fastened to the sailyards.

CERULA, ae, f. [dim. of cera]. C. miniata, a kind of crayon, with which the ancients used to mark out incorrect passages in a book.

CERUSSA, ae, f. White-lead, ceruse.

CERUSSATUS, a, um, adj. [cerussa]. Painted with white-lead.

CERVA, ae, f. A hind; (poet.) in gen. = a deer.

CERVICAL, ālis, n. [cervix]. (Lat.) A pillow, bolster.

CERVICULA, ae, f. [dim. of cervix]. A little neck.

CERVINUS, a, um, adj. [cervus]. Of or pertaining to a deer, pelles.

CERVIX, Icis, f. (in Cic. and Sall., only in the plur.). The neck: frangere cervices alicui, to break one's neck, to torment. Hence, trop.: A) to denote a burden by which one is oppressed (the figure taken from bearing the yoke): esse in cervicibus alicujus, to be on one's neck, i. e., close to one's heels, to denote persecution or close and dangerous proximity; bellum est in cervicibus, is imminent; depellere aliquem or aliquid de cervicibus amici, to take a thing from the neck of one's friend, i. e., to free him from it: B) dare cervices crudelitati, to submit to one's cruelty (as victim), to put up with: C) homo tantis cervicibus, of such obstinacy, boldness.

CERVUS, i, m. 1) A stag. 2) In military language, cc., a palisade of forked stakes for keeping off an enemy, a chevaux-de-frise.

CERYX, ἑρῖς, m. [= ἑρῖς]. (Lat.) A herald.

CESPES or Caespes, ἱῖς, m. A turf, sod; hence (poet.), of things made of sod — a) = an altar — b) = a hut — c) a piece of ground covered with grass.

CESSATIO, ὄνις, f. [cesso]. 1) (Pl.) A tarrying, delaying: non datur c., it cannot be delayed any longer. 2) Inactivity, idleness: Epicurus nihil cessatione melius existimat.

CESSATOR, ὄρις, m. [cesso]. A loiterer, an idler.

CESSIM, adv. [cedo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Backward, ire.

CESSIO, ὄνις, f. [cedo]. C. in jure, tech. t. in the lang. of law, a yielding up, ceding of a property to another.

CESSO, ἄνι, ἄνι, i. v. intr. [cedo]. 1) To delay, to tarry (mostly from idleness or inactivity — cf. ounctur): c. eum adire; paulum si cessassem, eum domi invenissem. In particular (freq. in comic writers), interrogatively (cesso? quid cesso? quid cessas? I tarry? why do I (you) tarry?) with an infin., as an encouragement of one's self or another to do a thing immediately. 2) To be inactive, to be idle, to do nothing; hence, to neglect (always in a bad sense): c. in opere suo; nihil cessatum est ab apparatu operum; nullum tempus cessabat a novae cladis spectaculo, was without, free from, i. e., at every moment a new calamity was anticipated; non cessas de nobis detrachere, you do not cease disparaging us. Hence: A) with an abl. = to be wanting in: ea non c. muliebri audacia; c. officio, not to fulfil one's duty: B) of inanimate objects = to rest, opus, pedes cc.; (poet.) cessatum ducere curam, to put to rest; arae c. = on the altars no sacrifices are offered; honor c., an office is vacant; ager c., lies fallow: *C) (poet.) = vaco: c. rei alicui, to occupy one's self with a thing. 3) (Lat.) Not to appear, esp. in court. 4) (Poet. & lat.) To be mistaken, to err.

CESTROSPHENDŌNE, es, f. [= κροσποφενδών]. An engine for hurling stones.

CESTUS (I.), i. m. [= κεστός]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A girdle, belt.

CESTUS (II.) — v. Caestus.

CETARIA, ae, f., } [cetus]. A fish-pond

CETARIUM, ii, n., } (near and in connection with the sea, esp. for catching tunnies).

CETARIUS, ii, m. A fishmonger.

CETEROQUIN or Ceterōqui, adv. For the rest, in other respects, otherwise.

CETER(US), a, um, adj. [= ἕτερος]. 1) Sing. (rar.; nom. masc. does not occur), the remaining, the other, the rest (in opp. to some thing or person named before or afterwards — cf. reliquus), mostly in connection with collect. nouns:

c. exercitum; c. regium cultum; c. Graecia; c. ejus audacia. Hence, adverbially, de cetero, for the rest. 2) Plur., the rest, the others, homines, res; praeter ceteros, inter cetera — at the end of an enumeration, ceteri (ae, a) or ceterique, et cetera = and so forth. 3) As an adv.: A) Ceterum — a) for the rest, in other respects, otherwise: ego me, praeterquam quod sine te, c. satis commode oblectabam; not rar. to denote a transition merely — b) (lat.) usually in opp. to 'quidem' or a negation, but, yet: non consulibus, c. dictatori legiones tradiderunt: B) Cetera — in other respects, as to the rest, else.

CETHĒGUS, i, m. 1) A Rutulian, slain by Æneas. 2) A surname in the gens Cornelia.

CĒTRA, ae, f. A short Spanish shield.

CĒTRATUS, a, um, adj. [cetra]. Wearing a Spanish shield.

CĒTUS, i, m., pl. CĒTE, n. [= κῆτος]. (Poet. & lat.) A large sea-animal, esp. a whale, seal, &c.

CEU, adv. or conj. [perhaps from ce-ve, as neu from ne-ve]. 1) As, just as, like as; esp., freq. in poet. comparisons: pars vertere terga, c. quondam petiere rates; tenuis fugit c. fumus in auras; also in connection with quum or si, as if. 2) = Quasi, as if, just as if: c. cetera nusquam bella forent.

CĒUS, a, um, adj. [Cea]. Of or belonging to the island Ceos; subst., Cei, ὄνις, m. pl., the inhabitants of Ceos.

CEYX, ἑρῖς, m. [= Κεῖξ]. King of Trachis, and husband of Alcione (q. v.)

CHABRIAS, ae, m. [= Χαβρίας]. An Athenian general — died 357 B. C.

CHAEŖŌNĒA, ae, f. [= Χαῖρώνεια]. A town of Boeotia, where the Greeks were conquered by Philip of Macedonia (338 B. C.) — now Kaprena.

CHALCEDŌNIUS, a, um, adj. [Chalcedon]. Chalcedonian; subst., Chalcedonii, ὄνις, m. pl., the Chalcedonians.

CHALCEDON, ὄνις, f. [= Χαλκηδών]. A town in Bithynia, opposite Byzantium.

CHALCIDENSIS, e, adj. Of Chalcis, Chalcidian; subst., Chalcidenses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Chalcis.

CHALCĪDICUS, a, um, adj. [Chalcis]. Chalcidian; also (poet.) = of Cumae, Cumman, as Cumae was a colony of Chalcis.

CHALCIOECUS, i, f. [= Χαλκιοῖκος, 'with a house or temple of brass']. A surname of Minerva.

CHALCIŌPE, es, f. [= Χαλκίπη]. A daughter of Æetes, and sister of Medea.

CHALCIS, Idis, f. [= Χαλκίς]. Chief town of Euboea, now Egribois or Negroponte.

CHALDAEA, ae, f. [= Χαλδαία]. The southernmost part of Babylonia.

CHALDAEUS, a, um, adj. [Chaldaea]. Chaldsan; subst., Chaldaei, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Chaldaea, distinguished as astronomers and soothsayers; hence, Chaldaeus, in gen. = an astronomer, a soothsayer.

CHĀLYBEIUS, a, um, adj. [chalybs]. (Poet.) Of steel.

CHĀLYBES, um, m. pl. [= Χάλυβες]. 1) A tribe in Pontus. 2) A tribe of Spain.

CHĀLYBS (I.), ŷbis, m. [= χάλυψ]. (Poet. & lat.) Steel; also, a steel bit, sword, &c.

CHĀLYBS (II.), ŷbis, m. [= Χάλυψ]. A river in Spain, whose water was thought to harden iron.

CHAMAELEON, ontis or ōnis, m. [= χamaeleon]. The chameleon (a species of lizard).

CHĀMAVI, ōrum, m. pl. A Germanic tribe, originally between the Rhine and the Lippe, later between the Weser and the Elbe.

CHĀNE, es, f. [= χάνη or χάννη]. A sea-fish.

CHĀON, ōnis, m. (Virg.) A Trojan hero, brother of Helenus.

CHĀONES, um, m. pl. [= Χῳνες]. A tribe in Epirus, called after Chaon.

CHĀŌNIA, ae, f. [= Χῳνία]. The country of the Chaones.

CHĀŌNIS, Idis, adj. f. } [Chaones]. Chao-

CHĀŌNIUS, a, um, adj. } nian; hence: A) in gen. = Epirotic, of Epirus: B) of Dodona, Dodonian, because Dodona was situated in Chaonia.

CHAOS (only in nom. and acc. sing.), n. [= χῳς]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Empty and boundless space, as the kingdom of darkness; hence: A) = profound darkness: B) the lower world. 2) The formless, primitive mass out of which the world was made.

CHARA, ae, f. A root unknown to us, probably wild cabbage.

CHĀRĀCENUS, a, um, adj. [= Χαρακηνός]. Of or belonging to Charax 2; subst., Characeni, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Charax.

CHĀRAX, ŷcis, f. [= Χῳρα]. 1) A fortification, in the narrowest part of the vale of Tempe in Thessaly. 2) A town in Susiana, founded by Alexander the Great.

CHĀRIS, Itos, f. [= Χῳρίς]. A Greek term for one of the three Graces (Aglia, Euphrosyne and Thalia), v. Gratia.

CHĀRISTIA, ōrum, n. pl. [= τὰ χαρίτια]. (Poet. & lat.) A family festival, celebrated yearly on the 20th of February, during which family dissensions were settled.

CHARMĀDAS, ae, m. [= Χαρμάδας]. A Greek philosopher of the Academic school, a pupil of Carneades — lived about 109 a. o.

CHĀRON, ontis, m. [= Χῳρων]. The son of Erebus and Nox, the ferryman in the lower world, who carried the shades of the dead across the river Acheron.

CHĀRONDAS, ae, m. [= Χαρῳδας]. A wise lawgiver of Sicily — lived about 660 a. c.

CHARTA, ae, f. [= χάρτης]. 1) A leaf of the Egyptian papyrus, hence = paper: ch. dentata, smooth. 2) Trop., something written, a writing, letter, book, poem, &c. 3) (Lat.) A thin leaf, plate: ch. plumbea.

CHARTŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of charta]. A small paper or writing.

CHĀRYBDIS, is, f. [= Χάρυβδης]. A dangerous whirlpool in the Straits of Sicily, opposite to Scylla; trop. = any thing dangerous, destructive.

CHASMA, ŷtis, n. [= χῳσμα]. (Lat.) An opening — a) of the earth, a chasm — b) of the heavens, a kind of meteor.

CHĀSUĀRI (Chasuarri), ōrum, m. pl. A German people, who lived on the Lower Rhine.

CHATTI (Catti), ōrum, m. pl. A German people, who lived in the region of the present Hesse and Thuringia.

CHATTUS, a, um, adj. Of the Chatti, Chatti-an.

CHAUCI (Chauchi, Cauci), ōrum, m. pl. A people who lived on the north-western coast of Germany, between the Ems and the Elbe, divided into Majores and Minores.

CHAUCIUS, a, um, adj. 1) Of the Chauci. 2) A surname of Gabinius Secundus, the conqueror of the Chauci.

CHĒLAE, arum, f. pl. [= χῳλαί]. The claws of certain animals, and in astronomy = the claws of the constellation Scorpio, and as these extend into Libra, hence = Libra.

CHĒLIDŌNIAE INSULAE [= Χελιδόνια νῆσοι, the Swallow Islands]. A group of three (or five) islands, opposite to the Promontorium Chelidonium (now Chelidoni) in Lycia.

CHĒLYDRUS, i, m. [= χῳλῳδρος]. (Poet.) A kind of water-snake.

CHĒLYS, acc. -yn, voc. -y, f. [= χῳλῳς]. 1) A tortoise. 2) A lyre or harp, originally made of the shell of the tortoise (v. Testudo).

CHERAGRA — v. Chiragra.

CHERRŌNENSES (Cherson.), ium, m. pl. [contracted for Cherronesenses]. The inhabitants of the Chersoness.

CHERRŌNĒSUS (Cherson.), i, f. [= χῳρῳνῆσος or χερσῳνῆσος]. 1) A peninsula: A) Ch. Taurica, the Crimea: B) Ch. Thracia (or only Ch.), the peninsula on the Hellespont, the Cherrones (now the peninsula of Galipoli). 2) A promontory in Argolis, near Troezen.

CHERSYDRUS, i, m. [= χῳρῳδρος]. An amphibious serpent.

CHĒRUSCI, ōrum, m. pl. Strictly, a German tribe to the south of the Harts Mountains, but often in a wider sense = the great German confederation of tribes living on both sides of the rivers Weser and Lippe.

CHILIARCHUS, i, m. [= χιλιάρχος], or CHILIARCHA, ae, m. [= χιλιάρχη]. 1) A captain of a thousand soldiers, a chiliarch. 2) Among the Persians, the highest officer of state next to the king, 'the prime minister.'

CHILO, ōnis, m. [= Χίλων]. A Lacedaemonian, one of the seven wise men of Greece.

CHIMAERA, ae, f. [= Χίμαιρα]. A fabulous monster in Lycia, that vomited fire, slain by Belerophon.

CHIMAERI-FER, ēra, ōrum, adj. [Chimaera-fero]. (Poet.) Producing the Chimera, Lycia.

CHIONE, es, f. [= Χιόνη]. 1) The daughter of Dardanus, mother of Autolycus by Mercury, shot by Diana. 2) The mother of Eumolpus.

CHIONIDES, ae, m. The son of Chione 2 = Eumolpus.

CHIOS or CHIUS, ii, f. [= Χίος]. An island of the Aegean Sea, celebrated for its fine marble and wine — now Scio.

CHIRAGRA, ae, f. [= χιράγρα]. (Poet.) The gout in the hand.

CHIRIDOTUS, a, um, adj. [= χιριδωτός]. (Ante-cl.) Furnished with long sleeves.

CHIROGRAPHUM, i, n. [= χειρογράφον]. 1) One's own handwriting, autograph: neque utar signo meo neque ch. 2) That which is written with one's own hand: credidi chirographis ejus; hence — a) = an autograph letter — b) (lat.) = a bond or obligation under one's own hand.

CHIRON, ōnis, f. A Centaur, son of Saturn and Philira, distinguished for his knowledge of music, medicine and prophecy, the instructor of several of the heroes (especially Achilles), mortally wounded by Hercules, and finally translated by Jupiter to heaven as a constellation.

CHIRONOMIA, ae, f. [= χειρονμία]. (Lat.) Gesticulation, or correct motion of the hands and arms in acting or speaking.

CHIRONOMUS, i, m., or CHIRONOMON, ntis, m. [= χειρόνομος or χειρονόμος]. (Lat.) He who gesticulates correctly, a pantomime.

CHIRURGIA, ae, f. [= χειρουργία]. Surgery.
CHIRURGICUS, a, um, adj. [= χειρουργικός]. Surgical.

CHIUS, a, um, adj. [= Χίος]. Of Chios, Chian; subet. — a) Chii, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Chios — b) Chia, ōrum, n. pl., the fine cloth of Chios.

CHLAMYDATUS, a, um, adj. Wearing a chlamys or military cloak.

CHLAMYS, ŷdis, f. [= χλαμύς]. A wide, woollen upper-garment worn by the Greeks, a military cloak, a state mantle (it was worn, e. g., by the chorus in a tragedy, also by travellers, and sometimes by women and children).

CHLORIS, Idia, f. [= Χλωρίς, 'Greenness']. The goddess of flowers = Flora.

CHOASPES, Is, m. [= Χοάσπης]. 1) A river of Siamia in Persia, of whose waters the Per- sian kings always drank — now Karun. 2) A river in India, now Attok.

CHOATRAE, ōrum, m. pl. A people on the Maeotic Sea, famous for their skill in magic.

CHOERILUS, i, m. [= Χοείλος]. 1) An epic poet of Samos — lived about 430 B. C. 2) A dramatic poet of Athens — lived about 480 B. C. 3) A worthless epic poet in the train of Alexander the Great.

CHORAGIUM, ii, n. [= χορηγίον or χορηγία, chorus]. The preparing and fitting out of a chorus; hence (lat.) = splendid preparation, in general.

CHORAGUS, i, m. [= χορηγός]. 1) (Com.) The manager of a chorus, he who equips and furnishes a chorus at his own expense. 2) (Lat.) He who provides and pays for the supplies at a banquet.

CHORAULES, ae, m. [= χοραύλης]. (Poet. & lat.) A flute-player, who accompanies the dances of the chorus with his flute.

CHORDA, ae, f. [= χορδή]. 1) Catgut, the string of a musical instrument. 2) (Pl.) A string, cord.

CHORDUS or (prob. better) CORDUS, a, um, adj. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Born late, that grows late.

CHOREA (also Chōrēa), ae, f. [= χορεία]. (Poet. — most freq. in the pl.) A dance in a circle to the sound of music.

CHOREUS, i, m. [= χορείος] (sc. pes). A foot (- ~), later called trochaeus.

CHOROCITHARISTA, ae, m. [= χοροκιθαριστής]. One who accompanies the chorus on a cithara.

CHORUS, i, m. [= χορός]. 1) (Poet.) A choral dance, a dance in a circle, a dance: exerceere, agitare ch., to lead; trop., of the regular motion of the stars. 2) A band of singers and dancers, in partic., the chorus in a tragedy; trop., ch. Pleiadum, the band of Pleiads. 3) A company, band, troop: ch. juvenutis, poetarum.

CHREMES, ētis, m. The name of an old miser in the plays of Terence.

CHRIA, ae, f. [= χρεία]. (Lat.) In rhetoric, a sentence, a common-place with its further logical development.

CHRISTIANUS, i, m. [= Χριστιανός]. (Lat.) A Christian.

CHRISTUS, i, m. [= Χριστός, 'the Anointed']. (Lat.) Christ.

CHRONICUS, a, um, adj. [= χρονικός]. (Lat.) Of or belonging to time: libri ch., chronicles; subet., Chronica, ōrum, n. pl., chronicles.

CHRYSAOR, ōris, m. [= Χρυσάωρ]. The son of Neptune and Medusa, father of Geryon and Echidna.

CHRYSAS, ae, m. A river in Sicily, near the town Asoros — now Dittaino.

CHRYSEIS, Idia, f. The daughter of Chryses = Astynome

CHRYSES, ae, m. [= Χρῆσις]. A priest of Apollo from the town of Chryse in Troas. His captive daughter Astynome was, in answer to his prayers, restored to him through the intervention of Apollo.

CHRYSSIPPEUS, a, um, adj. Of Chrysippus.

CHRYSIPIUS, i, m. [= Χρυσίππος]. 1) A famous Stoic philosopher of Soli in Cilicia—lived about 220 B. C. 2) A freedman of Cicero. 3) A freedman of the architect Cyrus.

CHRY SOPHRY S, ŷos, f. [= Χρυσόφρυς]. A fish with a golden spot over each eye.

CHRY SÔTHEMIS, Idia, f. [= Χρυσόθεμις]. A daughter of Agamemnon and Clytemnestra.

CIANI, ōrum, m. pl. The inhabitants of Cios, a town in Bithynia.

CIBALAE, ōrum, f. pl. A town in Lower Pannonia, near the present Vinkouca.

CIBARIUS, a, um, adj. [cibus]. 1) Of or pertaining to food: res c.; uva c., fit for eating only, not used to make wine. Hence, Cibaria, ōrum, n. pl., food, nutriment, victuals, provisions, sustenance for man and beast: praeberē, dare alicui cibaria. In partic.: A) = a soldier's ration: cc. duorum mensium: B) corn allowed to the deputies of provincial magistrates. 2) Ordinary, mean; in partic., panis c., black bread.

CIBATUS, ūs, m. [cibo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Food, victuals.

CIBO, āvi, ātum, l. v. tr. [cibus]. (Lat.) To feed animals, to fodder.

CIBORIUM, ii, n. [= κιβόριον]. (Poet.) A cup, in shape like the pod of the Egyptian bean.

CIBUS, i, m. Food, provisions, victuals, means of sustenance (esp. for men—cf. esca): cibum capere, sumere, to take; trop., c. furoris, mali, that which nourishes anger, &c., its sustenance.

CIBYRA, ae, f. [= κιβύρα]. A rich manufacturing town in Phrygia.

CIBYRATA, ae, m. An inhabitant of Cibra.

CIBYRATICUS, a, um, adj. Of or belonging to Cibra.

CICADA, ae, f. (Poet. & lat.) The tree-cricket, cicada; trop. = summer.

CICATRICOSUS, a, um, adj. [cicatrix]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Full of scars, scarred; trop., of a writing, polished here and there.

CICATRIX, Icīs, f. A scar: o. adversa, in front = adverso corpore excepta; trop., c. reipublicae, a wound; c. coit (Pl.), closes, heals up, refricatur, is opened again; ducere or obducere cicatricem, of a remedy = to heal, of a wound = to be healed. Hence: A) of plants, a mark of incision: *B) the seam of a patched shoe.

CICCUS, i, m. [= κίκκος]. (Ante-cl.) Prop., the core of a pomegranate; hence, trop. = a trifle.

CICER, ōris, n. (Poet. & lat.) The chick-pea.

CICERO, ōnis, m. A surname in the gens Tullia; thus, esp. 1) Marcus T. C., the great orator and writer, born at Arpinum 106 B. C., died 43 B. C. 2) Quintus T. C., the brother of the preceding, praetor 68 B. C.

CICERONIANUS, a, um, adj. [Cicero]. Ciceronian.

CICEROMASTIX, Igīs, m. [Cicero-μαστιξ, 'the scourge of Cicero']. A work of Largius Licinius against Cicero.

CICHORIUM, ii, n., or CICHOREUM, ei, n. [= κιχώριον]. (Poet. & lat.) A plant, endive or succory.

*CICILENDRUM and CICIMANDRUM, i, n. (Pl.) Fictitious names for spice.

CICONES, um, m. pl. [= κίκονες]. A Thracian people, near the Hebrus.

CICONIA, ae, f. A stork.

CICUR, ūris, adj. Tame, bestia.

CICUTA, ae, f. 1) Hemlock, the plant from the juice of which a poison was prepared; hence, 2) (poet.), a shepherd's pipe made from the stalks of hemlock. 3) The name of a usurer.

CIDARIS, is, f. [a Persian word]. (Lat.) A diadem, tiara, the head-dress of Persian kings.

CIEO, civi, citum, 2., also (rar., ante-cl. & lat.) CIO, etc., 4. v. tr. [κίω, κίω]. 1) To make go, to move, to put in motion: natura omnia c.; orbis semper eodem modo ciebatur; c. mare, aequora, to stir up, thus also (poet.), c. coelum tonitru. Hence, tech. t., erctum ciere, lit. to make movable, i. e., to divide an inheritance. 2) (Mostly poet. & lat.) With reference to the place to which something is moved: A) to fetch or bring to, to call to: c. milites ad arma, viros ad se; Vitellius c. Germanos in nos: B) in particular, to call upon for help, to call to witness, to invoke: c. Manes nocturnos; non homines tantum sed foedera et deos c. (as it were, to summon as witnesses): C) to call by name, to name: magna voce animam supremum cient (to call the name, at a funeral); c. nomen utriusque; posse ciere patrem, to state, to name (to be able to show one's free birth); triumphum nomine cieo = I shout 'io triumphe.' 3) Of a passion, an emotion, &c., to set in motion, to excite, to produce, to cause, to occasion: c. motus illos, proelium, seditionem, stragem; c. lacrimas, to shed, varias voces, singultus, to utter.

CILICIA, ae, f. [= Κιλικία]. Cilicia, a province in the south of Asia Minor, now Rjalet Ythail.

CILICIENSIS, e, adj. [Cilicia]. Cilician.

CILICIUM, ii, n. [= Κιλικιον]. A covering made of the hair of Cilician goats, and used by soldiers and sailors.

CILICIUS, a, um, adj. [Cilicia]. Cilician.

CILIUM, ii, n. (Lat.) An eye-lid.

CILIX, Icīs, m. [= Κίλιξ]. An inhabitant of Cilicia, a Cilician.

CILISSA, ae, f. adj. (only in the fem., corresponding to the masc. Cilix) [Cilicia] Cilician.

CILLA, ae, f. [= Κίλλα]. A small town of Troas, with a temple of Apollo.

CILNIUS, a, um, adj. The name of an Etruscan gens, from which Mæcenas (q. v.) was descended.

CIMBER (I.), a, um, adj. [Cimbri]. Cimbrian; also, subet. Cimper, bri, m., a Cimbrian.

CIMBER (II.), bri, m. A surname of L. Titinius, one of the murderers of Cæsar.

CIMBRI, òrum, m. pl. A German tribe, in what is now Jutland, who, with the Teutoni, invaded the Roman territory (118 b. c.), and were conquered by C. Marius (102 b. c.) and Catulus (101 b. c.).

CIMBRICE, adv. [Cimbricus]. (Quintil.) After the manner of the Cimbrians.

CIMBRICUS, a, um, adj. [Cimbri]. Cimbrian.

CIMEX, icis, m. (Poet. & lat.) A bug; also as a term of reproach.

CIMINUS, i, m., or CIMINIUS LACUS. A lake in Etruria, now Lago di Ronciglione.

CIMMERII, òrum, m. pl. [= Κιμμέριοι]. 1) In Homer, a fabulous people living in the farthest West, enveloped in mist and darkness; later, they were thought to live in dark caves in Italy, between Baia and Cumæ; hence (poet.), Cimmerii lacus = the lower world. 2) A Thracian people, in the present Crimea.

CIMMERIUS, a, um, adj. Cimmerian.

CIMOLUS, i, f. [= Κίμωλος]. One of the Cyclades, now Kimoli.

CIMON, ònis, m. [= Κίμων]. A celebrated Athenian general, son of Miltiades.

CINÆDICUS, a, um, adj. [cinaedus]. (Antecl.) Lewd, unchaste, in an unnatural manner.

CINÆDUS (I.), i, m. [= κίναϊδος]. 1) A person guilty of unnatural lust, a sodomite. 2) He who performs a wanton dance.

CINÆDUS (II.), a, um, adj. w. comp. Unchaste.

CINCINNATUS, a, um, adj. [cincinnus]. 1) Having ringlets of hair, with curled hair. 2) A surname of the renowned dictator L. Quinctius.

CINCINNUS, i, m. [= κίκιννος]. Curled hair, an artificial lock or curl (of cirrus); trop., of discourse, an artificial ornament, a too artificial style of speaking: poetæ aut oratoris ec.

CINCIUS (I.), ii, m. The name of a Roman gens; thus, 1) L. Cinc. Alimentus, a Roman historian, in the time of the second Punic war. 2) M. Cinc. Alimentus, a tribune of the people (204 b. c.), and author of the lex Cincia (v. Cincius II.) 3) A business-agent of Atticus.

CINCIUS (II.), a, um, adj. [Cincius I.]. Of a Cincius, Cincian: lex Cincia, proposed by M. Cincius Alimentus (q. v.); it forbade advocates to accept presents in conducting a suit (l. de donis et muneribus).

CINCTICULUS, i, m. [dim. of cinetus]. A little under-garment. (Pl.)

CINCTŪRA, ae, f. [cingo]. (Lat.) A girding, the way of wearing the toga.

CINCTUS, ūs, m. [cingo]. 1) The manner of girding one's self, almost always c. Gabinus, a peculiar manner of wearing the toga, esp. in religious festivals:—it was tucked up, the corner being drawn over the left shoulder and under the right arm around to the breast. 2) An under-garment, worn by the ancient Romans instead of the later tunic; undoubtedly = campestris (q. v.). 3) (Lat.) A girdle, belt.

CINCTŪTUS, a, um, adj. [cinctus 2]. (Poet.) Wearing a cinetus (q. v., 2); hence, to denote the ancient Romans: cc. Cethegi.

CINEAS, ae, m. [= Κίνας]. A Thessalian in the service of King Pyrrhus of Epirus.

CINĒFACTUS, a, um, adj. [cinis-factus]. (Lucr.) Turned to ashes.

CINERARIUS, a, um, adj. [cinis]. (Poet. & lat.) Pertaining to ashes; usually as a subet. Cinerarius, i, m., a slave who heated the iron for curling hair, a hair-curler.

CINGA, ae, f. A tributary river of the Iberus, in Northern Spain, now Cinca.

CINGO, nxi, notum, 3. v. tr. 1) Of the body, to surround with a girdle, to gird: cing. latus ense; freq. in the pass. 'cingi,' with an abl., to be girded or encircled with, zonâ, armis; (poet.) cingor ferrum; alte cinetus, with his dress tucked up high, but also vestis alte cineta. Hence, c. caput floribus, to crown, comas vittâ, to wreath. 2) Of places, to surround, to encircle: c. domum porticu; mare c. insulam; freq. in military lang., c. castra vallo = to fortify; c. urbem obsidione, to besiege; trop., Sicilia cincta periculis, threatened on all sides. 3) (Poet. & lat.) Of persons, to encompass one as a retinue, escort, to accompany, aliqueum.

CINGŪLANUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Cingulum II.; subet. Cingulani, òrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Cingulum.

CINGŪLUM (I.), i, n. (rar. CINGŪLA, ae, f., and CINGULUS, i, m.). A girdle, belt; hence = a) for animals = a girth — b) = a girdle of the earth, a zone: c. terrae.

CINGŪLUM (II.), i, n. A town in Picenum, now Cingulo.

CINIFLO, ònis, m. [cinis-flo]. (Poet.) = Cinerarius, q. v.

CINIS, ãris, m. Ashes. Hence: A) prov., illud cinerem non quaeritat (Com.), this needs no ashes (the figure taken from scouring vessels with ashes): B) the ashes of a corpse that has been burned, both in the sing. and (poet.) in the plur.: dummodo absolvar cinis (poet.), as a corpse = after my death; post c., after the burning of a corpse: C) trop., the ruins of a town, &c., patriae c.: D) trop., fieri cinerem = to be destroyed; in fumum et c. vertere = to squander, to consume.

CINNA ae, m. The name of a Roman family, esp. in the gens Cornelia; thus, esp. 1) Lucius C. C., an adherent of Marius in the civil war with Sulla, slain by his own soldiers (88 B. C.) 2) Lucius C. C., a son of the preceding, and one of the murderers of Caesar. 3) Lucius or Cn. C. C., a son of the last preceding, twice pardoned by Augustus. 4) C. Helvius Cinna, a Roman poet, and friend of Catullus.

CINNĀMŌMUM or Cinnānum, i, n. (Poet.) Cinnamon; also as a term of endearment (Pl.); meton., a branch of the cinnamon-tree.

CINNĀNUS, a, um, adj. Of or belonging to Cinna 1; subet., Cinnani, ōrum, m. pl., the adherents of Cinna.

CINYPHIUS, a, um, adj. (Poet.) Of or pertaining to the Cinyra; also, in gen. = African.

CINYPIS, ῥπια, m. [= Κινύψ]. A river in Northern Africa, now Wadi Kwasam.

CINŶRAEUS, a, um, adj. = Cinyreus.

CINŶRAS, ae, m. [= Κινύρας]. A king of Assyria, afterwards of Cyprus, priest of the Paphian Venus, father of Myrrha and, by her, of Adonis.

CINŶREIUS, a, um, adj. [Cinyras]. Of or pertaining to Cinyras.

CIOS or CHIUS, ii, f. [= Κίος]. A town of Bithynia, now Ghio or Kemlik.

CIPPUS, i, m. 1) *A quadrangular pyramid, used esp. as a tombstone. 2) A pointed stake: co., a palisade of pointed stakes.

CIPUS, i, m. A Roman who, of his own accord, went into exile, in order that a prophecy that he would become king of Rome might not be fulfilled.

CIRCA (a later form accessory to circum, very rare before the time of Augustus), I. prep. w. accus. 1) Of space: A) around: ligna contulerunt c. casam eam; hence, of the attendants (companions, listeners, &c.) upon a person, omnes c. eum, all who were about him: B) near to, in the neighbourhood of: c. domum auream habitare; hence, as a less accurate designation of place (almost = in), sedem capere c. Leabum insulam: C) to — round about: literae c. praefectos missae; legatos c. vicinas gentes misit; ire c. domos. 2) Of time, about: c. eandem horam; c. Pompeii aetatem; c. Ciceronem, about the time of Cicero. 3) Of a number, about, nearly: c. quingentes Romanorum ceciderunt. 4) (Lat.) With regard to, in respect to, concerning, respecting: dissentio c. verba; negligentior c. deos; disputatum est c. hoc; omnia ordinare c. successorem. (The significations 2, 3 and 4 belong exclusively to the form 'circa.')

II. Adv. Of space, around, about, in the neighbourhood of: gramen erat c.; mentes qui c. sunt. Freq. (esp. in Livy) c. is immediately connected with a substantive, as if it were preceded by qui est, qui sunt, etc., or as if it were an adj. = circumjacent, round about: multarum c. civitatum; peragrarare c. saltus; agros c. vastavit; c. omnia hostium erant; strengthened, c. undique, from all sides; frumento c. undique ex agris convecto, from all the regions round about.

CIRCAEUS, a, um, adj. [Circē]. Of or belonging to Circe, Ciresan.

CIRCE, ea, f. [= Κίρκη]. A renowned sorceress, daughter of Helios and Perse, sister of Aetes. She resided on the insula Aenea, afterwards near Circēii in Latium.

CIRCEIENSIS, e, adj. Of or pertaining to Circēii; subet., Circēienses, m. pl., the inhabitants of Circēii.

CIRCEII, ōrum, m. pl. A town in Latium, on a promontory of the same name, founded, according to the legend, by Circe — now (San Felice) Circeollo.

CIRCENSIS, e, adj. [circus]. Of or belonging to the circus (q. v.); esp. ludī circenses, and in the same signification, abs. circenses.

CIRCINO, āvi, ātum, I. v. tr. [circinus]. (Poet. & lat.) To make circular or round: c. ramos in orbem, to bend into a circle; c. auras, to fly through in a circular course.

CIRCINUS, i, m. [circus]. A pair of compasses.

CIRCITER [circum], I. prep. w. acc.: A) of time, about, near: c. meridiem; c. Kalendas: B) (Pl.) of space, around, about, near: c. haec loca. II. Adv.: A) of time, about: rediit c. meridiem: B) of number, about, nearly: mons c. mille passuum suberat; c. tertia pars celata est.

CIRCIVS, ii, m. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A sharp north-west wind (to the Romans), blowing frequently in Gallia Narbonensis.

CIRCUTIO or CIRCUMITIO, ōnis, f. [circumēo]. A going around: 1) in military lang., the rounds, an inspection of the watches, &c. 2) Trop., of discourse, a digression, an indirect procedure: co. et anfractus.

CIRCŪTUS or CIRCUMITUS, ūs, m. [circumēo]. A going around: 1) prop., a circuit, revelation: c. solis; c. orbis; c. totius Siciliae, travelling about through the whole of Sicily. Hence = a circuitous, round-about way: longo (brevis) c. easdem regiones petere. 2) A circuit, circumference: magnitudo circuitus; in circuitu, all around, on all sides. 3) In rhet. — a) a period: longior c. — b) = circuitio 2.

CIRCŪLĀRIS, e, adj. [circulus]. (Lat.) Circular, round.

CIRCŪLĀTIM, adv. [circulor]. (Lat.) In or by companies.

CIRCŪLĀTOR, ōris, m. [circulor]. (Lat.) One who strolls about = a mountebank: c. auctionum, a frequenter of auctions; perhaps = one who buys at auctions and sells again the wares purchased there, a pedler.

CIRCULATORIUS, a, um, adj. [circulator]. (Lat.) Of a mountebank.

CIRCULOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. [circulus]. 1) To form a circle about one's self, to gather in a circle. 2) (Lat.) Of a mountebank, to collect people around one's self.

CIRCULUS, i, m. [circus]. 1) A circle; hence = the circular course of a star, an orbit: oc. stellarum. 2) Trop.: A) (poet. & lat.) any circular body, a ring, hoop, link of a chain: B) a social circle, company, society: per fora et co.; in conviviis et co.

CIRCUM (cf. circa). I. Prop. w. acc. Of space: A) around, round about: terra se convertit c. axem suum; freq. of a partial surrounding only: capilli c. caput; flores c. flumen; fremere c. claustra: B) = near, in the neighbourhood of, about: a. haec loca commorabor; urbes quae c. Capuam sunt: C) to — around, in (into) — about (denoting, not a motion around a certain centre, but to different points): errare c. villas; pueros dimisit c. amicos; legatio c. insulas missa: D) of persons who surround one as companions, friends, &c., about: qui c. eum sunt; formosos homines c. pedes habere (rar.) = as attending servants (pedissequos).

II. Adv. Round about, all around: opere quae c. erant; portis c. omnibus (cf. circa) instant; strengthened, c. undique (poet. & lat.), or as one word, circumundique, from or on all sides.

CIRCUM-ACTIO, ōnis, f. [circumago]. (Lat.) A turn of speech.

CIRCUMACTUS (I), ūs, m. [circumago]. (Lat.) A turning round, rotation, coeli.

CIRCUMACTUS (II), a, um, adj. [part. of circumago]. (Lat.) Turned round, bent, curved, litus.

CIRCUM-ĀGO, āgi, actum, 3. v. tr. 1) To drive, to move, or to turn around: c. souvetanilia agrum (ante-cl.); c. mancipium (lat.) = circumverto (q. v.); freq. in the pass. in a middle sense = to turn one's self round, to turn round: annus solstitiali orbe circumagitur, completes its circuit with the revolution of the sun; aestas, annus circumagitur (rar. circumagit se), passes away; trop., sic orbis circumagitur, such is the course of things. 2) To turn, to turn about, equum; c. signa or agmen, to turn with the army to another side, to change the direction of the march; ventus se c., turns, changes; so likewise fortuna circumagitur. 3) Trop., c. et flectere aliquem, to change the mind of some one; c. genus humanum in se (lat.), to bring over to one's side; pass. circumagi = to stroll about, and circumagi rumoribus vulgi, to be driven about from one side to another by the talk of the rabble, from one purpose to another; so likewise circumagi alieni animi momentis.

CIRCUM-ĀRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To plough the ground, agrum.

CIRCUM-CAESŪRA, ae, f. The contour, membrorum (twice only — in Lucr.)

CIRCUM-CIDO, cidi, cĭsum, 3. v. tr. [caedo]. 1) To cut or pare around, to prune, to clip, arborem, gemmam, cespitem gladio. 2) Trop.: A) to diminish, to confine, to shorten, sumptum, multitudinem: B) to cut off, to take away: c. et amputo aliquid.

CIRCUM-CIRCA, adv. (Rar.) All around: regiones c. prospicere.

CIRCUMCISUS, a, um, adj. [part. of circumcido]. 1) Precipitous, steep, locus, aditus. 2) Trop., of discourse, abridged, short.

CIRCUMCISE, adv. [circumcĭsus]. (Lat.) Of discourse, briefly.

CIRCUM-CLŪDO, clūdi, clūsum, 3. v. tr. [claudo]. To enclose on all sides, aliquem re aliqua.

CIRCUM-CŌLO, cōlui, cultum, 3. v. tr. (Rar.) To dwell round about, sinum maris.

CIRCUM-CURRO, —, —, 3. v. intr. (Lat.) To run around or about.

CIRCUM-CURSO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. (Ante-cl., poet. & lat.) To run about, haec, illac; c. aliquem, to come one, omnia, to all sides.

CIRCUM-DO, dēdi, dātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To put, to place, or to set one thing around another: c. brachia collo, ignes tectis, exercitum castris hostium, milites sibi; also, without dat., c. custodias, sarmēta, ignesque; c. munitiones, opera, to raise all around. 2) To surround, to enclose, or to encompass one thing with another: c. oppidum fossā valloque, collum filo, urbem muro; regio circumdata insulis.

CIRCUM-DŪCO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) To lead, to draw, or to move around: c. exercitum per invia, aliquem vicatim; rar. with two accus., c. istum has aedes; also, of inanimate objects, c. aratrum, flumen velut circino. 2) Trop.: A) (Pl.) to lead out of the way, to impose upon one, to cheat: c. aliquem argento: B) of discourse, to extend, to protract, unum sensum longiore ambitu: C) of prosody, to pronounce broadly, with a circumflex.

CIRCUMDUCTIO, ōnis, f. [circumduco]. (Lat.) 1) Prop., a leading around; c. sphaerae, the circumference. 2) Trop. — a) a cheating, defrauding — b) (lat.) a period.

CIRCUMDUCTUS, i, n. [circumduco] (Quintil.) In rhetoric, a period.

CIRCUMDUCTUS, ūs, m. [circumduco]. (Lat.) The circumference of a figure.

CIRCUM-EO (rar. Circueo), ēi, (rar. Ivi), itum, 4. v. tr. & intr. 1) To go around, aras; freq. also abs. = to go or stroll about: c. per hortum, to take a circuitous way through the garden. Hence: A) to surround, to enclose, urbem muro: B) freq. in military lang. = to encompass, to encircle, to shut up, to surround, &c.: circūiri multitudinem, ab equitatu; cohortes co. Cl. a cornu: C) to surround one as his compantons, aliquem. D) (lat.) = to pass over, nomen alicujus. 2) To go or travel around to (cf. circum 2): c. praedia, omnes insulas, to visit; c. urbem, to go about the town; also abs., c. per familias. In partic.: A) to go about entreating or admonishing, to go from one to another: c. plebem; c. veteranos ut acta Caesaris sanciant; c. aciem atque obsecrare milites: B) in military lang., to go the rounds, to make an inspection: c. vigiliis. 3) Trop.: A) (Com.) to deceive, to cheat, to circumvent, aliquem: B) to go around in words = to express by circumlocution, multas res.

*CIRCUM-ÉQUITO, āvi, ātund, 1. v. tr. To ride around, moenia.

CIRCUM-ERRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. (Lat.) To wander or stroll about: turba c. lateri.

CIRCUM-FERO, tūli, lātum, v. tr. 1) To carry or bear about, lyram in convivio, infansem per templa, oculos huc atque illuc; sol circumfertur, revolves; (poet.) ter eos circumtulit undā, three times he carried water around and thus purified them (of a religious ceremony). 2) Trop. (mostly poet. & lat.): A) to spread all around, to extend farther: c. ignes circa omnia templa, bellum passim: B) to spread = to divulge, factum alicujus.

CIRCUM-FLECTO, xi, xum, 3. v. tr. (Poet., rar.) 1) To bend about: c. longos cursus, to turn about. 2) (Lat.) In grammar, to pronounce a syllable long, to mark with a circumflex.

CIRCUM-FLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Rar.) To blow around any one, aliquem; circumflari a ventis invidiae.

CIRCUM-FLUO, xi, —, 8. v. tr. & intr. 1) Tr., to flow around, to surround by flowing: Macedonia c. Cariam; trop. (lat.), secundae res vos co., abundantly surround. 2) Intr., to overflow: A) to be present in abundance, to abound: copiae circumfluentes, copious, abundant, oratio circumfluens, exuberant, too copious: B) = to have an abundance of, to abound in: c. gloriā, omnibus copiis, exercitu colonorum.

CIRCUMFLUUS, a, um, adj. [circumfluus]. 1) Flowing around, humor. 2) Flowed around, surrounded with water, insula, urbs circumflua Ponto.

CIRCUM-FŌDIO, —, fossum, 8. vr. tr. (Lat.) To dig round any thing, arborem.

CIRCUMFŌRANEUS, a, um, adj. [circumforum]. 1) Found in markets: aes c., money borrowed from the bankers (their shops being on the forum). 2) Strolling about from market to market, pharmacopola.

CIRCUM-FRĒMO, —, —, v. v. tr. & intr. (Lat.) To make a noise around (with the wings): aves co. nidos.

CIRCUM-FUNDO, fūdi, fūsum, 8. v. tr. 1) Prop., of liquid substances, to pour around, argenti, to pour one thing around another: c. a. si were aliquid, and = to surround one thing with another, aliquem or aliquid re aliqua; terra mari circumfusa, encompassed; c. mortuum cerā, to wrap, to encase; (poet.) c. aliquid amictu nebulae, to envelop in. Freq., in the pass., with a middle signification = to flow around, to environ, &c.: Tigris circumfunditur urbi, surrounds; spiritus nobis circumfusus, the air that encompasses us. Hence = to encompass: aer circumfundit terram. 2) Of objects that do not flow: A) pass. or (rar.) c. se — a) to spread about something, to crowd around, to embrace closely, to cling to: hostes co. ex reliquis partibus, spread around; co. obvius, press upon those that meet them; also (lat.), circumfunduntur turmae Julianae; trop., molestiae, voluptates circumfusae, that encompass one, are present — b) to be surrounded, encircled or environed by any thing, hostium concursu; Cato circumfusus Stoicorum libris: B) (Tac.) also, in act., to surround, to encircle: hostes co. aliquem.

*CIRCUM-GĒMO, 8. v. intr. (Poet.) To roar around: ursus c. ovile.

CIRCUM-GESTO, 1. v. tr. (Rar.) To carry around, epistolam.

CIRCUM-GRĒDIOR, gressus, 8. v. dep. intr. [gradior]. To go or move around something in a hostile manner, terga hostium, Syriam.

*CIRCUM-INJICIO, 8. v. tr. To throw up round about, vallum.

CIRCUM-JĀCEO, —, —, 2. v. intr. To lie around, to border upon: quae co. Europae (dat.); (lat.) circumjacentia = the context.

CIRCUMJECTUS (I.), ūs, m. [circumjicio]. (Rar.) 1) A surrounding, an encompassing, embracing: aether terram tenero c. amplectitur. 2) That which is thrown around, an environment: arx munitur c. arduo.

CIRCUMJECTUS (II.), a, um, adj. [part. of circumjicio]. 1) Of places, surrounding, near. 2) (Lat.) C. oratio, accompanying.

CIRCUM-JICIO (older form circumjicio), jēci, jectum, 8. v. tr. [jacio]. 1) To throw, to cast, to put or place one thing around another, multitudinem hostium moenibus; c. vallum, to extend around; anguis circumjectus fuit vectem, had wound itself around the bolt. 2) To encompass with something: planities circumjecta salibus; animus extremitatem coeli rotundo ambitu c.

CIRCUM-LATRO, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To bark around, aliquem.

CIRCUM-LIGO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To bind around — a) to bind something about some thing, alicui aliquid — b) to bind one with some thing, alicui rei.

CIRCUM-LINO, —, litum, 8. v. tr. [linio, 4.] 1) (Poet. & lat.) To smear round, to smear one thing on another, unguis. 2) To besmear one thing with another, unguis, aliquid re aliqua; freq. in partic., circumlitus: mortui oc. cerâ; saxa oc. musco, covered with moss.

CIRCUMLITIO, ònis, f. [circumlinio]. (Lat.) A smearing over, a besmearing, a laying on of colours.

CIRCUMLOCÛTIO, ònis, f. [loquor]. (Lat.) Circumlocation, circuitous expression.

CIRCUM-LÛCENS, tis, part. (Lat.) Shining round about.

CIRCUM-LUO, —, —, 3. v. tr. (Rar.) To flow or wash around, insulam.

CIRCUM-LUSTRANS, tis, part. [lustro]. (Lucr.) Lighting all around.

CIRCUMLÛVIO, ònis, f. [circumluo]. A washing round, circumlution — a detaching of a piece of land by the action of water, so that it becomes an island.

CIRCUM-MEO, âvi, —, 1. v. tr. & intr. To go around.

CIRCUM-MITTO, mîsi, missum, 3. v. tr. To send around, legatos in omnes partes; also = to send by a roundabout way, copias jugo, over the top of the mountain.

CIRCUM-MÛNIO (ante-cl. -moenio), ïvi, Itum, 4. v. tr. To surround with fortifications: c. urbem operibus, to fortify all round, hostem, to encompass.

CIRCUMMÛNITIO, ònis, f. [circummunio]. An investing of a town, circumvallation.

CIRCUM-NAVIGO, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To sail around, to circumnavigate, sinum.

CIRCUM-NECTO, nexui, nexum, 3. v. tr. (Lat.) To bind around, to surround, rem.

CIRCUM-PADANUS, a, um, adj. Situated around the river Po.

CIRCUM-PENDEO, —, —, 2. v. intr. (Lat.) To hang around.

CIRCUM-PLAUDO, —, —, 3. v. tr. (Poet.) To applaud on all sides by clapping the hands, aliquem.

CIRCUM-PECTOR, plexus, 3. v. dep. tr. (ante-cl. & rar. -plecto, 3.). To embrace, to surround, collum alicujus, collem operibus; c. pharetram auro, to encase with gold.

CIRCUM-PLICO, âvi, âtum, 1. v. tr. To twine or fold round, aliquem re aliqua; also, vectem circumplicat anguis, twines itself about the bolt.

CIRCUM-PŌNO, pŏnei, pŏsitum, 3. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To set or place round, aliquos sellae suae.

CIRCUM-PŌTATIO, ònis, f. A drinking round by turns.

CIRCUM-RËTIO, ïvi, Itum, 4. v. tr. To throw a net round, to ensnare, aliquem fraude.

CIRCUM-RŌDO, si, sum, 3. v. tr. To gnaw around, escam; trop., circumrodi dente Theonino, to be slandered.

CIRCUM-SCINDO, 3. v. tr. To tear off the clothes all round: c. et. spoliare.

CIRCUM-SCRIBO, psi, ptum, 3. v. tr. 1) Prop., to describe a circle round a thing, to scribere: c. orbem; c. lineas extremas umbrae but also, c. aliquem virgulâ, to describe a circle around one with a rod. 2) Trop.: A) to define the limits of any thing, to limit, to circumscribe: c. curriculum, spatium vitae terminis quibusdam, locum habitandi alicui: B) = to describe, to define: c. aliquid verbis: C) = to restrain, to confine, to hem in, to hinder free use and action: c. hoc genus oratorum uno genere, to confine to this one; in partic., tech. t., senatus c. magistratum, restrains a magistrate in the exercise of his power, confines its exercise within proper limits; c. adolescentem, to keep a youth under a certain degree of restraint: D) to defraud, to cheat, esp. to overreach in order to get one's money, aliquem pecuniâ: E) c. facinus jocosus verbis, to cloak; c. testamentum, etc., to evade the true meaning of a will: F) to set aside, to annul, to disregard, sententias, tempus.

CIRCUMSCRIPTÆ, adv. [circumscriptus]. In periods, periodically: c. numero sequere dicere.

CIRCUMSCRIPTIO, ònis, f. [circumscribo]. 1) The describing of a circle about something, an encircling. 2) A boundary, outline, circumference, limit, terrae, temporis. 3) C. verborum, a period. 4) An overreaching, defrauding, cheating, adolescentium.

CIRCUMSCRIPTOR, òris, m. [circumscribo]. A defrauder, cheat.

CIRCUMSCRIPTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of circumscribo]. 1) Limited, bounded. 2) In rhetoric, rounded off in periods, periodic: c. verborum ambitus, periods.

CIRCUM-SËCO, —, sectum, 1. v. tr. 1) To cut around. 2) To circumcise (of the Jews).

CIRCUM-SËDEO (-sideo), sēdi, sessum, 2. v. tr. 1) To sit around a person or thing, aliquem. 2) In partic., to surround in a hostile manner, to invest, to besiege, urbem omnibus copiis; trop., circumsessus muliebribus blanditiis, beset with, assaulted by.

CIRCUM-SËPIO, —, septum, 4. v. tr. To hedge around, to surround, to enclose, corpus armatis, locum parietibus.

CIRCUMSESSIO, ònis, f. [circumsedeo]. An investing, besieging.

CIRCUM-SIDO, —, —, 3. v. tr. To set, lay or place one's self around a thing, to invest, urbem.

CIRCUM-SÏLIO, —, —, 4. v. tr. & intr. [salio]. (Poet.) To leap around.

CIRCUM-SISTO, stēti, —, 3. v. tr. To stand around, to gather around (in a multitude), to surround, aliquem, curiam; ab omnibus civitatibus circumstisti; in partic., to surround in a hostile manner, to press around upon: plures paucos c.; c. urbem.

CIRCUM-SŌNO, ui, Itum, 1. v. intr. & tr. 1)

Intr., to resound with something on every side, to ring with a sound or clamor: locus c. ululatus. 3) Tr., to utter a clamor around, to surround with clamor: clamor c. hostem; (poet.) circumsonor armis; (poet.) c. murum armis, to make the wall resound with the noise of arms.

CIRCUM-SŌNUS, a, um, adj. (Poet.) Resounding around: c. turba canum, barking around.

CIRCUMSPECTATRIX, icis, f. [circumspecto]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) She who spies around.

CIRCUMSPECTE, adv. w. comp. [circumspectus]. (Lat.) Circumspectly, cautiously.

CIRCUMSPECTIO, ōnis, f. [circumspectio]. A looking around; trop., circumspection, caution.

CIRCUM-SPECTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. [intens. of circumspectio]. 1) Intr., to look about one's self with attention and caution. 2) Tr., to look about (attentively or longingly) after something, to wait for, to watch for, to think upon anything, &c.; c. omnia, ora principum; c. tempus defectionis, fugam (an opportunity for flight); alius alium circumspectant; c. aliquem = to look about for help from some one.

CIRCUMSPECTUS (I.), ūs, m. [circumspectio]. 1) A looking around, a spying round: in omnes partes est c., one can look around without obstruction in all directions. 2) Trop., consideration, reflection, aliarum rerum.

CIRCUMSPECTUS (II.), a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [circumspectio]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Carefully weighed, well-considered, circumspect, interrogatio, iudicium. 2) Of persons, considerate, cautious, circumspect, provident, homo. 3) (Lat.) Distinguished, honor.

CIRCUM-SPERGO, —, —, 8. v. tr. [spargo]. (Lat.) 1) To scatter or strew all around, aliquid. 2) To besprinkle all round, aliquem aquā.

*CIRCUMSPICIENTIA, ae, f. [circumspectio]. (Lat.) Consideration, deliberation.

CIRCUM-SPICIO, exi, ectum, 8. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to look about one's self, to look all round: c., aestuat (of one perplexed and undecided); hence, trop. = to use foresight, to be cautious: circumspicendum est ut, etc. 2) Tr.: A) to descry, to catch sight of (in looking round), saxum ingens: B) to view on all sides, to keep in view, to survey, situm urbis, cornus (the wings of the army), amictum alicujus: C) trop. — a) to weigh, to reflect upon, to consider, aliquid animo, quid faciendum sit — b) to look around after something — to long for, to desire, to seek for, auxilia, lectum, aliquem.

CIRCUMSTANTIA, ae, f. [circumsto]. (Lat.) 1) A standing around, a surrounding, hostium, aëris. 2) A circumstance, attribute.

*CIRCUMSTATIO, ōnis, f. (Gell.) A standing round.

CIRCUM-STO, stēti, —, 1. v. tr. & intr. 1)

To stand around, to surround: circumstantes, those standing round, the bystanders; c. senatum. In partic., to surround in a hostile manner, to beset, to besiege, tribunal; trop., fata nos oc., threaten on every side; duo bella oc. urbem.

CIRCUM-STREPO, ui, itum, 8. v. tr. (Lat.) 1) To make a noise around, aliquem; circumstrepī clamore. 2) (Tac.) To shout or cry out around, aliquid.

CIRCUM-STRUO, xi, ctum, 8. v. tr. (Lat.) 1) To build round about, fores alveorum. 2) To build upon round about, ripas lapide.

CIRCUM-SURGENS, entis, part. [surgo]. (Lat.) Rising all round.

CIRCUM-TĒGO, 8. v. tr. (Poet.) To cover round, coelum.

CIRCUM-TENTUS, a, um, part. [tendo]. (Ante-cl.) Stretched all around, begirt: elephantī c. corio, with the hide of.

*CIRCUM-TĒRO, 8. v. tr. (Poet.) To rub around; trop. = to stand closely round, aliquem.

*CIRCUM-TEXTUS, a, um, part. [texo]. (Poet.) Woven all around: velamen c. acantho, with an acanthus woven around it.

CIRCUM-TŌNO, ui, —, 1. v. tr. (Poet.) Prop., to thunder around = to roar around, to surround with noise or clamor: Nereus c. orbem; trop., Bellona eum c. = has crazed, driven to frenzy.

CIRCUM-TŌNSUS, a, um, part. [tondeo]. Shorn all round; trop., oratio c. = too much laboured, artificial.

CIRCUM-VADO, si, —, 8. v. tr. To assail on every side, to encompass, aliquem, naves; trop., terror c. aciem, falls upon, assails on every side.

CIRCUM-VĀGUS, a, um, adj. (Rar., poet.) Wandering around, moving round in a circle.

CIRCUM-VALLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To surround with a wall or rampart, to invest, to besiege, urbem, hostes.

CIRCUM-VECTIO, ōnis, f. [circumveho]. (Rar.) 1) A carrying round (of merchandise): portorium circumvectionis. 2) A revelation, solis, the circuit of the sun.

CIRCUM-VECTOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. [intens. of circumveho]. (Prop., to be carried round.) To ride or sail around, oppida, oras; trop. (poet.) c. singula, to go through in describing.

CIRCUM-VEHOR, vectus, 8. v. tr. (pass.). To go around, to ride or sail around or to any place (curru, equo, navi): c. in terras ultimas, ad agrum Romanum; c. collibus, around the hills; c. promontorium, around the promontory. In the same sense, the part. Circumvehens, tis, sailing round, or sailing round to, Peloponnesum.

*CIRCUM-VELO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Poet.) To veil around.

CIRCUM-VĒNIO, vēni, ventum, 4. v. tr. 1) To surround, to encompass: planities circum-venta collibus; Rhēnus c. insulam, flows around. 2) To surround in a hostile manner, to invest, to encompass, nostros, moenia exercitu. 3) Trop.: A) to bring into danger or perplexity, to assail, to oppress, to overthrow; freq., in pass., circumveniri falsis criminibus, testimonio, iudicio or per iudicium, by an unrighteous judgment: B) to defraud, to deceive, to cheat: innocens c. pecuniā, by the sentence of corrupt judges.

CIRCUMVERSIO, ōnis, f. [circumverto]. (Lat.) A turning round in a circle.

CIRCUM-VERSOR, i, v. tr. pass. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To turn around.

CIRCUM-VERTO (-vorto), ti, sum, 3. v. tr. (Rar., poet. & lat.) 1) To turn around, se; c. mancipium = to set free (because it was the practice for the master to take by the hand the slave whom he was about to set free, and turn him round in a circle). 2) Trop. (ante-cl.), to cheat, to defraud: c. aliquem argento.

CIRCUM-VESTIO, 4. v. tr. (Rar., poet. & lat.) To clothe round, to cover all round; trop., c. se dictis, 'to cover one's self with a coat of mail,' i. e., to protect one's self.

CIRCUM-VINCIO, vinxi, vinctum, 4. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To bind all round, aliquid re aliqua.

CIRCUM-VISO, 3. v. tr. (Pl.) To look around upon.

CIRCUM-VOLITO, i, v. tr. & intr. 1) Tr., to fly or flutter around, florem. 2) Intr., to wander about, to hover around.

CIRCUM-VŪLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) 1) To fly around, aliquem. 2) To run or hasten around, ordines.

CIRCUM-VOLVO, vi, vōlūtum, 3. v. tr. To revolve, roll or turn around: sol circumvolvitur annum, completes his yearly circuit.

CIRCUS, i, m. [= κίρκος]. 1) (Rar.) A circular line, a circle (more freq. circulus). 2) A circus, of which there were several at Rome, the most famous being the 'C. maximus,' built by Tarquinius Priscus. It held 150,000 spectators, and after its enlargement by Trajan 400,000. Through the middle, from end to end, ran a wall about four feet high and twelve broad (spina), at each extremity of which stood three columns on a single base (metae); the charioteers were required to drive around these seven times before receiving the prize. Next to the 'C. Maximus,' the 'C. Flaminius' and the 'C. Flaviae' were the largest.

CIRIS, is, f. [= κίρως]. (Poet.) A bird into which Scylla (daughter of Nisus) was changed.

CIRRHA, ae, f. [= κίρρα]. The harbor of Delphi.

CIRRHAUS, a, um, adj. [Cirrha]. Of or belonging to Cirrha or (poet.) to Apollo: C. vates, Delphic.

CIRRUS, i, m. 1) A lock of hair (natural — cf. cincinnus). 2) Trop. (lat.) — a) a tuft of hair on the head of a bird, a crest — b) a fringe on a garment.

CIRTA, ae, f. A town in Numidia, the residence of Syphax and Masinissa — now Constantine.

CIRTENSES, ium, m. pl. [Cirta]. The inhabitants of Cirta.

CIS, prep. w. acc. 1) In space, on this side (opp. to trans and ultra): c. Taurum, Rhenum. 2) (Ante-cl. & lat.) Of time, within: c. paucos dies.

CIS-ALPINUS, a, um, adj. Situated or living on this side of the Alps, Cisalpina.

CISIUM, ii, n. A light two-wheeled carriage, a cabriolet.

CISPIUS MONS. One of the two tops of Mons Esquilinus in Rome, now the hill of St. Maria Maggiore.

CIS-RHĒNANUS, a, um, adj. [Rhēnus]. On this side of the Rhine.

CISSEIS, idis, f. The daughter of Cisseus = Hecuba.

CISSEUS, ei, m. [= Κισσεύς]. A king of Thrace, according to a later myth, the father of Hecuba.

CISTA, ae, f. [= κιςτήν]. A chest or box, for clothes, books, &c.; in partic. — a) a box, in which, at mystical religious festivals, the sacred utensils were carried by persons appointed for the purpose — b) a ballot-box, in which the votes at the comitia were deposited.

CISTELLA, ae, f. [dim. of cista]. A little box or chest.

*CISTELLATRIX, icis, f. [cistella]. (Pl.) A female slave who had charge of the money or jewel-box of her mistress.

CISTELLŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of cistella]. A little box or chest.

CISTERNA, ae, f. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A subterraneous reservoir for water, a cistern.

CISTERNINUS, a, um, adj. [cisterna]. (Lat.) Of or belonging to cisterns, cisterna-, aqua.

CISTŌPHŌRUS, i, m. [= κιστοφόρος, 'that bears a box']. An Asiatic coin, the stamp on which was a Bacchic cista.

CISTŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of cista]. A little box or chest.

CITĀTE, adv. [citatus] (only in comp. & sup.). (Rar.) Quickly, swiftly.

CITĀTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of cito]. Hurred, hastened, speedy, quick: c. gradu ire; equo c., at a full gallop; agmen c., making a forced march; trop., homo c. = quick, expeditious.

CITĒRIOR (comp.), us, CITĪMUS (sup., rar.), a, um, adj. (the posit. 'citer' is ante-cl. & rar.) [cis]. 1) On this side: Gallia c., Cisalpine Gaul. 2) A) in space, nearer, nearest or next: B) of time, sooner, earlier: C) of quantity, smaller, shorter, poena.

CITHAERON, ὄνις, m. [= Κιθαρόν]. A mountain of Boeotia, sacred to Bacchus.

CITHARA, ae, f. [= κίθαρα]. The four-stringed cithara or lute; (poet.) = a player on the cithara.

CITHARISTA, ae, m. [= κίθαριστάς]. A player on the cithara.

CITHARISTRIA, ae, f. [= κίθαριςτρια]. (Antecl. & lat.) A (female) player on the cithara.

CITHARIZO, 1. v. intr. [= κίθαρίζω]. (Rar.) To play on the cithara.

CITHAROEDICUS, a, um, adj. [= κίθαροεδικός]. (Lat.) Of or pertaining to a citharoedus.

CITHAROEDUS, i, m. [= κίθαροεδός]. A player on the cithara who accompanied his playing with singing (different from the citharista, who played without singing).

CITIENSIS, e, adj. Of or from Citium; subst., Citienses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Citium.

CITIUS, a, um, adj. Of or from Citium; subst., Citiel, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Citium.

CITIUM, ii, n. [= Κίτιον]. 1) A seaport of Cyprus, the birthplace of the philosopher Zeno. 2) A town in Macedonia.

CITO, adv. w. comp. & sup. [citus]. 1) Quickly, speedily, progređi: dicto citius, quicker than one can say it. 2) Soon, in or within a short time: c. veniam; dies me citius defecerit quam, etc., before; (poet.) citius supremo die, before death. Hence, citius = potius, sooner, rather: c. hoo faciam quam ut, etc. 3) With a negation, not easily: non (haud, nullus) c.; neque aptiorem cito alium dixerim: non tam c. eum rhetorem dixisses quam κατακτάς, not so much.

CITO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [intens. of cieo]. 1) (Excepting the part. citatus, as an adj., poet. & lat. only.) To put into rapid motion, to move or drive rapidly: c. gradum, to hasten; c. hastam, to throw; trop., c. motum, to produce, to cause. 2) With a reference to the place to which one is moved, to call, to call up, to summon (generally officially or on business — cf. voco): c. seqatam, patres in curiam, juvenes ad nomina danda. In partic.: A) to summon for trial, to call (the parties in order to ascertain if they are present); hence = to accuse: c. aliquem reum capitis: B) to bring in any one as a witness or voucher, to appeal to, aliquem testem (auctorem) rei alicujus, also in rem; hence, in gen. = to quote, to cite, to name, to mention by name, aliquem. 3) (Rar.) C. paeanem, to sing, to rehearse; c. to Bacche, to shout.

CITRĀ. I. Prep. w. acc. 1) On this side (opp. to ultra): quae sunt c. Rhenum; omnes c. flumen elicere. Hence, of that which is within a certain limit, before, within, short of: non a postrema syllaba c. tertiam, not before the third syllable from the last, i. e., the antepenult; also (poet.) virtus non est c. genus, is not behind, not inferior to my origin; peccavi c. scelus, I have committed almost a crime. 2) (Rar., poet.) Of time, before: c. tempora Trojana. 3) (Lat.) Without, except, apart or aside from: c. virtutem vir bonus intelligi non potest; hoo ei c. fidem non fuit, he was not disbelieved; c. spectaculorum dies, except on the days of the public games; c. magnitudinem, excepting in size. — II. Adv. w. comp. (rar., lat.) citērius. 1) On this side: urbs est c.; nec c. nec ultra; hence, tela c. cadebant, fell within the mark (did not reach the enemy); paucis c. passibus ei occurrit, a few steps before he reached his destination. 2) Comp. (poet. & lat.) — a) of time, sooner, before: c. quam cupias; c. debito, sooner than he ought — b) c. quum debuit, less than he ought.

CITREUS, a, um, adj. [citrus]. Made of the wood of the citrus-tree.

CITRO, adv. [cis], usually joined with ultro, especially u. citroque, also u. et c., u. ac c., u. c. Either — thither, to and fro, on both sides: u. c. commear, sermones habere (of conversation); u. c. obsides dare, on both sides.

CITRUS, i, f. (Lat.) 1) An African tree (a species of cedar), of whose fragrant wood costly articles of furniture were made. 2) The citron-trees.

CITUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of cieo]. (Mostly poet.) Hastened; hence, quick rapid, swift, incessus, pes, legiones, marching rapidly; somnus citus abiit, ite citi, quickly.

CIVICUS, a, um, adj. [civis]. (Except in the expression 'corona c.,' mostly poet.) 1) Of or pertaining to a citizen, civil, civis: corona c., a civic crown, bestowed on him who had in war saved the life of a fellow-citizen. Its inscription was, 'ob civem (cives) servatum (servatos).' 2) Of or pertaining to the Roman state.

CIVILIS, e, adj. w. comp. & sup. [civis]. 1) Of or pertaining to citizens, civil: c. bellum, victoria; jus c., civil rights, private rights. Hence = relating to the entire body of the citizens, public, political: c. scientia = political science; co. quaestiones, officia; vir c., a statesman. 2) Suitable to, becoming a citizen, sermo, animus, patriotic. 3) (Lat.) Courteous, polite, urbane: quid civilius Augusto?

CIVILIS, is, m. (Claudius.) The leader of the Batavians, in their revolt from Rome, A. D. 69-70.

CIVILITAS, ātis, f. [civilis]. (Lat.) 1) The science of government, politics, statesmanship. 2) Courtesy, civility.

CIVILITER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [civilis]. 1) Citizen-like, as becomes a citizen. 2) (Lat.) Civilly, courteously.

CIVIS, is, com. 1) A citizen (male or female). 2) Hence, in partic.: A) = a fellow-citizen: c. meus, tuus: B) rex imperat civibus suis, his subjects.

CIVITAS, ātis, f. [civis]. 1) The condition and rights of a (Roman) citizen, citizenship: c. Romana; adipisci, amittere c.; dare alicui civitatem; retinere c.; also, jus civitatis, the rights growing out of citizenship. 2) The citizens united into a community or body politic; hence, the state, and what in ancient times was mostly the same thing, the city (the entire body of the citizens — cf. urbs): c. augetur magnitudine urbis; c. stabat in foro; condere c.; c. Rhodiorum; administrare c.; sometimes = populus, the people. 3) (Lat.) = urbs, the sum total of the dwellings of the citizens: incendere c.; errare per totam c.

CIVITATŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of civitas]. (Lat.) Citizenship in a small city.

CLADES, is, f. 1) Injury, damage, misfortune, disaster (e. g., a pestilence, sudden death, robbery, &c.): c. captae urbis; c. belli, caused by war; c. dextrae manus, a loss of the right hand; (poet.) Scipiones clades Libyae, the destroyers of Libya. In partic. = misfortune in war, defeat, overthrow: cladem alicui afferre (inferre), to bring upon, facere, to occasion, accipere, to suffer.

CLAM. I. Adv. Secretly, in secret, privately: c. peperit uxor; neo id c. esse potuit, could not be unknown; (Pl.) c. mihi est, it is unknown to me. II. Prep. with abl. or acc., once (Pl.) also with genit. (mostly Com. & lat.). Without the knowledge of, unknown to: c. me, te, illo; c. matrem; c. me est, I am not aware of it; me c. habuit, he has concealed it from me.

CLAMĀTOR, ōris, m. [clamo]. A bawler (of a poor speaker).

CLĀMITĀTIO, ōnis, f. [clamito]. (Pl.) A bawling, clamoring.

CLĀMITO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & (mostly) intr. [intens. of clamo]. To cry or call out loudly and violently, to bawl out: c. ad arma; c. se esse liberum; c. alicui, to any one; *c. aliquem (Pl.), to call any one; trop., hoc c. calliditatem = shows plainly.

CLĀMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. 1) Intr., to call, to cry out, to shout: tumultuantur et cc.; c. de uxoris interitu, to mourn with loud complaints. Hence (poet.), of every loud noise, e. g., the roaring of waters, the cries of animals. 2) Tr., to call some person or thing, to call to, to call upon, to call or cry out: c. aliquid, aliquid deum; c. triumphum; omnes cc., hoc indigne factum esse; omnes cc., 'tua culpa est'; c. fidem hominum, to invoke; trop., tabulae illae cc. = declare plainly, without doubt.

CLĀMOR, ōris, m. [clamo]. A loud call, a cry, a shout (poet. also of animals): edere clamorem, tollere, to raise; c. consensusque = acclamation, applause; in other places, c. = a hostile clamor; trop. (poet.), of things without life = noise, roar: saxa dedere c.

CLĀMŌSE, adv. [clamosus]. (Lat.) Clamorously, with a loud noise.

CLĀMŌSUS, a, um, adj. [clamor]. 1) Clamorous, noisy, altercator. 2) Done or accompanied with noise, actio. 3) Filled with noise, urbs.

CLANCŪLUM, adv. [dim. of clam]. (Lat.) I. Adv. Secretly, in secret: c. noctu venit. II. Prep. with acc. Without the knowledge of: c. patrem.

CLANDESTINO, adv. [clandestinus]. (Antecl.) Secretly, clandestinely.

CLANDESTINUS, a, um, adj. [clam]. Secret, concealed, clandestine: nuptiae, introitus, consilia.

CLANGO, —, —, 3. v. intr. (Rar., poet.) To sound, to resound, tuba.

CLANGOR, ōris, m. [clangor]. Sound, noise, din: c. tubarum, the blast; c. avium (partly their cries, partly the flapping of their wings); Harpyiae quatunt alas magnis cc.

CLĀNIS, is, m. A river in Etruria, now La Chiana.

CLĀNIUS, ii, m. A river in Campania, now Clanio Vecchio.

CLĀRE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [clarus]. 1) Brightly, clearly, distinctly, videre, fulgere. 2) Loudly, recitare. 3) Evidently, intelligibly, clearly, aliquid ostendere. 4) Trop., clarus exsplendescere, to shine more brilliantly.

CLĀREO, —, —, 2. v. intr. [clarus]. (Poet.) 1) To be bright or clear, to shine. 2) Trop.: A) to be evident, manifest: B) to be famous, illustrious: fama c.

CLĀRESCO, rui, —, 3. v. intr. [inch. of clareo]. 1) To become clear, to grow bright: dies c. 2) Trop.: A) to become clear to the ear, to be heard plainly, to sound clearly: sonitus armorum c.: B) to become (intellectually) evident, apparent, manifest: aliud ex alio c.: C) to become famous, magno facinore, by means of a great action.

*CLĀRICITO, 1. v. tr. [clare-cito]. (Lucr.) To summon with a clear, distinct voice.

CLĀRIGĀTIO, ōnis, f. [clarigo]. 1) A solemn demand of satisfaction, and, if satisfaction was refused, a declaration of war, made by the Fetalis. *2) The seizure of a person, found on forbidden ground.

*CLĀRIGO, 1. v. tr. [clare, sc. clara voce ago]. (Lat.) (Of the Fetalis.) To declare war, against an enemy, with certain religious solemnities.

CLĀRĪ-SŌNUS, a, um, adj. (Poet.) Clear-sounding.

CLĀRĪTAS, ātis, f. [clarus]. 1) (Lat.) Clearness, brightness, brilliancy: sidus illud est tantae claritatis. 2) Trop.: A) to the ear, distinctness, clearness, vocis: B) (Lat.) of that which is addressed to the intellect, clearness, perspicuity, distinctness, orationis: C) renown, celebrity, splendor: c. tua; c. generis.

CLARITUDO, inis, f. [clarus]. (Lat.) = Claritas.

CLARO, 1. v. tr. [clarus]. (Poet.) 1) To make clear or bright. 2) Trop.: A) to make intellectually clear or evident, to explain, to set forth, to illustrate, animi naturam versibus: B) to make famous, aliquem.

CLAROR, ōris, m. [clareo]. (Pl.) Clearness, brightness.

CLARIUS, a, um, adj. [Claros]. Of or pertaining to Claros.

CLAROS, i, f. [= Κλῆρος]. A town in Ionia, with a temple and oracle of Apollo.

CLARUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. 1) Clear, shining, brilliant, fulmen, lux; corona clara auro. 2) Trop.: A) to the ear, loud, clear, distinct, vox, clamor: B) intellectually, clear, distinct, intelligible, evident: res c.; consilia tua luce sunt clariora: C) famous, distinguished, illustrious: virtus clara posteris erit; c. re aliqua; (lat.) c. in literis; also (rar.) c. ex (ab) re aliqua or ob rem aliquam. In partic. — a) in the sup., a title of honour, given to distinguished public men, esp. consuls, senators, &c.: vir fortissimus et c.; c. Pompeius — b) (rar.) in a bad sense = notorious: c. superbii luxuriāque.

CLASSIARIUS, a, um, adj. [classis]. Pertaining to a fleet: c. centurio, the captain of a ship; almost solely in the pl. classarii, sc. milites or nautae: marines, sailors, naval forces.

CLASSICULA, ae, f. [dim. of classis]. A small fleet, a flotilla.

CLASSICUM — v. Classicus.

CLASSICUS, a, um, adj. [classis]. 1) (Acc. to classis 1): A) belonging to one of the classes of Roman citizens: B) in partic., classici = citizens of the first class; hence, trop. (lat.) = of the first rank, standard, classic, poeta. 2) (Acc. to classis 2): A) pertaining to land or naval forces; thus only as a subst., Classicum, i, n., a signal given by a trumpet, a military signal: classicum oecinit, sounded; classicum cani or canere jubet, he ordered the signal to be given; classicum ad concionem vocat: B) in partic., of or pertaining to a fleet, naval, miles, certamen; classici = classarii.

CLASSIS, is, f. 1) A class, one of the five divisions into which the Roman people were distributed, according to their property, by Servius Tullius; sometimes, in partic. = the first or highest class; trop., philosophus ille quintae classis videtur, of the lowest rank. Hence (lat.), = a class, division, in gen., servorum, puerorum. 2) A) (ante-cl. & lat.) an army, land forces: B) a fleet with its sailors and soldiers: comparare, ornare, instruere c., to equip; cetera classis fugerunt; c. ibi stetit, lay there; nomen dare in classem, to be enrolled for service in a fleet, to give one's name.

CLASTIDIUM, ii, n. A small town in Gallia Cisalpina.

CLĀTERNA, ae, f. A fortified town in Gallia Cisalpina, near the present Bologna.

CLĀTHRI, ōrum, m. pl. [= καθῆρα]. (Poet. & lat.) A grating, railing, esp. on the cages of wild animals.

CLATHRATUS, a, um, adj. [clathri]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Furnished with a grating or bars, fenestra.

CLAUDEO, —, —, 2., or CLAUDO, —, sum, 8., v. intr. [claudus]. (Rar.) 1) To be lame, to limp. 2) Trop., to falter, to be imperfect, incomplete.

CLAUDIĀLIS, e, adj. [Claudius]. (Rar. & lat.) Pertaining to the Emperor Claudius, Claudian.

CLAUDIĀNUS (I.), i, m. The last of the Roman classic poets — lived in the time of the Emperor Theodosius and his sons.

CLAUDIĀNUS (II.) or Clōdiānus, a, um, adj. [Claudius or Clodius]. Of or belonging to a Claudius (Clodius): Clodianum crimen, the murder of P. Clodius; Claudiana tempora, of the Emperor Claudius.

CLAUDICATIO, ōnis, f. [claudico]. A limping, a being lame.

CLAUDICO, āvī, ātum, 1. v. tr. [claudus]. 1) To limp, to be lame, ex vulnere. Hence (Lucr.), of things without life, which incline to one side or the other, e. g., scales, the axis of the earth, to turn, to be inclined. 2) Trop., to be defective or incomplete, to halt: oratio c.; c. in officio aliquo, to fail, to be wanting in; aliquid c. in nostra oratione.

CLAUDIUS (I.) or Clōdius, ii, m., & a, ae, f. The name of two Roman gentes, one of patrician, the other of plebeian origin, in which the most important families were the Appii, Pulchri, Neronēs and Marcelli. A) Appii: the most famous is App. Cl. Caecus, who, as censor (312 B.C.), built the Appian road and an aqueduct. B) Pulchri: Publius Clodius P., the famous opponent of Cicero, murdered by Milo. C) Neronēs: Tiberius Cl. N., a contemporary of Cicero, an adherent of Cæsar and of Antony, but afterwards reconciled with Octavianus — the father of two sons (Tiberius, afterwards emperor, and Drusus, the father of the Emperor Claudius). D) Marcelli: — a) Marcus Cl. M., conqueror of Syracuse (212 B.C.) — b) Caius Cl. M., the husband of Octavia (sister of Octavianus); his son Marcus Cl. M. was adopted by Augustus, but died 23 B.C.

CLAUDIUS or Clōdius (II.), a, um, adj. Of or belonging to a Claudius (Clodius).

CLAUDO (also, esp. poet. & lat., Clōdo or Clūdo), si, sum, 8. v. tr. [related to κλεις, clavis]. 1) To shut, to close, to shut to, to shut up, domum, portas alicui, aures; c. aures ad vocem c. sanguinem, to stop, fugam hosti, to run off.

homo clausus, consilia clausa habere, to keep secret; (poet.) c. animam alicui = to stifle. 2) (Mostly poet. & lat.) To close, to end, to conclude, epistolam, opus, bellum; freq. c. agmen, to close the train = to form the rearguard. Hence = to confine, to enclose, aliquos a tergo; c. lustrum = the more freq. condere 1 (v. Lustrum). 3) (Instead of the comp. includo, concludo.) To enclose, to encompass, to surround: c. urbem muro or obsidione, rivum ripis, adversarios locorum angustis; c. aliquem in curia or in curiam. Hence, trop., c. sententias numeris, to conclude rhythmically, with a proper rhythm; oratio clausa, rhythmical; c. verba pedibus, to put into verse.

CLAUDUS, a, um, adj. 1) Lame, limping, altero pede, in one foot; pes c.; hence, trop., navis c., a galley without oars on one side. 2) (Poet. & lat.) Trop., imperfect, defective, uncertain, wavering: pars clauda officii tui; carmina clauda altero pede, in which the verses are alternately long and short = elegiac; clausula c., inharmonious.

CLAUSTRUM, i, n. (mostly in pl.) [claudo]. 1) The bolt, bar of a door: cc. revelle, laxare, etc.; trop. = the barriers, bars, hindrances, which stand in one's way: refragi ista nobilitatis cc., of one who was the first of his family to obtain curule honours; (poet.) effringere cc. naturae, to reveal the secrets of nature; versus tua fregerunt cc. = have been made public; rumpere cc., to break through the barriers (at the race-course). 2) Improp. : A) (poet.) cc. urbis = a gate; cc. undae = a dam: B) an enclosure, an enclosed space or place: pinca cc. (poet.), the wooden horse at Troy: C) in military lang., whatever covers the entrance to a place, a barricade, bulwark, wall, defence, "key" to a region or town: cc. Aegypti; cc. montium, a narrow pass.

*CLAUSTRITUMUS, i, m. [claustrum]. (Liv. Andron. in Gell.) A keeper of a place that is looked up.

CLAUSULA, ae, f. [claudo]. A conclusion, end, fabulae, epistolae; in partic. in rhetoric, the close of a period.

CLAUSUM, i, n. [part. of claudo]. (Poet. & lat.) An enclosed place, an enclosure.

CLĀVA, ae, f. 1) A cudgel, club; also, a staff, used (as a lance or sword) by young men in learning military exercises. 2) (Lat.) A graft.

*CLĀVĀRIUM, ii, n. [clavus]. Money for shoemails (a donative to soldiers).

*CLĀVĀTOR, ōris, m. [clava]. (Pl.) A cudgel-bearer.

CLĀVICŪLA, ae, f. [clava]. A small tendril, by means of which a vine clings to its prop.

CLĀVIGER (I.), ōri, m. [clava-gero]. (Poet.) The Club-bearer (a surname of Hercules).

CLĀVIGER (II.), ōri, m. [clavis-gero]. (Poet.) The Key-carrier (an epithet applied to Janus).

CLĀVIS, is, f. [= κλεῖς]. A key, portae horrei; c. adulterina, a false key; esse sub c., to be shut up; adimere uxori claves = to separate from one's wife.

CLĀVUS, i, m. 1) A nail: clavum anni movere = to reckon the beginning of the year, as the ancient Romans marked each year with a nail, which was driven by the chief magistrate on the ides of September into the wall of the temple of Jupiter Capitolinus; cc. trabales (poet.), spikes. 2) Trop., of things of like shape: A) the handle of a ship's rudder; hence, a rudder, helm; trop., tenere clavum reipublicae: B) a purple stripe on the tunic: latus and angustus c. (v. Angusticlavus and Laticlavus); sometimes, c. latus = tunica laticlavus; c. angustus = tunica angusticlavus.

CLAZŌMĒNAE, ōrum, f. pl. [= Κλαζομεναι]. A town on the coast of Ionia, the birthplace of Anaxagoras.

CLAZŌMĒNIUS, a, um, adj. [Clazomenae]. Of or from Clazomenae.

CLEANTHES, is, m. [= Κλεάνθης]. A Stoic philosopher, who lived about 260 B. C., a disciple and follower of Zeno.

CLEMENS, tis, adj. w. comp. & sup. 1) (Poet. & lat.) Of the air, wind, &c. calm, mild, gentle, Auster, flumen, mare. 2) Of disposition and character, mild, placid, gentle, and in partic. towards the faulty and erring, forbearing, indulgent, merciful (cf. mansuetus), homo, ingenium, rex; c. in disputando; iudex c. ab innocentia; c. castigatio, sententia; rumor c., moderate, falling below the truth.

CLEMENTER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [clemens]. 1) Mildly, gently, softly. Hence, of places, gently, gradually: jugum c. editum. 2) Calmly, gently, in partic., forbearingly, mercifully, indulgently, aliquid facere, aliquem tractare; exercitum c. ducere, without plundering; aliquid c. ferre, quietly, tranquilly.

CLEMENTIA, ae, f. [clemens]. 1) (Lat.) Of the air, wind, and weather, calmness, mildness: c. coeli. 2) Mildness, kindness, forbearance, clemency: lenitas et c.

CLEŌBIS, is, m. — v. Bito.

CLEŌBŪLUS, i, m. [= Κλεόβουλος]. One of the seven wise men of Greece.

CLEOMBRŌTUS, i, m. [= Κλεόμβροτος]. 1) The commander of the Lacedaemonians at the battle of Leuctra (371 B. C.). 2) A youth of Ambracia, who, after reading Plato's treatise on the immortality of the soul, committed suicide by throwing himself from the wall of the city.

CLEON, ontis, m. [= Κλέων]. 1) An Athenian demagogue, and follower of Pericles. 2) A rhetorician of Halicarnassus.

CLEŌNAE, ōrum, f. pl. [= Κλεωναί]. 1) A town between Corinth and Argos, in the neigh- nourhood of which Hercules slew the Nemean lion. 2) A town on Mount Athos, in Macedonia.

CLEOPATRA, ae, f. [= Κλεοπάτρα]. 1) The daughter of Philip of Macedonia and Olympias, sister of Alexander the Great. 2) The famous queen of Egypt, daughter of Ptolemæus Auletes. 3) The daughter of Mithridates, wife of Tigranes.

CLÉPO, psi, psam, 3. v. tr. [κλέπτω]. (Antecl.) To steal, ignem.

CLEPSYDRA, ae, f. [= κλεψύδρα]. A water-clock, clepsydra, used to measure the time of public speakers; hence, dare c., to give permission to speak; petere c., to wish or attempt to speak; cras ad clepsydrum (so. dicemus) = cras declamabimus.

CLEPTA, ae, m. [= κλέπτης]. (Pl.) A thief. CLERUMENOE [= κληρομένους]. (Pl.) (Pure Lat., Sortientes.) The name of a play by Diphilus.

CLIENS, ntis, m. [for cluens, from cluo, κλέω, 'to hear']. 1) In Rome, a client, a person who held the relation of a protégé or dependent upon a rich and powerful citizen (patronus) of the patrician order, to whom he looked for protection. Entire communities and provinces selected patrons at Rome, and were called their clients. 2) Without the Roman state, a client, adherent; also, of entire nations, the vassals, allies, of a more powerful people.

CLIENTA, ae, f. [cliens]. (Poet.) A (female) client.

CLIENTELA, ae, f. [cliens]. 1) Clientship, the relation between a client and his patron (v. Cliens); hence, in gen., protection, patronage: conferre se in fidem et c. alicuius, to place one's self under the protection of some one; esse in alicuius clientela et fide. 2) (Mostly lat. and in the pl.) Dependents, clients: co. amplissimæ. 3) (Caes.) Alliance, confederacy.

*CLINÁMEN, inis, n. [clino (not used) = κλίνω]. (Luor.) Inollination.

CLINÁTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of clino (not used) = κλίνω]. (Poet.) Inollined = bent.

CLINIÁS, ae, m. [= Κλινίας]. The father of Alcibiades.

CLINIÁDES, ae, m. [Clinias]. (Poet.) The son of Clinias = Alcibiades.

CLÍO, ūs, f. [= Κλío]. 1) The muse of history. 2) A sea-nymph.

CLÍPEÁTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of the very rare clipeo]. Furnished with a shield, bearing a shield, miles.

*CLÍPEOLUM (Clyp.), i, n. [dim. of clipeus]. A small shield.

CLÍPEUM, i, n. } (Clyp.) 1) A round shield of CLÍPEUS, i, m. } brass or covered with brass
(cf. scutum, parma); prov., sumere c. post vulnera = to do any thing too late. 2) Trop., any thing in the shape of a shield: A) the vault of heaven: B) the disc of the sun: C) a bust (a likeness in relief) on a shield-shaped surface.

CLÍTARCHUS, i, m. [= Κλειταρχος]. A companion of Alexander the Great, in his Asiatic expedition, of which he wrote a history.

CLITELLAE, ōrum, f. pl. A packsaddle, for beasts of burden, esp. asses.

CLITELLÁRIUS, a, um, adj. [clitellae]. Of or pertaining to a packsaddle; trop., homines cc., that put up with everything, slavishly patient.

CLITERNINUS, a, um, adj. [Cliternum]. Of or pertaining to Cliternum; subst., Cliternini, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Cliternum.

CLITERNUM, i, n. An Ægæan town. CLITOMÁCHUS, i, m. [= Κλειτομάχος]. An Academic philosopher of Carthage, a follower of Carneades — lived about 186 B. C.

CLITOR, ōris, m. } [Κλειτορ]. A town in CLITŌRIUM, ii, n. } Northern Arcadia, now known as the ruins of Clituras.

CLITŌRIUS, a, um, adj. [= Κλειτορίας]. Clitortian.

CLITUMNUS, i, m. A small but sacred river in Umbria, now Clitumno.

CLITUS, i, m. A friend of Alexander the Great, killed by him in a fit of drunkenness.

CLIVŌSUS, a, um, adj. [clivus]. Hilly, full of hills, steep, locus, trames.

CLIVUS, i, m. [clino (not used) = κλίνω]. A hill, a height: c. Capitolinus; c. mollis, gently ascending, arduus, steep; c. mensæ, the unevenness of (caused by the shortness of one of its feet); prov., sudamus in imo c. = we have yet many difficulties to overcome.

CLOÁCA, ae, f. A subterranean canal by which the filth and rain-water of the city were carried into the Tiber, a common sewer: agere, ducere c., to build; prov., arcem facere e cloaca, to make a great ado about a trifle; trop. (Pl.), the stomach of a drunkard.

CLŌDIUS, etc. — v. Claudius, etc.

CLŌDO — v. Claudio.

CLOELIUS, ii, m., & a, ae, f. The name of an Albanian, later of a Roman gens; Cloelia, ae, f., a Roman maiden, who, having been given to Porsenna as a hostage, swam back across the Tiber to Rome.

*CLOSTELLUM, i, n. [dim. of clostrum = claustrum]. A small lock.

CLOSTRUM — v. Claustrum.

CLŌTHO, ūs, f. [= Κλωθώ]. 'The Spinner,' one of the three Færæ.

CLUÁCINA (Cloŏcina), ae, f. [cluo, 'to cleanse']. A surname of Venus, 'the Purifier.'

CLŪDO — v. Claudio.

CLUEO, —, —, 2. v. intr. [= κλέω]. (Antecl. & lat.) To hear one's self called in some way, to be mentioned, named or called, to be reputed or esteemed something: vir meus victor c.; o. aliquid fecisse, I am said to have done something; c. esse miserrimus; c. victoriâ, to have the credit of victory; c. gloriâ, to be mentioned with honour.

CLULLIUS, ii, m. A king of Alba, after whom the Clulliae Fossae were named.

CLUNIS, ia, m. (rarely f.). The buttock, haunch (of men and animals).

CLUPEA, ae, f. } (Clypea). A town

CLUPEAE, ārum, f. pl. } and promontory in Byzantium, now Clybea.

*CLURINUS, a, um, adj. [clura (not used), 'an ape']. (Pl.) Of or belonging to apes.

CLUSINUS, a, um, adj. [Clusium]. Of or pertaining to Clusium; subst., Clusini, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Clusium.

CLUSIUM, ii, n. An ancient town of Etruria, the residence of Porsenna, famous for its sulphur springs; originally called Camars or Camers — now Chiusi.

CLUSIUS, ii, m. [claudio]. 'He who shuts,' a surname of Janus, whose temple was closed in time of peace.

CLÜVIA, ae, f. A town of the Hirpini in Samnium, now Campo di Giore.

CLYMENE, es, f. [= Κλυμένη]. 1) A daughter of Oceanus. 2) An Amazon. 3) The companion of Helen. 4) The wife of Merops, and mother of Phaethon by Sol.

CLYMENEIUS, a, um, adj. [Clymene]. Of or from Clymene 4: C. proles = Phaethon.

CLYSTER, ēris, m. [= κλύστρος]. 1) A clyster, an injection. 2) A pipe or syringe for applying a clyster.

CLYTAEMNESTRA, ae, f. [= Κλυταιμνήστρα]. The daughter of Tyndareus and Leda, wife of Agamemnon, whom she murdered upon his return from Troy, afterwards slain herself by her son Orestes.

CLYTIE, es, f. [= Κλυτία]. A sea-nymph, changed by Apollo into a heliotrope.

CNIDIUS, a, um, adj. [Cnidus]. Of or belonging to Cnidus; subst., Cnidii, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Cnidus.

CNIDUS or Gnidus, i, f. [= Κνίδος]. A seaport of Caria, famous for its statue of Venus by Praxiteles — now Cnido.

CO- (before a vowel, instead of con), in compound words = cum.

COA, ae, f. A name given in derision to the dissolute Clodia, probably related to 'coitus.'

*CO-ACCEDO, 3. v. intr. (Pl.) To be added besides.

CO-ACERVATIO, ōnis, f. [coacervo]. Prop., a heaping together, esp. in rhetoric, an amassing of arguments.

CO-ACERVO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To heap up or together, pecuniam, cadavera; c. argumenta, to accumulate; coacervati luctus (poet.), successive, accumulated deaths.

CO-ACESCO, ōni, 3. v. intr. 1) To grow completely sour. *2) Trop., to become corrupt, rotten.

COACTE, adv. w. comp. [coactus]. In a short time, quickly.

COACTIO, ōnis, f. [cogo]. (Lat.) A collect- ing, calling in: argentarias co. facere, to call in money due.

COACTO, 1. v. tr. [intens. of cogo]. (Twice only — in Lucr.) 1) To contract, membra. 2) To constrain, to compel, omne immutare.

COACTOR, ōris, m. [cogo]. 1) A collector of money (from auctions, revenues, &c.). 2) (Tac.) Co. agminis, those who close the line of march, the rearguard. *3) (Lat.) One who compels or forces to any thing.

COACTUM, i, n. [cogo]. (Rar.) A thick coverlet of wool or straw.

COACTUS (I), a, um, adj. [part. of cogo]. Forced, feigned, lacrymae.

COACTUS (II), ūs, m. [oogo]. A forcing (in abl. sing. only): c. meo fecit, forced by me; c. civitatis, compelled by the state.

CO-ADDO, 3. v. tr. (Pl.) To add together with.

CO-AEDIFICŌ, ātum, 1. v. tr. To build to or upon, locum.

CO-AEQUĀLIS, e, adj. (Lat.) Of equal age, almost solely as a subst., Coaequales, ium, pl., comrades, companions.

CO-AEQUO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To make even or level, to level, montes. 2) To make equal in worth, reputation, &c., to equalise, gratiam omnium, omnia, to put on the same footing.

COAGMENTATIO, ōnis, f. [coagmento]. A joining or combining together, a connection, conjunction.

CO-AGMENTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [coagmentum]: To join or glue together, to connect, rem aliquam; trop., verba c., to cement together; c. pacem, to conclude.

COAGMENTUM, i, n. [cogo]. Concr., a joint; or abstr., a joining together, lapidum; trop., syllabam, combination.

COAGŪLO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. [coagulum]. (Lat.) To cause to curdle, lac, picem.

COAGŪLUM, i, n. [cogo]. Brennet or runnet, the curdled milk in the stomachs of young sucking animals; trop., that which joins together: c. animi atque amoris.

CO-ÅLESCO, lui, litum, 3. v. intr. 1) To grow together: saxa co. calce, are cemented; vulnus c., grows together again. Hence, trop.: A) = to unite together, to agree, to coalesce entirely: multitudo c. in corpus unius populi; voces co. ex duobus quasi corporibus, are compounded: B) condiciones pacis coalescentes, concerning which they were about to agree; regnum c., recovers, is restored (a figure taken from a wound). 2) To take root, to grow up: ilex inter saxa c.; hence, trop. (lat.) auctoritas Galbae coaluit, has gathered strength, taken root, and the participle coalitus = inveterate, confirmed, strengthened.

CO-ANGUSTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To press together, to compress, to make narrow. *2) Trop., to limit, to restrict.

COARCTATIO, CO-ARCTO — v. Coartatio, Co-arcto.

CO-ARGUO, ui, —, 3. v. tr. 1) To make known, to show clearly, to prove, to demonstrate, to betray, perfidiam, mendacium alicujus, crimen certis suspicionibus; (poet.) c. aures domini, to betray. 2) To convict, to prove guilty, alicquem avaritiæ; literæ illum cc. 3) To refute, to show something to be false: usus o. legem, proves to be ineffectual.

COARTATIO, ònis, f. [coarto]. (Rar.) A drawing or crowding together, militum.

CO-ARTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To press together, to compress, to confine, to narrow, hostes; coartatus in oppido, shut up; fauces co. viam, narrow the way; c. sibi fauces (poet.) = to torment one's self. 2) Trop.: A) to shorten, to abridge, consulum alicujus: B) of style, to compress, plura in unum librum.

COAXO, 1. v. intr. (Lat.) To croak (the natural sound made by frogs).

COCĀLUS, i, m. A king of Sicily, who received Dædalus, and killed Minos, by whom Dædalus was persecuted.

COCCĒIUS, i, m. The name of an Italian gens — v. Nerva.

*COCCINĀTUS, a, um, adj. [coccum]. (Lat.) Clothed in scarlet.

COCCINEUS or Coccineus, a, um, adj. [coccum]. Scarlet-coloured.

COCCUM, i, n. [= κόκκος]. 1) An insect found on the scarlet oak, from which a scarlet dye was prepared. The ancients erroneously thought it to be a berry. 2) Scarlet colour. 3) Scarlet cloth, a scarlet garment.

COCHLEA, æ, f. [= κοχλιάς]. A snail.

COCHLEAR, āris, n., more rar. also Cochle-ære, is, [cochlea, 'of the form of a snail-shell']. (Lat.) A spoon.

COCHLEĀRIUM, ii, n. [cochlea]. 1) A snail-reservoir, a place where snails were kept and fed. 2) = A spoon.

COCIO, ònis, m. (Ante-cl.) A broker, factor.

*COCIONOR, 1. v. intr. [cocio]. (Lat.) To be a broker.

COCLĒS, Itis, adj. 1) (Rar.) One-eyed. 2) A Roman surname; thus, M. Horatius C., the celebrated hero of the war against Porsenna.

COCOSĀTES, um, m. pl. A tribe in Gallia Aquitana, prob. in the present Gascogne.

COCTĪLIS, e, adj. [coquo]. (Poet. & lat.) Burned, laterculus; c. murus, built of burned bricks.

COCTŪRA, æ, f. [coquo]. (Lat.) A cooking, a melting (of metals).

COCYTUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to the Cocytus: virgo C. = Aleto.

COCYTUS, i, m. [= Κωκυτός, 'the river of lamentation']. A mythic river in the Lower World.

CODĀNUS SINUS. The Baltic.

CODETA, æ, f. The name of two fields near Rome: C. major, beyond the Tiber; C. minor, on the Campus Martius.

CODEX — v. Caudex.

CODICILLĀRIS, e, adj. [codicillus]. (Lat.) Named or appointed by a rescript of an emperor.

CODICILLUS, i, m. [codex]. 1) (Ante-cl.) Prop., a small trunk or stock of a tree. 2) Pl., a tablet of small wooden leaves (hence the plural), which were covered with wax. Hence: A) a note, billet, a short letter written in haste (cf. epistola): B) (lat.) in gen., any short written treatise, particularly — a) a petition, memorial — b) a diploma, cabinet-order of an emperor — c) an addition to a will in the form of a letter to the heir, a testamentary order, a codicil.

CODRUS, i, m. [= Κόδρος]. 1) The last king of Athens. 2) A bad poet and enemy of Virgil.

COECIGĒNUS, etc. — v. Caecigenus, etc.

COELA (ōrum, n. pl.) EUBOEÆE [τὰ κοίλα τῆς Εὐβοίας]. A maritime region in Euboea, with an indented shore-line.

COELESYRIA, also Coele (es) Syria (æ), æ, f. [τὴ κοίλη Συρία, 'Hollow Syria']. A country between Libanus and Anti-libanus.

COELEBS — v. Caelebs.

COELĒS or Caelēs, Itis, adj. [coelum]. (Poet.) Heavenly, celestial, regna; esp. subst., Coelites, um, m. pl., the gods (rar. in the sing., Coeles, Itis, m., a god).

COELESTIS or Caelestis, e, adj. [coelum]. Relating to or coming from heaven, heavenly, celestial: c. aqua = rain, arcus = the rainbow; cc. astra, prodigia; subst., Coelestes, ium, m. pl. = the gods, esp. the gods of the Upper World. Hence: A) freq. = divine, coming from or pertaining to the gods, stirps, auxilium, nectar: B) trop. (with sup.), excellent, eminent, divine, godlike, legiones, ingenium, opus; vir c. in dicendo.

COELIĀNUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to a Coelius.

COELI-CŌLA, æ, m. [colo]. (Poet.) An inhabitant of heaven = a god.

COELICŪLUS, i, m. [dim. of Coelius]. A part of the Coelian Hill.

COELI-FER, ēra, ērum, adj. [fero]. (Poet.) Bearing the heavens, an epithet applied to Atlas and Hercules.

COELIMONTĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Coelimon-tium]. Of or pertaining to Coelimentium.

COELIMONTIUM, ii, n. The second region of Rome, encompassing the Coelian Hill (v. Coelius Mons).

*COELI-PŌTENS, tis, adj. (Pl.) Powerful in heaven.

COELIUS MONS, or only Coelius, ii, m. The Coelian Hill, one of the seven hills of Rome — now the Lateran Mount.

COELIUS, ii, m. The name of a Roman gens: thus, esp. 1) Caius C. Calvus, a tribune of the people (107 B. C.), and a renowned orator. 2) Lucius C. Antipater, a historian, in the time of the Gracchi. 3) Marcus C. Rufus, a cultivated and learned Roman, a friend of Cicero, by whom he was defended in a speech still extant.

COELUM or Caelum, i, n. (pl. Coeli — poet. & lat.) 1) The sky, the heavens: fulmina jaciuntur de coelo; de c. tangi, ici, percuti, to be struck with lightning; de c. servare, to observe the signs in the heavens; coelo albente, at daybreak; prov. — a) quid si c. ruat = your fear is groundless — b) toto c. errare, to be entirely mistaken. 3) Meton.: A) to denote that which belongs to the gods, heaven as the residence of the gods: de c. delapsus (missus), sent by the gods; asserere me coelo (v. Assero); hence, esp. = immortality: coelum alicui decernitur; B) trop. = the height of happiness, honour, bliss; efferre (ferre), tolere aliquem in (ad) coelum, to extol one to the skies; de c. detrahare aliquem = to deprive one of an exalted honour; in coelo sum or coelum attingo = I am exceedingly happy: C) = the air, atmosphere, temperature, weather: c. salubre, hibernum; coeli gravitas: D) a region or quarter of the heavens, a climate, zone: c. sub quo natus sum: E) any thing resembling the sky in shape, an arch, a vault.

COELUS, i, m. Heaven personified, a son of Æther and Dies, and the father of Saturnus (Greek Ouranos).

CO-ËMO, ēmi, emptum, 3. v. tr. To buy up, to purchase in large quantities, aliquid.

COËMPTIO, ōnis, f. [coemo]. Prop., a purchasing together, a marriage contracted by a mutual mock sale. Freq., it was a marriage in form only, which was at once dissolved by 'manumissio.' It was contracted esp. with old men, in order to free the wife from the 'tutela' and certain troublesome 'sacra gentilicia,' both of which expired by the sale.

COËMPTIONĀLIS, e, adj. [coëemptio]. Senes co., old slaves, who, because of their little value, had to be sold together with better slaves, or, in gen., along with more valuable chattels (others explain it as old men fit to count in a sham marriage (v. Coëemptio); hence, worthless (v. Plaut. Bacch. 4, 9, 52, and Cur. ap. Cic. Fam. 7, 29, 1).

COENA, ae, f. The principal meal of the Romans, taken in ancient times about midday, later about the ninth hour, i. e., 3 o'clock p. m. — dinner, supper: apparare, facere, coquere c.; ad c. invitare (vocare); ire, venire ad c.; inter (lat., also super) coenam, at table. Hence (lat.) — a) = a course at dinner, a dish: c. prima, altera, tertia — b) = a dinner-party — c) = a dining-room.

COENĀCŪLUM, i, n. [coena]. A small room in the upper story, a garret (originally used as a dining-room; in later times, the habitation of the poorer classes.

COENĀTICUS, a, um, adj. [coena]. (Pl.) Pertaining to a dinner: spes c., hope of a dinner COENĀTIO, ōnis, f. [coena]. (Lat.) A dining-room.

COENĀTIUNCŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of coena]. A small dining-room. (Lat.)

COENĀTORIUS, a, um, adj. [coena]. Pertaining to dinner or to the table.

COENĪTO, 1. v. intr. [freq. of coeno]. To dine often, to be accustomed to dine.

COENO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. [coena]. 1) Intr., to take a meal, to dine, apud aliquem, cum aliquo; hence, part. coenatus, having dined, after dinner. 2) Tr. (poet. & lat.), to eat, to consume, aprum; trop. (ante-cl.), c. magnum malum, to endure; nox coenata, spent in feasting; (poet.) c. flagitium, to imitate and represent whilst at table.

COENŌSUS, a, um, adj. [coenum]. (Poet.) Muddy, full of mud.

COENŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of coena]. A small dinner.

COENUM, i, n. Mud, dirt, filth (always with the idea of loathsomeness — cf. lutum and limus); trop., a term of contempt: c. plebeium; volvi in tenebris et c. = in a low and despicable condition; as a nickname, o coenum! you vile fellow!

CO-EO, ii, Itum, 4. v. intr. & tr. I. Intr. 1) (Mostly poet. & lat.) To go or come together, to assemble, to meet, Pharsaliam, in porticum Liviae; (poet.) vix decem verba nobis coierunt, have passed between us; viri cc. inter se, in order to fight. 2) To be united into a whole, to unite, to combine: A) prop., of living beings — a) multitudo illa c. in populos; milites cc. inter se, assemble — b) to cohabit, to copulate: aries c. cum ove: B) of inanimate objects (poet. & lat.), lac c., curdles; sanguis, vulnus c., closes; digiti cc., grow together; labra cc., close. 3) To unite for a certain purpose, to join together, to agree, cum aliquo, de aliquo re; duodecim adulescentes inter se cc., conspired; (lat.) c. in societatem, to enter into an alliance; (poet.) dextrae cc. in foedera, they shake hands in confirmation of the alliance. Hence, II. Tr., to enter into, to conclude, societatem rei alicujus or de re aliqua, foedus cum aliquo; pass., societas coitur.

COEPI, isse (coeptus), v. defect. (ante-cl., Coepio, coepere; lat., Coepturus) [con and apio, &ro, 'to seize upon']. I. Act., tempora praeterita. 1) To begin, to undertake, usually with an infin. act. or 'fieri' only: c. dicere, c. diligens esse; also, poet. & lat., with an infin. pass.; likewise with an acc., esp. a neut. pron.: coepit pugnari, they began to fight; c. iter; c. aliquid; sometimes 'coepi' alone = coepi dicere. 2) (Mostly lat.) Intr., to begin = to take its beginning, to arise: silentium c.; pugna c.; jurgium c. ab illo, proceeds from him. II. Pass. coeptus (sum), commenced, began (almost always with an infin. pass.): bello premi coepti sunt; lapides jacti coepti sunt; consuli coepti sumus; cum eo agi coeptum est: hence, part. coeptus, begun, undertaken: bellum cum Antiocho coeptum.

COEPTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. [intens. of coepi]. 1) Tr., to begin or undertake eagerly, facere aliquid; (ante-cl. & lat.) c. seditiones, insidias. 2) Intr., to begin = to take its beginning: conjunctio c.

COEPTUM, i, n. [coepi]. A work begun, an undertaking: audax c.; bene c., a good undertaking.

COEPTUS, ūs, m. [coepi]. A beginning.

CO-EPULŌNUS, i, m. [epulo]. (Pl.) A companion at a feast, a fellow-banquetor.

CO-ERCEO, cui, eŭtum, 2. v. tr. [arceo]. 1) To hold together or within certain limits, to enclose, to surround, amnem ripis, capillos vittā; c. hostes intra muros; c. vitem, to confine, to check the exuberant growth of, by lopping. 2) Trop., to keep within bounds, to confine, to check, to restrain, cupiditates, temeritatem alicujus, socios atque oves, seditionem; c. alique[m] ab effuso studio, to keep back from. Hence = to chastise, to punish: c. alique[m] verberibus.

COERCITIO, ōnis, f. [coërceo]. (Mostly lat.) A confining, restraining. Hence: A) = a chastisement, punishment, errantium, servorum: B) = a coercive measure, coercion: damnum allamque c. militibus inhibere: C) = the right or power of punishing or of using force (of magistrates): c. alicujus or in alique[m].

*COERCITOR, ōris, m. (Lat.) One who keeps in check or restrains.

COEUS, ūs, m. [instead of coitus from coeo]. 1) (Pl.) A coming together, a meeting: primo c. 2) (Ante-cl. & lat.) A conjunction, union: c. animi et corporis. 3) An assembly, a meeting, society, company: c. conciliumque; c. hominum, deorum; habere c., to hold a meeting; c. dimittes.

COEUS, i, m. [= Κοῖος]. A Titan, son of Uranus and father of Latona.

*CO-EXERCITĀTUS, a, um, adj. (Lat.) Exercised at the same time.

COGITĀBILIS, e, adj. [cogito]. (Lat.) Considerable.

*COGITĀBUNDUS, a, um, adj. [cogito]. (Lat.) Thoughtful.

COGITĀTE, adv. [cogito]. Considerately, upon mature consideration.

COGITATIO, ōnis, f. 1) Abstr. = a thinking, meditating, considering; consideration, reflection: percipere, complecti (alique[m]) aliquid cogitatione, to think of, to imagine: c. rei alicujus; injicere alicui cogitationem; habere c. argenti, 2) Concr. = a thought, either = an idea, opinion, or = a purpose, design, plan: multas co. versantur in animo meo; suscipere c. de re aliqua. 3) The faculty or power of thought, the reasoning faculty: ratio et c.

COGITĀTUM, i, n. [cogito]. A thought, purpose, plan, design.

COGITĀTUS, ūs, m. (lat.) = Cogitatio.

COGITO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [contr. from cogito, 'to revolve in the mind']. 1) Of the thinking faculties, to think; hence = to meditate, to deliberate or to reflect upon; rar. = to contrive, to devise: c. aliquid, de re aliqua, quid faciam; c. secum animo (rar. in or cum animo), in one's mind; callide c.; cogitata eloqui non potuit, his thoughts. 2) (Rar.) Intr., of the sentiments, to have a certain feeling on a subject, to be disposed toward: male (bene, sapienter, humaniter) c. adversus (in) alique[m], also de aliquo. 3) To intend, to have in mind, to think upon, to purpose, aliquid facere, res novas, proscriptiones, also c. de re aliqua; (poet.) quid cogitat, what does he intend?

COGNATIO, ōnis, f. [cognatus]. 1) Abstr., Blood-relationship, consanguinity: c. est mihi cum aliquo; c. deorum, with the gods; trop., c. studiorum; numerus non habet c. cum oratione, agreement, resemblance. 2) Concr., relations, relatives, kindred: tota c.

COGNĀTUS, a, um, adj. [co-nasoor]. 1) Related by blood, connate, both on the father's and the mother's side (cf. agnatus, consanguineus): is mihi est c.; subst., Cognatus, i, m., a relation, kinsman: c. alicujus; multi co. 2) Trop.: A) of things, that belong to relations, regi, peccata: B) in gen. = kindred, like, similar: deus mundo formam sibi cognatam dedit.

COGNITIO, ōnis, f. [cognosco]. 1) A becoming acquainted with, acquaintance: alique[m] cognitione et hospitio dignum judicare. 2) A knowing, knowledge, cognition: c. contemplative naturae; hoc facile c. habet, is easily understood; co. deorum innatas, notions, conceptions concerning the gods. 3) (Com.) = Agnitio, a recognition: inde c. facta est. 4) Tech. t. in the lang. of law, a judicial examination (esp. an extraordinary one, not made by the ordinary judges): c. magistratuum, by the magistrates; c. caedis, rerum capitalium; c. inter patrem et filium, de ejusmodi criminibus.

COGNITOR, ōris, m. [cognosco]. 1) Tech. t., a witness who testifies to the identity of any one, a voucher. 2) An attorney, advocate in a lawsuit, usually for a person (cf. procurator) who is prevented from appearing in court: c. juris alicujus; cognitorem fieri pro aliquo, in litem; auctor et c. sententiae. Hence (lat.), in partic. = a public prosecutor.

COGNITURA, ae, f. [cognosco]. (Lat.) The office of a state's attorney, for looking up and procuring persons indebted to the public treasury COGNITUS, a, um, adj. with comp and sup. [part. of cognosco]. Known, tried, proved: homo virtute cognita; magis hoc, quo sunt cognitiora, gravant. The ablative 'cognito' is sometimes used absolutely: ex agrestibus cognito, etc., on its being ascertained that, &c.

COGNOBILIS, e, adj. w. comp. [cognosco]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Intelligible.

COGNOMEN, inis, n. [oon-nomen]. 1) A surname, partly = a family name (as, Cicero, Scipio, etc.), partly = an epithet, given to one on account of a celebrated deed, remarkable quality, &c. (as, Africanus, Sapiens, etc.). 2) (Poet. & lat.) A name, in gen.

COGNOMENTUM, i, n. (Ante-cl. & lat.) = Cognomen.

COGNOMINIS, e, adj. [cognomen]. (Poet. & lat.) Of the same name, like-named, alicui or alicujus.

COGNOMINO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. [cognomen]. (Mostly lat.) 1) To call by a surname or cognomen, to surname: c. aliquem Thurinum; verba cognominata, synonymes. 2) To name, to call, in gen.: Ptolemaeus rex cognominatus est.

CO-G-NOSCO, nōvi, nītum, 3. v. tr. 1) To become acquainted with, to learn, to perceive, to ascertain, and, in the perf., to have acquired knowledge, i. e., to know, by the senses (hence, freq. = to see, to hear, &c.) as well as by the mind: c. regiones, naturam rerum, aliquem ex libris alicujus; c. miserias sociorum; c. de salute Marcelli; c. aliquid ex (ab) aliquo; c. quis illud fecerit, eum abisse. 2) = Agnoscoere, to recognize, faciem alicujus, res suas, as belonging to one's self. 3) To make one's self acquainted with, to inform one's self concerning a thing, de re aliqua, aliquid cum aliquo, to consult with one concerning something. In partic., as a tech. t.: A) of a judge or magistrate, likewise of an orator, to examine a case in law, to make one's self acquainted with: c. causam; c. de agro Campano; hence, in gen., to examine, numerus militum: B) in military lang. = to recognize: c. quali sit natura montis. 4) Of sexual intercourse, to know.

CŌGO, cōēgi, coactum, 3. v. tr. [co-ago]. 1) To drive, bring, lead or collect together, to unite: c. pecudes, multitudinem hominum; c. naves, exercitum in unum locum, to concentrate, senatum, to call together, to assemble; c. aliquem in senatum, to send for, to compel one to appear; c. hostes in obsidionem, to drive to one place, so that they can be besieged. Hence: A) c. aliquem in classem, to press one into the naval service: B) = to drive in, navem in portum, oves in stabulum: C) c. agmen, to close the train, to bring up the rear; sometimes, of the commander = to keep the train together: D) (poet.) = to make thick, to thicken, mella: E) c. pecuniam, to collect or call in: F) c. aliquem in ordinem = to confine one within certain limits, to check; and, c. se ipsum in ordinem = to feign humility: G) trop. = to confine, to restrict, to press together: c. potestatem alicujus in spatium anni, jus civile in certa genera; Italia cogitur in angustias, gressus narum. 2) To force, to compel, aliquem facere or ut faciat aliquid, rar. ad aliquid faciendum; c. aliquem in deditionem; hoc (id, illud) te cogo, I compel you to do this; thus likewise, hoc cogeries. 3) (Rar.) To conclude, to infer, aliquid ita esse.

COHAERENTER, adv. [cohaereo]. (Lat.) Uninterruptedly.

COHAERENTIA, ae, f. [cohaereo]. Coherence, connection.

CO-HAEREO, si, sum, 2. v. intr. To stick or hold together, to cohere: A) with something else, cum re or (poet. & lat.) rei alicui; haec co. inter se; trop. = to be closely connected with (in friendship): B) in its parts, in itself: mundus apte co.; oratio non co.; trop., haec non cohaerent, these things do not agree, are not compatible. Hence = to subsist: homo ille co. non potest; c. aliqua re, to be composed of, to consist of; perf. part., pass., cohaesus (lat.) = cohaerens.

CO-HAERESCO, haesi, —, 3. v. intr. [inch. of cohaereo]. (Rar.) To cohere, to hang together.

CO-HĒRES, ēdis, comm. A coheir, a fellow-heir.

CO-HĪBEO, ui, itum, 2. v. tr. [co-habeo]. 1) To hold together: c. crines nodo. 2) To hold, to contain, to enclose: terra c. semen; c. aliquid in se. 3) To hold fast, to keep back, ventos in antro; catenae co. aliquem; c. bellum = to be unwilling to attack, and thereby to commence the war; hence = to restrain, to withhold, manus, libidines ab re aliqua. 4) To check, to bridle, to tame, cupiditatem, iracundiam; c. provinciam (lat.) = to administer; (rar.) c. aliquem quominus aliquid faciat, to hinder, to prevent.

CŌHIBILIS, e, adj. [cohibeo]. (Lat.) Susinct, short.

CŌHIBĪTIO, ōnis, f. [cohibeo]. (Cic., doubtf. read.; the better MSS. have 'prohibitio.') A restraining.

CO-HŪNESTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To honour greatly or in common with others, exsequias alicujus; c. mortem suam virtute = to render honourable by.

CO-HORRESCO, rui, —, 2. v. intr. [inch. of horreo]. To shudder, to shake (from fear or fever).

CŌHORS, tis, f. [related to χῆρος]. 1) (Also written Chors or Cors.) An enclosure, a court for cattle and fowls. 2) Tech. t.: A) a division of the Roman army, one-tenth of a legion, containing three maniples = six centuries, a cohort: cc. sociae, alariae, and sometimes abs. co. (opp. to legiones) = the troops of the allies; c. praetoria, the bodyguard of the commander: B) the train of a praetor, partly under-officers, partly friends, who went with him to his province. 3) (Poet. & lat.) In gen., a crowd, throng.

CŌHORTATIO, ōnis, f. [cohörtor]. An exhortation = an encouraging address, encouragement, militum.

CŌHORTICŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of cohors]. A small cohort.

CŌ-HORTOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. To exhort, to encourage, esp. of a commander, to exhort the soldiers to bravery: c. milites ad proelium, aliquem ad aliquid faciendum; also, followed by ut or ne.

CO-INQUINO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To pollute, to defile, aliquem stercore; trop., c. se scelere.

COITIO, ōnis, f. [coeo]. *1) (Ter.) A coming together, a meeting. 2) A uniting for a bad purpose = a plot, conspiracy: c. tribunorum, candidatorum; per c., through intrigue.

COITUS, ūs, m. [coeo]. 1) (Lat.) A union, connection, amnium, syllabarum. 2) Coition.

CŌLAPHUS, i, m. [= κολᾶφος]. (Poet. & lat.) A blow with the fist (of alapa).

CŌLAX, ācis, m. [= κολᾶξ]. (Com.) 'The Flatterer,' the title of two lost plays of Ennius and Plautus.

COLCHIAECUS, a, um, adj. (Doubtful read.) = Colchus.

COLCHICUS, a, um, adj. = Colchus.

COLCHIS, Idia, f. [= Κολχίς, Ἰδία]. A province of Asia, on the Black Sea, made famous by the expedition of the Argonauts thither—now Mingrelia, Guria and Imeritia.

COLCHIS, Idia, f. adj. (Poet.) Colchian: subst., a Colchian woman, esp. = Medea.

COLCHUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Colchis, Colchian.

CŌLEUS, i, m. A testicle.

CŌLIPHUM, il, n. (Pl.) A kind of nourishing food for athletes.

CŌLIS (I.) — v. Caulis.

CŌLIS (II.), Idia, f. [= Κολίς]. A country beyond the Ganges, inhabited by Ethiopians.

COL-LABASCO (Conl.), 3. v. intr. [labo]. (Pl.) Only trop. = to totter.

COL-LABĒFACTO (Conl.), 1. v. tr. (Poet.) 1) To make to totter, onus. 2) To liquefy a hard body.

COL-LABĒFIO (Conl.), factus, fieri, v. pass.

1) To be made to fall or to totter, to fall together of to ruins: navis c., sinks; trop., c. ab aliquo = to be overthrown, to be supplanted. 2) (Poet.) To become liquid.

COL-LĀBOR (Conl.), lapsus, 3. v. dep. intr. To fall or sink together, esp. of buildings, &c.: aedes c. ruinā; also, of persons = to sink down in death or in a swoon; trop., c. in corruptelam suam, to fall into.

COL-LACĒRATUS (Conl.), a, um, part. (Tac.) Completely torn to pieces.

COLLACRIMATIO, ōnis, f. [collacrimo]. A weeping together, a weeping.

COL-LACRĪMO (Conl.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to weep together with, to weep. 2) Tr., to bewail, casum suum.

COLLACTEA, ae, f. [con-lac]. (Lat.) One COLLACTEUS, ē, m. } nourished with the same milk, a foster-sister, a foster-brother.

COLLĀRE, is, n. (not used in nom. sing.) [collum]. (Ante-cl.) A collar, a band for the neck.

COLLĀTIA, ae, f. An ancient Sabine town in the vicinity of Rome.

COLLĀTICIUS or Collādtius, a, um, adj. [confero]. (Lat.) Brought together, raised by contributions, mingled: sepultura c., effected by contributions.

COLLĀTINUS, a, um, adj. [Collatia]. Of or pertaining to Collatia; in partic., a surname of L. Targuinius, the husband of Lucretia; subst., Collatini, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of C.

COLLATIO, ōnis, f. [confero]. 1) A bringing together: c. signorum = a battle; c. militiarum (Pl.), a combination. 2) A comparing, comparison: c. rerum inter se. 3) A contribution of money, a collection: facere c. in rem aliquam. 4) A conferring, rei alicujus.

COLLĀTIVUS, a, um, adj. [confero]. (Pl.) Venter c., into which things of every kind are brought together.

COLLĀTOR, ōris, m. [confero]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A contributor, symbolarum.

COL-LATRO (Conl.), 1. v. tr. (Lat.) Prop., to bark at violently; trop., c. philosophiam = to revile.

COLLĀTUS, ūs, m. [confero]. (Lat., rar.) Prop., a bringing together: c. signorum, an attack, a battle.

COLLAUDATIO, ōnis, f. [collaudo]. (Rar.) Strong commendation, alicujus.

COL-LAUDO (Conl.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To praise very much or in all respects, aliquem, clementiam alicujus.

COL-LAXO (Conl.), 1. v. tr. (Lucr.) To widen, to make loose, rem.

COLLECTA, ae, f. [prop., part. of colligo II., so. pecunia]. That which is brought together in money, a collection, contribution.

COLLECTĀNEUS, a, um, adj. [colligo II.]. Collected together: dicta c., a collection of witty sayings, the title of a work of Caesar (now lost).

COLLECTICIUS, a, um, adj. [colligo II.]. Collected, gathered together: exercitus c., swiftly swept together, not levied in the ordinary way.

COLLECTIO, ōnis, f. [colligo II.]. 1) A collecting, gathering together, membrorum. 2) Tech. t. in rhetoric, a brief repetition, recapitulation. 3) (Lat.) A syllogism, conclusion. 4) A gathering of corrupt humors, a tumor.

COLLECTIVUS, a, um, adj. [colligo II.]. (Lat.) 1) Collected, gathered together, humor. 2) Pertaining to a syllogism.

COLLECTUS, ūs, m. [colligo]. (Very rar.) A collection.

COLLEGA, ae, m. [con-lego]. 1) One who is chosen at the same time with another = a partner in office, a colleague: c. esse alicujus or alicui; habere aliquem c. in praetura, regni, in the regal dignity. 2) (Ante-cl. & lat.) A comrade, companion, fellow.

COLLEGIUM, ii, n. [collega]. 1) Abstr., Collegueship, association: homo per tot co. expertus, by association in so many offices. 2) Concr., the persons united by the same office, commission or trade, a college, corporation, guild, fraternity: c. tribunorum plebis, praetorum, augurum; c. mercatorum, fabrorum; pronunciant pro c. = ex collegii sententia, in the name of the college.

COL-LĒVO (con-l.), ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To smooth, to make smooth.

COL-LIBERTUS (con-l.), i, m. A fellow-freeman.

COL-LIBET (con-l.), uit or itum est, 2. v. impers. intr. It pleases, it is agreeable, mihi aliquid facere; si quid c.

COL-LĪDO, īsi, īsum, 3. v. tr. [con-laedo]. 1) To dash, strike, beat or press together: navigia c. inter se; c. dentes; c. manus = to clap; amnis uterque colliditur, both rivers flow together, unite. 2) (Poet. & lat.) Trop., to bring one thing into hostile conflict with another, to set at variance: Graecia collisa barbariae, duo reipublicae capita inter se collisa.

COLLIGATIO, ōnis, f. [colligo I.]. A binding together, conjunction, connection, operis, omnium causarum.

COL-LIGO (l.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [con-ligo]. 1) To bind together, manus. 2) Trop.: A) to connect, to unite, homines inter se; c. sententias verbis = to give to a sentence a rhythmical structure; c. multa uno libro, to comprehend: B) = to restrain, to check, impetum Antonii; c. Brutum in Graecia, to make Brutus remain in Greece.

COLLIGO (II.), lēgi, lectum, 3. v. tr. [con-lego]. 1) To collect, to bring or get together, to gather, both of things (c. flores, capillos nodo or in nodum, to tie up; c. vasa, of soldiers at their setting out, to pack up) and of persons (exercitus collectus ex senibus, swept together; c. reliquos ex fuga; milites co. orbem, form a circle; milites co. se, rally). 2) A) To place together — a) to comprehend in a discourse, to mention together, to enumerate: c. omnes causas, tot bella civilia — b) to place together in the mind, to consider, to weigh, to think upon: c. maximarum civitatum veteres calamitates — c) to infer, to conclude, aliquid; paucitatem hostium inde c.; ex eo c. quam sis occupatus: B) to acquire, to gain, to obtain, bonum rumorem, benevolentiam civium; c. invidiam ex re aliqua, to incur: C) c. sitim, to become thirsty, frigus, to catch cold, to become cold, rabiem, to become enraged: D) of numbers, to amount to, to number: ambitus c. ducentos pedes. 3) Trop., c. se or animum, mentem, to collect or compose one's self, to recover one's senses, ex maximo timore. 4) (Poet. & lat.) To contract, to shorten, to concentrate: anguis c. se; c. se in tenues umbras; c. se in arma, they pressed themselves so closely together that they were covered by their shields.

COL-LINEO (con-l.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Rar.) 1) To direct in a straight line towards, hastam aliquo. 2) To hit the mark.

COL-LINO (con-l.), lēvi, litum, 3. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To besmear, tabulas cerā, crines pulvere; trop., to defile, pulchrum ornatum turpes mores co.

COL-LINUS, a, um, adj. [collis]. Of or pertaining to a hill, hilly: porta c., a gate in Rome near the Quirinal hill; hence, herbae co. (poet.), growing near this gate.

COL-LIQUEFACTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of colliquefacio]. Melted, made liquid.

COL-LIQUESCO (con-l.), liqui, —, 3. v. intr. (Lat.) To become liquid, to melt, to dissolve.

COLLIS, is, m. A hill, an eminence.

COLLISIO, ōnis, f. } [collido]. (Lat.) A dash-
COLLISUS, ūs, m. } ing or striking together, a concussion.

COLLŌCATIO, ōnis, f. [colloco]. 1) A putting, placing, setting up, verborum, collocation; siderum. 2) C. filiae, a giving in marriage.

COL-LŌCO (con-l.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To put, place, set or lay a thing somewhere: c. rem in mensa, aliquem in navi, in sede; c. legiones in illis locis; c. classem Miseni, cohortes Puteolis; (ante-cl.) c. aliquem in arborem; also abs. c. praesidia, columnas, impedimenta, to put in its place; c. insidias alicui, to lay snares for. Hence: A) c. se Athenis, to settle, to take up one's abode; c. aliquem (hospitem) apud aliquem, to put into quarters, to lodge: B) = to employ, to place in: c. omne studium in doctrina; c. adolescentiam in voluptatibus, to spend, to pass away: C) c. se in re aliqua = to occupy one's self exclusively with a thing: c. se in cognitione et scientia: D) satis in libris prioribus de illa re collocavi (Tac.), I have treated or written. 2) Of money and pecuniary affairs: A) to place, to lay out, to invest: c. domum in illo loco, magnas pecunias in illa provincia; trop., c. beneficium apud aliquem, as it were to put out at interest: B) = to employ, patrimonium suum in patriae salute. 3) To give in marriage: c. filiam alicui in matrimonio; c. sorores nuptum in alias civitates.

COL-LŪ ŪPLETO (con-l.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Rar.) 1) To enrich much, aliquem. 2) Trop., to adorn.

COLLOCŪTIO, ōnis, f. [colloquor]. (Rar.) A conference, conversation.

COLLOQUIUM, ii, n. [colloquor]. A conference, conversation (usually appointed for a certain purpose — cf. sermo): c. alicujus or cum aliquo; venire in or ad c.

COL-LŌQUOR (con-l.), cūtus, 3. v. dep. tr. & intr. 1) Intr., to speak or to converse with one (usually on business or in consequence of an appointment — cf. sermocinor and confabulor), cum aliquo; duces cc. inter se de multis rebus. 2) Tr. — a) with an accus. of the person: c. aliquem (Pl.), to speak to one — b) with an accusative of the thing: de his rebus, quas tecum colloqui volo.

COL-LŪCEO (con-l.), —, —, 2. v. intr. To shine, to give light, to be illuminated on all sides: ignis, poculum c.; sol c. mundo, gives light to the world; acies c. flammis; mare c. a sole; trop., c. floribus; c. furtis.

COLLUCTATIO, ōnis, f. [colluctor]. (Lat.) A wrestling, struggling; trop., c. cum verbis, difficulty in pronunciation; also = the death-struggle.

COL-LUCTOR (con-l.), ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. (Lat.) To wrestle, to struggle with.

COL-LŪDO (con-l.), si, sum, 3. v. intr. 1) To play with one, cum aliquo, and (poet.) c. paribus, with one's equals. 2) Trop., to act in collusion with, to have a secret understanding with.

COLLUM, i, n. (ante-cl. also Collus, i, m.). The neck of men and animals (trop. also of the neck of a bottle, &c.): invadere in collum, to fall upon one's neck, to embrace closely (also, petere collum amplexu); torquere (obtorquere, obstringere) collum alicui (tech. t.), to seize upon, and drag one by force before a court or to prison. Hence, trop.: A) actum est de c. meo (Com.), it costs me my neck: B) (poet. = services) as a sign of servitude: c. dare triumpho, to yield, to confess one's self conquered.

COL-LUO (con-l.), ui, ūtum, 3. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To wash, to rinse, dentes aquā; fons c. ora, quenches the thirst.

COLLŪSIO, ōnis, f. [colludo]. A secret and deceitful understanding with another, a collusion, cum aliquo.

COLLŪSOR, ōris, m. [colludo]. A playmate.

COL-LUSTRO (con-l.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To illumine on all sides: sol c. omnia; trop., collustrata in picturis (opp. to opaca), a bright colouring. 2) To consider on all sides, to inspect, omnia oculis.

*COL-LŪTŪLO, 1. v. tr. [con-lutum]. (Pl.) Prop., to daub; trop., to dishonour, to pollute, aliquem.

COLLŪVIES, ei, (lat.) } f. [con-luo]. A con-COLLŪVIO, ōnis, } fling of filth, mostly trop., a filthy and contemptible mixture, a filthy and mixed multitude: c. omnis generis animalium, omnium scelerum; c. gentium, a confusion of (patrician and plebeian) families; c. Drusi, the dregs of the people accompanying Drusus.

COLLYBUS, i, m. [= κολυβες]. Exchange, profit made in exchanging money; hence, trop., the banking business, money-changing.

COLLYRA, ae, f. [= κολύρα]. (Pl.) A kind of pastry, a bread which was shred into broth.

COLLYRICUS, a, um, adj. [collyra]. (Pl.) Jus c., bread-broth, bread-soup.

COLLYRIUM, ii, n. [= κολύριον]. (Poet. & lat.) A kind of eye-salve.

CŌLO (I.), cōlui, cultum, 3. v. tr. 1) To till, to cultivate or labour upon a field, agrum; hence, to tend, to raise plants, vitem, poma. 2) To stay or dwell in a place: A) tr., to inhabit, has terras, urbem, Rhēni ripam; freq. of the gods, who were supposed to take up their abode in a place from preference, and to love and protect it (cf. 3, A and B): dii qui hanc urbem c.: B) (mostly lat.) intr., to live: c. circa utramque ripam: hence, colentes = inhabitants. 3) Trop.: A) to care for a person or thing, to bestow care upon: c. aliquem; dii cc. genus humanum; also = to foster, to promote, consociationem generis humani: B) to show honour and regard to, to honour, to revere, to reverence (both gods and men, in order to obtain their favour — cf. veneror and observo): ille me c.; c. domum ejus; frater meus illam civitatem c.; deos veneror et c.: C) to occupy one's self zealously with a thing, to pursue, to practise: c. quaestum; c. virtutem, to esteem highly; c. amicitiam, to cultivate, justitiam, to practise; c. vitam inopem, to lead a life of poverty, servitutem, to be a slave, munus to fill an office: D) (poet. & lat.) to cultivate, to refine, pectus: E) to dress, to adorn, to embellish, lacertos auro, capillos, corpus.

CŌLO (II.), 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To strain, to filter, vinum.

CŌLOCASIA, ae, f. [= κολοκασία]. (Poet. & lat.) The plant which bears the Egyptian bean.

CŌLON or CŌlum, i, n. [= κῶλον, 'a member']. A member or foot of a verse.

CŌLONA, ae, f. [colo]. (Poet.) A country-woman.

CŌLŌNAE, ārum, f. pl. [= Κολωναί]. A town in Troas, now probably Khemali.

CŌLŌNEUS, a, um, adj. [Κολωνεύς]. Of or belonging to Colones (an Attic demos): Œdipus C., the celebrated play of Sophocles, Οἰδίπους 'στὴ Κολωνῶ.

CŌLŌNIA, ae, f. [colo]. 1) (Pl.) A rural possession, a landed estate, a farm; jocosely, c. mularum, the resort of mules = a mill. 2) A colony, settlement, a place where emigrants from a mother-city, esp. from Rome, had settled: condere c.; collocare c. in aliquo loco; mittere aliquos in coloniam. 3) Meton., the persons sent to establish a colony, colonists, settlers, a colony: deducere coloniam, prop. to lead down from the Capitol, and mittere c. aliquo, somewhere. 4) A proper name: as, C. Agrippina — v. Agrippina.

COLŌNICUS, a, um, adj. [colonus]. 1) (Ante-cl.) Of or pertaining to agriculture. 2) Pertaining to a colony, cohors, levied in a colony.

COLŌNUS, i, m. [colo]. 1) A husbandman, farmer. 2) A colonist, an inhabitant of a colonia, q. v.: ascribere aliquem colonum, to enlist as a colonist. 3) (Poet.) An inhabitant, in gen.

COLŌPHON, ōnis, f. [= Κολοφών]. One of the Ionian towns on the coast of Lydia, now Altobosco.

COLŌPHŌNIACUS, a, um, adj. = Colophonius.

COLŌPHŌNIUS, a, um, adj. [Colophon]. Colophonian; subst., Colophonii, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Colophon.

CŌLOR (ante-cl. & lat. also Cōlos), ōris, m. 1) Colour; esp., freq. the hue or complexion of man: c. suavis, albus, verecundus; colorem mutare, to change colour, perdere, to grow pale; trop., homo nullius coloris (Pl.), of whom it is not known whether he is white or black = wholly unknown; (poet.) esp. = a fine complexion. 2) Trop.: A) external quality, state, condition: c. et species pristina civitatis; omnis eum decuit color; freq. of discourse, character, complexion, style: c. orationis; c. urbanitatis; ducere c., to take a colour: B) esp. of a beautiful exterior — a) = splendour, beauty: nullus argento color est nisi, etc. — b) of discourse = lively colouring, ornament, embellishment: flos et c. — c) (lat.) a palliation, excuse, pretext: dic aliquem c.

CŌLŌRĀTE, adv. [coloratus]. Speciously, with some pretzel.

CŌLŌRĀTOR, ōris, m. [coloro]. 'The Polisher,' the name of a comedy of Laberius.

CŌLŌRĀTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of coloro]. 1) Coloured: arcus c. = the rainbow. 2) Trop., glossed over, specious: c. et fictus.

CŌLŌRO, āvi, ātum, l. v. tr. [color]. 1) To colour, corpora; esp. = to tinge red or brown: quum in sole ambulo, fit ut colorem, I become brown. 2) Trop.: A) to give a complexion or colouring to a thing: c. orationem urbanitate quadam: B) (lat.) to palliate, to gloss over, rem falso nomine.

CŌLOSSAE, ārum, f. pl. [= Κολοσσαί]. A town in Phrygia, now Khonas.

CŌLOSSĒROS, ōtis, m. [Κολοσσός, Ἔφεος, 'the Colossal Favourite']. An appellation of a large and beautiful man.

CŌLOSSĒUS, [= Κολοσσάιος], } a, um, adj.

CŌLOSSICUS, [= Κολοσσικός], } (Lat.) Colossal, gigantic, statua.

CŌLOSSUS, i, m. [= Κολοσσός]. A colossus a statue of gigantic size.

CŌLOSTRA, ae, f. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) The first milk in the breasts of animals after delivery 2) (Pl.) A term of endearment, my angel!

CŌLŪBER, bri, m. (Poet.) } A small ser.
CŌLUBRA, ae, f. (Poet. & lat.) } pent: prov., quas tu vides colubras = are you frantic?

CŌLŪBRĪFER, ūra, ūrum, adj. [coluber-fero]. (Poet.) Serpent-bearing (of Medusa).

CŌLŪBRĪNUS, a, um, adj. [coluber]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Like a serpent = cunning, wily.

CŌLUM (I.), i, n. A strainer, colander.

CŌLUM (II.) — v. Colon.

CŌLUMBA, ae, f. A dove; (Pl.) as a term of endearment.

CŌLUMBAR, āris, n. [columba]. A collar for slaves (so called from its similarity to the hole of a dove-cote).

CŌLUMBĀRIUM, ii, n. [columba]. A pigeon-house, a dove-cote.

CŌLUMBĀRIUS, ii, m. [columba]. (Ante-cl.) A dove-keeper.

CŌLUMBĪNUS, a, um, adj. [columba]. Of or pertaining to a dove or pigeon, ovum.

CŌLUMBOR, ātus, l. v. dep. intr. [columba]. To bill like doves = to kiss.

CŌLUMBŪLUS, i, m. [dim. of columbus]. A young dove or pigeon.

CŌLUMBUS, i, m. A (male) dove or pigeon; also, a dove, in gen.

CŌLŪMELLA (I.), ae, f. [dim. of columna]. A small pillar or column.

CŌLŪMELLA (II.), ae, m. L. Junius Moderatus, a Roman author on husbandry, born at Cadiz, and contemporary with Nero.

CŌLŪMEN, inis, n. [cello — cf. columna and culmen]. Anything rising to a considerable height:

1) (Poet.) A top, summit; also, the gable of a building: c. villae; Phrygiae oc., prominent mountain-summit.

Hence, trop., c. amicorum, the principal friend; c. audaciae, the height of impudence. 2) A pillar for supporting a roof, a prop;

esp. of persons = a prop, stay, chief helper and supporter: c. reipublicae, rerum mearum.

CŌLŪMIS, e, adj. [for incolumis]. (Pl.) Unhurt.

CŌLŪMNA, ae, f. [cello — cf. columnen]. 1) A column, esp. for the support and ornament of a building (cf. pila); trop., columnam mento suo suffulcit (Pl.) = has put his hand under his chin as a support.

In partic., c. Maenia, a column in the forum Romanum, at which the Triumviri capitales judged criminals and dishonest debtors; hence, adhaerescere (pervenire) ad c. = to be put into the pillory. 2) Of things like a column:

A) = a waterspout: B) (poet.) = the vault of heaven: C) (poet.) trop. = a prop, support.

CŌLŪMNARIUM, ii, n. [columna]. A pillar-tax on every pillar in a house.

CŌLŪMNĀRIUS, ii, m. [columna]. A cri-minial punished at the columna Maenia (v. Columna 1) = a worthless fellow.

COLUMNATUS, a, um, adj. [columna]. Supported by pillars; trop., as c., supported upon the hand.

CÖLURNUS, a, um, adj. [instead of corulus from corylus]. (Poet.) Made of the hazel-tree.

CÖLUS, i and ūs, f. (rar. m.). A distaff; * (poet.) = the thread spun.

CÖLŪTEA, ōrum, n. pl. [= κολούτια]. (Pl.) A podlike kind of fruit.

CÖMA, ae, f. [= κόμη]. 1) The hair of the head, esp. considered as its natural ornament (of. crinis, capillus, caesaries): c. flava, odorata; pectere, componere, ponere comam, to comb, to adjust. 2) (Poet.): A) of animals — a) the hair of the head — b) the mane: B) of plants, the foliage, the ears, &c.: C) = wool; also, the hairy or woolly fibres of parchment: D) = rays of light.

CÖMĀNA, ōrum, n. pl. [= Κόμανα]. 1) C. Pontica, a town in Pontus, now Gomanak, near Tokat. 2) C. Chryse, a town in Cappadocia, now El Bostan.

CÖMANS, tis, adj. [coma]. Hairy, colla equorum; galea c., crested; stella c. = a comet; narcissus c., leafy.

CÖMARCHUS, i, m. [= κόμαρχος]. (Pl.) The chief magistrate of a village.

CÖMATUS, a, um, adj. [coma] = Comans.

CÖM-BĪBO (I.) (con-b.), bibi, —, 3. v. intr. & tr. 1) (Rar.) Intr., to drink with others. 2) Tr., to drink up = to suck up, succos, venenum corpore; ara c. cruorem; trop., c. artes, to imbibe.

COMBĪBO (II.), ōnis, m. [combibo I.]. A pot-companion.

COM-BŪRO, bussi, bustum, 3. v. tr. [conuro]. 1) To burn wholly, to consume, naves. 2) Trop. (poet.), comburi aliquā, to be inflamed with love of (a woman); c. diem (Pl.), to pass in revelry (the figure is borrowed from the burning of the dead at funerals); c. aliquem iudicio, to ruin.

COM-ĒDO (con-e.), ēdi, ēsum (rar. estum), 3. v. tr. 1) To eat up, to consume, coenam, panem. 2) Trop.: A) c. se, to consume one's self, to waste away with grief, sorrow, &c.: B) c. aliquem oculis, to devour one with the eyes = to long for or gaze upon eagerly: C) to squander or consume in revelry, numos, patrimonium; hence (lat.), c. aliquem = to squander one's fortune.

CÖMENSIS, e, adj. Of or belonging to Comum; subst., Comenses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Comum.

CÖMES, Itis, comm. [con-eo]. 1) One that goes with anybody, a companion, an associate, a comrade: c. esse alicujus or alicui; comitem se praebere illius furoris, or alicui in re aliqua facienda; nemo tantae virtutis comes est = a companion in so brave an undertaking; also, of inanimate objects, gloria mortis c.; eloquentia pacis c. 2) In partic.: A) (lat.) = a tutor, a teacher, a slave who accompanied a patrician boy (paedagogus): B) = a client, who accompanied a person of rank, esp. if he went to the forum or the country: C) pl. — a) the suite, retinue of friends, scholars, youths, &c., who went with a governor to his province — b) (lat.) the suite of an emperor, the court.

CÖMĒTES, ae, m. [= κομήτης, 'a hairy star']. A comet.

COMICE, adv. [comicus]. Comically, in a comic manner.

CÖMICUS, a, um, adj. [= κομικός]. Of or belonging to a comedy, comic, artificium, res c., the material of comedy; adolescens c., represented in a comedy. Hence, subst., Comicus, i, m.: A) (Pl.) a comic actor, an actor of comedy: B) a comic poet, a writer of comedy.

CÖMINIUS, ii, m. The name of a plebeian Roman gens; thus, esp. P. C., the accuser of C. Cornelius, whom Cicero defended.

CÖMINUS — v. Comminus.

CÖMIS, e, adj. w. comp. & sup. Courteous, obliging, complaisant, kind, condescending, homo, animus, sermo, hospitium; c. erga or in aliquem.

CÖMISSĀBUNDUS, a, um, adj. [comissor]. Revelling in a noisy and riotous manner, carousing (v. Comissor).

CÖMISSĀTĪO, ōnis, f. [comissor]. A revel, a drinking-party, a banquet succeeded by a nocturnal procession (v. Comissor).

CÖMISSĀTOR, ōris, m. [comissor]. A reveller, one who partakes of a comissatio, q. v.

CÖMISSOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. [= κομίζω]. To go about revelling; esp. of Roman youths, who, after a banquet in the night, went revelling about the streets, with singing, music, &c., after which they freq. repaired to the house of one of the party, and resumed their drinking; hence, comissatum ire ad aliquem and (poet.) c. in domum alicujus.

CÖMITAS, ātis, f. [comis]. Courteousness, kindness, obligingness, affability, condescension: c. et facilitas; c. in socios, mildness.

CÖMITĀTUS, ūs, m. [comes]. 1) Abstr., an accompanying, attendance: societas et c. alicujus; comitatu equitum, accompanied by the horsemen. 2) Concr., an attendance = the multitude attending, a train, retinue: c. civium optimorum, consisting of the best citizens; trop., tantus virtutum c., union; esp. (lat.) the suite of the emperor, the court. 3) A company of persons travelling, a troop, caravan: magnus c.; erat in illo c.

CÖMITER, adv. w. sup. [comis]. Courtously, in a friendly manner.

CÖMITIALIS, e, adj. [comitia]. Of or belonging to the comitia: dies c., on which the comitia might be held; homines c., who always enrol! about at the comitia, and sell their votes; metibus

c. or vitium c. (lat.) = the falling sickness, epilepsy, because its occurrence on a 'dies comitalis' was considered as a bad omen, and broke up the comitia.

COMITIATUS, ūs, m. [comitia]. (Rar.) An assembly of the people in the comitia: habere c.

COMITIUM, ii, m. [con-eo]. I. Sing., a public place in Rome where the comitia curiata were held. It was near the forum, from which it was separated by the 'curia hostilia,' but sometimes considered as a part of the forum; thus, also, *comitium Spartae = Ἐφεσίων, the court of the Ephori. II. Pl., Comitia, ōrum, an assembly of the Roman people, called by the magistrates, to decide on public affairs (cf. concio). There were three kinds of comitia: cc. curiata, centuriata, tributa, q. v. Comitia habere (facere), to hold, indicare or edicere, to appoint; cc. consularia (also consulum or consilibus creandis), for the election of consuls; cc. legis ferendae, for passing a law; cc. Flavii = at which Flavius hopes to be elected. Hence: A) sometimes = an election, in gen.: B) (Pl.) cc. fiunt de capite meo, they deliberate on, pass judgment on.

COMITOR, ātus, dep. (poet. & lat. also Comito, āvi, ātum; hence, pass. Comitor), 1. v. tr. [comes]. To accompany, to follow, to join one's self to any one as an adherent or attendant — (cf. deduco and prosequor): c. patrem, triumphum; (rar.) hoc c. illi rei; magna comitante catervā, attended by a large concourse; especially = to attend a deceased person to the grave: c. aliquem. Hence, part. comitatus, pass., attended, aliquo, by some one, parum (bene), with a small (large) attendance; uno puero comitator, attended by one slave more.

COMMA, ātis, n. [= κόμμα]. (Lat.) A section or member of a period.

COM-MACŪLO (con-m.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To stain, to pollute, aram sanguine; trop., se scelere.

COMMAGÈNE, es, f. [= Κομμαγενή]. A province of Northern Syria, now Camash.

COMMAGÈNUS, a, um, adj. [Commagene]. Of or pertaining to Commagene; subst., Commageni, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of C.

COM-MANĪPŪLĀRIS (con-m.), is, m. (Lat.) A fellow-soldier of the same manipule, a comrade.

*COM-MANĪPŪLĀTIO, ōnis, f. [commanipulo]. (Lat.) Companionship in a manipule.

COM-MANĪPŪLO (con-m.), ōnis, m. (Lat.) = Commanipularis.

*COM-MĀRĪTUS (con-m.), i, m. (Pl.) A fellow-husband, who has a wife in common with another.

COMMEĀTUS, ūs, m. [commeo]. 1) A going to and fro, a communication: satis liberi cc. erant, the communication between the camp and the town was quite unobstructed (yet it may also be translated, furlough was readily given — v. 2). 2) A furlough, leave of absence from one's station for a certain time, esp. of soldiers: dare alicui commeatum and mittere aliquem in commeatum, to give leave, to grant a furlough; sine ullo c., without ever taking leave; adesce ad diem commeatu, on the day when the furlough expires. 3) A train, caravan, company of persons travelling together: mittere c. in Africam; exercitum duobus cc. transportare. 4) Freq. in pl., supplies, provisions, victuals: convehere, afferre c.; prohiberi commeatu; cc. maritimis, supplies by sea. 5) (Pl.) Melon., a passage, way.

COM-MĒDĪTOR (con-m.), —, 1. v. dep. tr. (Rar.) *1) To impress a thing carefully on one's self, locos. *2) (Lucr.) To imitate (doubtful). *COM-MĒLĒTO, 1. v. tr. [con and μελέω]. To practise assiduously.

COM-MĒMĪNI (con-m.), isse, v. defect. To recollect entirely, distinctly, hominem, aliquid, te hoc dicere; non c. dicere, I forgot to say; c. Poenice, I still know the Punic language.

COMMĒMŌRĀBĪLIS, e, adj. [commemoro]. Worthy of mention, noteworthy.

COMMĒMŌRĀTIO, ōnis, f. [commemoro]. A reminding, mentioning, antiquitatis; is fuit in assidua commemoratione omnibus omnium flagitorum, his crimes were always mentioned by every one.

COM-MĒMŌRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) (Rar.) To recall to memory, to remember: c. vesperi quid hodie dixerim, I think over again. 2) To recall a thing to the memory of another, to remind one of any thing, amicitiam, cognitionem. 3) To mention, to make mention of, to speak of (a thing already known — cf. mentionem facio): c. causas rei alicujus, jucunditatem illius, rarely c. de re aliqua; c. eum venisse, that he has come.

COMMENDĀBĪLIS, e, adj. [commendo]. (Rar.) Commendable, praiseworthy.

COMMENDĀTĪCIUS, a, um, adj. [commendo]. Commendatory, containing a recommendation, literae, tabulae, a letter of recommendation.

COMMENDĀTIO, ōnis, f. [commendo]. 1) A commendation, recommendation: mea c.; c. tui; ponere (dicere) voluptatem in prima commendatione naturae, to assert that it is pleasure which nature exhorts us first to strive after. 2) That which recommends, a thing or quality recommending: prima haec est c.; tanta erat c. oris, ingenii, etc.

COMMENDĀTOR, ōris, m. } [commendo].
COMMENDĀTRIX, Icīs, f. } One who commends, a commender.

COMMENDĀTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of commendo]. Commended, recommended (v. Commendo).

COMMENDO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [con-mando]. 1) To entrust or commit to any one's charge, to commend, aliquid or aliquem alicui; c. aliquid literis = to commit to writing; c. aliquem immortalitati, to make immortal; c. aliquid memoriae, to learn by heart, to commit to memory. 2) Esp., to recommend = to make agreeable, to procure favour and a good reception for; vox c. eloquentiam; Mucii domus c. illum; auctoritas tua c. illum librum; habere aliquid or aliquid commendatissimum, to consider a person or thing as highly recommended to one's self = to esteem much.

COMMENTARIOLUM, i, n. [dim. of commentarium]. A short treatise in writing.

COMMENTARIUS (I.), a, um, adj. (Lat.) C. liber = commentarius II.

COMMENTARIUS (II.), ii, m., and (rar.) Commentarium, ii, n. [commentor]. 1) (Rar.) A note-book: cc. diurni, a diary. 2) Mostly pl., a sketch, description, memoirs hastily jotted down: cc. Caesaris. 3) (Lat.): A notes, minutes of a lecture (taken by a pupil); also, a teacher's collection of examples, &c.: B) a commentary.

COMMENTATIO, ōnis, f. [commentor]. 1) A careful meditating upon, study, diligent preparation: c. et meditatio; philosophorum vita est c. mortis, for death. 2) (Lat.) A treatise: c. de re aliqua.

COMMENTICIUS, a, um, adj. [commisiscor]. Thought out, invented: A) = newly invented, new: nomina nova et cc.: B) feigned, ideal, civitas Platonis: C) forged, false, crimen.

COMMENTOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. [commisiscor]. 1) To think over, to weigh thoroughly, to meditate upon, aliquid or de re aliqua, quid faciendum sit; also, abs. cc. inter se. Hence, esp. of an orator = to prepare for speaking; part. commentatus (pass.), that has been prepared. *2) (Pl.) To invent, to contrive, to think out, aliquid. 3) To represent in writing any thing thought out, to sketch, to compose, orationem. 4) (Lat.) To explain grammatically, to comment upon, carmina. 5) Act. (Pl.) commento, 1., c. ora, as it were, to demonstrate on the face, i. e., to cudgel.

COMMENTOR, ōris, m. [commisiscor]. (Poet.) An inventor.

COMMENTUM, i, n. [commisiscor]. 1) A fiction, falsehood: c. opinionum = opinioniones fictae. 2) An invention. *3) (Lat.) A plan, design.

COM-MEO (con-m.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. 1) To go, to come, to travel speedily or frequently, esp. to go to and fro, hither and thither; freq. c. ultro et citro; mercatores cc. ad Gallos; (Pl.) c. viam scruposam, to travel a stony road. 2) To go or come frequently to a place, to visit a place, in urbem, ad aliquem.

COMMERCIVM, ii, n. [con-merx]. 1) Trade, traffic, commercial intercourse, a dealing in merchandise, commerce. 2) The right or privilege of buying and selling, a commercial right: c. istarum rerum cum Graecis non est; c. equorum, permission to buy horses. Esp. tech. t., the right of acquiring, using and possessing property according to the Roman law. 3) Communication, connection, intercourse: habere c. cum Musis; c. linguae, intercourse of language = the ability to understand each other, and to converse together (of two nations): c. sermonis, conversation, conference; (lat.) c. belli, negotiation concerning a war = a treaty, stipulation. 4) (Poet. & lat.) Carnal intercourse.

COM-MERCOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. (Ante-cl. & Sall.) To buy up or together.

COM-MĒREO (con-m.), ui, itum (ante-cl. & lat. also Com-mereor, itus, dep.), 2. v. tr. 1) To merit, to deserve, poenam. 2) To be guilty of, to commit, to perpetrate, noxiam; c. culpam in se; c. aliquid mali in se, to bring upon one's self.

COM-MĒTIOR (con-m.), meus, 4. v. dep. tr. 1) To measure, omnes portiones. 2) Trop., to compare, negotium cum tempore.

COM-MĒTO, 1. v. intr. [commeo]. (Ante-cl., yet doubtf.) To go frequently to a place.

COMMIGRATIO, ōnis, f. [commigro]. (Lat.) A migrating, wandering (of the stars).

COM-MIGRO (con-m.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. To migrate, to remove to some place, Romam, huc habitatum.

COMMILITIUM, ii, n. [con-miles]. (Lat.) Companionship in war; (poet.) fellowship, in gen., studiorum.

COMMILITO (I.), ōnis, m. [con-miles]. A fellow-soldier, a companion in war.

COM-MILITO (II.) (con-m.), 1. v. intr. (Lat.) To fight together with one, to be a fellow-soldier.

COMMINATIO, ōnis, f. [comminor]. A threatening, menacing.

COM-MINGO (con-m.), nxi, nctum, 3. v. tr. (Poet.) To make water on; hence, to defile, rem re aliqua.

COM-MINISCOR, mentus, 3. v. dep. tr. [commens]. 1) To devise, to contrive (usually with the design to deceive — cf. excogito), to feign, to forge, mendacium, deos nihil agentes; c. quid agam. 2) (Lat.) To invent, alias artes, vectigal. 3) Part. commentus, pass., invented, feigned.

COM-MINOR (con-m.), ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. To threaten, to menace, alicui malum; abs. cc. inter se; c. alicui cuspidem, with a lance.

COM-MINUO (con-m.), ui, ūtum, 3. v. tr. To make small. 1) To break or beat into pieces, to crush, to destroy, statuum, fores; caput tibi comminuam, I will break your head. 2) Trop. A) to lessen, to make smaller, to diminish, aliquid: B) to weaken, to enervate, to impair, hostem, opes civitatis, vires ingenii; comminutum esse re familiari; comminui lacrimis (poet.), to be moved by tears: C) c. officium, to transgress.

COMMUNUS or Cōminus, adv. [con-manus]. 1) In military lang., in close combat, hand to hand, near at hand (in opp. to a combat with darts and arrows): c. pugnare, signa conferre, manus conserere; c. aliquem vulnerare. Hence, trop. (mostly poet.), of a chase, of any contest:

c. ad aliquem accedere, to come close up to one, to have at one. 2) (Lat.) In gen., near at hand, close by, in person, &c.: agmen c. visum.

COM-MISCEO (con-m.), scui, xtum or stum, 2. v. tr. To mix or mingle together, to unite, amurcam cum vino, servos cum ingenuis; trop., c. consilium cum aliquo, to have a common purpose with one; (poet.) c. rem re aliqua, (lat.) rem rei alicui, one thing with another.

COMMISERATIO, ōnis, f. [commiseror]. A striving to excite pity (of an orator).

*COM-MISEREOR, itus, 2. v. impers. [miseret]. (Lat.) To have pity upon: nautas rei alicujus c. est, the sailors had compassion on.

COM-MISERESCO (con-m.), 3. v. impers. To commiserate, to pity: commiserescit me (ante-cl.), I pity, alicujus.

COM-MISEROR (con-m.), ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. To pity, to lament, to deplore (with words—cf. commiseresco), aliquem; in rhetoric, abs., to strive to excite pity (of an orator).

COMMISSIO, ōnis, f. [committo]. 1) The holding of a prize-contest; hence = a contest, 2) (Lat.) A speech or treatise composed for a literary contest, a prize-speech, a prize-essay.

COMMISSUM, i, n. [committo, part.]. 1) A thing entrusted, a secret. 2) An offence, a crime: turpe or turpiter c. 3) Tech. t. (lat.), a confiscation or confiscated property.

COMMISSURA, ae, f. [committo]. A connecting or joining together, a joint, digitorum; trop., a connection, verborum.

*COM-MITIGO (con-m.), 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To make soft or mellow (by beating), caput alicujus.

COM-MITTO (con-m.), mīsi, missum, 3. v. tr. 1) To bring together, to cause to come together, to unite, to combine, to connect, munimenta inter se; co. dextram dextrae, to shake hands; c. opera, moenia, to join together by building; (poet.) c. manus Teucris, to come to close quarters with; delphinum caudas utero commissa luporum, having the tail of a dolphin joined to the body of a wolf. 2) Esp., to bring together for a fight or contest, to cause to fight (men as well as animals): c. pugiles Latinos cum Graecis; c. et comparare, to set together; c. se hosti aequo certamine, to engage in an equal contest with the enemy. 3) To commence, to engage in, to fight a battle, proelium, pugnam cum aliquo, bellum, likewise obsidium, spectaculum; (lat., rar.) abs. c. = to fight; also, c. judicium, to bring the judges together, to hold a court. 4) To commit, to perpetrate, to do something wrong, aliquid in aliquem, scelus, flagitium, caedem. Hence: A) c. in (contra) legem (rar. c. lege aliqua), to offend against a law, to transgress: B) followed by 'ut,' also (poet. & lat.) by 'cur (quare)' or an infin., to be guilty of that, to cause that, to let it come to pass that: non c. ut tibi insanire videar, ut morte multandus sit: C) to incur a punishment, to draw upon one's self by an offence, poenam multam: D) pass., of a pledge, &c., to be forfeited: hereditas illi Veneri commissa est; fiducia commissa, is lost. 5) To give over or up, to entrust, to yield up, to commit to: c. se fidei or in fidem alicujus; c. alicui salutem suam, rem difficilem; also, abs. c. alicui, to trust one; commisi ei ut videret, I commissioned him to see; c. se periculo, to expose one's self to danger. Hence — a) = to lead or bring into with some danger, to risk: c. se in aciem, to venture into the battle-array; thus, likewise, c. se in conclave, in senatum, to venture to come to the senate — b) to hazard: c. rem in discrimen (in casum incertis eventus), to run the risk of an uncertain issue; c. rem in aciem, to risk a battle.

COMMŌDE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [commodus].

1) Properly, well, saltare, dicere. 2) Suitably, fitly, dicere, vivere. 3) Opportunely, at a fit time. 4) Obligingly, kindly, politely.

COMMŌDIANUS, a, um, adj. Of or belonging to (the Emperor) Commodus.

COMMŌDITAS, ātis, f. [commodus]. 1) A proper condition of a thing, a just measure or proportion, fitness: c. membrorum, symmetry; aetas obstat commoditati, prevents my speaking well; c. orationis, a suitable delivery. 2) Convenience, advantage, benefit: amicitia multas habet cc.; percipere commoditatem ex bestiis. 3) (Poet.) Complaisance, courteousness, indulgence: c. patris; (Pl.) as a term of endearment: mea c., my sweet!

COMMŌDIUS, a, um, adj. Relating to (the Emperor) Commodus.

COMMŌDO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [commodus]. 1) (Ante-cl.) To make fit, to adjust, aliquid. 2) To do a service or a favour to one, to serve one: c. alicui re aliqua or in re aliqua; quaecunque ei commodasti, the services thou hast rendered him. 3) To give, to bestow, to let one have a thing; freq., to lend a thing to one for his convenience or use (for a length of time, after which it is to be returned—cf. mutuum do): c. hosti aquam, morituro manum, veniam peccatis; c. aliis vires meas, aedes ad nuptias.

COMMŌDO, adv. [commodus]. 1) (Ante-cl. & lat.) Just in time, opportunely. *2) (Lat.) With convenience, conveniently.

COMMŌDŪLE, adv. [dim. of commodo]. (Pl.) Conveniently.

COMMŌDŪLUM, adv. [dim. of commodum I.]. According to convenience, as may be convenient.

COMMŌDUM (I.), adv. [commodus]. 1) Opportunely, in season: o. domum veni. 2) Just, hardly: c. discisseras heri quam Titus venit.

COMMŌDUM (II.), i, n. [neuter of commodus]. 1) Convenience; freq. commodo meo, tuo (also ex c. or per c.), at my, your convenience; quod commodo tuo fieri possit, inasmuch as it can is done without trouble to you; copias per c. exponere, with convenience; legere ex c., at his convenience. 2) Advantage, profit; freq. in pl., co. vitae, pacis; esp. of the rewards which one receives for his services, hence = pay, wages, a stipend: co. veteranorum. Hence, commodum or per commodum reipublicae, without injury to the state. *3) = Commodatum, any thing lent, a loan. 4) (Lat.) A favour, privilege, prerogative.

COMMŌDUS (L), a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [con-modus]. That has its due measure. 1) (Mostly ante-cl.) Complete, full, proper, talentum, viginti minae; c. statura, tall stature; capillus c., long. 2) Convenient, fit, suitable, favourable, iter, anni tempus; lex c. alicui; valetudo c., good health; commodum est ei, it suits him, pleases him; literae co. de aliqua re allatae sunt, containing good news; omnia curationi comoda sunt, favourable to one's recovery. 3) Of persons and their behaviour, accommodating one's self, polite, complaisant, obliging, kind: alicui, to one; mores co.

COMMŌDUS (IL), i, m. A Roman family name; thus, esp. L. Aurelius Commodus, emperor of Rome, from 180–192 A. D.

COM-MŌLIOR (con-m.), itus, 4. v. dep. tr. (Ante-cl.) To set in motion, to move; trop., to undertake, dolum.

COMMŌNE-FĀCIO, feci, factum, 3. v. tr. [commoneo-facio]. To remind, to recall to one's mind, to admonish: c. quae dicta sint, Augustum illud dixisse; illi eum co. ut abeat; c. illos beneficii mei; (doubtful) c. istius turpem praetura, to commemorate.

COM-MŌNEO (con-m.), ui, itum, 2. v. tr. (= Commonefacio, q. v.) To remind, to impress upon the mind, to recall to one's mind: c. aliquem rei alicujus, de re aliqua, aliquid, etc.; c. te quam sit hoc utile, ut or ne illud facias; c. aliquid (lat.), to recall to mind.

COMMŌNTIO, ōnis, f. [commoneo]. (Lat.) A reminding, an admonition.

COM-MONSTRO (con-m.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To show, to point out clearly, viam alicui.

COMMŌRATIO, ōnis, f. [commoror]. A delaying, tarrying; esp. in rhetoric, a delaying upon a point.

COM-MORDEO (con-m.), —, sum, 2. v. tr. (Lat.) 1) To bite violently, aliquem. 2) Trop., to revile.

COM-MŌRIOR (con-m.), mortuus, 3. v. dep. intr. To die together with one, cum aliquo or alicui.

COM-MŌROR (con-m.), ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to stay, to sojourn, to tarry (for some time — cf. maneo, also cunctor, haesito, habito), Romae, apud aliquem; paulisper c. dum, etc.; c. in disponenda toga; trop., of an orator, to dwell upon, to insist upon. 2) Tr. (Pl.), to detain, aliquem c.

COMMŌTIO, ōnis, f. [commoveo]. A moving, motion; only trop. — a) c. animi, and only c., an emotion of the mind — b) = an exciting, excitation, jucunditatis.

*COMMŌTIUNCŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of commotio]. A slight indisposition.

COMMŌTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of commoveo]. 1) Excited, exasperated, passionate, animus. 2) Uncertain, wavering: aes alienum, not secure.

COM-MŌVEO (con-m.), mōvi, mōtum, 2. v. tr. 1) To set in motion, to move violently, both to move from a place (= to move, to carry or push away) and to move in its place (= to shake, to rouse, to stir up): c. castra ex eo loco (also aciem), to march forward, to set out with the army; c. hostem, to repel, to force back; non c. se domo, not to stir from home; si una litera commovetur, is taken from its place; c. sacra, to carry about the holy vessels; c. columnas, to remove; nullus numus commovetur, not the smallest sum is disposed of; venti co. mare, stir up; c. dormientem, to wake. 2) Trop.: A) pass., to be moved from one's equilibrium, bodily or mental = to be taken ill, to become crazed: mens c.; commotus = crazed: B) to move one's mind violently, to alarm, to disquiet, to affect, to shake, to excite; esp. in the pass. and most freq. in the part. commotus: c. spe, gaudio, amore fraterno, alicujus atrocitate; graviter commotus, greatly exasperated; commotus sum in illa (Com.), I fell in love: C) to rouse, to excite an emotion, feeling or disposition, dolorem, miserationem, odium in aliquem; also, sometimes, c. memoriam rei alicujus, to put in mind; c. bellum; c. multorum studia, to call forth.

COM-MULCEO (con-m.), —, —, 2. v. tr. (Lat.) To caress, aliquem.

COMMŪNICATIO, ōnis, f. [communico]. An imparting, a communication, making common: c. consilii, civitatis; c. sermonis mihi tecum esse solet, conversation; in rhetoric, a figure, according to which the orator seems to consult his hearers (dvaxevivewis).

COM-MŪNICO, āvi, ātum, and Communicor, ātus (dep.), 1. v. tr. [communis]. 1) To make common, aliquid huic et illi or inter aliquos; c. causam suam cum servis, to identify one's cause with that of the slaves; esp. in the pass., aliquid mihi cum aliquo (or inter nos) communicatur or communicatum est, I have something in common with one. 2) To divide something with one, both in giving and receiving: A) in giving = to impart, to share, aliquid cum aliquo, also cc. aliquid inter se, to share together, and cc. alone in the same sense; * (Pl.) communicabo te semper mensā meā, you will be ever welcome at my table; c. consilia cum aliquo, to make common cause with, to consult with: B) in receiving = to take part in, to participate in, to share, inimicitias cum aliquo. 3) To respect to unite, pecuniam cum dote. 4) (Lat.) To have communication or intercourse with.

COM-MŪNIO (I.) (con-m.), ūi or ii, Itum, 4. v. tr. 1) To fortify strongly, castra. 2) Trop., to strengthen, auctoritatem alicujus.

COMMŪNIO (II.), ōnis, f. [communis]. Community, mutual participation in any thing: c. litterarum et vocis, a common alphabet and language; c. sanguinis, blood-relationship.

COMMŪNIS (con-m.), e, adj. w. comp. & sup. 1) Common, general, universal: hoc mihi est cum illo commune; hoc illis (also illorum) or inter illos commune est; vita c., common life, life as it usually is in society; cc. tempora, relating to all; c. mens, common sense; cc. loca, public places, also loca c. = the lower world; loci c., common-places, in philosophy and rhetoric; c. exordium, which is appropriate to either party. Hence: A) subst., Commune, is, n., a commonwealth, community, state: c. Siciliae; vexare c. Milyadum: B) in commune — a) for all, for the common good: consulere or conferre aliquid in c.; metuere in c., to be in fear for the whole — b) (lat.) in general, generally; in c. disputare de re — c) in c. vocare honores, to make common, to share among patricians and plebeians — d) (lat.) as an exclamation, halves! 2) Of persons, courteous, affable, condescending, infirm, to the lowliest.

COMMŪNITAS, ātis, f. [communis]. 1) Fellowship, common condition or situation: nulli deo cum homine est c.; c. omnium rerum inter eos est; c. et societas generis humani. Hence, altera pars honestatis est communitatis, relates to intercourse with men; thus, likewise, officia quae ducentur ex c. 2) Affability, condescension.

COMMŪNITER, adv. [communis]. 1) In common, conjointly. 2) In general, generally.

COMMURMURATIO (con-m.), ōnis, f. (Lat.) A murmuring of several persons.

*COM-MURMŪROR (con-m.), dep., and (lat.) Com-murmuro, 1. v. intr. To murmur, secum.

COMMŪTABILIS, e, adj. [commuto]. Alterable, changeable.

*COMMŪTATE, adv. [commuto]. In a changed manner.

COMMŪTATIO (con-m.) ōnis, f., and (Lucr.) Commūtātus, ūs, m. 1) A change, alteration, morum, temporum; crebrae aestuum cc. 2) In rhetoric, a figure = ἀντιμεταβολή, a reciprocal antithesis. 3) (Lat.) A conversation.

COM-MŪTO (con-m.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To change, to alter, aliquid ex vero in falsum; c. animos, to alter one's opinion. 2) To exchange, to interchange, to barter, captivos, nomina inter se; c. fidem pecuniā, to sell one's good faith for a bribe; c. mortem cum vita, exchange life for death (cf. muto). Hence (Com.), c. verba cum aliquo, to exchange words = to converse.

CŌMO, mpsi, mptum, 3. v. tr. [co-emo = 'to take together']. 1) (Lucr.) To join, aliquid ex pluribus rebus. 2) To arrange the hair, to braid, comb or dress it, comas; puer comptus, with well-dressed hair. 3) (Poet. & lat.) In gen., to arrange, to adjust, to adorn, vestem, corpus (v. Comptus).

CŌMOEDIA, ae, f. [= κωμῳδία]. A comedy. *CŌMOEDICE, adv. [comœdia]. (Pl.) As in comedy.

CŌMOEDUS (I.) a, um, adj. [= κωμῳδός]. Of or pertaining to comedy, comico.

CŌMOEDUS (II.), i, m. [= κωμῳδός]. A comic actor (cf. histrio).

CŌMŌSUS, a, um, adj. [coma]. (Lat.) Hairy, having much hair.

COM-PĀCISCOR (con-p.), pactus, or (more correctly) Compēiscor, pectus, 3. v. dep. intr. To form a compact, to make a contract or agreement, cum aliquo. Hence, as an adv., compacto or de (ex) compacto (mostly lat.), according to agreement.

COMPACTĪLIS, e, adj. [compingo]. (Lat.) Joined together, compact.

COMPACTIO, ōnis, f. [compingo]. A joining together, compacting.

COMPACTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of compingo]. (Lat.) Prop., joined closely together, compact, thick-set, strong, crura, corpus.

COMPĀGES, is, or (poet. & lat.) Compāgo, ūnis, f. [compingo]. A joining together, a joint, structure: cc. corporis, bodily structures; also = a political structure, a state.

COM-PAR (I.) (con-p.), āris, adj. (Mostly poet. & lat.) Equal, like another, connubium, postulatio.

COM-PAR (II.) (con-p.), āris, com. 1) (Poet.) A companion, comrade, colleague; (poet.) a consort, husband or wife. *2) A rhetorical figure, whereby several members of a period have an equal number of syllables.

COMPĀRĀBĪLIS, e, adj. [comparo]. That may be compared, comparable.

*COMPĀRĀTE, adv. [comparo]. Comparatively, by way of comparison.

COMPĀRATIO (I.), ōnis, f. [comparo I.] 1) A putting together, esp. for a trial of skill; hence — a) a comparison — b) a trial of skill, a contention: c. rerum, orationis suae cum scriptis alienis; sub (de, ex, ad) c. rei alicujus, in comparison with; haec habent c., may be compared. 2) An (equal) proportion: ad eandem inter se c. 3) An agreement, esp., freq. between colleagues respecting the division of public business or of provinces. 4) In rhetoric, c. criminis, a comparison of a crime with the noble end for the sake of which it was committed. 5) In grammar (lat.), the comparative degree.

COMPĀRATIO (II.), ōnis, f. [comparo II.] 1) A preparing, providing for, preparation, provision, veneni, belli; c. criminis, a procuring of all the facts and circumstances necessary for proving an accusation. 2) A procuring, acquiring, gaining, testium, voluptatis.

COMPARATIVUS, a, um, adj. [comparo I.].

- 1) Of or belonging to comparison; comparative.
 2) In grammar, gradus c. or abs. c., the comparative degree; comparativa, words in the comparative degree.

COM-PARCO (con-p.), parsi (or Comperoo, persi), —, 3. v. tr. (Rar., Com.) To save up, aliquid.

COM-PAREO (con-p.), ui, —, 2. v. intr. To appear, to be visible or apparent; hence = to be present: servi qui non ec.; signa omnia ec.; ratio non c., does not agree.

COMPARO (I.), avi, atum, 1. v. tr. [compar].
 1) To pair together, to join, together in the same relation, to connect, to unite, quaedam inter se, aliquid cum re aliqua; priore consulatu comparati, colleagues in a former consulship; thus, likewise, male comparati, of colleagues who do not suit each other. In partic. = to place together for contest, to pair, to match: c. gladiatores, aliquem cum aliquo or (lat.) alicui; c. certationem (lat.). 2) To compare, utilia inter se, aliquid cum re aliqua and (rar.) rei alicui. In partic.: A) to count equal to, to place on an equality with, neminem tibi aut anteposui aut etiam comparavi: B) = to judge, to show or prove by comparison: quum c., quanto plures illa re deleti sint. 3) Teoh. t., of colleagues, to agree respecting the division of official business and the provinces, to arrange by agreement: consules inter se provincias comparaverunt, divided between them according to agreement; eo. inter se ut alter, etc., or uter Capuam obsideret.

COM-PARO (II.), avi, atum, 1. v. tr. [comparo]. 1) To prepare, to make ready, to provide, to arrange: c. dolum ad capiendos hostes, auxilium adversus aliquem; c. iter or se ad iter, to get ready for a journey; freq. of preparations for war, c. bellum, to prepare, make every preparation for war; c. copias, classem, to fit out; (poet.) c. facere aliquid, to prepare to do a thing; comparatum est naturâ, lege, more majorum, provided, established, customary; quam inique comparatum est, how unjust is the arrangement! 2) To procure, to acquire, to obtain, to gain: c. navem; c. gloriam, amicitias; (rar.) c. sibi or alicui aliquid; c. suppellectilem, etc. = to buy, to purchase.

COM-PASCO (con-p.), —, pastum, 3. v. tr. & intr. To feed together.

COM-PASCUUS (con-p.), a, um, adj. Fit for common pasturage: c. ager, a common.

COM-PEDIO, —, itum, 4. v. tr. [compes]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To fetter, aliquem.

COMPELLATIO, ñis, f. [compello I.]. An accosting or addressing, esp. with violence and reproach = a rebuking, reproof.

COM-PELLO (I.) (con-p.), avi, atum, 1. v. tr. 1) (Poet. & lat.) To accost, to address: hence, to call, to name, aliquem nomine, hominem blan-de; si ego hae imagine compellor, if I am meant by that image. 2) To accost reproachfully, to chide, to rebuke, to call one by a nickname: pro conspectore eum segnem eo. 3) To accuse, to arraign, aliquem crimine aliquo or lege aliqua.

COM-PELLO (II.) (con-p.), pelli, pulsum, 3. v. tr. 1) To drive together, armentum in speluncam, hostes intra muros. 2) In gen., to drive or force to a place, to bring to a place by force, hostes in fugam, Pompeium domum suam, aliquem in angustias; c. bellum Athenas, to turn; (poet.) c. aliquem gregi, to the flock. 3) (Mostly poet. & lat.), trop., to drive, to bring, to move, to force to a deed, a resolution, &c.: c. aliquem ad deditionem, ad cavendum: (rar.) c. aliquem in eundem metum, ut aliquid faciat and (lat.) facere aliquid.

COMPENDIARIA, ae, f. } [compendiarius].
 COMPENDIARIUM, ii, n. } (Lat.) A short way or road.

COMPENDIARIUS, a, um, adj. [compendium]. Adapted to saving; hence, short (only of a way or road).

COMPENDIUM, ii, n. [con-pendo]. A saving, esp. of time and labour: c. ligni, of wood; compendii facere aliquid, to save. Hence: A) gain, profit (obtained by saving — cf. lucrum and quaestus): leve c.; servire privato compendio: B) = an abridgment, abbreviation, a short way: c. docendi (Quintil.), a shorter method of teaching; compendio, a short time, a while; verba conferre ad c., to be brief; facere verba compendii, to shorten or abridge a discourse; facere compendium pulandi, to leave off beating. In partic., c. viae and abs. c., a short way, cross-path, maris, over the sea.

COMPENSATIO, ñis, f. [compenso]. A balancing, compensation: uti aliqua c.; c. mercium, an exchange of wares; trop., recompense, amends.

COM-PENSO (con-p.), avi, atum, 1. v. tr. Prop., to weigh together. 1) To weigh with one another, to equalize by weighing, to compensate, to repair: c. bona cum vitiis, laetitia cum doloribus; summi labores magnâ compensati sunt gloriâ; c. vitium vel facultate vel copiâ. 2) (Lat., poet.) To abridge, to save, iter.

COMPËRENDINATIO, ñis, f. (lat.), and Compërendinâtus, ña, m. [comperendino]. An adjourning of a judgment until the third day.

COMPËRENDINO, avi, atum, 1. v. tr. [comperendinus]. To defer judgment in a cause until the third day; hence, to summon the parties for this day, reum.

COMPËRENDINUS, a, um, adj. [com-perendinus], sc. dies. (Lat.) The third day following, as the time to which judgment in a case already examined was deferred.

COM-PËRIO (con-p.) (rar. Compërior, dep.), përi, pertum, 3. v. tr. To ascertain or to find out certainly, to obtain certain knowledge, to receive sure intelligence of: c. aliquid, also de re aliqua; c. te illud fecisse; c. aliquid ex aliquo. Hence, pass. comperior, illud fecisse, it is known that I have done this; c. me ab hoc falli, it is certain that I am cheated by him.

COMPERTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of comperio]. 1) Known, certain: compertum mihi est or c. habeo, I know for certain; pro comperto habeo, I take for certain or granted. 2) Convicted of a crime, caught in the act: comperitus flagitii, stupri, etc.

COM-PES (con-p.), ēdis, f. (only in the pl. and abl. sing.). A fetter or shackle for the feet, usually of wood; hence, cc. = fetters, in gen.; trop., cc. corporis; fluviis nivali compede vincutus (poet.) = by the ice.

COM-PESCO, seui, -, 3. v. tr. [compes]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) To curb, to check, to keep in check, to confine to a certain space: c. Geryonem tristi undā (poet.); freq. of plants, hence = to prune, vitem, ramos fluentes, luxuriantia. 2) Trop., to bridle, to confine, to restrain, equum, legiones, clamorem, mare; (Com.) c. aliquid facere = to forbear.

COMPETENTIA, ae, f. [competo]. (Lat.) A meeting together; c. membrorum, symmetry; nasci ad eandem c., under the same constellation.

COMPETITOR, ōris, m., and Competitrix, icis, f. [competo]. One who seeks for the same office, a fellow-candidate, competitor.

COM-PETO (con-p.), ivi or ii, Itum, 3. v. intr. & tr. (Mostly lat.) 1) Intr.: A) (rar.) to go, come or meet together: viae cc.; cacumina cc. in anum: B) trop. — a) of time, to happen at the same time, to coincide: res aliqua c. rei alicui or cum re aliqua; c. in diem, to fall on the day; si ita c., if it so happens — b) of other objects, to fit, to agree with, to correspond: si loci hitus ita c.; corpus non c. tanto ejus animo; aetas c., is suitable; hence, actio non c. in eum, an action against him is not authorized — c) to be qualified, to be competent: animus vi c. ad arma capiendā; competere linguā, oculis. 2) Tr. (lat., rar.), to strive together for a thing: cc. unam speciosam (puellam).

*COMPILATIO, ōnis, f. [compilo]. Prop., a raking together, pillaging; hence, a compilation.

COM-PILO (con-p.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) (Pl.) To rake or scrape together: c. quidquid domi. 2) To plunder, to rob, aliquem, oppidum, provinciam; c. templa omnibus ornamentis, to rob the temples of all their ornaments.

COMPINGO, pēgi, pactum, 3. v. tr. [compango]. 1) To join or fasten together, to frame, to construct, aedificia, navem tabulis. 2) To drive or thrust somewhere, to shut up or conceal somewhere, aliquem in carcerem, in vincula, se in Apuliam.

COMPITALĪCIUS, a, um, adj. [compitalia]. Of or belonging to the Compitalia, dies, ludi.

COMPITALIS, e, adj. [compitum]. Of or belonging to the cross-roads; hence, Compitālia, iūm or iōrum, n. pl., a yearly festival in honour of the Lares, which was celebrated at the cross-roads.

COMPITUM, i, n. [competo]. A place where two (or more) ways meet, a cross-way, cross-road.

COM-PLĀCEO (con-p.), cui or cūsum, 2. v. intr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To please, alicui.

*COMPLANATIO, ōnis, f. [complano]. (Lat.) Prop., a levelling; hence, that which is used for levelling, rubbish.

COM-PLĀNO (con-p.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To make level, to level, terram; trop., c. dura, to make tolerable.

COM-PLECTOR (con-p.), plexus, 3. v. dep. tr. Prop., to be entwined, clasped round with something. 1) To encircle, to embrace, to encompass, to surround: c. aliquid manibus, aliquem medium (the body of any one); c. dextram alicujus, to seize with both hands; cc. inter se, they embrace each other; c. urbem obsidione, to invest. 2) Trop., to comprehend, to contain: A) = to comprise, to contain in itself: pass. hoc uno maleficio omnia scelera complexa esse videntur; so, likewise, illo genere vita beata complectitur, is comprised; c. aliquos ad suum scelus, to make participants in: B) to embrace in a discourse or description, to express, to set forth, to describe: c. omnia unā comprehensione, sententiam paucis verbis; c. aliquid oratione, illo libro; hence = to draw a conclusion: C) to embrace something in one's thoughts, to comprehend, to understand, to conceive: c. aliquid mente, cogitatione, animo, memoriā; and sometimes abs. (without an abl.) in the same sense: D) to embrace in one's feelings, affections: c. aliquem benevolentia, amore, to have a good will towards, to feel a love for, studio, to take an interest in, beneficio, to show kindness to; hence, abs., c. aliquem = to favour, to love: c. philosophiam: E) = to possess one's self of any thing, to take into possession, to obtain: quum animus complexus est idoneam naturam.

COMPLEMENTUM, i, n. [compleo]. That which fills up or completes, a complement: c. accusationum esse.

COM-PLEO (con-p.), ēvi, ētum, 2. v. tr. 1) To fill, to make full, to fill up, favos melle, omnia cadaveribus, se cibo et potione; (rar.) c. urbem ararum, carcer mercatorum completus; c. paginam, to fill with writing; c. murum, naves or classem sociis (also abs.), to man, to fill up; multo cibo et potione completi, filled, satiated with. 2) Trop.: A) c. omnia clamoribus, atria fremitu: B) illa res c. exercitum omni copiā, furnished abundantly: C) c. aliquem spe; c. omnia terrore ac fugā, to spread terror and flight everywhere; (Pl.) c. aliquem erroris et dementiae: D) to finish, to complete, has res; haec co. vitam beatam; c. summam promissi, to fulfil: E) to fill, to complete, to live through: c. centum annos, sua fata, tempora materna (the time of pregnancy).

COMPLĒTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of compleo].

1) Filled up, full: c. alveus Tiberis rudericibus.

2) Perfect, complete: c. verborum ambitus. (Compar. in Gell.)

COMPLEXIO, ōnis, f. [complector]. 1) A connection; hence, a combination: atomorum c. inter se; c. bonorum, the union; c. verborum mira, compression; c. brevis totius negotii, a short, condensed statement. 2) Tech. t.: A) in rhetoric — a) a period: c. verborum — b) a rhetorical figure, the frequent reference to previous statements: B) in philosophy — a) a conclusion of an argument — b) a dilemma: C) in grammar (Quinct.), the contraction of two syllables into one.

*COMPLEXIVUS, a, um, adj. [complector]. (Gell.) That connects, connective.

COMPLEXUS, ūs, m. [complector]. 1) An encompassing, embracing, an embrace: mundus qui omnia complexu suo coercescit; venire in complexum alicujus, to come to one's embrace; ferre alicui complexum, to offer to embrace one; tenere alicquem complexu suo, to embrace some one; homines de c. tuo, thy bosom friends. Hence — a) c. coeli, the compass — b) in a hostile sense = fight, close combat: venire in c. alicujus, to come to close quarters with. 2) Trop. — a) (Quinct.) of discourse, connection: brevis c. verborum; vitium est in c. — b) embrace, i. e., affection, love: c. gentis humanae.

COM-PLĪCO (con-pl.), āvi, ātum (lat., ui, itum, 3.), 1. v. tr. To fold together, to fold up, rudentem, epistolam; notio complicata, complicated, obscure.

COM-PLŌDO (con-p.), si, sum, 3. v. tr. [plaudo]. (Lat.) To clap together, manus.

COMPLŌRATIO, ōnis, f. [comploro]. A COMPLŌRATUS, ūs, m. } loud weeping together, lamentation, alicujus, a bewailing of some one. (Comploratus is found in Livy only.)

COM-PLŌRO (con-p.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To bewail or lament together, desertos penates, vivos mortuosque; respublica est desperata et complorata = is entirely given up.

COM-PLŪRES (con-p.), a, gen. ium, adj. (Compluria, rar. & mostly ante-cl.) Several, some, many (never used as a comp.—cf. plures): co. mulieres; co. loca; complures hostium.

COMPLŪRIENS, } adv. [complures]. (Ante-cl.)

*COMPLUSCŪLE, adv. [complures]. (Gell., doubtf. read.) Pretty often.

COMPLUSCŪLI, ae, a, adj. pl. [complures]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A good many.

COMPLŪVIUM, ii, n. [com-pluo]. A square open space in the centre of the Roman castrum

(v. Cavus), through which the rain-water from the roofs around fell into a basin (impluvium) placed below.

COM-PŌNO (con-p.), pōsi, pōsitum, 3. v. tr. To put together. I. In gen., without any accessory thought: to put, to place, to lay or bring together, res suas, lignum, frondem. Hence = to combine, to unite, aliquid cum re aliqua or (mostly poet.) rei alicui.

II. With special accessory ideas: A) with the idea of combining, uniting into a whole: 1) to join, to form, to bring about, to unite, &c.: genus humanum compositum est ex animo et corpore, is composed of; c. urbem, templa, to found; c. pacem cum aliquo, to establish, to conclude; so, likewise, c. gratiam inter aliquos. In partic. of written productions = to compose, to write, librum, leges, senatus consultum, carmina; c. tempora Iliaca (lat.), to describe. 2) (Mostly poet.) To devise, to contrive, to invent, insidias in alicquem, mendacia. 3) To agree upon, to determine upon with others, to appoint, aliquid cum aliquo or illi inter se co. diem rei gerendae (consilium); hence ex composito (rar. c. only), according to agreement; sometimes c. consilia = to settle one's purposes in one's own mind.

B) With the accessory idea of setting in order: 1) to put in order, to set right, to arrange, to regulate, capillos, togam, cohortes, verba; agmine composito, in close ranks; so, likewise, pugna c., in close array; c. vultum, to compose the countenance; c. verba, to arrange skilfully; (poet.) c. se, to adorn one's self, to dress; c. se spondā, mortuum toro, to lay upon a bed of state. 2) To put away for keeping = to keep, to preserve, opes. 3) (Poet. & lat.) To bury, to inter, mortuum, cinerem et ossa alicujus. 4) (Lat.) To adjust one thing to another, to adapt, to make suitable for: c. gestum ad similitudinem saltationis, omnia ad voluptatem multitudinis; compositus in arrogantiam, with the countenance adjusted to express haughtiness; in dissimulationem sui servili veste compositus, clad as a slave in order to be unrecognized; compositus in securitatem, feigning carelessness. 5) Of a contest, to settle, to compose, to adjust, litem inter aliquos, seditionem, bellum; componitur, an agreement is made. 6) (Poet.) Of persons, to tranquillise, to bring to terms, to reconcile, Asiam, socios, alicquem cum aliquo.

C) With the accessory idea of a combat or contest: 1) to set together, to pair, to match, gladiatores; c. aliqua inter se. 2) To place together for the purpose of comparing, to compare, dicta cum factis, (poet.) homines diis. 3) To bring together at a judicial investigation, to set face to face.

COM-PORTO (con-p.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To carry or bring together, to collect, frumentum ex tota Asia.

COMPOS, ōtis, adj. [con-potis]. 1) Master of, having power over, animi, mentis, sui; (rar.) compos corpore et animo. 2) Partaking of, in possession of, in the enjoyment of: c. patriae, libertatis, rationis; (rar.) compos praedā ingenti. Hence, compos culpaē, sceleris (ante-cl. & lat.), guilty of; c. voti, whose wish has been accomplished.

COMPŌSITE, adv. [compositus]. 1) In good order, in an orderly manner, dicere. 2) Quietly, composedly.

COMPŌSITIO, ōnis, f. [compono]. 1) A putting together, membrorum; c. juris, a drawing up in writing, composition; c. disciplinae, the connection, coherence of the system. 2) Arrangement, regulation, magistratum, rerum; in partic., c. verborum, a proper connection and arrangement of words, periodic structure. 3) A settlement of a strife, an agreement, reconciliation: servare cives per c. 4) A matching, pairing of combatants, gladiatorum.

COMPŌSITOR, ōris, m. [compono]. One who puts together, an arranger, disposer, anni; c. operis, an author.

COMPŌSITŪRA, ae, f. [compono]. 1) (Ante-cl.) A putting or joining together. 2) (Lucr.) A joint.

COMPŌSITUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of compono]. 1) Put together, compounded (oppos. to simplex), verba. 2) Invented, feigned, false, crimen. 3) Fitly-ordered, well-arranged, finished, pugna, literae, orator; (lat.) c. ad aliquid or rei alicui, fit, suitable for. 4) (Lat.) Quiet, composed, tranquil, affectus, actio; aetas c., sedate.

COMPŌTATIO, ōnis, f. [com-pono]. A drinking-party (a translation of the Greek εὐπρόσιον).

COMPŌTIO, ūvi, ūtum, 4. v. tr. [compos]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To make partaker of, aliquem re aliqua or rei alicujus. Hence, pass. = to become partaker of, to obtain; (Pl.) c. locis, to get into.

COM-PŌTOR (con-p.), ōris, m. A companion in drinking, a pot-companion.

COM-PŌTRIX (con-p.), ūcis, f. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A (female) pot-companion.

COM-PRANSOR, ōris, m. [com-prandeo]. One who dines with another, a boon companion.

COMPRECATIO, ōnis, f. [comprecor]. A supplication, a calling upon a deity.

COM-PRECOR (con-p.), ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. (Ante-cl. & poet.) To supplicate a deity, to call upon, to implore, deos, fidem coelestium; also, c. Jovi, and abs. = to pray, to supplicate.

COM-PREHENDO, also Com-prendo (con-p.), di, sum, 3. v. tr. 1) To take hold of with both hands, to seize or grasp together, to clasp round, to catch or lay hold of, aliquid; c. aliquem = to embrace. Hence, trop.: A) to apprehend any thing by means of the senses, to perceive, to see: c. aliquid sensibus: B) to embrace or take in with the mind, to conceive, to understand, to comprehend: c. aliquid scientiā, cogitatione, animo, mente, memoriā (also abs.): C) to comprehend in one's affections or in any expression of the affections: c. aliquem amicitia, to feel a friendship for one, omnibus officiis, to render all possible services to one: D) to comprise in writing or discourse, to set forth, to express, to describe, to handle, eandem rem pluribus verbis, aliquid brevi or breviter: c. aliquid numero = to count, to number. 2) (Since in many cases the prepositional idea entirely, or almost entirely, disappears.) To seize, to apprehend, aliquid manu. In partic.: A) to seize in a hostile manner, to catch, to lay hold of, to arrest: c. conjuratores, vehicula, navēs, to lay an embargo upon; c. epistolam, to intercept: B) of fire, ignis c. robora; domus comprehenditur igni, is seized by the fire; casa comprehendit ignem, takes fire: C) to discover, to detect a crime, facinus, rem, adulterium. Hence (poet.) = deprehendo, to seize, to apprehend a criminal, furem.

COMPREHENSIBILIS, e, adj. [comprehendo]. That can be seized or laid hold of. 1) = Perceptible by the senses: foramen c. sensibus, visible. 2) Comprehensible by the mind = intelligible, conceivable.

COMPREHENSIO, ōnis, f. [comprehendo]. 1) A laying hold of with the hands; hence = a seizing, an arresting, sontium. 2) Trop.: A) of discourse — a joining, a combining together: consequentium rerum cum primis conjunctio et c.; hence, a) = style, expression: universa c. et species orationis — b) a period, a sentence: c. verborum; ut c. numerosae cadat: B) in the language of philosophy — a) abstr., a comprehending, a perceiving — b) concr., a perception, an idea.

COMPRESSE, adv. w. comp. [comprimo]. 1) In a compressed manner, briefly, loqui. 2) (Lat.) Urgently.

COMPRESSIO, ōnis, f. [comprimo]. A pressing together. Hence, 1) an embracing or embrace. 2) Trop., of style, compression, abridgement.

COMPRESSUS, ūs, m. (only in the abl. sing.) [comprimo]. 1) A pressing together. 2) An embracing, embrace.

COM-PRIMO, pressi, pressum, 3. v. tr. [compremo]. 1) To press together, to squeeze together, digitos, corpora inter se; c. ordines, to close up the ranks; prov., compressis manibus sedere, to sit with the hands folded, i. e., to be idle. Hence, c. aliquam = to lie with, vi, to ravish, to commit a rape upon. 2) To hold back, to stop, to check, to curb, to repress: c. animam, to hold one's breath, manum, to keep off; c. linguam alicui, to silence; c. vocem, seditionem, audaciam et furorem alicujus; (rar.) c. aliquem; (ante-cl.) c. se and vix comprimo me quin in eum involvem; c. frumentum = not to distribute.

3) To hold back by concealing, to conceal, to keep secret, delicta, famam rei alicujus.

*COMPRŌBATIO, ōnis, f. [comprobo]. Approval, approbation.

*COMPRŌBATOR, ōris, m. [comprobo]. An approver.

COM-PRŌBO (con-p.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To approve of any thing fully, to approve, to sanction, legem, sententiam, factum alicujus; c. numen deorum, to acknowledge the power of the gods. 2) To prove a thing to be good, correct, &c., to show, to attest, to confirm: fortuna c. hominis consilium, attests the wisdom of his plans; c. rem aliquam testimonio suo.

COMPRŌMISSUM, i, n. [compromitto]. Tech. term, a mutual promise of two or more parties to abide by the decision of an arbitrator — v. Compromitto.

COM-PRŌMITTO (con-p.), mīsi, missum, 3. v. intr. Tech. t. in law, to promise mutually to abide by the decision of an arbiter.

COMPŌSA, ae, f. A town of the Hirpini in Samnium, now Conza.

COMPŌSĀNI, ōrum, m. pl. [Compesa]. The inhabitants of Compesa.

COMPTE, adv. [computus]. (Lat.) With ornament, elegantly, beautifully.

COMPTUS (I.), a, um, adj. [part. of como]. Adorned; trop., of style, polished, embellished, elegant.

COMPTUS (II.), ūs, m. [como]. (Ante-cl.) 1) A head-dress. 2) A band, a tie.

COM-PUGNO (con-p.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. (Lat.) To contend or fight together.

COM-PUNGO (con-p.), nxi, nctum, 3. v. tr. To prick or puncture all over, aliquem dolone; compunctus notis Threiciis = branded or tattooed; c. carmina notis, to make here and there marks or notes of censure; trop., colores qui cc. aciem, dazzle the eyes; ipsi se cc. suis acuminibus = they hurt themselves with their own weapons, perplex their own minds.

COMPŪTĀBĪLIS, e, adj. [computo]. (Lat.) That may be computed, computable.

COMPŪTATIO, ōnis, f. [computo]. (Lat.) 1) A reckoning together, computation. 2) Close reckoning, parsimony, avarice.

COMPŪTATOR, ōris, m. [computo]. (Lat.) A calculator, reckoner.

COM-PŪTO (con-p.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To reckon together, to compute, to cast up, annos, latitudinem Asiae; c. rationem digitis; (poet.) facies tua c. annos, reveals thy age; plures computant quam oderunt, look to their own advantage; c. literas, as it were to count, to pronounce slowly.

COM-PUTRESCO (con-p.), trui, —, 3. v. intr. (Lat.) To become putrid, to putrefy.

*CŌMŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of coma]. Pretty, nice hair.

CŌMUM, i, n. A town in Upper Italy, the birthplace of Pliny the Younger, now Como. Hence, adj., Comensis, e, of or pertaining to Comum; subst., Comenses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Comum.

CON — v. Cum.

CŌNĀMEN, Inis, n. [conor]. (Poet.) 1) An effort, endeavour: sumit c. eundi, makes a great effort to issue forth. *2) A prop, support.

CŌNĀTA, ōrum, n. pl. [part. of conor]. An undertaking, endeavour, hazardous attempt.

CŌNĀTIO, ōnis, f. [conor]. (Lat.) An undertaking, endeavouring, an effort, attempt.

CŌNĀTUS, ūs, m. [conor]. 1) An attempt, undertaking: conatum capere ad erumpendum, to make an attempt; conatus resistendi, an attempt to resist; repressi nefarios tuos cc. 2) An effort, endeavour, exertion: magno conatu facere aliquid. Hence = an inclination, impulse: belluae habent c. ad pastus capessendos.

CON-CĀCO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To defile with ordure.

CON-CAEDES, ium, f. pl. (Lat.) A barricade of felled trees.

CON-CĀLFĀCIO, feci, factum, 3. v. tr. To warm thoroughly, aliquid.

CON-CĀLEO, —, —, 2. v. tr. (Bar. & ante-cl.) To be thoroughly warm.

CON-CĀLESCO, lui, —, 3. v. intr. [inch. of caleo]. To become thoroughly warm: corpora nostra cc. ardore animi; trop. (Com.), to glow with love.

CON-CALLESCO, lui, —, 3. v. intr. [inch. of calleo]. Prop., to get a hard, thick skin; hence, trop., 1) to become insensible, to lose feeling. 2) to become practised or shrewd: animus c. usu.

CON-CĀMĒRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To arch around or over, templum.

CONCĀNUS, i, m. One of the Concani, a savage tribe in Spain, whose drink was horses' blood.

CON-CASTIGO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To chastise severely, to punish, aliquem.

CON-CĀVO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To make round or hollow.

CON-CĀVUS, a, um, adj. Hollow, arched, concave, curved, spelunca, vallis; cc. brachia cancri; unda c., swelling.

CON-CĒDO, cessi, cessum, 3. v. intr. & tr. I. Intr. 1) To go away from a place, to depart, to go, to betake one's self, ab aliquo, trans Rhenum, Argos habitatum. Hence: A) = to flee in Capitolium, Italiā, from Italy: B) to go or pass over to or into: c. in pancorum ditonem; c. in deditionem, to surrender, in matrimonium, to enter into a marriage; c. in conditionem, to accept the conditions, sententiam; to accede to an opinion: C) (Tac.) c. vitā or c. only = to depart this life, to die. 2) To yield to one's superior power, to go out of the way of one: c. injuriar; dolor c. medicinar; c. naturae = to die. 3) To give place to in rank, dignity, &c.; to yield to, to give precedence to: c. majestati illius viri; c. alicui re aliqua (also de or in re aliqua). 4) To yield to the will of any one = to submit to, to give in to, to obey, matri suae; senatus c. postulationi meae, gave way to, yielded to. 5) To excuse, to pardon, alicui, temere dicto.

II. Tr. 1) To concede, to grant, permit or allow something to one: c. amicis quidquid velint, Atheniensibus principatum, id tempus quieti; c. Siciliam, to cede, to give up; c. tibi ut de hoc loquaris; (poet. & lat.) c. aliquid facere; conceditur hoc uti, it is permitted. 2) To concede = to grant an assertion: c. eos esse mortuos, and also c. ut animus ne intreat; haec conceduntur esse facta, it is granted that this has taken place. 3) = Condono: A) to give up or sacrifice a thing for the sake of some one = to desist from: c. amicitias meas, tibi petitionem meam; B) to pass over, to pardon something to one. Hence, c. alicui aliquid, to pardon a person for the sake of some one; c. aliquid senatui; c. peccata liberorum misericordiae parentum, to pardon the offences of the children out of pity for the parents.

CON-CĒLEBRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. = A strengthened Celebro, q. v.

CONCENTIO, ōnis, f. [conscino]. (Rar.) A singing together, harmony.

CON-CENTŪRIO, 1. v. tr. (Pl.) To assemble by centurians; hence, trop., to collect, to bring together, to prepare, sycophantias, metum in corde.

CONCENTUS, ūs, m. [concino]. 1) A concert of song or instrumental music, symphony, harmony, harmonious music: c. vocis lyraeque; in partic. (lat.) = the accordant applause of an audience in a theatre. 2) Trop., agreement, unity, harmony, actionum omnium, doctrinarum; c. noster, our agreeing.

CONCEPTACŪLUM, i, n. [concepto from concipio]. (Lat.) A receptacle.

CONCEPTIO, ōnis, f. [concipio]. Prop., a taking or seizing together; hence, 1) a conceiving, becoming pregnant, conception. 2) In law, a composing or framing of juridical formulas, judiciorum privatorum, in civil actions. 3) Of style (Gell.), expression.

CONCEPTIVUS, a, um, adj. [concipio]. Ordered, directed; thus, only in the combination 'feriae co.', festivals celebrated on days appointed by the priests or magistrates, i. e., whose times were not determined by usage.

CONCEPTUS, ūs, m. [concipio]. Prop., a taking or seizing together; hence, A) conception, pregnancy; hence (lat.) = the foetus: B) c. camini, a taking fire: C) c. aquarum, a collection, conflux of water.

CON-CERPO, psi, ptum, 3. v. tr. [con-carpo]. 1) To pluck or tear to pieces, epistolam. 2) Trop., to censure, to blame, to reproach, aliquid.

CONCERTATIO, ōnis, f. [concerto]. Contention; hence, in gen., a strife, conflict, contest; in partic., a controversy, dispute: jejuna c. verborum.

*CONCERTATIVUS, a, um, adj. [concerto]. Pertaining to a contest or dispute: accusatio c. = a recrimination, counter-charges.

*CONCERTATOR, ōris, m. [concerto]. (Tac.) A contestant = a rival.

*CONCERTATORIUS, a, um, adj. [concertator]. Pertaining to a controversy, controversial.

CON-CERTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. 1) To contend, to fight, proelio. 2) In partic., to dispute, to debate, to carry on a controversy, cum aliquo de re aliqua; quae concertata sunt, the points in dispute.

CONCESSIO, ōnis, f. [concedo]. 1) A conceding, allowing, granting. 2) A figure of rhetoric, concessio.

CON-CESSO, āvi, —, 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To cease, to leave off, loqui.

CONCESSUS, ūs, m. [concedo]. Only in the abl. sing. Concession, permission, tuo, deorum.

CONCHA, ae, f. [= κέγχη]. 1) A muscle, a shell-fish: cc. unionum, pearl-oysters. 2) Hence: A) (poet.) in partic., the purple-fish: B) the pearl-oyster or the pearl: C) a muscle-shell: D) objects having the shape of a muscle-shell, e. g., an oil-flask, a box for ointments, a subcellar, &c.

CONCHIS, is, f. [κέγχος]. (Lat. poet.) A kind of bean which was boiled in the shell.

CONCHITA, ae, m. [κεγχίτης]. (Pl.) A gatherer of shell-fish.

CONCHYLĪATUS, a, um, adj. [conchylium]. 1) Purple-coloured, purple, vestis. 2) (Lat.) Clothed in purple.

CONCHYLĪUM, ii, n. [= κεγχέλιον]. 1) A shell-fish, or testaceous animal in gen. 2) In partic., an oyster. 3) A kind of purple shell-fish. Hence: A) purple colour, purple: B) a purple garment, purple robe.

CONCIDO (I.), idi, —, 3. v. intr. [con-cado]. 1) To fall together, to fall down, to tumble down: domus c.; ille c. in fimo, sub onere. 2) To fall down to the earth sick, wounded or lifeless, to fall in battle, to die: illi cc. mutuis ictibus; multi cc. in proelio; hostia c. ante aras, were slain. 3) Trop. = to fall entirely away, to be overthrown or prostrated, to perish, to decay, to lose all strength or value: venti cc., the winds subside: domus ejus c., fell, was ruined; so, likewise, Carthago c.; Phocion c. uno crimine; concido animo or animas (mihi) concidit, I lose my courage, am disheartened; senatus auctoritas c., is prostrated; nomina artificum cc.; fidēs ejus c., his credit declines; bellum cc., is brought to an end.

CONCIDO (II.) Idi. isum, 3. v. tr. [con-caedo]. 1) To hew to pieces, to cut to pieces, to cut through, ligna, naves; ager concisus fossis, intersected with; so, likewise, itinerā concisa. 2) To cut down in battle, to slay, to kill, hostes. 3) To cut to pieces = to cudgel soundly, to beat, aliquem virgis. 4) Trop.: A) of discourse, &c., to cut to pieces, to dismember, to enfeeble, sententias, numeros: B) to strike down by word or deed, to prostrate, to ruin, to destroy, auctoritatem senatus, aliquem; c. aliquem totis voluminibus = to refute; (Pl.) c. aliquem articulatim = to cheat.

CON-CIEO, Ivi, itum, 2., also Con-cio, Ivi, —, 4. v. tr. (Mostly poet. & lat.) 1) To urge or bring together, to collect together by urging or rousing, multitudinem ad se, exercitum ex tota insula. 2) (The idea contained in the preposition disappearing.) To set in motion, to agitate, to impel: amnis concitus imbris; tela concita; saxa concita tormento, hurried. 3) Trop.: A) to bring into a passionate state of mind, to excite, to arouse, to provoke, plebem concionibus, hostem; concitus cupidine, irā, moved with anger, enraged; concitus in aliquem (lat.); concitus divino motu, inspired: B) to excite, to produce, to cause any passion, action or state, seditionem, tantum mali, varios motus animorum, bellum.

CONCILIABŪLUM, i, n. [concilio]. A place of assembly, esp. a market-place, exchange, or a place for holding a court of justice: c. damni (Pl.), a brothel.

CONCILIATIO, ōnis, f. [concilio]. 1) A connecting, uniting, connection, union: c. et consociatio totius generis humani. 2) A making well disposed to any person or thing, a conciliating; esp. in rhetoric, the gaining over or conciliating of a hearer, a judge, &c.: conciliatiois causā; hoc valet ad c. Hence: A) = affinity, inclination, desire or longing for any thing: prima est hominis c. ad ea quae sunt secundum naturam; c. naturae. 3) An obtaining, procuring, gratiae.

CONCILIATOR, ōris, m. [concilio]. Prop., he who provides or prepares a thing; hence, an author, founder, promoter, nuptiarum, prodictionis.

CONCILIATRÍCŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of conciliatrix]. That which conciliates or unites.

CONCILIATRIX, icis, f. Prop., she who unites or conciliates. 1) An originator, a founder: oratio est c. societatis humanae. 2) A go-between in a love affair, a procurer, a bawd.

CONCILIÁTURA, ae, f. [concilio]. (Lat.) The trade of a procurer, pimping.

CONCILIÁTUS (I.), ūs, m. [concilio]. (Lucr.) Only in the abl. sing. A union, connection.

CONCILIÁTUS (II.), a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of concilio]. 1) Beloved, dear, alicui, to any one. 2) (Lat.) Inclined, well-disposed, given to, voluptati.

CONCÍLIO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [cieo or calo]. 1) (Ante-cl. & lat.) To bind or unite together, corpora. 2) Trop.: A) to unite in sentiment or feeling, to make friendly and well disposed, to win over, to gain, to conciliate, aliquos inter se and aliquem alicui; sometimes also abs. = to gain over to one's self, to win over, judicem, animos hominum; nihil est accommodatius ad conciliandum (lat.), more suitable for conciliating. Hence = to commend something as pleasing or agreeable to any one: quas res primas natura conciliavit: B) to establish by means of uniting, pacem. 3) To procure, to cause, to bring about for any one, alicui aliquid; c. alicui servum, pecuniam, by cunning or in other ways; c. nuptias, to bring about. In partic., c. alicui mulierem, to procure a maiden as a wife or mistress (most freq. in a bad sense); hence = to woo, to solicit, or = to couple, to give as a mistress. 4) To procure, to acquire, to achieve for one's self: c. sibi amorem ab omnibus, famam eloquentiae, favorem ad vulgum, odium.

CONCÍLIUM, ii, n. [concio]. 1) (Mostly Ante-cl.) Union, connection: hoc c. mihi tecum manebit, bond of union. 2) Abstr., a meeting, coming together: Camēnarum ibi cum Egeria cc. erant. 3) Concr., An assembly, esp. for the purpose of taking counsel, a council (cf. consilium, concio, comitia): c. deorum; esse in uno c.; habere c., to hold a council; convocare, dimittere c.; esse concilii, to be a member of an assembly or a council. Freq., in partic., an assembly or council of the people or of several states.

CONCINNE, adv. [concinnus]. 1) Neatly, elegantly. 2) Agreeably.

CONCINNITAS, ātis, f. [concinnus]. A skilful joining or composition of several things, beauty, harmony: in partic., c. verborum, sententiarum, beauty of style produced by a skilful arrangement of words and clauses.

CONCINNITER, adv. [concinnus]. (Gell.) Finally, neatly.

CONCINNITŪDO, inis, f. [concinnus]. Beauty of style.

CONCINNO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [concinnus]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) To join together fitly, to arrange skilfully, to adjust, pallam; c. ingenium, to cultivate properly. 2) To produce, to cause, to make: consuetudo c. amorem; vis venti c. hiatum. 3) (Pl.) With an adj. = red-dere, to make, to render, to cause one to be something: c. aliquem insanum; c. uxorem lacrimantem, to bring to tears.

CONCINNUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [etymology uncertain]. Prop. = fully and skilfully put or joined together. 1) Neat, pretty, elegant, fine, facies, insula; heluo c., elegant. 2) In partic., of discourse, tasteful, elegant, polished, pleasing, beautiful, genus orationis, sententiae; c. reditus ad rem, skilful, dexterous; also, of persons, c. in brevitate respondendi. 3) (Poet.) pleasing, agreeable to, suited to, alicui; ut concinnum est (Pl.), as it is convenient, agreeable.

CONCINO, cinui, centum, 8. v. intr. & tr. [cano]. I. Intr. 1) To sing together. 2) Of musical instruments: A) c. tragoedo pronuncianti, to accompany with the flute: B) of several instruments, to sound in concert, to resound together: tubae, cornu cc.: C) to agree together, to harmonise, cum aliquo; co. inter se. II. Tr. To cause to sound together, to sing or play any thing together harmoniously, aliquid. Hence: A) to praise, to celebrate in song, to glorify, aliquem, laudes alicujus. B) c. omen (poet.) to sing prophetically, to furnish an omen by its note or cry.

CONCIO, ōnis, f. [con-cio; prob. more correctly Concio = Conitio from coō]. 1) An assembly of the people or of soldiers, called together by a magistrate or a commander (cf. concilium, comitia): habere, convocare c.; convocare populum ad (in) c.; prodire in c.; c. militum; c. togata et urbana; ascendere in concionem, to ascend the orator's rostrum at an assembly. 2) An oration or discourse before a public assembly: legi c. tuam; habere c. gravem in Caesarem; Thucydides melior concionibus, more excellent in his harangues (of the speeches scattered through his history); dare alicui concionem, to give one the privilege of addressing an assembly.

CONCIONĀBUNDUS, a, um, adj. [concionor]. (Rar.) Making harangues to an assembly.

CONCIONĀLIS, e, adj. [concio]. Belonging or pertaining to an assembly of the people, genus dicendi, officium; senex c., who went about in the assemblies of the people trying to excite the multitude to sedition.

CONCIONĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [concio]. (Rar.) = Concionalis.

CONCIONĀTOR, ōris, m. [concionor]. A haranguer of the people (in a bad sense), a demagogue.

CONCIONOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. [concio]. 1) To be united in an assembly, to form an assembly. 2) To speak before an assembly, to harangue, adversus aliquem, pro tribunali, apud milites; *concionor, me non esse siturum, etc., I declare before the people; hence, 3) = to say publicly, to declare, to make known.

CONCIPIO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [concipio]. (Ante-cl.) To seize, aliquem.

CONCĪPIO, cōpi, ceptum, 8. v. tr. [capio]. 1) To lay hold of on all sides, to take together, to catch up, to take in, to catch, to seize: vas c.

aquam; c. ventum veste, to catch; c. ignem, flamman, to take fire, (poet.) trop. = to kindle or to be smitten with love. 2) To conceive, to become pregnant, ex aliquo; also, c. aliquem ex (de) aliquo; hence (poet), concepta crimina = that which has been illicitly or criminally conceived, and, subet., Conceptum, i, n., a foetus. 3) Trop.: A) (Pl.) c. aliquid oculis, to see: B) c. mente, animo, also c. abs. — a) to form a conception of something, to conceive, to imagine, to think of, magnitudinem hominis, lucos ibi esse; c. imaginem, to form a conception — b) = to understand, to comprehend, aliquid, quam fatigati simus: C) to receive into one's self, to adopt any feeling, passion, or design — a) = to conceive, to begin to experience or to cherish; hence, to cherish, to experience, to feel, iram, amorem, spem (also c. aliquid spe, to conceive a hope of any thing); c. tantam cupiditatem auribus, from the ears — b) to devise; hence, to be guilty of or to commit a crime, fraudem; c. scelus in se; (lat.) c. aliquid facere, to resolve: D) to comprise in words — a) to draw up, to compose, to express in a set form of words, vadimonium, iusjurandum, foedus — b) to proclaim or announce formally, ferias Latinas, auspicia, bellum.

CONCISE, adv. [concisus]. (Lat.) In short sentences, briefly, concisely.

CONCISIO, ōnis, f. [concido]. A division of a sentence into short members or clauses.

CONCISŪRA, ae, f. [concido]. (Lat.) A dividing, distributing, aquarium.

CONCISUS, a, um, adj. [part. of concido]. Broken up into pieces, short, concise, sententiae, disputationes.

CONCITAMENTUM, i, n. [concito]. (Lat.) An incentive.

CONCITĀTE, adv. w. comp. [concitatus]. 1) Quickly, hastily. 2) Violently, impetuously.

CONCITĀTIO, ōnis, f. [concito]. 1) A quick movement, remorum. 2) A civil commotion, tumult, uproar: plebei c. contra patres. 3) An excitement or agitation of the passions, an emotion, affection, passion, animi; vehementiores cc. animorum.

CONCITĀTOR, ōris, m. [concito]. One who excites or stirs up, a mover, exortor, belli, turbarum.

CONCITĀTRIX, Icis, f. [concito]. (Rar. & lat.) She who arouses or excites.

CONCITĀTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of concito]. 1) Quick, moving rapidly, swift, equus, conversio coeli. 2) Trop., aroused, vehement, ardent, pater, affectus.

CONCĪTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To move, to urge or drive on rapidly and violently: c. classem remis; c. equum, to spur on; cc. equos adversos, they spurred their horses against each other; c. tela, to hurl with force; c. se in fugam, to take to flight. 2) Trop.: A) to rouse, to urge, to incite, to impel to any act or feeling: c. iudicem ad fortiter iudicandum, multitudinem ad arma; c. aliquem in (adversus) aliquem; c. animos; freq. concitatus ira, dolore, etc.: B) to rouse, to stir up, to excite, to cause, to occasion any passion, action, evil, &c., seditionem ac discordiam, lacrimas totius populi, invidiam, odium.

CONCITOR, ōris, m. [conceo]. (Rar.) An exciter, a stirrer up.

CONCLAMATIO, ōnis, f. [conclamo]. A loud cry or shout of a multitude of persons: c. totius exercitus.

*CON-CLAMITO, 1. v. tr. [intens. of conclamo]. (Pl.) To call or cry out violently.

CON-CLAMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To call or cry out together, to shout: vos cc., patriam a me esse conservatam; conclamantibus omnibus; in partic. conclamatum est ad arma; jubet vasa conclamari (= ut vasa colligantur), to order the soldiers to pack up their baggage; hence = to give the signal for breaking up the camp. 2) (Poet.) To call together, to call to, socios. 3) To call or cry out loudly and violently, to exclaim: c. Italiam! caupo c. aliquem esse mortuum; c. quid ad se venient? c. deos (lat.), to call upon; also, abs. conclamat virgo, cries out. 4) In partic., c. aliquem (mortuum), to call a deceased person by name, and to bewail him (which was done for seven days, until his interment); hence, conclamatum est, it is all over, all is lost; post conclamata suprema, after rendering the last honours.

CONCLAVE, is, n. [con-clavis]. An apartment, room (that may be locked up).

CON-CLUDO, ūsi, ūsum, 3. v. tr. [claudio]. 1) To shut up, to lock up, to enclose, to confine, bestias, uxorem, aliquem in cellam; *c. animum in corpore; (Com.) ut ab illa excludar, huc concludar, I shall be hindered from marrying the one, and forced into a marriage with the other; mare conclusum, surrounded by land; urbs c. portum. 2) Trop.: A) to comprise, to include: c. multa uno volumine; c. omnia iudicia in hanc unam formulam, jus civile in angustum locum, to confine: B) = to end, to close, to conclude, epistolam; facinus summa crudelitate perfectum et conclusum: C) in rhetoric, of discourse, to round off, to give a rhythmical conclusion to, sententias; c. ordinem verborum alia terminatione: D) in philosophy, tech. t., to conclude, to draw a conclusion, to infer, to demonstrate, &c.: hoc modo c., summum malum esse dolorem; in the same sense, c. argumentum, rationem; quatuor sunt capita quae concludant nihil esse, etc., which prove, from which it is inferred, &c.

*CONCLŪSE, adv. [concludo]. With rounded periods, harmoniously, diere.

CONCLŪSIO, ōnis, f. [concludo]. 1) A shutting up, esp. = an investment, a blockade. 2)

A conclusion, an end, muneris tui; in partic., the conclusion, peroration of a discourse. 3) In philosophy, the conclusion of a syllogism, the consequence; in the same sense, c. rationis. 4) In rhetoric, a period (v. Concludo 2, C), verborum.

CONCLŪSIUNCŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of conclusio]. A silly inference.

CON-COENATIO, ōnis, f. (Rar.) A supping together, companionship at table. (A translation of the Greek σὺδειν.)

CON-COLOR, ōris, adj. (Poet. & lat.) Like-coloured, of the same colour as something else.

*CON-COMITATUS, a, um, adj. (Pl.) Accompanied, attended.

*CON-COPŪLO, 1. v. tr. (Lucr.) To unite, to join together.

CON-COQUO, coxi, coctum, 3. v. tr. 1) (Rar.) To boil or cook together, odores, fragrant substances. 2) To make soft, hence = to digest, cibum. 3) Trop.: *A) c. se (Pl.), to fret, to pine away with grief: B) = to endure, to put up with, to tolerate, famem, aliquem senatorem: C) to think upon, to consider maturely, aliquid; c. clandestina consilia, to contrive, to concoct: D) of the operations of the mind, to digest, to make entirely one's own, cum multa percurreres, unum excerpe, quod concoquas.

CONCORDIA (I.), ae, f. [concor]. Concord, unity, harmony, agreement (in sentiment, feeling, &c. — cf. pax and otium): c. equestris, among the knights, omnium ordinum; confirmare c. cum aliquo; so, likewise, jam vos redistis in concordiam; aspernari concordiam, to disdain friendship, alliance with any one. Hence (poet.) = an intimate friend.

CONCORDIA (II.), ae, f. [concor]. 1) The goddess of Concord, who had several temples at Rome. 2) A surname of the Emperor Vitellius.

CONCORDITER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [concor]. Amicably, harmoniously.

CONCORDO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. [concor]. To be united, to harmonize, to agree: fratres cc.; tu c. cum illa; animi opiniones iudiciaque cc.; sermo c. cum vita; (poet.) carmina ec. nervis, accord with.

CON-CORS, dis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [con-cor]. Of one mind, united, concordant, agreeing, harmonious (cf. concordia I.): fratres cc.; civitas c.; regnum iis fuit non solum commune sed etiam c., they held the regal power not only in common, but in harmony also; amicitia c.; concordii sono (poet.), accordant.

*CON-CREBESCO, brui, 3. v. intr. (Poet.) To increase with any thing.

CON-CREDO, didi, ditum (ante-cl. Con-creduo, dui), 3. v. tr. To entrust, to commit to, alicui aliquid; (Pl.) c. eum alicui in custodiam.

CON-CREMO, 1. v. tr. To burn up, to consume, vivos, urbem.

CON-CRĒPO, pul, pītum, 1. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to make a noise, to ring, to rattle, to resound: arma cc., clash, and multitudo c. armis, makes a din by striking their weapons together; (Com.) fores, ostium c., there is a knock at the door (as a warning that some one is coming out, the street-doors of the ancients opening outwardly): c. digitis, by snapping the fingers. 2) Trans., to make to resound or rattle by striking, aera.

CON-CRESCO, ēvi, ūtum, 8. v. intr. 1) Prop., to grow together; hence, to thicken, to curdle, to congeal, to harden; lao c.; aqua c. nive; sanguis c. frigore; (poet.) ora cc. rigido rostro, is turned into a hard beak. 2) To be formed (esp. by stiffening), to take form, to grow, re aliqua, out of; so, also, the part. concretus: c. ease ex re aliqua (inde), to be formed out of, composed of.

CONCRETIO, ōnis, f. [concreco]. Prop., a growing together; hence, 1) abstr., a thickening, condensing, corporum individuum. 2) Concr., materiality, matter: c. mortalis, perishable matter.

CONCRETUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of concreco]. 1) Grown together, compounded: crines cc. sanguine, matted together. 2) Thickened, thick, dense, curdled, stiffened, aër, corpora, humor, lac; (poet.) dolor c. = tearless.

CON-CRĪMINOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. (Ante-cl.) To complain bitterly or violently.

CON-CRŪCIO, 1. v. tr. (Luor.) To torment or torture severely, aliquem.

CONCUBINA, ae, f. [concupio]. A concubine, a mistress (v. Concupinatus—cf. pellex); sometimes = an unchaste female, in gen.

CONCUBINATUS, ūs, m. [concupio]. Concubinage (opp. to 'matrimonium' on the one hand, and to 'stuprum' or 'adulterium' on the other); also (Suet.), adultery, criminal intercourse*.

CONCUBINUS, 1. m. [concupio]. (Lat.) He who lives in concubinage (v. Concupinatus).

CONCUBITUS, ūs, m. [concupio]. 1) (Poet.) A lying together. 2) Copulation, coition.

CONCUBIUS, a, um, adj. [concupio]. Of or pertaining to the time of sleep. 1) Nox c., that part of the night in which the first sleep falls upon men, the time of the first sleep. 2) Neutr. sing. concubium: A) c. noctis = nox c.: B) (ante-cl. & lat.) = concupitus.

CON-CŪBO, bui, bītum, 1. v. intr. 1) To lie together in a mass. 2) To lie with, to cohabit with.

CON-CULCO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [calco]. 1) Prop. (rar.), to tread under foot, to crush. 2) Trop.: A) to tread upon in a hostile manner = to trample upon, to maltreat, to abuse, aliquem, Italiam: B) to disdain, to despise, lauream.

CONCUMBO, bui, bītum, 3. v. intr. [concupio]. *1) To lie down, boves. 2) To lie with, to cohabit with, alicui.

CON-CŪPIENS, tis, adj. [part. of cupio].

(Ante-cl. & lat.) Strongly desiring, greatly desirous of any thing, regni.

CONCŪPISCO, pivi or pii, pītum, 3. v. tr. [cupio]. To have an eager desire for any thing to wish or long for, to strive earnestly for, villam; nihil sibi c.; c. prodire in scenam.

CON-CŪRO, 1. v. tr. (Pl.) To take due care of, aliquid.

CON-CURRO, curri, cursum, 3. v. intr. 1) To run together, to rush from all sides to some point, to flock together: c. tota Italia; multi cc. in Capitolium; milites cc. ad arma; (poet.) c. alicui, to rush against; trop. = confugio, to run for refuge, to take refuge, ad aliquem. 2) To rush or run upon one another, to strike or dash together, naves, nubes; (poet.) dextra c. laevae (in applauding); literae, voces cc. aspere. 3) To rush together in strife, to join battle, to fight: cc. magno clamore, utrimque concurrunt; equites cc. inter se; c. cum aliquo and (mostly poet.) alicui. 4) Trop., of circumstances, occurrences and events, to concur, to coincide, to happen or take place at the same time: multa cc.: optabile est ut illa omnia cc.; nomina cc. = the times of payment coincide. 5) (Lat.) Os ei c., he cannot (from bashfulness) open his mouth; so, likewise, labra cc. 6) (Poet.) C. alicui, to run in company with one, i. e., as fast.

CONCURSATIO, ōnis, f. [concurso]. 1) A running or crowding together, populi. 2) A running against one another, a clashing together: aliorum in alios incidentium c. 3) Trop., a coming together = correspondence, agreement, coincidence, somniorum. 4) A running to and fro, a running about: hujus cc.; c. regis ab Demetriade nunc Lamiam nunc Chalcidem; c. decemviralis = a journey through the provinces. Hence (lat.): A) in partic., the skirmishing of light-armed troops: B) c. mentis = restlessness, fluctuation.

CONCURSATOR, ōris, m. [concurso]. (Only of soldiers.) One who runs to and fro = a skirmisher: pedes vagus et c.

CONCURSIO, ōnis, f. [concurso]. 1) A meeting together, concurrere, stellarum; crebrae cc. vocalium. 2) A rhetorical figure, a repetition of the same words.

CON-CURSO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to run to and fro, to run about, to travel about: armati cc.; cc. circum tabernas; in partic., of soldiers, to skirmish. 2) Tr., to go about visiting, to visit, to frequent, domos, omnium lectos.

CONCURSUS, ūs, m. [concurso]. 1) A running or crowding together; in partic., a concourse: cc. fiunt ex agris; c. hominum in forum ex tota urbe fit. 2) A striking or clashing together, navium, verborum, vocalium, harsh combination; c. calamitatum, contemporaneous occurrence; c. studiorum, combination, assemblage.

3) In partic., a hostile meeting, an engagement, attack, charge, utriusque exercitus: also, c. proelii. 4) (Lat.) C. oris, a shutting of the mouth (v. Concurro 5).

CONCUSSIO, ōnis, f. (Lat.) A shaking, concussion.

CONCUSSUS, ūs, m. [concutio]. (Only in abl. sing.) = Concusso.

CONCŪTIO, ussi, ussum, 3. v. tr. [quatio]. 1) To shake violently, to shake, to agitate, caput; urbs concutitur terrae motu. Hence = to hurl, tela lacertis. 2) Trop.: A) to shake the power or stability of any thing, to cause to totter, to impair, to disorder, rempublicam, opes Laedaemoniorum, Hannibalem: B) to shake or agitate the feelings = to frighten, to disquiet, to trouble, to disturb: id factum primo populares conjurationis concussit; c. animum alicujus: C) (poet. & lat.) to shake up = to rouse to activity, to set in motion.

CONDĀLIUM, ii, n. [= κονδάλιον]. (Pl.) A small ring worn by slaves.

CON-DECET, —, —, 2. v. impers. (Ante-cl.) It becomes, is becoming, meet, fit: illud te c.; c. to aliquid facere.

CON-DECŌRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To ornament or adorn carefully, ludos scenicos.

*CONDEMNĀTOR, ōris, m. [condemno]. (Tac.) One who causes a condemnation, an accuser.

CON-DEMNO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [damno]. 1) To condemn, to sentence to punishment, aliquem judicio turpissimo; c. aliquem sceleris, for a crime, capitis, capitally, eodem crimine, also de ambitu: c. aliquem poena capitali, ad bestias, and (lat.) in antliam. 2) To effect the condemnation of any one, to establish a charge: eum majestatis reum fecit et condemnavit; sometimes simply = to accuse, to bring a charge against. Hence, 3) to blame, to censure, to disapprove of, factum alicujus, but also c. aliquem inertiae, to blame one for his inactivity.

CON-DENSO, 1. (poet. & lat.), and (ante-cl.) Con-denseo, —, —, 2. v. tr. [condensus]. To make thick or close, to press together, aciem; oves co. se, crowd together.

CON-DENSUS, a, um, adj. (Mostly poet.) Very close, dense, close together; c. vallis arboribus, thickly covered with.

CONDĪCIO, ōnis, f. [condico]. = Conditio [condo] q. v.

CON-DICO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) To make an agreement together, to agree upon any thing, to appoint mutually: c. aliquid alicui; c. inducias. 2) To announce, to proclaim, to make known. In partic., c. alicui coenam or ad c. (also abs. c. alicui), to invite one's self to an entertainment, to invite one's self to be the guest of any one (cf. promittere ad c., where an invitation is implied); hence, coena subita et conducta, a simple meal, without previous preparation.

CON-DIGNE, adv. [condignus]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Worthily, suitably.

CON-DIGNUS, a, um, adj. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Entirely worthy, becoming, aliqua re.

CONDIMENTUM, i, n. [condio]. Spice, seasoning, cibi. Hence, trop., that which makes any thing more agreeable or less disagreeable: facetiae omnium sermonum c.; optimum aerumnae condimentum est animus aequus, alleviation.

CONDIO, Ivi or ii, Itum, 4. v. tr. [condo]. 1) To put fruit in vinegar, wine, &c., to preserve, to pickle, oleas, corna. 2) To season, to prepare skilfully and daintily, to make savoury, coenam, herbas; c. unguenta, to make fragrant. Hence, c. mortuos = to embalm. 3) Trop.: A) to season = to adorn, to embellish, to make pleasing or agreeable, orationem; etiam vitia naturae studio atque artificio quodam malitiae condire: B) = to mitigate, to alleviate, tristitiam temporum.

CONDISCIPŪLATUS, ūs, m. [condiscipulus]. (Rar.) School-fellowship, companionship in school.

CON-DISCIPŪLUS, i, m. A school-fellow.

CON-DISCO, didici, —, 3. v. tr. To learn thoroughly, aliquid, qui pecuniae fructus sit; c. facere aliquid.

CONDĪTIO (I.), ōnis, f. [condio]. A preserving, seasoning.

CONDĪTIO (II.), ōnis, f. (also written Con-dicio, as if from condico) [condo]. 1) External position, situation, condition, rank, circumstances:

A) of persons, c. infirma servorum; c. humana; pari conditione uti, to enjoy the same advantages; cura super conditione communi, a concern for the common fate of all: B) of things, condition, relation, manner: par juris, libertatisque c., the same condition of law and freedom; c. vivendi, vitae, way, manner. 2) In arranging and settling terms, a condition, stipulation, agreement, proposal, demand: cc. pacis conveniunt, are agreed upon; respuere c.; (rar) sub his cc., on these conditions; so, likewise, pax fit in illas cc.; ex qua c. (rar.), on which condition. 3) In particular, a marriage-contract, a marriage, a match: accipere aliam c.; quaerere conditionem filiae, j'or one's daughter; 'tua conditione non utor' (the formula of divorce); sometimes in a dishonourable sense = an amour, a love-affair. Hence, coner., of the persons entering into such a relation = a bridegroom, a bride (Octavianus conditionem ei detulit, proffered O. as a spouse), or in a bad sense, a paramour, a concubine.

CONDĪTIVUM, i, n. [condo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A tomb.

CONDĪTIVUS, a, um, adj. [condo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Of fruit, preserved.

CONDĪTOR, ōris, m. [condo]. An establisher, founder, author, arranger, regni, legum, urbis, arcis Romanae, totius negotii

CONDITORIUM, ii, n. [condo]. (Lat.) 1) A coffin, or urn for the ashes of the dead. 2) A tomb.

CONDITURA, ae, f. [condio]. (Lat.) 1) A preserving of fruits. 2) A seasoning, savoury preparation, sauce.

CONDITUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of condio]. 1) Seasoned, savoury. 2) Trop., of discourse, polished, ornamented.

CON-DO, didi, ditum, 3. v. tr. [do]. Prop., to put or bring together. 1) To join together into a whole: A) of a state, city, a people, &c., to found, to establish, to make, to build: c. urbem, regnum, aram; (poet. & lat.) c. genus humanum, gentem Romanam, to be the founder of, aurea secula, to establish; conduntur illo loco, they settle there: B) of written productions, to compose, to write, carmen, historiam; c. praecepta medendi, acta Caesaris, laudes alicujus, to set forth, to recount, to celebrate. 2) With the accessory idea of carefulness: A) to put, lay or place away for preservation, to lay or store up, pecuniam, frumentum proprio horreo; c. cineres in urnas; c. aliquem in carcerem, to cast into prison; literas publicas in aerario conditas habere: B) (Econ. & poet.) = to preserve fruit: C) to bury, to inter, mortuos, aliquem sepulcro: D) (poet.) of time, to spend, to pass. Hence, tech. t., c. lustrum (of the sensors after completing a census), to make the lustral sacrifice (v. Lustrum). 3) (Poet. & lat.) With the accessory idea of secrecy, to hide, to conceal, ensem; c. se in viscera terrae, sub lectum; nubes co. lunam; c. oculos, to shut. Hence (poet.) = to thrust deep, to plunge: ensem in pectus or pectore; also, c. telum pectore (cf. abdo).

CONDŌCE-FĀCIO, feci, factum, 3. v. tr. To teach, to train, milites, belluas; c. animum ut, etc., to discipline, &c.

CON-DŌCEO, cui, ctum, 2. v. tr. (Ante-cl.) To teach, to train, to exercise, milites uti equo frenato; aliquid mihi conductum est, and hence conductor sum quam etc., I am more perfect than, &c.

CON-DŌLESCO, lui, —, 3. v. intr. [doleo]. To feel severe and excessive pain (bodily or mental), to suffer much: caput mihi c., I have a severe headache; is ne condoluisset quidem unquam videtur.

*CONDŌNATIO, ōnis, f. [condono]. A giving away.

CON-DŌNO, ōvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To present, to give, to deliver or make over as a present, alicui aliquid; also (ante-cl.), c. aliquem aliquid, to present one with something. Hence: A) = to give a debt to one, to remit, pecunias debitoribus, and (ante-cl.) aliquem argentum: B) to give over, to surrender, aliquid potentiae alicujus, aliquem cruci. 2) Trop.: A) to give up something for the sake of any one, to sacrifice, to offer up, to bring as an offering, inimicitias rei publicae, dolorem suum voluntati alicujus; c. vitam suam reipublicae: B) to pardon, to forgive an offence, alicui crimen, scelus: C) to pardon or forgive any thing or person for some one's sake: c. sibi filium, to forgive the son for his (the father's) sake; so, also, c. unum tot Claudis deprecantibus.

CON-DORMIO, 4. v. intr. (Lat.) To fall quite asleep.

CON-DORMISCO, ivi, —, 3. v. intr. [inch. of dormio]. To fall quite asleep, to sleep.

CONDUCIBILIS, e, adj. [conduco]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Profitable, advantageous: consilium c. ad eam rem.

CON-DŪCO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) To lead, to draw or gather together, to assemble, auxilium, exercitum in unum locum, virgines. Hence (mostly poet.) = to unite, to combine, partes in unum; c. nubila, corticem = to draw together. 2) To take to one's self by hiring or renting (opp. to loco): A) to rent, to hire, domum, consulem vestrum ad caedem faciendam; c. milites; (poet.) c. pecuniam, to borrow; hence, subst., Conducti, ōrum, m. pl., and Conductum, i, n., q. v.: B) to farm, vectigalia, portorium: C) to undertake any service (the erecting of a building, the supplying of an army, &c.) for a given sum, to contract for: c. statuum faciendam; c. ea praebenda quae exercitui opus erant. 3) Intr. (only in third pers. sing. and pl.), to be advantageous, serviceable, conducive to: illud tibi c.; c. ad vitae dignitatem; (ante-cl. & lat.) c. in rem tuam, in rempublicam.

CONDUCTICIUS, a, um, adj. [conduco]. Hired; c. exercitus, mercenary.

CONDUCTIO, ōnis, f. [conduco]. (Rar.) 1) A connecting together, uniting. 2) A renting, hiring, farming, fundi.

CONDUCTITIUS, a, um, adj. = Conducticius.

CONDUCTOR, ōris, m. [conduco]. 1) A hirer, renter, lessee. 2) A contractor.

CONDUCTUM, i, n. [conduco]. That which is hired, esp. a house, dwelling, &c.

CONDUCTUS, i, m. [conduco]. A hiring soldier; pl. Conducti, ōrum, mercenary troops.

CONDUPLICATIO, ōnis, f. [conduplico]. (Rar.) A doubling. Hence: A) (Com.) = an embracing: B) a rhetorical figure, a repetition of the same word.

CON-DUPLICŌ, ōvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl.) To double, divitias; (Com.) co. corpora = to embrace.

*CON-DŪRO, 1. v. tr. (Lucr.) To harden, ferrum.

*CONDUS, i, m. [condo]. A layer-up of something: c. promus = a steward, butler.

CON-FĀBRICOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. (Gell.) To manufacture, to make, originem vocabuli.

CON-FABŪLOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. & intr. (Ante-cl.) 1) Intr., to talk, to converse, to chat, cum aliquo. 2) Tr., to talk about something, to discuss, rem aliquam cum aliquo.

CONFARREATIO, ōnis, f. [confarreo]. The more ancient and solemn form of marriage among the Romans, in the presence of the pontifex maximus, the flamen dialis, and ten witnesses, in the course of which an offering of bread (far) was made to the gods.

CON-FARREO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [far]. (Lat.) To unite in marriage (by the ceremony of confarreatio).

*CON-FATĀLIS, e, adj. Bound by the same fate.

CONFECTIO, ōnis, f. [conficio]. 1) A making, producing, preparing, completing, libri, belli; c. materiae, a providing, tributi, an exacting. 2) C. cibi, a shewing. 3) C. valetudinis, a weakening, an impairing.

CONFECTOR, ōris, m. [conficio]. 1) A maker, finisher, an accomplisher, negotii, belli. 2) A consumer, destroyer: ignis c. omnium rerum.

CON-FERCIO, ai, tum, 4. v. tr. To stuff or cram together, to press closely together, naves.

CON-FĒRO, contili, collātum, v. tr. I. The prepositional idea being retained: 1) to carry or bring together, to gather, ligna circa casam, sarcinas in unum locum. 2) To bring together money, &c., for a certain purpose, to give jointly, to contribute, pecuniam, tributa quotannis, sextantes in capita, munera alicui. Hence, trop., intr. (lat.), to contribute to, to be useful or profitable to, to profit, to serve, rei alicui or ad rem aliquam, to any thing. 3) (Rar.) Sc. legem, etc., to propose together, i. e., at the same time. 4) To bring together into union, to join, to unite, to connect, &c.: c. vires in unum, aquae collatae; c. pedem, gradum, to go with (cf. No. 5); c. capita, to put heads together (for deliberation, consultation, &c.); c. sermones familiares cum aliquo, to hold familiar conversations with one, consilia, to take counsel with. Hence: A) conferunt sollicitudines suas inter se, or simply co. injurias, they impart to each other, talk over together; also, abs., conferunt inter se, or simply co., they confer together, they consult together. 5) In partic. = to bring together in a hostile manner, to bring to a close fight: c. signa, arma cum aliquo and inter se, to fight a pitched battle; signis collatis = a pitched battle; c. manus or manum (dextram), to engage hand to hand; c. pedem cum pede, to fight man against man; so, likewise, pede collato pugnare; also, c. gradum cum aliquo; (poet.) c. certamen pugnae, and c. cum aliquo, to fight with one; c. lites, to contend. 6) To bring together for comparison, to compare, aliquid cum re aliqua or alicui rei; also, c. utriusque vitam inter se. 7) (Ante-cl., poet. & lat.) To compress, to abridge, aliquid in pauca verba, in duos versus.

II. The prepositional idea (with, together) disappearing: 1) to carry or bring a thing somewhere, omnia sua in oppidum, legiones in mediam aciem, to place; c. iter aliquo, to direct, to turn towards. Hence, freq., to betake one's self: c. se Laodiceam, ad Tissaphernem, in fugam. 2) (Poet.) To transform, to change, se in bellum, corpus in volucrum. 3) Trop.: A) to bring, turn or direct to, to lead over to, &c.: c. orationem ad misericordiam, to direct one's discourse to the excitation of pity, suspicionem in aliquem, to bring suspicion upon any one; c. spem salutis ad clementiam victoris, to rest one's hope of safety on the clemency of the victor; c. se ad studium scribendi, to turn one's attention to writing; c. beneficia in aliquem, to confer favours upon any one; also (lat.), c. praemia alicui, to bestow rewards upon; c. rem ad aliquem or curam rei alicujus in aliquem, to transfer; c. species hominum in deos, to transfer, in one's representations, the human form to the gods: B) to turn to, to apply or make use of for some purpose, praedam in monumenta deorum, omne studium ad gloriam alicujus celebrandam, omnes curas in rempublicam: C) to refer a thing to some one as its author, to attribute to, to ascribe to, to lay to the charge of: multa in illum conferuntur; c. sua vitia in senectutem, culpam in aliquem: D) to put off, to defer, iter in posterum diem.

CONFERTIM, adv. [confercio]. In a compact body, closely.

CONFERTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of confercio]. Prop., pressed together; hence, 1) standing close together, crowded, close, milites, equi, multitudo. 2) Stuffed full, full: omnia sunt completa et oc.; liber c. voluptatibus; templa oc. ingenti turba virorum, filled with.

CONFERVĒ-FĀCIO, —, —, 3. v. tr. (Lucr.) To make glowing.

CONF-ERVESCO, bul, —, 3. v. intr. [ferveo]. (Poet. & lat.) To begin to boil, to grow hot; trop., ira mea c.

CONFESSIO, ōnis, f. [confiteor]. Confession, acknowledgement, errati sui; ea erat c., Romam caput rerum esse, this was an acknowledgement, &c.

CONFESSUS, a, um, adj. [part. of confiteor, with passive signification]. Prop., generally acknowledged = undoubted, manifest, certain; hence (lat.), est in confesso, it is admitted by all; venire in confessum, to be generally acknowledged.

CONFESTIM, adv. [kindred with festinus, festino, from fero]. Immediately, forthwith, without delay: c. aut ex intervallo aliquid consequi.

CONFICIENS, tis, adj. w. sup. [part. of conficio]. Effecting, causing, bringing any thing to pass, efficient: conficientia bonorum corporis, that constitute physical good; civitas conficientissima literarum, carefully noting down everything.

CONFICIO, feci, factum, 3. v. tr. [facio]. 1) To make, to complete, to bring about, to accomplish, to execute: c. vestem; librum, to write, to compose; c. bellum, proelium, to finish; tertiam partem itineris, to travel over; c. caedem, illas res, to accomplish; sacra, funera, to perform, to finish. Hence: A) abs., c. cum aliquo, to settle, to finish a business with any one: B) = to effect, to produce, to cause, pacem, motum animi, sollicitudines alicui; c. alicui reditum: C) to complete any period of time, to spend, to pass, centum annos, adolescentiam in voluptatibus; vita confecta, finished: D) philosophical tech. t., to infer, to conclude — always in pass.: conficitur ex re aliqua, it follows. 2) To make an end of a person or thing = to destroy, to weaken, to overcome, &c.: c. hominem = to kill; freq. in pass. confici dolore, cruciatu, aetate, to be worn out, oppressed with; absolut., confici = to grieve: c. aliquem vulneribus, to wound severely; milites confecti, weakened, worn out; c. provinciam, Athenienses, to subdue. Hence: A) = to chew, to grind, cibum; and, hence = to consume, to eat, pavonem: B) = to consume, to spend, to squander, pecuniam, patrimonium: C) ignis c. silvam, consumes. 3) To bring together, to raise, to procure, exercitum, magnam pecuniam ex illa re: c. legitima suffragia, to secure the requisite number of votes; so, also, c. centurias.

CONFICTIO, ōnis, f. [confingo]. An inventing, fabricating.

CONFIDENS, tis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of confido]. Trusting to one's self, bold, fearless; freq. in a bad sense = audacious, impudent, shameless.

CONFIDENTER, adv. [confidens]. Boldly, courageously; often in a bad sense = audaciously, impudently.

CONFIDENTIA, ae, f. [confidens]. 1) (Com.) A firm trust, reliance, confidence. 2) Self-confidence: A) in a good sense, boldness, courage: B) in a bad sense, audacity, impudence: c. et temeritas.

CONFIDENTI-LŌQUUS, a, um, adj. [confidens-loquor]. (Pl.) Talking boldly or confidently.

CONFIDO, fisis sum, 3. v. intr. (perf. confiderunt, in Livy). To trust confidently in any thing, to rely entirely upon (of fidem habeo and credo), to confide in: c. illo duce, naturâ loci, illo senatusconsulto; c. vestrae virtuti, alicui, arcae tuae; c. de salute urbis, to be confident of the safety of the city; c. te valere: confisi inviolatos sese fore, persuaded that they would be secure from all harm.

CONFIGO, xi, xum, 3. v. tr. 1) To fasten together, to join together, transtra clavis ferreis. 2) To pierce, to transfix, aliquem sagittis; trop., confixus ejus sententiis, paralyzed, rendered inactive.

CONFIGURO, —, âtum, 1. v. tr. (Gell.) To form or fashion, ex rebus diversis.

CONFINDO, 3. v. tr. (Poet.) To cleave, to divide: aër c. pontum.

CONFINGO, nxi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) (Lat.) To form by putting together, to fashion, to fabricate, nidos. 2) Trop., to invent, to devise, to feign, dolum, causam aliquam; c. lacrimas dolis (Com.), to feign tears.

CONFINIS, e, adj. 1) Bordering one upon another, contiguous, adjoining (of fields and districts of territory — cf. vicinus): ager c.; hlerant confines Senonibus (dat.). Hence, subst., Confine, is, n., a boundary, border, confine. 2) Trop. (poet. & lat.), coming near to, like, related to: carmina co. studio vestro (dat.); also, c. ejus generis, of this kind.

CONFINIUM, ii, n. [confinis]. 1) A common boundary, border, limit, confine (of lands, but 'vicinitas' of houses): c. Lycœniæ et Pamphyliæ; vicinitates et co. 2) That which holds a middle position between two things, neighbourhood, vicinity: in quam arto salutis exitique fuerimus confinio; mediocritas posita est in c. boni maliq̃e, lies midway between.

CONFIO, fieri (ante-cl. & lat.), for Conficior — v. Conficio.

CONFIRMATE, adv. [confirmatus]. Firmly.

CONFIRMATIO, ōnis, f. [confirmo]. 1) A securing, confirming, libertatis; frequently, a strengthening of a wavering or sorrowful mind = encouragement, consolation. 2) An assertion, affirmation: per fugae c. 3) In rhetoric, an ad-ducing of proof.

CONFIRMATOR, ōris, m. [confirmo]. Prop., One who confirms a thing: c. pecuniae, a security, bail.

CONFIRMATUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of confirmo]. 1) Encouraged, courageous. *2) Certain, credible.

CONFIRMO, âvi, âtum, 1. v. tr. 1) To make strong, to strengthen, to establish, nervos, dentes; c. valetudinem or se, to recover; c. conjurationem, regnum Persarum. In part., trop.: A) to strengthen the courage of any one, to encourage, to animate: c. animum alicujus, milites ad pugnandum; confirma te, take courage! B) (rar.) to confirm one in some feeling, esp. in fidelity, homines, insulas bene animatas. 2) To confirm a fact or an assertion, to prove, to demonstrate, locum istum; confirmare nostra argumentis ac rationibus, deinde contraria refutare. 3) To assert, to protest, to affirm as certain, aliquid; c. talem eloquentiam existere potuisse; c. jurejurando, se iter tutum daturum esse.

CONFISCATIO, ōnis, f. [confisco]. (Lat.) A confiscation of property.

CONFISCO, âvi, âtum, 1. v. tr. [con-fiscus] (Lat.) 1) To lay up in a chest, pecuniam. 2) To confiscate, to seize upon, and to convey to the public treasury, bona alicujus, and, melon., aliquem.

*CONFISIO, ōnis, f. [confido]. Trust, confidence.

CON-FITEOR, fessus, 2. v. dep. tr. [fateor].

1) To acknowledge, to confess, to own (an error, or something previously denied or kept secret — of. profiteor): c. peccatum, errorem meum, amorem; c. de maleficio; c. se victum, se ab aliquo cupisse laudari. 2) (Poet. & lat.) To show evidently, to make known, to reveal, to manifest: c. iram vultu, inscientiam suam; also, of things without life, analogia c., verba varie formari; (poet.) se c., to make one's self known.

CON-FLACCESCO, 3. v. intr. (Gell.) To become languid, to subside.

CONFLAGRATIO, ōnis, f. [conflagro]. (Lat. & rar.) A burning, conflagration.

CON-FLAGRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to burn up, to be consumed by fire: classis c. incendio praedonum; trop., c. incendio irae = to cherish a fierce anger; also, c. incendio invidiae, or only c. invidiā, to be consumed by a conflagration of hatred. 2) (Lat.) Tr., to burn, to consume by fire, urbem.

CONFLICTATIO, ōnis, f. [conflictio]. (Lat.) A striking together; hence = a fight, combat, exercituum duorum.

CONFLICTIO, ōnis, f. [configo]. 1) A striking together, collision, duorum corporum inter se. 2) Trop., a conflict, struggle, cum adversario.

CONFLICTO, āvi, ātum (rar.), and Confictor, ātus, dep., 1. v. tr. & intr. [configo]. Prop., to strike violently together; hence, 1) intr., to contend with, to struggle with, cum aliquo, cum adversa fortuna. 2) Tr., trop.: *A) in the act., to strike down, to ruin, rempublicam: B) in the pass., confictari aliqua re, to be disquieted, to be tormented, harassed, brought to ruin by any thing: c. durā fortuna, superstitione, iniquissimis verbis, crimine, foeda hieme.

CONFLICTUS, ūs, m. [configo]. 1) A striking together, lapidum. *2) Trop. (Gell.), fatalis incommodi conflictu urgeri, conflict, necessity.

CON-FLIGO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. & intr. 1) Tr. (ante-cl.), to strike together, to bring together, to unite, corpora; to bring together for comparison, to compare, aliquid cum re aliqua. 2) Intr., to come into hostile collision, to contend, to fight, to combat, cum hoste, contra conspirationem hostium, adversus classem Rhodiorum; freq. also of a controversy or a suit in court = to contend, to dispute.

CON-FLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. Prop., to blow together. 1) To kindle by blowing, ignem; freq. trop. of passion or such actions as proceed from passion, to kindle, to inflame, to excite, bellum, discordiam, tumultum, invidiam. 2) To bring together, to raise, to procure; hence, in gen., to bring about, to effect, to accomplish, to cause, to occasion: exercitum, pecuniam, injuriam novo scelere, crimen in se, periculum alicui; c. aes alienum grande, to contract enormous debts. Hence, trop. = to invent, to devise, mendacium, judicia. 3) Of metals, to melt, to fuse, to melt down, argentum, argenteas statuas; (poet.) falces conflantur in enses, are forged into swords. Hence, trop., una ex duabus naturis conflata videtur, united, joined together; consensus paene conflatus, as it were, melted together = entire, perfect.

CONFLUENS, tis [part. of conflu]. 1) A dj., of a river, flowing into another river: c. Rhodanus. 2) Subst., Confluens, tis, or more freq. Confluentes, ium, m., the place where two rivers unite, the confluence; in particular, as a proper name, Confluentes, ium, m. pl., the present Coblenz (at the confluence of the Moselle and the Rhine).

CON-FLUO, xi, xum, 3. v. intr. To flow together (of rivers and the like): amnes vasti cc. in Phasin; flumen illud c. cum Rheno. 2) Trop. of objects not liquid, esp. of a multitude of men, to flow together, to run, to come or crowd together: multi cc. Athenas; plures cc. ad haec studia, betake themselves to these studies; trop., laus, honor c. ad illas, is poured down upon them, falls to their lot in great abundance.

CON-FODIO, fōdi, fossum, 3. v. tr. 1) (Ante-cl. & lat.) To dig round about, to dig all over, hortum. 2) To pierce through, to stab, to transfix, hominem. Hence, trop., c. aliquem judiciis, as it were, to pierce through; c. aliquid notis (lat.), to cross out, to cancel.

CONFORMATIO, ōnis, f. [conformo]. 1) A forming, shaping, conformation, shape, form: c. oris et corporis, theatri; c. verborum, order, arrangement. Hence, c. animi, or simply c. = a notion, idea, conception. 2) In rhetoric, a figure of speech, prosopopoeia.

CON-FORMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To form, to fashion, to shape harmoniously or skilfully: mundus a natura conformatus; natura nos ad majora quaedam conformavit; c. animum suum, mores.

CONFOSSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of confodio]. (Pl.) Bored through, perforated.

CON-FRAGOSUS, a, um, adj. 1) Broken, rough, uneven, locus, via. 2) (Ante-cl. & lat.) Trop., hard, difficult, conditio; c. argumentum, complicated.

CON-FRĒMO, ui, —, 3. v. intr. (Poet. & lat.) To make a loud noise, to murmur.

CON-FRICO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To rub hard, to rub in, faciem sibi; trop., c. genes, to touch the knees = to beseech earnestly.

CONFRINGO, frēgi, fractum, 3. v. tr. [frango]. To break to pieces, to break in two, tegulas, digitos. Hence, trop.: A) (Pl.) c. tesseram = to break faith and friendship with any one: B) c. consilia alicujus, to frustrate, to destroy: C) c. claustra naturae, to break through: D) c. rem = to squander.

CON-FUGIO, fūgi, —, 3. v. intr. To flee anywhere for refuge or shelter, to take refuge, ad aliquem, in naves, ad tuam fidem, ad opem iudicem, in tuam misericordiam.

CONFUGIUM, ii, n. [confugio]. (Poet.) A place of refuge, a refuge.

CON-FULGEO, —, —, 3. v. intr. (Ante-cl.) To shine brightly.

CON-FUNDO, fūdi, fūsum, 3. v. tr. 1) To pour together, to mix or mingle together, aliquid cum re aliqua, and (poet.) rei alicui; c. cruorem in fossam; trop., c. aliquid in totam orationem, to mingle throughout the entire oration. 2) To mingle = to combine, to unite, utrumque, vera cum falsis, duos populos in unum; rusticus confusus urbano. Hence, oratio confusa a pluribus, composed by several persons together; sermones confunduntur in unum, the expressions (of dissatisfaction) become general; c. proelia cum aliquo, to join battle with. 3) With the idea of disordering, to confuse, to confound, to throw into disorder, to jumble together, signa et ordines peditum et equitum, notas, jura gentium; (poet.) c. foedus, to violate, to disturb; c. ora, to disfigure the features. Hence, trop., of mental confusion = to disturb, to disconcert, to confuse, animos audientium, aliquem dicentem.

CONFUSE, adv. [confusus]. Without order, confusedly, loqui; c. et permixte.

CONFUSIO, ōnis, f. [confundo]. Prop., a pouring together. 1) Close connection, union, virtutum. 2) A mingling together, confusion, disorder, temporum, suffragiorum, populi; c. oris, a blush.

CONFUSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of confundo]. Thrown into disorder, confused, disordered, turba, clamor, oratio; trop. = decomposed, disturbed, confused: animus (homo) confusus irā, pudore, etc.

CON-FŪTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. Prop., to cool or to allay a boiling liquid. Hence: — 1) To put down, to check, to repress, to suppress, maxime dolores, audaciam alicujus. 2) To put down by words, to silence, to confute: c. senem iratum, argumenta Stoicorum.

*CON-FŪTUO, 3. v. intr. (Poet.) To cohabit with.

CONGELASCO, 3. v. intr. [inch. of congelo]. (Lat.) To congeal, to freeze.

CON-GĒLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. [gelu]. 1) Tr., to cause to freeze; hence, in gen., to make thick, to harden; c. lac, to curdle; (poet.) c. serpentem in lapidem, to change into stone. 2) Intr., to freeze up, fluvius; hence = to grow hard, to become hard; trop., animus noster otio congelavit, has frozen up, i. e., has become inactive.

*CONGĒMINATIO, ōnis, f. [congeminio]. (Pl.)

Properly, a doubling; hence, in comic language = an embracing.

CON-GĒMINO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Poet.) To double, to redouble: c. ictus crebros, to give redoubled strokes; and, c. securim, in the same sense.

CON-GĒMO, ui, —, 3. v. tr. & intr. 1) Intr. To sigh or groan together, to sigh or groan deeply: omnis senatus c. 2) Tr., to deplore, to bewail; (poet.) c. mortem.

CONGER, gri, m. [γῆρυς]. A sea-eel, or conger-eel.

CONGĒRIES, ēi, f. [congero]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) A heap, a pile, a mass (thrown together without order — cf. acervus and strues), ramorum, armorum. 2) In rhetoric, a figure of speech, accumulation.

*CON-GERMĪNO, 1. v. intr. (Gell.) To shoot forth, to grow together.

CON-GĒRO (I.), gessi, gestum, 3. v. tr. 1) To carry together, to gather, to bring or heap together, to heap up, arma, opes, omnia in vas; c. saxa in caput alicujus, also hastas, acuta alicui, upon any one; trop., c. omnia ornamenta in aliquem, beneficia, maledicta in fratrem; (poet.) c. aram arboribus, to construct by bringing together. Hence, in discourse, to bring or collect together, to introduce, nomina multorum, argumenta, dicta; c. orationem ex multis, to compile. 2) To heap upon a person, to place upon, to impute, to ascribe, to attribute to: spes omnis in te unum congesta est; c. causas rei alicujus in aliquem, laudes alicui.

*CONGĒRO (II.), ōnis, m. [congero]. (Pl.) A thief.

CON-GERRO, ōnis, m. [gerrae]. (Pl.) A companion in tricks and fun, a boon companion, a comrade.

CONGESTĪCIUS, a, um, adj. [congero]. (Rar.) Heaped or piled up, brought together.

CONGESTĪTIUS, a, um, adj. = Congesticius.

CONGESTUS, ūs, m. [congero]. 1) A bringing or heaping together. 2) (Ante-cl. & lat.) A mass, a heap, a pile, lapidum.

CONGIĀLIS, e, adj. [congius]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Holding or containing a congius.

CONGIĀRIUM, ii, n. [congius]. (Prop. an adj., sc. donum.) 1) A gift or largess to the people, of oil, wine, salt, &c., of the measure of a congius of oil or wine, distributed among soldiers or among the people (cf. donativum), sometimes also among friends. 2) A gift, a present, in gen.

CONGIUS, ii, m. A Roman measure for liquids, containing six sextarii = one-eighth of an amphora.

CON-GLĀCIO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. 1) Tr. (poet. & lat.), to cause to freeze, aquam.

3) Intr., to freeze, to turn to ice. Hence, trop., tribunatus ei conglaciatur, passes in inactivity.

*CON-GLISCO, —, —, 3. v. intr. (Pl.) To grow up.

CONGLÖBATIO, ñis, f. [conглобо]. (Lat.) A gathering or heaping together.

CON-GLÖBO, ävi, ätum, 1. v. tr. [глобус]. 1) To form into a ball, to make spherical, to conglobate, mare, terram in se, astra. 2) To crowd together, to heap together, aliquos, milites in unum locum, se in templum.

CON-GLÖMERO, —, ätum, 1. v. tr. 1) To roll together, to wind up, aliquid. 2) Trop. (ante-cl.), to heap together.

CONGLÜTINATIO, ñis, f. [conglutino]. A gluing or cementing together; trop., c. verborum, a joining together.

CON-GLÜTINO, ävi, ätum, 1. v. tr. 1) To glue or stick together, favos inter se. 2) Trop., to join closely together, to unite firmly together, to unite, amicitias, rem dissolutam, voluntates suas consuetudine; natura hominem conglutinauit. 3) Trop. (Pl.), to contrive, to devise something.

*CON-GRAECO, 1. v. tr. [græcor]. To squander in luxury and licentiousness, after the manner of the Greeks.

CONGRÄTULATIO, ñis, f. [congratulo]. (Lat.) A congratulating, wishing of joy.

CON-GRÄTULOR, ätus, 1. v. dep. tr. To congratulate warmly or mutually: congratulantur libertatem restitutam, they congratulate each other on the restoration of liberty.

CON-GRÄDIOR, gressus, 3. v. dep. intr. [gradior]. To go or come together, to meet with one: A) in a friendly sense, c. cum aliquo; luna c. cum sole; also abs.: B) in a hostile sense, to fight, to contend, cum aliquo, cum hostibus; *c. contra Caesarem; (poet. & lat.) c. alicui; trop. of a contention in words, esp. at law.

*CONGRÄGÄBILIS, e, adj. [congrego]. Socially inclined, social: examina apium sunt co.

CONGRÄGATIO, ñis, f. [congrego]. Prop., a collecting together into a flock; hence, 1) society, union, hominum; trop. (lat.) c. argumentorum, rerum, criminum, a collecting together, accumulating. 2) (Lat.) A figure of rhetoric, recapitulation.

CON-GRÄGO, ävi, ätum, 1. v. tr. [grex]. 1) To collect together into a flock or herd: ferae co. se ad amnes; animalia congregantur, herd together. 2) To collect, to assemble, to unite, in gen., homines dispersos in unum locum; congregamus nos cum aequalibus; trop. (lat.) c. verba, arguments.

CONGRESSIO, ñis, f. [congregior]. 1) (Rar.) A coming or meeting together: co. familiarum, the meetings of friends. 2) (Lat.) A hostile meeting, an engagement, attack.

CONGRESSUS, us, m. [congregior]. 1) A coming or meeting together, esp. in a friendly and social manner, a conference, interview, society; also of animals, sociableness, sociability. 2) A hostile encounter, fight, combat. 3) (Lucr.) C. materiae, union, combination.

CONGRIO, ñis, m. [conger]. The name of a cook in Plautus.

CONGRUENS, tis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of congruo]. 1) Agreeing with something else, fit, suitable, congruous: c. est, it is fitting, becoming, meet. 2) Agreeing with itself in all its parts, well-proportioned, symmetrical, harmonious, homo, clamor.

CONGRUENTER, adv. [congruens]. Agreeably, suitably, fitly, naturae.

CONGRUENTIA, ae, f. [congruens]. (Lat.) 1) Agreement, harmony. 2) Symmetry, proportion.

CON-GRUO, ui, —, 3. (inf. congruere, Ter.) v. intr. 1) (Rar.) To run, to come or meet together with something: stellae, guttae co. inter se; dies co. ad eandem metam solis unde ortae sunt, arrive at, coincide with. 2) Trop.: A) to agree with any thing in essence or substance, to accord, to correspond, to fit, to suit: quae dicuntur co. cum causa; illae res co. inter se; sermo c. inter omnes, the statements of all correspond; non omni causae congruit unum orationis genus, does not suit: B) to agree in sentiment and opinion, to accord, to coincide: illi co. inter se; c. alicui: C) to agree in point of time, to coincide: tempus c. ad ipsum; menses co. cum solis lunaeque ratione.

CONGRUUS, a, um, adj. (Ante-cl. & lat.) = Congruens.

*CONIFER, ära, ärum, adj. [conus-fero]. (Poet.) Cone-bearing, coniferous.

*CONIGER, ära, ärum, adj. [conus-gero]. (Poet.) = Conifer.

CONJECTÄNEA, örum, n. pl. [conjicio]. (Lat.) A miscellany, as a title of a work of miscellaneous contents.

CONJECTATIO, ñis, f. [conjecto]. (Lat.) A conjecture.

*CONJECTÄTORIUS, a, um, adj. [conjecto] (Gell.) Of or pertaining to conjecture.

CONJECTIO, ñis, f. [conjicio]. 1) A hurling at a mark, telorum. 2) A putting together, comparing: c. annonae et aestimationis. 3) A conjectural explanation, interpretation, somniorum.

CON-JECTO, ävi, ätum, 1. v. tr. [intens. of conjicio]. 1) (Rar., lat.) To throw together, to bring or carry together, cibos ad coenam. 2) Trop., to conjecture, to guess, to conclude by conjecture (v. Conjicio I. 2, B): c. rem eventum, valetudinem ex eo quod, etc.; conjectantes iter, guessing the way, marching by conjecture. Hence = to interpret a sign or omen, to augur, to foretell, to prophesy.

CONJECTOR, ōris, m. [conjićio]. An interpreter: c. Œdipus (Pl.), the interpreter of riddles; in partic., an interpreter of dreams, a soothsayer.

CONJECTRIX, loīs, f. [conjićio]. (Pl.) A (female) interpreter of dreams.

CONJECTŪRA, æ, f. [conjićio]. 1) A conjecture, guess, conjectural conclusion: conjecturam facere (capere) de or ex re aliqua, also simply re aliqua, to draw a conclusion from any thing; conjecturā aliquid assequi; si qua est conjectura mentis divinæ, if any judgment can be formed of the sentiments of the gods. 2) In partic., conjectural explanation, interpretation of dreams, soothsaying, prophesying.

CONJECTŪRĀLIS, e, adj. [conjectura]. Conjectural.

CONJECTUS, ūs, m. [conjićio]. 1) A throwing together, lapidum. Hence: A) (Lucr.) a connecting, uniting, materiei: B) (Lucr.) a mass, heap. 2) A throwing, casting, hurling to some place, teli; venire ad c. teli, to come within the range of a dart; c. oculorum in aliquem; trop., c. animorum in aliquem, a directing, turning.

CON-JICIO, jēci, jectum, 3. v. tr. [con-jacio]. I. The prepositional idea retained: 1) (rar.) to throw, to bring or convey together, sarcinas in medium. 2) Trop.: A) (ante-cl.) c. verba, and abs. c. cum aliquo, to throw together in controversy = to contend, to dispute with any one, esp. in court: B) to conjecture, to guess, to conclude or infer (from circumstances, facts, signs, &c.); hence, to divine, aliquid, eum ibi fuisse; callide c. de futura. Hence, c. somnium, to interpret, and in gen. = to foretell a future event, to prophesy: c. quæ tempestas impendat, ægrotum e morbo evasurum esse.

II. The signification of the preposition disappearing: to throw, to cast, to drive, to thrust, to push or bring to or towards a place: c. aliquem in carcerem, hostem in fugam, navem in portum, cultrum in guttura, to push or thrust into. Hence: A) c. se, to betake one's self hastily somewhere, to throw one's self into, in fugam, in paludem; c. se in pedes (Com.), to take to one's heels: B) to throw, to cast or put a person or thing into a certain condition or state: c. aliquem in morbum, to make sick, in lætitiā, in terrorem, to gladden, to terrify; c. rempublicam in perturbationes, to throw into confusion; eo, likewise, aliquem in periculum: C) c. maledicta in aliquem, to utter; c. culpam, crimen in aliquem or aliquid, to charge upon, to impute to; c. legem in illam tabulam, to write or engrave upon; c. vocem, to drop, to let fall; petitiones tuæ ita conjectæ, thrown, hurled (like darts); c. pecuniam in aliquid, to throw away, to squander; c. se mente ac voluntate in versum, to devote one's self to the writing of poetry; a. se in noctem, to commit one's self to the night.

CONJŪGĀLIS, e, adj. [conjux]. (Lat.) Matrimonial, conjugal: a. dii, the deities who preside over marriage.

CONJŪGATIO, ōnis, f. [conjućo]. Prop., a joining together; trop., in rhetoric, the etymological relationship of words.

CONJŪGĀTOR, ōris, m. [conjućo]. He who joins, a uniter: c. amoris, the god of Marriage, Hymen.

CONJŪGĀLIS, e, adj. [conjugium]. (Poet.) Matrimonial.

CONJŪGIUM, ii, n. [jugum]. *1) (Lucr.) A connection, union, corporis et animæ. 2) Matrimonial union, wedlock (considered as a physical union — cf. connubium); also, of animals = copulation. Hence (poet.): A) cohabitation, copulation: B) a husband, wife, consort; also, a mistress, sweetheart: C) in pl. = a pair of animals.

CON-JUGO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Rar.) To join or unite together: est ea jucundissima amicitia quam similitudo morum conjugavit, has cemented; conjugata verba, etymologically related.

CONJUNCTE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [conjunctus]. 1) In connection, conjointly, at the same time: c. re verboque risus movetur; c. cum reliquis rebus nostra contexere; c. elatum aliquid, hypothetically (opp. to simpliciter, categorically). 2) Intimately, in a friendly manner, vivere cum aliquo.

CONJUNCTIM, adv. [conjućo]. Unitedly, in common, jointly, together, petere auxilium.

CONJUNCTIO, ōnis, f. [conjućo]. 1) A conjoining, uniting, conjunction, union, hominum; c. mentis cum externis mentibus = sympathy, affinity; c. vicinatis, connexion with one as a neighbour. 2) In partic.: A) = conjugal connection, marriage: B) = connection by relationship, relationship: C) = connection by friendship, friendship: D) in grammar, a conjunction.

CONJUNCTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of conjungo]. 1) Bordering upon, contiguous to, near: terra c. Cappadociae. 2) Connected by marriage, relationship or friendship with any one: c. cum aliquo or alicui. 3) Trop.: A) connected with any thing = agreeing, harmonising with, conformable, suitable to: nihil c. cum virtute; verba c. inter se; justitia c. intelligentiæ: B) constantia c., mutual, agreeing: C) subst., Conjunctum, i, n. — a) (Lucr.) a necessary, inherent quality of a body (such as heat, gravity, &c.) — b) in rhetoric, connection.

CON-JUNGO, nxi, ctum, 3. v. tr. To bind together, to unite, to join, cohortes illas cum exercitu, eam epistolam cum hæc; trop., c. illum cum laude deorum, to place in the rank of the gods; c. dextram dextræ, tecta muro portæque, to build quite close to, so also castra muro; c. noctem diei = to march day and night; c. arma finitimis, to join forces with; c. boves, to yoke together, vocales, to contract; bellum conjungere, to carry on jointly; (lat.) c. consulatus, abstisentiam cibi, to continue without interruption; conjunctus ex duplici genere, compounded. In partic.: A) to unite, to join in marriage and (poet.) in love, aliquam secum (or sibi) matrimonio: B) to connect, to unite by the ties of relationship or friendship, aliquem secum affinitate, multos sibi.

CONJURATIO, ōnis, f. [conjuror]. 1) A swearing or taking an oath together; hence (lat.), a union confirmed by an oath: c. urbana, of the citizens. 2) In a bad sense, a conspiracy, plot (cf. conspiratio). Hence, melon. = a band of conspirators: nemo extra istam o. perditorum hominum.

CONJURO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. 1) (Rar.) To swear together, to swear among each other, to bind one another mutually by oath: omnes juniores cc.; cc., sese non abituros esse; quos consul conjuratos habebat, bound by an oath. Hence, trop. = to agree together, to unite: alterius altera poscit opem res et conjurat amice. 2) In a bad sense, to conspire, to enter into a conspiracy, to form a plot: cc. inter se; c. cum aliquo, in omnia facinora, contra rempublicam; conjurant ut urbem incendat, de interficiendo Pompeio, patriam incendere; conjurati = conspirators.

CONJUX, or Conjunx, ūgis, comm. [jugum]. A consort. 1) Fem., a wife, spouse (a more honourable term than 'uxor'); (poet.) also = a bride, betrothed, sweetheart, and sometimes = a concubine. 2) (Poet.) Masc., a husband.

CONL. — v. Coll.

CONM. — v. Comm.

CONNECTO, xui, xum, 3. v. tr. 1) To tie together, to bind closely, to unite, crines, omnia inter se, amicitiam cum voluptate; c. filiam discrimini patris (lat.), to implicate, to involve; illud connectitur ex pluribus, is formed by connecting several (words) together. 2) To connect as a conclusion, to subjoin, aliquid.

CONNEXIO, ōnis, f. [connecto]. Philosophical tech. t., a logical conclusion.

CONNEXUS (I.), a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of connecto]. 1) Connected, joined, cohering together with any thing: c. alicui per affinitatem, related to; dies his funeribus connexi, following. 2) Subst., Connexum, i, n., connexion, logical sequence.

CONNEXUS (II.), ūs, m. [connecto]. (Antecl. & lat.) A joining together, combination.

CONNITOR, nixus and nixus, 3. v. dep. intr. 1) To push or lean against: taurus connixus valido corpore; ratio connixa per se, leaning upon itself, self-supported. In partic., to push the hands or feet against the ground in order to stand up: infantes cc. ut erigant, strive to get up on their feet; c. ad surgendum (of a wounded or wearied person). 2) To ascend, to climb up by leaning or pushing against, in summum jugum, in altam arbores. 3) To exert one's self greatly, to en- deavour, to strive, to try with all one's might: c. invadere hostem; omnibus copiis c.; quantum animo conniti potes, quantum labore contendere, tantum fac ut efficias. 4) (Poet.) To bring forth.

CON-NIVEO, nivi or nixi (both rar.), —, 2. v. intr. 1) (Lat.) To close: cava ventris et stomachi contrahuntur et cc. 2) In partic. of the eyes, to close themselves, or to be closed, and of men, to shut the eyes (in sleep, from shame, fear, &c.): oculis somno conniventibus; conniveo somno; c. ad fulgura. Hence (poet.), of the sun and moon, to be eclipsed or darkened. 3) Trop.: A) to slumber = to be inactive: virtus sopita c.: B) to wink at, to overlook, to make allowance for: c. in re aliqua, in hominum operibus.

CONNÜBIĀLIS, e, adj. [connubium]. (Poet.) Connubial, relating to marriage.

CONNÜBIUM, ii, n. [con-nubo]. 1) Marriage, wedlock (as a civil institution — cf. conjugium). 2) The right of intermarriage according to the Roman law: c. non est plebi et patribus, between patricians and plebeians. 3) (Poet.) = Conjugium 2.

CONNUS, i, m. A celebrated Greek player on the cithara, who taught Socrates music.

CŌNŌN, ōnis, m. [= Kónon]. 1) A celebrated Athenian general, who lived about 400 B. C. 2) An astronomer and mathematician of Samos, in the time of Ptolemy Philadelphus.

CONŌPEUM, ei, } n. [= Kónopion]. (Poet.)
CONŌPIUM, ii, } A fly-net, a net used, especially over beds and couches, as a protection against flies, gnats, &c.

CŌNOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. To attempt, to undertake, to try, to set about any thing: c. aliquid, tantam rem; c. facere aliquid; prius cogitare consuevit quam conari. Hence, subst., Conata, ōrum, n. pl., an undertaking, attempt, hazard = pericere cc.

*CONQUASSATIO, ōnis, [conquasso]. A violent shaking, a shattering, valetudinis.

CON-QUASSO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To shake violently, terram; trop., mens conquassatur; exterae nationes illius anni furore conquassatae, disturbed; omnes provinciae conquassatae sunt, disordered.

CON-QUEROR, questus, 3. v. tr. & intr. To complain loudly of, to make complaint about, to bewail, adversam fortunam, injuriam diotatoris; c. apud te de istius improbitate; (lat.) in senatu conquestum est, complaint was made; (poet. & lat.) c. aliquid fieri, that something happens.

CONQUESTIO, ōnis, f. [conqueror]. A loud complaining, complaint; also, as a figure of rhetoric: c. est oratio auditorum misericordiam captans.

CONQUESTUS, ūs, m. [conqueror]. Only in abl. sing. = Conquestio.

CON-QUIESCO, quiēvi, quiētum, 3. v. intr.

1) To rest, to be at rest, to take rest, to repose: c. ante iter confectum, ex omnibus molestiis, to rest from; freq. = to sleep: c. meridiē. 2) Trop.: A) = to be idle, inactive, to stand still; navigatio c., is stopped; sica, vectigal c., is suspended: B) freq. of the mind, passions, desires, &c., to find rest; animus c.; non pati aliquem conquiescere, to let no one rest; in partic. = to find rest, contentment, and pleasure in any thing: c. in illis studiis, in amore tuo.

CON-QUINISCO, quexi, 3. v. intr. (Ante-cl.)

To squat down, to stoop.

CONQUIRO, alvi, ātum, 3. v. tr. [con-quaero].

1) To seek after, to procure, to get or bring together from all quarters, naves, socios, dona, vetera exempla. 2) To search for everywhere and earnestly, to go in quest of, aliquem; c. scelus, to seek an opportunity to commit.

CONQUISITE, adv. [conquisitus]. Carefully, with pains.

CONQUISITIO, ōnis, f. [conquiro]. A seeking, searching for, a bringing or getting together, pecuniarum, sacrorum. Hence, in particular, a raising, levying of soldiers.

CONQUISITOR, ōris, m. [conquiro]. 1) A recruiting-officer. 2) (Pl.) An inspector, spy, employed by the aedile to go through the theatre during the performance, and detect hired applauders.

CONQUISITUS, a, um, adj. w. sup. [part. of conquiro]. Bought out, select, costly, epulae.

CONR. — v. Corr.

CONSALUTATIO, ōnis, f. [consaluto]. A greeting of any one by several persons.

CON-SALŪTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To greet, to salute (of several persons), aliquem; co. inter se, they greet each other; utrumque regem sua multitudo c.; legati eum co. dictatorem, they salute him dictator. 2) (Con intens.) To salute heartily, to greet in a friendly manner.

CON-SĀNESCO, nui, —, 3. v. intr. [sanus]. To grow sound, to heal.

CON-SANGUINEUS, a, um, adj. Related by blood, related (most freq. of the relation of brothers and sisters); hence (poet.), brotherlike, sisterlike. Hence, subst., Consanguineus, i, m., and Consanguinea, ae, f., a brother, a sister; also, in pl., relations, relatives, in gen.

CONSANGUINITAS, ātis, f. [consanguineus]. Relationship by blood, consanguinity.

CON-SĀNO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To cure perfectly, to heal, to make sound, aliquem.

CON-SARCĪNO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To sew or stitch together; trop., verba.

CON-SAUCIO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To wound severely, aliquem.

CON-SCĒLĒRĀTUS, a, um, adj. w. sup. Stained with guilt, wicked, depraved, homo, vultus, mens.

CON-SCĒLĒRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To stain with crime, to disgrace, to dishonour, domum aures paternas.

CONSCENDO, di, sum, 3. v. tr. [con-scando]

1) To mount, to ascend, to get up upon: c. valium, tribunal, montes, equos. 2) In partic., c. navem, also in navem and abs. c., to ascend a ship, to go on board, to embark, Tarento, from Tarentum, in Siciliam, for Sicily; (poet.) c. classem, to go aboard the fleet, and c. aequor navibus, to embark upon the sea.

*CONSCENSIO, ōnis, f. [conscendo]. An ascending, an embarking, in naves.

CONSCIENTIA, ae, f. [conscio]. 1) A knowing of a thing along with another, joint knowledge: c. hominum, unius liberti; on the other hand, with obj. gen., associare aliquem in conscientiam facinoris, to admit one to the knowledge of a crime; so, likewise, c. conjurationis. Hence * = the circle of persons who have a joint knowledge of something: quis nomen meum in conscientia istius facti audivit? 2) Consciousness, feeling, sense, suae infirmitatis, amissae fortunae, recollection; (rar.) c. de culpa, quid absit virum; nostram conscientiam contemnere, to disregard our own consciousness; sine hac c., without this conviction, persuasion. 3) Consciousness of right and wrong, conscience: c. bona, recta, a good conscience; c. mala, or abs. c., an evil conscience; suae quaeque malae cogitationes et conscientiae animi terrent; in conscientiam ducere aliquid, to consider any thing as a sign of an evil conscience.

CON-SCINDO, scīdi, scīsum, 3. v. tr. To tear or rend in pieces, vestem; c. aliquem capillo, to tear the hair of any one; trop., c. aliquem to tear to pieces, to censure, to abuse; c. aliquem sibilis, to hiss at.

*CON-SCIO, —, —, 4. v. tr. (Poet.) To be conscious of wrong: nil sibi c.

CON-SCISCO, scīvi, scītum, 3. v. tr. 1) (Rar.) To resolve upon together or in common, to decree, bellum. 2) C. aliquid sibi, also in se and abs., to adjudge to one's self = to inflict or bring upon one's self, to take upon one's self: c. (sibi) mortem, to kill one's self, exilium (fugam), to go into voluntary exile; c. facinus in se et suos, to execute upon themselves and those belonging to them a terrible deed. *3) To agree, to unite, in re aliqua.

CONSCIUS, a, um, adj. [con-scio]. 1) Knowing (something) with another; in partic. as subst., a (male or female) accessory, accomplice, confidant: c. aliqui facinoris, but also c. facinori, mendacio alicujus; c. mihi fuit in privatis rebus, de illis rebus; conscius quae gerantur, privy to what is going on. 2) Knowing something in one's self, conscious to one's self: A) in gen., in a good or bad sense, c. sibi alicujus injuriae; mens c. recti; (Lucr.) mens sibi conscia facti; conscia sibi in re turpi; c. sum, me nunquam vitae nimis cupidum fuisse; so, likewise, conscius quam inimicum habeam Caesarem: B) conscious to one's self of wrong: omnes quos, c. animus excitabat, whom a guilty conscience disquieted.

*CON-SCREOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. (Pl.) To clear one's voice, to hawk.

CON-SCRIBILLO, āvi, —, 1. v. tr. [dim. of conscribo]. To scribe upon or all over: trop., c. nates, to strike so as to draw blood.

CON-SCRIBO, psi, ptum, 8. v. tr. Prop., to write together. 1) (Rar.) To write at the same time with another, cum aliquo ad aliquem. 2) Hence, to call together, to summon, to collect by inscribing upon a list, esp. c. milites, legiones, to levy, to enroll, and = to choose, to appoint, to enroll in a particular class of citizens: c. tres centuries; c. populum, to classify the people (so as to facilitate bribery). Hence, in partic., Patres Conscripti, instead of Patres et Conscripti (lit. fathers and elect), the elected and assembled fathers, "Conscript Fathers," the title of the Roman senate when in session; hence (poet.), Conscriptus, i, m. = a senator. 3) To put together, to draw up in writing, to compose, to write, librum, legem, epistolam; c. de his artibus, to treat of. 4) A) (poet.) to write full, to fill as with writing, mensam vino, epistolam lacrimis: B) (ante-cl.) jocosely, to make marks on, to cudgel (cf. scribo 1).

CONSCRIPTIO, ōnis, f. [conscribo]. Prop., a writing together; hence, a written statement, representation, report: falsae conscriptiones questionum, of the judicial investigations.

CONSCRIPTOR, ōris, m. [conscribo]. (Lat.) An author, writer.

CON-SECO, cui, ctum, 1. v. tr. 1) To cut into pieces, membra fratris. 2) (Lat.) To lop, to cut off, surculos.

CONSECRATIO, ōnis, f. [consecro]. A dedication of any thing to the gods, a consecration, capitis alicujus (v. Consecro 1); (lat.) = the deification of the Roman emperors.

CON-SECRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [con-sacro]. 1) To dedicate, to make sacred, to devote any thing to the gods (thereby withdrawing it from profane or common use — cf. dedico and inauguro): c. totam Siciliam Cereri, aedem Jovi; c. origines suas, to attribute to one's self a divine origin; ars deorum inventioni consecrata, made sacred by its invention being ascribed to the gods; c. caput alicujus, and c. veterem Carthaginem, to devote to destruction; c. bona alicujus, to dedicate to the service of the gods; trop., c. se patriae, to consecrate; consecrari certis sentiētiis, to be devoted to certain opinions. 2) To declare to be a god, to deify, aliquem. 3) Trop., c. aliquid immortalitati, and abs. c., to make immortal, to immortalise: c. rem memoriā ac literis, also c. memoriam rei alicujus.

CONSECTARIUS, a, um, adj. [consector]. Following logically from something else, consequent; hence, subst., Consectaria, ōrum, n. pl., conclusions, consequences.

CONSECTATIO, ōnis, f. [consector]. (Doubtful reading.) An eager striving after something, concinnitatis.

*CONSECTATRIX, icis, f. [consector]. She who eagerly strives after a thing, a friend: libido c. voluptatis.

*CONSECTIO, ōnis, f. [consecro]. A cutting or hewing to pieces, arborum.

CON-SECTOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. 1) To follow after, to attend eagerly and constantly, aliquem; c. rivulos, to keep to. Hence, trop., c. verba, to keep closely to the words; c. plura, to enumerate (in discursive) many particulars (opp. to comprehendere brevi); c. aliquid imitando, to imitate. 2) To pursue eagerly, to strive after, to endeavour to gain, opes et potentiam, ubertatem orationis. 3) To follow in a hostile manner, to pursue, to persecute, hostes, lupum, victos.

CONSECTIO (Consequutio), ōnis, f. [consequor]. 1) A consequence, effect: ipsa deductio molestiae consecutionem voluptatis habet, has pleasure as a consequence. 2) In rhetoric, the proper connexion of words, order, sequence.

CON-SENECO, nui, —, 3. v. intr. 1) To grow old, to become old, in patria sua; haud ulla carina consenuit (poet.), not one has become old, i. e., all have gone to the bottom. 2) Trop.: A) to become weak, infirm, to decay, to fail, to fall away, to sink, to fade: homo ille c. prae maiore; illius partis auctores cc., lose their consideration, authority; so, also, leges, vires cc.; invidia c., disappears; omnia illis cc.; nomen c., falls into disuse: B) to tarry too long at, to abide too long in any thing, in re aliqua.

CONSENSIO, ōnis, f. [consentio]. 1) Agreement, unanimity, accordance in opinion, purpose, &c.: singularis omnium c. in me tuendo; tanta universae Galliae consensio fuit libertatis vindicandae, the unanimity of their determination to defend their liberty; c. scelerata = a plot, conspiracy; c. multorum; also, concr. = a band of conspirators. 2) Trop., of things without life, c. naturae, harmony.

CONSENSUS, ūs, m. 1) Agreement, unanimity, concord; freq. adverbially, in abl. sing., unanimously, according to the general wish, aliquid facere. 2) Of things without life, agreement, harmony.

CONSENTANEUS, a, um, adj. [consentio]. Agreeing, according with something, suitable, conformable to, cum re aliqua, rei alicui; c. sibi est, is consistent with himself. Freq., imper., consentaneum est, it is consistent with reason, it is compatible with something, it is fitting, proper: tibi c. est illud facere; *c. est ut illa una sit (Pl.).

CONSENTES DII, [consentio]. The twelve superior gods, of the ancients' Romans, who formed the council of Jupiter.

CONSENTIA, ae, f. A town of the Brutii, in Lower Italy — now Cosenza.

CONSENTINUS, a, um, adj. [Consentia]. Of or pertaining to Consentia; subst., Consentini, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Consentia.

CON-SENTIO, sensi, sensum, 4. v. tr. & intr.

1) Of persons: A) (Lucr.) to perceive at the same time: B) to agree, to accord; to think, to assert or determine upon any thing with common accord: c. cum aliquo or alicui, with any one; cc. inter se; cc. de re, arma esse capienda; c. ad benevolentiam erga aliquem, to be united in good will towards any one; cc. ad rempublicam conservandam, have united together to preserve the republic; consensum est in eam rem, they agreed upon that; senatus populi que concilio consensum est, ut, etc., it was agreed in an assembly of the senate and people, that, &c.; senatus c. bellum, votes for, decrees; c. sibi, to be consistent with one's self: C) in a bad sense, to agree or combine for a bad purpose, to conspire, to plot together, ad urbem incendendam. 2) Of things without life, to accord, to agree, to harmonize, to fit, to suit, rei alicui, and cum re aliqua; omnes partes corporis cc. inter se; ratio noster c.

CON-SĒPIO, psi, ptum, 4. v. tr. To enclose with a hedge or fence, to hedge or fence in, agrum, locum; hence, subst., Conseptum, i, n., a fence or hedge.

CONSEQUENS, tis, adj. [part. of consequor]. Consequent = according to reason, suitable, fit: c. est, it follows, is according to reason, is logically correct. Hence, subst., Consequens, tis, n., a consequence.

CONSEQUENTIA, ae, f. [consequor]. A consequence, eventorum.

CONSEQUIA, ae, f. [consequor]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) = Consequentia.

CON-SĒQUOR, sēcūtus (sēquūtus), 3. v. dep. tr. 1) To follow immediately after, to go or come after, to follow: A) in gen., c. eum usque ad fores; dies, annus consequens, the following; c. aliquem aetate, to come next to one in age; has tam prosperas res consecuta est subita mutatio: B) to follow as an enemy, to pursue, copias reliquas: C) to follow after as a model or pattern, to imitate, to obey, aliquem, morem: D) to follow as an effect of a preceding cause: illud ex hoc naturā consequitur; magna invidia hoc dictum consecuta est: E) to follow as a logical consequence: vides quae res quamque rem consequatur, what follows from. 2) To reach by following: A) = to overtake, aliquem: B) to acquire, to obtain, gloriam, fructum amplissimum ex vestro iudicio; c. aliquid dicendo, to acquire by speaking, but c. aliquid in dicendo, to attain any excellence in speaking: C) = to reach any one in a property or quality, to equal, to come up to, aliquem aliqua re: D) to reach intellectually = to conceive, to see into, to understand, similitudinem veri, omnes illorum conatus; c. aliquid conjecturā, to guess, memoriā, to remember: E) to reach by words = to express fully, aliquid, laudes ejus verbis: F) (rar.) of things, to fall to one's lot, to attend: tanta prosperitas illum est c.

CON-SĒRO (I.), sēvi (sēruī, once in Livy), sītum, 3. v. tr. 1) To sow or plant with something, agros; ager consitus arbustis; trop. (poet.) consitus mentem caligine, struck with blindness, and consitus senectute, weighed down. 2) (Poet.) To sow, to plant, pomum, arborem.

CON-SĒRO (II.), sēruī, sertum, 3. v. tr. 1) (Mostly poet. & lat.) To tie, to join, to bind or unite together: c. loricae hamis, to fasten together; c. sermones, to converse; c. diem nocti; exodia conserta fabulis Aetellianis, connected with. 2) To join together for contest; most freq., c. manum or manus, to fight hand to hand, to engage in close combat, cum aliquo; cc. manus inter se; so, likewise, c. pugnam, proelium, to engage, to join battle; also, c. bellum, to begin the war; rarely abs. in the same sense; navis conserta, a ship grappled by another in a naval engagement; conserebant (doubtful) artes inter se, employed against one another. Hence, 3) as a judicial tech. t., ex jure te manum or manu consertum voco, I summon thee into court to contend according to law (the expression is taken from certain legal usages, for which see Adam's Roman Antiquities, p. 195).

*CONSERTE, adv. [consero II.]. In connexion, as if fastened together.

CON-SERVA, ae, f. A (female) fellow-slave.

CONSERVATIO, ōnis, f. [conservo]. A keeping, preserving, bonorum, frugum, aequabilitatis; c. decoris, observance.

CONSERVATOR, ōris, m. A keeper, preserver, defender.

CONSERVATRIX, icis, f. [conservo]. She who keeps, preserves, defends: natura c. sui.

*CON-SERVITIUM, ii, n. (Pl.) Fellowship in servitude.

CON-SERVO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To keep uninjured, to preserve (cf. observo): c. exercitum, rem familiarem; c. hostes, to spare, leges, to obey, fidem or jusjurandum, to keep; c. inducias, to observe.

CONSERVŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of conserva]. A small fellow-slave. (Lat.)

CON-SERVUS, i, m. A fellow-slave.

CONSESSOR, ōris, m. [consido]. He who sits by or near one (at table, at court, in the theatre, &c.), a neighbour.

CONSESSUS, ūs, m. [consido]. Prop., a sitting together or with one; hence, an assembly of persons sitting together (at court, in the theatre, &c.).

CONSIDERANTER, adv. [considerans, from considero]. (Lat.) Thoughtfully, considerably.

CONSIDERĀTE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [consideratus]. Considerately, with consideration. CONSIDERĀTIO, ōnis, f. [considero]. Consideration, contemplation.

CONSIDERĀTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of considero]. 1) Of things, maturely considered or thought upon, considerate, cautious, consilium, factum, tarditas. 2) Of persons, circumspect, heedful, cautious, homo.

CONSIDĒRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To look at closely = to inspect, to examine, argentum, aliquid; (poet.) num excederit ferrum. 2) To look at with the mind, to consider, to weigh, to think of (cf. contemplor, delibero): c. vitam meam, (rar.) de re aliqua; c. quid agam; considerandum est ne temere desperemus, ut aliquid fiat.

CON-SIDO, ēdi or (rar.) Idi, essum, 3. v. intr. 1) To sit down (esp. of several persons, who sit down together), hic in umbra, in illo cespite; (poet.) c. transtris, on the rowers' benches. Hence, 2) of the senators, judges or the people in an assembly, to sit, to be in session, to hold a session for the purpose of taking counsel or deliberating: c. ad jus dicendum; iudices cc. in reum, sit in judgment upon the accused. 3) Of an army, to encamp, to take station, in illo loco, trans flumen. 4) To settle permanently, to take up one's abode, to dwell anywhere, Antii, hoc loco. 5) Of inanimate objects, esp. places, to settle, to sink down, to sink, terra, Alpes, urbs; neque adhuc considerat ignis, had not yet subsided. 6) Trop.: A) aliquid c. in mente, is rooted; c. in otio, to lead a life of leisure; c. in ea mediocritate, etc., to settle down into; nomen utriusque in praetura c., the fame of each ceased with the praetorship: B) to abate, to diminish, to cease, furor, terror; of discourse, varie, distincteque c., to end or close.

CONSIGNĀTE, adv. [consigno]. (Gell.) Plainly, distinctly.

CONSIGNĀTIO, ōnis, f. [consigno]. (Lat., rar.) A written proof, a document.

CON-SIGNO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To put a seal to, to seal, to sign, epistolam, tabulas; (lat.) c. tabellas dotis or c. dotem, to draw up and seal a marriage-contract. Hence, trop. = to attest, to confirm, to prove, to warrant, auctoritates suas, antiquitas tot monumentis consignata. 2) To write down, to note, to register, aliquid literis, fundos publicis commentariis; trop., notiones in animis quasi consignatae, registered.

CON-SILESCO, lui, —, 3. v. intr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To become silent, to be still.

CONSILIĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [consilium]. Giving counsel, counselling, amicus, senatus; freq. subst., Consiliarius, ii, m., a counsellor, adviser; hence — a) an assessor in a court of justice — b) an augur, as an interpreter of the divine will: c. Jovis.

CONSILIĀTOR, ōris, m. [consilior]. (Lat.) A counsellor.

CONSILIOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. [consilium]. 1) To take counsel, to consult, cum aliquo, also abs. *2) To give counsel, to advise.

CONSILIUM, ii, n. [kindred with consuli and consulo]. 1) Consultation, deliberation, counsel, mutual conference: interesse arcanis cc.; conferre cc. et sermones cum aliquo, to consult and to converse with any one; in consilium ferre aliquid, to make any thing a subject of consultation; quasi consilii res sit, as if the matter would still admit of deliberation; hoc majoris consilii est, requires more careful consideration; magna cc. versantur in senatu. In partic. of judges, ire in c., to proceed to deliberation and decision; on the contrary, of the praetor, mittere in c., to commit to the judges for their deliberation and decision. 2) A deliberative assembly, a council (cf. concilium): convocare, habere c.; publicum c., freq. of the senate; on the other hand, qui ex senatu delecti estis in hoc c., of the judges; in partic. = a council of war; also, c. castrense. 3) Counsel, advice: dare alicui consilium; juvare aliquem consilio; facere aliquid de c. alicujus, with or upon the advice of any one. 4) A resolution, plan, measure, determination, design: c. callidum, repentinum; eo c. ut, etc., with the design, intention, that, &c.; consilium capio abundi or abire, profectionis, ut abeam; c. est ita facere, I have resolved, am determined to, &c. In partic.: A) abl. consilio, intentionally, designedly: B) in war, a stratagem, device. 5) Prudence, penetration, consideration, judgment: majore studio quam consilio; vir magni consilii; amittere c.; magni consilii est quid aetati credendum sit, it requires much judgment to decide, &c.

CON-SIMILIS, e, adj. Entirely or perfectly like, alicui; c. quasi, etc.; c. atque ego (ante-cl.). CON-SIMILITER, adv. [consimilis]. (Gell.)

In a similar manner.

CONSIPIO, —, —, 3. v. intr. [aspicio]. (Rar.) To be or to remain in one's senses.

CON-SISTO, stiti, stitum, 3. v. tr. & intr. I. Intr. 1) To place one's self anywhere, in muro, ante domum, ad mensam. In partic. (rar.), c. cum aliquo, to stop with any one for the purpose of conversation. 2) To stand still, to remain standing: cogunt viatorem consistere. In particular of an army, to make a halt, to take a position, to stand (in opp. to flight, disorder, or marching): utraque acies c.; c. a fuga, after the flight; non pati consistere hostes. 3) Trop.: A) to remain, to abide: is c. in ordine equestri: B) to continue standing at any thing = to be limited to: ibi poena c., should stop: C) to stand still, to rest, to cease, administratio belli: D) to delay or dwell upon, ibi, in uno nomine: E) to stand fast, to maintain one's ground, to continue, to endure: c. in dicendo, to proceed &c.

*speaking, in causis forensibus; nullo iudice consistere ille potest, not before any judge can he maintain his position; in partic., c. linguâ, to have the full use of one's tongue; a. mente, to remain in one's senses; ut tibi constiterit fructus otii tui, may be lasting: F) to agree with: c. verbis cum aliquo. 4) To take place, to occur, to exist: summa inter nos officia cc.; bini oratores vix singulis aetatibus consistere possunt. 5) To consist in or of, to depend upon, to turn upon: victus eorum in lacte c.; bonum omne c. in honestate; salus optimi cujusque c. in illo; (ante-cl. & lat.) c. ex re aliqua and c. re aliqua; (lat.) omnis quaestio c. circa res personasque, inter utile et honestum. — II. Tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To settle, to establish, aliquid.

CONSITIO, ōnis, f. [consero I.]. A sowing, planting.

CONSITOR, ōris, m. [consero I.]. (Poet.) A sower, planter.

CONSITŪRA, ae, f. = Consitio.

CON-SOBRINA, ae, f. } 1) A cousin, esp. the CON-SOBRINUS, i, m. } child of a mother's sister. 2) A relative, a cousin in a remote degree.

CON-SŌCER, ōri, m. (Lat.) A joint father-in-law, one of two fathers-in-law.

CONSOCIATIO, ōnis, f. [consocio]. Association, union.

CON-SŌCIO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To make common, to share, to unite, to associate: c. omnia cum aliquo, consilia cum amico; cc. regnum; c. injuriam cum aliquo, to become the partner of one in injustices; c. usum rei cum aliquo, to share; consociati cum aliquo or inter se, associated; dii consociati, worshipped in common by two nations; res consociata, concerted, agreed upon.

CONSOLABILIS, e, adj. [consolor]. 1) Consolable, that may be consoled, dolor. 2) (Lat.) Consoling, affording consolation.

CONSOLATIO, ōnis, f. [consolor]. 1) A consoling, comforting, consolation, dolorum, malorum, in misfortune; c. timoris, an alleviation. 2) A consolatory writing or discourse.

CONSOLATOR, ōris, m. [consolor]. A consoler, comforter.

CONSOLATORIUS, a, um, adj. [consolator]. Consolatory: litterae cc., a letter of condolence.

CON-SŌLOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. 1) To console, to comfort, to cheer, to encourage, aliquem de or in re aliqua; c. se re aliqua, with any thing. 2) C. aliquid, to mitigate or alleviate any thing by means of consolation, dolorem, desiderium, brevitatem vitae. 3) (Ante-cl.) Intr., to console or comfort one's self.

CON-SOMNIO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Pl.) To dream of, aliquid.

CONSŌNANS, tis, adj. [part. of consono]. Sounding together — mostly as subst. f., sc. littera, a consonant.

CON-SŌNO, ui, —, 1. v. intr. 1) To sound at the same time or together with, to sound loudly, to resound, tibiae; apes cc., buzz; clamor consonans, united. Hence, in rhetoric: A) to have the same sound, to be harmonious: B) of several words, to have the same ending. 2) Trop. (lat.), to agree, to accord, to harmonize, aliquid in re aliqua.

CON-SŌNUS, a, um, adj. 1) Sounding together, harmonious, clangor. 2) Trop., fit, suitable, accordant.

CON-SŌPIO, —, Itum, 4. v. tr. To lull entirely to sleep, to put to sleep, to stupify, aliquem; also, in a middle sense, inter initia veneni consopitus, fallen asleep; trop. (lat.), c. legem, to abolish.

CON-SORS, tis, adj. 1) Having an equal share in a yet undivided property, living in a community of goods, partaking in common, esp. of brothers, sisters, and relatives, who share in an inheritance: tres fratres cc. Hence (poet.), subst. = a brother or sister, sometimes = a relative, in gen.; also, as adj., brotherly, sisterly: cc. pectora; sanguis c. 2) A) sharing any thing, having an equal share, partaking of (of socius, particeps); subst., a partner, colleague, associate: c. laboris; c. mecum illorum temporum, in furtis; c. Romuli: B) (poet.) in common: habere tecta cc.

CONSORTIO, ōnis, f. [consors]. Fellowship, community, sedetis, association: c. humana; c. sociabilis inter reges.

CONSORTIUM, ii, f. [consors]. 1) Fellowship, partnership, participation. 2) Community of goods.

CONSPECTUS (I.), ūs, m. [conspicio]. 1) A sight, look, view; hence, also, presence, proximity; cadere in conspectum, to become visible; esse in conspectu alicujus, to be before the eyes, in the presence of any one; venire, etc., in conspectum alicujus, to come into the presence of any one; abire e c. alicujus, from the presence or sight of any one; quo longissime conspectum oculi ferebant, as far as the eye could reach; c. est in Capitolium, one has a view of the Capitol; hence, A) (rar.), c. meus, my presence; conspectu suo restituit proelium, by his presence: B) an appearance: c. illustrior. 2) Trop., a (mental) view, survey, consideration: c. naturae; bellum aliud erat in conspectu, he had another war in view; haec non in conspectu quidem relinquuntur, never come into consideration, are not observed; hence, concr. (Gell.), a draught, sketch.

CONSPECTUS (II.), a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of conspicio]. 1) Visible: res c. alicui. 2) Remarkable, distinguished, striking, conspicuous.

CONSPERGO, si, sum, 3. v. tr. [aspargo]. 1) To besprinkle, to bestrew with any thing, aras sanguine, aliquem lacrimis; trop., c. ora-tione. rerborum quasi floribus, hilaritate; also (poet.), s. prata floribus. 2) (Ante-cl. & lat.) To sprinkle, to scatter, to strew, vinum; also, aba. = to sprinkle water.

CONSPICIENDUS, a, um, adj. [gerundive, fr. conspicio]. Worth seeing, remarkable, distinguished.

CON-SPICIO, exi, ectum, 3. v. tr. 1) To look at or upon, to direct the eyes to, to behold: c. sursum in coelum; c. locum, aliquem pugnantem. Hence: A) freg., pass., to be looked upon with admiration, to attract notice or attention, to be distinguished (v. Conspiciendus): B) trop. (rar.), to weigh, to consider, quid sit verum: C) (rar.) of places, to look upon, i. e., to face: signum illud c. ortum solis. 2) Inchoative, to get a sight of, to descry, to perceive, aliquem; c. calones flumen transisse; c. milites egredientes. Hence, trop. (Pl.) = to perceive, to understand.

CONSPICOR, âtus, 1. v. dep. tr. [conspicio]. To get a sight of, to observe, to perceive, aliquem; c. illam geminos pueros peperisse.

CONSPICUUS, a, um, adj. [conspicio]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Visible, coming into view, in sight, signum, acies. 2) Trop., remarkable, distinguished, eminent, illustrious, re aliqua.

CONSPIRATIO, ônis, f. [conspiro]. Prop., a sounding together. 1) Harmony; hence, trop., unity, unanimity, union, concord: c. omnium bonorum. 2) In a bad sense, a conspiracy, plot.

CONSPIRATIUS, adv., comp. [conspiratus]. (Lat.) More unanimously.

CONSPIRATUS (I.), a, um, adj. [conspiro I.]. (Lat.) Conspired; subst., Conspirati, ôrum, m. pl., conspirators.

CONSPIRATUS (II.), ūs, m. [conspiro I.]. (Gell.) Agreement, harmony.

CON-SPIRO (I.), âvi, âtum, 1. v. intr. 1) (Poet., rar.) To blow or sound together, to resound: cornua, c. 2) Trop.: A) of things, to harmonise, to agree: rerum cognatio conspirans; conatus multorum c., are united: B) of persons, to agree in feeling or thought, to accord, to combine, to unite, cum aliquo; populus Romanus c. ad liberandam rempublicam: C) in a bad sense, to conspire, to plot together, in eadem alicujus, ad res novas, ut adoriatur senatum.

CON-SPIRO (II.), âvi, âtum, 1. v. & [spira]. (Rare, and partly doubtful.) To wind together, to coil up: anguis se c.; trop. = to press or crowd together: c. milites.

CON-SPONSOR, ôris, m. A joint surety.

CON-SPUO, ui, ūtum, 3. v. tr. To spit upon, aliquem; trop. (a ridiculous figure parodied by Horace), Jupiter c. Alpes nive, besprinkles.

CON-SPURCO, âvi, âtum, 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl. lat. & rar.) To defile, to pollute, aliquem.

CON-SPŪTO, âvi, âtum, 1. v. tr. To spit upon with contempt, aliquem.

CON-STABILIO, iui, itum, 4. v. tr. (Ante-cl.) To make firm, to establish, rem suam.

CONSTANS, tis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of consto]. 1) Standing firm, firm, constant, immovable; hence, unchangeable, uniform: natura mellis est constantior, tougher, more tenacious; c. cursus, vultus; c. fides, pax, firm, secure. 2) Of things, uniform, agreeing with itself, consistent: oratio c., equally well delivered from beginning to end; c. fama, common report; memoria hujus anni parum constans est, the accounts respecting this year are not consistent; sibi constantior, more consistent. 3) Of persons, steadfast, firm, consistent, acting on fixed principles, constant; also = prudent, circumspect, homo; inimicus c., inflexible; is fuit omnium constantissimus, a most sensible, discreet man.

CONSTANTER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [constans]. 1) Firmly, unalterably, steadily, perseveringly: agere, dolorem ferre; c. pugnare; res humanae aequabilius et constantius se habere, would have more stability. 2) Uniformly, harmoniously, consistently: constanter nuntiaverunt, unanimously.

CONSTANTIA, ae, f. [constans]. 1) Firmness, stability, immutability, constancy: c. vocis et vultus; c. stellarum, coelestium; c. et veritas dictorum conventorumque, a perseverance and truth in our declarations and promises. 2) Of things, agreement, harmony, dictorum, inter augures; perpetuitas et c. 3) Of persons, firmness of character, steadfastness, constancy: c. Romana; c. animi; c. oppugnandi; also, in the lang. of philosophy, self-possession, calmness (in opp. to perturbatio).

CONSTERNATIO, ônis, f. [consterno I.]. 1) A taking fright, e. g., equorum; hence, consternation, alarm, terror, disquietude: c. et pavor mentis. 2) (Mostly lat.) An uproar, tumult, sedition.

CONSTERNO (I.), âvi, âtum, 1. v. tr. [consterno]. 1) To frighten: equi consternantur; hence, to startle, to alarm, to terrify, to overwhelm with terror, to dismay, aliquem; sic sunt animo consternati ut, etc.; c. hostes in fugam, to put to flight by terrifying; consternari fugâ foedâ, to be driven forth in base flight. 2) To incite to revolt, to rouse, to drive, conjuratos ad arma.

CON-STERNO (II.), strâvi, strâtum, 3. v. tr. 1) To bestrew, to cover: c. tabernacula caespitibus, terram corporibus; frumentum c. vias; trop., c. mare navibus, to cover with ships. Hence, navis constrata, covered with a deck, having a deck, constrata pontium, the bridges, joining ship to ship, and which formed, as it were, a deck over the sea. 2) (Rare.) To throw down, to prostrate, statuas.

CON-STIPO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To press or crowd closely together, hostes sub ipso vallo.

*CONSTITIO, ōnis, f. [consisto]. (Gell.) A staying, loci, at a place.

CONSTITUO, ui, ūtum, 3. v. tr. [con-statuo].

1) To set, to place, to put anywhere: c. taurum ante aram in litore; freq., as a military tech. t. = to station, to post, to draw up, legiones intra silvas, cohortes in fronte. In partic., with the idea of checking the movement of military forces, c. agmen or signa, to cause or order to halt; c. naves in alto, litore aperto = to anchor. Hence, trop.: A) c. sibi aliquid ante oculos, to place before one's eyes: B) c. plebem in agris publicis, to settle, to establish; ubi Caesar eos c., wherever C. should assign them a dwelling-place: C) = to place in a condition of security: c. insecutium aliquid = to guide: c. majestatem aliquid, to establish, to make secure. 2) To erect, to found, to build, castella, aedem, urbem, domicilium sibi, to fix one's abode. Hence, trop., to establish, to prepare, to make, to effect, iudicium, concordiam; c. amicitiam cum aliquo; c. sibi malum, to bring misfortune upon one's self; c. accusationem; utilitas c. amicitiam, is the foundation of; c. testes, to procure. 3) To establish by ordering, to arrange, to order, to regulate, rempublicam, rem familiarem; c. potestatem decemviralem, to establish; c. aliquem regem, to make. 4) To appoint, to determine, to fix, diem colloquio; c. singulis finem imperii, to assign; nondum satis constitui, I have hardly as yet made up my mind; c. aliquid verum esse, to assume as true. Hence, freq. = to agree upon, to agree, to concert: c. cum aliquo, also aliquid, and c. inter se; c. diem, se illuc esse venturum; constituent, quo die praesto sint. 5) To resolve, to purpose, to determine, abire or ut abeam.

CONSTITUTIO, ōnis, f. [constituo]. 1) A regulating, ordering, religionum, of sacred rites. 2) Constitution, disposition, nature, corporis; c. firma. 3) (Lat.) Concr., a regulation, ordinance, law.

CONSTITUTOR, ōris, m. [constituo]. (Lat.) An orderer, ordainer, arranger, legis, rerum omnium.

CONSTITUTUM, i, n. [constituo]. 1) (Lat.) An institution, ordinance, law. 2) An agreement, compact: facere c.; habere c. cum aliquo; ad c., at the place appointed = the rendezvous.

CON-STO, stiti, stātam, 1. v. intr. 1) (Antecl.) To stand still, to remain standing, homines. 2) To stand firm, to continue firm and unshaken, to endure, to persevere: acies c.; pugna iis c. non potuit, could not be maintained; color (ei) non c., he changes color; c. mente, to be master of one's self, to be in one's senses; c. oculis (auribus), to keep the eyes (ears) directed steadily towards any object; numerus legionum c., is unchanged, remains complete; fides ceteris constitit, the fidelity of the rest remained unshaken; (poet.) cuncta ce coelo sereno = all things indicate fair, settles weather. 3) To agree, to accord with something, to fit, to correspond: oratio c. cum re. In partic.: A) c. sibi, to remain like one's self, to continue the same, to be consistent; c. humanitati suae, to show one's self no less humane than formerly: B) ratio c. (mercantile tech. t.), the account agrees, is correct; trop. (without the sphere of business) = it is right, correct. 4) Of reports, news, events, &c., to be established, certain, sure, evident: et factum et nomen c.; in partic., impers., constat inter omnes (eum esse doctissimum), all agree; c. omnibus, all know certainly; constat apud animum or mihi, I have made up my mind; constat mihi aliquid facere, I am fully resolved, determined. 5) (Rar.) To exist, to be extant, to remain: antiquissimi quorum scripta cc. 6) To consist of or in, to be composed of, to rest upon: homo c. ex animo et corpore; virtus c. ex hominibus tuendis; victoria c. in (rar.) legionum virtute; (poet. & lat.) c. re aliqua. 7) To stand at, to cost: illa res c. quadringentis milibus, magno, comes high, costs much; hoc gratis c., this costs nothing, is gratuitous; also, c. tanti, it costs so much; trop., tanto detrimento illa victoria c., is purchased at so great a loss.

CONSTRICUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of constringo]. (Lat.) Drawn together; hence, abridged, contracted, short, folium; c. arbor, pruned, confined.

CON-STRINGO, inxi, ictum, 3. v. tr. 1) To tie or bind together, sarcinam, manus. 2) To bind, to fetter, aliquem. 3) Trop.: A) = to restrain, to curb, to check, to hold in check, aliquem; c. scelus supplicio; c. fidem religione, to make a promise more binding by means of a religious obligation; constrictus necessitate: B) of discourse, to bring into a narrow compass, te abridge, sententiam aptis verbis; oratio c.

CONSTRUCTIO, ōnis, f. [construo]. 1) A joining or putting together; hence, a building, erecting, construction: c. lapidum; c. hominis, the creation, theatri, the erection. 2) In rhetoric, c. verborum, proper connection.

CON-STRUO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) To carry or bring together, to heap together, to heap up, acervos numorum, multas res; (poet.) mensae constructae dapibus. 2) To make by bringing together, to build, to construct, to prepare, mundum, navem, nidum.

*CONSTUPRATOR, ōris, m. [constupro]. A defiler, ravisher.

CON-STUPRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To violate, to ravish, virginem; trop., iudicium emptum constupratumque, purchased by debauchery.

CON-SUADEO, —, —, 2. v. tr. (Pl.) To advise or counsel strongly, aliquid aliquid.

CONSUAHOR, ōris, m. [consuadeo]. A counsellor, adviser.

CON-SŪDO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To sweat profusely.

CUNSUĒ-FĀCIO, feci, factum, 3. v. tr. [consueo]. (Rar.) To accustom one to any thing, aliquem facere (Com. also ut or ne faciat) aliquid. *CON-SUEO, ēre, 2. v. intr. (Poet.) To be accustomed.

CON-SUESCO, ōvi, ētum, 3. v. tr. & intr. 1) Tr. (rar., poet. & lat.), to accustom one to any thing, aliquem facere aliquid. 2) Intr., to accustom one's self, to be accustomed, facere aliquid, rar. (lat.) ad rem, rei alicui and re aliqua; in partic., c. cum aliquo or aliqua, to be accustomed to a confiding intercourse with, to have intercourse with (often in a dishonourable sense). Freq., perf. consuevi = I am wont, aliquid facere; sicuti in saoris fieri consuevit, as is wont to be done.

*CONSŪETIO, ōnis, f. [consuesco]. (Pl.) Carnal intercourse.

CONSŪETŪDO, Inis, f. [consuetus]. 1) Custom, habit, usage, vivendi, victus; c. majorum; ad nostram c., according to our custom; res venit in consuetudinem, became a habit or custom; se in consuetudinem adduxerunt, they fell into the habit; ex or pro c., also simply consuetudine, according to custom; in partic., freq. c. loquendi, and c. alone = a usage or idiom of language. 2) Daily and confiding intercourse, familiarity, intimacy: habere, jungere c. cum aliquo and oc. cum multis; c. epistolarum, epistolary intercourse; sometimes (poet. & lat.), in partic. = intercourse in love, mostly in a bad sense, illicit intercourse; c. stupri, an amour.

CONSŪETUS, a, um, adj. [part. of consuesco]. 1) (According to consuesco 1.) Accustomed to any thing, rei alicui. 2) (According to consuesco 2.) Customary, usual, wonted, accustomed, antrum, amor.

CONSUL, ūlis, m. [kindred with consulo]. A consul, one of the two chief magistrates of the Roman republic. In partic., c. suffectus, who was elected, in the course of a year, in the place of another; but c. ordinarius, one who entered upon his office at the beginning of the year; c. designatus, the consul elect (from August or September until the first of the following January). In the abl., with the name of one consul or two for the date of the year: Orgetorix, M. Meesala et M. Pisone Coss., conjurationem fecit, in the consulship of, &c., i. e., in the year of Rome 696. Hence: A) = proconsul (prop. an inaccurate expression): B) (lat.) the chief magistrate in other towns.

CONSŪLĀRIS, e, adj. [consul]. Of or belonging to a consul, consular, officium, imperium, insignia; aetas c., the age required by law for the consulship (i. e., the 43d year); c. comitia, for the election of a consul; res operosa ac minime c., worthy of a consul. Hence, vir e. or simply c. — a) one who has been consul, a consular man — b) a legate, sent by the emperor to govern a province.

CONSŪLĀRĪTER, adv. [consularis]. In a manner worthy of a consul.

CONSŪLĀTUS, ūs, m. [consul]. The consulship, the office and dignity of a consul: petere c.; toto suo c. somnium non vidit.

CONSŪLO, lui, lūtum, 3. v. intr. & tr. I. Intr. 1) To consult, to take counsel, to deliberate, to consider, de salute publica; c. in medium or in commune, in publicum, for the common or public good; (poet.) curia consulens, the senate. 2) To take counsel for any one, to consult or care for, to be mindful of: c. alicui, parti civium, famae; c. receptui sibi, to seek a place of retreat. Hence, c. irac, timori, to be determined by anger, fear, to obey the promptings of. 3) To resolve after taking counsel, to adopt measures, to treat: ne quid gravius consulas; gen. with an adv., c. gravior de perfugis, crudeliter in victos, to treat with cruelty. — II. Tr. 1) To ask counsel or advice of any one, to consult with, to consult: c. aliquem, de re aliqua or quid faciendum sit, also (colloq.) c. aliquem aliquid, about something; c. senatum; c. populum, de morte alicujus, to ask, inquire of. Freq., in the language of religion, c. oraculum, exta, deos, to consult; and c. aliquem de jure civili; hence, qui consuluntur = the learned in the law, jurisconsults. 2) To deliberate upon something, to consider, to weigh, aliquid, rem delatam. 3) (Com.) C. alicui aliquid, to advise something, to give advice. 4) C. aliquid boni, to receive well, to take in good part, to be satisfied with.

CONSULTĀTIO, ōnis, f. [consulto]. 1) Deliberation, consideration, consultation: res venit in c., is taken into consideration. 2) An asking of advice, inquiry: respondere consultationi alicujus. 3) In rhetoric: A) an inquiry into a supposed law-case: B) in gen., a case in law. 4) Melon., a subject of consultation or inquiry, a question.

*CONSULTĀTOR, ōris, m. [consulto]. (Lat.) One who asks advice.

CONSULTE, adv. [consultus]. (Rar.) With consideration, deliberately; designedly, on purpose.

CONSULTO (I.), adv. [consultus] = Consulte.

CONSULTO (II.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. [intens. of consulo]. 1) To consider, to think upon, to deliberate, to take counsel, to consult: c. aliquid, conducit id necne; c. de officio, super re aliqua, in commune or medium, for the general good. 2) (Rar.) C. alicui, to have a care for, to take care of; (Com.) istuc sarculum consultabit, this will help. 3) (Ante-cl., poet. & lat.) To ask advice of, to consult, aliquem.

CONSULTOR, ōris, m. [consulo]. 1) (Rar.)

One who gives counsel, a counsellor, adviser.

2) One who asks counsel, a consultant.

*CONSULTRIX, lois, f. [consulo]. She who provides or cares for: natura c. et provida omnium utilitatum opportunitatumque.

CONSULTUM, i. n. [consulo]. 1) A resolution, decrees, plan: virorum fortium facta et cc.; magna cc., great designs; in partic., senatus c., a decree of the senate. 2) (Lat.) A measure, expedient: mollia cc. 3) (Poet.) Petere cc., oracles.

CONSULTUS (I.), a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of consulo]. 1) Well-considered, maturely thought upon, carefully weighed: consilium bene a.; omnia cc. et exquisita ad nos deferunt. 2) Prop., consulted about any thing; hence (as the well-informed are usually consulted), well-informed, skilled, experienced, versed in any thing, in partic. juris consultus or simply c. = learned in the law; freq., as subst. = a lawyer, jurist.

CONSULTUS (II.) ūs. m. [consulo]. (Rar. — for consultum.) 1) Deliberation, prudence. 2) A decree.

CON-SUM, fui, fütürum, före, v. defect. (Ante-cl.) To be, to happen.

CONSUMMABILIS, e, adj. [consummo]. (Rar. & lat.) Capable of perfection, perfectible.

CONSUMMATIO, ōnis, f. [consummo]. (Lat.) 1) A reckoning together, summing up. 2) A finishing, completing, accomplishing: c. gladiatorum, the main proof of their skill.

CONSUMMATUS, a, um, adj. [part. of consummo]. (Lat.) Finished, completed, perfect, complete.

CON-SUMMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [summa]. (Mostly poet. & lat.) Prop., to reckon together, to bring or collect into one sum. 1) (Rar.) To bring together, to unite: gloria belli in ejus decus nomenque velut consummata, compressed, united. 2) To complete, to finish, to execute, to accomplish, rem aliquam, sacrum; abs., ante paucissimas, quam consummaturi essent, dies, they would have served out their time. Hence, trop., to make perfect, to bring to perfection, artem; ne se consummatos putent, think themselves perfect.

CON-SUMO, sumpsi, sumptum, 3. v. tr. Prop., to take wholly or completely, to take all together. 1) Of food, to take to one's self, to consume, to devour, frumentum, cibum. 2) To consume: A) = to waste, to squander, to dissipate, pecuniam, bona paterna: B) = to destroy; freq., of fire, aedes consumuntur incendio. Hence — a) of diseases and the like, to waste, to weaken; and hence, to carry off, to kill: si vis aliqua morbi me c.; freq., pass., consumi morbo, incediā, lacrimis — b) to diminish, to impair, gratiam, vires — c) metus c. vocem, takes away — d) (poet.) a mare et terras, to seek a refuge throughout in vain. 3) To use, to spend, to employ, to bestow upon something: c. operam, laborem in re aliqua, studium in armis; c. pecuniam in agrorum emptionibus; (rar. & poet.) c. ubera in natos, to spend upon their offspring; esp., of time, c. dies desum in his rebus. Hence — a) = to employ in vain, to lose or waste, diem epulando, per discordiam: c. bona ingenii — b) (lat.) consumpsisse = to be done with something, to have nothing to hope or to fear from it, ignominiam, misericordiam.

CONSUMPTIO, ōnis, f. [consumo]. (Rar.) 1) A consuming, consumption. 2) An applying, bestowing, application.

CONSUMPTOR, ōris, m. [consumo]. (Rar.) 1) A consumer, destroyer: ignis c. omnium. 2) Abs. = a spendthrift.

CON-SUO, ui, sūtum, 3. v. tr. To sow or stitch together, tunicam. Hence, trop. — a) (Pl.) c. dolos = to devise tricks, deceptions; lit., to patch up knaveries (a pun on 'tunicis consutis') — b) c. alicui os (lat.) = to forbid to speak.

CON-SURGO, surrexi, surrectum, 3. v. intr. 1) Of several persons, to rise together, to stand up together: senatus, triarii cc.; nos in venerationem tui cc. 2) Of a single individual, to stand up, to rise: consul c.; (poet.) aër, mare c., swells up; binæ quercus cc. 3) In partic., to rise for any action (esp. a hostile action): c. ad bellum, to rise up in arms, to take up arms; so, also, in arma; c. ad res novas; trop., to arise, to take rise: vespere ab atro venti cc.; bellum c.; ira c.

CONSURRECTIO, ōnis, f. [consurgo]. A standing up, a rising from one's seat (as a mark of respect, &c.).

CONSUS, i, m. [conco?]. A very ancient Roman deity (probably the god of Secret Counsels), afterwards confounded with Neptune. The festival Consuālia, ium, n. pl., was celebrated in his honour on the 18th of August of each year.

*CON-SÜSURRO, 1. v. intr. (Ante-cl.) To whisper together.

*CONTABĒ-FÁCIO, feci, factum, 3. v. tr. (Ante-cl.) To waste away, to wear away.

CON-TĀBESCO, bui, —, 3. v. intr. To waste or fall away, to pine away: luctu c.

CONTĀBULATIO, ōnis, f. [contabulo]. A joining of boards together, a flooring, floor, story.

CON-TĀBŪLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [tabula]. To cover with boards: c. turrim; also, c. murum turribus, to furnish with towers made of boards; (poet.) c. mare molibus, to furnish with a bridge, to bridge over.

CONTACTUS, ūs, m. [contingo]. 1) (Poet. & lat.) A touching, terrae. 2) A touching of any thing unclean; hence, infection, contagion: morbis contactu vulgatus; trop. = moral contagion, bad example, &c.

CONTAGĒS, is, f. [contingo]. (Lucr.) Contact, touch.

CONTAGIO, ōnis, f., and (poet. & lat.) Contāgius, ii, n. [contingo]. 1) A touching, touch, contact. Hence = connection, influence: c. naturae, the connection of natural causes and effects; quae potest c. ex infinito intervallo ad lunam pertinere? 2) A contact with something unclean, infection, contagion, morbi; in partic., trop. = moral infection, contagion, contact with vice, participation in wickedness: c. sceleris, criminis, imitandi belli; (poet.) c. lucri, the infection of gain; c. invasit, traxit populos.

CONTAMINĀTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of contaminō]. Tainted with guilt, polluted, defiled; in partic. = defiled by incontinence.

CONTAMINO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [tango?]. 1) To put together, to unite things of different kinds: c. fabulam, to make by patching together pieces out of different comedies; ordines contaminati negligentia, mixed, intermingled. 2) To defile; hence, trop., to pollute, to corrupt, to contaminate, to stain: se maleficio, mentem omni scelere; c. gaudium aegritudine, to mar.

CONTANTER — v. Cunctanter.

*CONTECHNOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. [techna]. (Pl.) To play a trick, to devise a plot.

CON-TĒGO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) To cover, capta scutis, corpus humo, omnia nebulā; c. tumulo, to bury. 2) Trop.: A) = to protect: contectus fide clientium; B) to preserve by covering, to put under shelter, arma: C) to conceal by covering, to hide, libidines fronte et supercilio, injuriam.

CON-TĒMĒRO, 1. v. tr. (Poet.) To pollute, to violate, locum aliquem.

CON-TEMNO, tempesi, temptum, 3. v. tr. To despise, to condemn, to scorn (in gen. = not to fear, to defy — cf. sperno, despicio, etc.): c. pericula, mortem, deos, also voluptatem, res humanas, aliquem; non se c., to possess due self-respect; (poet.) non c. coronari; freq. non contemnendus = considerable, not to be despised; (poet.) arbores cc. ventos, defy.

CONTEMPLATIO, ōnis, f. [contemplor]. 1) A viewing, looking at with the eyes. 2) Trop., of the mind, attentive consideration, meditation, contemplation. 3) (Lat.) Consideration, regard for any thing.

*CONTEMPLĀTIVUS, a, um, adj. [contemplor]. (Lat.) Contemplative, speculative: philosophia c., theoretical (opp. to activa, practical).

CONTEMPLĀTOR, ōris, m. [contemplor]. (Rar.) A contemplator, observer: coeli ac deorum.

CONTEMPLĀTUS, ūs, m. [contemplor]. Only in abl. sing. (Poet.) Contemplation, consideration.

CONTEMPLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) = Contemplor.

CONTEMPLO, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. [templum].

To look at, to gaze upon, to observe closely and attentively (with a surrendering of one's self to the feeling, generally of reverence or satisfaction, thereby awakened — cf. considero, delibero): c. aliquem, coelestia, pulchritudinem rerum, numos in arca; trop., to contemplate, to consider: c. aliquid animo, totam causam.

CONTEPTIM, adv. [contemno]. With contempt, contemptuously: superbe et c.; barbari c. vagabantur.

CONTEMPTIO, ōnis, f. [contemno]. A despising, contemning, contempt, scorn, disdain, mortis, deorum, pecuniae; venire in contemptionem alicui, to become an object of contempt to any one.

CONTEMPTOR, ōris, m. [contemno]. A despiser, contemner, disdainer, deorum, divitiarum; animus c., a disdainful spirit.

CONTEMPTRIX, icis, f. [contemno]. (Poet. & lat.) She who despises, a despiser, contemner.

CONTEMPTUS (I.), a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of contemno]. Contemptible, despicable.

CONTEMPTUS (II.), ūs, m. [contemno]. Contempt, scorn, disdain, hominum; esse alicui contemptui; contemptu laborare, to be despised.

CON-TENDO, ndi, ntum, 3. v. tr. & intr. 1) (Mostly poet.) To stretch, to draw tight, arcum, vincula. Hence (poet.) = to shoot, to hurl: c. sagittam, hastam. 2) Trop., to strain, to exert, vires, nervos in illo onere; (poet.) c. animum in curas, to direct to; (Pl.) c. cursum. 3) To exert one's self at any thing, to work at, to apply one's self to with zeal and labour, to strive, to endeavour: c. aliquid, (ante-cl.) also c. causam, to prosecute with zeal; c. naves conscendere, proficisci, ire; c. remis, to row with all one's might. 4) (Mostly intr.) To hasten, to march or journey with haste, in Italiam, ad nostra castra; trop., to strive eagerly for, to labour for: c. ad summam laudem, ad salutem. 5) To strive to obtain something from another; hence, to demand, to ask, to entreat: c. aliquid ab aliquo; c. ut or ne, etc. 6) To assert, to affirm, to maintain any thing earnestly and energetically, illud, aliquid esse falsum. 7) To hold one thing beside another for the purpose of comparison, to compare: c. duas leges, suam rationem cum aliena; (poet.) c. rem rei alicui. Hence, 8) intr., to try one's strength against any one, to contend, to fight, to combat: c. cum aliquo, contra or adversus aliquem, (poet.) alicui; cc. inter se de re aliqua; c. proelio, magis virtute quam dolo. Hence, of an auction = to bid against.

CONTENTE (I.), adv. w. comp. & sup. [contentus I.]. Earnestly, zealously, with great exertion of mind or body, dicere, pugnare.

CONTENTE (II.), adv. [contentus II.]. (Ante-cl.) Closely, tightly.

CONTENTIO, ōnis, f. [contendo]. 1) A straining, exertion, effort, voeis, animi; c. disputa- tionis, orationis, vehemence. 3) An eager striving for something, honorum. 3) A comparing, comparison, hominum, causarum; facere c. 4) A contest (with weapons or words), a strife, a combat: c. proeliorum, c. cum aliquo de re aliqua.

CONTENTIOSE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [contentiosus]. (Lat.) Obstinately, pertinaciously.

CONTENTIOSUS, a, um, adj. [contentio]. (Lat.) Contentious, headstrong, obstinate.

CONTENTUS (I.), a, um, adj. w. (lat.) comp. & sup. [contendo]. 1) Strained, stretched. 2) Eager, intent.

CONTENTUS (II.), a, um, adj. [contineo]. (Prop., held together, restrained as respects one's desires.) Contented, satisfied with any thing: c. re aliqua; (poet. & lat.) c. dicere, aliquid facere, hostes sustinuisse.

*CONTÉREBBÓMIUS, a, um, adj. [contero-Bromus]. (Pl) Wandered over by Bacchus (a humorous cognomen of Lybia.)

CON-TERMINUS, a, um, adj. (Poet. & lat.) Bordering upon, neighbouring: Aethiopia c. Aegyptio; quereus c. tiliae, standing near the linden; subst., Conterminum, i, n., a neighbouring region, a confine, border.

CON-TÉRO, trivi, tritum, 3. v. tr. 1) (Rar.) To rub, to grind, to bruise or crush into small pieces, cornua cervi, radiem in pulverem. 2) A) to wear out (by rubbing), to weaken, to impair, to destroy, boves, tres corios bubulos in tergo alicujus, to wear out three ox-hides (i. e., whips) on the back of any one; trop., c. viam, to tread upon; c. librum legendo; proverbium vetustate contritum = old and musty; c. se in re aliqua: B) of time, to spend, to pass, aetatem in litibus, diem cursando: C) trop., c. operam, to bestow; freq. = to bestow in vain, to waste: c. injurias oblivione, to obliterate from the memory; c. atque contemnere aliquem, as it were, to trample under foot, to despise; c. quae sunt horum temporum, to exhaust.

CON-TERREO, ui, itum, 2. v. tr. To terrify greatly, to frighten, aliquem or animos re aliqua.

CONTESTATIO, ōnis, f. [contestor]. 1) (Lat.) An attesting, proving by witnesses, testimony, proof. *2) Earnest entreaty.

CON-TESTOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. 1) To call to witness, to invoke, deos hominesque. 2) Tech. t., c. item, to commence or enter upon a trial by calling witnesses; in passive sense, lis contestata, a suit at law formally entered upon. Hence, pass., virtus contestata, tried, proved.

CON-TEXO, xui, xtum, 3. v. tr. 1) To weave or entwine together, villos ovium. 2) To put together, to construct by putting together, to build, to make, navem, equum trabibus; c. orationem, librum, to compose. Hence, trop. — a) c. crimen, to feign, to forge — b) = to continue, hoc carmen longius; c. interrupta. 3) To connect, to unite, to combine: c. extrema cum primis; aetas hominis superiorum aetate contextitur, is connected with; (poet.) c. animum corpori; verba contexta.

CONTEXTE, adv. [contextus]. Connectedly, in close connexion.

CONTEXTIM, adv. [contexto]. (Rar. & lat.) = Contexte.

CONTEXTUS (I.), a, um, adj. [part. of contexto]. Connected, cohering.

CONTEXTUS (II.), ūs, m. [contexto]. 1) A joining, putting together. 2) Coherence, connexion: c. literarum, the succession, order of; in c. operis, in the progress of the work.

CONTICESCO (Conticisco, Plant), tēui, —, 3. v. intr. [con-taceo]. 1) To become silent, to keep silence after speaking (of. taceo); c. de re aliqua; (poet.) lyra c. 2) Trop., sermo, actiones tribuniciae, tumultus, judicia, literae forenses ec., become still, cease.

CONTICINIUM, ii, n. [conticesco]. (Pl.) Evening.

CONTIGNATIO, ōnis, f. [contigno]. A floor of joists, and boards laid upon them, a floor, story.

CONTIGNO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. [tignum]. To join together with beams, to joist, aliquid.

CONTIGUUS, a, um, adj. [contingo]. Prop., touching; hence, 1) bordering upon, neighbouring, near: domus ec.; c. alicui. *2) (Poet.) contiguus hastae, within reach of the spear.

CONTINENS, tis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of contineo]. Hanging together, cohering — 1) with something else: A) of space, bordering upon, neighbouring, contiguous: praedia c. huius fundo; Syria c. cum Cilicia: B) of time (rar.), dies ec., the following, ensuing: C) trop., immediately following upon, closely connected with any thing: ipsum malum continens fuit timori. Cohering — 2) in itself: A) of space, unbroken, uninterrupted, continuous, ripa, agmen; in partic., c. terra, and, as subst., Continens, tis, f., the continent: B) of time, unbroken, unceasing, continuous, labor omnium dierum, bella; c. continentis genere, in an unbroken succession of generations. 3) Continent, temperate, moderate. 4) Acc. to contineo 5, in rhetoric, subst., Continens, tis, n., that upon which something rests, the main point: continens causae.

CONTINENTER, adv. w. sup. [continens]. 1) (Rar.) Of space, continuously, in uninterrupted succession, sedere. 2) Of time, uninterruptedly, incessantly, pugnare. 3) Temperately, vivere.

CONTINENTIA, ae, f. [continens]. *1) (Lat.) A holding back: c. crepitus ventris. 2) A restraining of one's self = continence, temperance, self-control: continentia et modestia; c. animi; c. in victu.

CONTINEO, Inui, entum, 2. v. tr. [teneo].

1) To hold or keep together: mundus c. omnia complexu suo; c. vitem levi nodo; pars urbis, mari disjuncta, ponte continetur, is connected with the rest of the city. Hence: A) c. exercitum, to keep together (opp. to dividere), c. merces = not to share (opp. to partiri): B) in pass. — a) of places, to be enclosed in, to be surrounded, encompassed, environed by: vicus c. montibus; pars Galliae Garumnâ flumine c. — b) trop., cognatione quadam inter se illae artes oc., are connected by some relationship together. 2) To hold or keep in a certain state, to keep, to retain, to preserve: c. rempublicam, aliquem in fide, in officio, in armis. 3) To hold back, to keep, to hold: c. milites sub pellibus, copias in castris, ora equorum frenis; c. animam, the breath; oc. se moenibus, intra silvam; c. se domi, to keep at home; so, also, c. se ruri, in studiis; in war, c. aliquem = to confine. Hence, trop.: A) to keep in check, to restrain, to moderate, to repress: c. Etruriam metu; c. cupiditates, risum, vocem, to keep silent, dicta, to refrain from: B) to restrain from any thing, to hold off or keep back from: c. animum a libidine, se ab assentiendo, suos a proelio; vix me contineo or contineor (also me continere nequeo) quin loquar, I can hardly restrain myself from speaking. 4) To hold a thing within itself, to contain, to comprise: omnia quae gignuntur continent vim caloris in se; mons c. reliquum spatium, occupies the remaining space. In partic., illud c. causam, the case rests upon that; and so, esp. in pass., contineri re aliqua, to be contained in any thing, to consist of, to rest upon: dii non nervis ac venis oc.; artes quae oc. conjecturâ. 5) (Ante-cl. & lat.) Intr., to hold together, to be connected: com-meatu c. utroque, a passage is connected with each house.

CONTINGO (I.), tigi, tactum, 3. v. tr. & intr. [tango]. I. Tr. 1) To touch, to take hold of: c. undas pede; (poet.) c. cibum ore, and hence simply c. = to taste, to partake of, granum. Hence, c. dextram alicujus, to take by way of saluting; trop., c. aliquem cognatione, to be connected with or related to. 2) Trop.: A) to touch, to border upon, to be near to: Helvetii oc. fines Arvenorum; turris c. vallum; milites, trabes oc. inter se, are close to each other; (poet.) hoc c. solium Jovis, approaches, comes near to; c. deos proprius, to stand nearer to: B) (mostly poet.) = to reach, to arrive at, to come to, Italian; vox mea nullum mortalem c.; c. avem sagittâ, to hit; c. auras, to come into the air; aevi contingere florem, to attain to the full vigour of its age: C) part. contactus = touched with pollution (v. Contagio, etc.), stained, defiled: civitas contacta regiâ praedâ, by its participation in the plunder; Galli oc. eo scelere; civitas c. rabie juvenum; dies religione contactus, under a curse, and hence, inauspicious (of the dies Allienensis). 3) To touch, i. e., to be related to, to concern, to affect: c. aliquem sanguine et genere; haec consultatio nihil c. Romanos; suspicio c. eum, affects him. — II. Intr. Mostly imper., to happen, to chance (generally of something fortunate); hence, to fall to one's lot or share, to befall one (cf. accidit, evenit): tot commoda mihi oc.; c. mihi id facere; hoc contingere debet oratori ut, etc.; servitus c. alicui, became his lot.

CON-TINGO (II.), or Continguo, —, —, 3. v. tr. (Poet.) To wet, to moisten, oras circum pocula melle; c. lac sale, to sprinkle.

CONTINUATIO, ōnis, f. [continuo I.]. 1) Unbroken continuance, succession, connection: c. laborum, imbrium, rerum, causarum. 2) In rhetoric, a period.

CONTINUE, adv. = Continuo II., 3.

CONTINUÏTAS, âtis, f. [continuus]. 1) (Lat.) Immediate connection. 2) (Ante-cl.) Continuation.

CONTINUO (I.), âvi, âtum, 1. v. tr. [continuus]. To join together in continuous succession. 1) Of space, to join, to connect, to unite together: aër mari continuatur et junctus est; c. aedificia moenibus, to join to the walls of the city, i. e., to build up to; c. domos, to erect in rows; c. agros, fundos, to acquire adjoining pieces of ground; pass. with mid. signif., Suonibus Sitonum gentes continuantur (Tac.), border upon. Hence, c. verba = to connect into a period. 2) Of time, to continue uninterruptedly, to do one thing after another: c. totos dies theatro, to spend whole days together in the theatre; discordia continuatur paci, immediately follows; c. dapes (poet.), to serve up one dish after another. In partic. — a) c. magistratum (of a magistrate), to continue in office a second year; but — b) c. alicui magistratum (of the people or senate), to prolong one's term of office; also, praetura ei continuavit, gave him the praetorship immediately after the aedileship.

CONTINUO (II.), adv. [continuus]. 1) Immediately, forthwith, on the spot: c. agere; deinde aedilis factus est, c. praetor, immediately after. Hence, in particular, in the statement of the logical consequence from any thing; thus, only with a negation or a question = not necessarily, not therefore, not as an immediate consequence: non c. sum sicarius, I am not therefore an assassin; si malo caveat, continuone fruitur summo bono? does he therefore, forthwith? 2) (Lat.) Continuously, without interruption.

CONTINUUS, a, um, adj. [contineo]. 1) Of space, connected with something or together, uninterrupted, continuous: oc. agri, montes, a range of mountains; flamma per continua serpens, by means of the contiguous (houses); (poet.) aër c. terrae est, contiguous to; Leucas c., joined to the mainland; homo c., persistent; subit., Conti-naus, i, m. (Tac.), a constant companion. 2) Of time and the relations of time, continuosus, successive, following one after another, tot anni; dies decem c., ten successive days; bella c.; labor c., unceasing; oratio c., connected, continuous.

CONTIO, etc. — v. Concio, etc.

CON-TOLLO, —, —, 3. v. tr. (Ante-cl.) For Confero, q. v. C. gradum (aliquo), to betake one's self.

*CON-TONAT, v. impera. (Pl.) It thunders heavily.

CON-TORQUEO, rsi, rtum, 2. v. tr. 1) To turn or twist round, to move round violently: c. membra quocumque placet; c. globum; c. navem, cursum, to turn. 2) To hurl, telum in aliquem. 3) Trop.: A) of a strong and vehement style: c. verba, as it were, to hurl: B) c. auditorem ad severitatem, etc., to move or turn the auditor to, &c.: C) of subtle and artful conclusions: deinde c. et ita concludunt, they take a turn.

CONTORTE, adv. w. comp. [contortus]. Prop., wound together; hence, intricately, perplexedly, obscurely, dicere.

CONTORTIO, ōnis, f. [contorqueo]. 1) A whirling round, dextrae. 2) Trop., complication, intricacy: c. orationis.

CONTORTOR, ōris, m. [contorqueo]. (Com.) A wrester, distorter, legum.

CONTORTŪLUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of Contortus]. Somewhat complicated or intricate.

*CONTORTUPLICATUS, a, um, adj. [contortus-plico]. (Pl.) Complicated, intricate, nomina.

CONTORTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of contorqueo]. 1) Trop., oratio c., powerful, energetic, strong. 2) Involved, intricate, artificial, res, obliqua.

CONTRĀ, I. prep. w. accus. 1) Of places, over against, opposite to: regiones quae sunt c. Gallias. 2) Of actions and states, against (mostly of hostile opposition — cf. erga, adversus): c. vim fluminis; c. naturam, spem; c. ea, on the contrary, on the other hand; pugnare, disputare c. aliquem; hoc est c. me, this is against me. N.B. Sometimes 'contra' is placed after the rel. pron., and occasionally also (poet. & lat) after its substantive. — II. Adv. 1) Of places, over against, on the opposite side: omnia c. circum; templa vides c.; astitit c.; aspicere aliquem c. oculis, directly before one's eyes. 2) Of actions and relations: A) (poet.) to denote reciprocity, on the other side, in turn, again: quae me amat, quam c. amo; tubae utrimque canant, c. consonat terra, re-echoes: B) to denote opposition, on the contrary, on the opposite side, just the contrary: ut hi miseri, sic c. illi beati; cognoscere quid boni utrisque esset, quid c., what of the contrary kind. C. atque or ac = otherwise than, contrary to what; c. ac dixerat, contrary to what he had said; senatus, e quom ipse censuerat, ad vestitum rediit, in opposition to what it had formerly decided. In partio. (Com.), auro mihi c. constat filius, is costing me his weight in gold; non auro carus est c., is not to be weighed with gold, is worth more than his weight in gold: C) of hostile opposition, against, pugnare, resistere.

CONTRACTE, adv. [contractus]. Only in the comp. (Lat.) Contractedly, closely, vivere.

*CONTRACTIUNCŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of contractio]. Dejection, sadness.

CONTRACTIO, ōnis, f. [contraho]. 1) A drawing together, contraction, digitorum; c. frontis. 2) Trop.: A) a shortening, shortness, brevity, orationis, hujus paginae; c. syllabae, the pronunciation of a syllable as short: B) c. animi, dejection.

CONTRACTUS (I.), a, um, adj. w. comp. [part of contraho]. Contracted, confined, abridged small, locus; c. fretum, narrow; oratio c., short (poet.) paupertas c., stinted, pinching; mihi parcam et c. legam, in retirement.

CONTRACTUS (II.), ūs, m. [contraho]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) A drawing together. 2) A negotiating, a beginning of any business. 3) An agreement, contract.

CONTRĀ-DICO, xi, ctum, 3. v. intr. (Lat.) To speak against, to contradict, alicui and precibus alicujus.

CONTRADICTIO, ōnis, f. [contradico]. (Lat.) A speaking against, contradiction, an objection.

CON-TRĀHO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. Prop., to draw or bring together. 1) To draw together into a small compass, to contract: c. membra, collum (opp. to tendere), se, digitos; c. vela, to take in; luna c. orbem, contracts her orb; c. castra. Hence: A) = to abridge, to shorten, orationem, tempora dicendi: B) c. frontem, to wrinkle, to contract; so, also, c. supercilia: C) c. lac, to curdle, cicatricem, to cause to contract, to close: D) trop. — a) c. appetitus, etc., to restrain, repress — b) c. animum, to become discouraged, to be cast down; amici bonis quasi diffunduntur, et incommis committuntur, are drawn together by; c. aliquem tristitia quadam, to oppress. 2) To draw or bring together to one place, to collect: c. classem, exercitum, cohortes ex ultimis regionibus, omnia in unum; c. libros. 3) A) to cause, to make, to occasion, to produce, &c., alicui negotia, bellum Saguntinis cum Carthaginiensibus; also (Pl.) c. bellum inter aliquos; c. certamen; c. aliquid litigii or lites, to make a quarrel: B) to draw upon one's self, to incur, to contract: c. aes alienum, damnum, morbum: c. sibi negotium, to bring trouble upon one's self. In partia, c. nefas, to commit a crime, i. e., an offence against divine law; hence, porca contracta, owed, required for the expiation of a crime. 4) To conclude an affair of business with any one, to make an agreement or contract: c. rem, rationem, negotium cum aliquo; res contractae, agreements, contracts; also, abs., c. cum aliquo, to have to do with; c. nihil cum populo, to have nothing to do with, to have no connexion with.

CONTRĀ-PŌNO, —, pōitum, 3. v. tr. (Lat.) To set against, to oppose; hence, subst., Contrapositum, i, n., an antithesis.

CONTRĀRIE, adv. [contrarius]. In an opposite direction or manner.

CONTRĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [contra]. 1) Of places, lying over against, opposite, collis; tellus c. Phrygiae. 2) Of other relations, opposite, contrary, opposed (stronger than 'diversus'): oc. studia, casus; disputare in partes cc., for or against; quinqueres cc., opposed to each other in the race; vitium c. illi virtuti (lat.); vitiositas c. est hujus virtutis; orationes inter se contrariae; also, with 'ao' or 'atque,' contrarium decreverat ac paulo ante decreverat, the contrary of that, which, &c. In partic., adverbially, e contrario, on the contrary. 3) (Poet. & lat.) Hostile, injurious, hurtful, alicui; exta cc., unfavourable.

CONTRĒBIA, ae, f. A fortified town of Hispania Tarraconensis, in the territory of the Carpetani. Hence, Contrebienses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Contrebia.

CONTRACTĀBILĪTER, adv. [contracto]. (Lucr.) With soft, gentle touch.

CONTRACTĀTIO, ōnis, f. [contracto]. A touching, handling.

CONTRACTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [tracto]. 1) To touch, to handle, to feel, rem, vulnus; trop., pudicitia contractata, defiled, dishonoured; c. librum manibus, to handle often, to thumb; also = to touch carnally, to have illicit intercourse with. 2) Trop., to search, to examine: c. aliquid mente, to consider; corpus oculis contractandum praebere (Tac.), to expose to public view.

CONTRĒMISCO, mui, —, 3. v. tr. & intr. [inch. of contremo]. 1) Intr., to tremble all over, to quake: c. tota mente atque omnibus artibus; trop., cujus numquam fides contremuit, has never wavered. 2) Tr., to tremble at, to be afraid of, aliquem, injurias.

CON-TRĒMO, —, —, 3. v. intr. (Ante-cl.) To tremble violently, to shake.

CON-TRIBUO, ui, ūtum, 3. v. tr. 1) To combine with something else, to incorporate, to annex: c. aliquos cum his or (rar.) his (dat.): c. milites in unam cohortem; urbes quae contributae erant ad Megalopolin condendam. 2) To distribute, aliquid alicui. 3) (Rar.) To contribute along with others, aliquid.

CON-TRISTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To make sorrowful, to sadden, to afflict, aliquem. 2) (Poet. & lat.) Of the weather, light, colours, &c., to make dark, to darken, to render gloomy, coelum, colores.

CONTRŌVERSIA, ae, f. [contra-vertō]. Prop., an opposite or contrary direction; hence, a quarrel, dispute, controversy, esp. frequent as a legal and rhetorical term: c. rei familiaris, about a possession, piece of property; c. mihi est or habeo c. de re aliqua; vocari (venire) in contrōversiam, to become a subject of controversy; adducere (deducere) in contrōversiam, to bring into controversy; dirimere (componere) c., to settle, to terminate a dispute; sine c., as an adv., without controversy, indisputably; non est c. quin illud fecerit, no one denies that, &c.

CONTRŌVERSIŌSUS, a, um, adj. [contro-versia]. (Rar.) Very much controverted.

CONTRŌVERSUS, a, um, adj. [contra-vertō]. 1) Pass., that is a subject of dispute, contested, controverted, res, auspiciū. 2) (Doubtful.) Quarrelsome, litigious.

CON-TRŪCIDO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To hew or cut into pieces, to put to the sword, to slaughter, plebem, tauros; trop., rempublicam.

CON-TRŪDO, si, sum, 3. v. tr. 1) (Ante-cl.) to thrust together, nubes in unum. 2) To press or thrust in somewhere, aliquos in balneas, equum in flumen.

CON-TRUNCO, 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To cut down or into pieces, aliquem; (Com.) c. cibum = to consume.

CONTŪBERNĀLIS, is, com. [contubernium]. 1) One that lives in the same tent, a tent-companion, or comrade (usually there were ten men and one decanus, or an overseer of ten, in the same tent); also, a young man who accompanied a Roman general in order to learn the art of war, an attendant: c. Q. Pompeio consuli. 2) A comrade, companion, associate, in gen. 3) In vulgar language, the husband or wife of a slave; hence, jocosely (Pl.), crucibus contubernalem dari, as it were, to marry to the cross.

CONTŪBERNIUM, ii, n. [con-taberna]. 1) (Lat.) In military language, a common tent or barrack: deponere arma in c. Hence, a dwelling-place, habitation, esp. of a pair of slaves. 2) A dwelling together in one tent, tent-companionship; generally among soldiers, but also between a commander and a young man accompanying him for the purpose of learning the art of war: necessitudo contubernii; c. patris, with his father. 3) Hence, trop.: A) a living together, intercourse, companionship, in gen.: B) marriage between slaves: C) concubinage, in gen.: D) a dwelling together of animals.

CON-TUEOR, uitus, (ante-cl. also Con-tuor, —, 3.), 2. v. dep. tr. 1) To look at attentively, to gaze at, aliquid; c. longinqua, to look far out into the distance. Hence, trop. = to consider, to ponder, propositum. 2) To descry, to get a sight of, aliquid.

CONTUITUS, ūs, m. [contueor]. Only in the abl. sing. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A looking at attentively, a viewing.

CONTUMÁCIA, ae, f. [contumax]. Obstinacy, stubbornness, contumacy, pride (towards one of higher standing — cf. superbia): c. et arrogantia; c. ac superbia oraculorum, responsi; rarely in a good sense, c. libera, a noble pride.

CONTUMÁCITER, adv. w. comp. [contumax]. Obstinate, stubbornly, contumaciously.

CONTUMAX, ácis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [kindred with tumeo — perhaps with contumelia]. Obstinate, stubborn, inflexible, contumacious, haughty: c. animus, homo; c. in aliquem, and (lat.) c. alicui, towards one, adversus tormenta; trop., lima c. (poet.), unyielding = hard.

CONTUMÉLIA, ae, f. [kindred with temno or contemno]. *1) Shock, hardship, violence: naves ex robore factae ad quamvis vim et contumeliam perferendam. 2) An affront, injury, insult, outrage, contumely (an act by which one is insulted — cf. offensio; that touches one's honour — cf. ignominia): accipere c.; imponere (facere, dicere) alicui contumeliam or jacere c. in aliquem, to put an affront upon one; contumeliâ or per contumeliam, contumeliously, insultingly; accipere aliquid in contumeliam, to regard, to take something as an affront or insult.

CONTUMÉLIÖSE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [contumeliosus]. Contumeliously, abusively, insolently.

CONTUMÉLIÖSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [contumelia]. Abusive, injurious, insolent, contumelious, diotum; literae oc. in aliquem, also c. alicui, against one; homo c., insulting, using abusive language.

CON-TUMÜLO, ávi, átum, 1. v. tr. *1) (Lat.) To heap up like a mound, stragulum. 2) (Poet.) To bury, aliquem.

CON-TUNDO, tüdi, tüsum, 3. v. tr. 1) To beat, to bruise, to crush into pieces, to shatter, radices, aliquem fustibus; grande c. vites, injures. 2) To crush = to destroy, to break or put down, to subdue completely: c. audaciam alicujus, feroces populos, Hannibalem, calumniam; (poet.) sol c. tempora annua, completes.

CONTUOR (ante-cl.) = Contueor, q. v.

CONTURBATIO, ónis, f. [conturbo]. Confusion; in partio. = confusion, disquiet or perturbation of mind.

CONTURBÁTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of conturbo]. Confused, disturbed, disquieted: c. in scribendo.

CON-TURBO, ávi, átum, 1. v. tr. 1) To disturb, to throw into disorder or confusion, rempublicam, ordines hostium. Hence, c. rationem or rationes, and abs. c., to bring one's pecuniary affairs into disorder, to become bankrupt; and, trop., c. alicui rationes (Com.) = to put out, to embarrass one's plans. 2) Trop.: A) c. aliquem, to alarm, to disquiet: B) to confuse, to make undecided, animos.

CONTUS, i, m. [= κορρῆς]. (Poet. & lat.) A pole, esp. as an implement of a ship; also = a spear.

CONTÜSIO, ónis, f. [contundo]. (Lat.) 1) A crushing, bruising, breaking into pieces. 2) A bruise, contusion.

CONTÜSUM, i, n. [contundo]. (Lat.) A bruise, contusion.

CÖNUS, i, m. [= κῆρυξ]. A cone; hence, of conical bodies, esp. = the metallic point or summit of a helmet.

*CON-VADOR, átus, 1. v. dep. tr. (Pl.) To summon one before a court, aliquem.

CON-VÁLESCO, lui, —, 3. v. intr. 1) To gain health and strength (of a sick or, at least, a weak person), to recover from a disease, to grow strong: a ex morbo, de vulnere; trop., rami languentes oc., regain strength and freshness; annona c., the corn became more abundant. 2) In gen., to gather strength, to become stronger, to increase in strength and power: ignis c.; trop., Milo c., gains more power and consideration; opinio c., is confirmed; mala oc., increase.

CON-VALLIS, is, f. A valley enclosed on all sides with hills.

CON-VALLÖ, ávi, átum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To surround with an entrenchment, to encircle.

CONVÄSO, ávi, átum, 1. v. tr. [vas]. (Ante-cl.) To pack up, aliquid.

CON-VECTO, —, —, 1. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To carry or bring together, praedas.

CON-VECTOR, óris, m. (Rar.) A fellow-passenger, a companion on a voyage.

CON-VÉHO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. To carry, to bear or bring together, frumentum in castra, materiam lintribus in insulam.

CON-VELLO, velli, vulsum, 3. v. tr. 1) To tear loose, to pull up, to tear away a thing from its place or position: c. saxa, limina tectorum; (poet.) c. silvam ab humo; c. simulacrum ex sede sua et auferre; c. turrin, to pull down; trop., aliquid convellitur = the possession of a thing is disturbed. Hence, tech. t., c. signa, to pull up the standards from the ground = to decamp and march. 2) (Poet. & lat.) To tear in pieces, to rend: c. dapes avido dente, glebam vomere, by ploughing; c. mare remis, by rowing. 3) Trop., to shake, to make to totter, to bring down, to destroy: c. rempublicam, judicia, fidem legionum, opinionem, auxilia reipublicae; c. pectus alicujus verbis; convelli discordiâ, to be distracted by.

CON-VÉLO, —, átum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To veil or cover all over.

CONVĒNAE, árum, comm. pl. [convenio]. (The sing. is very rare, and only in later writers.) Prop., coming together. Hence, 1) persons flocking together, esp. = strangers: co. et feri bar-bari. 3) (Pl.) Facere amantes convenas inter se, is help to a meeting together.

CONVENIENS, tis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of convenio]. 1) Agreeing, accordant, concordant, harmonious, propinqui, amici, uxor. 2) Agreeing with a thing, proper, fit, suitable, becoming, rei alicui and (rar.) ad rem aliquam, cum re aliqua (ante-cl. & lat.) or oc. inter se.

CONVENIENTER, adv. with (lat.) sup. [conveniensi]. Consistently, suitably: c. naturae vivere.

CONVENIENTIA, ae, f. [conveniensi]. Agreement, conformity, harmony: c. naturae cum extis; c. rerum, partium.

CON-VENIO, vĕni, ventum, 4. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to come together, to meet, to assemble: milites oc. ex provincia; tota Italia c. ad hoc iudicium; omnes oc. in unum locum. In partic.: A) civitates quae oc. in forum, belonging, in jurisdiction, to that city (v. Conventus 2); B) uxor c. in manum (alicujus), comes by marriage under the power of a husband (v. Manus); C) trop., causae oc., come together, unite; (Pl.) multa munera oc. ab amatoribus, come in at the same time. 2) Tr., to come together with one in order to speak to him, to meet, to call upon one; esp. = to address, to accost, aliquem; conventus non sum ab eo, he has not spoken to me; se conveniri non vult, he will not speak to anybody. 3) Intr., to agree: c. cum aliquo; convenimus inter nos. 4) Intr., res c., or, impers., convenit, it is agreed upon, is decided, mutually resolved upon: hoc mihi tecum c., you and I agree about this; iudex inter eos c., they agree about the choice of a judge; pax c., peace is concluded; condiciones, signa oc., are agreed upon; uti convenerat, according to agreement; mihi cum illo c. ut in castris meis esset: inter omnes c., per consules reliqua esse perfecta, all were agreed that, &c. 5) To fit: cothurnus c. ad pedem. Mostly trop.: A) res c., is fit, proper, becoming, suitable for, agrees with: illud in hunc ordinem c., is applicable to, can be said of; haec suspicio c. in illum, falls upon him; thus, likewise, haec contumelia c. ad maximam partem civium, applies to; hoc c. cum oratione illius; illud c. laudi tuae; c. ad manum (of accounts), it agrees to a farthing; (Pl.) aliam aetatem aliud factum c.: B) in partic., impers., convenit, it becomes, it behooves, is seemly: c. illud dicere; c. imperatorem talia facere; non c. nobis animum submittere, it does not become us; qui c. ut, etc.; est tibi tantae curae quantae c.

CONVENTICIUS, a, um, adj. [convenio]. * (Pl.) Coming together by chance; hence, subst., Conventicium, ii, n., the public pay received by the citizens of Athens for coming to the assembly of the people = τὸ λαλῆσαι τὸν λαόν.

CONVENTICULUM, i, n. [convenio]. 1) A meeting, an assembly, hominum. 2) (Lat.) A place of assembly.

CONVENTIO, ōnis, f. [convenio]. (Rar.) An agreement, a covenant, compact.

CONVENTUM, i, n. [convenio]. An agreement, a covenant, compact: stare convento, to abide by; freq. in the comb. 'pactum c.' (probably instead of 'pactum et c.' — v. Pactum).

CONVENTUS, ūs, m. [convenio]. 1) A meeting, an assembly (voluntary, mostly for deliberation, debate, instruction, the celebration of a religious festival, &c.; more rarely, for social amusement — cf. coetus, concilium, concio, comitia). 2) In partic.: A) the judicial assembly of a province, a court of justice, a meeting of the people of a certain district of a Roman province in a town selected for this purpose (usually in winter), in order to have their lawsuits decided by the governor (proconsul, or praetor): agere c., to hold a court: B) (rar.) the capital city of a province, where the courts were held, with the district belonging to it: C) the body of Roman citizens in a province, from among whom the governor in certain cases chose the judges. 3) (Rar.) = Conventum.

CON-VERBĒRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) 1) To beat severely, faciem. 2) Trop., to chastise, vitia.

CON-VERRO, erri, ersum, 3. v. tr. 1) To sweep together; trop., to scrape together, hereditates omnium. 2) To sweep out, to cleanse by sweeping, stabulum; trop. (Com.), is me totum cum pulvisculo c., pounds me.

CONVERSATIO, ōnis, f. [converso]. (Lat.) 1) Frequent intercourse, hominum, with men. *2) Frequent use.

CONVERSIO, ōnis, f. [converto]. 1) A turning round, revolution, coeli. 2) A periodical return, revolution, mensium. 3) Trop., an alteration, a change: c. et perturbatio rerum. 4) In rhetoric: A) a change from one style to another: B) a repetition of the same word at the end of several sentences: C) the rounding of a period.

CON-VERSO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To turn or whirl round: animus se c.

CON-VERSOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. (Lat.) To stay or live in a place; esp., in the company of others, vobiscum, alicui, with you, with somebody; subst., Conversans, tis, m., he who lives with one, a companion.

CON-VERTO, ti, sum, 3. v. tr. 1) To turn round, to turn, manum; terra c. se circa axem suum; c. itof in provinciam; oc. signa (of soldiers) = to turn around upon the enemy, to wheel around. Hence = to make one turn around or in any direction: c. multitudinem or se ad aliquem; illa vox Herculeum c., made him turn around; c. se domum, to betake one's self. Hence, trop.: A) to turn or direct one's eyes or attention to any thing: c. oculos, animos hominum in aliquem, in se, and simply c. animum (oculos) alicujus or c. aliquem, to draw the attention (eyes) of some- body upon one's self: B) to turn upon, to direct against: c. orationem in increpandam ejus fugam, risum in aliquem: C) = to apply, to employ, eas copias ad patriae salutem: D) c. se ad philosophos, to have recourse to; c. se ad pacem, to exert one's self for: E) c. aliquid ad se or in rem suam, to appropriate, to take advantage of. 2) To turn = to change, to alter, to transform, se in hirundinem, crimen in laudem. Hence: A) c. castra castris, to change camp for camp = to march incessantly: B) c. rempublicam, to throw into disorder: C) trop. = to translate, orationes e Graeco, aliquid in Latinum. 3) (Rar.) Intr., to turn in any direction, to turn around, ad pedites. Hence = to turn into, to take a turn: imperium regium c. in superbiam; hoc illi c. in bonum.

CON-VESTIO, Ivi, Itum, 4. v. tr. (Mostly trop.) To clothe, to cover, prata herbis; (poet.) sol c. omnia luce.

CONVEXIO, ōnis, f., and Convexitās, ātis, f. [convexus]. (Lat.) A vaulting, convexity, mundi.

CON-VEEXO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To press violently, aliquem.

CONVEXUS, a, um, adj. [conveho]. Vaulted, rounded, convex, coelum, cornua; subst., Convexum, i, and a, ōrum, n., a vault, vaulted arch, coeli, nemorum. 2) (Poet.) Sloping, descending steeply: vallis, iter, vertex c. ad aequora.

CONVICIATOR, ōris, m. [convicior]. (Rar.) A railer, reviler.

CONVICIOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. To rail at, to revile, to taunt, alicui.

*CONVICIOLUM, i, n. [dim. of convicium]. (Lat.) A taunt.

CONVICIUM, ii, n. [vox]. 1) A loud cry or noise produced by several persons, a loud crying together: clamor et c., at a banquet; c. rana-rum: efflagitare convicio, by incessant clamor. In partic.: A) = a cry of disapprobation, loud contradiction, senatus: B) a loud wrangling: aures convicio defessae, a wrangle in court. 2) Freq., a loud, violent reproach, an insult: con-nectari aliquem conviciis; justissimum meum c. Hence, trop. — a) c. tacitum cogitationis, reproach — b) (Pl.) = the object of a reproach, a disgraceful person: pascere aliquem c., to bring up a son who is a disgrace to one's self.

CONVICTIO, ōnis, f. [convivo]. Social intercourse; also, concr. (= convictores), constant companions: quos ex domesticis co. tecum esse voluisti.

CONVICTOR, ōris, m. [convivo]. A companion, daily companion at table.

CONVICTUS, ūs, m. [convivo]. 1) A living together socially, social intercourse, humanus. 2) (Rar.) = Convivium.

CON-VINCO, vici, victum, 3. v. tr. Prop., to overcome completely. Hence, 1) to convict one of a crime, &c.: c. aliquem negligentiae, repetundarum, also tantis criminibus, in pari peccato; mores ipsius illum co.; c. te or convinceris aliquid dixisse, that you have said something. 2) To show to be true = to prove, inauditum facinus, avaritiam. 3) To show to be false = to refute, postularum portenta.

*CONVINCTIO, ōnis, f. [vincio]. (Quinct.) A conjunction, connective particle.

CON-VISO, —, —, 3. v. tr. (Poet.) To look at, to examine attentively, omnia oculis.

CONVIVA, ae, comm. [convivor]. A guest, messmate, alicujus.

CONVIVĀLIS, e, adj. [convivium]. Of or pertaining to a banquet, convivial, oblectatio.

CONVIVĀTOR, ōris, m. [convivor]. One who gives an entertainment, the master of a feast.

CONVIVĪUM, ii, n. [convivo]. 1) A feast, banquet, entertainment (cf. epulae and epulum.) 2) (Lat.) A company at table, guests: repente c. conticuit.

CON-VIVO, xi, —, 3. v. intr. (Lat.) 1) To live together, avaro, with a miser. 2) (Rar.) = Convivor.

CONVIVOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. [conviva]. To feast or banquet together: c. frequenter et large.

CON-VŪCO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To call together, to convoke, to assemble, populum, senatum, homines in societatem vitae, to unite. 2) (Rar.) Of a single person, to call one to join a company, aliquem in nostram concionem.

CON-VŪLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. To fly, to flock, to hasten or run together, populus; co. ad sellas consulum.

CON-VŪLŪTO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Rar.) Only in the pass., with a mid. signification: to roll round rapidly, to whirl.

CON-VOLVO, vi, ūtum, 3. v. tr. 1) To roll up or together: serpens c. terga. Hence, trop. (lat.), c. verba, to heap up; ruina belli illius Gallograeciam convolvit, involved. 2) To wind round; testudo convoluta omnibus rebus.

CON-VŪMO, ui, —, 3. v. tr. To bespew, mensas.

CON-VULNERO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To wound severely, aliquem; trop., to injure, mores et vitam.

CONVULSUS — v. Convello.

COŒLESCO — written thus by some, instead of Coalesco, q. v.

CO-ŌPERATIO, ōnis, f. (Lat.) Co-operation.

COŒPERCŪLUM, i, n. [cooperio]. (Lat.) A cover, lid.

*COŒPERĪMENTUM, i, n. [cooperio]. (Ante-cl.) A covering.

CO-ŌPERIO, rui, rtum, 4. v. tr. To cover entirely: tenebrae co. montem; c. tribunal lapidibus = to stone; freq., part., coopertus, covered; trop., sunk, drowned in any thing, sceleribus, femoribus.

COOPTATIO, ōnis, f. [coopto]. A reception of a new member into a 'collegium'; hence, in gen., an election, choice: c. collegiorum; c. censoria; c. in Patres.

CO-OPTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To receive by election into a 'collegium,' to elect, to choose a colleague in an office or order: c. senatores, tribunos plebis; c. sibi collegam; c. aliquem in altissimum ordinem.

CO-ORIOR, ortus, 4. v. dep. intr. 1) To arise, to break out: ignis, bellum, risus omnium c. 2) In partic., of something hostile: of persons, to rise up, to break forth; of things, to break out, to spring up: c. in pugnam; tribuni cc. in illum, in rogationes nostras, against our proposals; c. ad bellum; insidiae, seditio c.

COORTUS, ūs, m. [coorior]. (Lucr.) An originating, rising.

COPA, ae, f. [kindred with caupo]. (Poet.) A female dancer in a tavern (perhaps = a hostess).

COPAE, ārum, f. pl. [= Κῶραι]. An old town in Boeotia.

COPAIS, Idis, f. [= Κῶραι]. A lake in Boeotia, near to, and named after, the town Copae — now Topolias.

COPHINUS, i, m. [= κῆφινος]. (Lat.) A basket.

COPIA (I.), ae, f. [co-ops]. 1) A supply, abundance, multitude, copiousness, frugum, omnium librorum; magna latronum c.; c. narium (poet.), an abundance of fragrant flowers. In particular: A) of speech, fulness, copiousness of expression; also, c. verborum, dicendi; c. rerum, copiousness of material, contents: B) = fortune, means, wealth, riches: cc. domesticae, Gallorum, contulerunt copias suas in illam provinciam, they have transferred their means to that province; — hence, ejurare bonam c. = to declare one's self insolent, to become bankrupt: C) freq. (almost always in the pl.), forces, troops: cc. magnae, exiguae, tantae (but not multae, paucae, etc.). 2) Ability, power, opportunity, means of doing something: facere (dare) alicui copiam consilii sui, to offer one's advice to somebody, aliquid facendi, to give an opportunity to one of doing a thing, to make it possible to him, e. g., amicitiae jungendae (ante-cl. also ut, etc.); copia erat Romanis somni, dimicandi; (ante-cl.) c. est moliter vivere; copia Jugurthae habere = to have Jugurtha in one's power. In partic., ex c. rerum or only ex c. (rarely pro c.), in the existing state of things, according to the circumstances.

COPIA (II.), ae, f. The goddess of Abundance. COPIDOLAE, ārum, f. pl. [copiae]. A small force, or number of troops.

COPIOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. [copia]. (Ante-cl.) To provide one's self abundantly with, re aliqua.

COPIOSE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [copiosus]. 1) In great abundance abundantly, copiously.

2) In particular, of speech; copiously, diffusely, dicere, causas defendere.

COPIOSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [copia]. 1) (Rar., lat.) Abundant, in great abundance, liquor, supellex verborum. 2) Abundantly provided with, rich or abounding in, re aliqua; locus c. a frumento; in partic. = rich, wealthy, homo, provincia. 3) Of discourse, copious, fluent, eloquent: homo c. ad dicendum; orator c.; oratio c.; c. in eloquendo.

COPIS (I.), is, adj. [contracted from co-ops]. (The nom. does not occur — ante-cl.) Rich in, richly provided with.

COPIS (II.), Idis, f. [= κοπίς]. (Lat.) A sword. COPONIANUS, a, um, adj. Relating to a Coponius.

COPONIUS, ii, m. The name of a plebeian gens, originally from Tibur.

COPREA, ae, f. [= κορπιας]. (Lat.) A buffoon, jester.

COPŪLA, ae, f. [co-apio]. Any thing that joins together, a band, rope, thong; perhaps, in Cæs. (doubtful reading, else only ante-cl., poet. & lat.), of grappling-irons, grapnels, by which one ship was fastened to another. Hence, trop. = the bonds of love, friendship, marriage, &c.

COPŪLATE, adv. [copulatus]. (Lat.) Compactly.

COPŪLATIO, ōnis, f. [copulo]. A connecting, joining together closely, atomorum, verborum inter se.

COPŪLATUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of copulo]. United, connected: cc. pervenimus, we came at the same time; nihil est copulatus, shows a closer connexion.

COPŪLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To join together, to unite, to connect, verba, voluntates suas; c. concordiam, to bring about concord; c. honestatem cum voluptate, haec inter se; naturae copulatum = natural.

CŌQUA, ae, f. [coquo]. (Pl.) A (female) cook.

CŌQUINARIUS, a, um, adj. [coquinus]. (Lat.) Relating to cooking, culinary.

CŌQUINO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [coquo]. (Pl.) To cook.

CŌQUINUS, a, um, adj. [coquo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Relating to cooking, culinary.

CŌQUO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) To prepare, to dress, to mature, to ripen: sol c. uvas; poma cocta et matura; of food that has been eaten, omnia cocta et confecta, decomposed; c. aurum, to melt. 2) To cook, to prepare by cooking. cibum, coenam. 3) To prepare by heat, to burn, to dry, laterculos, carbonem; c. panem, to bake; sol c. glebas, dries up; agger coctus, made of brick. 4) Trop.: A) to mature with the mind, to meditate upon, to contrive, consilia secreto, bellum; B) (ante-cl. & lat.) to vex, to torment: cura quae te c.

COQUUS, i, m. [coquo]. A cook.

COR, rdis, n. 1) The heart (physically and materially): nullum animal potest esse sine c. 2) (Only poet. & lat., except the phrase 'cordi esse.') Trop.: A) (poet.) = a person, man: fortissima cc.: B) the heart, soul, feeling: tremere corde, cura excessit cc.; in partic., cordi est mihi (tibi, homini), it lies at my heart, is dear to me; cordi tibi est illud facere, nos subigi; also (lat.), cordi habere aliquid, to have at heart, to think much of, to value: C) = understanding, intellect, mind: quantum ego corde meo conspicio; volutavi eam rem in c. meo (Pl.).

CORĀ, ae, f. A town of the Volsci in Latium, now Cora.

CORĀNI, ōrum, m. pl. [Cora]. The inhabitants of Cora.

CORĀLIUM, or Cūrālium, ii, n. [= κοράλλιον] corallium]. The red coral.

CORALLI, ōrum, m. pl. [= Κόραλλοι]. A people of Moesia, on the Black Sea.

CORAM [instead of coram, fr. con-os, ōris]. I Prep. w. abl. In the presence of, before: c. genero meo, iudiciis; sometimes (mostly lat.) placed after the substantive: Diomedonte c. — II Adv. 1) Objective, i. e., with reference to the person in whose presence something is done, in the presence of: dicere c. aliquid aliquo praesente; c. aliquem arguere, while he is present; ut veni c. 2) Subjective, i. e., with reference to the person actively present at any thing, personally, in person: c. adesse; c. perspicit quae ex nunciis cognoverat; c. aliquid tecum agam. 3) (Lat.) Of time, immediately, forthwith.

CORAX, ācis, m. [= κῶραξ]. 1) A raven. 2) A Greek rhetorician in Sicily, contemporary with Lysias.

CORBIS, is, f. A basket.

CORBĪTA, ae, f. A slow-sailing ship of burden; hence (Pl.), operam celocem, ne corbitam mihi date, help me quickly, not slowly.

CORBŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of corbis]. A little basket.

CORBŪLO, ōnis, m. A Roman surname; thus, esp. Cn. Domitius C., a brother-in-law of the Emperor Caligula, a celebrated general, who, when condemned to death by Nero, committed suicide.

CORCŪLUM, i, n. [dim. of cor]. 1) A little heart. 2) Trop.: A) a term of endearment, my heart! B) a surname of Scipio Nasica, given to him for his prudence and sagacity.

CORCŪRA, ae, f. [= Κέρκυρα, or (lat.) Κέρκυρα]. 1) An island in the Ionian Sea, on the coast of Epirus — now Corfu. 2) C. Melæna [= Κ. Μελαίνα], an island on the coast of Illyria, now Coriula.

CORCŪRAEUS, a, um, adj. [= Κερκυραῖος]. Of or pertaining to Corcyra, Κορκυραῖος; subet., Corcyraei, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Corcyra.

CORDĀTE, adv. [cordatus]. (Ante-classical.) Wisely, prudently.

CORDĀTUS, a, um, adj. [cor]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Wise, prudent, sagacious.

CORDAX, ācis, m. [= κῶραξ]. 1) (Lat.) A wanton dance; esp., the dance of the chorus in the old Attic comedy. 2) Trop., the 'trochaeus' was so called by Aristotle, on account of its hopping movement.

CORDŌLIUM, ii, n. [cor-doleo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Heartache, sorrow of heart.

CORDŪBA, ae, f. [Κορδύβη]. A large town of Hispania Baetica, now Cordova.

CORDŪBENSIS, e, adj. [Corduba]. Of or belonging to Corduba; subet., Cordubenses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Corduba.

CORFINIENSIS, e, adj. [Corfinium]. Of or pertaining to Corfinium, Corfinian; subet., Corfinienses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of C.

CORFINIUM, ii, n. The old capital of the Peligni in Samnium, now Pontinia, near Popoli.

CŌRIA, ae, f. A surname of Minerva among the Arcadians.

CŌRIĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [corium]. Of or pertaining to leather; subet., Coriarius, ii, m., a tanner.

CŌRINNA, ae, f. [= Κόριννα]. 1) A Greek poetess of Tanagra in Boeotia (about 500 B.C.). 2) A feigned name of a mistress of Ovid.

CŌRINTHIĀCUS, a, um, adj. [= Κορινθιάκος]. (Rar.) Corinthian.

CŌRINTHIĀRIUS, ii, m. (Lat.) A workman in Corinthian brass, a nickname of Augustus, on account of his love of magnificence.

CŌRINTHIENSIS, e, adj. (Pl. & Tac.) = Corinthian.

CŌRINTHIUS, a, um, adj. [= Κορινθιος]. Corinthian; subet., Corinthii, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Corinth.

CŌRINTHUS, i, f. [= Κορινθος]. A celebrated city of the Peloponnesus, destroyed by Mummius (B.C. 146).

CŌRIŌLĀNUS, a, um, adj. Of or belonging to Corioli; in partic., a surname of C. Marcina, as conqueror of Corioli; subet., Coriolani, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Corioli.

CŌRIŌLI, ōrum, m. pl. A town of the Volsci in Latium, conquered by the Romans, 493 B.C.

CŌRIUM, ii, n. [= κῶριον]. 1) The skin, hide of animals (the thick and hard skin—cf. pellis): (Com.) corium alicui concidere, to tan one's hide, to whip one. 2) Leather (coarse and thick—cf. aluta). Hence = things made of leather; esp., a leather sack, whip, a thong or strap. 3) Of plants = the rind, skin, bark, shell.

CORNELĪANUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to a Cornelius, Cornelian: C. oratio, made by Cicero in behalf of Cornelius; C. castra, a place on the coast of Africa; called after the camp putated there by Scipio the elder, in the second Punic war. It was also called Castra Cornelia.

CORNĒLIUS (I.), ii, m., and Cornelia, ae, f. The name of a very celebrated and powerful Roman gens. The most famous families of this gens were, the Cethegi, Cinnae, Dolabellae, Lentuli, Scipiones, Sullae, Balbi, Galli (q. v.). Cornelia, ae, f., a daughter of Scipio the younger, the mother of the Gracchi.

CORNĒLIUS (II.), a, um, adj. Of or belonging to a Cornelius, Cornelian: leges Co., of Sulla.

CORNEŌLUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of corneus II.]. Of horn, like horn.

CORNEUS (I.), a, um, adj. [cornus]. (Poet.) Of or belonging to the cornel-tree or cornel-wood.

CORNEUS (II.), a, um, adj. [cornu]. 1) Of horn, horny, rostrum. 2) (Lat.) Like horn — a) in substance, dry = hard as horn — b) in colour, of the colour of horn, horn-coloured.

CORNICEN (I.), inis, m. [cornu-cano]. A horn-blower, corneter.

CORNICEN (II.), inis, m. A surname in the Roman gens Oppia.

CORNICOR, 1. v. dep. intr. [cornix]. (Lat. & very rare.) To caw like a crow.

CORNICŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of cornix]. A little crow.

CORNICŪLĀNUS, a, um, adj. Of Corniculum.

CORNICŪLĀRIUS, ii, m. [corniculum]. (Lat.) A soldier who had received a 'corniculum,' and been promoted thereby to a higher rank, a kind of subaltern officer.

CORNICŪLUM (I.), i, n. [dim. of cornu]. A little horn; prob., a horn-shaped ornament worn upon the helmet, presented to soldiers for good conduct.

CORNICŪLUM (II.), i, n. An old town in Latium.

CORNICŪLUS, i, m. (Lat.) The office of a 'cornicularius.'

CORNIFICIUS, ii, m., Cornificia, ae, f. The name of a Roman gens; thus, esp. 1) Q. Corn., a tribune of the people (69 B. C.), and competitor of Cicero for the consulship. 2) Q. Corn., the son of the preceding, quaestor of Cæsar in the civil war, proprætor of Illyricum (48 B. C.), and colleague of Cicero in the augurship.

CORNIGER, ōra, ōrum, adj. [cornu-gero]. Bearing horns, horned.

CORNĪ-PES, ōdis, adj. [cornu]. Having feet of horn, hoofed.

CORNIX, iois, f. A crow; prov., cornicum oculos configere, to deceive even the most keen-sighted ('to catch a weasel asleep'); also, elliptically, cornici oculum.

CORNU, ūs (rar. & poet. Cornum, i), n. [kindred with alpas]. 1) A horn of oxen, stags, rams, &c. Hence: A) of objects having the shape of a horn — a) in the pl., the points or horns of the new moon — b) a branch of a river — c) a tongue of land, the point of a coast, esp. of a coast forming a harbour — d) the end of a sail-yard — e) the upper-part of a helmet, the crest — f) the end of a stick around which the parchment-books were rolled — g) the curved end of a bow and side of a cithara — h) the wing of an army: dextrum, sinistrum c. — i) the end, point, wing of a place, esp. the peak of a mountain: B) (poet.) trop., an emblem of power and strength, esp. as employed in resistance: cornua addere pauperi. 2) Horn as a substance, e. g., of horns and hoofs. Hence = things made of horn — a) (poet.) a bow — b) the horn as a musical instrument, a horn, trumpet — c) a lantern — d) a funnel — e) an oil-cruet.

CORNUM, i, n. The cornel-cherry.

CORNUS, i, f. The cornel cherry-tree. Hence (poet.) = a javelin made of cornel-wood.

CORNŪTUS (I.), a, um, adj. [cornu]. Horned, furnished with horns.

CORNŪTUS (II.), i, m. (Lat.) A Roman proper name.

CŌROEBUS, i, m. [= Κρόβος]. The son of Mydon of Phrygia, a suitor of Cassandra.

CŌROLLA, ae, f. [dim. of corona]. (Poet. & lat.) A little crown or garland.

CŌROLLĀRIUM, ii, n. [corolla]. 1) A little crown or garland, made of artificial (originally perhaps of natural) flowers, and presented to actors, &c.; hence, in gen., 2) a present, douceur: discedere sine c.

CŌRŌNA, ae, f. [= κόρωνη]. I. 1) *A wreath, garland, crown, esp. as an ornament at a joyful festival, but worn also on grave and solemn festal occasions; freq. also as a prize of combat and reward of honour, presented to soldiers: c. castrensis, navalis, civica (for which see the text-books on Rom. Antiq.); sub c. vendere, to sell captives as slaves (probably, because they wore garlands at the time of sale). 2) Trop., of things in the form of a crown: A) a circuit, enclosure, muri, montium: B) a circle, an assembly of men, esp. an audience, in court or at the delivery of an oration: dicere causam maximā coronā, before a numerous assembly; coronae aliquid dandum, something must be done to gratify the multitude present: C) at a siege — a) a line of siege, the line of circumvallation, by which a besieged town was invested — b) = a besieging army: urbem coronā cingere, to invest, to blockade, capere, to take by a siege — e) = the troops posted on the wall of a besieged town for its defence: coronā vallum defendere: D) the halo round the sun. — II. As a constellation: A) the Northern Crown, according to fable, the crown of Ariadne placed in the heavens; hence (poet.), Gnosia and Cressa: B) the Southern Crown.

CŌRŌNAE, ōrum, f. pl. The name given to the two daughters of the Theban Orion, Metiocha and Menippa, who devoted themselves to death, to deliver their native city from a plague.

CORONAEUS, a, um, adj. 1) Of or belonging to Corone: sinus C., the present Golfo di Coron. 2) Of or belonging to Coronea; subst., Coronaei, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Coronea.

CORŌNE, ea, f. [= Κορώνη]. A town of Messenia, now Coron.

CORŌNEA, ae, f. [= Κορώνεια]. A town of Boeotia, near Lake Copais — its ruins are near the present Koronies.

CORŌNENSIS, e, adj. [Coronea]. Of or belonging to Coronea.

CORŌNEUS, ei, m. [= Κορώνεύς]. A king of Phocia, father of Coronis.

CORŌNIDES, ae, m. [= Κορωνίδης]. The son of Coroneis 2, i. e., Æsculapius.

CORŌNIS, idia, f. [= Κορωνίς]. 1) A daughter of Coroneus, changed by Minerva into a crow. 2) A daughter of the Thessalian Phlegyas, mother of Æsculapius by Apollo.

CORŌNO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [corona]. 1) To crown with a garland, to wreath, to crown: c. postes; c. pocula, crateras (as was the custom at banquets); since a crown was frequently presented as a prize to the victor in a contest, one was said, e. g., coronatus de oratoribus (lat.), as victor in the contest with the orators; coronari Olympia (poet.), as victor in the Olympic games; c. comediam, to award the prize to. 2) (Poet.) Trop., to surround, to encompass: silva c. aquas; c. aditum custode.

CORPŌRĀLIS, e, adj. [corpus]. (Lat.) Corporal, relating to the body.

CORPŌREUS, a, um, adj. [corpus]. 1) Corporal, having a body, real. 2) In partic. = of flesh, fleshy, humerus Pelopis (opp. to eburneus); c. dapes = animal food.

CORPŌRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [corpus]. To form into a body.

CORPŪLENTIA, ae, f. [corpulentus]. (Lat.) Corpulence, fleshiness of body.

CORPŪLENTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [corpus]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Corpulent, fleshy.

CORPUS, ōris, n. 1) The body, both of animals and men: animus et c. In partic.: A) = the flesh of the body: ossa subjecta corpori; facere c., to become corpulent; amittere c., to become lean: B) = a lifeless body, a corpse: C) (poet.) = a shade, the soul of a deceased person: D) (poet.) = the trunk, in opp. to the head. 2) Periphrastically = a person, an individual: vile atque infame c.; liberum c. in servitutem addicere; (poet.) delecta virum cc. 3) A substance, mass, ingen.: cc. individua, atoms; c. aquae, terrae, the mass of the earth. 4) Trop.: A) = the substance, the essential part of any thing: c. eloquentiae, the pith of: B) a whole composed of homogeneous parts or members, a body, incorporation: c. civitatis, the body of the citizens; c. reipublicae, the body politic; coalescere in unius populi corpus; regem sui corporis creari voluerunt, from amongst themselves; corpori valido (of an army) deerat dux; also of a writing, an entire and coherent work: c. omnis juris Romani, a collection of the whole Roman law.

CORPUSCŪLUM, i, n. [dim. of corpus]. A little body, esp. an atom; also, as a term of endearment.

CORRĀDO (con-r.), rāsi, rāsum, 3. v. tr. To scrape or rake together, pecuniam; trop., c. fidem, to procure with difficulty.

CORRECTIO, ōnis, f. [corrigo]. 1) An improvement, correction, veteris Academiae, morum. 2) Reproof, correction: correctione gaudere. 3) In rhetoric, a figure of speech: a correcting of one's self, by adding a stronger term to a weaker.

CORRECTOR, ōris, m. [corrigo]. A corrector, improver, legum, nostrae civitatis; c. asperitatis: c. Bestius, who always wished to correct others.

CORRĒPO (con-r.), psi, ptum, 3. v. intr. To creep together, to creep or slink into a place, in navem; trop., c. in dumeta, to creep into a thicket = to become entangled in subtleties; (poet.) membra cc. pavore, shrink.

CORREPTĒ, adv. w. comp. [corripio]. (Lat.) Shortly, briefly, dicere.

CORREPTIO, ōnis, f. [corripio]. (Lat.) 1) A seizing, laying hold of. 2) A shortening, syllabae.

CORREPTOR, ōris, m. [corripio]. (Lat.) A reprover, censurer.

CORRĪDEO (con-r.), 2. v. intr. (Lucr.) To smile.

CORRĪGIA, ae, f. [corrigo]. A shoe-tie, shoe-latchet.

CORRIGO, rexi, rectum, 3. v. tr. [con-rego]. 1) To make straight any thing crooked or bent, digitum; prov., c. curva, to make the crooked straight. 2) Trop., to correct, to set right, to improve, to make better: c. errorem alicujus, mores (opp. to corrumpere); c. orationem, to revise, to make emendations in; c. adolescentem; ipsa re corrigi, to be taught better by experience; c. fastos, to correct.

CORRĪPIO, rūpi, reptum, 3. v. tr. [con-rapio]. 1) To take hold of, to seize eagerly and with haste, hominem, lora manu. Hence, c. corpus ex stratis (poet.), to spring from the couch; c. se aliquo, to hasten anywhere; (poet.) c. gradum, to quicken one's pace; also, c. viam, to travel rapidly. 2) To seize upon with violence, to plunder, to take possession of, bona alicujus; c. pecunias undique; c. praefecturas, to snatch by force, to carry off. 3) Trop.: A) of fire, disease, &c., to seize, to attack, to carry away: flamma c. tabulas; corripī morbo, morte subitā; hence, also pass., of the passions and emotions, corripit amor, cupidine: B) to attack = to reproach, to censure, to chide; hence (Tac.) = to accuse, aliquem and aliquid dictis: C) to draw in, to contrast, to abridge, verba, impensas, to diminish, syllabam, to pronounce short.

CORRIVATIO, ōnis, f. [corrivo]. (Lat.) A drawing together of streams of water into a basin or reservoir.

COR-RIVO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [con-rivus]. (Lat.) To conduct streams of water together into one place, venas aquarum.

COR-RŌBORO (con-r.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To strengthen, to make strong, to invigorate: c. militem opere assiduo; c. audaciam, virtutem alicujus; aetas corroborata, mature, manly age; quum jam se corroboravisset, when he had grown up to be a man.

COR-RŌDO (con-r.), si, sum, 3. v. tr. To gnaw, to gnaw into pieces: mures cc. librum.

COR-RŌGO (con-r.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To entreat together, to bring together, to assemble or collect by treaty, necessarios suos, auxilia a sociis; c. vela ex navibus, to demand from all the ships, to collect together.

CORRŌSIVUS, a, um, adj. [corrodo]. (Lat.) Corrosive, medicamenta.

COR-RŌTUNDO (con-r.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To round off, to make perfectly round, corpus.

COR-RŪGO (con-r.), —, ātum, 1. v. tr. To make wrinkled, to wrinkle; trop., ne aordida mappa nares tibi corruget = to cause disgust.

COR-RUMPO (con-r.), rūpi, ruptum, 3. v. tr. Prop., to break into pieces. 1) To destroy, to ruin, to annihilate: c. frumentum incendio, domum et se igni; c. ungues dentibus (poet.), to gnaw; catena c. manus, wounds; c. spem, libertatem. Hence: A) = to weaken, to debilitate: equi corrupti macie; c. res familiares, to become poor: B) = to waste, to make useless, to cause the loss of any thing, diem alicui, to make one lose a day; c. occasionem, opportunitatem, to allow to escape; quodcumque addebatur subsidio, id corruptum timore fugientium, was lost. 2) Of things, to spoil, to injure, to make worse, aquam, mores civitatis, orationem. 3) Of persons, to mislead, to seduce, to corrupt, adolecentem, milites; in partic. = to bribe: c. aliquem pecuniā, largitione; also, abs., c. milites ut fugiant. 4) Of things, to falsify, to tamper with, to misrepresent, tabulas publicas, famam; c. nomina, by an incorrect pronunciation or other fault. Hence = to disgrace, to dishonour, nobilitatem.

COR-RUO (con-r.), ui, —, 3. v. tr. & intr. 1) (Ante-cl. & lat.) Tr., to overthrow; to heap or scrape together, rerum summam, divitias; trop., to ruin, aliquem. 2) Intr.: A) to fall or tumble together, to fall to the ground, aedes, arbor c.; hence, trop. = to perish, to fall: tu et omnes mei cc.; opes Lacedaemoniorum cc.; risu c., to sink to the ground with laughter: B) to rush together in combat, to engage in a fight: ac-cipitres inter se cc.; longe violentius semper ex necessitate quam ex virtute corruiat, all (animals) fight far more violently when they engage in conflict from necessity rather than choice.

CORRUPTĒ, adv. w. comp. [corruptus]. Corruptly: c. judicare, falsely, in consequence of bribery; c. pronunciare, incorrectly; corruptius habiti (of slaves), under worse discipline.

CORRUPTĒLA, ae, f. [corrumpo]. A corruption, seduction: depravatus corruptelā; cc. et adulteria, debaucheries and adulteries; c. malae consuetudinis (subj.), arising from a bad custom; but, c. mulierum (obj.), the seduction of women. Hence (Com.) = Corruptor.

CORRUPTIO, ōnis, f. [corrumpo]. (Rar.) A corrupting, corruption: morbus est c. corporis; c. opinionum, perverseness.

CORRUPTOR, ōris, m., and Corruptrix, icla, f. A corrupter, seducer, misleader, civium.

CORRUPTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of corrumpo]. Corrupted, corrupt, degraded.

CORSICA, ae, or Corsia, Idia, f. Corsica, a, an island in the Mediterranean Sea.

CORSICUS, a, um, adj. [Corsica]. (Poet.) Corsican.

CORSUS, a, um, adj. [Corsica]. Corsican; subst., Corsi, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Corsica.

CORTEX, icis, m. (rarely f.). The bark, rind, shell of trees, plants, and fruits (e. g., nuts); in partic., cork, the rind of the cork-tree, used for stoppers and in learning to swim; hence, prev., nare sine c. = to need an overseer no longer.

CORTICEUS, a, um, adj. [cortex]. Of bark, of cork.

CORTICŌSUS, a, um, adj. [cortex]. (Lat.) Full of bark.

CORTINA, ae, f. A caldron, kettle; in partic. (poet.), the tripod of Pythia, in the temple of Apollo at Delphi; hence (poet.) = an oracle.

CORTONA, ae, f. [= Kēptwa]. A town of Etruria.

CORTONENSIS, e, adj. [Cortona]. Of or belonging to Cortona; subst., Cortonenses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Cortona.

CŌRUSCO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. Prop., to push or thrust with the horns: agni cc. Hence, 1) tr. (mostly poet.), to move rapidly hither and thither, to shake, to brandish, lingua, frontem, telum. Hence, 2) intr.: A) to move quickly to and fro, to waver, to quiver: apes pennis cc., vibrare; arbor c., swings to and fro, trembles: B) to flash, to glitter, to coruscate, flamma.

CŌRUSCUS, a, um, adj. (Poet.) 1) Tremulous, waving, vibrating, silva; c. prae tremore. 2) Glittering, flashing, gleaming, ignis, lumina, radii solis.

CORVINUS, or Corvus, i, m. A surname in the gens Valeria.

CORVUS, i, m. A raven; hence (from its resemblance to the curved beak of a raven), a grappling-iron.

CORYBANTES, ium, m. Priests of Cybele, in Phrygia, and in Asia generally; freq. confounded with the Curetes; at the festivals of the goddess they went about in armour, revelling and dancing, and frequently wounding each other.

CORYBANTIUS, a, um, adj. Of or belonging to the Corybantes.

CORYBAS, antis, m. [= Κορύβας]. A son of Cybele, and father of the second Apollo.

CORYCIS, Idis, f. adj. Of or belonging to the Corycian grotto, on Parnassus (v. Corycius): C. Nymphae, the daughters of Pliatus.

CORYCIUS, a, um, adj. [= Κορύκιος]. 1) Of or pertaining to the Corycian grotto, on Parnassus (v. Κορύκιος ἄστρον), which was sacred to the nymphs and to Pan. 2) Of or belonging to Corycius.

CORYCUS (I.), i, m. [= Κόρυκος]. 1) A promontory and town in Cilicia, with a celebrated grotto. 2) A promontory in Ionia, with a harbour of the same name.

CORYCUS (II.), i, m. [= Κόρυκος]. A leather sack filled with bran and sand, hung up in the gymnasium, and swung to and fro by the athletes; hence, melon. = any difficult kind of exercise: c. laterum et vocis.

CORYLETUM, i, n. [corylus]. A hazel-thicket.

CORYLUS, i, f. [= κόρυλος]. A hazel-tree.

CORYMBIFER, ōra, ōrum, adj. [corymbifero]. (Poet.) An epithet of Bacchus = bearing clusters of ivy-berries.

CORYMBUS, i, m. [= κόρυμβος]. A cluster of fruit or flowers; esp., a cluster of ivy-berries.

CORYPHAEUS, i, m. [= κορυφαίος]. A chief, head, leader.

CORYPHASIUM, ii, n. [= Κορυψάσιον]. A town and promontory in Messenia.

CORYTHUS, i, [= Κόρυθος]. 1) F., a town in Etruria; later, called Cortona. 2) M., a name of several mythic persons; esp., the founder of the town Corythus, father of Dardanus, and thus ancestor of the Trojan kings.

CORYTUS, i, m. [= κορυτός]. (Poet.) A quiver.

COS (I.), ōis, f. [instead of cautes]. 1) A hard stone, flint-stone. 2) In partic., a whetstone.

COS (II.), or COUS (Coos), Col, f. [= Κῶς, Κῶς]. A small island of the Aegean Sea, celebrated for the worship of Æsculapius, the cultivation of the vine, and weaving; the birthplace of Hippocrates, Apelles, and Philetas — now Stanchio or Stanco.

COSA (Cossa), ae, f., or Cosae, ōrum, f. pl. 1) An old town in Etruria, near the present Orbitello. 2) A town of Laconia, called also Compa.

COSANUS, a, um, adj. [Cosa]. Of or belonging to Cosa; subst.: A) Cosanum, i, n., the territory of Cosa: B) Cosani, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Cosa.

COSMĒTA, ae, m. [= κοσμήτης]. An overseer of the wardrobe (a slave).

COSMOE, ōrum, m. pl. [= Κόσμοι]. The supreme council of the Cretans.

COSMUS, i, m. A celebrated maker of unguents in Rome.

COSSUS, i, m. The name of a family in the gens Cornelia.

COSSŪRA, or Cossūra, ae, f. [= Κόσσυρα]. A small island between Sicily and Africa, now Pantalaria.

COSTA, ae, f. A rib; hence, in the pl. = a side, wall, aēni, navis.

COSTUM, i, n. [= κόστος]. (Poet. & lat.) An Indian shrub, of which unguents were made.

CÖTHON, ōnis, m. [= Κόθων]. 1) A maritime town in Northern Africa, near Adrumetum. 2) An island in the Laconian Gulf.

CÖTHURNATUS, a, um, adj. [cothurnus]. (Poet.) Wearing the cothurnus; hence = lofty, tragical, pertaining to tragedy, sermo, dea.

CÖTHURNUS, i, m. [= κόθουρος]. A high (Grecian) shoe or half-boot, covering the whole foot, worn by hunters, and especially by tragic actors. Hence, trop.: A) = tragedy: B) = a tragic subject: C) = a tragic, elevated style.

COTIDIE, etc. — v. Quotidie.

COTTA, ae, f. A surname in the gens Aurelia.

COTTĀBUS, i, m. [= κότταβος]. A social sport of the Greeks, played in different ways. The main point consisted in flinging the remains of unmixed wine into a metal basin on the floor, and thereby producing a clashing sound, the quality of which was considered to furnish a presage of the love of one's mistress. Hence, jocosely = a lash, stroke: bubuli cc. (Pl.).

COTTĀNA, ōrum, n. pl. [a Syrian word]. (Lat.) A kind of Syrian fig.

COTTĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Cottius]. Cottian: Alpes Co.

COTTIUS (I.), ii, m. The name of two kings of the time of the first Roman emperors, who ruled over several tribes living on the Cottian Alps.

COTTIUS (II.), a, um, adj. Cottian: Alpes Co., the Cottian Alps.

CÖTURNIX, Icis, f. A quail; also (Pl.), a term of endearment.

CÖTYS, yis, m. [= Κότys], or Cotus, i, m. The name of several Thracian princes.

CÖTYTTIA, ōrum, n. pl. [= Κοττύττια]. The festival of Cotytto.

CÖTYTTO, ūs, f. [= Κοττύττα]. The goddess of Lewdness, originally of Thrace; later, worshipped also in Corinth and Rome.

COUS, a, um, adj. [Cos II.]. Of or pertaining to Cos, Coan: C. artifex = Apelles; C. Venus, a picture by Apelles; subst.: A) Coum, i, n., wine of Cos: B) Coa, ōrum, n. pl., garments manufactured at Cos.

COVINARIUS, ii, m. [covinus]. (Lat.) A chariot-warrior.

COVINUS, i, m. [a Celtic word]. 1) A war-chariot of the Celts, furnished with scythes. 2) A travelling-chariot of the Romans.

COXA, ae, f. (Lat.) 1) The hip. 2) The hip-bone.

CÖXENDIX, Icis, f. [coxa] = Coxa.

CRABRA, ae, f. A small river in Latium; called, also, Crabra aqua — now La Maranna.

CRABRO, ðnis, m. A hornet: prov., irritare co., to stir up a hornet's nest = to offend men whom it is dangerous to attack.

CRĀGUS, i, m. [= Κράγος]. A mountain in Lycia; according to some, the residence of the Chimæra.

CRAMBE, es, f. [= κράμβη]. Cabbage; prov., c. repetita = an old story, something frequently repeated.

CRANAUS, i, m. [= Κράναος]. An Attic hero, son-in-law and successor of Cecrops.

CRANII, ðrum, m. pl. [= Κράνιοι]. A small town in the island-Cephalonia — its ruins are near the present Argastoli.

CRĀNŌN, ðnis, f. [= Κρανών]. A town in Thessaly.

CRĀNŌNIUS, a, um, adj. [Cranon]. Of or pertaining to Cranon.

CRANTOR, ðris, m. [= Κράντορ]. 1) The armour-bearer of Peleus. 2) A celebrated philosopher of the old Academy, who lived about 320 B. C.

CRĀPŪLA, ae, f. [= κραυδαλῃ]. Intoxication, inebriation produced by wine, together with its consequences — headache, &c.

*CRĀPŪLĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [crapula]. (Pl.) Pertaining to intoxication.

CRAS, adv. To-morrow: c. mane, to-morrow morning; c. est festum. Hence (poet.), meton., in gen. = in the future, hereafter: quid sit futurum c., fuge quaerere.

CRASSĀMENTUM, i, m. [crasso]. (Lat.) 1) The thick sediment of a liquid. 2) The thickness of an object.

CRASSE, adv. w. comp. [crassus]. 1) Thickly. 2) Trop. — a) dimly, not clearly: gemmae nitent c. — b) indistinctly, confusedly: c. aliquid intelligere — c) coarsely, rudely, without taste: poema c. compositum.

CRASSESCO, —, —, 3. v. intr. [crassus]. (Lat.) To thicken, to grow thick or fat.

CRASSIĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Crassus]. Of or belonging to Crassus (the triumvir).

CRASSITŪDO, Inis, f. [crassus]. 1) Thickness: c. parietum; claves digiti pollicis crassitudine. 2) A thick matter, sediment, dregs.

CRASSO, —, ātum, i, v. tr. [crassus]. (Lat.) To make thick, to thicken.

CRASSUS (I.), a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. 1) Thick, strong, homo, filum; nucleus sex digitos crassus, six fingers thick. 2) Thick, dense, gross, coarse (opp. to tenuis, rarus, liquidus, etc.), aër, nebula, toga, unguentum. Hence — a) ager c., fat; thus, likewise, turdus c.; aquae cc. (poet.), muddy (of a swollen stream) — b) c. infortunium = a sound beating — c) trop.: c. Minerva = plain common sense, homely wisdom.

CRASSUS (II.), i, m. The name of a family in the gens Licinia; thus, esp. 1) L. Licinius Cr., a renowned orator, and a contemporary of Cicero. 2) M. Licinius Crassus, triumvir, with Cæsar and Pompey, slain in the Parthian war. 3) M. Lic. Cr., a son of the preceding, and a legate in the army of Cæsar.

CRĀSTĪNUS (I.), a, um, adj. [cras]. 1) Of to-morrow: c. dies, lux, to-morrow's sun; in crastinum, until to-morrow; (lat.) crastino, as an adv. = cras; (ante-cl. & lat.) die crastini, to-morrow. 2) (Lat.) Future, in gen.

CRĀSTĪNUS (II.), i, m. The name of a valiant centurion, in the army of Cæsar.

CRĀTAEIS, Idis, f. [= Κραταις]. A nymph, mother of Scylla.

CRĀTER, ðris, m. (poet. & lat.), and Crātrā, ae, f. [= κρατήρ, κρατῆρ]. 1) A large vessel used for mixing wine with water, a bowl. 2) Meton.: A) an oil-vessel: B) a water-basin, a reservoir: C) the aperture of a volcanic mountain: D) a constellation, the Bowl: E) a gulf near Baiae.

CRĀTERUS, i, m. [= Κράτερος]. 1) A general in the service of Alexander the Great. 2) A celebrated physician, of the time of Cicero.

CRĀTES, ðtis, m. [= Κράτης]. 1) An Attic writer of comedies, who lived about 449 B. C. 2) A philosopher of Thebes, of the Cynic school. 3) An Academic philosopher of Athens, a pupil of Polemo. 4) C. Mallotes (of Mallus in Cilicia), a renowned grammarian, contemporary with Aristarchus, and founder of the Pergamene school of grammar.

CRĀTES, is, f. (almost always in the plural). Wicker or hurdle-work, a texture of twigs and roots, a hurdle, fascine, esp. as used in war. Hence, meton., c. spinae, the joints of the backbone, pectoris: c. favorum, honey-comb.

CRĀTHIS, Idis, m. [= Κράθις]. A river near the Thurii in Lower Italy, whose waters were supposed to reddens the hair.

CRĀTĪNUS, i, m. [= Κρατινός]. One of the first and most celebrated poets of the old Attic comedy (519–422 B. C.).

CRĀTIPPUS, i, m. [= Κρατιππος]. A peripatetic philosopher of Athens, and teacher of the younger Cicero.

CRĒATIO, ðnis, f. [creo]. (Rar.) An electing, choosing, magistratum.

CRĒATOR, ðris, m. [creo]. (Rar.) A creator, author, mundi; Romulus c. hujus urbis, founder.

CRĒATRIX, Icis, f. [creo]. (Poet.) She who creates or brings forth, a creator, author: natūra c. rerum; diva c., mother.

CREBER, bra, brum, adj. w. comp. & sup.

1) Of space, dense, thick, standing closely together or closely following each other; hence, numerous: aedificia cc.; co. ignes, a great many fires; vigiliae cc.; arbores cc.; also (poet.) silva c. Hence — a) = set thick or filled with: lucus c. arundinibus — b) trop. = abounding in: Thucydides c. rerum frequentia, rich in matter, contents; c. sententia, rich in thoughts; Africus c. procellis. 2) Of time, frequent, repeated: excursiones, gemitus, amplexus, literae cc.; c. esse in re aliqua = to speak of or perform a thing frequently.

CRĒBRESO, brui (also written Crebesco, bui), —, 3. v. intr. [creber]. To become frequent, to increase, to prevail, ventus, bellum, seditio; fama c., spreads.

CRĒBRITAS, ātis, f. [creber]. Frequency, literarum; c. sententiarum, copiousness.

CRĒBRO, adv. w. comp. & sup. [creber]. Frequently, repeatedly, in close succession.

CRĒDIBILIS, e, adj. w. comp. [credo]. Credible, narratio, suspicio; credibile dictu; fortior credibili (poet.), incredibly brave; majora credibili, greater than one would believe.

CRĒDIBILITER, adv. w. comp. [credibilis]. Credibly, in a credible manner.

CRĒDITOR, ōris, m. [credo]. A creditor, one to whom money is owed.

CRĒDITUM, i, n. (Lat.) A loan.

CRĒDO, didi, ditum, 3. v. tr. 1) To commit to one's care, to entrust, vitam et fortunas alicui, arma militi, omnia consilia alicui; c. se ventis (in which the notion of danger is implied); so, also, pugnae, to trust one's self to the combat; c. arcana libris, to commit to, to write down in books. Hence, in partic. = to entrust money, to lend, to loan, alicui pecuniam. 2) To trust, to rely upon one, to confide in (with reference to the will and disposition of the person relied upon — cf. confido): c. alicui, praesenti fortunae, virtuti militum. 3) To trust one in his assertions, to believe, to give credit to: c. alicui aliquid, to believe one in any thing, also, de re aliqua and aliquid esse factum; (poet.) credor, instead of creditor mihi, I am believed. Also, to believe something mentioned or asserted, to hold or regard as true: homines co. id quod volunt; c. aliquid de aliquo. In partic., mihi crede (rarely crede mihi), believe me, take my word for it (an expression of friendly assurance or admonition. 4) (Poet. & lat.) In gen., to believe, to think, to be of opinion, to suppose (yet almost always with some reference to the authority of another — cf. puto, existimo, etc.): aliquid esse sapientem; creditus est optime dixisse, he was thought to have spoken very well. 5) In partic.: A) credo (in this form only) is freq. inserted, in discourse and conversation, as a friendly or ironical expression of the opinion of the person speaking: I suppose, I should think, I dare say, probably: B) crederes sometimes denotes an opinion which might readily arise in one's mind: moesti, crederes victos, in castra redeunt, you would suppose them vanquished.

CRĒDULITAS, ātis, f. [credulus]. Credulity. CRĒDULUS, a, um, adj. [credo]. 1) Credulous, that easily believes a person or a thing: improvidus et c.; (poet.) c. alicui, who easily and incautiously believes another person; c. in vitium, credulous of evil; armenta co., trustful, foreboding no danger. Hence (lat.), convivia co., cordial, familiar, confiding. 2) (Tac.) Easily believed, credible, fama.

CRĒMATIO, ōnis, f. [cremo]. (Lat.) A burning.

CRĒMĒRA, ae, f. A river in Etruria, made famous by the heroic death of the 300 Fabii.

CRĒMĒRENSIS, e, adj. [Cremera]. Of or belonging to Cremera: dies C., the day of the battle of Cremera.

CRĒMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To burn, to consume by fire (almost always of the person who burns something, rarely of fire — cf. uro): c. libros, urbem incendio; freq. of the burning of victims or the bodies of the dead.

CRĒMŌNA, ae, f. A town in Upper Italy, still retaining its ancient name.

CRĒMŌNENSIS, e, adj. [Cremona]. Of or belonging to Cremona; subst., Cremonenses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Cremona.

CRĒMOR, ōris, m. (Lat.) Thick juice from animal or vegetable substances.

CRĒMŌNIS JUGUM. A part of the Penninian Alps, now Grimsel.

CREO (L), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To create, to beget, to bring forth, omnes res, genus humanum; in partic., c. liberos, to beget children; hence (poet.), creatus aliquo or aliqua, son of. 2) To occasion, to cause, to beget, errorem, seditionem; c. alicui voluptatem, lites. 3) To create = to choose or elect to an office, aliquem consulem, eos censores, ducem bello gerendo.

CREO (II.) or Creon ontis, m. [= Κρηων]. 1) A brother of Jocasta, and ruler of Thebes after the banishment of Œdipus. 2) A king of Corinth, who gave his daughter Creusa in marriage to Jason, but was destroyed together with her by the magic arts of Medea.

CRĒPAX, ācis, adj. [crepo]. Creaking, rustling, mola. (Lat.)

CRĒPER, ēra, ērum, adj. [a Sabine word]. (Ante-cl.) Dark, dusky; hence, trop., uncertain, doubtful, certamen, oraculum.

CRĒPIDA, ae, f. [= κρηπίς]. A sole, sandal (mostly = solea); prov., ne sutor ultra c., let the shoemaker stick to his last.

CRĒPIDARIUS, a, um, adj. [crepida]. Of or pertaining to a sole: sutor c., a sandal-maker; cultellus c., a shoemaker's knife.

CRĒPIDATUS, a, um, adj. [crepida]. Wearing sandals: fabula c., a kind of Latin tragedy.

CRĒPIDO, īnis, f. [= κρηπίς]. 1) A founda-

Use, a seale, base. 2) An elevated enclosure, margia; in partic., a mole, pier, dam: c. saxi, of stone; c. magnae molis.

CREPIDŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of crepida]. (Pl.) A small sandal.

CRĒPITĀCŪLUM, i, n. [crepito]. (Lat.) A rattle for children.

CRĒPITĀCILLUM, i, n. [dim. of crepitaculum]. A little rattle.

CRĒPITO, —, —, 1. v. intr. [intens. of crepo]. (Poet. & lat.) To rattle, to crack, to clatter, to creak, to rattle: arma, flamma c.: enses p. duris incudibus; nimbi c. multa grandine, rattle; c. rostro; intestina c., rumble.

CRĒPITUS, ūs, m. [crepo]. 1) A rattling, clattering, creaking, rustling, &c., armorum, pedum, cardinum, dentium, a chattering; c. tibiarum, alarum; c. digitorum, a snapping of the fingers. 2) In partic., c. ventris, or simply c., a breaking of wind with noise.

CRĒPO, ūi, itum, 1. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to rattle, to clatter, to creak, to rattle: fores, dentes, catenae, pedes, lapides c.; c. digitis, to snap the fingers. In partic. = to break wind; (poet.) remi c. = break with a loud crash. 2) Tr., (poet.): A) to cause to resound by rattling or clapping, laetum sonum; hence (lat.), c. aureolae, to make to clink: B) to prate about, to be always talking about, to have constantly in one's mouth, immunda dicta; c. sulcos et vineta.

CRĒPUNDIA, ōrum, n. pl. [crepo]. A rattle: A) a child's rattle: B) a rattling musical instrument.

CRĒPUSCŪLUM, i, n. [creper]. Twilight, dusk; almost always = evening twilight (diluculum = morning twilight); (poet.) = darkness, obscurity, in gen.

CRES, ētis, adj. m. [= κρης]. Cretan; and, as subst., a Cretan.

CRESCO, ēvi, ētum, 3. v. intr. [creo]. 1) (Poet.) To grow forth, to come forth, to arise, to spring: quaecūque e terra c.; esp., freq. part. cretus, sprung or descended from, born of, mortali semine, Fauno nymphæque, Trojano a sanguine. 2) Of things already existing, to grow, to increase in size, compass, &c.: homo, luna, Nilus c.; in ejus domo crevit, he grew up, was reared; (poet.) orines c. in frondem, the hairs grow into leaves; c. in longitudinem, to grow in length; amici c., increase in number. Hence: A) (poet. & lat.) to grow to a certain height, to rise: petra c. in sublimis fastigium: B) trop., of abstract subjects, to increase, to grow: opes Atheniensium c.; licentia, inopia omnia c. 3) In partic., of communities and persons, to grow in consideration and power, to become more influential and powerful, to thrive, to prosper: c. in euria; c. ex or de aliquo, by the fall of any one.

CRĒSIUS, a, um, adj. [κρησιος]. (Poet.) Cretan.

CRESSA, ae, adj. f. [κρησσα]. Cretan; and, as subst., a Cretan woman, esp. (poet.) = Ariadne; C. pharetra, herba, nota, made with Cretan chalk; C. corona, the crown of Ariadne; bos C. = Paspheze.

CRĒTA (I), ae, or Crēte, es, f. [= κρητη]. An island in the Mediterranean Sea, now Candia.

CRĒTA (II), f. [Creta I.]. Cretan chalk, a kind of clay or white earth, used for sealing (v. Cretula), for painting the face, for marking lucky events (in opp. to carbo); also, for whitening garments; hence (Pl.), creta est profecto horum omnium oratio = removes all distress from my mind.

CRĒTĀCEUS, a, um, adj. [creta]. (Lat.) Chalky, of the nature of chalk.

CRĒTAEUS (poet.), and Crētānus, a, um, adj. [Creta]. (Pl.) Cretan.

CRĒTĀTUS, a, um, adj. [creta]. Marked with chalk.

CRĒTENSIS, e, adj. [Creta]. Cretan; subst., Cretenses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Crete.

*CRĒTEUS, a, um, adj. [creta]. (Lucr.) Of clay or chalk.

CRETHEIUS, a, um, adj. [= κρητιος]. Of or from Cretheus: virgo C. = Halle; proles C. = Phrixus.

CRETHEUS, ei, m. [= κρητης]. The son of Æolus, father of Æson, and hence grandfather of Jason.

CRĒTHIDES, ae, m. [= κρητιδης]. A descendant of Cretheus = Jason.

CRĒTICUS, a, um, adj. [Creta]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Cretan. 2) A surname of Q. Metellus, given him for his conquest of Crete.

CRĒTIS, Idis, adj. f. [Creta]. (Poet.) Cretan.

CRĒTIO, ōnis, f. [cerno]. Tech. t. 1) A formal declaration, made in the presence of witnesses, whether one wished to enter upon an inheritance or not. 2) An inheritance.

CRĒTOSUS, a, um, adj. [creta]. Rich in chalk or clay.

CRĒTŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of crēta]. White clay used for sealing.

CRĒTSA, ae, f. [= κρησσα]. 1) A daughter of King Creon of Corinth, given in marriage to Jason, and on this account destroyed by the arts of Medea. 2) A daughter of Priam, and wife of Æneas. 3) A harbour in Boeotia.

CRIBRĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [cribrum]. Pertaining to a sieve.

CRIBRO, ēvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [cribrum]. To sift, to pass through a sieve, aliquid.

CRIBRUM, i, n. [kindred with cerno, from the root cer, cre]. A sieve; prov., imbre in cribrum gerere, to pour water into a sieve = to do any thing in vain.

CRIMEN, inis, n. [cerno, cri, apiv]. 1) An accusation, charge, reproach: hence (esp. in pl.), slander, calumny, defamation: o. falsum; sermones pleni criminum in aliquem; o. maleficii (obj.), a charge of some misdeed; but, o. invidiae (subj.), an accusation arising from envy or jealousy; hoc crimine est damnatus; crimini dare alicui aliquid, to make any thing a ground of accusation against one; esse in crimine, to be accused; inferre, intendere alicui crimen, and intendere o. in aliquem, to bring a charge against one, to accuse; crimen defendere, propulsare, to repel, to refuse, to ward off. Hence (poet.) — a) o. belli, a pretext — b) an object of reproach or accusation: posteritatis crimen eris, a disgrace to all posterity. 2) (Mostly lat.) A crime, fault, offence of which one is or may be accused: c. et scelus; fateri c. Hence (poet.) — a) = a representation of a scene of lewdness and crime: nullo crimine tum paries pictus erat — b) the occasion, cause of a crime: c. amoris.

CRIMINATIO, ōnis, f. [crimino]. An accusation, charge, complaint; esp., a base, unfounded charge (cf. accusatio).

CRIMINATOR, ōris, m. [crimino]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) An accuser, slanderer.

CRIMINO, l. v. tr. (PL) To accuse.

CRIMINOR, ātus, l. v. dep. tr. [crimen]. 1) To accuse, to impeach, to charge with a crime, to calumniate (v. Criminatio): c. aliquem apud populum, also (ante-cl. & lat.) alicui, before any one. 2) To complain of something: c. potentiam alicujus, aliquid de illa tribu; c. amicitiam ab aliquo violatam esse. 3) Abs., to charge: ut illi criminantur.

CRIMINOSE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [criminosus]. By way of accusation, calumniously, reproachfully: c. aliquid dicere.

CRIMINOSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [crimen]. Full of accusation or reproach, reproachful, accusatory, calumnious: res o.; ne id mihi or in me criminisum esse possit; oratio o.; homo c.

CRIMISSUS, i, m. [= Κριμησς]. A river on the south-west coast of Sicily.

CRINALIS, e, adj. [crinis]. (Poet.) Of or pertaining to the hair, hair-, vitta; hence — a) subst., Crinale, is, n., a hair-pin — b) corpus a., furnished with hair-like arms (of the polypus).

CRINIS, is, m. The hair of the head; also, hair, in gen. (cf. capillus, coma, etc.): capere crines = to marry (because married women were distinguished from the unmarried by their head-dress). Hence: A) the tail of a comet: B) the arms of a polypus.

CRINITUS, a, um, adj. [crinis]. Covered with hair, having long hair or locks: puella c., having long and beautiful hair; galea crinita juba; stella c., a hairy star, a comet.

CRISIS, is, f. [= κρισις]. (Lat.) A decision esp., the turn, crisis of a disease.

CRISPANS, ntis, adj. [part. of crispo]. (Lat.) 1) Curling, curled, nasus. 2) Trembling.

CRISPICANS, ntis, part. of the unusual orispico [crispus]. (Poet.) Crisping, curling: ventus c. mare.

CRISPISULCANS, ntis, adj. [crispus-sulco]. (Old poet.) Of lightning, furrowing the sky with a trembling serpentine motion.

CRISPO, āvi, ātum, l. v. tr. [crispus]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) To curl, to make curled, capillum; c. tellurem apio, to bestrew with the crisp parsley 2) To put into a trembling motion, to brandish, binas hastas.

CRISPULUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of crispus]. Having crisped or curled hair.

CRISPUS, a, um, adj. (Ante-cl., poet. & lat.) 1) Curled, crisped, juba. 2) Of persons, having curled hair, curly-headed. 3) Trop., of style, artificial. 4) Curled, uneven, wrinkled, paries. 5) In trembling motion, trembling, waving.

CRISSA, ae, f. [= Κρίσσα]. A town on the sea-coast of Phocis, now Crisso.

CRISSAEUS, a, um, adj. [Crissa]. Of or pertaining to Crissa.

CRISTA, ae, f. [kindred with cresco, crinis]. 1) The tuft on the head of animals; esp., the comb of a cock; (poet.) the crest of a serpent, &c.; prov., co. ei surgunt, his crest rises, he swells with pride. 2) The plume or crest on a helmet.

CRISTATUS, a, um, adj. [crista]. 1) Having a tuft or crest, tufted, crested, aves. 2) Bearing a crest or plume: cassis o. pennis; c. Achilles.

CRITIAS, ae, m. [= Κριτίας]. One of the thirty tyrants of Athens.

CRITICUS, i, m. [= κριτικός]. A critic.

CRITO, ōnis, m. [= Κρίτων]. A rich Athenian and friend of Socrates.

CRITOLAUS, i, m. [= Κριτόλαος]. 1) A peripatetic philosopher, who lived about 155 B. C. 2) An Achaean general.

CRŌCEUS, a, um, adj. [croceus]. 1) Of or pertaining to saffron. 2) Saffron-coloured.

CRŌCINUS, a, um, adj. [= κρόκινος, crocus]. = Croceus. Hence, subst., Crocinum, i, n., (poet.) sc. oleum, saffron-oil; trop., as a term of endearment.

CRŌCIO, 4. v. intr. [= κρόειν]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To croak as a raven.

CRŌCŌDILINA, ae, f. [= κροκόδειλον]. (Lat.) 'The crocodile syllogism,' an example of a species of sophism.

CRŌCŌDILUS, i, m. [= κροκόδαλος]. A crocodile.

CRŌCŌTA, ae, f. [crocus]. A saffron-coloured dress (worn by women).

CRŌCŌTARIUS, a, um, adj. [crocata]. Of or pertaining to a 'crocata': infector c., a dyer of saffron-coloured dresses.

CRŌCŌTŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of crocota]. (Pl.) A saffron-coloured dress.

CRŌCUM, i, n. } Saffron. Hence: A) = saff- CRŌCUS, i, m. } from-colour: B) fabula pe- rambulat crocum, treads the saffron = is played upon the stage (it being the custom to sprinkle the Roman stage with saffron-water).

CROESUS, i, m. [= Κροῖσος]. A king of Lydia, famous for his great wealth; hence, appell. = a very rich man.

CROMMYUACRIS, Idis, f. [Κρομμύον Ἰδία]. A promontory on the north coast of Cyprus, now Cormachiti.

CRŌMYON or Cremmyon, ōnis, f. [= Κρομμύον, Κρεμμύον]. A village of Megaris, near Corinth—now Castro Teichos.

CRŌTĀLIA, ōrum, n. pl. [= κροτάλια]. (Lat.) A rattling ear-ring (made of pearls).

CRŌTĀLISTRIA, ae, f. [croतालम्, कपोल[ि]क]. (Poet.) A (female) eastanet dancer.

CRŌTĀLUM, i, n. [= κροτάλον]. A rattle, eastanet (used as an accompaniment of voluptuous dances).

CRŌTO, ōnis, com. } [= Κρότων]. A town on CRŌTŌNA, ae, f. } the eastern coast of Bruttium, now Crotona.

CRŌTŌNIĀTES, ae, m. [= Κροτωνιάτης]. A Crotonian.

CRŌTŌNIENSIS, e, adj. [Croto, Crotona]. Of or pertaining to Croto or Crotona, Crotonian; subst., Crotonienses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Croto or Crotona.

CRŌTŌPIĀDES, ae, m. [= Κροτωνιάδης]. A Croteplad, i. e., Linus, a grandson of Crotopus.

CRŪCIĀBĪLIS, e, adj. [crucio]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Torturing, tormenting, lamentable.

*CRŪCIĀBĪLITAS, ātia, f. [cruciabilis]. (Pl.) Torture, torment.

CRŪCIĀBĪLĪTER, adv. [cruciabilis]. With torture.

CRŪCIĀMENTUM = Cruciabilitas, q. v.

CRŪCIĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [crux]. (Lat.) Of or pertaining to a cross; subst., Cruciarus, ū, m., one crucified.

CRŪCIĀTUS, ūs, m. [crucio]. Torture, torment; in partic. = an execution by the application of torture; trop., cum tuo c. haec dicis, to thy misfortune, ruin; abi in malum c., to the hangman with you!

CRŪCIO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [crux]. To torture, to put on the rack, to torment, aliquem, legatos omnibus suppliciis; also, mentally, officii deliberatio me c.; ipse se c. aegritudine; (Com.) crucior = I am vexed, afflicted, I grieve, iatad, about this, me lapidem non habere, that I have no stone.

*CRŪCĪSĀLUS, i, m. [crux-salio]. (Pl.) A cross-dancer (a name jocosely formed in imitation of Chrysalus).

CRŪDELIS, e, adj. w. comp. & sup. [crudus]. Unfeeling, hard, cruel, unmerciful, inhuman, homo, mens; c. in aliquem, and (lat.) alicui, towards one. Hence: A) of that which is the source or cause of cruelty: poena, sententia; bellum, consilia: B) = hated for cruelty: crudelissimum nomen tyranni; funus c., mournful.

CRŪDELĪTAS, ātia, f. [crudelis]. Hardness, cruelty, unmercifulness, inhumanity.

CRŪDELĪTER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [crudelis]. Cruelly, in a cruel manner.

CRŪDESCO, —, —, 3. v. intr. [crudus]. (Poet. & lat.) To become worse or more violent, to increase, morbus, ira.

CRŪDITAS, ātis, f. [crudus]. Prop., indigestion; hence, the overloading of the stomach, repletion: of plants = an excess of the nutritive juices.

CRŪDUS, adj. w. comp. [cruur]. 1) (Rar.) Bloody, bleeding, trickling with blood; hence, raw, uncooked: quid tu curas utrum crudum an coctum edim? (cf. sanguineus); c. exta, caro; (poet.) c. vulnus. 2) Undigested, oibus; hence, lectio c., not thoroughly understood or made one's own. 3) Not having digested one's food, having a full stomach, crudi tumidique lavemur. 4) Trop.: A) unripe, pomum; hence (poet.) — a) immature: puella cruda marito, too young for marriage — b) young, fresh, amor: B) (poet.) vigorous, fresh, senectus: C) raw, unwrought, solum, cestus, made of untanned leather; cortex c.; hence, versus c., rough, unpolished; c. homo, who has a rough, hoarse voice: D) hard, rough, unfeeling, cruel, vir, bellum: E) raw = uncultivated.

CRUENTE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [cruentus]. In a bloody manner, cruelly.

CRUENTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [cruur]. 1) To make bloody, to sprinkle or stain with blood, gladium, dextras; trop., haec oratio te lacerat et c. 2) (Lat.) To dye red, vestem; luna se c., appeared blood-red. 3) (Poet.) To stain, to defile, in gen.

CRUENTUS, a, um, adj. w. (lat.) comp. & sup. [cruur]. 1) Bloody, stained with blood, cadaver, gladius, vestis; trop., of the shedding of blood: p. epistola, treating of blood, pax, bringing with it the shedding of blood, victoria, achieved with much blood. 2) Bloodthirsty, cruel, hostis. 3) (Poet.) Blood-red. 4) (Poet.) Stained, polluted.

CRŪMĒNA, ae, f. A purse (generally hanging from the neck); also, trop. = money, purse: non deficiente crumena.

CRUOR, ōris, m. 1) Blood from a wound (opp. to sanguis, 'blood,' in gen): ostendere cruorem inimici quam recentissimum; trop., c. imperii, vital strength, life; sometimes (poet.) = the shedding of blood, murder: avidus cruoris 2) (Lucr.) = Sanguis, blood, in gen.

CRUPPELLARIUS, ii, m. [a Celtic word].
A harness soldier.

CRUPTORICIS VILLA. A place in Northern Germany.

*CRURICRÉPIDA, ae, m. [crus-crepo]. (Pl.)
A whipped-leg; lit., he on whose legs the lashes crack (a designation of a slave).

*CRURIFRAGIUS, ii, m. [crus-frango]. (Pl.)
A broken-leg; lit., he whose legs are likely to be broken (a designation of a slave).

CRUS, ūris, n. The leg, the shin; of plants (lat.), the lower part of the stalk.

CRUSTA, ae, f. 1) The rind, shell, crust, bark of a body, panis, piscium (the scales), ulcerum; c. fluminis, a covering or crust of ice. 2) Inlaid work of plaster or marble, chased or embossed work, stucco on walls or objects of art; trop. = outside show.

CRUSTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [crusta]. (Lat.)
To cover over with a crust or shell, to encrust, domum marmoribus.

*CRUSTOSUS, a, um, adj. [crusta]. (Lat.)
Covered with a hard rind, encrusted.

CRUSTULA, ae, f. [dim. of crusta]. A little crust or shell.

CRUSTULARIUS, ii, m. [crustulum]. (Lat.)
A maker of pastry, a cake-man.

CRUSTULUM, i, n. [dim. of crustum, q. v.].

CRUSTUM, i, n. [crusta]. Pastry.

CRUSTUMERIA, ae, f. } also, Crustumeri,

CRUSTUMERIUM, ii, n. } ōrum, m. pl., and Crustumium, ii, n. An old Sabine town in Latium.

CRUSTUMINUS, a, um, adj. [Crustumeria].
(Poet.) Crustumarian; subst., Crustumini, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Crustumeria.

CRUSTMIUS, a, um, adj. [Crustumium].
(Poet.) = Crustuminus.

CRUX, ūcis, f. 1) A cross: perire in c.; tollere, suffigere in cruce, to crucify; (Com.) as a term of reproach, you rascal! gallows bird! 2) Trop. (mostly Com.), torture, trouble, misery, destruction: abstrahere aliquem in aliquam malam c.; abi in malam c. (also simply in malam c. or in cruce!) go, and be hanged! quae te mala crux agitat? what evil spirit possesses you? mala c., a tormentor.

CRYPTA, ae, f. [= κρυπτή]. (Lat.) A subterranean vault or passage, a cavern, grotto: c. Neapolitana, a grotto near Naples.

CRYPTO-PORTICUS, ūs, f. [κρυπτός-porticus]. (Lat.) A covered passage or hall.

CRYSTALLINUS, a, um, adj. [κρυσταλλίνος]. (Lat.) Made of crystal, crystal; subst., Crystallina, ōrum, n. pl., crystal vases.

CRYSTALLUM, i, n. [κρυστάλλος]. 1) Crystal; (poet.) = things made of crystal. 2) Crystallus, i, f., the precious stone of a ring, in its appearance resembling crystal.

CTESIAS, ae, m. [Κτησίας]. A Greek historian and physician, contemporary with Xenophon.

CTESIPHON, ontis, m. & f. [= Κτησιφών]. 1) M., an Athenian statesman, defended by Demosthenes in his celebrated oration de Corona. 2) F., a town on the eastern shore of the river Tigris.

CUBICULARIS, e, adj. [cubiculum]. Of or belonging to a bed-chamber.

CUBICULARIUS, a, um, adj. = Cubicularis; subst., Cubicularius, ii, m., a chamber-servant, a valet de chambre.

CUBICULUM, i, n. [cubo]. 1) An apartment (esp. one furnished with a 'lectus'), a lodging-room, chamber: minister cubiculi, a servant that waits in the bed-chamber; cubiculo praepositus (Suet.), lord of the bed-chamber. 2) (lat.) An elevated seat for the emperor in the theatre.

CUBILE, is, n. [cubo]. A couch, place of rest, both of men and beasts; trop., c. avaritiae, the abode.

CUBITAL, ālis, n. [cubo]. An elbow-cushion.

CUBITALIS, e, adj. [cubitus]. Prop., pertaining to the elbow; hence, as a measure of length, a cubit or an ell long.

CUBITISSIM, adv. [cubo]. (Pl., doubtful.) Lying down.

CUBITO, āvi, —, 1. v. intr. To lie down often, to be in the habit of lying down, humi.

CUBITUM, i, n., and (rar.) Cubitus, i, m. [cubo]. 1) The elbow; hence = a curvature, bend: c. orae. 2) An ell.

CUBITUS, ūs, m. [cubo]. (Lat.) 1) A lying down. 2) A couch.

CUBO, bui, bitum, 1. v. intr. To lie down (mostly, for the purpose of resting — cf. jaceo, situm esse): c. in lecto, in lectica. In partic.: A) to lie down to sleep, to sleep: abire cubitum, to go to bed: B) to recline at table: C) to lie down sick, to be sick: D) Ustica cubana, gently sloping; also, tecta cubantia, slanting.

CUBUS, i, m. [= κύβης]. (Lat.) 1) A die, cube. 2) A cubic number.

CUCULLUS, i, m. (Lat.) A covering: A) of the head = a hood or cowl fastened to a garment: B) of merchandise, a wrapper.

CUCULUS, i, m. A cuckoo; trop., a term of reproach applied to lazy persons, esp. vine-dressers who put off their pruning till the cuckoo was heard.

CUCUMIS, ūris or is, m. A cucumber.

CUCURBITA, ae, f. 1) A gourd. 2) A cupping-glass (in shape like a gourd).

CUDO, di, sum, 3. v. tr. 1) To strike, to beat, to pound: c. fabas, to beat out, to thresh; trop., istaec in me cudetur faba (Com.), I shall have to suffer for this, I must smart for it. 2) In partic., of metallic objects, to prepare by hammering, to fabricate; and, of money, to coin, to stamp: c. anulum, argentum, aera, to make statues of brass, numos; trop., c. tenebras alicui (Pl.), to cause, to occasion.

CUCUCUMODI, instead of Cujuscujusmōdi, used as an indecl. adj. or indecl. pron. [quisquis-modus]. Of what sort, kind or nature soever.

CŪJAS, ātis, or (uncontracted) Cūjātis, is, interr. pron. [quis]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Of what country or family? from what place?

CŪJUS (also Quojus), a, um, pron. 1) Interr. poss. [quis], whose? belonging to whom? Sometimes with the interrogative 'nam' appended: cujanam vox? 2) Relat. [qui], whose, belonging to whom.

CŪJUSDAM-MŌDI, used as an indecl. adj. [quidam-modus]. (More properly written as two words.) Of a certain kind.

CŪJUS-MŌDI, used as an indecl. adj. or a pron. 1) Interr. [quis], of what kind? 2) Relat. [qui], of such a kind, such as.

CŪJUSQUE-MŌDI, used as an indecl. adj. or indecl. pron. [quisque-modus]. Of what kind or nature soever: cum navibus c. triginta; multa c. proferre; c. genus hominum.

CULCĪTA, ae, f. A bolster, mattress, cushion; trop. (Pl.), gladium culcitam faciam, I will make a pillow of my sword, i. e., will kill myself.

CULCĪTELLA, ae, f. [dim. of culcita]. (Pl.) A small mattress or pillow (used trop.)

CŪLEUS, i, m. } [= κολεός]. 1) A leather CŪLEUM, i, n. } sack or bag for holding wine and other liquids; also, a leather sack in which parricides were drowned. 2) (Ante-cl.) A measure for liquids, containing 20 amphorae.

CŪLEX, Iois, m. A gnat; (Pl.) trop. and f., a term of reproach for a troublesome lover.

CŪLĪNA, ae, f. 1) A kitchen; prob., also of a portable kitchen or hearth. 2) Trop., food, viands: praebere culinam.

CULMEN, Inis, n. [cello]. (Mostly poet. & lat.) The highest point of any thing, the top, summit (not necessarily a pointed, sharpened top—kindred with columnen, columna; cf. cacamen): oc. Alpium; c. summum hominis, the crown of the head; c. tecti, the ridge, top of the roof; trop., c. fortunae, omnium rerum, the summit, culminating point.

CULMUS, i, m. [cello]. A stalk, a stem, esp. a straw of corn or grain (cf. calamus).

CULPA, ae, f. 1) Guilt, blame, fault; hence, more rarely = an offence, error, mistake (not always intentional; freq., also a mere deviation from prudent conduct—cf. delictum, malefictum, etc.): c. delicti, the blame of the offence: c. amicitiae, the guilt of neglected friendship; hoc factum est culpa mea; is est in culpa, he is in fault, he is to blame; so, likewise, invenire aliquem in culpa; ponere aliquem in culpa; to consider any one guilty; culpa est in eo or penea eum, it is his fault; sustinere culpam rei alienius, to bear the blame of any thing; conficere, transferre in aliquem culpam (rei alienius), to lay the blame upon some one; carere culpa, absesse a culpa, to be free from guilt; culpa est in facto meo, non scelus. 2) (Poet.) = Any thing injurious, the cause of a misfortune.

CULPATIO, ōnis, f. [culpo]. (Gell.) A reproach, blame.

CULPATUS, a, um, adj. [culpa]. (Poet. & lat.) Faulty, blameable, worthy of reproach.

CULPATO, 1. v. tr. [intens. of culpo]. (Pl.) To reproach severely.

CULPO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [culpa]. To censure as wrong or faulty, to blame, to disapprove of, to censure, to condemn, aliquem, faciem deae, versus duos; (poet.) c. aquas, to find fault with.

CULTE, adv. w. comp. [cultus]. (Lat.) Elegantly, finely; in partic., of discourse, elegantly, choicely, with ornament.

CULTELLUS, i, m. [dim. of culter]. A small knife.

CULTER, tri, m. (Originally, the coultter of a plough.) A knife of any kind; prov., linquere aliquem sub c., to leave in the greatest peril.

CULTIO, ōnis, f. A tilling: c. agri — v. Agricultio.

CULTOR, ōris, m. [colo]. One who tends or takes care of a thing: 1) a worker, cultivator: c. agrorum, vitis, a planter; c. pecoris, a keeper of, a herdsman. 2) In partic., a husbandman, farmer: liberis c. bello absumptis. 3) An inhabitant, ejus terrae; populus frequens cultoribus. 4) Trop.: A) a friend, supporter: c. bonorum; c. imperii Romani, veritatis; c. amicitiae, a fosterer; c. juvenum, a teacher: B) a worshipper: c. deorum; also, c. deum matris, a priest of Cybele.

CULTRARIUS, ii, m. [culter]. (Lat.) A slayer of a sacrificial victim.

CULTRIX, Iois, f. [culter, colo]. 1) She who tends or takes care of a thing. 2) A (female) inhabitant.

CULTŪRA, ae, f. [colo]. 1) A cultivating, tilling, taking care of, agelli, vitis. 2) Agriculture, husbandry. 3) Trop.: A) intellectual culture, cultivation: philosophia est animi c.: *B) (poet.) c. potentis amici, the courting the favour of.

CULTUS (I.), a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of colo]. 1) Cultivated, tilled, locus, ager. 2) Adorned; ornamented, elegant. 3) Trop., cultivated, fixa.

CULTUS (II.), ūs, m. [colo]. 1) (Rar.) A cultivating, tilling, agrorum, of the fields; but, agriculturalum, by the husbandmen. 2) Nurturing, care, corporis; oves all non possunt sine c. hominum: 3) Trop.: A) cultivation, education: c. sanus; genus hominum malo cultu corruptum, by a bad education: B) an honouring, reverence, deorum: C) freq. = the style of living, manner of life, domestic arrangements, such as house, clothes, and furniture; c. cultus (with a view to the refinement of life, and in opp. to a state of nature — freq., in this sense, opp. to vicius, which = 'food,' 'means of sustenance'): c. hmanus civilisque; c. liberalis, agrestis; regius victus &c.; c. vestitusque: filiorum multus pueritiae c., princely household arrangements for the sons. Hence — a) in a bad sense = luxury, wantonness: c. ac desidia imperatoris — b) (lat.) elegance in style — c) in partic., dress, costume, elegant and splendid clothing (including armour and other ornaments of the person — cf. vestis, amictus): c. militaris, Gabinus.

CULULLUS, i, m. (Poet.) A large drinking-vessel, a bowl.

CULUS, i, m. The fundament.

CUM, prep. w. abl. With, together with, in connexion with: used, 1) to denote accompaniment in general: abii c. illo; esse c. aliquo, together with any one. 2) With words which denote a union, association, combination, &c. 3) With words which denote such action as brings one into friendly or hostile relations with others; as, to negotiate, to treat, to agree, to accord, to fight or strive with: agere, convenire, consentire, pugnare, disputare c. aliquo; facere c. aliquo, to act with some one. 4) In partic., to denote a connexion of one thing with another, together with; hence, a subject connected by means of 'eum' with another substantive has sometimes a plural predicate: dux c. aliquot principibus capiuntur. 5) To denote the point of time with which any thing coincides: c. casu solis venit; exiti c. nunciis, at the same time as the messengers. 6) To denote that which is found with one, with which one is furnished or possessed: porcus c. capite humano; onerariae naves c. commeatu; esse c. telo, to be armed; Romam venire c. febris; esse c. imperio, to have the command. 7) To denote the circumstances, relations, &c., with which any act is connected; as, e. g., its consequences, effects; so that it often expresses an adverbial idea: c. magna calamitate reipublicae id fecit; complexus eum est c. multis lacrimis, amid many tears; c. magno studio id fecit; c. maximo clamore involant; honeste, id est c. virtute, vivere; castra locavit c. gravi edicto, with the proclamation of a strict order; auditi sunt c. silentio; facere aliquid c. cura. In partic.: A) c. diis volentibus, with God's will, in God's name: B) (mostly lat.) c. eo quod or ut (ne), provided that, on or under the condition that, with this restriction. 8) (Poet. & lat.) To denote the means, instrument: mare c. gurgite suo recipit flumen; lingere rem c. linguâ. — N. B. This preposition is annexed to the pers. pron. me, te, se, nobis, vobis, and the relatives quo, qua, quibus; thus, mecum, vobiscum, quibuscum.

CUMAE, Ærum, f. pl. [= Κύμη]. An ancient town of Campania, famed as the residence of the Sibyl.

CUMAEUS, a, um, adj. (Poet.) Of Cumae, Cumæan: Co. anni, as many years as the Cumæan Sibyl lived — a very long time.

CUMĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Cumae]. Of Cumae, Cumæan; subst., A) Cūmāni, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Cumae: B) Cūmānum, i, n. — a) the Cumæan region — b) Cicero's estate near Cumae.

CUMĀTILE, is, m. [κύμα]. (Pl.) A dress of sea-blue colour.

CUMĒRA, ae, f. (Poet.) A corn-box, a bin.

CUMINUM, i, n. Cumin.

*CUMPRIME, adv. [cumprimis]. (Gellius.) Especially.

CUM-PRIMIS, adv. (Rare — more properly written separately.) Especially, particularly.

CUMQUE or CUNQUE (also Quomque), an adv. denoting universality. Soever, ever. 1) Alone (rar., poet.), whenever, whenever, however, howsoever: mihi c. salve rite vocanti: quae demant c. dolorem. 2) Freq., affixed to qui, qualis, quot, ubi, quoties, etc. — v. Quicunque, etc.

CUMULĀTE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [cumulatus]. In full measure, abundantly, fully.

CUMULĀTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of cumulo]. 1) Increased, augmented. 2) Complete, perfect. 3) (Pl.) Filled up, full: c. scelerum.

CUMŪLO, āvi, ātum, i. v. tr. [cumulus]. 1) (Poet. & lat.) To heap, to heap up, to pile up, arenas, arma in acervum; aliud super aliud cumulatur; trop., c. benefacta in aliquem, to heap benefactions upon any one; c. religiones animis, to increase their scruples or apprehensions. 2) To make full by heaping, to fill, to fill up: c. fossas corporibus, altaria donis; trop., c. aliquem voluptatibus, honoribus, to overload; orator omni laude cumulatus, endowed with every excellence, every quality that can win praise; Graecorum natio cumulata est hoc vitio. 3) (As it were, to make a heap larger.) To increase, to augment: c. scelus alio scelere, aes alienum usuria. 4) (As it were, to add a top to a heap, to bring it to a point.) To render perfect or complete: c. gaudium; summum bonum cumulatur ex integritate corporis et ex mentis ratione.

CUMŪLUS, i, n. 1) A heap, a mass piled up high (the ground-thought is that of a raising to a height — cf. acervus and strues): c. armorum, corporum caesorum, arenae; (poet.) of high waves. 2) That which completes a heap, the top, crown; hence = an increase, addition, surplus, overplus: velut c. accedere ad aliquid; accedit magnus c. commendationis tuae, thy commendation which made the matter complete; res accedit in cumulum, is added as the culmination, completion; pro mercedis c., as that which completes the reward; eloquentia cumulum affert illorum, makes their splendid qualities complete.

CUNABŪLA, ōrum, n. pl. [cunae]. A cradle. Hence: A) = a resting-place or couch of young animals; also, a nest: B) a birthplace, earliest.

abode: C) birth, descent: qui non in cumabulis, sed in campo consulens facti, not by their descent.

CUNAE, ārum, f. pl. A cradle; trop. = earliest childhood, the beginning of life.

CUNCTĀBUNDUS, a, um, adj. [cunctor]. Lingerer, loitering, delaying.

CUNCTANS, ntis, adj. with comp. [participle of cunctor]. Lingerer, delaying, slow, dilatory.

CUNCTANTER, adv. w. comp. [cunctans]. With delay, slowly.

CUNCTATIO, ōnis, f. [cunctor]. A lingering, delaying, delay.

CUNCTĀTOR, ōris, m. [cunctor]. A delayer, lingerer, one who always deliberates and never acts; sometimes without blame = a considerate person, one who is slow, but safe. In partic., a surname of the dictator Q. Fabius Maximus.

CUNCTOR, ātus, dep. (also, ante-cl., Cuncto) 1. v. intr. To delay, to linger, to loiter, to hesitate, to deliberate much without coming to a decision (almost always implying censure — cf. moror): bellum Fabius gessit cunctando; c. diutius in vita; rarely, with an infinit., non c. profiteri, I do not hesitate to declare; vos ec. quid faciatis, you are undecided; so, likewise, non c. quin, etc.

CUNCTUS, a, um, adj. [contracted from cunctus]. (Mostly in the plural.) All together or in a body, all, the whole, entire (opp. to dispersi — cf. omnes and universi): c. senatus, orbis terrarum, Gallia; ec. viri capti sunt; ec. cives; ec. maria; cuncta procedunt ei, he succeeds in every thing; (poet. & lat.) cuncti hominum; cuncta terrarum.

*CUNEĀTIM, adv. [cuneus]. In the form of a wedge.

CUNEO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To drive in as a wedge, aliquid; trop., of speech, to force in. 2) To wedge up, to furnish with wedges: lapis c. latera inclinata. 3) To form into the shape of a wedge: terra c. in diversos angulos.

CUNEOĪUS, i, m. [dim. of cuneus]. A little wedge.

CUNEUS, i, m. A wedge: ec. inserere, to drive in wedges; Britannia in cuneum tenuatur (Tac.), is wedge-shaped. Hence: A) a wedge-shaped line of battle, a wedge; and hence, ec. militum, divisions, troops: B) a wedge-shaped row of seats in the theatre: res notuit cunctis ec.: C) the sheathing of the lower part of a ship.

*CUNICŪLOSUS, a, um, adj. [cuniculus]. (Poet.) Full of caverns.

CUNICŪLUS, i, m. [a Hispanic word = cuniculus]. 1) A rabbit. 2) A subterraneous passage, cavity; in partic., in military language, a mine.

CŪPA, ae, f. A tun, vat, butt.

*CŪPĒDIA (I.), or Cuppēdia, ae, f. [kindred with cupio]. Daintiness, lickerishness.

CŪPĒDIA (II.), or Cuppēdia, ōrum, a. pl., and Cūpēdiae, ārum, f. pl. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Dainties, delicacies.

CUPĒDINĀRIUS, ii, m. [cupedia]. (Com. & lat.) One who prepares delicacies, a confectioner.

*CUPES, or Cuppes, ōdis, m. (Ante-cl.) A lover of delicacies, a sweet-tooth.

CŪPIDE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [cupidus]. Eagerly, passionately; in partic. = partially.

CŪPIDINEUS, a, um, adj. [cupido]. (Poet.) Of or pertaining to Cupid.

CŪPIDITAS, ātis, f. [cupidus]. Desire; longing; esp., violent and passionate desire: c. veridendi, pecuniae; coercere omnes ec. In particular: A) = carnal desire, lust: B) greediness of money, covetousness, cupidity: C) of judges, witnesses, &c., inclination to one party, partiality, favour.

CŪPIDO, Inis, f. and (poet.) m. [cupio]. (Accessory form of cupiditas — mostly used by poets and historians, and always in connexion with some object.) An earnest desire, passionate longing, gloriae, urbis condendae (v. Cupiditas). In partic., freq. = sensual desire, lust, passion: c. visae virginis; hence, as a proper name, Cūpido, Inis, m., Cupid, the god of Love = Amor, the son of Venus.

CŪPIDUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [cupio]. Desirous, fond of, passionately longing for, eager: c. bellandi, pacis, auri; * (Pl.) c. auro, for gold; obigit mihi illud cupido optantque, according to my desire and wish; (poet.) cupidus mori, longing to die. In partic.: A) longing from love, enamoured: B) = greedy of money, covetous, avaricious: C) partial: iudex iratus et c.

CŪPIENS, tia, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of cupio]. (Mostly ante-cl. & lat.) Desiring, desirous of, longing for.

CŪPIENTER, adv. [cupiens]. (Ante-cl.) Desirously, eagerly.

CŪPIO, Ivi or ii, Itum, 3. v. tr. 1) To wish, to desire, to long for (denoting inclination and desire, without implying an act of the will or an expression of the wish in thought or words — cf. volo, opto): c. nuptias, novas res; c. emori; c. te tua virtute frui, that you may enjoy; c. perspicui, that it may be seen; (ante-cl. & lat.) with a part., c. te conventum, to speak to you; rarely c. ut, etc. 2) In partic., c. alicui or alicuius causā, to wish every thing for or to one, to be well disposed or favourably inclined to, to interest one's self in one's behalf: quem suā causā cupere ac debere intelligebat, whom he perceived to be attached and obliged to him; cupio omnia quae vis (a polite phrase), your wishes are mine, I am at your service.

CŪPITOR, ōris, m. [cupio]. (Rar., lat.) One who desires or wishes.

CUPRESSETUM, i, n. [cupressus]. A cy press-grove.

CUPRESSEUS, a, um, adj. [cupressus]. Of cypress.

CUPRESSIFER, ōra, ōrum, adj. [cupressus-fero]. (Poet.) Cypress-bearing.

CUPRESSINUS, a, um, adj. [cupressus]. = Cupressus

CUPRESSUS, i, f. (in the abl. sing. sometimes cupressu), also (poet.) Cyparissus, i, f. [= κypapισσος]. The cypress; (poet.) = a box of cypress-wood.

CUR, adv. [from quare; according to others, from cui rei]. Why, wherefore: 1) Relative, duae sunt causae c.; id satis magnum est argumentum c., etc.; non est c., there is no reason why; quid est c.? primum illud reprehendo et accuso, c., etc. 2) Interrogative, c. eum perdis? c. non? quaero c. hoc feceris.

CŪRA, ae, f. [perhaps, kindred with quæro]. 1) Care: A) = sollicitudo, trouble, pains: magna cum c. aliquid facere; curam ponere, consumere, etc., in re aliqua, to bestow: B) with a genitive = administration, management, care or charge of any thing: difficilis est c. rerum alienarum; c. corporis; curam gerere rei alicujus, and (more rar.) de re aliqua, to have the care of. In partic. — a) the management, administration of state-affairs, oversight, charge: c. rerum publicarum, annonae, viarum — b) (poet. & lat.), a literary work, writing — c) (poet.) = a guardian, overseer: C) freq., res mihi curae est, I have a care for, am anxious about; mihi curae est eligere, I am intent upon; also, curae aliquid habere, to pay regard to, to attend to. 2) Sorrow, anxiety, grief: confectus curâ; magna c. et sollicitudo; (Pl.) cura est negotii quid sit, I have some anxiety about the business. In partic., freq. = the care, pain, torment of love, and (poet.) = the beloved person.

*CŪRABILIS, e, adj. [curo]. (Poet.) That is to be feared, causing fear. (By others it is explained differently.)

CŪRALIUM — v. Coralium.

CŪRĀTE, adv. with comp. [curatus]. (Lat.) Carefully.

CŪRĀTIO, ōnis, f. [cura]. A taking care of any thing, care, charge, attendance: c. et administratio rerum; adhibere curationem corporis: quid tibi haec rem curatio est (Pl.), what business have you in this matter? In partic.: A) the management, charge, administration of public affairs: B) the treatment of a disease, the method of cure, remedy.

CŪRĀTOR (old form, Coerator), ōnis, m. [curo]. 1) He who takes care of a thing, a manager, overseer, superintendent: c. negotiorum, Capitolii reficiendi, viae Flaminiae; also, c. muris reficiendis, of the rebuilding of the walls. Hence, c. apum, gallinarum, a keeper. 2) In partic. (poet. & lat.), a guardian (of a minor, imbecile person, &c.).

16

*CŪRĀTŪRA, ae, f. [curo]. (Com.) Management, care, attendance.

CŪRĀTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of curo]. 1) Well-cared for. 2) (Lat.) Careful, anxious.

CURCŪLIO, ōnis, m. A corn-worm, weevil.

*CURCŪLIUNCŪLUS, i, m. [dim. of curculio]. (Pl.) A little weevil; trop. = a trifle, bagatelle.

CŪRENSIS, e, adj. [Cures]. Of or belonging to Cures; subst., Curenses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Cures.

CŪRES, ium, f. pl. 1) The capital of the Sabines. 2) Meton., the inhabitants of Cures.

CŪRETES, tum, m. pl. [= Κουρῆτες]. The priests of Rhea in Crete, who celebrated their festivals with noisy music and martial dances. They were frequently confounded with the Corybantes (q. v.).

CŪRETIS, Idis, adj. f. [Curetes]. Prop., of or pertaining to the Curetes; hence (poet.) = Cretan.

CŪRIA, ae, f. 1) A curia, one of the thirty divisions into which the Roman citizens were distributed by Romulus; afterwards, a division of the patricians. A 'curia' was the tenth part of a 'tribus.' 2) A meeting-place of a curia — a place or building where a curia met, esp. for the performance of divine worship; from which, dies curiae, a festival or joyous day. 3) Hence: A) The senate-house at Rome. There were several 'co.' at Rome, e. g., c. Hostilia; also, in other towns, the building or place where the senate or authorities used to meet: B) the assembly of the senate, the senate: frequens c.

CŪRIĀLIS, e, adj. [curia]. Of or belonging to the same curia; subst., Curialis, is, m., a fellow-citizen of the same curia.

CŪRIĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Curius]. Of or belonging to a Curius, Curian.

CŪRIĀTII, ōrum, m. pl. An Albanian gens residing at Rome, made famous by the contest of the three Curiatii with the three Horatii (686 B. C.).

CŪRIĀTIM, adv. [curia]. By curiae.

CŪRIĀTUS, il, m. The name of a Roman gens.

CŪRIĀTUS, a, um, adj. [curia]. Of or pertaining to the curiae: comitia co., the comitia in which the people voted by curiae (the oldest and originally the only comitia); lex c., a law passed in the comitia curiata.

CŪRIO (I.), ōnis, m. The president or the priest of a curia (q. v.). The president of all the curiae was called C. Maximus.

*CŪRIO (II.), ōnis, m. [cura]. (Pl.) Wasted by sorrow, emaciated (a loosely formed word).

CŪRIO (III.), ōnis, m. A surname in the gens Scribonia; as, C. Scribonius Curio.

CŪRĪOSE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [curiosus]. 1) Carefully; hence = artificially, affectedly. 2) Curiously, inquisitively.

CURIOSITAS, itis, f. [curiosus]. Curiosity, inquisitiveness.

CURIOSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [cara].

1) A) *careful, applying one's self carefully to: c. ad investigandum; ut est ille in omni historia curiosus: *B) ever-careful, taking needless trouble. 2) Eager to learn — a) in a good sense = careful in searching out or inquiring, curious — b) in a bad sense = curious, inquisitive. 3) (Pl.) Emaciated, lean.

CURIS, is, f. [a Sabine word]. A javelin.

CURIUS (I.), a, um, adj. [cura]. (Pl., doubtful reading.) Sorrowful.

CURIUS (II.), ii, m., and Curia, ae, f. The name of a Roman plebeian gens; thus, esp. Manius C. Dentatus, celebrated for his victories over Pyrrhus; and Quintus C., a fellow-conspirator with Catiline.

CURO, avi, atum, 1. v. tr. [cura]. 1) To care for, to take or have care of, to attend to: c. negotia aliena, coenam; c. alicui aliquid, to procure for one (by purchase); (ante-cl. & lat.) c. huic rei; c. ut illud fiat, ne quid ei desit, c. sentiat, make him aware; freq., cura ut valeas! take care of yourself! farewell! In partic.: A) c. aliquid faciendum, to order to be done, to have a thing done; c. naves aedificandas, fratrem interficiendum: B) to take good care of, to attend to, to refresh, corpus, pellem, cutem, se; C) to manage, to administer state-affairs: c. bellum, legiones, to have the command of; also, c. abs. = to command: D) to heal, to cure, aegrum: E) to prepare a corpse for burial: c. cadaver, corpus: F) c. prodigium, omen, to expiate: G) to settle money-affairs, to pay or cause to be paid, alicui pecuniam. 2) To be anxious or concerned about, to be intent upon: c. aliquem, injurias sociorum; c. preces, to grant; de emendo nil curat, he does not think of buying; quae nec docti legere co., don't like to read; quod cures proprium fecisse, you would like to make your property; c. esse quod audio (poet.), to strive; (colloq.), ne cures or aliud (alia) cura, be unconcerned on that account.

CURRICULUM, i, n. [curro]. 1) (Ante-cl.) A running, course: c. celere; facie unum curriculum, make but one run of it; hence the abl. curricula (in comic writers as an adv.), at full speed, speedily. 2) In partic., a running in the circus, a race. 3) A race-ground, course, career; almost always trop., c. vivendi, mentis, variorum sermonum. 4) (Lat.) A chariot at a race; and, a chariot, in gen.

CURRO, cūcurri, cursum, 3. v. intr. To run, per vias, ad aliquem; (poet.) sol c.; rota c.; trop., infula c. per crines, winds; rubor c. per ora, spreads; trop., oratio, versus, numeri oc. flow; prov., currentem incitare or instigare = to urge him on who needs no urging. Sometimes it is connected with a homogeneous accus.: c.

stadium, iter, campum, to run over the plain; trop., eosdem cursus c., to take the same course or the same measures. Hence, of every quick movement, to hasten, to drive, to ride; esp., to sail: mercator c. ad Indos; c. trans mare; (poet.) c. aetas, flies, passes away.

CURRO, CA, ae, f. A hedge-sparrow; trop., a suckold.

CURRUS, ūs, m. 1) *A chariot, car (in gen. — of. planstrum, carpentum, essedum, etc.). In partic. = a triumphal car; and hence, trop. = a triumph: quem ego currum conferam? 2) trop.: A) (poet.) = the horses in a chariot (as, in Homer, αἱ ἵπποι = a chariot): B) a plough, with wheels: C) a vessel, ship.

CURSIM, adv. [curro]. Speedily, swiftly, dicere, currere.

CURSITO, avi, atum, 1. v. intr. [intens. of curso]. (Poet. & lat.) To run frequently, to run to and fro, huc illic, ab aliquo ad aliquem; improperly = to drive a chariot at a race.

CURSO, 1. v. intr. [intens. of curro]. To run to and fro.

CURSOR (I.), ōria, m. [curro]. 1) A runner, a slave who ran before the chariot of a grandee, a forerunner. 2) A courier. 3) A runner in a race, a racer; also (poet.) = a chariot-racer.

CURSOR (II.), ōria, m. A surname of L. Papirius.

CURSURA, ae, f. [curro]. (Ante-cl.) A running.

CURSUS, ūs, m. [curro]. 1) A running: superare aliquem cursu; magno c., in a rapid march. Hence, in gen. = swift motion on horseback, in a chariot, &c.; a course, passage, way, journey, voyage; in partic., the course of a ship: c. solis, stellarum; c. per mare; dirigere c. aliquo, to direct one's course to a place, tenere, to keep the course, to go on in a straightforward direction, opp. to cursu excuti, to be driven out of one's course; expectare cursum, to wait for favourable wind; esse in c., in its course. 2) Trop. = course, way, direction, progress: c. rerum, the course of events; in eodem c. fuimus, in the same circumstances; in eo c. sumus, in this position; c. vivendi, a course of living; c. vitae est brevis, the path; c. continuus procliorum, succession; c. verborum, flow.

CURTIUS (I.), ii, m. The name of a Roman gens; thus, esp. 1) Marcus C., celebrated for his heroic sacrifice of himself (362 B. C.). 2) Quintus C. Rufus, the historiographer of Alexander the Great (A. D. 70).

CURTIUS (II.), a, um, adj. [Curtius I.]. Of Curtius, Curtian: C. lacus, a place at Rome, called after M. Curtius; C. fons, an aqueduct, part of the aqua Claudia.

CURTO, avi, atum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To shorten, to diminish, to mutilate, rem.

CURTUS, a, um, adj. Short = shortened, mulat, vas; Judaei oc., circumcised; trop., incomplete, defective, sententia, res, fortune.

CURULIS, e, adj. [currus]. Of or pertaining to a chariot: triumphus c., in which the general rode on a chariot, opp. to ovatio; equi oc., probably, four horses provided at public expense for the games of the circus; in partic., sella c., a curule chair, chair of state, inlaid with ivory, which was used by the chief magistrates of Rome.

CURVAMEN, inis, n. [curvo]. (Poet.) A bending, bend, curve.

CURVATURA, ae, f. [curvo]. (Poet. & lat.) A bending, curvature: c. rotæ, the rim.

CURVO, avi, âtum, 1. v. tr. [curvus]. (Poet. & lat.) To bend, to curve, cornua, ingentem arcum; trop., preces oc. aliquem, move.

CURVUS, a, um, adj. (Poet.) Crooked, curved, bent (in general — cf. uncus, pandus), rounded, arched, falx, lyra, litus; c. anus, arator, bent, stooping; c. flumen, winding.

*CUSPIDÂTIM, adv. [cuspis]. (Lat.) To a point, with a point.

CUSPIDO, —, âtum, 1. v. tr. [cuspis]. (Lat.) To make pointed, to point.

CUSPIS, idis, f. 1) A point, the pointed end of any thing, hastæ, vomeris. 2) A spear, javelin. 3) Meton.: A) (lat.) = a spit: B) the trident of Neptune: C) the sting of a bee or scorpion.

CUSTODIA, ae, f. [custos]. 1) A watching = oversight, guard, care: c. pastoris; tradere alicui aliquid in custodiam; c. ignis, urbis, navium; agitare c. (Pl.), to keep watch. Hence: A) = the persons keeping watch, a guard, watch: transire non poterat proper oc.: B) = a place of refuge or shelter, a shelter: urbs est c. mea. 2) A watching = custody, confinement (with the idea of restraining personal liberty): tradere alicui custodiam alicujus; c. libera, confinement in one's own house, private custody. Hence: A) a place of custody, a prison: B) (lat.) = captives, prisoners.

CUSTODIO, i, vi or ii, itum, 4. v. tr. [custos]. 1) To watch, to guard, to protect: c. provinciam, corpus domumque; c. templum ab Hannibale; c. pudorem; c. aliquid memoriâ, to keep in memory, literis, to preserve by means of writing; c. modum, to observe, præcepta, to mind, to follow; (lat.) c. ut (ne), to take care that, &c. 2) To hold back, to keep, to preserve, epistolam. 3) To hold captive, to keep in custody.

CUSTODITE, adv. w. comp. [custodia]. (Rar., lat.) Gently.

CUSTOS, ôdis, comm. A guard, watch, overseer: c. corporis, a body-guard; c. portæ, a door-keeper; c. gregis, a shepherd; freq. = a protector, guardian: dii oc. et conservatores hujus urbis; sapientia est c. totius hominis; also, a teacher, overseer of youth: juvenis, custode remoto, gaudet equis; also, of eunuchs; rarely in a hostile sense: te sub o aëvo tenebo; trop. (poet.),

c. telorum, a quiver. In partic., a tech. term in politics, an inspector appointed to prevent fraud in voting.

CUTICULA, ae, f. [dim. of cutis]. A thin skin.

CÛTIS, is, f. [kindred with κόρυς]. The skin (thinner and softer than corium, pellis), mostly of men; trop. — a) curare c. = to pamper the body — b) c. virtutis, eloquentiæ, the surface, external appearance.

CYÂNE, es, f. [= Κυάνη]. A fountain near Syracuse. According to the fable, the nymph C. was changed into this fountain on account of her grief for the abduction of Proserpine.

CYÂNEE, es, f. [= Κυανή]. The daughter of Maeander, and mother of Canus and Byblis.

CYÂNEUS, a, um, adj. [= κυνέος]. (Lat.) Dark-blue; hence, subst., Cyaneæ, ârum, f. pl., two small rocky islands, called also Symplegades, situated at the entrance of the Thracian Bosphorus into the Pontus Euxinus — now Urek-Jaki.

CYÂTHISSO, 1. v. tr. [= κυάθω]. To fill a cup, to draw wine in a cyathus.

CYÂTHUS, i, m. [= κύαθος]. 1) A vessel for drawing wine (egg-shaped, and fastened to a handle), by means of which the wine was drawn from the 'crater,' and poured into the cup; hence, improp. = a cup, goblet. 2) A measure, both for liquids and dry things, the twelfth part of a sextarius.

CYBÆUS, a, um, adj. [κυβη, eupa]. Probably, like a butt or cask, tum-bellied: navis c., or abs., as subst., Cybæa, ae, f., a transport or merchant-ship.

CYBÊLE (or Cÿbêbe), es, f. [= Κυβέλη]. 1) A goddess of Phrygia, and of Asia Minor in gen., usually called Mater Magna, and frequently identified with Rhea and Ops. Her priests were the Corybantes. Her festival was called Megalesia. 2) A mythical mountain in Phrygia.

CYBÊLEIUS, a, um, adj. [Cybele]. Of or pertaining to Cybele.

CYBÏOSACTES, ae, m. [= κυβιοσάκτης]. (Lat.) A dealer in salt fish, a nickname of Ptolemaeus Dionysus, and afterwards of Vespasian.

CYBISTRA, ðrum, n. pl. [= τὰ Κυβίστρα]. A town in Cappadocia.

CYCLADES, dum, f. pl. [= Κυκλάδες]. The Cyclades, a group of islands in the Ægean Sea.

CYCLADATUS, a, um, adj. [cyclos]. (Lat.) Clothed with a cyclos (q. v.)

CYCLAS, âdis, f. [= κυκλᾶς]. Prop. an adj. = circular; hence (so. vestis), a state-robe, with an embroidered border, worn by Roman women (an elegant kind of tunica).

CYCLICUS, a, um, adj. [= κυκλικός, 'pertaining to a circle']. Cyclici ποῖται, Cyclic poets, a name of those Greek epic poets of the time of Homer and immediately after, who treated in their poems of the whole circle of Trojan fables.

CYCLOPIUS, a, um, adj. [= Κυκλωπιος]. Of or belonging to the Cyclopes, Cyclopean.

CYCLOPS, ὄπισ, m. [= Κέκλωψ, 'round-eyed']. A Cyclops. In Homer, the Cyclopes are savage giants, living in Sicily, with but one eye, and that in the middle of the forehead. In Hesiod, they are sons of Uranus and Gæa, who prepare the lightning for Jupiter. Later, they were considered the workmen of Vulcan, living in volcanic mountains, esp. Ætna.

CYCNUS — v. Cygnus.

CYDÄRUM, i, n. [= κύδαρος]. (Gell.) A kind of boat or ship.

CYDIPPE, es, f. [= Κυδίππη]. 1) The mistress of Acontius. 2) A sea-nymph.

CYDON, ὄνις, m. [Cydonia]. An inhabitant of Cydonia.

CYDÖNEUS, a, um, adj. = Cydonius.

CYDÖNIA, ae, f. [= Κυδωνία], or Cydon, ὄνις, f. A town on the northern coast of Crete, now Canea.

CYDÖNIÄTAE, ärum, m. pl. [= Κυδωνιάται]. The inhabitants of Cydonia.

CYDÖNIUS, a, um, adj. [= Κυδώνιος]. Of or pertaining to Cydonia, Cydonian; (poet.) freq. = Cretan.

CYGNÆIUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to the Boeotian Cygnus: Tempe c., situated in Boeotia.

CYGNÆUS, a, um, adj. [= κύκνιος]. Of or pertaining to a swan, vox, pluma.

CYGNUS, i, m. [κύκνος]. 1) A swan; meton., Dircæus c. = Pindar. 2) As a proper name: A) a king of Liguria and relative of Phæthion, who was changed into a swan: B) a son of Neptune and Calyce, likewise changed into a swan: C) a son of Mars, who attacked persons traveling to Delphi, and was slain by Hercules.

CYLINDRUS, i, m. [= κύλινδρος]. A cylinder, roller; also of objects of cylindrical form.

CYLLENE, ës and ae, f. [= Κύλληνη]. 1) A mountain of Arcadia, the birthplace of Mercury, and hence sacred to him. 2) A town in Elis, now Glarentza.

CYLLENEUS, a, um, } adj. = Cyllenius.
CYLLENIS, idis, f. }

CYLLENIUS, a, um, adj. [Cyllene]. Cyllenian: A) of or pertaining to the mountain Cyllene: proles C., or subst., Cyllenius, ii, m. = Mercury: B) of or pertaining to Mercury: proles C. = Cephalus, son of Mercury and Creusa.

CYLON, ὄνις, m. [= Κύλων]. An Athenian, who attempted to make himself master of Athens, but was murdered, together with his companions, at the altar of Athene, 612 B. C.

CYLÖNIUS, a, um, adj. [Cylon]. Cylonian, perpetrated against the companions of Cylon.

CYMBÄ, or Cumba, ae, f. [= Κύμβα]. A boat, skiff.

CYMBÄLUM, i, n. [= κύμβαλον]. A cymbal, a hollow basin-shaped instrument of brass, used (in pairs, one being struck against another)—at the festivals of Cybele and Bacchus, and on other mirthful occasions.

CYMBIUM, ii, n. [= κύμβιον, from κύμβα]. A small drinking-cup.

CYMAEUS, a, um, adj. [Cyme, = Κεμαλος]. Of or belonging to Cyme 1; subst., Cymæi, ðrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Cyme.

CYME, es, f. [= Κέμη]. 1) A town in Æolis, the mother-town of Cumæ. 2) = Cumæ.

CYNAEGIRUS, i, m. [= Κυναιγιρος]. An Athenian, who distinguished himself by his bravery in the battle of Marathon.

CYNICE, adv. [cynicus]. (Pl.) After the manner of the Cynics.

CYNICUS (I.), i, m. [κυνικός, 'dog-like']. A Cynic philosopher, a Cynic.

CYNICUS (II.), a, um, adj. Of or belonging to the Cynics, Cynic.

CYNÖCÉPHÄLUS, i, m. [= κυνοκέφαλος]. An ape with a dog's head.

CYNÖSARGES, is, n. [= Κυνόσαργες]. A gymnasium near Athens.

CYNÖSCÉPHÄLAE, ärum, f. pl. [= Κυνός κεφαλαί, 'the dogs' heads']. Two hills in Thessaly, famed for the victory of Flaminius over Philip of Macedonia (197 B. C.).

CYNÖSÜRA, ae, f. [= Κυνός οὐρά, 'the dog's tail']. The constellation at the north-pole, the Lesser Bear.

CYNÖSÜRAE, ärum, f. pl. [Κυνός οὐρά]. A promontory in Attica.

CYNÖSÜRIS, idis, adj. f. [Cynosura]. Of or pertaining to the Lesser Bear.

CYNTHIA, ae, f. [Cynthus]. 1) The Cynthian = Diana. 2) The name of a maiden.

CYNTHIUS, ii, m. [Cynthus]. The Cynthian = Apollo.

CYNTHUS, i, m. [= Κύνθος]. A mountain in Delos, the birthplace of Apollo and Diana.

CYNUS, i, f. [= Κύνος]. A town and promontory in Opuntian Locris.

CYPARISSIÆ, ärum, f. pl. (Lat.) A kind of fiery meteor.

CYPARISSUS — v. Cupressus.

CYPRIVS (I.) VICUS [from the Sabine word cyprum = bonum]. A street of Rome.

CYPRIVS (II.), a, um, adj. [Cyprus]. Cyprian; hence, subst., A) Cypria, ae, f., the Cyprian = Venus: B) Cyprii, ðrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Cyprus.

CYPRUS, i, f. [Κύπρος]. Cyprus, a rich and fertile island in the Mediterranean Sea.

CYPSÉLIDES, ae, m. [= Κυψελίδης]. A (male) descendant of Cypselus = Periander.

CYPSÉLUS, i, m. [= Κύψελος]. A celebrated tyrant at Corinth.

CYRÉNÆ, ärum, f. pl. = Cyrene.

CYRÉNÆUS, a, um, adj. [Cyrene, = Κυρηναίος]. Of or pertaining to Cyrene; subst., Cy- renes, ὄρυμ, m. pl., 1) the inhabitants of Cyrene; 2) the adherents of the Cyrenaic philosophy.

CYRENAICUS, a, um, adj. [Cyrene = Κυρήνη]. Cyrenaic: provincia C., or abs., as subst., Cyrenaica, ae, f., the territory of Cyrene, the provinces Cyrenaica; Cyrenaici, ὄρυμ, m. pl., 1) the inhabitants of Cyrenaica; 2) the adherents of the Cyrenaic school of philosophy, founded by Aristippus of Cyrene.

CYRENE, es, f., [= Κυρήνη]. 1) A celebrated Grecian colony in North Africa, now Kuren. 2) A nymph, the mother of Aristæus by Apollo.

CYRENENSIS, e, adj. [Cyrene]. Of or belonging to Cyrene.

CYREUS, a, um, adj. [Cyrus]. Of Cyrus (the Architect); subst., Cyrea, ὄρυμ, n. pl., buildings erected by Cyrus.

CYRNEUS, a, um, adj. [Cyrnus]. Cyrnean, or Corsican.

CYRNUS, i, f. [= Κύρνος]. (Poet. & lat.) The island Corsica.

CYRTAEI, or Cyrtii, ὄρυμ, m. pl. [= Κύρτιοι]. A warlike tribe in Persia.

CYRUS, i, m. [= Κύρος]. 1) The founder of the Persian empire. 2) C. minor, brother of Artaxerxes Mnemon, killed in the battle of Cunaxa (401 B. C.). 3) An architect of the time of Cicero.

CYSSUS, i, f. [= Κύσος]. A seaport town of Ionia.

CYTAE, ἄρυμ, f. pl. [= Κυταί]. A town in Colchia, the birthplace of Medea.

CYTAEIS, Idia, f. [= Κυταίς]. The Cytaean woman = Medea.

CYTAEUS, a, um, adj. [= Κυταίος]. Of or belonging to Cytae, Cytaean; freq. (poet.) = Colchian.

CYTHERA, ὄρυμ, n. pl. [= Κύθηρα]. An island south-west of Laconia, sacred to Venus — now Cerigo.

CYTHERRIAS, ἄδια, adj. f. [Cythereia]. Pertaining to Venus, Cytherean.

CYTHERRIS, Idia, f. [Cythera]. The Cytherean = Venus.

CYTHERRIUS, a, um, adj. [Cythera]. Of or belonging to Cythera, Cytherean; usually = sacred to Venus: C. mensis = April; subst., Cythereia, ae, f., the Cytherean = Venus.

CYTHERRUS, a, um, adj. [Cythera]. Of or belonging to Cythera, Cytherean; subst., Cythera, ae, f. = Venus.

CYTHERIACUS, a, um, adj. = Cythereius.

CYTHERIS, Idia, f. [= Κυθήρις]. A concubine of the triumvir Antony, whom Cicero therefore sarcastically calls Cytherius.

CYTHNOS, i, f. [= Κύθνος]. An island in the Aegean Sea, now Thermia.

CYTISUM, i, n. } [= κύτις]. A kind of clover,

CYTISUS, i, f. } snail-clover.

CYTORIACUS, a, um, adj. [Cyturus]. Of Cyturus: poeten a. = made of box-wood.

CYTORUS, i, m. [= Κύτορος]. A mountain in Paphlagonia, abounding in box-wood.

CYZICENUS, a, um, adj. [Cyzicus]. Of or belonging to Cyzicum; subst., Cyziceni, ὄρυμ, m. pl., the inhabitants of Cyzicum.

CYZICUM, i, n. } [= Κυζίκος]. A town in My-
CYZICUS, i, f. } sia, on the Propontis — now Chizico.

DABAR, ἄρις, m. A Numidian, a relative of Masinissa, and an intimate friend of Boochus.

DACI, ὄρυμ, m. pl. [= Δακοί]. The Dacians, the inhabitants of Dacia.

DACIA, ae, f. [= Δακία]. Dacia; a country of Europe, comprising what is now Eastern Hungary, Transylvania, and Wallachia.

DACICUS, a, um, adj. [= Δακικός]. Of or pertaining to Dacia, Dacian.

DACTYLICUS, a, um, adj. [= δακτυλικός]. Dactylic, numerus, pes.

DACTYLUS, i, m. [= δακτύλος, prop., 'a finger']. 1) The dactyl, a metrical foot: - - -. 2) (Lat.): A) a date: B) a kind of shell-fish: C) a kind of grape: D) a precious stone.

DACTYLI IDAEI [Δακτυλοὶ Ἰδαίῳ]. The Dactyls of Mount Ida, fabulous beings, supposed to live in Phrygia, near Mount Ida. Sometimes they were identified with the Corybantes, Curetes, &c.

DAEDALA, ὄρυμ, n. pl. [= Δαίδαλα]. A fortified place in Caria.

DAEDALEUS (poet. Daedālūs), a, um, adj. [= Δαίδαλεος]. Relating to Daedalus, Daedalian: iter D., the way through the labyrinth.

DAEDALION, ὄνις, m. A son of Lucifer, and brother of Ceyx, changed into a hawk.

DAEDALUS (I.), i, m. [= Δαίδαλος]. A celebrated artist of Grecian story, contemporary with Minos and Theseus, and builder of the Cretan labyrinth.

DAEDALUS (II.), a, um, adj. [= δαίδαλος, or δαίδαλος]. Artificial, ingenious, artificially wrought or made.

DAHAE, ἄρυμ, m. pl. A Scythian tribe, beyond the Caspian Sea.

DALMATAE, ἄρυμ, m. pl. [= Δαλματαί]. The Dalmatians, the inhabitants of Dalmatia.

DALMATIA, ae, f. [= Δαλματία]. Dalmatia, a country on the eastern shore of the Adriatic.

DALMATICATUS, a, um, adj. [Dalmatia]. (Lat.) Wearing a Dalmatian dress.

DALMATICUS, a, um, adj. [Dalmatia]. Dalmatian; subst., Dalmaticus, i, m., a surname of L. Metellus, given to him for his victory over the Dalmatians.

DAMA, ae, f. (m. in Virg.). A deer.

DAMALIO, ὄνις, m. [= δάμαλος]. (Lat.) A calf.

DĀMASCENUS, a, um, adj. [Damascus]. Of or belonging to Damascus, Damascene; subst., Damascena, ae, f., the district of Damascus.

DĀMĀSICHTHON, ōnis, m. [= Δαμοσίχθων]. A son of Niobe, killed by Apollo.

DAMASCUS, i, f. [= Δαμασκό]. The capital of Syria, still Damascus.

DĀMĀSIPPUS, i, m. Lucius D., an adherent of Marius, and praetor (82 B.C.), who behaved with great cruelty against the partisans of Sulla, and was finally put to death by Sulla's order.

DAMNAS, adj. indecl. [obsolete, instead of damnatus]. Condemned, sentenced to do any thing; esp., 'd. esto,' followed by an infinit., in ancient law-formulas — v. Damno.

DAMNĀTIO, ōnis, f. [damno]. Condemnation, reorum acerbissimae dd.; d. ambitus, for bribery.

DAMNĀTŌRIUS, a, um, adj. [from the unusual damnator, from damno]. Damnatory, condemnatory, judicium.

DAMNĀTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of damno]. Condemned; hence = worthy to be condemned, reprobate, criminal.

DAMNĪFICUS, a, um, adj. [damnum-]. DAMNĪGERŪLUS, a, um, adj. [facio and -gero]. (Pl.) That causes damage, injurious.

DAMNO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. *I. In gen., to bring loss or damage upon: (Pl.) divites d. atque domare. II. In partic., 1) to condemn to any punishment, esp. to the payment of a fine; hence, in general, to condemn, to sentence, to declare guilty: d. reum; d. aliquem furti, of theft, ambitus, also crimine ambitus and illo crimine; d. aliquem de maiestate, de vi. The punishment is put in the abl.; as, d. aliquem capite, pecuniā, or in the gen., capitis, pecuniae; or it is expressed by a prep., ad bestias, in metalla; (rar.) causa iudicata et damnata, in which the defendant has been condemned. Hence: A) in a non-legal sense, to declare one guilty of, to reproach one for any thing: d. aliquem stultitiae: B) (poet.) to condemn to any thing = to doom, to devote, aliquem morti: C) to reject, to disapprove, ea quae non intelligas. 2) To bind or oblige one to any thing — a) by a will: damnatus aliquid dare — b) damnare aliquem voti (rar. voto), to lay one under an obligation to fulfil his vow, i. e., by granting his prayer: pass., damnari voti, to be bound to fulfil a vow. 3) (Rar.) Of an accuser, to effect the condemnation of a person: is eum sua lege damnavit.

DAMNŌSE, adv. [damnosus]. (Pl.) With loss or damage: d. bibere, to the injury of the host.

DAMNŌSUS, a, um, adj. [damnum]. 1) That causes loss or damage, injurious, libido, bellum; Venus d., causing many expenses. *2) (Pl.) Suffering loss or damage, unfortunate, ruined. 3) (Poet. & lat.) That ruins himself, prodigal.

DAMNUM, i, n. 1) Loss, damage (esp. of fortune, but from one's own fault — cf. detrimentum): accipere, facere, contrahere d., to suffer loss; damno duarum cohortium, with the loss of two cohorts. Hence (poet.): A) that which is lost: volat circa dd. sua: B) the person who causes a loss (of a concubine). 2) In particular, tech. term, a fine, penalty.

DĀMOCLES, is, m. [= Δαμοκλῆς]. A courtier at the court of Dionysius of Syracuse.

DĀMON, ōnis, m. [= Δάμων]. A Pythagorean, a friend of Phintias. 2) A celebrated Athenian musician, teacher of Socrates.

DĀNAĒ, es, f. [= Δανάη]. A daughter of Acrisius and mother of Perseus by Jupiter, who visited her in a shower of gold.

DĀNĀĒIUS, a, um, adj. [Danaē]. Of or belonging to Danaē, Danaean: Persis D., because Perseus was sometimes considered the ancestor of the Persians.

DĀNĀIDAE, ārum, m. pl. [Danaus = Δαναΐδαι]. (Lat.) The Danaids or Greeks.

DĀNĀIDES, um, f. pl. [Danaus = Δαναΐδες]. The daughters of Danaus (q. v.), the Danaides.

DĀNAŪS (I.), i, m. [= Δαναός]. A son of Belus and brother of Ægyptus. He fled with his fifty daughters to Argos, where he founded a colony. His daughters were sought in marriage by the fifty sons of Ægyptus, but by order of Danaus, each one (Hypermnestra only excepted) put her husband to death.

DĀNĀŪS (II.), a, um, adj. [Danaus I.]. Of or belonging to Danaus: hence (poet.) = Greek; subst., Danai, ōrum, m. pl. [= Δαναοί], the Danai = the Greeks.

DANDĀRI, ōrum, m. pl. [= Δανδάριοι]. A Scythian tribe on the north coast of the Black Sea.

DANDĀRICA, ae, f. The country of the Dandari.

DANDĀRIDAE, ārum, m. pl. (Tac.) = Dandari.

DĀNISTA, ae, m. [= δανιστής]. (Pl.) A money-lender, an usurer.

DĀNISTICUS, a, um, adj. [= δανιστικός] (Pl.) Of or pertaining to an usurer.

DĀNŪBIUS, ii, m. [= Δανούβιος]. The Danube.

DAPHNE, es, f. [= Δάφνη]. A daughter of the river-god Peneus, beloved by Apollo, but changed by him into a laurel-tree. 2) A village in Syria, sacred to Apollo.

DAPHNENSES, ium, m. pl. [Daphne]. The inhabitants of the village Daphne.

DAPHNIS, idis, m. [= Δάφνις]. A beautiful young shepherd in Sicily, son of Mercury and a nymph, the inventor of the Sicilian pastoral song.

DĀPINO, 1. v. tr. [daps]. (Pl.) To serve up.

DAPS, dāpis, f. [related to δάφνη]. (Mostly poet., and almost always in the pl.) 1) A sacrificial feast, a banquet on a religious occasion. 2) In gen., a stately and splendid banquet, food, meat

DAPSILE, adv. [dapsilis]. Sumptuously.

DAPSILIS, a, adj. [δαψιλης; daps]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Abundant, sumptuous, sumptus, lectus.

DAPSILITER, adv. [dapsilis]. (Lat.) Abundantly, sumptuously.

DARDANI, ōrum, m. pl. [= Δάρδανος]. The inhabitants of Dardania, the Dardanians.

DARDANIA, ae, f. [= Δαρδανία]. 1) A town on the Hellespont, founded by Dardanus, whence the name Dardanelles. 2) (Poet.) = Troy. 3) A district of Upper Moesia, the modern Servia.

DARDANIDES, ae, m. [= Δαρδανίδης]. A (male) descendant of Dardanus; in partic. = Æneas; in the pl. = the Trojans; also, as an adj. = Trojan: pastores D.

DARDANIS, Idis, f. [= Δαρδανίς]. A (female) descendant of Dardanus = a Trojan woman; esp. = Creusa.

DARDANIUS, a, um, adj. [= Δαρδάνιος]. Of or belonging to Dardanus, Dardanian: freq. = Trojan.

DARDANUS (I.), i, m. [= Δάρδανος]. 1) A son of Jupiter and Electra, the founder of the Trojan dynasty, and, through Æneas, the ancestor of the Romans. 2) A stoic philosopher.

DARDANUS (II.), a, um, adj. [Dardanus I.]. Of or belonging to Dardanus, Dardanian; often = Trojan.

DARES, ëtis, m. [= Δάρης]. 1) A companion of Æneas. 2) D. Phrygius, a later Greek writer.

DARĒUS (more correct than Dārius), i, m. [= Δαρῖος]. The name of three Persian kings: 1) Dareus I., a son of Hystaspes (521–485 B.C.). 2) Dareus II., Nothus or Ochus, father of Cyrus and Artaxerxes (425–405 B.C.). 3) Dareus III., Codomannus (336–330 B.C.), conquered by Alexander the Great, and murdered by Bessus.

DATĀMES, is, m. [= Δατῆς]. A Persian general under Artaxerxes and Darius II.

DĀTĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [do]. (Pl.) That may be given.

DĀTĀTIM, adv. [do]. (Ante-cl.) Giving reciprocally: pilā ludere d., to play at ball.

DĀTIO, ōnis, f. [do]. (Rar.) 1) A giving, signi, legum. 2) The right of giving, of alienating property: d. est tibi.

DĀTIS, Idis, m. [= Δάρις]. A general in the service of the Persian king Darius Hystaspes.

DĀTIVUS, a, um, adj. [do]. (Lat.) Casus, or simply d., the dative.

DĀTO, āvi, ātum, i. v. tr. [intens. of do]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To give, to give away, rem.

DĀTOR, ōris, m. [do]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A giver; in playing ball, a slave who handed the ball to the player — cf. factor.

DĀTUS, ūs, m. [do]. (Pl.) A giving.

DAULIAS, ēdis, adj. f. [= Δαυλίας]. Of Daulis, Daullian: D. ales, also abs. Daulias = Procne; Dd. puellae = Procne and Philomela.

DAULIS (I.), Idis, f. [= Δαυλίας]. A town in Phocis, now Daulia.

DAULIS (II.), Idis, adj. f. [Daulis I.]. Of Daulis, Daullian.

DAULIUS, a, um, adj. [= Δαυλίος]. Of Daulis, Daullian.

DAUNI, ōrum, m. pl. [Daunias]. The inhabitants of Apulia Daunia.

DAUNIAS, ēdis, f. [= Δαυλία]. Daunia, the northern part of Apulia; also = Apulia, in gen.

DAUNIUS, a, um, adj. [= Δαύνιος]. Of or belonging to Daunus, Daunian.

DAUNUS, i, m. [= Δαῦνος]. A son of Pilumnus and Danaë, father of Turnus, father-in-law of Diomedes, and, according to the myth, king of a part of Apulia, called after him Apulia Daunia.

DĒ, prep. with the abl. It denotes, a going away, departure from a point (cf. ab and ex). From, away from: 1) of space — from, away from: anulum detrahere de digito; dejicere se de muro. Hence, used: A) with words denoting a going or taking away, separating, &c. — emere, quaerere, etc., aliquid de aliquo; so, likewise, audire de aliquo; vox exaudita de domo, from the house: B) to indicate the place from which, as a customary abode, any thing is brought or any person comes — from: caupo de via Latina; homo de schola; nescio qui de circo, an athlete; hence (poet.), to denote origin, genetrix mihi est de Priami gente: C) to denote the point from which any action proceeds or any thing is done — de tribunali eum citari jussit; agere aliquid de insidiis, from an ambush; onus pendit de collo viri, from the neck. 2) Of time: A) to denote a point of time after which a thing immediately follows — immediately after: non bonus est somnus de prandio, sleep is not good right after dinner; hence, diem de die, from day to day: B) esp. in connection with nocte, vigilia, rarely die, mense, to denote the point of time from which any thing commences; hence, sometimes, to indicate the time about or at which any thing happens — de tertia vigilia profectus est; latrones surgunt de nocte, at night; potare de die, in broad daylight. 3) To indicate the whole from which any thing is taken as a part — from: de decem fundis tres nobilissimi; poëta de populo. Hence: A) as a circumlocution for a gen.: aliquam partem de istius impudentia reticebo; cetera de genere hoc: B) to indicate the means out of which an expense is met — from: dare, etc., de suo, alieno, from another's property: C) to indicate the material from which any thing is made — from: signum factum de marmore; so, likewise, carcer de templo fit. 4) To indicate the cause or reason of any thing — from: hæc de causa: (poet.) mater est de me, from me. 5) To indicate the rule — according to, after: de mea sententia; de meo consilio, exemplo. 6) To denote the subject of one's action, thought, or discourse — of, concerning: loqui de re aliqua. Hence = with respect to, relating to, with regard to: fidem servare de re; de Dionysio admiratus sum; de me autem suscipe paulisper meas partes. 7) With an adj., to form adverbial expressions — de integro, de improvviso (q. v.).

DEA, ae, f. A goddess; (poet.) dd. triplices, the Fates; but, dd. triplices poenarum, the Furies; d. sidera, Night; dd. novem, the Muses.

DE-ALBO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To white-wash, columnas (v. Fidelity).

DEAMBULATIO, ōnis, f. [deambulo]. (Com.) A walking, a walk, promenade.

DEAMBULATORIUM, i, n. [deambulo]. (Lat.) a covered place for walking.

*DE-AMBULO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. To take a walk, to take an airing.

DE-AMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Com.) 1) To love passionately, aliquam; also, d. aliquid, to be much pleased with a thing. *2) To be exceedingly obliged to any one.

DE-ARMO, 1. v. tr. To disarm, exercitum.

DE-ARTUO, 1. v. tr. [artus]. (Pl.) Prop., to rend limb by limb; trop. = to ruin, aliquem.

DE-ASCIO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [ascia]. (Pl.) Prop., to make smooth with a trowel; trop., to cheat, to chouse, to ruin by deceit, senem.

DE-AURATUS, a, um, adj. (Lat.) Gilded.

DE-BACCHOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. (Poet.) To rave to exhaustion; also, to rage, ignis.

DEBELLATOR, ōris, m. [debello]. (Poet.) A conqueror.

DE-BELLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to bring a war to an end, to finish a war, cum aliquo; freq. impers. 2) Tr. (poet. & lat.): A) to fight out, rixam; B) to conquer completely, to vanquish, aliquem.

DEBEO, ui, itum, 2. v. tr. [de-habeo, 'to have from one']. 1) To owe money or its value, alicui pecuniam, frumentum; prov., animam debere (Com.), to be over head and ears in debt. Hence (poet.), of things which are decreed by fate or which are the subject of an obligation: regnum Italiae ei debetur, is destined for him; fati debitus, devoted to death; d. alicui ludibrium, to become the sport of. 2) To owe, in gen.: d. alicui gratiam, patriae hoc munus; d. opus (of a workman); communis fides quae omnibus debetur. 3) With an infinit., to be obliged to do a thing, I ought to, I must (of a moral necessity, a duty — only in the poets — sometimes = necesse est, of an external necessity; as, cibus d. omnia integrare): d. hoc facere; d. condemnari. 4) To owe = to be indebted or under obligation to one, to have to thank one for something: d. ei hanc laudem, salutem illi. Hence, abs., to be indebted or under obligation to one, alicui or alicujus causa (cf. Cupio 2).

DEBILIS, adj. with comp. [de-habilis, 'deprived of flexibility']. Maimed, disabled, frail, weak (of physical strength; of mind, trop. only — cf. imbecillis): d. senex, manus; debilis pede; trop., d. hac parte amini; praetura manca atque d., crippled and powerless.

DEBILITAS, ātis, f. [debilis]. Lameeness, debility, weakness, infirmity.

DEBILITATIO, ōnis, f. [debilito]. A laming, debilitating, mutilating.

DEBILITO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [debilis]. 1) To lame, to debilitate, to disable, to weaken, to impair, aliquem, membra alicujus; (poet.) hiems d. mare, breaks the waves against the rocks. 2) Trop., to discourage, to cast down: homo afflictus, debilitatus, moerens; d. animum, spem alicujus.

DEBITIO, ōnis, f. [debeo]. (Rar.) An owing, pecuniae.

DEBITOR, ōr, ōris, m. [debeo]. 1) A debtor. 2) (Poet. & lat.) One who is indebted to another for something.

DEBITUM, i, n. [part. of debeo]. 1) A debt: solvere d. 2) (Lat.) An obligation.

DE-BLĀTERO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl.) To blab out, alicui aliquid.

DE-CANTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To chant = to recite singing, miserabiles elegos; usually with the idea of trite and worn out = to repeat often, to say over and over again: d. pervulgata praecepta, omnes causas. 2) Abs., to sing to the end; hence, to leave off singing: jam dd.

DE-CEDO, cessi, cessum, 3. v. intr. 1) To go away, to depart: ex Italia, de altera parte agri; d. Numidiā. In partic.: A) in military lang., to withdraw, to march off, de colle; B) tech. t., of magistrates, to retire from a province on the expiration of a term of office: d. ex or de provincia, and simply d. provinciā; d. Romam ad triumphum; C) trop., to depart, to deviate from; to yield, to give up: d. de meis bonis, de jure meo; d. jure meo, officio; rarely, d. a superioribus decretis; D) d. de via, to deviate from the right way. 2) D. de via (also simply viā or in via) alicui: to go out of the way of anyone (from respect or abhorrence. Hence, trop. (poet.) = to give place, to yield, alicui; mella non dd. Hymetto, is not inferior to. 3) To vanish: A) of living beings = to die: B) of inanimate objects, to depart = to cease, to disappear, to be lost, to abate: nobis timor d.; tantum virium tibi d., you lose; so, likewise, aliquantum honoris iis d.: aestus, febris, invidia d.; cura d. patribus. 4) (Lat.) = Cedo: to turn out, to result: res prospere d.

DECĒLEA (or Dēōlla), ae, f. [= Δεκλία]. A small place in Attica, now Koriokleides.

DECĒM, pl. adj., card. numb., indecl. [= δέκα]. Ten; in particular, d. primi (sometimes written Decemprimi), the ten chief magistrates in the municipalities and colonies.

DECEMBER, bris, adj. Pertaining to the tenth (i. e., last) month of the Roman year (the year commencing originally with the first of March); afterwards = pertaining to the twelfth month; d. mensis, or freq. abs. d. = the month December; so, likewise, Kalendae, Nonae, Idus Decembres.

DECEMJUGIS, e, adj. [decem-jugum]. (Lat.) Ten-yoked; used as a subst. m. (sc. currus), a ten-horse chariot.

DECEMPEDA, ae, f. [decem-pes]. A measuring-rod ten feet long (a field-measure).

DECEMPEDATOR, ōris, m. [decempeda]. A land-surveyor.

DECEMPLEX, Icis, adj. [decem-plico]. Tenfold.

DECEM-SCALMUS, a, um, adj. Having ten throws (for the oars).

DECEM-VIR, i, m. A decemvir, member of a college of ten; freq., in the pl., the decemvirs.

DECEMVIRĀLIS, e, adj. [decemvir]. Of or belonging to the decemviri, decemviral.

DECEMVIRĀTUS, ūs, m. [decemvir]. The rank or office of a decemvir, the decemvirate.

DECENNIS, e, adj. [decem-annus]. (Lat.) Of ten years, decennial, obseidio, bellum.

DECENS, tis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of decet]. 1) Becoming, decent, proper, amictus, ornatus. 2) Handsome, well-shaped, lovely, facies, homo, Gratiae.

DECENTER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [decens]. Becomingly, decently, properly.

DECENTIA, ae, f. [decens]. Comeliness, decency, grace.

DECEPTOR, ōris, m. [decipio]. (Sen.) A deceiver.

DECĒRIS, Idia, f. [decēris]. (Lat., doubtful reading.) A ten-oared ship (i. e., having ten banks of oars).

DE-CERNO, crēvi, crētum, 3. v. tr. 1) Tech. term, of a judge, magistrate, in partic. of the senate, in gen. of any one in authority — to decide, to determine or order by a decree: Verres jam inter eos decreverat; senatus d. provinciam alicui, confers; thus, likewise, d. alicui honores, status, decrees as a reward; d. supplicium esse sumendum. Hence: A) to declare by a decree: senatus d., mea operā patefactam esse conjunctionem: B) of a single senator, to take part in framing a decree, to vote for, to pronounce in favour of: Crassus tres legatos d.; is d. Lentulum in vincula esse conjiciendum. 2) To decide, to determine, to settle, in gen., rem dubiam. Hence: A) = to judge, to take for certain: d. duo talenta esse satis; here belongs d. aliquid esse faciendum = d. aliquid facere (acc. to No. 4): B) = to assert: purgare ea quae inimici dd. 3) To decide by fighting: A) d. pugnam, proelium, rarely d. de bello: to decide to bring to a decisive issue: B) intr., to decide a contest, to fight decisively; sometimes = to fight, to contend, in gen.: d. arma, acie; dd. cornibus inter se.

Freq., of a legal contest: d. uno judicio de omnibus fortunis; expetenda magis est decernendi ratio (a decision by arguments), quam decernendi fortitudo. 4) Freq., with reference to one's own action, to decide, to determine, to make up one's mind: d. aliquid facere; certum atque decretum est, it is resolved.

DECERPO, psi, ptum, 3. v. tr. [de-carpo].

1) To pluck off, to crop, poma, flores. 2) In gen., to take away, to take from: animus humanus ex mente divina decerptus. Hence, trop. (lat.): A) = to enjoy, fructum ex re aliqua: B) to destroy, tantas spes.

DECERTATIO, ōnis, f. [decerto]. A decision by battle, omnium rerum.

DE-CERTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. To fight a decisive contest, to bring about a decision by means of arms; hence, in gen., to fight, to contend: d. proelio; thus, likewise, manu, ferro; d. cum aliquo; trop., of a legal contest, race, &c.

DECESSIO, ōnis, f. [decedo]. 1) A going away, leaving, departure, esp. of a magistrate from his province. 2) A going away = a decreasing, diminution: d. de summa; d. capitis. 3) (Lat.) D. verborum, a transition from one signification to another.

DECESSOR, ōris, m. [decedo]. Prop., he who goes away; hence, a predecessor in office, esp. in the government of a province.

DECESSUS, ūs, m. [decedo]. = Decessio. D. aestus, the ebb; d. amicorum = the death.

DECET, cuit, —, 2. v. intr., used in the third pers. sing. and (more rarely) in the pl. Of physical objects = to become, to be comely; also of abstract objects and in a moral sense = it behoves, is fitting, suitable, proper: haec vestis me d.; te lanæ dd.; videre quid deceat; oratorem minime irasci d.; d. illud facere; ita ut vos d.; (ante-cl. & rar.) with the dat.: d. vobis.

DECETIA, ae, f. A town of the Aedui in Celtic Gaul, now Decize.

DECLĀNUS (I.), a, um, adj. [Decius]. Of or pertaining to a Decius, exercitus.

DECLĀNUS (II.), i, m. A Roman surname; as, C. Appuleius D.

DECLĀTES, um, m. pl. A Ligurian people.

DECIDIUS, ii, m. A Roman proper name; as, L. Decidius Saxa, an adherent of Caesar.

DECIDO (I.), Idi, —, 3. v. intr. [de-cado]. To fall down, ex equo in terram. Hence: A) in partic. (poet.) = to fall in battle, to dis: B) trop. — a) d. a or de spe, and simply d. spe, to be deceived or disappointed in one's hope — b) d. in fraudem = to be misled into a bad action; d. ad angustias rei familiaris, to get into pecuniary difficulties — c) to fall = to be ruined: d. perfidia amicorum — d) (poet.) d. pectore alicujus, to vanish from the heart of one = to be entirely forgotten.

DECIDO (II.), Idi, Isum, 3. v. tr. [de-caedo].

2) To cut off, collum, aures; trop. (Pl.) d. tragulam = to repel an attack. 3) Trop., to decide, to end, to settle, rem, negotia, quaestionem. Hence, abs. = to decide a dispute, to make an agreement, to come to terms, cum aliquo; d. ternis modiminis in jugera singula, to compound at three m. an acre.

DECIDUUS (I.), a, um, adj. [decido I.]. That falls down or off, deciduous, folia; sidera dd., shooting, falling stars.

DECIDUUS (II.), a, um, adj. [decido II.]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Cut or lepped off, frons.

DECIES, adv. num. [decem]. Ten times.

DECIMA, ae, f. [decimus]. The goddess of Child-birth.

DECIMANUS, or DECUMANUS, a, um, adj. [decimo]. Of or belonging to the tenth part: 1) of or pertaining to tithes (as a tax): ager d., of the produce of which a tithe is given; frumentum d., tithe-corn. Hence, subst., Decimanus, i, m., a farmer of tithes, and (probably jocosely) Decimana, ae, f., the wife of a tithe-farmer. 2): A) of or pertaining to the tenth cohort, milites: porta d., the principal gate of the Roman camp, placed farthest from the enemy (probably because the tenth cohorts of the legions were quartered there): B) (rar.) of or pertaining to the tenth legion, milites. 3) (Ante-cl.) = Exceedingly great.

DECIMATIO, ōnis, f. [decimo]. (Lat.) A decimating, a taking by lot every tenth man for punishment.

DECIMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [decimus]. (Lat.) To decimate, to select by lot every tenth man for (capital) punishment.

DECIMUS (I.), older form DECĪmus, a, um, adj. num. ord. 1) The tenth. Hence: A) Decimum, adv., the tenth time: B) Decuma (rarely Decima), ae, f. (sc. pars), the tenth part, tithe — a) as an offering to the gods — b) as a largess to the people: prandia in semitis decumae nomine — c) as a tax, mostly in the pl., one-tenth of corn, one-fifth of other fruits of the earth — d) as a hereditary portion. 2) Considerable, large, undae.

DECIMUS (II.), i, m. A Roman praenomen.

DECIPIO, cēpi, ceptum, 3. v. tr. [de-capio]. Prop., to take or catch away; to beguile, to deceive, to delude, aliquem; deceptus aliqua re, per aliquid, in prima spe. Hence (poet.) — a) = fallo, to escape one's notice: vitia amicae amatores dd.; insidiae a tergo dd., was not noticed — b) decipi laborum, to forget one's troubles — c) d. diem, noctem, to make pass away unnoticed.

DECISIO, ōnis, f. [decido]. A decision, agreement, settlement.

DECIVS, ii, m., and DECIA, ae, f. The name of a Roman gens: thus, esp. the two Decii, father and son: 1) P. D. Mus, the father, consul 340 B.C., who devoted himself to death in the war against the Latins; and, 2) P. D. Mus, the son, consul 293 B.C., who sacrificed his life in the war against the Samnites.

DECLAMATIO, ōnis, f. [declamo]. 1) Abstr., Exercise in speaking, practice in oratorical delivery, declamation. 2) Concr.: A) a speech written by a pupil, as an exercise to be corrected by a teacher; or, a speech written by a teacher, to serve the pupil as a model: B) a subject for declamation, a theme. 3) Loud and vehement talking, bawling: contendere vulgari d.

DECLAMATIUNCULA, ae, f. [dim. of declamatio]. (Lat.) A short declamation.

DECLAMATOR, ōris, m. [declamo]. One who practices speaking, a declaimer.

DECLAMATORIVS, a, um, adj. [declamator]. Of or belonging to declamation, declamatory.

DECLAMITO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. = a strengthened Declamo, q. v.

DECLAMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. 1) To exercise one's self in rhetorical delivery, to practise speaking, to declaim (v. Declamatio): Demosthenes ad fluctum declamare solebat; rar. tr., d. causas, to plead for the sake of practice. 2) Intr., of an orator, to speak loudly and vehemently, to bawl, to declaim: vehementer d. contra aliquem.

DECLARATIO, ōnis, f. [declaro]. A disclosure, declaration, exposition: d. animi tui; d. amoris.

*DECLARATOR, ōris, m. [declaro]. (Lat.) One who makes known, an announcer.

DECLARO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To make clear, evident, or visible, to show, to point out, navem aliqui; trop., to manifest, to make known, to disclose; esp., by words = to declare: d. aliquid, (epistola) d. summam benevolentiam; hoc verbum Latine idem d., has the same meaning; hoc declarat, merito eum illud fecisse and quanti me facias. 2) Tech. term, at the election of a magistrate, to declare publicly, to proclaim, aliquem consulem.

DECLINATIO, ōnis, f. [declino]. 1) A bending, turning, inclining, corporis; hence = a turning out of the proper direction. In partic. = the inclination of the earth towards the poles; hence = a region, climate. 2) Trop., a turning of one's self away from something; hence, a disinclination, aversion, an avoiding, shunning: d. laboris. 3) In rhetoric, a deviation from the subject. 4) In grammar, tech. t.: A) an inflection, any change in the form of a word, e. g., declension, conjugation, comparison, &c.: B) (lat.) declension.

DECLINO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. [κλίνω]. I. Tr. — 1) To turn aside or away, to bend away, i. e., from the right direction or path, agmen inde, se extra viam; (poet.) d. lumina somno, to bend down, to close. Hence, trop.: A) to bend or turn one from any thing: mulier declinata ab aliorum ingenio, deviating; d. verborum figuras; aetas declinata, declining age: B) in grammar, tech. term, to change the form of a word, to inflect (v. Declinatio). 2) To turn from = to shun, to avoid, vitia, invidiam. II. Intr., to turn or go away, to deviate, de via; esp., in Cicero, of the oblique motion or divergence of atoms from a right line: trop., d. a proposito, a religione offendi; oratio inde d., digresses; d. in pejus; bellum d. in Italiam, turns towards Italy.

DECLIVIS, e, adj. [de-clivus]. Bending downward, sloping, slanting (as seen from above — cf. acclivis), locus, collis; subst., Declive, ia, or, in the pl. Declivia, ōrum, n., a sloping place, declivity.

DECLIVITAS, ātis, f. [declivis]. A sloping or slanting place, a declivity.

DECOCTA, ae, f. (sc. aqua) [decoquo]. (Lat.) An iced beverage, invented by Nero.

DECOCTOR, ōris, m. [decoquo]. Prop., one who boils down; trop., a squanderer, spendthrift, bankrupt.

DECOCTUM, i, n. [decoquo]. (Lat.) A decoction, as a medicine.

DECOCTUS, ūs, m. [decoquō]. (Lat.) Only in the abl. sing., a boiling down.

DECOLLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [collum]. (Lat.) To behead, aliquem.

DE-COLO, āvi, —, 1. v. intr. (Ante-cl.) Prop., to trickle through, to ooze out; trop., to fall, to come to nought, spes.

DE-COLOR, ōris, adj. (Poet. & lat.) That has lost its natural colour, discoloured, defaced: Rheneus d. sanguine, stained; Indus d., sunburnt; (poet.) degenerate, corrupt, aetas.

DECOLORATIO, ōnis, f. [decoloro]. A discolouring.

DE-COLORO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To deprive a thing of its natural colour, to discolour, to deface, to disfigure: caedes d. mare; trop., to stain, to soil.

DE-CONDO, 3. v. tr. (Lat.) To hide away, to bury, alios in ventrem belluae.

DE-CŪQUO, xi, ctum, 3. v. t. 1) To boil, to seethe, to decoct, olus; trop., suavitates decocta (of discourse), a mellow, luscious sweetness. 2) To boil down or away, to diminish or consume by boiling: d. aquam in quartam partem; pars quarta argenti decocta erat, was lost by melting, was melted away. 3) Trop. — a) to consume, to use up, materiam — b) abs., to waste one's fortune = to become bankrupt.

DECOR, ōris, m. [deceat]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Comeliness, decency, seemliness, grace: ovis sua lana decori est, is an ornament; est et in incessu pars non temnenda decoris, even in walking there are points of gracefulness not to be disregarded. 2) Beauty, charms: dare alluci suum d.

DECORE, adv. [decorus]. 1) Becomingly, suitably, befittingly. 2) Handsomely, gracefully.

DECORO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [decus]. 1) To adorn, to embellish, to decorate, urbem monumentis, templa novo saxo. 2) Trop., to glorify, to honour, to distinguish, rempublicam, aliquem honoribus maximis.

DECORUS, a, um, adj. [decor]. 1) Becoming, seemly, suitable, decorous: ducibus tum decorum erat ipsis pugnam capessere; res ad ornatum decora. Hence, subst., Decorum, i, n., that which is becoming, seemliness, fitness, decorum. 2) (Mostly poet. & lat.) Graceful, stately, beautiful, charming; hence, decorus re aliqua, adorned with something.

DECREMENTUM, i, n. [decreasco]. (Lat.) A decrease, diminution.

DECREPITUS, a, um, adj. Very old, decrepit, senex, bestiola.

DE-CRESCO, crēvi, crētum, 3. v. intr. To decrease, to diminish, to become smaller: luna d.; aequora, greges dd.: oratio d. ad levissima, descends; (poet.) cornua dd. = disappear.

DECRETORIUS, a, um, adj. [decerno]. Of or belonging to a decision, decisive, dies, arma.

DECRETUM, i, n. [decerno]. 1) A resolution = an ordinance, decree of a public authority (cf. consilium): d. senatus, Druidarum. 2) In philosophy, a principle, dogma, tenet: id habebant d. Academici.

DE-CŪBO, 1. v. intr. (Ante-cl.) To lie away from a place.

DE-CULPATUS, a, um, adj. (Lat.) Objectionable, censurable, verbum.

DECŪMĀNUS — v. Decimanus.

DECŪMĀTES, ium, pl., adj. Agri dd. (Tac.), tithe-lands, of the produce of which the tenth part was paid as a tribute.

DE-CUMBO, cūbui, cūbitum, 3. v. intr. [cubo].

1) To lie down, super lectum and in lecto. 2) Esp., of a conquered gladiator, to fall down, to fall to the ground.

DECŪRIA, ae, f. [decem]. 1) A division of ten, a decuria; sometimes, incorrectly, of a larger or smaller division. Originally, this name had relation to the ancient division of the three old patrician tribes. Each of these had ten curiae, each curia had ten gentes, and for each gens there was one eques and one senator; hence, there was for each curia a division of ten equites, i. e., a decuria equitum, and a division of ten senatores, i. e., a decuria senatorum. Consequently, the number of decuriae of the equites and senatores was equal to the number of the curiae of patrician citizens, i. e., thirty. In later times, the cavalry belonging to a legion had ten turmae, and each turma three decuriae; hence, in each legion there were thirty decuriae equitum. 2) A class, division, in gen.: dd. iudicium, scribarum, etc.

DECŪRIATIO, ōnis, f. } [decurio I.]. A dividing into decuriae

DECŪRIATUS, ūs, m. } videndi into decuriae

DECŪRIO (I.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [decuria].

To divide into decuria, or (in gen.) into companies, homines; in partic. of persons who divided the people into greater or smaller companies for the purpose of bribery.

DECURIO (II.), ōnis, m. [decuria]. 1) The head or chief of a decuria, in all significations of the word; esp., the commander of a decuria of cavalry, a decurien; hence = a superintendent, overseer, in gen. 2) A magistrate or senator of the municipalities and colonies.

DE-CURRO, curri or cūcurri, cursum, 8. v. intr. & tr. I. Intr. — 1) To run down, ex or de arce; hence, to hurry down; esp. of an army = to march down quickly, to advance, to charge, ex loco superiore; fluvius d. in mare, flows down. 2) In gen., to run, to hurry somewhere; in particular, to travel, to sail, &c., quickly: d. ad milites cohortandos; piscis d. ad hamum; navis illuc d. In partic.: A) of military manoeuvres, esp. on festal occasions and in honour of the dead, to perform evolutions, to manoeuvre, to walk or run in armour: milites decurrendo signa sequi, et servare ordines docuit, while performing their evolutions; decursum est in armis: B) trop. — a) to come to (esp. as a result, &c.): decurritur in leniorem sententiam; omnium sententiae eo dd., tended to; postremo eo decursum est ut, finally it was determined — b) historia membratim d., runs on, proceeds; rhythmi dd., move on — c) = to have recourse to, ad istam hortationem, ad preces. II. Tr. — To run through, septem millia passuum spatium. Hence, trop. — a) = to complete, to finish, spatium vitae, vitam; d. honores, to run over the path of honours, to occupy every post of honour — b) to run over = to discuss, to treat: quae breviter a te decursa sunt.

DECURSIO, ōnis, f. [decurro]. 1) A running down, aquae; decursio planicie, descent, declivity. 2) A march, a hostile descent or incursion. 3) A running in armour; esp. as an exercise = a manoeuvre, evolution (v. Decurro).

DECURSUS, ūs, m. [decurro]. 1) = Decursio 1. 2) = Decursio 2. 3) A running through = the end of a course: destitit ante d. Hence, trop., d. temporis mei, the expiration, end of my time, i. e., of my career; d. honorum, a successive occupation of every post of honour.

DE-CURTO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. To cut off, to curtail, to mutilate, radicem; trop., of discourse.

DECUS, ōris, n. [decet]. 1) Ornament, grace: d. fanorum; d. et ornamentum senectutis; d. regum = a diadem; d. superimpositum capiti, the hat; (poet.) Maecenas d. equitum; d. virginum, the ornament, i. e., the most beautiful of the maidens. 2) Glory, honour, splendour: sustinere d. et dignitatem civitatis; verum d. est in virtute. Hence, mea, publica dd. = glorious deeds; d. muliebre, chastity. 3) Decency, morality, virtue: d. et virtus; conservare honestatem et d.

DECUSSIS, is, m. [decem-as]. 1) (Rar.) A coin of the value of ten asses. 2) The number ten. 3) (Lat.) The intersection of two lines in the form of a cross (because the Roman numeral sign for ten was X).

DECUSSO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [decussis]. To divide crosswise, in the form of an X.

DECUTIO, cussi, cussum, 3. v. tr. [de-quatio]. (Mostly poet. & lat.) To shake off, to strike off, to throw down, olivas, summa papavera, muros ariete; d. Gracchum Capitolio (lat.), to drive away.

DE-DECET, cuit, 2. v. impers. — used only in the third pers. sing. and pl. It is not befitting, becoming, suitable, proper: dominam dd. motae comae; si quid d.; oratorem non d. simulare.

DE-DECORO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To disgrace, to dishonour, urbis auctoritatem; illi non dd. iudicium tuum d. se; d. se flagitiis.

DEDECOROSE, adv. [dedecorosus]. (Lat.) Disgracefully.

DEDECOROSUS, a, um, adj. [dedecorus]. (Lat.) Disgraceful.

DE-DECORUS, a, um, adj. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Dishonourable, disgraceful.

DE-DECUS, ōris, n. Disgrace, infamy: A) concr. = that which disgraces, dishonours: d. naturae, = the ass; so, also, of the ass's ears of Midas. In partic., trop. = a base or infamous action, a crime: admittere d.; nullo d. abstinere: B) abstr. = disgrace, dishonour: d. et contumelia; vitam amittere per d., in a disgraceful manner.

DEDICATIO, ōnis, f. [dedico]. A dedication, consecration, aedis.

DE-DICO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) (Ante-cl. & lat.) To announce, to relate, aliquid. 2) (Rar.) To state, in a census, the amount of one's property, to make a return of: haec praedia d. in censu. 3) To dedicate, to consecrate (to a god, as sacred to him — cf. consecro): d. aedem Saturno, also Saturni; hence (poet.), d. Junonem, to consecrate a temple to Juno; Apollo dedicatus, to whom a temple has been consecrated. Hence (lat.): A) to devote to some object or purpose, urbem memoriae equi, libros huic operi: B) to consecrate by the first use, thermas, amphitheatrum: C) to dedicate a book to one (class. inscribo), alicui librum.

DEDIGNATIO, ōnis, f. [dedignor]. (Lat.) A disdaining, refusing.

DE-DIGNOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To disdain, to scorn, to refuse, maritum; d. aliquid facere.

DE-DISCO, didici, —, 3. v. tr. To unlearn, to forget something once learned, haec verba; d. loqui.

DEDITICIUS, ii, m. [dedo]. One who has surrendered or capitulated at discretion.

DĒDĪTIO, ōnis, f. [dedo]. A military tech. term, a surrender, capitulation: agere de d.; venire, recipere aliquos in deditionem: facere deditionem hosti and ad hostem; mittere deditionem ad aliquem (lat., an unusual expression), to declare by letter one's willingness to surrender.

DĒDĪTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [dedo]. Given up or attached to, devoted, applying one's self exclusively to: d. literis, ventri ac somno; also (poet.) deditus in re aliqua; d. alicui, attached; d. eo, intent on.

DĒ-DO, didi, dītum, 3. v. tr. 1) To give a thing away from one's self and entirely into the power or possession of another (cf. trado), to give or deliver up wholly, to abandon: d. aliquem or aliquid alicui, ad supplicium, ad necem, and (poet.) mortī. In partic. = to deliver over, to surrender to an enemy: d. aliquos or se hosti; dediderunt se consuli in arbitrium dicionemque populi Romani. 2) In gen. trop., to devote, to yield, to apply, to dedicate: d. se (animum) doctrinae, ad literas, to devote one's self ardently to letters; d. se ad audiendum, to apply one's self to; d. se studio alicui, to devote all one's time and strength to a pursuit: d. se alicui or amicitiae alicuius, to give one's self up to any one, to enter into a close union with any one. Hence, d. operam rei alicui, to devote much labour to any thing, to take much pains with; hence, deditū operā, purposely, designedly. *3) (Lucr.) D. manus = do manus (v. Manus).

DĒ-DŌCEO, cui, otum, 2. v. tr. To cause to unlearn, to make one forget: d. aliquem geometriam; (poet.) d. populum falsis vocibus uti, to teach the people to disuse; d. iudiciū, to correct, to set right.

DĒ-DŌLEO, ui, 2. v. intr. (Poet.) To cease grieving.

DĒ-DŌLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To hew smooth, to make smooth by hewing, arborem; trop. (Com.), to cudgel.

DĒ-DŪCO, xi, otum, 3. v. tr. 1) To lead, to draw or bring down or away from a place: d. pedes de lecto, lunam coelo, aliquem ex ultimis gentibus; d. aliquem ad consulem, impedimenta in proximum collem. In partic.: A) freq. of troops, to lead, to cause to march, exercitum ex his regionibus, milites in hiberna: B) d. coloniam, to lead forth, to conduct a colony to a place ('to lead down,' as the train started from the Capitol): d. coloniam Capuam; also, Aquileia colonia (q. v.) deducta est, was founded, planted: C) of inanimate objects, to lead, to draw or bring down or away: d. manum ad ventrem, brachia, supercilia, tiaram, to take off, vela, to unfurl. In partic. — a) d. navem, to draw down a ship into the sea, either = to launch, or only = to draw from the shore into the sea — b) d. aquam, to conduct, to turn off: D) to deduct from a sum: d. aliquid de summa, de capite: deducta (sc. peunia), a deduction: E) (poet. & lat.) = to derive, originem ab aliquo, nomen inde: F) to withdraw, cibum: G) to turn or draw one away from any thing, aliquem de fide, ab humanitate: H) trop., the thing from which one is drawn away not being stated — a) to lead, to bring, to induce to: d. aliquem ad misericordiam, rem ad arma, aliquem in periculum, in societatem belli: d. aliquem pretio, to mislead, to seduce; and, *d. aliquem ut, etc, to induce — b) eo (huc, in eum locum) rem d., to bring to a point or conclusion; ergo huc universa causa deductur, utrum, etc., the whole cause then is brought to this point, whether, &c. 2) (Poet. & lat.) Of a spinner or weaver, to draw or spin out the thread: d. filum; trop., of a writing, to spin out = to elaborate or compose with art and care: d. carmen, mille die versus. 3) In partic., to lead one to a place = to accompany, to conduct, to escort (esp. as a mark of respect — cf. comitor, prosequor, etc.): d. aliquem domum, de domo. In partic.: A) d. adolescentem ad aliquem, to introduce one to (an older person) a statesman, with a view to the benefit to be derived from his society and conversation: B) d. aliquam alicui or ad aliquem, to lead, to conduct a bride from her father's house to her husband; freq., also, in a dishonourable sense, to bring one a concubine. 4) Tech. t., d. aliquem de fundo, to lead one away from a disputed property, in the presence of witnesses (a symbolic procedure, by which the person led away obtained the right of bringing an action).

DĒDUCTIO, ōnis, f. [deduco]. 1) A leading away, leading to: d. militum in oppida, a quartering. 2) A drawing off, aquae. 3) A deduction, diminution: d. ex pecunia. 4) A conducting of a colony to a place, a colonizing: d. oppidi, founding. 5) An expulsion from an estate (v. Deduco 4). *6) D. rationis, a drawing of a conclusion, argumentation.

DĒDUCTOR, ōris, m. [deduco]. (Rar.) A companion, one who accompanies a candidate for office.

DĒDUCTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [deduco].

1) (Lat.) Bent inwards, nasus. 2) (Ante-cl. & poet.) Weak, slender, vox, carmen.

DĒ-ERRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. To go astray, to go the wrong way; trop., d. a vero.

DĒFAECO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [de-faec]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To cleanse from dregs; hence, in gen., to refine, to purify, aliquid, se; nunc mihi defaecatum est, now it is clear to me; animus defaecatus, serene, undisturbed.

DĒFAMĀTUS, a, um, adj. w. sup. [de-fama]. (Lat.) Infamous.

DĒFĀTIGĀTIO, ōnis, f. [defatigo]. A wearying, fatigue, weariness.

DĒFĀTIGO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To make weary, to fatigue, aliquos assiduo labore; freq., pass. = to grow weary or tired; d. deos precibus, to importune with prayers.

DEFECTIO, ōnis, f. [deficio]. 1) A defection, desertion, revolt, ab aliquo. 2) A decreasing, disappearing, failing, failure: d. virium, failure of strength; in later writers, also simply d., in the same signification; alio usque ad defectionem soluta, even to exhaustion, fainting; d. solis, lunae, a solar, lunar eclipses; d. animi, depondency. 3) In grammar, an ellipsis.

DEFECTOR, ōris, m. [deficio]. (Lat.) One who revolts, a rebel, mutineer.

DEFECTUS (I.), ūs, m. [deficio] = Defectio.

DEFECTUS (II.), a, um, adj. w. sup. [part. of deficio]. (Lat.) Enervated, weakened, weak.

DE-FENDO, ndi, nsum, 3. v. tr. 1) To fend off, to ward or keep off, to avert, to repel: d. testem, vim, plebis injurias, pericula, hunc furorem; d. crimen, to repel a charge; (rar.) d. aliquid ab aliquo, and (poet.) alicui. 2) To defend, to protect (with that from whom or which any thing is ward off as the object — cf. tueor): d. aliquem, oppidum; d. se ab injuriis, Gallias ab injuriis alicujus, contra vim; freq., to defend in court: d. aliquem apud judices, aliquem de ambitu. Hence: A) to strive or contend for, to maintain, to defend: id maxime d. ut, etc.; verissime defenditur, nunquam aequitatem ab utilitate sejungi posse; d. rem; d. cur hoc non ita sit: B) to adduce something in one's defence, to affirm, aliquid; d., nihil ex his sponte susceptum esse.

DEFENSIO, ōnis, f. [defendo]. 1) A warding off, averting, sceleris, criminis. 2) A defending, defence, urbium.

DEFENSITO, āvi, —, 1. v. tr. [freq. of defendo]. (Rar.) To defend often, caussas, to plead often.

DEFENSO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [intens. of defendo]. To defend or protect diligently, moenia.

DEFENSOR, ōris, m. [defendo]. 1) One who wards off, an avorter, necis. 2) A defender, protector, urbis, juris.

DE-FERO, ūli, lātum, ferre, v. tr. 1) Prop., to bear, to bring or carry down: amnis d. limum; hence, in gen., to bring, to bear, to carry from one place to another: d. epistolam ad Ciceronem, ornamenta mea in aerarium, aliquem domum. In partic.: A) of something that carries a person against his will or intention to a place: fuga regem eo d.; mostly in the pass., Germani ad castra Caesaris delati, came unexpectedly to; more freq. of a ship which is carried by the force of wind or waves to another place than that of its destination: naves cursum non tenere et longius delatæ aestu, etc.: B) (lat.) to take to market, to offer for sale. 2) To offer, to proffer or tender; hence, to confer upon, to transfer or give something to one (esp. something to be done or administered by him): d. aliquid ad aliquem. 3) To bring an account of, to relate, to announce, to give notice or inform of (cf. refero): d. aliquid ad aliquem, rem ad senatum. Hence: A) d. nomen alicujus (sometimes alicui, in later writers also d. aliquem), to announce one to the praetor as accused, to impeach, to indict, to accuse, de parricidio; (lat.) d. reos ad praetorem and deferri majestatis: B) d. aliquid ad aerarium or simply d. aliquid, to give in at the public treasury: C) d. aliquem ad aerarium in beneficis, to recommend one to the state for future reward (by money from the public treasury).

DE-FERVESCO, ferri and (lat.) ferbui, —, 3. v. intr. 1) To cease boiling. 2) Trop., of the passions, to cease raging, to grow cool, to become calm, ira, adolescentia, studia hominum dd.

DEFÉTISCOR, fessus, 3. v. dep. intr. [defatiscor]. To grow weary, to become wearied, tired out, fatigued; most freq. in the part. defessus, as an adj., tired, weary (v. fessus), miles, aures dd. convicio.

DEFÍCIO, fēci, fectum, 3. v. intr. [de-facio]. Prop., to loosen one's self from any thing. 1) To disengage or withdraw one's self by force from a connexion or association, to revolt, to rebel: d. a rege, ab amicitia populi Romani; d. ad aliquem, to go over to the opposite party; trop., d. a virtute, a se, to become unfaithful to one's self. 2) To begin to be wanting, to cease, to disappear, to fail: A) abs., vires dd.; pecunia d.; memoria d., fails; d. animo, to lose courage; sometimes simply d., in the same sense; d. pugnando, to relax, to slacken; multi bellis defecerant, were weakened, diminished; luna, sol d., is eclipsed; (lat.) in hac voce defecit, he died: B) with the addition of the person whom something fails, to whom it is wanting, &c., to fail, to be wanting to, to forsake, aliquem or alicui; vires, dies, tela nos or nobis dd.; deficior re, something fails me; (poet.) non me deficiet rogitare, I shall not cease asking.

DE-FIGO, xi, xum, 3. v. tr. 1) To drive, to thrust or fasten down, asseres in terra, arborem terrae; hence, in gen., to drive, to thrust, to fix or fasten into: d. telum in corpore consulis, ense jugulo; sidera defixa coelo (poet.). 2) Trop.: A) to fix, to direct or turn eagerly to or towards something: d. oculos in aliquam rem, omnes curas in salute reipublicae: B) d. aliquid in mente, to impress upon; d. flagitia sua in oculis omnium, to show before the eyes of all men: C) to render motherless (with amazement, terror, &c.), to strike with astonishment, to astound: silentium ees d.; pavor omnium animos d.: *D) of an augur, to proclaim as unalterable or fixed (an old formula): E) (poet. & lat.) = to curse (because at such times the image of the person concerned was freq. stuck through with needles).

DE-FINGO, nxi, —, 3. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To form, to fashion, aliquid.

DE-FINIO, ivi, itum, 4. v. tr. 1) To bound off, to set boundaries to, to bound, to limit, agrum.

erbas qui aspectum nostram dd. = the horizon. Hence, trop.: A) pirate non est ex perduellium numero definitus, does not belong to: B) = to define, to determine, to designate: d. modum vitae tue; d. potestatem in quinquennium; d. annos, tempus adeundi; unum hoc d., I declare; definitum est (Pl.), it is resolved: C) = to keep within certain limits, to confine: oratio iis viris definiatur, will be confined to those men: D) to explain a thing by specifying its essential qualities, to define, fortitudinem sic. 2) (Rar.) To finish, to end, orationem.

DEFINITE, adv. [definitus]. Definitely, precisely.

DEFINITIO, ōnis, f. [definio]. 1) A limiting, defining, definite statement, temporum. 2) A definition (v. Definio 1, D).

DEFINITIVUS, a, um, adj. [definio]. Definitive, explanatory, causa, constitutio.

DEFINITUS, a, um, adj. [part. of definio]. Definite, precise.

DE-FIO, fieri, v. def. intr. (Mostly ante-cl.) Only in the third pers. sing. and pl. To fail = Deficio 2, A.

DE-FLAGRATIO, ōnis, f. [deflagro]. A burning up, conflagration, coeli; trop., destruction, in general.

DE-FLAGRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. I. Intr. — 1) To burn up, to be consumed by fire: templum d.; trop. = to perish, to be destroyed. 2) Trop., to burn out, to cease raging, to abate, to subside, ira. II. Tr. — (Almost solely in the perf. part., pass.) 1) (Ante-cl.) To burn down, to consume by fire. 2) Trop., to ruin, imperium.

DE-FLECTO, xi, xum, 3. v. tr. & intr. I. Tr. — 1) To bend downwards, ramum. 2) To bend or turn aside or in another direction: d. amnes in aliam cursum; d. novam viam, to make in a new direction. 3) Trop., to give another direction to a thing, to turn, to bring or lead off: pravitas aliqua eum de via d.; d. sententiam a proposito; d. rem ad verba = to misrepresent the sense by straining the letter; d. factum in illos, to impute. Hence = to alter, to change, sententiam, virtutem in vitia. II. Intr. — To turn off, to turn aside, de via, in Tuscos; trop., consuetudo d. de spatio; d. a veritate.

DE-FLEO, ōvi, ōtum, 2. v. tr. & intr. 1) Tr., to weep over, to bewail, aliquem, illos casus. 2) Intr., to weep much or violently.

DE-FLEXUS, ūs, m. [deflecto]. (Lat.) A turning off or aside.

DE-FLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) (Ante-cl.) To blow away, aliquid. *2) (Lat.) To blow off in order to cleanse, to cleanse by blowing.

*DEFLOCCATUS, a, um, adj. [de-floccus]. (Pl.) Trop., without locks, bald.

DE-FLŪRESCO, rui, 3. v. intr. To cease blooming, to wither; trop., to decay, animi, delicias qd.

DE-FLUO, xi, xum, 3. v. intr. 1) To flow down, flumen de monte; flamma d. ex Aetna monte. 2) Of things not liquid, to glide, to flow or fall down, to descend: coronae dd.; homo d. equo or ex equo ad terram, dismounts; (poet.) d. secundo amni, to float or swim down with the stream; vestis d. ad pedes, flows down. 3) Trop.: A) unus tribunus d., has deserted: B) to go over from one thing to another; also, in gen., to go or proceed from: d. a necessariis artibus ad elegantiora; (lat.) adolescentes dd. a Seneca, deviate; familia haec ab illis d., descends. 4) To flow away = to cease flowing, amnis; hence, trop., to cease, to vanish, to disappear, vires; salutaris defluxit, is over; numerus Saturnius defluxit (poet.), went out of use, was no longer used.

DEFLŪVIUM, ii, n. [defluo]. (Lat.) 1) A flowing off. 2) A falling out, capilli.

DE-FŌDIO, ōdi, fossum, 3^d. v. tr. 1) To bury in the earth, cotem in comitio, signum in terram, (poet.) stipitem in agro; trop. (lat.), d. se, to hide one's self. 2) (Rar.) To dig downwards or deep, scrobem. 3) (Poet. & lat.) To dig into, to dig up, terram; d. oculos, crura, to dig out, to lacerate.

DE-FORMATIO, ōnis, f. [deformo]. A disfiguring, despoiling, maiestatis.

DEFORMIS, e, adj. w. comp. & sup. [de-forma]. 1) Deformed, misshaped, disfigured; hence, ugly (cf. foedus, turpis), homo, motus, urbs d. incendiis; agmen d., of an army disarmed and driven under the yoke; oratio d. mihi, disgraceful; trop., d. haesitatio, obsequium. *2) (Poet.) Formless, shapeless, anima.

DEFORMITAS, ātis, f. [deformis]. Deformity, ugliness, corporis: trop., d. animi.

DEFORMITER, adv. [deformis]. Inelegantly, disgracefully.

DE-FORMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To form or fashion, to bring into form or shape, locum, marmora. 2) To deform, to disfigure, to deface: macies d. vultum; deformatus corpore; parietes nudi et deformati. Hence, trop., to dishonour, to disgrace, aliquem, victoriam clade.

DE-FRAUDO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To cheat, to defraud, to overreach, aliquem aliqua re or (rar.) aliquid, to cheat out of any thing; trop., d. genium suum, to cheat one's self, to deny one's self enjoyment.

DE-FRENATUS, a, um, adj. [freno]. (Poet.) Unbridled, unrestrained.

DE-FRICO, cui, cātum or ctum, 1. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To rub off, to rub, dentem, membra: (poet.) to satirize, to lash with pungent wit: d. urbem sale multo.

DEFRINGO, frēgi, fractum, 3. v. tr. [frango]. 1) To break off, to break loose, ramum, ferrum ab hasta. 2) To break into pieces, to break, crura alicui.

DEFRUTUM, i, n. [= defervitum, from defervesco?]. Must, or new wine belled down.

DE-FUGIO, fugi, —, 3. v. intr. & tr. *1) Intr., To flee or run away: totum sinistrum cornu eo d. 3) Tr., to shun, to avoid; esp. = to withdraw from a person or thing in order to escape an obligation: d. patriam, eam disputationem, inimicitias; d. auctoritatem rei alicujus, to deny having commanded a thing, to shun responsibility.

DEFUNCTÖRIE, adv. [defunctorius]. (Lat.) Superficially, carelessly.

DEFUNCTÖRIUS, a, um, adj. [defungor]. (Lat.) Quickly dispatched, slight, cursory.

DE-FUNDO, fudi, fūsum, 3. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To pour down, to pour out, aquam, fruges Italiae; freq. of a libation, d. merum.

DE-FUNGOR, functus, 3. v. dep. tr. To bring something to an end, esp. something unpleasant, to acquit one's self of, to be done with, to get rid of, bello, proelio; honoribus defunctus, having occupied every post of honour; d. periculis, malis, morbo, to escape from; civitas d. consulis fato, is set free from danger by means of; d. perpaucis funeribus, levi poena, to come off with; more frequently (poet. & lat.) d. vitā, suis temporibus, terrā, also d. morte suā and d. abs. = to die; (lat.) d. oraculo, to fulfil, parvo, to perform, to accomplish; defunctus sum (Com.), I have done with it, got through it.

DE-GĒNER, ġris, adj. [genus]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Departing from its race or kind, degenerate, aquila, homo, arundo. 2) In a moral sense, degenerate, base, ignoble, animus, preces; (poet.) degener animi; d. artis patriae, from the paternal art.

DEGENĒRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to depart from one's race or kind, to degenerate: frumenta dd.; illi dd. a parentibus nostris, a gravitate paterna, ad artes theatrales. 2) Tr. (poet.), to disgrace, to stain by degeneracy, aliquem, palmas.

DE-GĒRO, —, —, 3. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To carry off, ornamenta sua ad meretrices.

DE-GLŪBO, —, ptum, 3. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To skin, to flay, aliquem.

DĒGO, dēgi, —, 3. v. tr. [de-ago]. To spend, to pass, aetatem, vitam; also (lat.) abs. = to live.

DE-GRANDINAT, 1. v. impers. intr. (Poet.) It hails out or to an end.

DE-GRĀVO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To press or weigh down, to oppress (of a burden, &c.): unda d. caput meum. 2) Trop., hostes dd. cornu circumventum, were overpowering; lassitudo illos d., weighs down, overcomes.

DEGRĒDIOR, gressus, 3. v. dep. intr. [degradior]. To step down, to go or march down, to descend, monte, ex arce, in campum; eques ad pedem d., dismounts.

DE-GRUNNIO, 4. v. intr. (Lat.) To grunt violently.

DE-GUSTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To taste, novas fruges. 2) (Poet.) To touch slightly upon, to graze: ignis d. ligna, licks. 3) Trop.: A) to touch slightly upon, to treat superficially, materiam: B) to try, to attempt, to make one's self acquainted with, literas, hanc vitam.

DE-HINC, adv. (Mostly poet. & lat.) 1) Of space, from this place. Hence: A) of succession, after this: B) (rar., Com.) to denote causality, hence. 2) Of time: A) from the present time forth — henceforth: B) from a point of time in the past = since then, thenceforth: C) pointing to a future time, in gen. = hereupon, then, afterwards: d. profectus est. 3) In enumeration = deinde, then, in the second place.

DE-HISCO, —, —, 3. v. intr. (Mostly poet. & lat.) To split open, to gape, to yawn.

DEHÖNESTĀMENTUM, i, n. [dehonesto]. That which disfigures, dishonours, a disgrace, dishonour, blemish, corporis, amicitiarum.

DE-HÖNESTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To disfigure, to dishonour, to disgrace, famam suam, bonas artes.

DE-HÖNESTUS, a, um, adj. (Lat.) Unseemly, unbecoming, dishonouring.

DE-HORTOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. To dissuade, to advise to the contrary, aliquem ab aliqua re.

DEĪANĪRA, ae, f. [= Δειανίρα]. The wife of Hercules, whose death she involuntarily caused.

DEĪDĀMĪA, ae, f. [= Δειδάμεια]. The daughter of Lycomedes of Scyros, and mother of Pyrrhus.

DEIN, adv. (Rar.) = Deinde.

DEINCEPS, adv. [dein-capio]. In uninterrupted succession, one after another, successively in space, trunci d. constituti; in time, reliqui d. dies; in order, ut d., qui accubabant, canerent; d. interreges, the 'interreges' following each other. Sometimes, in enumeration = further.

DE-INDE, adv. 1) Of space (rar.), from there. 2) Of time (most freq. thus), thereupon, then, afterwards. 3) Of succession, esp. in enumerating several objects, then, further, next in order; esp., freq. after primum = in the second place, secondly; also, several times repeated in the successive members of a sentence = in the third place, &c.

DEĪÖNĪDES, ae, m. [= Δειωνίδης]. A son of Deione by Apollo, i. e., Miletus.

DEĪÖPEA, ae, f. A beautiful nymph, an attendant of Juno.

DEĪÖTĀRUS, i, m. [= Δειόταρος]. The name of two Armenian kings: A) D., the father, tetrarch of Galatia, and afterwards king of Armenia Minor: B) D., the son of the preceding.

DEĪPHÖBE, es, f. [= Δειφώβη]. A daughter of Glaucus.

DEĪPHÖBUS, i, m. [= Δειφόβος]. A son of Priam and Hecuba, and husband of Helen after the death of Paris.

DEĪPYLE, es, f. [= Δειπύλη]. A daughter of Adrastus, and mother of Diomedea.

DEĪPYLUS, i, m. [= Δειπύλος]. A son of Jason.

DEJECTIO, önis, f. [dejicio]. (Very rare.)

1) (Lat.) A throwing or casting down: d. alvi, a going to stool. 2) A turning out of an estate or possession, ejection. 3) (Lat.) D. animi, discouragement, despondency.

*DEJECTO, 1. v. tr. [de-jacto]. (Ante-cl.) To hurl down.

DEJECTUS (I.), ūs, m. [dejicio]. 1) A throwing or casting down, arborum; d. aquae, a cata-ract. 2) A descent, declivity, collis.

DEJECTUS (II.), a, um, adj. [part. of deji-cio]. (Rar.) 1) Low, locus. 2) Trop. (poet.), Discouraged, disheartened, dejected.

DEJICIO, jēci, jectum, 3. v. tr. [de-jacio]. 1) To throw or cast down, to hurl down, aliquem de saxo in inferiorem locum, aliquem equo; venti se dejiciunt a montibus, descend; d. antennas, to lower, to let down; d. sortes, to cast or throw into the urn; esp. of objects previously standing upright, to throw down, to overthrow, turrim, signa. Hence: A) (mostly poet.) to hurl to the ground = to kill, aliquem: B) to give a downward direction to a thing: d. lacrimas, to shed tears; d. vultum, to cast down the eyes; so, likewise, dejectus oculos, with downcast eyes: C) trop., to deprive one of the possession of a thing or the prospect of obtaining it, to prevent from obtaining: d. aliquem aedilitate, to procure one's rejection from the aedileship; d. honore or de honore: freq. pass., dejectus spe illa, disappointed in his hope; so, likewise, dejectus opinione trium legionem, disappointed in his expectation of collecting three legions; dejecta conjuge tanto, deprived of such a husband; also abs., d. aliquem, to overthrow, to defeat. 2) To drive or chase away, to dislodge, to expel, hostes muro, exercitum hostium ex tot castellis, praesidium loco munito. Hence: A) to turn out of a possession or an estate, to eject, aliquem: B) trop., to avert, to remove, vitia a se, multum mali de humana condicione; d. aliquem de sententia, to turn one from his opinion: C) d. oculos ab (de) aliquo, to turn away: D) d. naves, to drive out of their course.

DE-JUNGO, 3. v. tr. (Pl.) To separate, to sever, amantes.

DE-JŪRO (or De-jēro), āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. (Ante-cl. poet. & lat.) To swear, to take an oath.

*DE-JŪVO, 1. v. tr. (Pl.) To leave off helping, to withhold assistance.

DE-LĀBOR, lapsus, 3. v. dep. intr. 1) To fall, to sink or slide down, to glide down, de coelo, ex equo, ab excelsa fenestra, in mare, per auras. 2) Trop.: A) plura genera ab his delapsa sunt, are derived from them: B) to slide into, to come to, to descend (from a straight course): a sapientium familiaritatis ad vulgares amicitias oratio nostra d., descends to; in istum sermonem d., to fall upon that topic of conversation; d. in morbum, to be taken sick, in vitium servile, to fall into, ad aequitatem, to incline towards equity.

*DE-LĀCĒRO, āvi, —, 1. v. tr. (Pl.) To tear into pieces; trop., to destroy, to ruin, opes suas.

*DE-LĀMENTOR, 1. v. dep. tr. (Poet.) To lament, to bewail violently, aliquem.

DE-LASSO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Rar., ante-cl. & lat.) To weary or tire out, aliquem.

DĒLĀTIO, ōnis, f. [defero]. An information, accusation; esp., d. nominis alieujus.

DĒLĀTOR, ōris, m. [defero]. (Lat.) An informer, accuser: d. legis Papiae, of one who has violated the Papian law; thus, likewise, d. majestatis, of high treason.

DĒLECTĀBĪLIS, e, adj. [delecto]. (Lat.) Delightful, pleasant, agreeable, cibus.

DĒLECTĀBĪLITER, adv. [delectabilis]. (Lat.) Delightfully.

DĒLECTĀMENTUM, i, n. [delecto]. (Rar.) That which delights, an amusement, pastime.

DĒLECTATIO, ōnis, f. [delecto]. Delight, amusement, pleasure: d. audiendi, conviviorum; habere d., to afford.

*DĒLECTIO, ōnis, f. (Lat.) = Delectus.

DĒLECTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [deliciae]. To delight, to amuse, to divert: ista sapientiae fama me d.; d. otium suum aliqua re, to amuse one's leisure with anything. Freq., in the pass., to take delight in, to be pleased with: d. imperio, carminibus, in re aliqua; (poet.) bonus vir dici delector, I like to be called.

DĒLECTUS, ūs, m. [deligo]. 1) A selection, choice: verborum, rerum delectum habere, tenere (lat. agere), to make a selection or distinction between; thus, likewise, beneficiorum acceptorum d. habendus est, a distinction is to be made between; sine ullo d. 2) In partic., military tech. term, a picking out of soldiers, a recruiting, levy: habere (lat. also agere) d.; d. superbissimus, executed with great arbitrariness and severity; d. provincialis, in the province. Hence, sometimes = the troops levied, a levy: octo millia ex d. Britannico.

DĒLEGATIO, ōnis, f. [delego]. An assignment of a debt.

DE-LĒGO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To send, to delegate, to depute one to a person or place, aliquem in carcerem, alicui fautores. 2) To assign, to commit, to entrust, infantem ancillae, officium alicui; d. obsequium in curam collegae, rem ad senatum; d. illos ad hunc librum, to refer. 3) In money affairs, to refer one to another for the payment of a debt, to assign over a debt: delegavi tibi fratrem, I have commissioned my brother to pay you my debt; abs., delegabo ei, I shall assign the debt to him. 4) To ascribe, to impute: d. alicui crimen aliquod; d. decus rei bene gestae ad aliquem.

DĒLENIFICUS, a, um, adj. [delenio-facio]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Soothing; hence, captivating, caressing.

DĒLENIMENTUM, i, n. [delenio]. 1) A means of soothing or appeasing, vitae, curarum.

2) A blandishment, fassionation, vitiatorum.

DE-LENIO, īvi, Itum, 4. v. tr. To soothe, to alleviate; hence, to captivate, to charm: c. aliquem blanditiis voluptatum, animos hominum.

*DELENITOR, ōris, m. [delenio]. One who captivates or wins: orator debet esse d. iudicis.

DELEO, ēvi, ētum, 2. v. tr. [= ἐσθλομαι], acc. to others contr. from de-olo = alo, 'to hinder from growing'. To blot out, to efface (something written, &c.); hence, to destroy, to abolish, to annihilate: d. literas, stigmata; d. urbes, Graeciam, hostes, memoriam rei alicujus.

DELIA, ae, f. The name of a damsel — v. Delos.

DELIACUS, a, um, adj. [= Δελιακός]. Of or belonging to Delos, Delian.

*DELIBAMENTUM, i, n. [delibo]. (Lat.) The wine poured out at a libation.

DELIBERABUNDUS, a, um, adj. [delibero]. (Bar.) Profoundly deliberating.

DELIBERATIO, ōnis, f. [delibero]. Consideration, deliberation, consultation; habere d.; d. consilii capiendi, upon the resolution to be taken.

DELIBERATIVUS, a, um, adj. [delibero]. Pertaining to deliberation, deliberative.

*DELIBERATOR, ōris, m. [delibero]. One who deliberates.

DELIBERO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [de-libra]. 1) To weigh (in one's mind, in order to come to some conclusion — cf. considero), to deliberate, to take counsel, to consult, rem aliquam and de re aliqua; d. utrum — &c., etc.; d. cum aliquo; spatium deliberandi, time for deliberation; in particular, to consult an oracle (so only in Nepos). 2) To resolve, to determine after deliberation: statuerat et deliberaverat non adesse; thus, esp. the part. deliberatus = resolved, determined.

DE-LIBO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To take away a little from any thing, to taste: d. parvam partem humoris. Hence: A) trop., d. flosculos ex oratione, to cull; d. animos ex universa mente divina, to take (as a part) from; d. novum honorem, to taste, to enjoy; d. oscula natae, to kiss. B) in partic., to diminish by taking away, aliquid de laude alicujus. Hence, 2) to damage, to injure any thing, nomen alicujus; d. castitatem, to violate.

DELIBRO, —, atum, 1. v. tr. [de-liber]. 1) (Lat.) To strip off the bark, to bark, to peel, arborum. 2) (Ante-cl.) Trop., to take away.

DELIBUTUS, a, um, adj. [ἀλινός]. Besmeared, anointed, luto, unguentis; trop. (Com.), delibutus gaudio, intoxicated with joy.

DELICATE, adv. w. comp. [delicatus]. 1) Charmingly, pleasantly. 2) Luxuriously, voluptuously.

DELICATUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [deliciae]. 1) Without implying censure: A) pleasing to the senses, pleasant, charming, alluring, delightful, elegant: d. litus, hortuli, comitatus anicillarum puerorumque: B) (lat.) soft, tender, delicate, puella, oves. 2) Freq. with blame implied: A) luxurious, voluptuous, wanton, adolescens; juvenus d. et libidinosus; merces dd., articles of luxury: B) (ante-cl. & lat.) effeminate, dainty, spelled with indulgence: C) (ante-cl.) fastidious, squeamish, homo, aures.

DELICIAE, ārum, f. pl. (ante-cl. & lat. also sing., Dēlicia, ae, f., and Dēlicium, ii, n.) [delicio]. 1) Any thing pleasing and delightful, that affords pleasure to the senses, delight, pleasure: esse alicui in deliciis, to be one's favourite (city, &c.); so, also, habere aliquem in dd.; freq. in a bad sense = luxuriosus, voluptuosus; also = elegance, luxury in domestic arrangements; (Com.) delicias facere, to make sport of; ecce aliae equitum dd., the pretensions of. 2) Trop., of persons, the favourite, delight, darling of any one: amores ac deliciae tuae Roscius.

DELICIOLOAE, ārum, f. pl. [dim. of deliciae]. A favourite, delight, darling.

*DELICIOLOUM, i, n. (Lat.) = Deliciolae.

DELICO — v. Deliquo.

DELICTUM, i, n. [delinquo]. An offence, fault, crime.

DELIGO (I.), lēgi, lectum, 3. v. tr. [de-lego]. 1) To choose, to select, illos ex civitate in senatum, aliquem ad rem conficiendam; in military affairs, delecta manus, a body of picked men. *2) (Pl.) d. aliquem ex aedibus, to pick out as unfit, to remove, to reject.

DE-LIGO (II.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To bind, to tie, to bind fast, to fasten, naves ad ancoras; d. valnus, to dress.

DELIMATUS, a, um, part. of the unusual delimo. (Lat.) Filed off.

DELÍNEO, āvi, 1. v. tr. [de-linea]. (Lat.) To trace in outline, to sketch, to delineate, imaginem.

DE-LINGO, 3. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To lick off or up; prov. (poet.), d. salem, to have poor cheer.

DE-LINQUO, lēqui, lictum, 3. v. tr. & intr. To fail in one's duty, to offend, to commit a fault, to transgress: d. in vita, in bello; d. aliquid, in something; also (lat.), flagitia quae ille d., had committed; d. in re aliqua (of discourse), in an expression; (poet.) d. in ancilla, to have a love-affair with.

DE-LIQUESCO, lēui, —, 3. v. intr. To melt, to melt away, to dissolve: nix d.; trop. = to show one's self weak and effeminate.

DELIQUUM, ii, n. [delinquo]. A failing, defect, want: d. solis, an eclipse; (ante-cl.) est mihi deliquo libertatis apud te, it turns to the loss of my liberty.

DE-LIQUO (or Dēllico), 1. v. tr. 1) (Ante-cl. & lat.) To clear off a turbid liquid, to clarify, vinum, etc. 2) Trop., to explain, to clear up, aliquid.

*DELIQUUS, a, um, adj. [delinquo]. (Pl.) Wanting, lacking.

DELIRAMENTUM, i, n. [deliro]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Nonsense, absurdity: loqui dd.

DELIRATIO, ōnis, f. [deliro]. Folly, silliness, madness, dotage.

DELIRIUM, ii, n. [delirus]. Madness, delirium.

DELIRO, 1. v. intr. [delirus]. Prop., to go out of the furrow in ploughing. To be crazy, foolish, deranged.

DELIRUS, a, um, adj. [de-lira]. Prop., deviating from the furrow, i. e., crazy, mad, dotting.

DELITEO, 2. v. intr. [de-lateo]. (Lat.) To be hid or concealed.

DELITESCO, tui, —, 3. v. intr. [deliteo]. To hide or conceal one's self: hostes dd. in silvis; trop., to shelter one's self or skulk behind a person or thing as a protection or a pretext: d. in alicujus auctoritate, in dolo malo.

*DE-LITIGO, 1. v. intr. (Poet.) To scold, to rail.

DELIUM, ii, n. [= Δελιον]. A small town in Boeotia, with a temple of Apollo — v. Delius.

DELIUS, a, um, adj. [Delos]. Of or pertaining to Delos, Delian; vates D. = Apollo; folia Dd. = the laurel. Hence, subst., 1) Delius, ii, m. = Apollo; 2) Delia, ae. f. = Diana.

DELOS, i, f. [= Δελος]. A small but celebrated island in the Aegean Sea, the birthplace of Apollo and Diana, and hence particularly sacred to them — now Dili.

DELPHI, ōrum, m. pl. [= Δελφοί]. 1) A town in Phocia, the celebrated seat of the oracle of Apollo — now Kastri. 2) (Lat.) The inhabitants of Delphi.

DELPHICUS, a, um, adj. [= Δελφικός]. Of or pertaining to Delphi, Delphic: D. oracula; D. mensae, ornamental tables in shape like the tripod at Delphi; subst., Delphicus, i, m., the Delphian = Apollo.

DELPHINUS, i, and Delphin, inis, m. [= δελφίν]. A dolphin; also, the name of a constellation.

DELTA, ae, f. & n. [Δέλτα]. 1) F. or n., the name of the fourth letter of the Greek alphabet. 2) N., trop., the part of Lower Egypt between the branches of the Nile, the Delta.

DELTOTON, i, n. [= δελτωτόν]. The Triangle, a constellation.

DELUBRUM, i, n. [de-luo?]. (Mostly poet. and in elevated prose.) A temple, sanctuary, shrine.

DE-LUCTOR, āna, dep., and (rar.) Dē-lucto, āvi, 1. v. intr. (Pl.) To struggle, to fight, to combat, cum leone; trop., d. acumnis.

*DE-LUDÍFICO, āvi, 1. v. tr. (Pl.) To jeer, to make sport of, aliquid.

DE-LUDO, si, sum, 3. v. tr. To make sport of, to delude, to deceive: d. aliquem dolis; trop., terra d. arantes; spes me d., disappoints.

DELUMBIS, e, adj. [de-lumbus]. (Lat.) Lamed in the loins; trop., enervated, enfeebled.

DELUMBO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. [delumbis]. To make lame in the loins, quadrupedem; hence trop., to weaken, to enfeeble, sententias.

DEMĀDES, is, m. [= Δημάδης]. An Athenian orator, contemporary with Demosthenes, who favoured the cause of Philip of Macedon, and promoted his interests.

DE-MĀDESCO, dui, —, 3. v. intr. (Poet.) To become moist.

DE-MANDO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) 1) To entrust, to commit, to give in charge to, aliquid alicui. 2) D. aliquem in proximam civitatem, to bring in safety to; thus, likewise, d. conjuges insulis, to the islands.

DE-MĀNO, 1. v. intr. (Poet. & lat., but doubtful reading.) To flow down.

DEMĀRĀTUS, i, m. [= Δημάρατος, 'prayed for by the people']. 1) The father of Tarquinius Priscus, who emigrated from Corinth to Tarquinius. 2) A king of Sparta, who lived as an exile at the court of Xerxes.

DEMARCHUS, i, m. [= δῆμαρχος]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) The president of an Attic demos, a demarch; when used of Romans = a tribune of the people.

DE-MENS, tis, adj. w. comp. Out of one's senses, senseless, foolish, mad, frantic, homo; (poet.) dd. somnia, manus, crepitus.

DEMENSUM, i, n. [demetior]. A ration of food furnished to a slave. (Ante-cl. & lat.)

DEMENTER, adv. w. sup. [demens]. Foolishly, madly.

DEMENTIA, ae, f. [demens]. Senselessness, folly, madness.

DEMENTIO, —, —, 4. v. intr. [demens]. To be out of one's senses, to be mad, to rave.

DE-MĒREO, ui, 2. v. tr. 1) (Rar., ante-cl. & lat.) To merit, to deserve, to earn, pecūniam. 2) Usually Dēmēreo r, itus, 2. dep., to deserve well of, to lay under obligation, to oblige, aliquem, tam potentem civitatem.

DE-MERGO, si, sum, 3. v. tr. To sink, to sink down, to plunge in: d. dapes in alvum; d. navem, corpus; d. plebem in fossas, to force the plebs to descend into (i. e., to work in). Hence trop. = to oppress, to press down, aliquem; patria demersa; plebs demersa est acre alieno, is immersed in debt.

DE-MĒTIOR, mensus, 4. v. dep. tr. To measure, to measure out, aliquid.

DE-MĒTO, messui, messum, 3. v. tr. To mow, to reap or cut off, segetes, fructus; also, d. agros, the corn in the fields; (poet.) d. flores, to pluck; d. caput ense, to cut off.

DEMETRIAS, ādis, f. [= Δημητριάς]. A town in Thessaly, originally called Pagasae, newly colonized by Demetrius Poliorcetes — now Volo.

DEMETRIUM, ii, n. [= Δημήτριος]. A town in Phthiotis, with a temple of Demeter.

DEMETRIUS, ii, m. [= Δημήτριος]. A proper name frequent among the Greeks; thus, esp. 1) D. Poliorcetes [= Πολιορκητής, 'The Taker of Towns'], a son of Antigonus, and king of Macedonia—died while a captive of his father-in-law Seleucus, king of Syria (284 B. C.). 2) D. Phalereus, a renowned orator, of Phalerum, near Athens, pupil of Theophrastus, and, under Cassander, governor of Athens (318 B. C.). 3) D. Magnes, a historian and philosopher, contemporary with Cicero. 4) A Cynic philosopher, of the time of Caligula and Nero.

DEMIGRATIO, ōnis, f. [demigro]. An emigration.

DE-MIGRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. To go or migrate from, to emigrate, ex agris in urbem; d. hinc ex hominum vita, to die; trop., non d. de statu suo, not to yield, depart from.

DE-MINUO, ui, ūtum, 8. v. tr. 1) With that as object by the taking away of which any thing is diminished—to take away from something: d. quinque numos de una mina; d. aliquid de mea in eum benevolentia, ex regia potestate. 2) With that as object from which something is taken away—to diminish, to lessen (cf. diminuo): d. copias; inopia d. vires militum; d. dignitatem, potentiam alicujus, to weaken. In partic., d. ee or deminui capite, to lose one's political rights or to have them infringed.

DEMINUTIO, ōnis, f. [deminuo]. A diminishing, lessening, civium, vectigalium; tanta d. fit de imperio; d. provinciae, an abridging of one's term of office in a province; d. mentis (lat.), a being out of one's senses; d. capitis, the loss or diminution of one's civil rights; d. sui, a loss of honour, dignity; in gramm. = a diminutive form.

DE-MIROR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. To wonder greatly at (usually with censure implied—cf. miror, admiror): d. audaciam illorum; d. eos hoc sperasse; demiror quid sit (Com.), I wonder.

DEMISSE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [demissus]. 1) Low: demisse volare. 2) Trop.: A) modestly, humbly: B) without courage, pusillanimously.

DEMISSICIUS, a, um, adj. [demitto]. (Pl.) Hanging down.

DEMISSIO, ōnis, f. [demitto]. *1) A letting down, lowering, storiārum. 2) Trop., d. animi, dejection, despondency.

DEMISsus, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of demitto]. 1) Lowered, hanging down, bowed down, caput. 2) Of places, lying low, low, locus. 3) Trop.: A) modest, meek, unassuming, humble: B) disheartened, dejected: C) vox d., low: D) in low circumstances, indigent, poor.

*DE-MITIGO, 1. v. tr. To make milder, aliquid; pass., to grow milder, to relax.

DE-MITTO, misi, missum, 8. v. tr. 1) To send down, to let down, to lower, to throw, to bring or sink down: d. imbrem coelo; d. tunicam usque ad talas, to cause to fall or hang down; d. sublimas in terram; d. numum in loculos; d. antennas, arma; (poet.) d. aliquem neci, Stygiae nocti, to send down to death, to Stygian night; d. puteum alte (poet.), to sink deep into the ground; d. agmen in vallem, equites in inferiorem campum, to lead down, to order to march down; d. aliquem in carcerem, to cast into prison; d. se in Ciliciam, to travel down to; d. se or caput, to bow, to stoop; d. equum in flumen, in cavam viam, to drive down; d. oculos, vultum, to cast down. Hence, trop.—a) demissus ab aliquo (poet.), descended from; demissus de coelo, sent down from heaven (of a precious good, obtained in a supernatural way); prov., demissis manibus fugere (Com.) = in great haste—b) d. aliquid in pectus suum, to impress upon—c) d. se in res turbulentas, in causam, eo, to venture into, to engage in any thing critical; fortuna me d. in eum casum, has brought me into—d) d. se ad minora, ad servilem patientiam, to condescend—e) d. animum, to lose courage, to become disheartened.

DEMIURGUS, i, m. [= ἐμιοῦργος]. The chief magistrate in certain Greek states.

DEMO, mpsi, mptum, 8. v. tr. [de-emo]. To take away (without the idea of force or violation of law—cf. aufero, adimo, etc.): d. securas de fascibus; (poet.) d. fetus ex arbore, juga bobus; d. soleas, vincula, to take off; trop., d. necessitudinem alicui, sollicitudinem; aliquid demptum est ex dignitate populi; per se, dempto auctore, even putting the author out of the question.

DEMOCRITEUS, or Dēmōcritus, a, um, adj. [= Δημοκρίτης]. Of or belonging to Democritus; hence, subst.—a) Democritii, ōrum, m. pl., the followers of Democritus—b) Democritia, ōrum, n. pl., the doctrines of Democritus.

DEMOCRITICUS, a, um, adj. [Democritus]. Of or belonging to Democritus: D. philosophi, the followers of Democritus.

DEMOCRITUS, i, m. [= Δημοκρίτης]. A celebrated philosopher of Abdera, who taught that the world had sprung from atoms—lived about 460 B. C.

DEMŌLEŌN, ontis, m. [= Δημολεών]. A centaur slain by Persaeus.

DE-MŌLIOR, itus, 4. v. dep. tr. 1) To tear or pull down, to demolish, statuum, parietum, domum. Hence, trop., to destroy, to annihilate, jus. *2) To cast off: d. culpam a se, to discharge one's self of blame.

DEMŌLITIO, ōnis, f. [demolior]. A tearing down, demolishing.

DEMONSTRATIO, ōnis, f. [demonstro]. 1) A pointing out, indicating, an exact description or representation; hence, in rhetoric, a demonstration; also in the pl. 2) A species of oratory.

DEMONSTRATIVUS, a, um, adj. [demonstro]. Prop., indicating, pointing out; hence, demonstrative, i. e., describing the excellencies or the faults of a particular individual, and praising or blaming him accordingly: d. genus orationis. Hence, subst., Demonstrativa, ae, f. = genus orationis d.

*DĒMONSTRĀTOR, ōris, m. [demonstro]. One who shows or indicates, an indicator: d. uniuscujusque sepeliendi, of the place where each was to be buried.

DĒ-MONSTRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To point out, to show, to indicate, to designate: d. figuram digito, hominem alicui; hence, in the lang. of law, d. fines alicui, to transfer an estate. 2) To point out by speech or writing: A) = to mention, to state, to declare, to say, alicui rem, aliquid scripto; causae quas supra demonstravi; d. te id cogitasse, quid illud sit: B) to prove, to show, to demonstrate, illum esse felicissimum.

DĒMŌPHŌON, ontis, m. [= Δημόφρων]. 1) A son of Thecus and Phaedra, one of the combatants before Troy. 2) A companion of Aeneas.

DĒ-MORDEO, —, morsum, 2. v. tr. (Lat.) To bite off.

DĒ-MŌRIOR, mortuus, 3. v. dep. intr. 1) To die off, to die (out of a certain number, class, &c. — cf. morior, etc.): familiares nostri dd. 2) Trop.: A) (Com.) potationes dd., are dead and gone: B) d. aliquam, to die for love of any one.

DĒ-MŌROR, ātus, 1. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr. (rar., ante-cl. & lat.), to loiter, to linger. 2) Tr., to detain, to delay, aliquem, novissimum agmen; (poet.) d. Teucros armis, to restrain from battle; d. austros, to make the south winds wait, i. e., to prevent one from availing himself of a favourable south wind; d. annos, to detain the years = to remain alive (of an old man); d. mortalia arma, to expect.

DĒMOSTHĒNES, is, m. [= Δημοσθένης]. 1) An Athenian general in the Peloponnesian war. 2) The most celebrated of the Greek orators — lived about 350 B. C.

DĒ-MŌVEO, mōvi, mōtum, 2. v. tr. To move away, to put away, to remove, aliquem de loco, hostes gradu; d. oculos ab aliquo, to turn away; in partic. = to drive one away from a property, to remove by violence; hence, trop., d. aliquem gradu, to compel to give ground; Pompeius vestri facti praejudicio demotus, forced to yield; d. hunc ab illorum causis, to detach from; d. odium ab aliquo, to avert; d. animum de statu, to put out of countenance, to disconcert.

*DĒ-MŪGITUS, a, um, adj. [part. of the unusual de-mugio]. (Poet.) Filled with the lowing of cattle.

DĒ-MULCEO, —, letum, 2. v. tr. To stroke with the hand, caput alicui; also, trop., to caress.

DĒMUM, adv. 1) Just, precisely, exactly, indeed: ille d.; ibi d.; quae d. causae, pray, what reason? 2) (Mostly lat.) Only, solely, exclusively: id d. juvat; suis d. oculis credidit; ita d., thus only. 3) With adv. of time, only = not till: nunc d., only now, now for the first time; thus, likewise, tum or tunc d.; post d., not until later; modo d., not until lately; ibi d., then only. 4) (Lat.) = Tandem, at length (of a thing expected or wished for). 5) (Lat.) In an enumeration = denique, finally.

*DĒ-MURMŪRO, 1. v. tr. (Poet.) To mutter over, carmen.

DĒMŪTATIO, ōnis, f. [demuto]. (Doubtful reading.) A changing, change.

DĒ-MŪTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) Tr., to change, to alter — often = to alter for the worse (cf. muto and immuto): d. orationem suam, ingenium. 2) Intr., to alter, to change, to become different.

DĒNĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [deni]. Pertaining to or containing ten; esp., freq. numus d., or also abs., as subst., Denarius, ii, m., a Roman silver coin, originally = ten asses, later = eighteen asses; in value, equivalent to an Attic drachma; trop., solvere ad d., to the last farthing.

DĒ-NARRO, 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl., poet. & lat.) To tell in order, to relate, alicui aliquid.

*DĒNĀSO, 1. v. tr. [de-nasus]. To deprive of the nose, os alicui.

*DĒ-NĀTO, 1. v. intr. (Poet.) To swim down.

DĒ-NĒGO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) (Rar.) To deny, to declare that a thing is not so: d. datum esse quod datum est. 2) To refuse, to deny (a request, entreaty, &c. — cf. nego), alicui aliquid; (poet.) d. facere aliquid, to refuse to do a thing.

DĒNI, ae, a, adj. num. distr. in the pl. [decem]. 1) Ten at a time, ten each: uxores habent deni inter se communes; adduxerunt denos ad colloquium. 2) (Poet. & lat.) With numeral adverbs = ten: bis dd.; ter dd.

DĒNICĀLIS, e, adj. [de-nex]. Purifying from death: feriae dd., or abs., as subst., Denicales, ium, f. pl., a funeral solemnity, a solemn purification of the Roman families, in honour of their deceased members, to whom sacrifices were offered.

DĒNIQUE, adv. 1) (Rar.) Then, thereupon, after that: ille imperat reliquis civitatibus obides; d. ei rei constituit diem, huc omnes convenire jubet; quid d. agitis? what are you doing now? 2) Of time, at last, finally = postremo: quo evasurum hoc d. est? Hence: A) sometimes = tandem, at length, now at length (to denote something long expected): hoc ex tuis literis d. cognovi: B) esp. with adv. of time = demum, only, precisely, just: nunc d.; tum d., only then; thus, likewise, is d. 3) Very freq., to denote the close of a series — finally, lastly. 4) In adding a stronger or more general idea to the one preceding — nay rather, in short, in fine, in a word: pernegabo, perjurabo d.; video te fodere aut arare aut aliquid facere d.; vitavi d. culpam, at the most. Hence = anyhow, at least: nostros praesidia deducturos aut d. intelligen-tus servaturos crediderunt. 5) (Lat.) = Ideo, hence, therefore, accordingly.

DENOMINATIO, ōnis, f. [denomino]. (Lat.) The designation of a thing by some other than its proper name, the use of one word instead of another (as, Vulcanus instead of ignis), metonymy.

DE-NOMINO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To name, to designate, to denominate, aliquem hinc.

DE-NORMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [norma]. (Poet. & lat.) To make irregular in shape, agrum.

DENŌTATIO, ōnis, f. [denoto]. (Lat.) A marking or pointing out.

DE-NŌTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To mark, to note, to point out, to designate, rem; d. aliquem necandum. 2) To distinguish or perceive clearly, rem.

DENS, tis, m. 1) A tooth: dd. adversi, the front teeth; dd. genuini or maxillares, the jaw teeth or grinders; d. Indus (poet.) = ivory; prov., albis dd. deridere aliquem (Pl. — v. Albus). 2) Of things in the form of a tooth, e. g., the tooth of a comb, saw, &c., the fluke of an anchor, coulter of a plough, a prong, spike: dd. aratri, pectinis, serrae. 3) Trop., envy.

DENSATIO, ōnis, f. [denso]. (Lat.) A thickening.

DENSE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [densus]. 1) Thickly, closely. 2) Of time, frequently.

DENSEO, —, —, 2. } v. tr. [densus]. To
DENSO, —, ātum, 1. } thicken, to make thick, to join closely together, to press together: d. ignem, catervas, ordines; d. acuta super capita, to hold the shields close together over their heads; trop., d. orationem (lat.), to condense; (poet.) tenebrae densantur, thickens; coelum densetur, is clouded, overcast.

DENSITAS, ātis, f. [densus]. (Lat.) 1) Thickness. 2) Trop., condensation, sententiarum.

DENSUS, a, um, adj. with comp. & sup. 1) Thick, dense (consisting of parts closely united — of crassus and spissus; opp. to rarus); d. silva, agmen, aer, nimbus, corpus: poet., with abl., full of any thing, crowded with: specus d. virginis. Hence, trop., of discourse, condensed, concise: Thucydides d. et brevis. 2) (Poet.) Of the parts themselves of which a thing is composed: A) thick = closely joined together, set close: dd. frutices, comae, hostes: B) of time, closely following each other, repeated frequently, frequent, plagae, amores.

DENTĀLIA, ium, n. pl. [dens]. A share-beam of a plough; hence, a ploughshare.

DENTĀTUS, a, um, adj. [dens]. 1) Furnished with teeth, toothed, puella: male dentata, having bad teeth; hence, furnished with any thing in the form of a tooth, pointed, spiked, toothed, serra; trop. (poet.) = biting, frigus, ignis. *2) Pel-ished with a tooth, charta. 3) A Roman cognomen; as, M. Curius Dentatus.

DENTER, tris, m. [dens]. A surname of M. Livius (consul 302 B. C.).

DENTIFRANGIBŪLUS, i, m., and Dentifrangibulum, i, n. [dens-frango]. (Pl.) A tooth-breaker (the masc., of a person; the neut., jokingly, of the fist).

DENTILĒGUS, i, m. [dens-lego]. (Pl.) One who picks up his teeth that have been knocked out, a tooth-gatherer.

DENTIO, 4. v. intr. [dens]. 1) (Lat.) To teeth, to breed or cut teeth (of children). 2) (Pl.) Dentes dd., ache from hunger.

DE-NŪBO, psi, ptum, 3. v. intr. (Poet. & lat.) To marry (of a woman, prob. beneath her station in life), in domum ejus.

DE-NŪDO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To make naked, to lay bare, to uncover, aliquem, ossa. 2) Trop.: A) to reveal, consilium suum alicui: B) to plunder, aliquem.

DENUNCIATIO, ōnis, f. [denuncio]. An announcement, intimation, proclamation, victoriae; d. belli, a declaration; d. periculi, a menacing; d. testimonii, a threatening to summon one as witness; d. Catilinae = the order, command; d. accusatoris, a denunciation.

DE-NUNCIO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To announce, to intimate, to proclaim, to declare, to notify (esp. as a tech. t. in the lang. of politics, religion, and law): d. alicui aliquid, bellum populo Romano; d. collegam cum hoste pugnasse, quid sentias; denuncio tibi ut ad me scribas, I enjoin upon you; d. ne saltum illum transeas, I command; thus, likewise, d. manus abstineant. In partic.: A) of omens, &c., prodigia Caesaris caedem dd.: B) d. alicui testimonium, to summon one as witness.

DĒNUO, adv. [contr. from de-novo]. Anew (mostly colloq.): 1) denoting a restoration of that which has been destroyed = de integro: urbes subversas d. condidit. 2) Denoting a repetition = rursus, a second time, once more, again: dixi equidem sed dicam d. 3) (Com.) Denoting a return to a former state or change from the present — again: aperi —, continuo operito d., shut it again immediately.

DEŌIS, idis, f. [= Διὸς]. (Poet.) The daughter of Deo (Δη = Ceres), i. e., Proserpina.

DEŌIUS, a, um, adj. [Deois]. (Poet.) Pertaining to or sacred to Deo (= Ceres).

DE-ŌNĒRO, 1. v. tr. To unload, to disburden, navem; trop., d. aliquid ex illius invidia, to take away.

DEORSUM, adv. [de-vorsum = versum]. 1) Of motion, downwards, ferri; sursum d., upwards and downwards, up and down. 2) (Antecl.) Of position, below, underneath.

DE-OSCŪLOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. 1) (Ante-cl.) To kiss affectionately, aliquam. 3) Trop. (Lat.) To praise highly.

DE-PASCOR (or Dĕ-pōiscor), pactus, 8. v. dep. tr. 1) To stipulate or bargain for: d. partem cum illo; d. sibi tris praedia. 2) Abs., to make an agreement or contract, cum aliquo; morte d. cupio, I am content to make a bargain with death, i. e., to die.

*DEPALMO, 1. v. tr. [de-palma]. To strike with the open hand, to box on the ear.

DE-PANGO, —, pactum, 8. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To drive or to fix into (in a downward direction): d. aliquid in terram.

*DE-PARCUS, a, um, adj. (Lat.) Very sparing, niggardly.

DE-PASCO, pāvi, pastum, } 8. v. tr. 1) Of a DE-PALCO, pastus, dep. } shepherd (in act. form only), to pasture upon, to feed off, saltum. 2) Of cattle: A) to feed or browse upon, segetes: hence, B) improp. — a) in gen., to eat up, to consume: serpens d. miseros artus; altaria depasta, on which the flesh of the victims has been consumed — b) trop., a) febris d. artus, consumes, makes thin and meagre; β) = to take away, to remove: luxuriam d. stilo.

*DEPASTIO, ōnis, f. [depascor]. (Lat.) A feeding, browsing.

DE-PECTO, —, xum, 8. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To comb down, crines; trop., d. aliquem = to cudgel.

*DEPECULĀTOR, ōris, m. [depeculor]. A plunderer.

DE-PECULOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. To plunder, to rob, to pillage, to rifle: d. templum omni argento; trop., d. laudem familiae tuae, to diminish, to injure.

DE-PELLO, pūli, pulsum, 8. v. tr. 1) To thrust, drive, or chase down or away, to expel, to force away: d. aliquem equo; simulacra decorum depulsa (= dejecta); d. aliquem rectā viā, anseres de Falerno. In partic. — a) of an enemy, &c., d. hostem totā Siciliā, praesidia barbarorum ex his regionibus — b) d. puerum a matre, lacte, to wean. 2) Trop., to keep or ward off, to deter, to divert: d. omnes molestias; d. turpitudinem, pericula alicui; d. aliquem sententiā, a superioribus consiliis, to make one desist from; d. aliquem spe, to deprive of hope; non d. aliquem dictis quin, etc., not to deter by words from; but, d. aliquid dictis (Lucr.) = to deny. *3) Intr. (Lucr.), to deviate.

DE-PENDEO, 2. v. intr. 1) To hang down: pugio d. a cervicibus; galea d. ramis. 2) Trop.: A) (poet.) to depend upon, to rest upon; d. a die veniente: B) of words, to be derived.

DE-PENDO, di, sum, 8. v. tr. & intr. 1) Tr., to pay, alicui aliquid; d. reipublicae poenas, to suffer the punishment merited by one's conduct towards the state, to render atonement to the state.

2) To spend, tempora amori; d. caput armis to give up. *3) (Pl.) Intr., to weigh less.

DE-PERDO, didi, ditum, 8. v. tr. 1) To destroy, to ruin (used only in the part. deperditus as an adj.): d. inopiā, impoverished by; d. amore dying with. 2) To lose, bona et honestatem, aliquid de existimatione sua; in the part., deperditus (lat.), corrupt, abandoned.

DE-PĒREO, ii, 4. v. intr. 1) To go to ruin, to be lost, to perish: naves, exercitus, homo d. 2) Trop. (mostly colloq. & lat.), to be desperately in love with some one, aliquam.

DEPILO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. [pilus]. To deprive of hair or feathers, to pluck.

DE-PINGO, nxi, ictum, 8. v. tr. 1) To paint, to depict, imaginem, pugnam Marathoniam. 2) Trop., to represent by means of discourse or in one's mind, to describe, to depict, to represent, aliquem, vitam alicujus; d. cogitatione aliquid, to imagine; minuta quaedam nimiumque depicta, too elaborately painted. *3) (Lat.) To embroider.

DE-PLANGO, nxi, 8. v. tr. (Poet.) To bewail, to lament, aliquem.

DE-PLEO, ēvi, ētum, 2. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To empty out, to rack off, oleum; d. sanguinem, to let blood.

*DEPLEXUS, a, um, part. of the unusual delector. (Lucr.) Grasping, embracing.

*DEPLORĀBUNDUS, a, um, adj. [deploro]. (Pl.) Lamenting, weeping bitterly.

DEPLORĀTIO, ōnis, f. [deploro]. (Lat.) A lamenting, bewailing.

DE-PLORO, ēvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to weep bitterly, to moan, to complain, de re aliqua. 2) Tr., to bewail, to lament, to deplore, aliquid, multa de illo. 3) To deplore as lost, to give up, legiones, spem, nomen Romanum.

DE-PLUIT, —, —, 8. v. intr. — only in the third pers. sing. (Poet.) It rains down.

DE-PŌLIO, —, Itum, 4. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To polish off, to polish; jocosely (Pl.), aliquem virgis, to cudgel.

DE-PŌNO, pōsi, pōsitum, 8. v. tr. 1) To lay, to place, to put or set down: d. arma; d. plantas sulcis, to plant; d. coronam in aram, caput in gremio alicujus; d. librum de manibus; d. exercitum in terram, to land, to disembark; trop. (Pl.) d. aliquem vino, to drink down; (poet.) = to lay down as a stake or wager. 2) To lay down for safe-keeping and preservation, to deposit, to set in a place of safety: d. gladium apud te; d. obsequia apud eos, pecuniam in templo, omnia sua in silvas; trop. = to entrust, to commit to the care of, rem in amicorum fide. 3) To lay down, to abandon, to give up, to resign, contentionem, invidiam, consilium adeundae Syriae, dictaturum, imperium. Hence = to decline, to refuse: d. triumphum, provinciam. 4) Part. depositus = dying or dead, deceased (as it was the custom to take persons who were dying, or who had just died, out of their beds, and lay them on the ground), parens; trop., reipublicae pars d., given up, lost.

DEPŌPŪLATIO, ōnis, f. [depopulor]. A laying waste, pillaging.

DEPŌPŪLATOR, ōris, m. [depopulor]. One who lays waste or pillages, a pillager.

DE-PŌPŪLOR, ātus, dep., also (ante-cl. & lat.) DEPŏpŭlo, —, ātum, l. v. tr. To lay waste, to pillage, agros, multas urbes.

DE-PORTO, āvi, ātum, l. v. tr. 1) To carry or convey down, to bring down or away: d. frumentum in castra; naves quae exercitum eo deportaverunt; thus, likewise, d. victorem exercitum; d. triumphum, gloriam ex illis gentibus, to gain, to obtain; d. aliquid ex provincia, to bring along with one's self. 2) (Lat.) To banish to a remote place, to transport (with the loss of civil rights — cf. relego).

DE-PŌSCO, pŏposci, 3. v. tr. 1) To demand urgently, to demand as a right, unum imperatorem, aliquid; d. sibi has partes, consulatum. 2) In partic.: A) to demand that a person be delivered over or brought to punishment: d. aliquem ad poenam, ad mortem, and (lat.) morti, to insist on one's death: B) to challenge to a fight.

DEPŌSĪTIO, ōnis, f. [depono]. (Lat.) Prop., a laying down; in rhetoric, a breaking off, stopping at the end of a period.

DE-POSTŪLO, l. v. tr. To demand urgently.

DE-PRAEDOR, ātus, l. v. dep. tr. (Lat.) To pillage, agros.

DEPRĀVĀTE, adv. [depravatus, part. of depravo]. Perversely.

DEPRĀVATIO, ōnis, f. [depravo]. A perverting, distorting, disfiguring, oris; trop., a deforming, depraving, animi; d. verbi, misinterpretation; d. consuetudinum, corruption.

DE-PRĀVO, āvi, ātum, l. v. tr. To pervert, to distort, to disfigure, oculos, rem; trop., to corrupt, to deprave: d. puerum indulgentiā, mores; seducere ad d.

DEPRĒCĀBUNDUS, a, um, adj. [deprecor]. (Lat.) Earnestly entreating.

DEPRĒCĀNEUS, a, um, adj. [deprecor]. (Lat.) That may be averted by praying.

DEPRĒCATIO, ōnis, f. [deprecor]. 1) A praying that an evil may be averted, a deprecation: d. periculi. 2) A praying for excuse or pardon = deprecation: d. facti illius. 3) An imprecation: d. deorum, an imprecating of divine punishment (in case one commits a perjury).

DEPRĒCATOR, ōris, m. [deprecor]. One who averts by praying, an intercessor.

DE-PRĒCOR, ātus, l. v. dep. tr. 1) To pray against, to seek to avert by praying, to deprecate: d. justam querimoniam, mortem. 2) To ask or beseech one instantly for a thing, to implore (esp. when an evil is to be averted): d. aliquem ne festinet; also, with an acc. of the thing prayed for: unum hoc deprecor ne putetis, etc. Hence = to obtain or rescue by praying that which is in danger — a) d. multorum vitam ab aliquo, pacem — d. aliquem a civibus, to obtain pardon for one by intercession, to rescue his life. *3) In asking for pardon, to allege as an excuse, to plead in excuse: legati dd., regem scelere Jugurthae lapsum esse. 4) To imprecate, to invoke an evil upon one.

DE-PRĒHENDO, di, sum, 3. v. tr. 1) To seize, to catch, to stop, to snatch away: d. aliquem in ipso fluminis vado, partem legatorum, onerarias naves; (poet.) flamina deprensa ventis, restrained, delayed. 2) To take in the act, to catch, to surprise one (esp. in doing something bad — cf. comprehendo): d. aliquem in maximo scelere, hostes sine duce, serpentem in via; freq., of a storm, &c., to overtake a ship. Hence, trop., to embarrass, to drive into a strait; freq., in the pass., deprehensus negare non potuit. 3) (= Comprehendo.) To discover, to notice, to perceive, to learn, to see, &c., facinus, venenum, falsas gemmas; lector aliquid d.; (rar.) d. aliquos mitti.

DEPRĒHENSIO, ōnis, f. [deprehendo]. A discovery.

DEPRESSE, adv. with comp. [depressus]. Deeply.

DEPRESSUS, a, um, adj. with comp. & sup. [deprimo]. 1) Low, lying deep, locus. 2) Of speech, low, bad. 3) Of the voice, low, suppressed.

DEPRĪMO, pressi, pressum, 3. v. tr. 1) To press or sink down, to depress: onus d. me; d. aratrum in terram. Hence: A) d. navem, to sink to the bottom, to sink: B) to sink or dig deep: d. fossam; locus duodecim pedes humi depressus; saxum in mirandam altitudinem depressum, lying deep. 2) Trop., to press down, to suppress, veritatem, aliquem; d. preces alicujus, to silence.

DEPROELIANS, tis, adj. [part. of the unusual de-proelior]. (Poet.) Combating violently.

DE-PRŌMO, prompei, promptum, 3. v. tr. To draw forth, to take or bring out, pecuniam ex aerario; trop. d. argumenta ex his locis.

DE-PRŌPERO, l. v. intr. & tr. (Ante-cl. & poet.) 1) Intr., to hasten, sacrificare. 2) Tr., to accelerate: d. coronas, to procure quickly.

DEPSO, psui, psutum, 3. v. tr. [= δεψω]. To knead, farinam; d. coriam, to tan.

DE-PŪDET, uit, 2. v. impers. (Poet. & lat.) 1) To be ashamed: d. me hoc facere, I am ashamed to do this. 2) To lose all shame, to be past shame: d. aliquid facere, I cease to be ashamed of doing this.

DE-PŪDICO, l. v. tr. (Ante-cl.) To deprive of chastity, to dishonour, aliquam.

DE-PUGNO, āvi, ātum, l. v. intr. & tr. To fight to a decisive issue, to bring a combat to an end, to fight eagerly: d. acie instructa, cum aliquo; cogi ad depugnandum, to be forced to a decisive battle; (Pl.) d. proelium, to fight out.

DEPULSIO, ōnis, f. [depello]. 1) A warding off, averting, mali, servitutis. 2) D. luminum, the falling down of rays of light.

DE-PULSO, 1. v. tr. (Pl.) To push aside.

DEPULSOR, ōris, m. [depello]. (Rar.) One who wards off or averts, an averter, dominatus.

*DE-PUNGO, 3. v. tr. (Pers.) To mark off.

DE-PURGO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To clean out, to cleanse, pisces.

DE-PŪTO (I.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To cut off, to prune, malleolum, vineam.

DE-PŪTO (II.), 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) = Puto. To deem, to consider, to count: d. suam operam parvi pretii; d. aliquem hominem; d. aliquid in lucro, to regard as a profit.

*DEPYGIS, e, adj. [de-pyga]. (Poet.) Without buttocks, with thin buttocks.

DE-RĀDO, si, sum, 3. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To scrape or rub off, to shave off: d. capillum ex capite or d. caput, the hair; margo derasus cunctis, bare.

DERBE, es, f. [= Δερβη]. A town in Lydia.

DERBETES, is, m. [= Δερβήτης]. An inhabitant of Derbe.

DERCETIS, is, or Derceto, ūs, f. [= Δερκετώ]. A Syrian goddess, supposed to be the same as Aphrodite, and worshipped under the form of a fish.

DERELICTIO, ōnis, f., and (lat.) *Dērelīctus, ūs, m. [derelinquo]. An abandoning = a disregarding, neglecting.

DE-RELINQUO, hui, lictum, 3. v. tr. To leave entirely, to forsake, to leave behind; hence, to neglect (of. relinquo): d. aliquem, orationes; naves derelictae ab aestu; res desertae ac derelictae; derelictus ab aliquo, disregarded, treated with indifference.

DE-RĒPENTE, adv. (Mostly ante-cl.) Suddenly.

DE-RĒPO, psi, —, 3. v. intr. (Poet. & lat.) To creep down.

DE-RIDEO, si, sum, 2. v. tr. To laugh or scoff at, to deride, aliquem, dictum.

DERIDICŪLUS, a, um, adj. [derideo]. Very ridiculous; hence, subst., Deridiculum, i, n., an object of ridicule, a laughing-stock: deridiculo esse; ad dd., for fun.

DE-RIGESCO, gui, —, 3. v. incho. intr. (Poet.) To grow wholly stiff or entirely rigid.

DERĪPIO, ipui, eptum, 3. v. tr. [de-rapio]. To pull or tear down, to tear off, to tear away or loose: d. aliquem de ara, vestem a pectore, pellem leoni; d. lunam coelo (poet.), to draw down; trop., d. tantum de alienjus auctoritate, to diminish, to detract from.

DERISOR, ōris, m. [derideo]. (Poet. & lat.)

A meeker, scoffer, scoerner; also = a jester, a buffoon: d. imi lecti (of the scurra q. v.).

DERISUS, ūs, m. [derideo]. (Lat.) Derision, scorn.

DĒRIVATIO, ōnis, f. [derivo]. 1) A turning off, fluminum. 2) In rhetoric, an exchange of a word for a milder one of a similar meaning (as, fortis instead of temerarius).

DĒRIVO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [de-rivus]. To turn off, to convey from its regular course (esp. water), aquam ex flumine; trop., d. cogitationem in Asiam, to direct to; d. culpam in aliquem, to lay the blame upon; in grammar, to derive one word from another.

DĒRŌGATIO, ōnis, f. [derogo]. A partial abrogation, i. e., limitation of a law effected by the repealing of a clause.

*DĒ-RŌGITO, 1. v. tr. (Pl.) To ask repeatedly.

DE-RŌGO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. Prop., to demand from. Hence, 1) to take away or detract from, to diminish: d. aliquid de honestate, ex aequitate; freq., d. alicui aliquid, esp. d. alicui fidem = to deny or not to give credit to. 2) D. legi or aliquid de lege, to abrogate a part of a law, to limit or restrict it.

DERŌSUS, a, um, part. of the unusual derodo. Gnawed away.

DERTŌNA, ae, f. A town in Liguria — now Tortona.

DERUNCINO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. [de-runcina]. To plane off; trop., d. aliquem, to deceive.

DE-RUO, ui, —, 3. v. tr. To cast or throw down: hiems d. aquam; trop., d. cumulum de laudibus alienjus, to take away the excess of one's glory.

DERUPTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of the unusual derumpo]. Precipitous, steep, ripa; as subst., Derapta, ōrum, n. pl., precipices.

DE-SACRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat. > 1) To consecrate; hence, to deify. *2) To destine to any use.

DE-SAEVIO, ii, 4. v. intr. (Lat.) To rage furiously: hiems d.

DE-SALTO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To dance through, to represent by dancing, canticum.

DESCENDO, di, sum, 3. v. intr. [de-scando].

1) To go or come down, to fall down, to descend: d. ex equis, de rostris; d. ad naves, ad mare, in campum; thus, likewise, d. in forum, to descend to the forum (the Roman market-place lying between two hills); also abs., hodie non descendit, he does not make his appearance in the forum; exercitus d. in planiciem, marches down; ferrum alte d. in corpus, penetrates deeply; thus, likewise, trop., verbum d. in pectus, sinks into; and, injuria d. altius, affects, makes a deep impression upon, his mind. Hence, more generally, exercitus d. in proelium, in aciem, enters into, engages in battle. Also = to dismount, to alight.

3) Top.: A) vox d., is lowered: B) aliquid d. in aures judicis, is submitted to the examination of the critic: C) to lower one's self or descend to, to yield or agree to (something unworthy or disagreeable): d. ad vim et arma, ad accusandum; d. ad praemia frontis urbanae, to strive after the rewards frequently obtained by boldness and impudence: D) d. ab antiquis (lat.), to be inferior to.

DESCENSIO, ōnis, f., and (lat.) Descensus, ūs, m. 1) A descending; hence, concr., a descending way, descent: difficilis d. *2) (Descensio only—lat.) A descent or sunken place in a bathing-room.

DE-SCISCO, Ivi or ii, Itum, 3. v. intr. 1) To revolt from, to desert, to go over to: d. a Latinis ad Romanos, to go over from the Latins to the Romans. 2) Top., to deviate, to depart, a veritate, a pristina causa; d. ad saevitiam, to degenerate or fall into; d. a vita, to depart this life = to die.

DE-SCRIBO, psi, ptum, 3. v. tr. 1) To delineate, to draw, formas geometricas in arena. 2) To describe, to represent by words or writing, to depict: d. mores hominum; d. aliquem latro-nem, any one as a robber; rarely with an accus. c. infn. 3) To divide into parts, to classify, annum in duodecim menses; d. populum censu, according to their property. 4) To apportion, to assign, to appoint to any one as his share: d. bona comitibus suis, to distribute among; d. duodena jugera ip singulos homines; d. civitatibus pecunias, to apportion the sum of money to be raised among the states; d. jura, to determine the rights of each, to regulate their legal affairs. 5) To copy, to transcribe, librum.

DESCRIBE, adv. [descriptus]. In good order, methodically.

DESCRIPTIO, ōnis, f. [describo]. 1) A sketch, delineation, coeli. 2) A description, representation; in rhetoric, a characterizing. 3) A division, distribution, populi, rerum fugien-darum expetendarumque. 4) A disposition, arrangement: d. civitatis; d. aedificandi, the plan of a building.

*DESCRIPTIUNCŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of descriptio]. (Lat.) A short description.

DESCRIPTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of describo]. Well-arranged or distributed, regular, orderly.

DE-SECO, cui, otum, 1. v. tr. To cut off, partes ex toto, segetem, callum.

DE-SERO, rui, rtum, 3. v. tr. Prop., to leave the ranks (series); hence, to leave, to forsake, to abandon = to sever a connexion with one or several persons (cf. relinquo, destituo, etc.): d. aliquem. In partic., very freq. = to leave contrary to one's duty—a) = destituo, to leave in the lurch: d. amicum—b) of soldiers, to desert: d. exercitum—c) d. officium, to neglect one's duty; d. rempublicam, not to fulfil one's duty towards the state; d. sacra, to neglect—d) d. jus suum, to abandon, to give up—e) d. vadimonium (v. Vadimonium).

DESERTIO, ōnis, f. [desero]. A neglecting, alighting, juria.

DESERTOR, ōria, m. [desero]. One who neglects or forsakes, amicum; in partic., as a military tech. t., a deserter.

DESERTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of desero]. 1) Waste, desolate, desert, uninhabited, locus; hence (poet. & lat.), subst., Deserta, ōrum, n. pl., desert places, deserts. 2) Solitary, lonely, single, arbores; reditus d., not noticed or cared for by anybody.

DESERVIO, 4. v. tr. To serve zealously, to be devoted to, to be subject to, alicui; d. corpori, to be enslaved to the body; d. studiis, to apply one's self zealously to.

DĒSES, Idie, adj. (the nom. sing. seems to be unusual) [desideo]. Indolent, inactive, idle, homo, res Romana, vita.

DĒ-SICCO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Pl.) To dry up, vasa.

DĒSIDEO, sēdi, —, 2. v. intr. [de-sedeo]. (Rar.) Prop., to sit down, i. e. = to remain inactive somewhere, to be inactive or idle: d. totum diem; d. in discrimine sociorum.

DĒSIDĒRABILIS, e, adj. w. comp. [desidero]. Desirable.

DĒSIDĒRATIO, ōnis, f. [desidero]. (Rar.) A desire, wish.

DĒSIDĒRIUM, ii, n. [desidero]. 1) A desire, longing for any thing lost or no longer possessed: desiderium rerum mihi carissimarum; hence, freq. = regret, grief for the loss of a person or thing: desiderium ejus ferre non possum, his loss, to have lost him. 2) D. naturale or corporis, a natural necessity. 3) (Lat.) A request, petition: ferre d. militum ad Caesarem. 4) A person longed for: valete mea dd. valete.

DĒSIDĒRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To desire, to wish, to long for: d. aliquem, vires adolescentis; oculi mei te dd., long after you; d. aliquid ad me importari. Hence, d. aliquid ab aliquo, to ask for, to demand; also, hoc d. longiorem orationem. 2) To miss; hence, to lose: ex me audies, quid in oratione tua desiderem, what I miss in your speech; d. ducentos milites in hoc proelio; nulla omnino navis desiderata est.

DĒSIDIA, ae, f. [desideo]. 1) (Poet.) A remaining long at a place, a lodging. 2) Idleness, inactivity, slothfulness, a doing nothing.

*DĒSIDĪABŪLUM, i, n. [desideo]. (Pl.) A lounging-place.

DĒSIDĪOSE, adv. [desidiosus]. Slothfully, idly.

DĒSIDĪOSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [desidia]. 1) Inactive, slothful, lazy, otium, homo. 2) Making inactive, causing idleness, enervating, delectatio, ars, illecebrae.

DE-SIDO, sēdi, 3. v. intr. To sink down, to settle down: terra d.; trop., mores dd., degenerate, grow worse.

DESIGNATIO, ōnis, f. [designo]. 1) A designating, marking out. 2) An arrangement, or disposition, operis; also = an election, appointment to an office: d. consulatus, to the consulship: d. annua.

DESIGNATOR, ōris, m. [designo]. One who regulates, arranges; in partic. — a) one who assigned the places of the audience in a theatre — b) a master of ceremonies at a funeral — c) the president at public spectacles.

DE-SIGNO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. Prop., to take off the seal from any thing, and thus to bring it to light. 1) To designate, to mark out: d. urbem sulco, to mark out the place for the future town by a furrow; d. locum circō. Hence, trop., to describe by speech or discourse, to represent: A) d. aliquid verbis; d. aliquid oculis, to point out: B) haec dd. nimiam luxuriam, betray: C) (poet.) to cause, to effect: quid non ebrietas d.? Also (Com.), in a bad sense, to perpetrate: modo quid designavit! what a thing he has just perpetrated! 2) To regulate, to arrange, to dispose, to appoint: d. et constituo aliquid. In partic., consul (also quaestor, etc.) designatus, the consul elect (chosen for the next year; trop., designatus reipublicae (of an unborn child), a future citizen.

DESILIO, Ilui, ultum, 4. v. intr. [desalio]. To leap down, de navibus, ex navi, ab equo, e scapula in terram; trop., imitator d. in artum, ventures into a strait, difficulty.

DE-SINO, Ivi or ii, ūtum, 3. v. tr. & intr. 1) Tr., to leave off, to cease or desist from; hence, to omit: d. facere aliquid; rarely d. rem, re aliqua, and (poet. & Gr.) d. querelarum; orationes legi desitas sunt, are not read any longer; thus, likewise, impers., desitum est disputari, it has ceased. 2) Intr., to cease, to end, to come to an end, bellum, imbres. Hence — a) (poet.) d. in piscem, to finish in the form of a fish — b) of a period, similiter d., to end in the same way.

DESPICIENTIA, ae, f. [desipio]. (Lucr.) Foolishness.

DESIPIO, 3. v. intr. [de-sapio]. To be foolish, to act foolishly: dulce est desipere in loco, to play the fool.

DE-SISTO, stīti, stitum, 3. v. intr. To desist or cease from any thing, to give over, to leave off: d. itinere, consilio; d. de sententia, a defensione; (poet.) d. pugnae; (Pl.) non d. quin, etc.: (poet.) sonus d. in ore, stuck in my throat.

DESOLIO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [de-solus]. (Poet. & lat.) To leave alone, to forsake, to abandon, agros; mostly in the part. desolatus, desolate, waste, uninhabited, homo, locus; d. servilibus ministeria, deprived of all attendance.

DE-SPECTO, 1. v. tr. [intens. of despicio].

1) To look down upon, terras; trop., of a place = to overlook, regionem. 2) (Tac.) To despise to condemn.

DESPECTUS, ūs, m. [despicio]. 1) A look out from an elevated place, a view: d. in mare upon the sea. *2) A despising, contempt: de spectui esse, to be despised.

DESPERANTER, adv. [desperans, from despero]. Desperately, hopelessly.

DESPERATIO, ōnis, f. [despero]. Hopelessness, despair, omnium rerum; esse in d.; adducere ad d., to bring to despair.

DESPERATUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of despero]. Past hope, hopeless, despaired of, desperate, homo, respublica.

DE-SPERO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. To have no hope of, to despair of, to give up a thing: d. de re aliqua; d. pacem; rebus desperata, all hope being given up, every thing being despaired of; d. campestria loca, no longer to hope to reach the plains; d. salutis suae, oppido; non d. fore aliquid.

DESPICATIO, ōnis, f. [despicio]. Contempt. DESPICATUS (I.), ūs, m. [despicio]. Contempt, but only in the dat. sing.: despectui esse, to be despised; habere d., to despise.

DESPICATUS (II.), a, um, adj. w. sup. [part. of despicio]. Despised, despicable: habere aliquid d., to despise one.

DESPICIENTIA, ae, f. [despicio]. A slighting, contempt, rerum humanarum.

DESPICIO, exi, ectum, 3. v. tr. [de-specio]. 1) To look down upon, medios in agros; d. varias gentes, on different tribes. 2) Trop., to despise, to condemn, to disdain (cf. contemno, sperno): d. omnes, legionem propter paucitatem, munus.

DESPICOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. [despicio]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To despise, to condemn.

DESPOLIATOR, ōris, m. [despolio]. (Pl.) A plunderer.

DE-SPOLIO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To plunder, to rob, to despoil, templum; d. aliquem, armis.

DE-SPONDEO, ndi, nsum, 2. v. tr. 1) To promise formally, to guarantee: d. alicui aliquid, Romanis imperium; d. sibi hortos; d. consulatum, to reckon upon, to think one's self sure of obtaining; spes despondetur tuo anno, they place their hopes upon your consulate. 2) In partic., freq. d. filiam alicui (also in familiam tam nobilem, into such a noble family), to promise in marriage, to betroth: d. aliquam sibi, to espouse. 3) Trop., to give up: d. animum, to lose courage.

DE-SPONSO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. [despondeo]. (Lat., rar.) = Despondeo 2.

DE-SPUMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. (Poet. & lat.) I. Tr.—1) To take off the scum, to skim, aquam. 2) Trop., to pour down (in a foaming state): d. lacrimas, to shed. II. Intr., to cease foaming, to abate, fervor.

DE SPUO, —, —, 3. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to spit out, in locum; in partic., as a mystic custom, to spit out three times in order to avert witchcraft. 2) Tr., trop., to reject, to disapprove, to disdain, aliquid, preces, voluptates.

DESQUAMO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. [squama]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To scale off, to scale, piscem; hence, in gen., to peel off, to rub or scour off, corticem, vestem.

*DE-STERTO, ui, 3. v. intr. (Pers.) To give over snoring; hence = to give over dreaming.

DESTILLATIO, ōnis, f. [destillo]. (Lat.) A dripping down; in partic. = a rheum, catarrh.

DE-STILLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. (Poet. & lat.) To drip or trickle down; (poet.) tempora dd. nardo, drop with.

DESTINATIO, ōnis, f. [destino]. An appointing; a resolution, determination.

DESTINO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [kindred with terere]. 1) To fasten, to tie, to bind, antennas ad malos; d. naves ancoris, to anchor. 2) To destine, to appoint, to determine: d. aliquid alicui; d. aliquem consulem (in thought or in fact); d. aliquem rei alicui or ad rem, to destine, to doom one to any thing; d. facere aliquid, rar. d. me aliquid facturum; destinatum est mihi abire, I am firmly resolved. Hence: A) as subst., Destinata, ōrum, n. pl., designs, plans: B) (lat.) Destinatio or Ex destinatio, as adv., designedly, on purpose: C) d. locum, to aim at; destinata ferire, to hit the mark: D) d. servam, to select for purchase.

DESTITUO, ui, ūtum, 3. v. tr. [de-statuo]. 1) To set down, to set, to place anywhere, to lead to: d. aliquem ante tribunal, in medio, cohortes extra vallum. 2) To leave one who needs help, &c., to forsake (cf. relinquo, desero), to leave in the lurch, aliquem. 3) Trop.: A) to cheat: d. aliquem mercede, to cheat one out of his reward: B) to deceive, to disappoint: d. spem; and, on the other hand, spes me d., destitutor spe: C) ventus eum d. = ceased against his wish: D) (poet.) d. fugam, to discontinue one's flight.

DESTITUTIO, ōnis, f. [destituo]. A forsaking, disappointing.

DE-STRINGO, inxi, ūtum, 3. v. tr. 1) To strip off, to pull off, tunicaam a pectore; trop., d. aliquid bonis, to take away from. Hence, to cut off, frondem, avenam. 2) Freq., d. gladium, securum, etc., to draw a sword, to unsheath, &c. 3) To graze, to touch gently or on the surface: d. pectus sagittā, aequora alis (of a bird). Hence, of persons bathing = to rub off the body. 4) Trop., to attack with words, to criticise, to censure, aliquem carmine, contumeliā.

DESTRUCTIO, ōnis, f. [destruo 1]. A pulling down, destruction, murorum; trop., d. sententiarum, an invalidating, a refutation.

DE-STRUO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) To pull down (a building, &c.), to demolish, templum.

2) Trop., to ruin, to destroy, to overturn, hominem, jus; d. orationem, to diminish the impression made by; d. hostes, to weaken.

DE-SUB, prep. with abl. (Lat.) Below, beneath: d. Alpihus.

DE-SUBITO, adv. (Mostly ante-cl.) Suddenly.

*DESUDASCO, —, —, 3. v. intr. [desudo]. To sweat greatly.

DE-SUDO, 1. v. intr. Prop., to sweat greatly; trop., to take great pains, to fatigue one's self, in re aliqua, with a thing.

DESUE-FIO, factus, v. pass. To become unaccustomed, a re.

DE-SUESCO, suēvi, suētum, 3. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & rar., except in the part. desuetus). To disaccustom, to render unaccustomed, to put out of use, aliquem.

DESUETUDO, inis, f. [desuetus]. Disuse, desuetudo, armorum.

DESUETUS, a, um, adj. [part. of desuesco].

1) Of a person, unaccustomed, unused to: corda dd.; d. bello. 2) Pass., of a thing, disused, unusual, arma, res, verba.

DESULTOR, ōris, m. [desilio]. One who leaps or vaults, in the games of the circus, from one horse to another, a leaper, vaulter, an equestrian; trop. = an inconstant person: d. amoris, in love.

DESULTORIUS, a, um, adj. [desultor]. Pertaining to a desultor (q. v.); subst., Desultorius, ii, m. = Desultor.

*DESULTURA, ae, f. [desilio]. (Pl.) A leaping down from a horse.

DE-SUM, fui, esse, v. intr. 1) To be away, to be absent, to be wanting = to be missing (cf. absum): omnia dd., everything is wanting; aliquid mihi d., I want or miss something; thus, likewise, rosae dd. epulis; hoc unum d. ad pristinum Caesaris fortunam; tibi nullum officium a me d., no service on my part has been wanting to you; multum ei d. quominus, etc. 2) Not to be present with one's activity, or esp. with one's help, to fail in one's part or duty, not to help, aid, or assist, to neglect: d. alicui, reipublicae, salutis communi; d. sibi, to stand in one's own light, to injure one's own interest; d. negotio, not to take care of; d. officio, to be wanting in one's duty; d. dolori alicujus, to be indifferent to, not to avenge; d. occasioni, tempori, not to avail one's self of.

DE-SUMO, mpsi, mptum, 3. v. tr. To pick out; hence, to select, to choose, sibi aliquid.

DE-SUPER, adv. From above.

DE-SURGO, 3. v. intr. (Rar. & poet.) To rise from, coenā.

DE-TĒGO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) To uncover, to expose, to lay open or bare, domum, faciem, ense; detectus caput (poet.), with his head uncovered. 2) Trop., to betray, to reveal, consilium, culpam latentem.

DE-TENDO, —, sum, 3. v. tr. Tr anstretum d. tabernacula, to strike the tents.

DE-TERGEO, si, sum, 2. v. tr. 1) (With the moisture or dirt as the object.) To wipe off or away, lacrimas, sudorem: (poet.) d. nubila, sidera, to chase or drive away. 2) (With the thing to be cleansed or wiped off as the object.) To cleanse by wiping, to wipe off: d. labra, frontem: d. cloacas, to clean out; trop., d. mensam, to empty. Hence, d. remos, to strip or tear off in sailing by.

DETERIOR, adj. in the comp., with the sup. deterrimus. Worse, inferior, poorer (of. pejor), mores, cibus, homo; deterior peditatu, weaker.

DETERIUS, adv. [deterior]. Worse, more poorly, scribere.

DETERMINATIO, ōnis, f. [determinō]. An end, conclusion.

DE-TERMINO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To bound, to limit, to determine, regiones, imaginem templi in solo; d. Asiam Phrygiā, to mark out Phrygia as the boundary of Asia.

DE-TIRO, trivi, tritum, 3. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) 1) To rub off, to rub into pieces, to wear out: catena d. collum; via d. pedes; (Pl.) d. calces alicui, to tread upon one's heels; d. frumentum, to tread out, to thresh. 2) Trop., to lessen, to weaken, to impair, laudes Caesaris, ferociam militum.

DE-TERREO, ui, itum, 2. v. tr. 1) To frighten from, to deter from; hence, to keep back, to prevent, to make one desist from: d. adolescentes a discendi studio; d. aliquem de sententia; d. eos ne frumentum conferant; d. te quominus id disputes; deterreo illud commemorare: abs., d. aliquem; nunquam me deterrebis quin, you never will drive me from the conviction that. 2) To ward or keep off, to avert, vim.

DETESTABILIS, e, adj. [detestor]. Detestable, abominable, scelus; omen d., disastrous, frightful.

DETESTATIO, ōnis, f. [detestor]. 1) An execration, cursing, hominum. 2) (Lat.) Tech. t., d. sacrorum, a solemn renunciation of the sacred rites of a gens, and hence of the gens itself.

DE-TESTOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. 1) To keep off any thing from one's self or others by prayer or protestation; hence, to avert, to remove, in gen.: d. justam querimoniam a se; d. memoriam rei alicujus, to efface; dii hoc omen dd., avert; d. dictum, to protest against having said a thing. 2) To wish away from one's self, to execrate, to curse, aliquem; hence = to abhor, bellum. 3) To invoke an evil upon one: d. pericula in caput alicujus. 4) (Lat.) To renounce solemnly the sacred rites of a gens, and thereby the gens itself.

DE-TEXO, xui, xtum, 3. v. tr. 1) (Rar.) To weave off, to finish by weaving, telam; hence (poet.), to plait, to finish by plaiting, fascellam vimine juncti; melon., d. pallium, to steal. 2) Trop., to complete, to finish, aliquid.

DE-TINEO, tīnui, tentum, 2. v. tr. [de-teneo].

1) To turn or draw off one from any thing, aliquem ab incepto, de negotio. 2) To keep back to detain, aliquem ruri or apud villam; d. fugientem pede apprehenso, to hinder from going on. d. movissimos proelio; tempestates dd. naves (poet.) d. iter, to arrest the march. 3) Trop., to occupy, to engage: d. mentes hominum, oculos; detineri in alienis negotiis. 4) — a) (Lat.) D. se, to prolong one's life, to maintain one's self — b) d. locum, to possess — c) d. pecuniam, to withhold — d) d. tempus, to fill up, to wear away.

DE-TONDEO, tondi, tonsum, 2. v. tr. To shear or cut off, crines; also, d. oves; frondes detonsae arboribus (poet.) = fallen off.

DE-TŪNO, ui, —, 1. v. intr. (Poet. & lat.) 1) To thunder down; trop., of an attack in war, to burst forth like a tempest. 2) To cease thundering or raging.

DETONSO, 1. v. tr. [intens. of detondeo]. (Lat.) To shear off.

DE-TORNO, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) 1) To turn off by a lathe, to turn, anulos. 2) Trop., to round off, sententiam.

DE-TORQUEO, si, tum, 2. v. tr. 1) To turn off, to turn away or aside, to bend aside, cervicem, proram ad undas; hence, trop., to turn away or divert from: d. animum a virtute, se ad aliud. 2) To distort, membra; trop., of discourse, d. verba; d. recte facta, aliquid in pejus.

DETRACTIO, ōnis, f. [detraho]. 1) A taking or drawing away, withdrawal, alicui; d. doloris, a release from pain. 2) D. cibi, a purging. 3) (Lat.) In rhetoric, a leaving out, an ellipsis.

DETRACTO, etc. — v. Detrecto, etc.

DETRACTOR, ōris, m. [detraho]. (Tac.) A disparager, detractor.

DETRACTUS, ūs, m. [detraho]. (Lat.) = Detractio 1.

DE-TRAHO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) To draw down, to take or lead down: d. aliquem equo, triumphantem de curru; d. hostem in aequum certamen, to draw the enemy down to the plain where the battle may be equal; trop., d. majestatem regum ad medium, to humble to the common condition of men. 2) To draw away, to take or lead away from any place, to cause to depart from: d. Hannibalem ex Italia; d. aliquem ex Gallia, to remove against his will. 3) To draw off, to withdraw, to take away, to pull or tear away a thing from a person: d. alicui vestem; d. alicui commodam, militi scutum; d. alicui fidem, not to give credit to one; d. honorem debitum, to refuse. 4) To deduct from a sum, binas quinquagesimas de tota summa. Hence: A) to take away from, and thus to diminish, to lessen: d. aliquid de benevolentia sua, aliquantum sibi de facultate: B) = to disparage, to detract from: d. de aliquo, rebus gestis; detrahendi causa: C) hoc multum ei d., did him much harm. 5) Without stating the place from which a thing is taken, to draw or take to: d. naves ad terram; d. aliquem in iudicium = to accuse.

DÉTRACTATIO, ōnis, f. [detrecto]. A refusing, declining, militiæ.

DÉTRACTATOR, ōris, m. [detrecto]. A disparager, detractor, laudum suarum.

DÉTRACTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [de-tracto]. To decline, to refuse, militiam; d. imperata, to refuse to obey the command; d. dominationem, to refuse to bear the sway. 2) To disparage, to depreciate, bonos, laudes alicujus.

DETRIMENTŌSUS, a, um, adj. [detrimentum]. Detrimental, hurtful, causing loss.

DÉTRIMENTUM, i, n. [detero]. Detriment, loss, damage (caused by another—of. damnus): capere, accipere, facere d., to sustain; afferre, importare d., to cause.

DÉ-TRŪDO, si, sum, 3. v. tr. 1) To push down, to thrust down, to force or drive down: d. quosdam in mare; d. naves scopulo, from the rock; d. servum in pistrinum (ad molas), to thrust into the hand-mill (as a punishment). 2) Trop.: A) To drive by force out of a possession, to dispossess, aliquem de agro: B) To drive or turn a person from or to: d. aliquem de sententia, to turn from; d. aliquem a primo ordine in secundum, to degrade; d. aliquem in luctus, in paupertatem, to reduce to grief, to poverty; necessitas nos ad aliquid d., compels us to undertake something: C) To cause a thing to be delayed, to put off: d. comitia in adventum Caesaris: D) abs., d. aliquem, to prevent one's election, to keep out of an office.

DÉTRUNCATIO, ōnis, f. [detrunco]. A lopping off, ramorum. (Lat.)

DÉ-TRUNCO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) (Poet.) To cut off from a stem or trunk, to lop off, superiorem partem arboris, caput. 2) To deprive of the outer parts (branches, limbs) = to dismember, to mutilate: d. arbores, corpora.

DÉ-TURBO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To tear down, to throw or cast down, to demolish, aedificium, statuum; d. tegulas de tecto. 2) To drive, to chase, to force down or away, nostros de vallo, hostes ex praesidio. Hence, trop. = to deprive of: d. aliquem de fortunis omnibus, ex magna spe.

DÉTURPO, 1. v. tr. [de-turpis]. (Rar., lat.) To deform, to disfigure, aliquem.

DEUCÁLION, ōnis, m. [= Δευκαλίων]. 1) A son of Prometheus and Clymene, king of Phthia in Thessaly, and husband of Pyrrha. 2) A son of Minos and Pasiphae, father of Idomeneus.

DEUNX, cis, m. [de-unxia] = Eleven twelfth.

DEUCALIÓNĒUS, a, um, adj. Of Deucalion.

DE-ŪRO, ussi, ustum, 3. v. tr. 1) To burn, to burn up, oppidum, frumentum. 2) Meton., of cold, hiems d. arbores, injures, destroys; also (poet.), of the venomous breath of a serpent.

DEUS, i, m. 1) A god; sometimes, also = a female deity. In partic., dī melliora or melius (sc. velint, ferant, which is sometimes added), the gods forbid! dīi te ament = God bless you! ita me dīi ament (amabunt) = so help me God! si dīs placet (ironically), if it please the gods = who can believe it! 2) Trop. = a distinguished or exceedingly happy man: d. sum si hoc ita est (Com.).

DE-ŪTOR, ūsus, 3. v. dep. intr. To treat harshly or cruelly, to abuse, aliquo.

DE-VASTO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. To lay waste, to desolate, fines; d. Marsos, to ruin.

DE-VEHO, xi, otum, 3. v. tr. 1) To carry down, to convey or take down: Tiberis d. frumentum, corn is carried down the Tiber; hence, freq. pass., devehor, to sail down a river; d. Rheno, down the Rhine. 2) To carry away, to take or convey away: d. legionem equis, on horses; d. frumentum in Galliam; freq. pass., devehor, to sell: d. Veliam; trop., d. ad aliquid, to come to something.

DE-VELLO, velli, vulsum, 3. v. tr. (Rar., ante-cl. & lat.) To pluck off, to tear off, plumas.

DE-VĒLO, 1. v. tr. (Poet.) To unveil, to uncover, ora sorori.

DE-VĒNEROR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. (Poet.) 1) To worship, to adore, deos. 2) D. somnia, to avert by prayer.

DE-VĒNIO, vēni, ventum, 4. v. intr. 1) To come down, to come to a place, to arrive at, ad legionem decimam, in eum locum; (poet.) d. locum. 2) Trop., d. ad juris studium, to apply one's self; d. in medium certamen, to fall into.

DEVĒNUSTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [de-venustus]. (Lat.) To deprive of beauty, to disfigure, aliquem.

DE-VERBĒRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Com. & lat.) To censure severely; trop., to cheat nicely, aliquem.

DE-VERRO, 3. v. tr. To sweep away.

DĒVERSĪTO, 1. v. intr. [intens. of de-versor]. (Lat.) = Deversor.

DE-VERSOR (I.), ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. [deverto]. To turn off from the road; hence, to put up, to stop at a place as a guest or traveller, to lodge: d. apud aliquem, in illa domo; trop., d. in negotio turpi (lat.), to meddle with.

DĒVERSOR (II.), ōris, m. [deverto]. A guest one who lodges anywhere.

DĒVERSŌRIŪLUM, i, n. [dim. of deversor]. A small lodging-place.

DĒVERSŌRIUS, a, um, adj. [deversor]. Pertaining to a lodging, fit to lodge in; taberna ē in partic., as subet., Deversorium, ii, n., inn, lodging-house, lodging (of. hospitium, caponia).

DĒVERTICŪLUM, i, n. [deverto]. 1) A way, by-path, side-way, trop., a deviation from a subject, a digression. 2) (= Deversorium) inn, lodging; trop., in a bad sense, a refuge; hence, of discourse, a full stop

DE-VERTO, ti, sum, 3. v. tr. (Rar.) To turn away or aside, aliquem.

DE-VERTOR, sus, 3. v. dep. intr. 1) To turn away or depart from: d. vico; trop., d. ad artes magicas, to have recourse to; of speech = to deviate from a subject, to digress. 2) In partic., to turn off from a road in order to come to some person or place, to put up, to lodge, to take lodgings, ad aliquem, in villam suam, Massiliam.

DEVEXITAS, ātis, f. [devexus]. (Lat.) A declivity, sloping position.

DE-VEXUS, a, um, adj. [de-veho]. 1) Inclined downwards, alanting, sloping, steep: lucus a Palatii radice in novam viam devexus, inclining towards; trop. (lat.), ire per devexum = to become easily practised. 2) Moving downwards: d. annis, flowing; d. sol, sinking. Hence, trop., aetas d., declining, i. e., old age; aetas a diuturnis laboribus devexa ad otium, inclined to rest.

DE-VINCIO, nxi, netum, 4. v. tr. 1) To bind fast, to bind, to bind around, leonem, tempora lauro. 2) Trop., to bind, to oblige, to lay under obligation: d. verba comprehensione, to combine into a period; d. homines societate reipublicae; d. se cupiditate, to allow one's self to be captivated by a desire; d. se affinitate cum aliquo, to ally one's self to one by affinity; d. homines benevolentia, d. animos, to gain, to captivate; d. sibi aliquem, to lay one under obligation; d. aliquem jurejurando, to bind by an oath; devinctus studiis, devoted to study; d. se vino (Pl.), to get drunk; d. membra sopore (poet.), to sink into a slumber.

DE-VINCO, ici, ctum, 3. v. tr. To conquer completely, to subdue, Galliam; bonum publicum devictum est gratia, has been sacrificed to personal considerations; (poet.) bella devicta, victoriously carried on.

DEVITATIO, ōnis, f. [devito]. An avoiding.

DE-VITO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To avoid, to escape, procellam, dolorem.

DEVIUS, a, um, adj. [de-via]. 1) Lying away from the road, out of the way, devius, oppidum; iter d., a by-way; hence = retired, living out of the way: d. gens, homo; d. avis, an owl. 2) Departing from the right way, going astray; hence, trop. = perverse, foolish, homo, res. 3) (Poet.) = inaccessible, limen.

DE-VOCO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To call down, to call away: d. nostros a tumultu, ex praesidiis, aliquem de provincia. 2) To call to some place or thing: d. deos ad auxilium, aliquem in iudicium; hence = to invite; d. aliquem. 3) Trop., d. aliquem ab instituto cursu, to divert; d. philosophiam e coelo, to bring down; d. fortunas suas in dubium, to risk; d. mortales ad perniciem (lat.), to entice to ruin.

DE-VOLO, 1. v. intr. To fly down; trop., to hasten down or towards, de tribunali, in forum; d. ab afflictis amicis ad florentem, to pass over to.

DE-VOLVO, vi, ūtum, 3. v. tr. To roll down, saxa, corpora in humum; (poet.) d. verba, to pour forth; d. tonitrua. Hence: A) (Pl.) d. aliquem vitā, to deprive of life: B) freq. pass., devolvi, to fall or rush down; torrens d. monte; trop., d. ad inanem spem; d. ad egestatem, to fall into, to be reduced to.

DE-VŪMO, 3. v. tr. (Ante-cl.) To vomit forth.

DE-VŪRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To swallow down, to devour, lapidem; hiatus terrae d. aliquid. 2) Trop.: A) d. aliquid spe, oculis, to devour with hope, with the eyes = to expect eagerly, to look at desiringly: B) d. librum = to peruse eagerly and rapidly: C) of property, fortune, &c., to swallow up, to consume, to squander: d. pecuniam publicam, to appropriate to one's self; d. hominem, one's fortune; hence (poet. & lat.), to enfeeble, to destroy: arma vestra dd. vos: D) d. orationem, to listen to eagerly (v. A); but, oratio ejus a multitudine devorabatur, was swallowed down, i. e., was listened to, but not understood and appreciated: E) d. partem verborum, to swallow in pronouncing = to pronounce indistinctly: F) (Pl.) d. nomen = to forget: G) d. molestias, stultitias hominum, to swallow down = to bear silently.

DEVORTIUM, ii, n. [deverto]. (Lat.) The turning of a road, a by-way: d. itineris.

DEVŌTIO, ōnis, f. [devoceo]. 1) A devoting, consecrating, the vowing of something as a sacrifice: d. vitae Deciorum. 2) A solemn and public devoting to the gods of the lower world = execration. 3) The formula of execration, a magic formula, incantation.

DEVŌTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [devoceo]. 1) To devote, esp. as a sacrifice to the infernal gods, aliquem. 2) (Ante-cl. & lat.) To bewitch, to enchant, sortes.

DEVŌTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of devoceo]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Devoted or consecrated to the gods of the lower world = execrated, fatal. 2) Faithfully devoted or attached to, alicui; d. vino, addicted to drinking; thus, likewise, d. scenae. Hence, subst., Devotus, i, m., a faithful follower: cum omnibus suis devotis.

DE-VŌVEO, vōvi, vōtum, 2. v. tr. 1) To vow or devote something to a deity, esp. as an offering; hence, also = to devote to death: d. filiam Dianae; d. se diis, or simply d. se, to devote one's self to death. In partic., to devote to destruction (as an expiatory sacrifice to the gods of the lower world), to curse, to execrate, aliquem, suas artes. 2) (Rar.) To devote, to apply, to give entirely up (esp. one's self) to any thing: d. se amicitiae alicujus; vobis hanc animam devoceo. 3) (Poet.) To enchant, to bewitch, aliquem carminibus.

DEXTANS, tis, m. [de-sextans, prop. where one sextans is wanting] = Ten twelfths (v. As).

DEXTELLA, ae, f. [dém. of dextra]. A little right hand (v. Dextera 1).

DEXTER, tra, trum, or tēra, tērum, adj. w. comp., and the sup. dextimus. 1) Right (opp. to 'left'), towards the right side, on or from the right side: d. manus, pars; d. cornu, wing; abiit d. (poet.), to the right. 2) Trop.: A) skilful, dexterous: hoc ita dexter egit: B) suitable, convenient, fitting: tempus d.: C) (poet. & lat.) fortunate, favourable, omen, numen.

DEXTERA, or Dextra, ae, f. [dexter]. 1) (Sc. manus.) The right hand; hence, trop. = a solemn promise, and hence = a friendship, alliance: mittere dextras, a figure of two right hands clasped together; ferre dextram; renovare dextras, to renew a covenant or alliance. 2) (Sc. para.) The right side: dextrā, on the right side; a d., from the right side.

DEXTERITAS, ātis, f. [dexter]. (Rar.) Dexterity, aptness, readiness, especially in doing good offices.

DEXTIMUS — v. Dexter.

DEXTRE, or DEXTERE, adv. w. comp. [dexter]. Dexterously, skilfully.

DEXTRORSUM, or DEXTORSUS, adv. To the right side, to the right, abire, salutare.

DEXTRORSUM, adv. = Dextrorsum.

DIA, ae, f. [= Δία]. 1) An island on the coast of Crete, now Standia. 2) An old name of the island Nazos.

*DIABATHRĀRIUS, ii, m. (Pl.) A maker of a diabathrum (q. v.).

DIABATHRUM, i, n. [= διὰ βᾶθρον]. A light shoe or slipper.

DIABLINTES, tum, m. pl. A tribe in Middle France, near the present Mayenne (Depart. de la Sarthe).

DIADĒMA, ātis, n. [= διάδημα]. The band around the turban (tiara) of a Persian king, a diadem, a royal head-dress.

DIAETA, ae, f. [= διαίτα]. 1) Diet, mode of living (prescribed by a physician). 2) (Lat.) — a) a dwelling — b) a room.

DIAGŌRAS, ae, m. [= Διαγόρας]. 1) A philosopher of Melos, contemporary with Pindar, who bore the surname 'Ἀθλος. 2) A renowned athlete of Rhodes.

DIALECTICE, adv. [dialecticis]. Dialectically.

DIALECTICUS, a, um, adj. [= διαλεκτικός]. Pertaining to disputation, dialectic, disputationes. Hence, subst.: A) Dialecticus, i, m., a dialectician, one who applies himself to dialectics, a logician: B) Dialectica, ae, or Dialectice, es, f., dialectics, that part of philosophy which treats of notions, proofs, &c., and teaches the art of scientific disputation in general.

DIALECTOS, i, f. [= διὰλεκτος]. (Lat.) A dialect.

DIĀLIS, e, adj. [Dis]. Of or pertaining to Jupiter: flamen D., a priest of Jupiter; apex D., the cap worn by a priest of Jupiter.

DIĀLŌGUS, i, m. [= διάλογος]. A philosophical conversation, a dialogue.

DIĀNA, ae, f. (Originally, an Italian goddess; later, identified with the Greek Artemis.) The daughter of Jupiter and Latona, and sister of Apollo, goddess of the Chase, the Moon and nocturnal Witchcraft (as Hecate), and guardian of Child-birth (as Lucina).

DIĀNIUS, a, um, adj. [Diana]. Of or belonging to Diana; hence, subst., Dianium, ii, n.: A) a temple of Diana: B) a promontory in Spain, now Denia: C) an island in the Tyrrhenian Sea, now Gianuti.

*DIĀNŌME, es, f. [= διανομή]. (Lat.; another reading is Diānoerie, es, f. = διανομία). A distribution of money.

DIĀRIUM, ii, n. [dies]. 1) A day's allowance of food, a day's wages of soldiers, captives, or slaves. 2) (Lat.) A diary, journal.

DIĀTRĪBA, ae, f. [= διὰτριβή]. A place for scientific conversation, a philosopher's or rhetorician's school.

DIBĀPHUS, a, um, adj. [= διβαφες]. Twice immersed or dyed; subst., Dibaphus, i, f. = the state-robe of Roman magistrates, which was bordered with purple stripes; hence, oogist dibaphum, he thinks of obtaining a public office.

DICA, ae, f. [= δική]. A lawsuit, judicial process: scribere (impingere) alicui dicam, to bring an action against one; sortiri dicam, to choose the judges for a lawsuit by lot.

DICĀCĪTAS, ātis, f. [dicax]. Sarcastic wit, satire.

DICĀCŪLUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of dicax]. (Ante-cl.) Lequacious; also, satirical, sarcastic.

DICAEARCHUS, i, m. [= Δικαιάρχος]. A Peripatetic philosopher, a pupil of Aristotle.

*DICĀTIO, ōnis, f. [dicoo]. A being received as a citizen, an acquiring of citizenship in a foreign state.

DICAX, ōis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [dicoo]. Sarcastic, satirical, witty, pungent, homo, poema.

DICHŌRĒUS, i, m. [= διχορῆς]. A double trochee.

DICIS, only in the comb. 'dicis causa,' for form's sake, for appearances' sake.

DICO (I.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To devote, to dedicate, to consecrate: d. aram, donum Jovi. Hence: A) of a person, to receive among the gods, to deify: B) to consecrate by the first use, aequilam. 2) In gen., to devote to a person or thing, to sacrifice entirely, to give up completely: d. tibi totum diem; d. alicui operam, Maecenati librum, to dedicate; d. se Remis in clientelam; d. se alii civitati or in aliam civitatem, to become a citizen, to acquire citizenship in another town; d. se alicui, to give one's self entirely up to a person.

DICO (II.), xi, etum, 3. v. tr. & infr. [= dicere]. I. Tr. — 1) To say, to tell, to mention, alicui aliquid; d. mendacium; d. patrem abissee, quid acciderit; is quem dixi, the one I mentioned; dicunt, they say, it is said; dicaris hic habitare, you are said to live here; qui (quae, quod) dictus (= ὁ λεγόμενος), the so-called; dicto citius, quicker than it can be said = very quickly, immediately; prov., dictum factum, no sooner said than done = without delay. In partic.: A) = to affirm (opp. to negare), to assert; B) = to relate; C) = to announce, to foretell, fata, sortes; D) = to warn, to admonish: d. tibi ne illud facias; tibi dico, I tell you (if something is enjoined upon one). 2) To pronounce: d. litteram Rho. 3) To recite, to rehearse: d. orationem, to deliver a speech; versus d. In partic.: A) d. causam, to plead one's own or another's cause; hence, used both of the defendant and his counsel; B) causam nullam (or hand) d., I have no objection: D) jus d., to pronounce judgment. 4) (Poet.) To describe, to sing of, to celebrate in verse, laudes Phoebi, bella, coelestia. 5) To call, to name, aliquem patrem. 6) To choose, to appoint to an office, aliquem dictatorem, magistrum equitum; (poet.) d. arbitrum bibendi. 7) To appoint, to fix upon, diem nuptiis, leges pacis; hence = to promise. 8) To mean, to speak of, to refer to, timet, quae timenda esse negat; mortem dico et dea. II. Intr. or abs. (cf. loquor) — 1) To speak, in gen., de re aliqua, de absentibus severe contumeliosaque. 2) = To deliver an oration: d. pro aliquo, contra aliquem.

DICTOTUM, i, n. (sc. navigium), also Dictota, ae, f. [= dicopores]. A boat with two banks of oars.

DICTAEUS, a, um, adj. [Dictē]. Of or belonging to Mount Dicto; hence (poet.) = Cretan: rex D. = Minos, also = Jupiter.

DICTAMNUM, i, n. } A plant growing, esp. on DICTAMNUS, i, f. } Mount Dictē, in Crete, and used for healing wounds, dittany.

DICTĀTA, ōrum, m. pl. [part. of dicto]. 1) Things dictated by a teacher to his scholars, lessons, exercises, rules. 2) Precepts, rules, in gen.

DICTĀTOR, ōris, m. [dicto]. A dictator: 1) the chief magistrate of several towns in Italy. 2) At Rome, an extraordinary magistrate, elected for six months, in times of great danger, and invested with unlimited power.

DICTĀTORIUS, a, um, adj. [dictator]. Of or pertaining to a dictator, dictatorial: juvenis d. = the son of a dictator.

*DICTĀTRIX, icis, f. [dictator]. (Pl.) Prop., a dictatress; jocosely = an absolute commander, a queen.

DICTĀTŪRA, ae, f. [dictator]. 1) Dictatorship, the office of a dictator. *2) Also as a pun (Suet.) = a dictating.

DICTE, es, f. [= Δίκη]. A mountain in the eastern part of Crete.

DICTIO, ōnis, f. [dico II.]. 1) A saying or uttering: d. sententiae; d. testimonii, a giving of testimony; d. mulctae, the fixing of a fine. 2) A speaking, the delivery of an oration, a declamation speech: dd. discipulorum, exercises in declamation; dd. subitae, extemporales, extemporaneous. 3) A kind of speaking or delivery; Graeci nequaquam ceteris dictionibus, eam partem dicendi, etc. 4) D. causae, a defending, pleading. 5) (Rar.) A prediction, the response of an oracle. 6) (Tac.) A conversation: semota d.

DICTITO, āvi, ātum, i. v. tr. [intens. of dico II.]. 1) To say repeatedly or emphatically, to assert repeatedly: d. aliquid, agros esse meos. *2) D. causas, to plead often.

DICTO, āvi, ātum, i. v. tr. [freq. of dico II.]. 1) To say often, to deliver or rehearse frequently, orationem, nomina. 2) To dictate, alicui aliquid. Hence, as it became more and more usual among the Romans to dictate to slaves and others instead of writing for themselves = to make, to compose, to draw up, librum, carmina, testamentum; d. actionem, to draw up an accusation. 3) (Lat.) To prescribe, to command: quod natura d.

DICTUM, i, n. [part. of dico]. That which has been said, a word, speech: d. ridiculum; superbe, faecte d. In partic.: A) = a saying, proverb, sentence: d. Catonis; B) = a sally of wit, witicism, bon mot; C) = a precept, command: dicto parere; dicto audientem esse; D) (poet.) = a poem: Ennii d.; E) (poet.) a prediction.

DICTYNNA, ae, f. [= Δικτυννα]. 1) A surname of Diana as goddess of the Chase. 2) A town in Crete.

DICTYNNAEUS, a, um, adj. [Dictynna]. Of or belonging to Dictynna; D. mons, a promontory in Crete; subet., Dictynnaeum, i, n., a temple of Diana near Sparta.

DICTYS, ūs, m. [= Δίκτυς]. 1) A fisherman changed by Bacchus into a dolphin. 2) A centaur, who perished in the conflict with the Lapithae.

DIDASCĀLICUS, a, um, adj. [= διδασκαλικός]. (Lat.) Pertaining to teaching; subet., Didascālici, ōrum, m. pl. (sc. libri), text-books.

DIDIUS (I.), ii, m., and Didia, ae, f. The name of a Roman gens; thus, D. Julianus, a Roman emperor (193 A. D.).

DIDIUS (II.), a, um, adj. [Didius I.]. Of or given by a Didius; lex D. sumptuaria (in the year 148 B. C.).

DIDO (I.), ūs or ōnis, f. [= Διδώ]. The founder and queen of Carthage, sister of Pygmalion, and wife of Sicheus.

DIDO (II.), Idi, Itum, 8. v. tr. [dis-do]. (Ante-cl., poet. & lat.) To give out, to disseminate, to distribute, cibum in venas; fama didita per populos, spread abroad.

DI-DŪCO, xi, ctum, 8. v. tr. 1) To draw asunder, to distend, to stretch; hence, to sever, to separate, to divide: d. digitos, nubes; d. rictum risu, to open one's mouth widely, to make one laugh outright; d. flumina in rivos, to divide. Hence, trop., diduci ab amicis, to be separated, to be removed from; civitas diducta bello civili, a state divided into factions; thus, likewise, ultio senatum in studia diduxit; d. verba, to divide in pronunciation; animus re aliqua diductus, distracted; d. assem in partes, to divide; d. matrimonia, to dissolve; d. argumenta, to explain. 2) In partic., of military forces, to draw asunder, to extend, to divide, to separate, nostras naves, aciem in cornus; sometimes = to widen too much, to scatter, copias.

DIDUCTIO, ōnis, f. [diduco]. (Lat.) 1) An expanding, spiritus. 2) A separating: d. rerum.

DIECŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of dies]. A little while.

DIÉRECTUS, a, um, adj. [prob. instead of directus, from dis-erigo; hence = lifted and hung up with arms stretched out = crucified; acc. to others, from διαπνέρε, hence = broken, mutilated]. (Pl.) Almost solely in the comb. abi (i, recede) hinc dierectus or dierecte, and, if said to a female, dierecta: go, and be hanged! go, feed the crows!

DIES, ei, m. & f. (the latter only in the sing., and, in good prose, only in the signifi. 2 and 3). 1) A day: postero d.; tres dd. continui; d. festus. Particular combinations — a) diem ex die expectare, from day to day; thus, likewise, diem de die differre — b) in dies singulos or simply in dies, every day, daily; in dd. majores progressus facere; (poet.) mutabilis in diem — c) rogare aliquid in diem, for a day; on the contrary, in dies vivere, for the present, regardless of the future. In partic.: A) a day = daytime (in opp. to 'night'): bis die or in die, twice a day; die ac nocte, in a single day and night, within twenty-four hours; diem noctemque, also dies noctesque, day and night = uninterruptedly: B) d. meus = my birth-day or dying-day (v. C): C) d. supremus, the dying-day: obire d. supremum (also suum), and simply obire d., to die: D) a day = the events of a day: hic d. animos Romanis refecit. 2) (Usually f.) A set or appointed day, a term — a) = a term or appointed time in law: d. stata, constituta; diem dare, dicere, to fix, to appoint; diem dicere alicui, to summon; diem obire, to be present in court on the day appointed, to keep the appointed day — b) = a term or time for payment: d. pecuniae, pay-day; diem prodicere, to put off: diem ex die dicere, to delay from day to day; d. stipendii — c) d. induciarum, the last day of the truce. 3) Time, in gen.: brevis d. ad conveniendum edicta; malum quod praesens fuerat in diem abiit, to a future time. Hence = delay, respite; esp., relative to a payment, &c. (of. 2, b): postulare exigam d. 4) (Poet.) = Daylight: videre d. = to be born. 5) (Lat.) — Weather: tranquillus d.

DIESPITER, tris, m. [dis; varāp]. Another name for Jupiter.

DIFFĀMO, āvi, ātam, 1. v. tr. [dis-fama]. (Lat.) To make public, to divulge, to defame, adulterium; d. aliquem probro carmine.

DIFFĒRENS, tis, a. (lat.) } [differo]. Differ-
DIFFERENTIA, ae, f. } ences, distinction, naturarum; dd. sermonis Graeci.

DIFFĒRITAS, ātis, f. [differo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) = Differentia.

DIF-FĒRO (dis-fero), distill, dilātum, v. tr. & intr. I. Tr. — 1) To carry different ways, to carry asunder; hence, to separate, to scatter, to disperse: d. arbores, to plant apart; ventus d. ignem, spreads; vis Africi d. classem. 2) (Ante-cl. & lat.) To spread abroad, to publish, to divulge; esp., in a bad sense, to decry, to defame: d. famam; d. aliquem sermonibus; d. libertatem male populo commissam; d. me eam tibi dedisse; d. aliquem rumoribus. 3) (Ante-cl.) To disturb, to disquiet, to torment: dictis suis aliquem d., to confuse; mostly in the pass., differri clamore, amore iustus. 4) To defer, to delay (of. profero, procrastino): d. rem; d. iter in praesentia; d. reliqua in posterum; d. horam, tempus; also, with a personal object, to put off, to keep in suspense: d. aliquem in aliud tempus; d. aliquem ad finem muneris, to defer. II. Intr. — To be different, to differ: illi naturis dd.: hoc illi a nobis differunt; quid hic ab illo differt? haec cogitatione inter se dd.; (rar.) occasio differt cum tempore, is different from; (poet. & lat.) sermo d. sermoni. Freq. imperz., differt: aliquid d., there is a difference; nihil d. inter privatum et magistratum, there is no difference; quid d., illi an mihi dones, what difference does it make?

DIFFERTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of the unusual differo, dis-farcio]. Stuffed full, filled, crowded: provincia d. exactoribus; forum d., crowded with people.

DIFFICĪLE, adv. (Rar.) = Difficulus.

DIFFICĪLIS, e, adj. w. comp. & sup. (difficillimus) [dis-facilis]. 1) Difficult, hard, troublesome, iter, tempus mihi d.; res est difficilis factu or ad eloquendum. Hence = critical, dangerous, res, tempus reipublicae. 2) Of character, hard to deal with or to satisfy, obstinate, morose, inexorable, inflexible: d. ac morosus; senex nec d. nec inhumanus; Penelope d. procia; pater d. in liberos.

DIFFICĪLĪTER, adv. (Rar.) = Difficulus.

DIFFICULTAS, ātis, f. [difficilis]. 1) Difficulty, trouble, loci, rerum; d. navigandi, of sailing; d. domestica = d. numaria, pecuniary embarrassment; d. navium, rei frumentariae, annonae, difficulty of obtaining, scarcity of. *2) Moroseness, obstinacy.

DIFFICULTER, adv. w. comp. (difficillime) & sup. (difficillime). With difficulty.

DIFFIDENS, tis, adj. [part. of diffido]. (Pl.) Diffident.

DIFFIDENTER, ade. w. comp. [diffidens]. Diffidently, distrustfully.

DIFFIDENTIA, ae, f. [diffidens]. Want of confidence, diffidence, distrust of one's self: d. causae, in one's cause; d. copiarum.

DIF-FIDO (dis-f.), fisis sum, 3. v. intr. To be diffident or distrustful, to distrust a person or thing, to have no confidence in, to despair of: d. sibi, huius sententiae, salutis communi, suis rebus; (lat.) d. occasione, paucitate suorum; d. me illud invenire posse; jacet ille et d., gives up all hope.

DIF-FINDO (dis-f.), fidi, fissum, 3. v. tr. 1) To cleave, to split, to divide, saxum, terram; trop., d. portas, to open; d. conjunctionem, to dissolve. 2) Tech. t., in the lang. of law, d. diem, to break off proceedings in court, and defer them to a further day.

DIF-FINGO (dis-f.), 3. v. tr. (Poet.) To form differently, to alter, to remodel, aliquid.

DIFFISSIO, ñis, f. [diffundo]. (Lat.) D. diel, the putting off of a proceeding in court to another day (v. Diffundo 2).

DIFFITEOR, 2. v. dep. tr. [dis-fiteor]. (Rar.) To disavow, to deny, se aliquid fecisse; d. opus, to refuse to undertake.

DIF-FLO (dis-f.), ãvi, ãtum, 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl.) To blow apart, to disperse by blowing, legiones.

DIF-FLUO (dis-f.), —, —, 3. v. intr. 1) To flow asunder, to flow in different directions: Rhœnus d. in plures partes; (poet.) d. sudore, to drip with. Hence (ante-cl. & lat.) = to disappear: acervus d., dissolves; juga montium dd., sink; vires dd., decrease. 2) Trop., of persons, d. luxuriâ, deliciis, otio, to be dissolved in luxury, enjoyment, ease, to revel, to riot in; also, of prolix and diffuse discourse.

DIFFRINGO, fractum, 3. v. tr. [dis-frango]. (Ante-cl. & lat., rar.) To break into pieces, to shatter, crura.

DIF-FUGIO (dis-f.), fûgi, —, 3. v. intr. To flee in different directions, to fly asunder, to disperse, to scatter: dd. metu perterriti; Numidae dd. e castris Scipionis; dd. in vicis passim suos; (poet.) of things, to disappear.

DIF-FUGIUM, i. n. [diffugio]. (Lat.) A flight of several persons in different directions, dispersion.

DIF-FUNDO (dis-f.), fûdi, fûsum, 3. v. tr. 1) Of liquids, to pour out in different directions, to pour into different places or vessels: glacies liquesfacta se d., dissolves; freta diffunduntur (poet.), spread out; d. vina, to draw off from a larger cask into several smaller ones. 2) In gen., to spread, to scatter, to diffuse: d. comam; d. equitem in campis; most freq. in the pass., to spread abroad: lux d. coelo; rami arboris dd. 3) Trop., to extend, to spread abroad: d. vim ream; benevolentia, laus longe lateque diffusa; (poet.) d. bella longum in ævum, to make renowned to remote times; d. aliquid in ora virum, to make public; d. dolorem, to give vent to. 4) Trop., to cheer up, to exhilarate, vultum, animos.

DIFFUSILLIS, e, adj. [diffundo]. Diffusive, aether. (Lucr.)

DIFFUSE, adv. w. comp. [diffusus]. 1) Diffusedly, separately. 2) Diffusely, amply.

DIFFÛSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [diffundo]. 1) Spread out, far-extending, planicies; platanus d. ramis; scena d.; sus d., thick. 2) Trop., Diffuse, prolix, opus.

DIFFÛSIO, ñis, f. [diffundo]. (Lat.) Exhilaration: d. animi, cheerfulness.

DIGAMMA, ãtis, and Digammon, i. n. [= δὶγάμμα, δὶγάμμων]. The Helio digamma, the sign of which was F; in Latin, it is freq. expressed by F or V. Hence, jocosely (Cic.), novi D. tuum = your income-book, as its title (Fundorum redditus) begins with a digamma or F.

DIGENTIA, ae, f. A small river near the Sabine villa of Horace.

DI-GËRO, gessi, gestum, 3. v. tr. 1) (Poet. & lat.) To carry asunder or in different directions, to disperse, to separate, nubes, nimbos. Hence: A) to divide: Nilus digestus in septem cornua: B) dentes dd. cibum, grind: C) of the stomach, d. cibum, to digest. 2) To divide, to distribute: d. omne jus civile in genera; d. argumenta in digitos, to tell off or count on the fingers; d. poemam in omnes; d. mala per omnes annos. 3) To arrange, to set in order, bibliothecam; d. tabulas accepti.

DIGESTIO, ñis, f. [digero]. 1) An orderly arrangement, division, distribution; in rhetoric, an enumeration. 2) Digestion.

DIGITÁLIS, e, adj. [digitus]. (Lat.) Of or pertaining to a finger; in partic. = a finger, i. e., an inch thick (v. Digitus 2).

DIGITÛLUS, i, m. [dim. of digitus]. A little finger.

DIGITUS, i, m. [kindred with δείκναι, δείκνυλος; hence, originally, 'a pointer']. 1) A finger. Particular combinations: A) attingere aliquem digito, to touch lightly; attingere coelum digito, to be exceedingly happy; B) computare digitis, numerare per digitos, digerere in digitos, to tell off or count on the fingers; res venit ad dd., is reckoned; novi dd. tuos = your skill in reckoning: C) concutere digitis, to snap the fingers; thus, likewise, percussio digitorum: D) intendere digitum ad aliquid, to point out with the finger; monstrari digitis = to be much spoken of by the people, to become celebrated: E) hiceri digito or tollere digitum, to bid at an auction by lifting up the finger: F) loqui digitis (poet.), to speak by gesticulation; digiti loquuntur cum voce (of playing musical instruments): G) prev., percuquere aliquid in digitis (Pl.) = to attempt something impossible: H) ne digitum quidem perigere = not to take the least trouble about any thing; thus, likewise, proficere d., to move a finger, to attempt any thing; temperare orbem digito = without any trouble. 3) A toe: summus dd. ambulare, on tip-toe = very softly. 3) As a measure, the sixteenth part of a Roman foot, an inch: d. transversus or simply d., a finger's breadth; trop., d. transversum non discedit ab illa re, he does not move a finger's breadth. 4) Digiti Idæi (an attempted translation of Δάκτυλοι Ἰδαίοι), priests of Cybele (v. Dactyli).

DI-GLADIOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. To fight with the sword, to combat, to contend (usually with the idea of hatred and exasperation — of. dimicco), cum aliquo; dd. inter se: trop. = to contend with words, to dispute violently.

DIGNATIO, ōnis, f. [dignor]. (Lat.) 1) Act., a considering worthy, appreciation, estimation, esteem in which one is held by another: vivere in summa d. regis. 2) Pass., esteem enjoyed by one, reputation, dignity, honour: in principum dignationem pervenire, to equal in honour.

DIGNITAS, ātis, f. [dignus]. 1) Relat., a being worthy, worthiness, merit, fitness, qualification: d. consularis, for the consulship; Lamia petit praeturam, nec d. nec gratia ei deest. 2) Abso., dignity: A) with reference to the outward — a) of things = a splendid and imposing exterior, beauty, magnificence, domus — b) of persons, dignity of bearing or carriage: d. corporis; venustus est muliebris, d. virilis: B) with reference to the inward, of persons and things = nobleness of mind, moral worth, excellence: agere cum d.: C) with reference to outward relations = reputation, credit, honour, dignity, elevated position or rank: d. equestris, personarum; retinere d.; pervenire ad summam d.: D) esp. = an official dignity, post of honour, office: d. imperatoria, regia.

DIGNO, 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & poet.) = Dignor. DIGNE, adv. w. comp. [dignus]. 1) Worthily. 2) Becomingly.

DIGNOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. [dignus]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) To deem worthy: d. aliquem re aliqua; d. aliquem filium, virum, to deem worthy to be called one's son, husband. 2) To deem worthy of one's self, to deem right, fit, or becoming: d. illud facere: freq., of persons of high standing and power = to design.

DIGNOSCO, nōvi, nōtum, 3. v. tr. [di-nosco]. (Poet. & lat.) To know a thing as differing from another, to distinguish, to discern: d. dominum ac servum; d. civem hoste or ab hoste, between citizens (friends) and enemies.

DIGNUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. Worth, worthy (usually with that of which a person or thing is worthy in the abl.): dignus laude, otio; res digna memoria, worthy to be remembered; res dignissima omnium cognitione, deserving to be known by all; dignus est qui hoc impetret, he deserves to obtain; homines dd. quibuscum dissatur, worthy of being argued with; (poet. & lat.) d. amari; d. ut aliquid faciam; dignum dictu; (ante-cl. & lat.) dignus salutis; (ante-cl.) quid dignus sim, what I deserve. Hence = suitable, fit, becoming, proper: hoc d. est auri-bus tuis; quid quoque dignum sit; praemia dd., poena, deserved, just; dignum est illud facere; illis credi dignius erat; ut dignum, as it is fit, proper.

DIGREDIOR, gressus, 3. v. dep. intr. [digradior]. 1) To go asunder, to separate, to part; hence, to go away, to depart: utrique dd.; d. ab aliquo, ex eo loco, in urbem, domum. 2) To deviate, to depart from something, officio, ab eo quod proposui: in partic., of speech, to digress from the main subject.

DIGRESSIO, ōnis, f. } [digredior]. 1) A separating, parting; a going away, departure: d. noster. 2) Trop., of discourse, a digression, departure from the main subject. 3) (Lat.) A deviating from the right way. DIJUDICATIO, ōnis, f. [dijudico]. A judging, deciding.

DI-JUDICO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To judge of, to pass judgment upon, to decide, controversies; d. uter utri antefendus sit; trop., d. belli fortunam. 2) To distinguish, to discern, recta ac prava, vera a falsis, inter has sententias.

DI-LABOR, lapsus, 3. v. dep. intr. 1) To fall asunder, to dissolve, to separate; esp., of liquids = to flow away, aedes, cadaver, glacies, nebula; trop., of persons, esp. soldiers, to part, to disperse, exercitus; milites dilapsi a signis in oppida. 2) To fall to pieces, to decay, to go to ruin, to disappear, monuments; navis vetustate d.; corpora dd.; trop., respublica, res familiaris d.; tempus d., elapsus; vestigalia publica dd., fall into disorder; urnae dd., disappear; res memoria d., is forgotten.

DI-LACERO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To tear into pieces, to dilacerate: canes dd. dominum; trop., respublica, animus dilaceratur; d. opes, to squander, to waste.

DILAMINO, 1. v. tr. [di-lamina]. (Poet.) To split or to cleave in two, nuces.

DI-LANIO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To tear into pieces, to dilacerate: canes dd. corpus aliqujus.

DILAPIDO, 1. v. tr. [dis-lapis]. (Ante-cl.) Prop., to scatter like stones; trop., to squander, to waste: d. pecuniam.

DI-LARGIOR, ītus, 4. v. dep. tr. To give away or to distribute liberally, pecuniam illis.

DILATIO, ōnis, f. [differo]. A delaying, deferring, putting off, delay: d. temporis comitiorum; haec res nullam d. recipit (patitur), beats.

DILATO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [dis-latus]. To enlarge, to extend: d. litteras, to promulgate broadly. DILATOR, ōria, m. [differo]. A delayer, a dilatory person.

DI-LAUDO, 1. v. tr. (Rar. & doubtful.) To praise highly, aliquem.

DILIGENS, tis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of dilligo]. 1) Careful of or in respect to any thing, assiduous, punctual, attentive, diligent (of persons — cf. accuratus): homo d.; d. in rebus omnibus, ad te custodiendum; d. omnis societatis; d. veritatis, loving truth, zealous for the truth; (rar.) d. equis assignandis, in distributing the horses. Hence, improp., of things (yet only of such as point to the activity of a person), d. scriptura, stilus, litterae, careful, carefully managed or handled. 2) In partic., with reference to economical affairs, thrifty, economical, frugal: homo frugi ac d.; parvus ac d.

DILIGENTER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [diligens]. Carefully, heedfully, circumspectly.

DILIGENTIA, ac, f. [diligens]. 1) Carefulness, accuracy, attentiveness, assiduity, diligence: d. sacrorum (rar.), the care of; d. nimium sollicita, a too anxious foresight. 2) In particular, and with reference to household affairs, thriftiness, economy, frugality.

DILIGO, lexi, lectum, 3. v. tr. [dis-lego]. Prop., to select from among several, to love (from esteem — cf. amo), to value, to esteem highly: d. aliquem, also observantiam tuam, diligentiam et benevolentiam hominis; (lat.) abies d. montes, likes, i. e., grows usually on mountains.

DILORICO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. [dis-lorica]. To tear (a garment), tunicum.

DI-LŪCEO, 2. v. intr. Properly, to be light; trop., to be evident, frama.

DILŪCESCO, luxi, —, 3. v. intr. [inck. of diluceo]. To grow light, to begin to shine forth, dies; usually, impers., dilucescit, it dawns.

DILŪCIDE, adv. w. comp. [dilucidus]. 1) Brightly. 2) Trop., of discourse, distinctly, plainly.

DILŪCIDO, 1. v. tr. [di-lucidus]. (Lat.) To make bright; trop., to illustrate, to explain, rem.

DI-LŪCIDUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. 1) Light, bright, clear, emeraldus. 2) Trop., of speech, clear, distinct; oratio, verba.

DILŪCŪLAT, 1. v. impers. intr. [diluculum]. (Lat.) It grows light, it dawns.

DILŪCŪLUM, i, n. [dis-lux]. Dawn, the break of day.

DILŪDIUM, ii, n. [dis-ludo]. (Poet.) Prop., the resting-time of gladiators, the interval between the days on which they fought; hence, a delay.

DI-LUO, ui, ātum, 3. v. tr. 1) To wash into pieces, to wash away, to dissolve by moisture: aqua d. lateres; d. tellurem sanguine, to moisten; d. vulnus aceto, to wash. 2) To dilute: d. venenum, to prepare by diluting; d. vinum, favos lacte. 3) Trop., to weaken, to impair; hence, to remove, to take away, to destroy: d. omnes molestias, curam, aliquem auctoritatem; d. inviam aliqua cavillatione. In partic., d. crimen, to invalidate an accusation, to repel, to refute; so, likewise, d. confirmationem adversarii, etc. *4) Trop. (Pl.), to explain.

DILUVIES, ae, f. (Poet. & lat.) An inunda- tion, flood, deluge; trop., destruction, misfortune.

DILŪVIO, 1. v. tr. [diluvies]. (Lucr.) To inundate, to deluge.

DILŪVIUM, ii, n. = Diluvies.

DIMĀCHAE, ārum, m. pl. [= δῖμαχαι]. (Lat.) A sort of Macedonian soldiers who fought both on foot and on horseback, dragoons.

DI-MĀNO, 1. v. intr. To flow different ways; trop., to spread abroad.

DIMENSIO, ōnis, f. [dimetior]. A measuring.

DIMETIOR, mensus, 4. v. dep. tr. To measure, to measure out, coelum, syllabas.

DIMETO, āvi, ātum, } 1. v. tr. To bound off
DIMETOR, ātus, dep. } by measuring, to mark out, locum castris, cursus siderum.

DIMICATIO, ōnis, f. [dimiceo]. A contest with arms, a fight, encounter; hence, a combat, contest, in gen.: d. pro patria; d. universae rei = d. universa, a general engagement, pitched battle; d. proelii, in battle; d. vitae, capitis, for life, where life is at stake. Hence, trop. = a struggle: d. famae, a struggle for one's reputation; d. fortunarum, where one's fortune is at stake.

DI-MICO, āvi (or poet. *ui), ātum, 1. v. intr. 1) To contend with arms, to fight, to combat (of pugnae, digladior, etc.): d. acie, armis cum aliquo or adversus aliquem, pro legibus. Hence, 2) in gen., to contend, to struggle, to strive, to make effort, to exert one's self: competitores dd.; d. de vita, gloria, etc., in order to obtain or to retain something that is at stake or exposed to danger; thus, likewise, d. de liberis; de summa rerum dimicatur, everything is at stake, it has come to the last extremity; d. de repulsa, to expose one's self to a repulse, rejection.

DIMIDIATUS, a, um, adj. [dimidius]. 1) Halved, divided into halves (of the whole from which a half is taken — cf. dimidius), homo; (Pl.) procumbunt dd., with half the body. 2) = Dimidius, half, mensis, porcus d.

DIMIDIUS, a, um, adj. [dis-medius]. Half (of the part itself taken from a whole — cf. dimidiatus): 1) in the ante-cl. and classic writers only in connection with the subst. pars — half: 2) in later writers also in connection with other substs. (= dimidiatus): d. oris, vultus, half the leg, half the face; dimidius patrum, dimidius plebis est, half patrician, half plebeian (of one born of a mixed marriage). In partic., as subst., Dimidium, ii, n., the half: dimidio major, greater by a half.

DI-MINUO, —, —, 3. v. tr. (Com.) To break, to split, caput alieni.

DIMITTIO, ōnis, f. [dimitto]. 1) A sending in different directions, a sending out, sending away: d. libertorum. 2) A dismissing, discharging, remigum, propugnatorum. 3) D. sanguinis (lat.), a letting of blood.

DI-MITTO, mīti, missum, 3. v. tr. 1) To send different ways, to send about, to send forth: d. literas per omnes provincias; d. certos homines circum regiones; d. nuncios in omnes partes; d. oculos in omnes partes, to look out on all sides. 2) To let a multitude separate or depart, to dismiss: d. senatum; d. convivium, to break up; esp., d. exercitum, etc., to disband; d. matrimonium, to dissolve. 3) To let go from one's self, to let escape, to discharge, to dismiss: d. aliquem; d. aliquem impunitum e manibus; d. uxorem, to repudiate; thus, likewise, d. aliquam e matrimonio; d. creditorem = to satisfy (by payment); d. aliquem a bello, to release from participating in a war. 4) Of things, to let go any thing, to discontinue, to abandon, to give up, to give over: d. oppugnationem, to raise; d. imperium, curam rei alicujus; d. jus suum, to forego one's right; d. occasionem, tempus, facultatem rei alicujus, to let pass or slip; d. omnem spem, to abandon; d. Italiam, provinciam, triumphum, to give up, to think no longer of; d. praedam speratam e manibus; d. fabulas, to speak no longer of fables; d. alicui tributa, to remit; d. iracundiam suam reipublicae, to give over one's anger for the sake of the state.

DI-MOVEO, mōvi, mōtum, 2. v. tr. 1) To move from one another, to put asunder, to separate, to divide, parietes, propinquos obstantes; d. terram aratro, to furrow; d. undas, of a swimmer. 2) To move away, to drive or put away, to remove: d. gelidam umbram, turbam; multitudinem se d.; trop., spes societatis d. equites a plebe, draws away from, makes unfavourable to.

DINARCHUS, i, m. [= Διναρχος]. A celebrated Attic orator (360-319 B.C.).

DINDYMENE, es, f. [= Δινδυμῆνη]. A surname of Cybele, derived from her worship on Mount Dindymus (q. v.).

DINDYMUS, i, m., and (poet.) Dindyma, ōrum, n. pl. [= Δινδυμῆς, Δινδυμῆα]. A mountain in Phrygia, sacred to Cybele.

DINOMACHE, es, f. [= Δινομάχη]. The mother of Alcibiades; hence, Dinomaches ego sum = I am a patrician.

DINON, ōnis, m. [= Διώνη]. A Grecian historian, contemporary with Philip of Macedon, and author of a history of Persia.

DINUMÉRATIO, ōnis, f. [dinamero]. A counting, enumeration, dienum ac noctuum.

DI-NUMERO, avi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To count, to enumerate, to reckon up, stellas, annos, syllabas. 2) (Com.) To count out, to pay, argentum.

DIÓBOLARIS, e, adj. [fr. διόβολος]. (Pl.) Worth two oboli.

DIÓCHARES, is, m. [= Διοχάρης]. A fr.; res man of Caesar.

DIÓCHARINUS, a, um, adj. [impetret, as quibuscum dis- t with; (poet. &

DIOCLETIANUS, i, m. A Roman emperor (284-305 A.D.).

DIÓDORUS, i, m. [= Διόδωρος]. 1) D., surnamed Kpōros, a celebrated dialectician, of the time of the Ptolemies. 2) A Peripatetic philosopher (100 B.C.). 3) D. Siculus, a Greek historian, of the time of Augustus.

DIÓDŌTUS, i, m. [= Διόδωτος]. A Stoic philosopher, teacher of Cicero.

DIŌCĒSIS, is, f. [= διοκῆσις]. A district, the circuit of a governor's administration.

DIŌCĒTES, ae, m. [= διοκῆτης]. An administrator of the royal revenues, a treasurer.

DIŌGĒNES, is, m. [= Διογῆνης]. 1) D. Apolloniates, a philosopher of the Ionic school — lived about 478 B.C. 2) D. Babylonius, a Stoic philosopher, and an ambassador to Rome together with Carneades and Critolaus (155 B.C.). 3) D. Cynicus, the well-known Cynic philosopher, a contemporary of Alexander. 4) D. Laërtius, a grammarian of Athens — lived about 150 B.C. 5) A friend of M. Coelius Rufus.

DIŌMĒDIS, is, m. [= Διομήδης]. 1) A son of the Æolian king Tydeus, successor of Adrastus in Argos, and one of the most famous heroes at the siege of Troy. After the destruction of Troy, he founded Arpi, in Lower Italy. 2) A king of the Bistones in Thrace, who fed his horses on his captives taken in war, but was at last killed by Hercules.

DIŌMĒDEUS, a, um, adj. [Diomedes 1]. Of or pertaining to Diomedes: insulae Diomedeeae, a group of islands on the coast of Appulia, now St. Dominico, S. Nichola, and Caprara; campi D., the region near Cannae and Arpi; aves D., the birds on the islands of Diomedes, accord. to myth, his transformed companions.

DION (or Dio), ōnis, m. [= Δίων]. 1) A brother-in-law of the elder Dionysius of Syracuse, pupil and friend of Plato, murdered 355 B.C. 2) The name of several philosophers.

DIŌNÆUS, a, um, adj. [Dione]. Of or pertaining to Dione: Caesar D., as a descendant of Æneas the son of Venus; antrum D., sacred to Venus.

DIŌNE, es, f. [= Διώνη]. 1) A daughter of Oceanus and Thetis, and mother of Venus. 2) = Venus.

DIŌNYSIUS (L), ii, m. [= Διονύσιος]. 1) The name of two kings of Syracuse, the elder D. (406-367 B.C.) and the younger D. (367-343 B.C.). 2) D., of Heraclea, a pupil of Zeno, at first an adherent of the Stoic, but later of the Epicurean, philosophy. 3) D., of Halicarnassus, a Greek historian. 4) D. Periegetes, a geographer, of the time of Augustus. 5) D. Magnes, of Magnesia, an Asiatic rhetorician, and a contemporary of Cicero. 6) A learned slave of Cicero, and teacher of his children. 7) Another slave of Cicero, his reader (anagnostes).

DIONYSIUS (IL), a, um, adj. [Dionysus]. Of or pertaining to Dionysus; subst., Dionysia, ōrum, a. pl. (sc. sacra), the festival of Bacchus = Bacchanalia (q. v.).

DIONYSUS, i, m. [= Διονυσος] = Bacchus.

DIOTA, ae, f. [διώτη]. (Poet.) A two-handled vessel, a wine-jar.

DIÖVIS, is, m. An old Italian name for Jupiter (= Jovis).

DIPHILUS, i, m. [Δίφίλος]. 1) A Greek writer of comedies, a native of Sinope, imitated by Plautus and Terence — lived about 380 B. C. 2) An architect of Rome, employed by Q. Cicero.

DIPLOMA, ōtis, n. [= διπλωμα]. Prop., a letter folded double. 1) An official letter of recommendation given by the senate to persons travelling in the provinces. 2) (Lat.) In the time of the emperors, a writ or document drawn up by a magistrate, and conferring a favour or privilege on a person; a diploma.

DIPYLON, i, n. [= Διπύλων]. A gate at Athens, leading to the Academy.

DIRAE, ārum, f. pl. — v. Dirus.

DIRCAEUS, a, um, adj. [Dirce]. Dircean; (poet.) = Theban, Boeotian: cygnus D. = Pindar.

DIRCE, es, f. [= Δίρκη]. 1) The daughter of Helios, and wife of Lycus, king of Thebes. On account of her cruelty to Antiope, she was tied by Amphion and Zethus to a bull, and thus dragged about, and finally thrown (or changed) into the fountain named after her. 2) The fountain Dirce near Athens.

DIRECTE, adv. w. comp. [directus]. 1) Directly, in a straight course, navigare. 2) Trop., directly, in plain terms, dicere.

DIRECTIO, ōnis, f. [dirigo]. (Lat.) A direction, inclination.

DIRECTO, adv. w. comp. [directus] = Directe.

DIRECTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of dirigo]. 1) Direct, straight, both horizontally (= level) and perpendicularly (= steep, precipitous): d. aes tubae, iter; tigna dd. ad perpendiculum; locus ex utraque parte directus. 2) Trop., straight-forward, simple, direct: d. via ad laudem; oratio d., where one is introduced as speaking in the first person; verba dd., open, unreserved; ratio d., straight-forward, strict.

DIREMPTIO, ōnis, f., and Diremptus, ūs, m. [dirimo]. A separation.

DIREPTIO, ōnis, f., and Diriptus, ūs, m. [diripio]. (Lat.) A plundering, oppidi.

DIREPTOR, ōris, m. [diripio]. A plunderer.

DIRIBEO, —, itum, 2. v. tr. [dis-habeo]. 1) Tech. t., to separate, to arrange, according to their different inscriptions, the tablets which had been cast into the common ballot-box: d. tabellas, suffragia, sententias. 2) Trop. (lat.), to distribute, gentes et regna.

DIRIBITIO, ōnis, f. [diribeo]. Tech. t., the separating of the tablets used in voting (v. Diribeo).

DIRIBITOR, ōris, m. [diribeo]. Tech. t., a separator of the tablets used in voting.

DIRIBITORIUM, ii, n. [diribep]. (Lat.) 1) A place where the tablets used in voting were separated. 2) A building where presents were distributed among the people and pay to the soldiers, &c.

DIRIGO, rexi, rectum, 3. v. tr. [dis-rego]

1) To place in a straight line, to set straight: d. aciem, to draw up an army in battle array; d. naves ante portum; d. vias, to build in a straight line, regularly. 2) To direct, to guide to a certain point: d. cursum ad litora; d. iter ad Mutinam; d. hastam in aliquem (poet. alieu); abetr., d. sagittas, to shoot; d. spicula, to hurl; (poet.) d. vulnera = the wounding darts; d. aciem oculorum ad aliquem; trop., d. orationem or cogitationes ad aliquid, to turn to. Sometimes abs., without an object: d. ad veritatem, to point to. 3) Trop., to arrange, to regulate, to dispose according to a certain rule: d. orationem ad exempla; d. se ad id quod est optimum; d. vitam ad certam rationis normam; d. regiones lituo, to bound off: d. omnia voluptate, utilitatem honestate, to measure.

DIRIMO, ōni, emptum, 3. v. tr. [dis-emo].

1) To take apart, to separate, to part, to divide, corpus; urbs flumine dirempta. 2) Trop., to interrupt, to disturb, to break off, to dissolve: d. proelium, nuptias, amicitiam, colloquium, comitia; d. tempus, to cause a delay; d. consilium, to frustrate; thus, likewise, d. auspiciu, to make null; in partio., d. litem, controversias, to compose, to settle.

DIRIPIO, rūpi, reptum, 3. v. tr. [dis-rapio].

1) (Poet.) To tear asunder, to tear into pieces, membra alicujus; diripi equis. 2) To plunder, to ravage, to lay waste (prop., to tear away or to take different ways; hence, esp. of the plundering of a town, houses, or other property by a hostile army—cf. spolio, populor, etc.): d. bona alicujus, urbem, castra, provincias; rarely d. hostes, etc. = bona hostium. 3) (Poet. & lat.) To snatch away, dapes. 4) (Lat.) Trop., to dispute or contend for the possession of any thing: urbes dd. Homerum; pueri dd. talos.

DIRITAS, ōtis, f. [dirus]. Dreadfulness, fearfulness, dei, ominis; si qua invecia d. = horrible misfortune; of persons = cruelty, barbarity.

DIRUMPO (dis-r.), rūpi, ruptum, 3. v. tr. 1) To break or dash into pieces: venti dd. nubem; d. alicui caput; homo diruptus, that has a rupture. Hence, trop., d. se, v. 2, B. 2): A) to sever, to disturb, to dissolve, to break off: d. amicitiam, societatem generis humani. B) pass., in a middle sense, to burst, to be ready to burst with anger, envy, &c.: d. dolore, invidia; also, abs. dirumpuntur, unum omnia posse, they are highly offended that, &c.; thus, also, *d. se, in the same signification.

DIRUGO, rui, rūtum, 3. v. tr. 1) To tear asunder, to tear or pull down, to destroy, to demolish: d. urbem, muros; d. agmina (poet.), to drive asunder, to disperse; trop., d. Baethanalia, to abolish. Hence, miles aere dirutus, deprived of his pay as a punishment; also, in gen., homo dirutus, bankrupt.

*DIRUPTIO, ōnis, f. [dirumpo]. (Lat.) A breaking or tearing asunder.

DIRUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. (Mostly poet. & lat.) 1) Fearful, dreadful, awful, portentous, pernicious, noxious: d. omen, somnia, tempus, execrationes, dapes. In partic., subet., Dirae, ārum, f. pl.; A) fatal signs, ill-boding portents: obaunciatio dirarum: B) imprecations: diras imprecari alicui: C) (poet.) personified = the Furies. 2) Of persons and their character, dreadful, fierce, cruel, dea, noverca, (poet.) serpens; hence, d. bellum, venena, sollicitudo.

DĪS, Itis, m. Originally, the name for a deity or godhead, in gen.; also, for Jupiter; later = Pluto.

DIS, adj. — v. Divea.

DĪS, an inseparable particula, used in forming compounds, denoting separation or removal, also (in opposition to 'con') negation = asunder, in pieces, &c.

DIS-CALCEĀTUS, a, um, adj. (Lat.) Unshod, without shoes.

*DIS-CĀVEO, —, —, 2. v. intr. (Pl.) To beware carefully, malo, of a misfortune.

DIS-CĒDO, cessi, cessum, 3. v. intr. 1) To go away in different directions, to part, to separate: populus d.; Numidae dd. in duas partes: terra d., splits, gapes; trop. (lat.), divisio altera in tres partes d., is subdivided. 2) To go away, to depart: d. ab aliquo, ex concione; d. in silvas, ex castris domum; d. cubitum, to go to bed. In partic.: A) of an army, &c., to march off, to withdraw, to decamp: d. a Gergovia; d. ex iis locis cum classe; d. ab signis, to quit the standards, to leave the line of battle; d. ab armis, to lay down their arms: B) to part from a connexion with one, to desert, to forsake, to leave: g. ab amicis; milites dd. a duce; uxor d. a D., leaves him: C) to come off, to get off or away from an undertaking, peril, &c. (having conquered or been conquered, lost or won): victor is d. ab heste; aequo Marte d. cum Volscis, from the battle with the V.; sine detrimento d.; tanta injuria impunita d., escapes unpunished. 3) Trop.: A) to depart, to swerve, to deviate from, to abandon, to give up; d. a fide et justitia, a naturae statu; d. a sua sententia, ab oppugnatione castrorum, to give up, to desist from; d. ex (a) vita, to die; d. a re = to digress from a subject (in speaking or writing): B) = to disappear, to vanish: sollicitudines dd.; memoria illius rei nunquam discedet ex animo meo: C) tech. t., d. in alienius sententiam, to go over to one's opinion (v. Discessio); d. in alia omnia, to declare for the very contrary opinion; que nunquam ante discessum est, which resolution had never before been resorted to: D) d. ab aliquo, to except one; in the combinations 'quum (si) ab illo discesseris,' him excepted, and 'quum a fratre amore discessi,' if I except the love of a brother.

DISCEPTATIO, ōnis, f. [discepto]. 1) A discussion, debate, disputation, dispute (quiet and friendly, in order to ascertain the truth or right of any thing — cf. contentio, altercatio, etc.): d. cum aliquo; also d. juris, judiciorum, in court. 2) (Lat.) A judicial decision, a judgment.

*DISCEPTATIUNCŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of disceptatio]. A short discussion.

DISCEPTOR, ōris, m. [discepto]. One who decides, an arbitrator, judge: severus d.; juris d.

DISCEPTATRIX, icis, f. [discepto]. An arbitratrix, a female judge.

DISCEPTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [dis-capto].

1) Of the parties at issue, to contend, to debate, to dispute (without anger or bitterness — cf. altercor, contendo, etc.): d. de crimine, de publico jure, de agro; trop., fortuna populi Romani in uno proelio d., is at stake, depends upon. 2) Of the judge, to decide, to determine, to settle: d. aliquid, controversias; d. inter aliquos.

*DISCERNICŪLUM, i, n. [discerno]. (Lat.) A difference.

DISCERNO, crēvi, crētum, 3. v. tr. 1) To set apart, to separate, to part, to divide: mens d. fines eorum; d. Lusitaniam a Baetica; hence, freq. part. Discretus, as an adj. = set apart, separated, retired. 2) To separate by distinguishing, to distinguish, to discern (of. distinguo): d. jus et injuriam; d. verum a falso, quid sit ejusdem generis.

DISCERPO, psi, ptum, 3. v. tr. [dis-carpo]. 1) To divide into small pieces, to pluck or tear to pieces, to dismember, aliquem, aurum in parvas partes; animus discerpi non potest, cannot be divided. 2) Trop.: A) to destroy by scattering: B) of discourse, to separate into members: C) d. aliquem dictis, to abuse, to revile.

DISCESSIO, ōnis, f. [discedo]. 1) A parting asunder, separation: A) tech. t., the voting of the senators by going to one side or the other of the senate-chamber, according to their different opinions: facere d.; senatus consultum factum est per d.: B) (Com.) a divorce: C) (lat.) a separation of the people into parties. 2) (Rar., lat.) A going away, departure.

DISCESSUS, ūs, m. [discedo]. 1) A going asunder, separation: d. coeli = lightning. 2) A going away, removal, departure: d. latronis; d. militum, a marching away; d. a vita = death: d. ab urbe (an euphemism) = banishment.

DISCIDIUM, ii, n. [discindo]. 1) A tearing asunder or into pieces, nabis; d. corporis et animae, separation. Hence, d. tuum, thy absence. 2) Trop., a separation of those who were connected by a moral bond — a) of things = a breaking off, rupture, affinitatum — b) of persons = alienation, discord, disunion, amicorum; d. ae dissensio; freq. = divorce, dissolution of marriage.

DISCIDO, 3. v. tr. [dis-caedo]. (Ante-cl.) To cut into pieces, caudam serpentia.

DISCINCTUS — v. Dissingo.

DI-SCINDO, scidi, scissum, 3. v. tr. To tear or cleave asunder, vestem; vis venti d. nubem; d. cotem novacula, to cut into pieces; d. nivem, to make a path through the snow; trop., oratio discissa inter respondentem et interrogantem, divided = a dialogue.

DIS-CINGO, xxi, motum, 3. v. tr. 1) To loosen the girdle, to ungirdle, tunicam; homo discinctus, with a loosened tunic (a sign of effeminacy); (poet.) d. Afros, to disarm. 2) Trop.: A) is in sinu eat: neque discingor = I do not give him up yet, I do not neglect him: B) d. ingenium (lat.), to enervate, to render effeminate: C) part. Discinctus, as an adj., light-minded, careless, dissolute.

DISCIPLINA, ae, f. [disco]. 1) Instruction given or received, teaching: disciplinae causa multi ad eos concurrunt, in order to receive instruction; tradere aliquem alicui in disciplinam, in order to be instructed by him; res quarum disciplina est, which can be taught, which form the subjects of instruction; d. poeritiae, the education; disciplinae alii esse, to serve as a model to others. 2) That which is taught and communicated by instruction, doctrine: praecepta et instituta et d. In partic.: A) scientiae: d. juris civilis, jurisprudence; d. militaris, military sciences; d. dicendi, oratory, rhetoric; d. omnis honesti iustique, ethics: B) a system: illa d. philosophiae; d. Stoicorum: C) knowledge, learning, erudition: homo summo ingenio et d. 3) Discipline as resulting from instruction, a regulation, custom, usage: d. militaris, military discipline; d. domestica (familiae), domestic discipline; d. navalis, the training and practice of seamen; d. reipublicae, the constitution, usage; (Com.) d. est illis; mala malorum d., habit; imitari aliorum mores et d., character and manners.

*DISCIPLINABILIS, e, adj. [disciplina]. That may be taught.

DISCIPLINOSUS, a, um, adj. [disciplina]. (Ante-cl.) Dedit.

DISCIPŪLA, ae, f. [disco]. (Poet. & lat.) A (female) scholar or pupil.

DISCIPŪLUS, i, m. [disco]. A scholar, pupil, disciple; also (Pl.) = an apprentice.

DISCLŪDO, si, sum, 3. v. tr. [dis-claudio]. To shut up apart, to part, to separate: d. illa tigna, to keep asunder or at proper distances; mone d. Arvernos ab Helviis; (poet.) (solum coepit) discludere Nerea ponto, to shut up in the deep and thereby to separate (from itself); (poet.) d. turres, to split; d. merus roboris, to open the fast-holding oak, i. e., to draw out the spear; d. aliquid locis, to assign a place to a thing.

DISCO, didici, —, 3. v. tr. To learn, to become acquainted with: d. artem ab aliquo; d. literas apud aliquem; d. causam ex aliquo, to make one's self acquainted with (of a counsellor); d. illum abisse, quemadmodum haec facta sint; discendi causa; d. ab aliquo.

DISCŌBŪLUS, i, m. [= discobolus]. (Lat.) A thrower of the discus.

DIS-COLOR, ōris, adj. 1) Of a different colour, signa; (poet.) vestis d. fatis meis, the colour of which does not agree with my fate. 2) (Poet. & lat.) Variegated, parti-coloured. 3) Trop. (poet.), different, unlike in external qualities (cf. dispar), alioqui.

*DIS-CONDŪCO, —, —, 3. v. intr. (Pl.) To be injurious, to be hurtful, huic rei.

DIS-CONVENIO, —, —, 4. v. intr. (Poet.) To disagree: animus d.; impers., eo d. inter me et te, in this we are of different opinions.

DIS-CŌQUO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. (Lat.) To boil into pieces, to boil thoroughly, radice.

*DISCORDABILIS, e, adj. [discordo]. (Pl.) Disagreeing, discordant.

DISCORDIA, ae, f. [disco]. Discord, disunion, dissension, disagreement, hominum, rerum, principiorum; (poet.) of a maiden = the object of a quarrel; personified = the goddess of Discord (Greek Ἔρις); discordiae malum, the apple of discord.

*DISCORDIOSUS, a, um, adj. [discordia]. (Rar.) Quarrelsome, inclined to discord, discordant.

DISCORDO, 1. v. intr. [disco]. To be at variance; hence, in gen., to disagree, to be unlike, to be different: illi dd. inter se; d. cum aliquo; vox d. ab oratione.

DISCORDS, dis, adj. [dis-coor]. 1) Discordant, at variance, homines, civitas secum d.; d. sibi (poet.), with one's self. 2) Of things, disagreeing, inharmonious: responsa inter se dd.; symphonia d. 3) (Lat.) Unlike, different: homines discordes moribus et lingua; (poet.) fetus d., double-shaped; (lat.) aestus marini tempore dd., setting in at different times.

DISCRĒPANTIA, ae, f. [discrepo]. Discordance, disagreement, verborum, scripti et voluntatis.

*DISCRĒPATIO, ōnis, f. [discrepo]. A disagreement, dispute.

DIS-CRĒPITO, 1. v. intr. (Lucr.) To be entirely different.

DIS-CRĒPO, ui, —, 1. v. intr. 1) Of musical instruments, to sound differently or discordantly, to differ in sound: tibiae dd. 2) To differ, to be different, to disagree, to vary: confidere discrepat a timendo; honestas et utilitas verbo inter se dd.; facta ejus dd. cum dictis; tres duces dd., disagree. 3) (Poet. & lat.): A) res d., a the subject of different opinions, is a matter of dispute; cuius d., there are different opinions about: B) impers., discrepat, there is a difference of opinion or dispute (about something); d. de illa re; nee d., quin is dictator fuerit, it is uncontested, undisputed, that; d. inter scriptores rerum, the historians are of different opinions.

DISCRIMEN, inis, n. [discerno]. 1) An intervening space, an interval, distance: duo maria (near Corinth) pertenui discrimine separantur, are separated by a tongue of land; dd. dentium, the openings between the teeth; dd. comae, the divisions of the hair. 2) Trop., a difference, distinction, rerum, recti pravique. 3) Trop., a decisive point or moment, a critical moment, a decision; hence, that which frequently succeeds or is involved in a decision, a danger, crisis, risk: d. belli; versatur (est) in discrimine utrum, etc., it is now to be decided; res venit in discrimen; agere (deducere, committere) rem in d., to bring to a decision or crisis; d. vitae, capitis; d. periculi, the decisive moment, the highest point of a danger; esse in summo d.; adduci in discrimen veteris fortunae, to incur the risk of losing.

DISCRIMINO, avi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [discrimen]. (Bar.) To part, to separate, Etruriam, dissimilia inter se.

DIS-CRUCIO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. To torture, to torment, aliquem. In partic., d. se or discruciarī, to torment one's self; i. e., to be vexed, to be troubled: d. amore; d. animi, in one's mind.

DISCUBITUS, ūs, m. [discumbo]. (Lat.) A reclining at table.

DISCUMBO, cūbui, cūbitum, 3. v. intr. [discubo]. 1) Of several persons, to recline at table (in different places): omnes dd. 2) (Bar.) Of a single person, where however the thought is always of several who do the same. 3) (Bar.) To go to bed: ire discubitur, to lie down to sleep.

DIS-CŪPIO, 3. v. intr. (Bar.) To wish eagerly, to long for vehemently.

DIS-CURRO, cūcurri or curri, cursum, 3. v. intr. To run different ways, to run about (dispersedly), to disperse: plebs d. tota urbe; milites d. in omnes partes castrorum; Nilus d. in septem ora, separates; fama d., spreads abroad.

DISCOURSATIO, ōnis, f. [discurso]. (Lat.) A running about.

DIS-CURSO, 1. v. intr. (Lat.) To run about in haste, to run to and fro.

DISCURSUS, ūs, m. [discurro]. A running to and fro, a running about; trop. (lat.), d. venarum; d. telorum, a flying about.

DISCUS, i, m. [= discus]. A quoit, a round metal plate, with a hole in the centre, and hurled for exercise towards a mark.

DISCUSSIO, ōnis, f. [discutio]. (Lat.) A shaking.

DISCŪTIO, cussi, cussum, 3. v. tr. [disquatio]. 1) To shake into pieces, to strike asun-dar, to dash into pieces, to shatter, columnam, caput, murum. 2) To drive asunder, to disperse, to dispel, illos coetus, caliginem; sol d. nebulam; nix discoutitur, melts. 3) Trop., to disturb, to destroy, to remove, to break up, somnium; d. periculum, to ward off; d. disceptationem; res est discussa, was frustrated.

DISERTE and (ante-cl.) DISERTIM, adv. w. comp. & sup. [disertus]. 1) Elegantly. 2) Clearly, expressly.

DISERTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [diserto]. 1) Of one who expresses his thoughts well and easily. Well-spoken, eloquent (cf. eloquens), which is stronger; sometimes, also = eloquens), homo, orator. 2) Transferred to the speech itself, well-arranged; hence, also = clear, explicit: oratio d., an eloquent delivery; d. historia, written beautifully; d. epistola, explicit; d. verba, clear, plain.

DISJECTO, 1. v. tr. [dis-jacto]. (Luor.) To hurl asunder, to disperse, to scatter: mare d. antennas.

DISJECTUS (I.), ūs, m. [disjicio]. (Luor.) A scattering.

DISJECTUS (II.), a, um, adj. [part. of disjicio]. Scattered: urbs disjecta spatio, widely extended.

DISJICIO, jēci, jectum, 3. v. tr. [dis-jacio]. 1) To throw asunder, to drive or chase asunder, to scatter, to disperse: d. membra, nubes, nares passim; d. phalangem hostium, to disperse, to rout; (poet.) disjecta comas, with dishevelled hair. 2) Trop., to demolish, to destroy: d. arcem a fundamentis, statuas; d. pecuniam, to squander; d. pacem, to disturb; d. consilia ducis, expectationem rei aliorum, to destroy.

DISJUNCTE, adv. w. comp. (in a doubtful read.) [disjunctus]. Separately.

DISJUNCTIO, ōnis, f. [disjungo]. 1) A separation, removal: d. meorum, from my friends; d. animorum, a difference of opinion. 2) Tech. t. — a) in rhetoric, a separation of similar sentences by a different verb in each (as, Numantiam deleuit, Carthaginem sustulit, Corinthum disiecit) — b) an opposition of the parts of a proposition, e.g., by 'either' — 'or.'

DISJUNCTIVUS, a, um, adj. [disjungo]. (Lat.) Disjunctive, opposed to each other.

DISJUNCTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of disjungo]. 1) Separated, distant. 2) Different, distinct from. 3) Opposed. 4) Disjoined, interrupted: orator d., speaking in short, abrupt phrases.

DIS-JUNGO, nxi, netum, 3. v. tr. 1) To loosen, to untie, to unbind: d. boves, to unyoke. 2) To disjoin, to separate, to remove: flumen illud d. regnum Jugurthae Bocchique, Cappadociam ab Armenia. Freq., trop. = to remove one in feeling from a person or thing, to alienate: d. aliquem ab aliquo, to prevail upon one to revolt;

d. ab alienis amicis; d. populum a senatu, to disturb the good understanding between; d. se a corpore, to set one's self free from the body.

*DISPALESCO, —, 3. v. intr. [dispalor]. (Pl.) To be spread abroad = to become known.

DIS-PĀLOB, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. (Rar.) To wander about, to straggle.

DIS-PANDO (also, ante-cl., Dispendo or Dispenne), —, sum, 3. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To stretch out, to spread out, to expand, to extend, hominem, vestes in sole.

DIS-PAR, āris, adj. Unlike, different (in mental qualities — of. discolor): d. mores, fortuna; proelium d., a battle in which different kinds of soldiers (as, foot-soldiers and cavalry) fight against each other; fistula d., a reed-pipe made of unequal parts; thus, likewise, d. avena, d. alicui, unlike a person; (rar.) d. sui, unlike one's self.

DIS-PĀRILIS, e, adj. (Rar.) = Dispar.

DISPĀRILITAS, ātis, f. [disparilis]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Unlikeness, difference.

DIS-PĀRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To disjoin, to put asunder = to part, to separate, aliquos; d. eos alium aliā, to send separately hither and thither. Hence, subst., Disparatum, i, n., in rhetoric, a direct contrast.

DISPECTUS, ūs, m. [dispicio]. (Lat.) A considering, weighing, examining.

DIS-PELLO, pūli, pulsus, 3. v. tr. To drive asunder, to scatter, to disperse, aliquos; d. umbras, caliginem, to chase away.

DISPENDIUM, ii, n. [pendo — of. dispenso]. (Poet. & lat.) Expense (without necessity), cost, loss: sine damno et d.; (poet.) d. morae, loss of time; facere d., to suffer a loss.

DISPENSATIO, ōnis, f. *1) A distributing: d. inopiae, of a small supply. 2) A management, charge or oversight, aerarii, pecuniae, annonae. 3) The office of an overseer, stewardship: d. regia, the office of royal treasurer.

DISPENSĀTOR, ōris, m. [dispenso]. (Mostly lat.) One who keeps accounts, esp. of a household, a steward; in partic., a cashier, treasurer.

DIS-PENSO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To weigh out to several persons, to distribute by weighing, to disburse, to pay out, numos. 2) To distribute, to divide, to regulate: d. fontem inter incolas; d. annum; d. laetitiam, to impart by degrees; d. victoriam, to regulate everything in connexion with a victory. 3) To manage, to administer, to take care of household or money affairs: d. res domesticas, pecuniam.

*DIS-PERCŪTIO, —, —, 3. v. tr. (Pl.) To dash out, cerebrum.

*DISPERDITIO, ōnis, f. [disperdo]. Destruction.

DIS-PERDO, dīdi, dītum, 3. v. tr. To destroy entirely, to ruin, to waste: d. possessiones suas, aliquem.

DIS-PŪREO, ii, —, 4. v. intr. To go to ruin, to perish entirely, to be destroyed or lost: funus, pecunia d.; (poet.) labores tui dd., are lost, are of no use; vestis d. multo sanguine, is spoiled. In partic. (colloq.), disperii, I am ruined! it is all over with me! and, dispeream si (nisi), may I perish if (if not).

DISPERGO, si, sum, 3. v. tr. [dis-spargo]. To scatter different ways, to scatter about, to disperse: d. finum, membra fratris; milites disperai; d. illos tota acie, distributed them over the whole line of battle; trop., bellum longe lateque dispersum, extended, carried on in many different places; vulgus d., spreads abroad the report; d. membratim, to distribute; quae sunt dispersa (opp. to 'conclusa artibus'), sketched hastily and without order.

DISPERSE, adv. [dispergo]. Scatteredly, dispersedly.

DISPERSIM, adv. [dispergo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) = Disperse.

DISPERTIO, Ivi or ii, itum, and Dispartior, dep., 4. v. tr. [dis-partio]. 1) To distribute: d. exercitum per oppida; d. equites in utrumque latus; d. tirones inter legiones; mihi officium tecum ita dispartitum est. 2) To distribute = to apportion, to assign, pecuniam iudiciis, alium servis, oppida tribunis. 3) To divide, rem quadrifariam.

DISPĪCIO, spexi, spectrum, 3. v. tr. & intr. [dis-specio]. Prop., to open the eyes and look out upon different sides, esp. of such as were previously unable to see. 1) Mostly intr., to begin to see, to begin to distinguish objects: d. non possum, I can see nothing at all before me; ut primum dispexit, as soon as he opened his eyes (after a swoon); catuli dd. Rarely tr., d. rem, to decry, to perceive. 2) To look about or around: dispice (Pl.). 3) Trop.: A) to see through, to perceive, to comprehend, mentem principis, verum; d. insidiatorem et petitem insidiis, to distinguish: B) to weigh, to consider, to reflect upon, res Romanas.

DISPLĪCENTIA, ae, f. [displiceo]. (Lat.) Dissatisfaction, displeasure.

DISPLICEO, cui (*citus sum, lat.), citum, 2. v. intr. [dis-placeo]. To displease: haec res mihi d.; d. sibi — a) = to be displeased or discontented with one's self — b) to be troubled or out of humour.

DISPLŪDO, —, sum, 3. v. tr. [dis-plando]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To burst asunder, vesiculum, templa coeli.

DIS-PŪNO, pōui, pōitum, 3. v. tr. To place here and there, to set in different places; hence, in gen., to distribute, to set in order, to arrange: d. libros; d. disiecta membra in ordinem, enses per herbam, capillos; esp., freq. of soldiers, to station, to draw up, to distribute: d. custodias, cohortes, tormenta in muris; (poet.) d. corpora, to form; d. urbem versu, to describe; d.

liem, to arrange the business of the day; d. suum cuique munus, to apportion.

DISPÓSITE, adv. w. sup. [dispositus]. Orderly, in proper order.

DISPÓSITIO, ōnis, f. [dispono]. A regular distribution, division, arrangement, disposition.

DISPÓSITOR, ōris m. [dispono]. (Lat.) A disposer, arranger.

DISPÓSITŪRA, ae, f. [dispono]. (Lucret.) = Dispositio.

DISPÓSĪTUS (I.), ūs, m. [dispono]. (Lat.) = Dispositio.

DISPÓSĪTUS (II.), a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of dispono]. Well-ordered, properly arranged or distributed: vir d., a methodical speaker.

DIS-PŪDET, 2. v. impers. (Ante-cl.) A strengthened 'pudet.' Dispuget me, I am greatly ashamed.

DIS-PUNGO, xxi, notum, 3. v. tr. (Lat.) Prop., to distinguish by points; hence, 1) to examine or revise the debts and credits of an account so as to ascertain the balance: d. rationes acceptorum et expensorum; trop., dispunge vitae tuae dies, examine. 2) (Lat.) To alternate: d. intervalla negotiorum otio, to devote the intervals of freedom from public business to a studious leisure.

DISPŪTABĪLIS, e, adj. [disputo]. Disputable, that may be disputed.

DISPŪTATIO, ōnis, f. [disputo]. 1) (Rar.) A calculating, computing: forma agri venit in d. 2) A discussion, in the form of a dialogue, of a subject of controversy; a disputation, debate; also, concr. = a treatise: instituere d. de re aliqua; habere d. in utramque partem.

DISPŪTATIUNCŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of disputatio]. (Lat.) A short treatise.

DISPŪTĀTOR, ōris, m. [disputo]. One who discusses a controverted point in the form of a dialogue, a disputant; hence = a thinker, investigator, in gen.

DISPŪTĀTRIX, icis, adj. f. [disputa]. (Lat.) That consists in disputation; subst. (sc. ars), as a translation of the Greek διαλεκτική = the art of disputing (classic Latin, Dialectica, q. v.).

DIS-PŪTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) (Pl.) Prop., to compute a sum by reasoning up its items; hence, to compute or calculate accurately, to settle: d. rationem cum aliquo. 2) To discuss any thing in the form of a dialogue (with a real or imaginary opponent, bringing forward arguments for and against), to argue; hence, in gen., to examine, to treat of, to explain: d. de omni re in contrarias partes; d. in eam sententiam ut, etc.; d. aliquid, haec, multa; (Pl.) d. rem, to state, to represent.

*DISQUĪRO, 3. v. tr. [dis-quæro]. (Poet.) To examine.

DISQUĪSITIO, ōnis, f. [disquiro]. An examination, inquiry; in partic., a judicial inquiry.

DIS-SĒCO, cui, etum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To cut asunder, rans; d. aliquem serrā, to saw into pieces.

DIS-SĒMĪNO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. Prop., to sow, to scatter seed; only trop. = to disseminate, to spread abroad, malum.

DISSENSIO, ōnis, f. [dissentio]. 1) Of persons, difference of opinion, dissension, discord, strife: dd. civiles, ordinum; frequently in the pl. 2) Of things, disagreement, contradiction: d. utilium cum honestis.

DISSENSUS, ūs, m. (Poet.) = Dissensio.

DISSENTĀNEUS, a, um, adj. [dissentio].

(Rar.) Disagreeing, alicui rei, with something.

DIS-SENTIO, si, sum, 4. v. intr. 1) Of persons, to differ in opinion or sentiment, to disagree, to dissent: d. ab aliquo; illi inter se dd.; (lat.) d. cum aliquo; (poet.) d. condicionibus (dat.); sometimes abs. = to cherish hostile sentiments, to be in a state of bitter disagreement: civibus dissentientibus. 2) Of things, to disagree, to differ, to deviate: affectio a se dissentiens; verba dd. ab animo, the words are inconsistent with the sense (intention); vita d. orationi; voluntas d. cum scripto.

DIS-SĒPIO, psi, ptum, 4. v. tr. To fence off, to part off or separate by a fence, hedge, &c., aliquid.

DISSEPTUM, i, n. [dissepicio]. (Poet.) A partition-wall.

DISSĒRĒNĀSCIT, āvit, —, 3. v. impers. intr. [dis-serenus]. It grows clear, it clears up.

DIS-SĒRO (I.), —, sĭtum, 3. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To scatter seed, to sow here and there, semina; pars animae per totum corpus dissita, spread.

DIS-SĒRO (II.), sĕrui, sertum, 3. v. tr. *1) To set asunder or in different places, to set here and there: d. taleas mediocribus intermissis spatiis. 2) Trop., to discuss, to argue; to unfold, to treat or speak of, to state (the idea of controverting and refuting the arguments of an opponent is not so prominent as in 'disputo'): d. aliquid, haec pluribus verbis, subtilius; d. de immortalitate; d. quale sit illud; d. rem esse veram; and, abs., d. cum aliquo, to confer with one; d. in contrarias partes, to state and discuss the arguments on both sides.

*DIS-SĒRPO, 3. v. intr. (Lucret.) Prop., to creep about; hence, to spread imperceptibly.

DISSERTATIO, ōnis, f. [disserto]. (Lat.) A discussion, disquisition, dissertation.

DISSERTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) = A strengthened Dissero II., q. v.

DIS-SĪDEO, sĕdi, sessum, 2. v. intr. Prop., to sit apart; hence, 1) (rar., poet.) — a) toga d., sits unevenly, awry — b) to be remote or distant: Hypanias d. Eridano, lies far from. 2) Trop. A) of persons, to be at variance, to disagree in opinion and sentiment: d. cum aliquo or ab aliquo; (poet.) d. alicui; illi dd. inter se; (lat.)

hostis d. in Arminium et Segestem, are divided into two factions, that of Arminius and that of Segestes: B) of things, to be different, dissimilar, or unlike, to vary: nostra non dd. a Peripateticis; scriptum d. a sententia.

DISSILIO, lui, —, 4. v. intr. [dis-silio]. (Poet. & lat.) To leap or burst asunder, to be suddenly split, to separate, glaciers, uva; terra d., cracks; d. risu, to burst with laughter; trop., gratia d., the good understanding was disturbed.

DIS-SIMILIS, e, adj. w. comp. & sup. Unlike, dissimilar: d. tui or tibi; dd. inter se; hoc est non d. atque ire, unlike going; thus, likewise, d. ac si quis, as if one.

DISSIMILITUDO, isis, f. [dissimilis]. Unlikeness, difference; also, abs., of a varying, inconsistent character.

DISSIMILITER, adv. [dissimilis]. Differently, in a different manner.

DISSIMULANTER, adv. [dissimulo]. Dissemblingly, secretly, clandestinely.

*DISSIMULANTIA, ae, f. [dissimulo]. A dissembling.

DISSIMULATIO, ōnis, f. [dissimulo]. 1) A disguising, masking, sui. 2) A dissembling, concealing of one's sentiments, dissimulation; in partia. = irony.

DISSIMULATOR, ōris, m. [dissimulo]. One who disguises his real sentiments, a dissembler.

DIS-SIMULO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. Prop., to make unlike. 1) To act as though something were not that which it really is; hence, to dissemble, to disguise, to hide, to conceal: d. aliquid, oñum suum; d. se illi rei operam dedisse; d. quis illud fecerit; (Pl.) d. quasi eos non videam: (poet.) d. se = to assume another form, to conceal one's real form under an assumed one; dissimulat deum, he lays aside his divine form, he conceals his divinity. 2) (Lat.) Sometimes = to neglect, not to regard, to take no notice of, consulatum aliojus; d. consonantes, to pass by in pronunciation.

*DISSIPABILIS, e, adj. [dissipo]. That may be scattered or dispersed.

DISSIPATIO, ōnis, f. [dissipo]. A scattering, dispersing, civium; d. praedae, a scattering of booty, i. e., a plundering; d. corporum individuum, a dissolution, destruction; in rhetoric, the separation of an idea into its parts.

DIS-SIPO (more ancient form Dissuipo), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [dis-sipo = dis-sacio]. 1) To throw or cast asunder, to scatter, to disperse: d. cumulos stercoris, membra fratris; d. hostes, to rout; fuga dissipata, a flight in all directions; homines dissipati, living without social ties. 2) Trop.: A) to overthrow, to demolish, to destroy, statum, reliquias reipublicae; animus non dissipatus, is not dissipated, destroyed; d. rem familiarem, to squander; d. cures, to chase away: B) d. sermones, etc., to spread, to disseminate:

C) of discourse, ea quae dissipata sunt (opp. to 'conclusa artibus'), ill-arranged and unconnected; hence, orator dissipatus, speaking without order and connection.

DISSOCIABILIS, e, adj. [dissocio]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Act., separating, dividing, oceanus 2) Pass., that can not be united, irreconcilable, incompatible, res.

DISSOCIATIO, ōnis, f. [dissocio]. (Lat.) A separation.

DIS-SOCIO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) (Poet.) To separate, to disjoin: montes dissociantur valle opaca. 2) To separate in sentiment, to disunite, to set at variance, to estrange: d. homines, animos civium; d. disertos a doctis, to distinguish; d. amicitias, to dissolve, to disturb.

DISSOLUBILIS, e, adj. [dissolvo]. (Rar.) Dissoluble, that may be separated or dissolved.

DISSOLUTE, adv. [dissolutus]. 1) Unconnectedly, without connecting particles. 2) Negligently, carelessly.

DISSOLUTIO, ōnis, f. [dissolvo]. 1) A dissolving, dissolution: d. navis, a breaking up; d. naturae, death. 2) Trop.: A) a destroying, abolishing, abrogating, legum, iudiciorum: B) a refutation, criminum: C) in rhetoric, an omission of conjunctions, disconnection: D) negligence, effeminacy, want of energy: remissio animi ac d.

DISSOLUTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of dissolvo]. Prop., unloosed. Trop. only: 1) Loose, unconnected: alterum genus orationis est nimis d.; haec dd. nobis esse non debent, bound by no rule. 2): A) negligent, indifferent, careless: d. in tantis reipublicae periculis; d. in re familiari: B) lax, dissolute, licentious, corrupt, adolescens, mores.

DIS-SOLVO, vi, ātum, 3. v. tr. Prop., to loosen asunder. 1) To unloose, to loosen what is bound together, nodos, navem, animam; navis dissolvitur, breaks up. Hence, d. aes, to melt; d. resinam, to make liquid. 2) Trop.: A) to destroy, to abolish, to abrogate, amicitiam, leges, rempublicam, disciplinam: B) to refute, to invalidate an assertion by proof: d. interrogationes; d. Erucii crimina, to disprove: C) (Com.) to release, to set free, aliquem; dissolvi me, I have disengaged myself; dissolve me, relieve me = tell it to me: D) to pay, pecuniam, multam, aes alienum; hence, of a debtor, dissolvi = to pay his debts, and thereby to be released from them.

DIS-SŌNO, 1. v. intr. (Lat.) To sound confusedly or discordantly; trop., to differ.

DISSŌNUS, a, um, adj. (Mostly poet. & lat.) 1) Sounding differently, confused, discordant, dissonant, clamor, voces. 2) Trop., disagreeing, varying, different: gentes dd. sermone; nihil dissonum erat ab Romana ra.

*DIS-SORS, tis, adj. (Poet.) Not sharing: ab omni milite d. gloria, in which the soldiers have no share.

DISSUADEO, si, sum, 2. v. tr. To dissuade, to advise to the contrary, to advise against something: d. legem; d. de captivis redimendis; d. me legem accipiat; (lat.) d. inire societatem.

DISSUASIO, ōnis, f. [dissuadeo]. A dissuading, legio.

DISSUASOR, ōris, m. [dissuadeo]. A dissuader, opposer.

*DIS-SUAVIOR, 1. v. dep. tr. To kiss ardently, oculos alicujus.

DISSULTO, 1. v. intr. [dissilio]. (Poet. & lat.) To leap asunder = to burst asunder.

DIS-SUO, —, ūtum, 3. v. tr. Prop., to unstitch that which has been sewn. 1) To open, to put asunder, sinum. 2) Trop., d. amicitias, to dissolve by degrees.

DIS-TAEDET, 2. v. impers. tr. (Com.) It causes disgust, loathing: d. me tui, I am weary of you.

DISTANTIA, ae, f. [disto]. *1) (Lat.) A distance, interval. 2) Trop., a difference, diversity: tanta est inter eos morum d.

DIS-TENDO (ante-cl. also Distenno), di, tum (rar. sum), 3. v. tr. 1) To stretch asunder (in different directions), to stretch out, to extend: d. aliquem in currus; d. brachia, rictum; d. aciem. Hence (poet.), to fill so as to stretch = to fill up completely: d. cellas nectare. 2) Trop., to draw different ways, to divide, to disperse: d. curas hominum; d. animos, to keep wavering, to perplex; in partic., d. copias hostium, to occupy on several points at the same time, to keep asunder.

DISTENTUS (I.), a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of distendo]. Distended = filled up, crammed.

DISTENTUS (II.), a, um, adj. w. sup. [part. of distineo]. Much occupied, busy, engaged, multis negotiis.

DIS-TERMINO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To separate by a boundary, to part asunder: intervallum d. binas stellas.

DISTICHON, i, n. [= διστιχόν]. (Lat.) A poem consisting of two verses, a distich.

*DI-STIMULO, 1. v. tr. (Pl.) Prop., to goad through; trop., to waste, bona.

DISTINCTE, adv. [distinctus]. Distinctly, clearly, methodically, dicere.

DISTINCTIO, ōnis, f. [distinguo]. 1) A distinguishing, distinction: harum rerum d. est facilis. 2) A difference: quae est d. inter illa? 3) In rhet. — a) an alternate use of the same word in different cases — b) a separation and distinction of kindred notions — c) a species of antithesis or opposition — d) a stop or rest in discourse, a pause. 4) A difference which distinguishes and marks out one object among several = lustris: solis, lunae siderumque omnium d. varietas, pulchritudo; hence, trop., d. civitatis, the ornament.

DISTINCTUS (I.), ūs, m. [distinguo]. (Lat.) = Distinctio 4: d. pennarum, the lustre, tincture of the plumage.

DISTINCTUS (II.), a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of distinguo]. 1) Distinct, properly divided or separated: habere dd. gradus dignitatis; vitae genus d., well-regulated. Hence, oratio, sermo d., distinct, well-arranged and divided, orderly and clear; and, orator d., whose speech has such qualities. 2) (Lat.) Separated, remote: Hesiodus circa 120 annos ab Homeri aetate distinctus. 3) Manifold, variable: Romana acies distinctior (cf. also distinguo 3).

DISTINEO, ūnui, tentum, 2. v. tr. [dis-teneo]. 1) To keep asunder, to separate: tigna distinctentur duabus fibulis; Isthmus d. freta. 2) Trop.: A) to draw different ways, to divide, to distract: duae factiones dd. senatum; esp., pass., distineri, of persons, to be drawn towards different objects, to be distracted, esp. by troublesome occupations; distineor maximis negotiis; distineor dolore, I am torn asunder by grief: B) to keep an enemy asunder, to engage in several places, and thereby to hinder from concentrating and perfectly using their forces; to divide; to delay, to detain, to keep off: d. copias hostium; d. manum, regem accipiti bello: of inanimate objects, to hinder, to prevent, pacem. In partic., pass., distineri novis legibus; d. quo minus illud faciam, I am prevented from doing this.

DI-STINGUO, inxi, inctum, 3. v. tr. [stinguo = ερίξω, 'to mark with a pointed instrument']. 1) To distinguish by marks (cf. discerno), to separate, to part: d. oratorum genera aetatibus, according to their ages; d. vera a falsis, (poet.) verum falso, to separate the true from the false; in rhetoric = to divide properly, versum, vocem. 2) To adorn, to ornament, to decorate by furnishing a thing at various places with distinguishing marks: coelum distinctum stellis; poculum d. gemmis; trop., d. orationem verborum et sententiarum insignibus.

DI-STO, —, —, 1. v. intr. 1) To stand asunder, to be separated or distant: A) of space, trabes inter se binos pedes dd.; also, d. ab aliquo; (poet.) tanto d. Phrygia, is so far distant from Phrygia: B) of time, quantum Codrus d. ab Inacho, as great an interval as separates C. from I.; illi non multum dd. aetate. 2) Trop., to be separated in quality or essence, to differ; to be different: illi dd. inter se; d. ab aliqua re and (poet.) alicui or alicui rei; impers., d., there is a difference.

DIS-TORQUEO, rsi, rtum, 2. v. tr. 1) Prop., to turn asunder or different ways; to twist, to distort, os, oculos. 2) (Lat.) To torment, to torture, aliquem; trop., repulsa eum d.

DISTORTIO, ōnis, f. [distorqueo]. A twisting, distortion, membrum.

DISTORTUS, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of distorqueo]. Distorted, wrenched: d. homo, with distorted limbs, misshapen, crippled; trop., genus dicendi d., perverse.

DISTRACTIO, ōnis, f. [distraho]. 1) (Lat.) A drawing asunder, distortion, membrorum. 2) A separating, dividing, animi corporisque. 3) Trop., dissoord, dissension: d. nobis est cum tyrannis. 4) Trop., a disturbing, destroying, harum voluptatum.

DISTRACTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of distraho]. 1) Divided, separated. 2) Dissevered, destroyed, res publica. 3) Trop., occupied with several things at the same time, distracted.

DIS-TRAHO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) To draw different ways, to pull or tear asunder, to tear into pieces: d. vallum, corpus alicujus; d. aciem, to separate, to break up; d. vallum, to tear down; (poet.) d. genas, to lacerate; trop. (lat.), distrahi famā, to be assailed with imputations, to be ill spoken of. Hence, trop.: A) (lat.) to sell separately or in parcels, agros, bona: B) d. voces (opp. to contrahere), to pronounce with a hiatus: C) to separate, naturā cohaerentia: D) to dissolve, to break up, matrimonium, societatem; d. controversias, to settle; d. rem, to frustrate: E) to set at variance, Caesarem et Pompeium, collegia; freq., pass., distrahi cum aliquo, to fall out with one: F) to draw the mind different ways, to make wavering, to divide, to distract, to perplex: d. aliquem or animum alicujus; d. industriam oratoris in plura studia. 2) To draw or tear away from any thing: necessitas illum a me d.; trop., to separate, to distinguish, sapientiam a voluptate; d. aliquem ab aliquo, to estrange, to alienate.

DIS-TRIBUO, ui, ūtum, 3. v. tr. 1) To distribute, Numidas in hiberna, milites in legiones; d. nares legatis; (rar.) = to apportion among several something to be furnished or a service to be performed: d. aliquid civitatibus. 2) To divide, populum in partes duas, pueros in classes.

DISTRIBŪTE, adv. with comp. [distribuo]. With proper divisions or arrangement, methodically.

DISTRIBŪTIO, ōnis, f. [distribuo]. A distribution, division, criminum, coeli.

DISTRICTE, adv. w. comp. [districтус]. (Lat.) Strictly, severely.

DISTRICTIM, adv. [districтус]. (Lat.) Strictly.

DISTRICTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [distringo]. 1) Occupied or engaged in different ways, busy (v. distringo). 2) (Lat.) Strict, severe, accusator.

DI-STRINGO, nxi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) (Poet.) To draw asunder, to stretch out in different directions: d. aliquem radiis rotarum; (Lucr.) rabies districta, a tooth-showing rage (of a dog). 2) Trop., to draw one's mind, attention or activity in different directions, to occupy or engage at several points, to divide, to distract; and, hence, to detain, to hinder: d. Romanos epurgatione plurium civitatum; multitudo liberorum d. animum; districti ancipiti contentione, their forces divided by; districtus mihi videris, to be struggling with yourself. DIS-TRUNCO, 1. v. tr. (Pl.) To cut into pieces, to mangle, aliquem.

DISTURBATIO, ōnis, f. [disturbo]. Destruction, demolition, Corinthi.

DIS-TURBO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To drive asunder, to separate by violence, concionem. 2) To demolish, to destroy, domum, opera. hence, to break up, to overthrow, societatem, legem; d. concordiam, to disturb; d. iudicia; d. rem, to frustrate.

DISYLLĀBUS, a, um, adj. [= δισλλαβος]. (Lat.) Dissyllable.

DITESCO, —, —, 3. v. intr. [dives]. (Poet.) To grow rich.

DITHYRAMBICUS, a, um, adj. [= διθυραμβικος]. Dithyrambic.

DITHYRAMBUS, i, m. [= διθυραμβος]. A dithyramb, a lyric poem in a lofty and enthusiastic style; originally, a hymn in honour of Bacchus, also, later, in honour of other gods.

DITIO (or Dicio), ōnis, f. (the nom. sing. does not occur). Domination, power, rule, authority, sway: haec regio fuit ditionis regiae, was under the dominion of the king; facere regionem ditionis suae, to bring under his dominion; (lat.) regionem illam ditioni ejus adjecit; freq., tradere (redigere) aliquid in ditionem alicujus, to bring under one's sway; thus, likewise, venire (concedere) in ditionem alicujus; also, erant in amicitiam ditionemque populi Romani, under the sway; esse sub imperio et ditione alicujus; also, in ditione alicujus.

DITO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [dives]. (Mostly poet. & lat.) To enrich, aliquem.

DIU, adj. with the comp. Diutius, and the sup. Diutissime [dies]. 1) (Ante-cl. & lat.) By day: noctu et d. 2) Long, a long time, long while: d. multumque; saepe et d.; d. ego illum cruciabo; ille vult d. vivere; non diutius, no longer; nec d. hic fui, it is not long since I was here. 3) (Colloq.) Long since, long ago (of that which has lasted a long time — cf. pridem, dudum): huc migravit jam d. 4) (Lat.) Of space, far, a long distance.

DIURNO, 1. v. intr. [diurnus]. (Ante-cl.) To last long.

DIURNUS, a, um, adj. [dies]. 1) Of or pertaining to a day, lasting a day, daily, cibus, victus, merces. In partic., acta diurna (v. Acta). Hence, as a subst.: A) Diurnum, i, n. — a) a daily allowance of food — b) a diary, journal: B) Diurna, ōrum, n. pl. — a) a journal — b) = acta diurna. 2) Of the day, by day (opp. to nocturnus): labores dd.; (poet.) lumen d., day-light; stella d., the morning-star; currus d., the chariot of the sun.

DIUS, a, um, adj. = Divus, q. v.

DIUTINE, adv. [diutinus]. (Pl.) Long, a long time.

DIUTINUS, a, um, adj. [diu]. A rare form, instead of Diuturnus, q. v.

DIUTULE, adv. [diu]. (Lat.) A little while.

DIUTURNITAS, âtis, f. [diuturnus]. A long duration, length of time, lastingness, temporis, pacis, belli, reipublicae; d. memoriae.

DIUTURNUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [diu]. Of long duration, lasting, long, obaidio, molestia, bellum; non potes esse d., you will not be able to keep up a long time; (poet.) filia me diuturnior, living longer than I.

DI-VARICO, —, âtum, 1. v. tr. (Rar.) To stretch asunder: d. hominem in statua, to set astride.

DI-VELLO, velli, vulsum, 3. v. tr. 1) To tear asunder, to tear into pieces, to separate violently: d. res a natura copulatas; d. corpus. Hence = to tear or snatch away: d. liberos a parentum complexu. 2) Trop., to dissolve, to break off, to destroy: d. amicitiam, affinitatem; d. aliquem ab aliquo, to tear one away from another = to alienate; d. commoda civium (of one who favours some to the detriment of others); d. somnum, to interrupt, to disturb; vix divelli a re, to disengage one's self from a thing with difficulty; divellor dolore, I am distracted with grief.

DI-VENDO, —, dîtum, 3. v. tr. To sell separately or in parcels, bona, praedam.

DI-VERBERO, —, âtum, 1. v. tr. To strike asunder, to cleave, to cut, to separate, auras sagittâ, umbras ferro.

DIVERBIUM, ii, n. [dis-verbum]. A dialogue in a play.

DIVERSE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [diversus].

1) Of space, in different directions, different ways, hither and thither: legionarii d. tendebant; curae animum meum d. trahunt; corpora d. jacebant. 2) Trop., differently, in a different manner.

DIVERSITAS, âtis, f. [diversus]. (Lat.) 1) Contrariety, contradiction, disagreement: mira d. naturae; d. inter exercitum et imperatorem; d. auctororum, disagreeing opinions. 2) Difference, diversity, ciborum, linguae.

DIVERSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [diverto]. 1) Turned opposite ways, opposite, contrary: aciem diversam in duas partes constituere; iter d.; consules dd. abire, each to his side; cur diversus abis? (poet.) diversi fiebant, with averted faces; dd. fenestras, opposite each other. Hence: A) trop., opposed: duo dd. vitia (avaritia et luxuria); dd. mores; d. rei alicui. In partic., opposed in opinion or sentiment, hostile: d. factio, acies; regio ab aliquo diversa; trans-ferre invidiam in diversum, to the opposite party: B) irresolute, unsteady: diversus animi; metu et invidiâ d. agitur: C) adverbially, ex diverso, on the opposite side. 2) Turned different ways (in several different directions), apart, separate: ex dd. Alpibus, from different parts of the Alps; proelium d., fought at several different places; fuga d., scattered (each fleeing for himself); diversi haec audistis, you have heard separately; diversi gerunt bellum. Hence, trop., different, unlike, dissimilar: d. ab aliquo, (poet. & lat.) alicui rei; mala inter se dd.

DI-VERTO (or Di-vorto), ti, sum, 3. v. intr. (Lat.) 1) To turn different ways, to part, to separate, matrimonium, uxor d. ab aliquo, separates from. 2) To differ, to be different, to be unlike: dd. mores virginum longe ac lupae.

DIVES, or (poet. & lat.) DIS, itis (also Dite, n.), adj. w. the comp. Divitior or Ditior, and the sup. Divitissimus or Ditissimus. 1) Rich (possessing in abundance — cf. locuplex, opulentus), homo; quum cognomine tum copiis dives, wealthy both in name and in fortune; d. donis, by means of gifts. In partic. (poet. & lat.) rich in something: dives numis; pecore and dives pecoris; d. opum. 2) Transferred — of things: A) = magnificent, costly: ramus d., of a golden branch: B) = fertile, ager: C) = filled with riches, supplies, &c.: d. Achaia, Capua; lingua d. = eloquent; spes d., beautiful; d. epistola, promising much.

DI-VEKO, 1. v. tr. 1) To drag asunder, to pull or tear asunder, reliquias meas; divexare agros civium, to pillage, to lay waste. 2) (Lat.) To vex, to disquiet, aliquem.

DIVICO, ônis, m. A leader of the Helvetians in their war against Cassius; later, an ambassador to Caesar.

DIVIDIA, ae, f. [divido]. (Ante-cl.) 1) Discord, dissension. 2) Grief, trouble, anxiety, sorrow.

DIVIDO, isi, isum, 3. v. tr. [kindred with duo: or from dis and the stem vid, whence viduus, etc.]. 1) To separate into two or more parts, to part, to divide: d. rem; d. verba, to divide at the end of a line; d. aliquem securi, to cut in two; d. muros, to break through; d. frontem ferro, to cleave; trop., d. animum nunc huc nunc illuc, to be inclined now to this now to that resolution; haec res consensum nostrum d., disturbs our unanimity, harmony; d. bona tripartito; d. annum ex aequo; d. Galliam in partes duas. Hence: A) (poet.) d. praemia, factum cum aliquo, to share with one: B) tech. t., d. sententiam, to divide a vote, i. e., to separate the different points of a proposition in order to vote on each singly. 2) To distribute, to divide among several, agros, bona viritum; d. praedam militibus, but also inter singulos milites; d. exercitum in civitates; d. Romanos in custodiam civitatum, to station, to distribute. Hence (lat.) = to sell in parcels: d. praedam ad licitationem, to sell by auction; (poet.) d. carmina citharâ = to play (to enchant now by one now by another). 3) To separate, to keep apart from, to divide: flumen Rhenum d.

agrum Helvetium a Germanis; (poet.) gemma d aurum (of a jewel set in gold) = to adorn. Hence, trop.: A) d. legem bonam a mala, to distinguish: B) dividi ab uxore, to separate from.

DIVIDUUS, a, um, adj. [divido]. 1) Divisible. 2) (Poet. & lat.) Divided, separated, minus, arma; luna d., a half-moon; aqua d., having two branches.

DIVINATIO, ōnis, f. [divino]. 1) The power of foreseeing future events, divination: d. est praesensio et scientia rerum futurarum; hence = inspiration, in gen. 2) Tech. t., an examination, and determination who, of several persons, shall be the principal accuser in a criminal cause.

DIVINE, adv. w. comp. [divinus]. Divinely; hence, 1) by divine power; 2) by divine inspiration; 3) excellently.

DIVINITAS, ātis, f. [divinus]. 1) Divinity, godhead, divine nature or essence. 2) (= Divinatio 1.) Divination. 3) Trop. = Excellence.

DIVINITUS, adv. [divinus]. 1) By divine agency — a) = by a divine order or dispensation: Tiberis super ripas d. effusus; si id d. accidit — b) by divine inspiration: scire aliquid d. 2) Trop. = excellently, divinely, aliquid dicere.

DIVINO, āvi, ātum, l. v. tr. [divinus]. To foresee or divine future events (through divine inspiration — conf. praesagio, auguror, etc.); hence = to foretell, to predict: nihil boni d. animus; d. futura; d. quid acciderit, de exitu.

DIVINUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [divus]. 1) Divine, proceeding from a god, relating to a god, worthy of or becoming a god: animi hominum sunt dd., of divine origin; dona dd., worthy of the gods; res d. = divine worship, sacrifice, &c.; pl., res dd. = religious affairs; but, also, in opp. to 'res humanae' = the doctrine of God and the world, natural theology, physics (according to the division of ancient philosophy into physics, dialectics, and ethics). 2) Full of divine inspiration, prescient, inspired, prophetic: appropinquante morte animus est multo divini; (poet.) vates d., inspired; d. futuri; also, subst., Divinus, i, m., a soothsayer. 3) Trop., divine = excellent, superhuman, ingenium, homo, orator, fides.

DIVISE, adv. [divido]. (Lat.) Distinctly.

DIVISIO, ōnis, f. [divido]. 1) A division, esp. in logic and rhetoric. 2) A partition, distribution, agrorum.

DIVISOR, ōris, m. [divido]. A distributor; in partic., a distributor of money, hired by candidates for office, to bribe the voters.

DIVISUS (I.), a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of divido]. Divided.

DIVISUS (II.), ūs, m. [divido]. (Very rar.) Division.

DIVITIACUS, i, m. 1) A brother of Dumnorix, chief of the Aeduians at the time of the Gallic war, and a friend of Caesar. 2) A chief of the Successiones.

DIVITIÆ, ārum, f. pl. [dives]. Riches: templum inclutum divitiis, by its treasures. Hence trop., dd. soli, fertility; in oratione Crassi divitias atque ornamenta ejus ingenii perspexi, the wealth, richness of his genius.

DIVODURUM, i, n. A town in Belgian Gaul, now Metz.

DIVORTIUM, ii, n. [diverto]. 1) A point or line of separation (of a road, river, &c.): d. itinerum; arctissimo d. inter Europam et Asiam, of the strait between; d. aquarum, a water-shed, a range of mountains from which the water flows in different directions. 2) Trop., a separation: A) dd. doctrinarum facta sunt, the systems have separated: B) a divorcio.

DIVULGATUS, a, um, adj. with sup. [part. of divulgo]. Wide-spread: magistratus levissimus et d., common, mean (of an office acquired by bribery).

DI-VULGO, āvi, ātum, l. v. tr. To spread, to make public, to publish, to divulge, librum; d. rem sermonibus, opinionem in Macedoniam; d. consilium Domitii.

DIVUS or DIVS, a, um, adj. [deus]. (Mostly Poet. & lat.) 1) (Rar. as adj. = Divinus.) Divine; trop., excellent, extraordinary. 2) Freq. as subst.: A) Divus, i, m., a god; Diva, ae, f., a goddess: B) Divum, i, n., the sky, only in the combs. 'sub divo,' 'sub divum,' under the open sky, in the open air.

DO, dēdi, dātum, l. v. tr. [kindred with diduxi, from the stem dō-]. 1) To bring, to move, to set or lay somewhere: d. aliquem ad terram, to throw to the ground; d. aliquem in carcerem, to cast into; d. illos Luceriam, to send; dies insequens d. hostem in conspectum, brought the enemy in view; d. hostes in fugam, to put to flight; d. vela, to hoist the sails, to set sail; d. se fugae or in fugam, in viam, to take to flight; d. se in pedes (Pl.), to take to one's heels; d. alicui terga, to turn one's back to one = to flee; d. se populo, to present one's self before the people; d. librum foras, to publish; d. cantum, to sing; d. dictum, to utter; d. colorem, to shine; d. calculum, to move (in a game of chess); trop., d. se in sermonem, to engage in a conversation; in quamcunque partem me do, to whatever side I turn. Hence: A) d. manus, to stretch forth the hands in order to have them fettered = to declare one's self overcome or a prisoner, and in gen. = to yield: B) of a play, &c. = to exhibit, to represent: d. fabulam (= doceo f.); d. munus gladiatorium: C) d. alicui aliquid laudi, vitio, etc., to attribute, to impute something to one as a merit or fault.

2) To cause, to occasion, to make: d. alicui dolorem, vulnera, damnum; (Com.) d. impetum, to make; d. finem laborum, to bring to an end; d. finem bibendi, to cease drinking; d. alicui spem, to give one hope; d. ingentem fugam stragemque, to cause; d. saltum, to make a spring.

3) To give, in the manifold uses of the word: A) to bestow upon one, to afford, to furnish, alicui praeium, pecuniam; d. facultatem aliquid faciendi; d. bonum consilium, veniam: B) = to grant, to concede, esp. in a disputation, aliquid alicui; hoc tibi do; daene, mortem esse malum? C) = to hand over, to deliver: d. alicui literas ad fratrem, to give one a letter to deliver to the brother; hence, d. literas ad aliquem = to write to one; d. urbem excidio, to give over a town to destruction: D) = to discharge, to pay (in pursuance of a demand or upon compulsion): d. (alicui) poenas (rei alicujus), prop., to pay a penalty to one; hence, to be punished by one (for any thing): E) = to apply to, to employ for: d. operam rei alicui, to apply one's self to a thing; d. noctem operi: F) d. verba alicui, to deceive, to delude: G) trop. — a) to give entirely up, to devote: d. se jucunditati, studiis; d. se regibus, populo, to do everything for the sake of, to serve them in everything — b) d. se, to yield — c) d. aliquid alicui or rei alicui, to do any thing for the sake of a person or a thing; hoc famae do; do hoc illi; aliquid coronae d., to do for the sake of the audience; da hunc populo, pardon him for the sake of the people, to please the people; also = to give credit to, to trust: auctoribus hoc dedi.

4) Of discourse, to declare, to state, to name: cur hoc factum sit, paucis dabo; da mihi nunc (Com.), tell me now; d. diem colloquio. Hence: A) d. nomina, to enroll one's self for military service, to enlist: B) d. vindicias (v. Vindiciae); also, abs. dare = to pronounce sentence; d. litem, to decide.

DŌCEO, cui, etum, 2. v. tr. 1) To teach, to instruct: d. aliquem literas; pass., doctus militiam, instructed in military service; d. aliquem canere; docendus Graece loqui; d. aliquem fidibus, to play on the cithara; d. aliquem equo, to ride on horseback; d. aliquem armis, the use of arms. 2) = To inform, to apprise: d. aliquem de re aliqua; d. qui vir R. fuisset. 3) The person receiving instruction not being indicated, to teach, to give instruction in, munus scribendi; d. illud fieri non posse, to show, to demonstrate. In partic. — a) d. causam = to explain a cause to a counsellor or to the judge, to make acquainted with — b) abs. = to lecture, to teach: docet is apud me, Romae. 4) D. fabulam (= διδάσκων δᾶμνη), of the author of a play, to teach the actors their parts; hence, to exhibit, to produce a play on the stage.

DOCHMIUS, ii, m. [= δόχμιος]. The dochmiac foot in poetry (~~~~).

DŌCILIS, e, adj. with comparative [doceo]. Docile, apt to learn: d. bellua (the elephant); d. ad agriculturam; (lat.) docilis Latino sermone, learning the Latin language easily; (poet.)

d. fandi, modorum; (poet.) capilli dd., flexible, pliant.

DŌCILITAS, ātis, f. [docilis]. Docility, ingeni; transferred (lat.), compliance, mildness.

DOCTE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [doctus]. 1) Learnedly, skilfully. 2) (Pl.) Prudently, cleverly.

*DOCTIUSCŪLE, adv. [doctus]. (Lat.) Rather too learnedly.

DOCTOR, ōris, m. [doceo]. A teacher (mostly with reference to the thing taught — cf. praceptor, magister), rhetorician.

DOCTRĪNA, ae, f. [doceo]. 1) Instruction, teaching (freq. in opp. to natura). 2) That which is imparted by instruction, learning, knowledge, erudition; and, concr., a doctrine, science: d. ae literae; studia doctrinae, learned studies; Graecae dd.; d. liberalis; d. dicendi, rhetoric; subtilior quaedam d., a theory. In partic. = a habit or principle induced by instruction: illud non doctrinā fecit sed naturā.

DOCTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of doceo]. 1) (As part. of doceo.) Taught: doctā prece blandus (poet.). 2): A) with reference to a science, learned, educated, versed, skilled, homo; Latine d., learned in the Latin; thus, likewise, doctus literis Latinis; d. fidibus, knowing how to play on the cithara; (poet.) doctus juris, learned in the law; d. ad malitiam: B) with reference to an art, skilled, experienced: d. puella (of a singer); dd. manus, brachia; (poet.) doctus fandi, in speaking; d. canere, in singing. 3) (Poet.) Prudent, shrewd.

DŌCŪMENTUM, i, also (ante-cl.) Dōcūmen, inis, n. [doceo]. In gen., any thing instructive; hence = a lesson, an example, pattern (for instruction or warning), a warning, proof, instance: P. Rutilius nostris hominibus documentum fuit probitatis; dare documentum fidei, eloquentiae; omnis exempli dd., instructive examples of every kind; documento hoc est quantum in bello fortuna possit, this shows how much, &c.; and, Cato fuit hominibus documento, ea quoque percipi posse, that, &c.; ruinae Saguntī documentum illis erunt, ne quis fidei Romanae confidat; ego documento ero utrum — an, I shall afford a proof whether, &c.

DŌDŌNA, ae, f. [= Δωδώνη]. A town in Epirus, with a very ancient and famous oracle of Jupiter, and a grove of sacred oaks, near the present Jannina.

DŌDŌNAEUS, a, um, adj. [= Δωδωναίος]. Of Dodona, Dodonaean.

DŌDŌNIS, idis, adj. f. [= Δωδωνίς]. (Poet.) = Dodonaean.

DŌDRANS, tis, m. [de-quadrans]. Three-fourths of any whole (v. As): as a measure of length = three-fourths of a foot.

DOGMA, ātis, n. [= δόγμα]. A philosophical principle or doctrine, a dogma.

DOLABELLA, ae, m. 1) (Dim. of dolabra.) A small pick-axe. 2) The name of a Roman family in the gens Cornelia; thus, esp. Publius Corn. D., a son-in-law of Cicero; a man of bad character, and, after the death of Caesar, an adherent, first of the republican party, afterwards of the cause of Antony — he committed suicide 48 B.C.

DOLABRA, ae, f. [dolo]. A mattock, pick-axe, used as an agricultural implement, and at sieges by soldiers.

DOLENTER, adv. w. comp. [doleo]. Painfully, sorrowfully, with affliction.

DOLENTIA, ae, f. [doleo]. (Ante-cl.) Pain.

DOLIO, ui, itam, 2. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., of the body: A) of the subject (very rar.), to suffer or feel pain: d. oculis, to have a pain in the eyes: B) of a part of the body, to pain one, to ache: pes, oculi dd.; caput mihi d.: impers., mihi dolet quum vapulo, it pains me, I feel pain. 2) Mentally (tr. and intr.): A) of persons, to grieve, to be sorry for, to be afflicted at (cf. moerere and lugeo): d. casum alicujus; doleo me ab illo superari; d. laude aliena; d. de Hortensio, ex commutatione rerum, on account of H., at the change of things; d. quod illis rebus frui non licet, quia angeris: B) (mostly colloq.) of things, to pain, to hurt, to afflict: hoc mihi dolet, nihil cuiquam dolet; (poet.) aura me d.

DOLIARIS, e, adj. [dolum]. Of or pertaining to a cask: annus d. (Pl.), thick like a cask (but others, in this passage, read 'diobolaris').

DOLIOLUM, i, n. [dim. of dolum]. A small cask.

DOLIUM, ii, n. A cask, esp. a wine-cask (first clay, later wood): de dolio haurire, from the cask, i. e., new wine (new wine being kept in the cask until it had fermented).

DOLO, avi, atum, 1. v. tr. [dolo]. 1) To hew or chip with an axe, to hew; d. scyphum caelo, to cut out; dolatus e robore (poet.). 2) Trop.: A) d. aliquem fuste, to cudgel soundly: B) (Pl.) d. dolum, to contrive, to invent: C) of style, d. opas (opp. to perpolire), to hew out roughly, to write without elaboration or polish.

DOLO or DOLON, ōnis, m. [= δολον]. 1) (Poet. & lat.) A stick with a sharp iron point, a sword-same; hence (poet.) = the sting of a fly. 2) A fire-topsail.

DOLON, ōnis, m. [= δολον]. A Trojan spy, killed by Ulysses and Diomedes.

DOLŌPEIS, Idis, adj. f. [Dolopes]. Dolopian.

DOLŌPES, pum, m. pl. [= δολοπες]. A people of Thessaly. A branch of them lived on the island Scyros in the Aegean Sea, and were in later times famed as pirates.

DOLŌPIA, ae, f. [Dolopes]. The country inhabited by the Dolopes.

DOLOR, ōris, m. [doleo]. 1) Pain, smart, ache, torment: A) of the body, d. corporis; d.

articulorum, the gout: B) (with or without 'an-mi') = sorrow, distress (cf. moeror, luctus), grief, anxiety, vexation, &c.: d. animi; capere (accipere, percipere) d. ex re aliqua, to feel, to suffer distress; thus, likewise, affici dolore; esse in dolore, to be distressed; hoc est mihi dolori,
I am sorry for it; d. injuriarum, at an injury. 2) (Poet.) A grief = a cause of grief: d. ille referri non debet. 3) In rhetoric (= πάθος), passionate expression, pathos.

DOLŌSE, adv. [dolosus]. Deceitfully, craftily.

DOLŌSUS, a, um, adj. [dolos]. (Mostly poet.)
Crafty, deceitful, mulier, vulpes; cinis d., treacherous.

DOLUS, i, m. [= δολος]. Deceit, artifice; usually, in a bad sense, fraud, deceit, guile (in the ancient language, used as a jurid. tech. t.:
d. malus = a criminal device, deception). Hence (poet. & lat.) = that by which one is deceived, a means of deception: deludere dulos, to escape the snares; subterranei dd., subterranean passages.

DŌMABĪLIS, e, adj. [domo]. (Poet.) Tame-able, that may be tamed.

DŌMĀTOR, ōris, m. = Domitor, q. v.

DŌMESTICĀTIM, adv. [domesticus]. (Lat.)
In the house, at home.

DŌMESTĪCUS, a, um, adj. [domus]. 1) Of or belonging to the house: parietes dd.; vestis
d. a garment worn in the house; d. sententia, uttered only at home; (poet.) domesticus otior, at home. 2) Of or belonging to the family, domestic, familiar: luctus d., domestic grief; praecepta dd., domestic education; usus d., social intercourse, intimacy with a family; homo d., a member or friend of a family; praedo d., a robber belonging to one's own family; dd. exempla, borrowed from one's own family (of the Scipios); hence, subst., Domestici, ōrum, m. pl., the members of a family or household = a) the family — b) the domestics, family-slaves. 3) Of or belonging to one's nation or country, domestic, native: mos d.: bellum d., civil war; dd. insi-diae; externa libentius recorder quam domes-tica, than events in the history of our own people.
4) In gen., private, one's own: d. copia rei frumentariae; d. iudicium atque animi conscientia; res dd., one's private affairs; literae dd., private correspondence.

DŌMICĪLIUM, ii, n. [domus]. An abode, residence, domicile: trop., d. imperii et gloriae, the seat.

DŌMĪNA, ae, f. [domus]. 1) (Ante-cl. & lat.)
The lady of the house (as ruling the domestics — cf. hera, materfamilias), the mistress — a title of Roman ladies from their fourteenth year.
2) A (female) ruler, mistress, in gen.: haec una virtus est omnium d. et regina. In partic.: A) (lat.) a lady of the imperial family: B) (poet.)
a term of endearment for a sweetheart, rarely for a wife.

DŌMĪNATIO, ōis, f. [dominor]. 1) Rule, dominion, usually with the secondary idea of ruling alone, despotically and arbitrarily, despotism, tyranny: d. Cinnæ; d. superba, impotens; d. iudiciorum or d. in iudiciis, unlimited power over (of the too great influence of a lawyer). 2) (Lat.) Concr., in the pl. = rulers.

DŌMĪNĀTOR, ōis, m. [dominor]. (Ante-cl.) A ruler or lord.

DŌMĪNĀTRIX, ōis, f. [dominor]. A (female) ruler, mistress.

DŌMĪNĀTUS, ūs, m. [dominor] = Domination. Trop., d. cupiditatum.

DŌMĪNICUS, a, um, adj. [dominus]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Of or pertaining to a master or lord; hence, subst., Dominiūm, i, n., a collection of songs by the Emperor Nero.

DŌMĪNIUM, ii, n. [dominus]. 1) A banquet. 2) (Lat.) Power over any thing, property, ownership. 3) (Lat.) Lordship = lord, master.

DŌMĪNOR, ātus, i. v. dep. intr. [dominus]. 1) To be lord or master, to rule, to bear rule; freq. with an odious secondary meaning = to tyrannise, to act the tyrant, to domineer: d. Carthaginæ, in urbe; d. inter aliquos; d. in adversarios, over; thus, likewise, d. in capite fortunisque hominum. Hence, trop. = to have the greatest influence, to avail the most: eloquentia d. maxime in libero populo; d. in iudiciis (v. Domination); (poet.) lolium et avenæ dd., prevail. *2) (Ante-cl.) Pass., to be ruled or governed.

DŌMĪNUS, i, m. [domus]. 1) The master of a house, the proprietor as master and ruler of the house; hence, a proprietor, owner, possessor, in gen. (cf. herus): quæ imperavit dominus; d. aedium, prædiorum; also (Pl.), of a master's son, 'The young master.' 2) In gen., a master, lord, ruler, commander, chief (freq., if used in a political sense = a tyrant, despot): dii omnium rerum dd.; d. omnium gentium; d. legum; d. factionum (Lat.), the leader. Hence: A) a director of any thing, e. g., of a play, of an auction; in partic., d. convivii (epuli), and sometimes abs. d. = one who gives an entertainment, the master of a feast: B) a title of a Roman emperor, first given in flattery, but after Domitianus their usual appellation: C) a polite address = Sir! D) a term of endearment addressed to a lover = my love! my darling! 3) (Poet.) As adj., of or pertaining to a master: dd. manus; torus d., the master's couch.

*DŌMĪPOERTA, æ, f. [domus-porto]. (Ante-cl.) She who carries her house on her back, (poet.) = a snail.

DŌMĪTIĀNUS (I.), i, m. Titus Flavius D. Augustus, a Roman emperor (A. D. 81-96), son of Vespasian and brother of Titus.

DŌMĪTIĀNUS (II.), a, um, adj. 1) Of or belonging to the Emperor Domitianus. 2) Of or belonging to a Domitius.

DŌMĪTIUS (I.), ii, m., and Dŏmītia, æ, f. The name of a Roman gens, the two most distinguished families of which were, 1) Ahenobarbi ('Red-beards'); thus, esp. — a) Cn. D. Ah. Allobrogicus ('Conqueror of the Allobrogi'), consul 122 B. C. — b) Cn. D. Ah., consul 54 B. C., was first, with his father Lucius D. Ah., an opponent of Cæsar, then a follower successively of Cæsar, Brutus and Cassius, Antonius, and finally of Octavianus — c) his son, Lucius D. Ah., was, under Augustus, a general in Germany — d) Cneius D. Ah., a son of the preceding, and father of the Emperor Nero. 2) Calvinii; thus, esp. Cneius D. C., consul 58 B. C., and an adherent of Cæsar. 3) Cneius D. Corbulo, a brother-in-law of Caligula, and a general in Germany under Claudius and Nero.

DŌMĪTIUS (II.), a, um, adj. [Domitius I.]. Of or pertaining to a Domitius.

DŌMĪTO, i. v. tr. [intens. of domo]. (Bar., poet. & lat.) To tame, to break in.

DŌMĪTOR, ōis, m. [domo]. 1) A tamer, subduer: d. equorum. 2) Trop., a conqueror, vanquisher, Persarum, Trojæ.

DŌMĪTRIX, ōis, f. [domo]. (Poet. & lat.) She that tames, a (female) tamer.

DŌMĪTŪRA, æ, f. [domo]. A taming, subduing, breaking.

DŌMĪTUS, ūs, m. [domo] = Domitura.

DŌMO, mui, mītum, i. v. tr. [kindred with domus]. 1) To tame, to break, equos. 2) Trop., to subdue, to conquer, to vanquish, aliquem, gentes bello; (poet.) Venus, cura illum d., rules, subdues; d. uram praelo, to press; d. aliquid undis, to boil, to make soft; d. invidiam, libidines.

DŌMUS, ūs, and (Com. and adverbially) i, f. [dŏmos]. 1) A house, dwelling-house (as the residence of a family — cf. aedes), ampla; in domo, in the house; in domo aliqua, casta; in d. sua (rar.); in domo ejus; venit in nostram domum; fugiebant in dd. et tecta; nec ab d. quidquam venit; exivit eos ex d. Adverbial forms: A) Domi, at home, in the house: d. fuit; d. se tenere; d. meæ, tuæ, nostræ, at my house, &c.; thus, likewise, d. alienæ, in the house of another; also, d. Caesaris, in the house of C.; d. istius; in partic., d. habere aliquid = to have at home, to have a sufficient supply of in one's self: B) Domum, home, homeward, to the house: proficisci d.; venit d. meam, regiam, Roscii, to my house, the king's house, the house of Roscius; venit domos nostras, to our houses; in partic., trop., abducere aliquem d. = to draw over to one's own party: C) Domo — a) from home, from the house: proficisci d.; trop., d. afferre = to come from home well prepared (for a speech); d. doctus = wise enough himself; d. solvere, to pay out of one's own means — b) (rar.) = domi. 3) (Poet.) An abode of any kind, e. g., a grotto, the abode of an animal, a grave, &c. 3) One's native country, home; hence, freq. domi, domum, domo = in, to, from one's native land; and, very freq. domi militaque and belli domique, in war and in peace. 4) A house = a household, family: tota d. nostra te salutata; hence, of philosophers = a sect. 5) A house = domestic affairs: regere domum ratione.

*DONABILIS, e, adj. [dono]. (Pl.) Worthy to be presented with.

DONARIUM, ii, n. [donum]. 1) (Poet.) A place in or near a temple where votive offerings were kept. 2) (Poet.) A temple, sanctuary, altar. 3) A votive offering; also = a gift, in gen.

DONATIO, ōnis, f. [dono]. A giving, donation (abstr. and concr.), a gift, bonorum; constitutio d.

DONATIVUM, i, n. [dono]. (Lat.) A largess made by an emperor to his soldiers, a donative (cf. congiarium).

DONATOR, ōris, m. [dono]. (Lat.) A giver, donor.

DONAX, ācis, [= δῶναξ]. (Lat.) 1) A kind of reed, cyprus-reed. 2) A sea fish.

DONEC (ante-cl. Dñicūm), conj. 1) (Mostly poet. & lat.) Of two simultaneous actions, while, as long as: d. eris felix, multos numerabis amicos. 2) Of two successive actions, until, till at length: haud desinam, d. perfecero hoc. Freq. with usque, usque adeo (eo), eo usque, in tantum, preceding = until at length; esp. with a negative assertion = before, until: me attrahere nefas, d. me abluero.

DONNILAUS, i, m. A Gallo-Graecian chief, who sent auxiliaries to Pompey during the civil war between Pompey and Caesar.

DONO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [donum.] 1) To give, to present, to confer, to bestow, alicui aliquid. In partic.: A) = to give up, to sacrifice, to abandon: d. inimicitias suas reipublicae, to make a sacrifice of, to renounce for the sake of the state: B) = to remit something to one, to release from an obligation: d. alicui aes alienum; d. mercedes habitationum annuas conductoribus; d. alicui poenam; d. causam alicui, to spare one a trial: C) to remit a punishment, to forgive, to pardon any one for the sake of another (instead of the more usual 'condono'): donabo culpam precibus vestris, I will forgive the offence in consideration of your prayers; d. patrem filio; d. damnatum populo Romano. 2) To present one with any thing: d. aliquem re aliqua; (rar., ante-cl.) d. aliquem aliquid.

DONUM, i, n. [do]. 1) A gift, present, in gen. (cf. munus): mittunt certatim dd. et munera; dare aliquid dono, as a present; dd. suprema (ultima), the last or funeral honours rendered to a deceased person. 2) In partic. = an offering to a god, a sacrifice; freq. = a votive offering.

DONŪSA, ae, f. A small island in the Aegean Sea, east of Nazos, now Denusa.

DŌRES, um, m., pl. [Δωριεῖς]. The Dorians, one of the four principal tribes of Greece.

DŌRICE, adv. [Doriceus]. In the Doric dialect.

DŌRICUS, a, um, adj. [Δωριεὺς]. Doric; poet. = Grecian, Greek, in gen.; subst., Dorici, ōrum, m. pl., those who speak in the Doric dialect, the Dorians.

DŌRIENSES, ium, m. pl. (Lat.) = Diores.

DŌRIS (I.), Idia, f. [= Δωρίς]. 1) As an adj., Doric. 2) As a subst., Doris — a) in Northern Greece, the principal seat of the Doric tribe — b) in Asia Minor, south of Caria.

DŌRIS (II.), Idia, f. [= Δωρίς]. A daughter of Oceanus and Thetis, married to her brother Nereus, and by him mother of fifty Nereides or Dorides.

DŌRIUS, a, um, adj. [Doris]. (Poet.) Doric.

DORMIO, i, vi or ii, Itum, 4. v. intr. To sleep: ire dormitum, to go to bed; (poet.) d. horam, hiemem, to sleep away. Hence, trop.: A) = to be inactive, to rest: pessuli illi dd.: B) = to be careless, to be unconcerned: C) = to be dead.

*DORMITATOR, ōris, m. [dormito]. A sleeper, dreamer.

DORMITO, āvi, —, 1. v. intr. [intens. of dormio]. 1) To be or feel sleepy; sometimes = to fall asleep. 2) Trop.: A) (poet.) lucerna d., is near going out: B) = to be dreaming, to be careless, to be stupid, to talk nonsense: interdum bonus d. Homerus; sapientia dormitans et oscitans.

DORMITŌRIUS, a, um, adj. [dormio]. (Lat.) Of or for sleeping; subst., Dormitorium, ii, n., a bed-chamber, dormitory.

DORSUM, i, n. 1) The back (the uppermost part of the body conceived as horizontal; hence, prop., of the back of a beast—cf. tergum; rarely of the back of a man). 2) Trop., of objects similar in shape to the back of a beast: e. g., the ridge of a hill, the top or ridge of a cave: d. Arpennini; d. jugi; d. in mari, a ridge of rock rising to the surface of the sea.

DŌRYLAEUM, i, n. [= Δωρύλαιον]. A town in Phrygia, now Eski Shehr.

DŌRYLENSES, ium, m. pl. [Dorylaeum]. The inhabitants of Dorylaeum.

DŌRYPHŌRUS, i, m. [= Δωρύφορος]. The Lance-Bearer, a statue made by Polyclethus.

DOS, ōtis, f. [do = δῶς]. 1) A marriage-portion, dowry. 2) (Poet. & lat.) Trop., a gift, endowment, quality; dd. ingenii; d. naturae; ille est d. loci, the ornament.

DOSSENNUS (Dorsennus), i, m. (Fabius D.) 1) A writer of Attellan plays. 2) A comic character in the Attellan plays.

DŌTĀLIS, e, adj. [dos]. Of or pertaining to a dowry, brought (by the wife) or received (by the husband) as a dowry: d. ager, segetes.

DŌTĀTUS, a, um, adj. with sup. [part. of lotō]. 1) Well-portioned or dowered, uxor. 2) Richly endowed, gifted with any thing: puella dotatissima formā.

DŌTO (I.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [dos]. To endow, to portion, filiam.

DŌTO (II.), ūs, f. [= Δωρίς]. A sea nymph.

DRACHMA, ae, f. [= δραχμή]. A drachma: 1) a Greek coin of about the same value as a Roman denarius; 2) as a weight, the eighth part of an uncia.

DRĀCO (I.), ōnis, m. [= δράκων]. A kind of serpent, a dragon. Hence (lat.): A) — a water-vessel in the shape of a serpent: B) — an old vine: C) a constellation.

DRĀCO (II.), ōnis, m. The well-known legislator of Athens — lived about 621 B.C.

DRĀCONIGĒNA, ae, comm. [draco-gigno].

Dragon-born: urbs d. = Thebes.

DRANCAE, or Drangae, ārum, m. pl. [= Δραγγαί]. A Persian tribe.

DRĀPĒTA, ae, m. [= δραπέτης]. (Pl.) A runaway; esp. = a runaway slave.

DRĒPĀNA, ōrum, n. pl. [= Δρεπάνη] = Drepanum.

DRĒPĀNĪTĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Drepanum]. Of or belonging to Drepanum; subst., Drepanitani, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of D.

DRĒPĀNUM, i, n. [= Δρεπάρων]. A town on the western coast of Sicily, now Trapani.

DRŌMAS, ādis, m. [= δρομάς]. 1) (In the comb. 'd. camelus.') A dromedary. 2) The name of one of Actaeon's hounds.

DRŌMOS, i, m. [= δρόμος, 'a race-course']. 1) The Spartan race-course. 2) D. Achilleos, a long and narrow tongue of land on the Crimea, where Achilles is said to have had a race-course.

DRUENTIA, ae, f. A river in Gaul, now Durance.

DRUĪDAE, ārum, } m. pl. The Druids, the DRUĪDES, dum, } priests of the Celts in Gaul and Britain.

DRŪSIĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Drusus]. Of or pertaining to a Drusus.

DRŪSILLA, ae, f. The name of several women in the gens Livia; thus, esp. 1) Livia D., the second wife of Augustus. 2) A daughter of Claudius Nero Drusus.

DRŪSĪNUS, a, um, adj. [Drusus] = Drusianus.

DRŪSUS, i, m. A surname in the gens Livia and Claudia. 1) Livii: A) Marcus L. D., a tribune of the people, 122 B.C., and an opponent of C. Gracchus: B) Marcus L. D., a son of the preceding, tribune of the people, 91 B.C., and was, by his proposition to give Roman citizenship to the Latins, the author of the war of the allies — he was killed in his Atrium by an unknown hand. 2) Claudii: A) Cl. Nero Dr., usually called simply Drusus, a step-son of Augustus and brother of Tiberius, died, after several very successful military expeditions into Germany, 9 B.C.: B) D. Caesar, the only son of Tiberius, poisoned by Sejanus.

DRYANTĪDES, ae, m. [= Δρυαντίδης]. A son of Dryas, i. e., the Thracian king Lycurgus.

DRYAS (I.), antis, m. [= Δρύας]. 1) A king of Thrace, father of Lycurgus. 2) One of the Lapithae. 3) A participant in the Calydonian hunt.

DRYAS (II.), ādis, f. [= Δρύαδς]. (Poet.) A wood-nymph.

DRYŌPE, es, f. [= Δρυόπη]. 1) The mother of Amphiaraus by Apollo. 2) The mother of Terentius by Faunus.

DRYŌPES, pum, m. pl. [= Δρυόπων]. A Pelasgian tribe, located first in Thessaly, afterwards in Messenia; in the sing., Dryops, ōpia, one of the Dryopes.

DUĀLIS, e, adj. [duo]. (Lat.) Containing two: numerus d., the dual number.

DŪBIE, adv. [dubius]. Doubtfully, dubiously; freq., with a negation, non, haud d. = undoubtedly, most certainly or assuredly.

DŪBIETAS, ātis, f. [dubius]. (Lat.) Doubt, uncertainty.

DŪBIŌSUS, a, um, adj. [dubius]. (Lat.) Doubtful.

DŪBIS, is, m. A river of Gallia Belgica, now Doubs.

DŪBITĀBĪLIS, e, adj. [dubito]. (Poet.) Doubtful, admitting of doubt.

DŪBITANTER, adv. [dubito]. *1) Doubtingly. 2) Hesitatingly: non d., without hesitation.

DŪBITĀTIO, ōnis, f. [dubito]. 1) A wavering in opinion and judgment, a doubting, doubt, uncertainty: afferre d., to cause; tollere d., to remove; sine ulla d. = most certainly, without doubt; d. rei alienius, about any thing; also, d. de omnibus rebus; d. quale illud sit; d. facendumne sit hoc; hic locus nihil habet dubitationis, as to this point there is no doubt. Sometimes = consideration, deliberation: d. indigna homine. 2) A wavering in a purpose or resolution, irresolution, hesitancy: inter d. et moras sentātis; nullā interpositā dubitatione and sine ulla d., without hesitation. 3) In rhetoric, a figure of speech, a pretending to be at a loss for expressive words.

DŪBITO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. [dubius]. Prop., to go in two directions, to go to and fro. 1) To waver in opinion and judgment, to doubt, to be doubtful or uncertain: ne dubita; d. de voluntate tua; d. aliquid, about any thing, and (poet.), patrem, auctorem; d. quid faciam; d. quid agendum putem; d. utrum sit melius: non d. quin venturus sit, that he will come; so, likewise, cave dubites quin, etc.: rarely (lat.) non d. fore plerosque; pass., dubitor, they are in doubt concerning me. Hence: A) = to waver to consider, to reflect upon: restat at hoc dubitemus: B) trop. = to be uncertain, to fluctuate: fortuna, fama d. 2) (Most freq. with a negation.) To waver in one's purpose or resolution, to hesitate, facere aliquid; (rar.) non dabitabo quin ei omnia credam.

DŪBIUS, a, um, adj. [duo]. 1) (Very rar.) Moving to and fro, fluctuating, fluvius. 2) Of the mind, wavering, fluctuating: A) act. — a) wavering in one's opinion, doubting, doubtful, uncertain: animus d.; d. eum, quid verum sit; non d. quin, etc.: minime dubius, patres bellum jussuros esse, not doubting in the least that, &c. (rar.); dubius animi; thus, likewise, d. sententiae; (poet.) dubius salutis, vitae, doubtful about one's safety, about the preservation of one's life — b) wavering in one's purpose or resolution, undetermined, undecided, irresolute: Jugurtha d. et haesitans; dubius quid faciam; dubius consilii, in one's resolution: B) pass., that concerning which one is uncertain and doubtful, doubtful, undecided, uncertain, dubious: d. jus, victoria, verba; socii dd., of unreliable fidelity; (poet.) lux d., morning twilight, dawn; d. nox, evening twilight; coelum d., overcast. In partic., Dubium, n., as a subst. = doubt — a) de Pompeii exita nunquam mihi dubium fuit, I never entertained a doubt; non est d. quin uxorem nolit filius, there is no doubt but that, &c. — b) (poet. & lat.) d. is sometimes inserted in a sentence as a kind of adverb: quo postquam dubium plus an sceleratus Orestes venerat, Orestes, I know not whether pious or accursed, &c. — c) dubium habere aliquid, to doubt, to regard as uncertain; d. habeo quid ille possit; thus, likewise, in dubium vocare, to question — d) in dubio ponere aliquid, to deem something doubtful; in dubio esse, to be in doubt, to be uncertain — e) sine dubio, without doubt = undoubtedly, most certainly, assuredly; sometimes (mostly lat.), with an advers. conj. (sed, verum) in the succeeding clause = no doubt, doubtless — but, yet — f) (rar.) procul dubio = sine d. 3) (Mostly poet., for anoepe.) Critical, dangerous, difficult, res, tempora; mons dubius assensu; thus, also, Dubium, n., as a subst.: in dubium venire, to be endangered, devocare, to put in danger, to endanger; esse in dubio, to be in danger; aeger dubius, in a dangerous situation. *4) (Poet.) Coena d., manifold, various, composed of many dishes so as to render a choice difficult (the sense is doubtful).

DŪCĀTUS, ūs, m. [duco]. (Lat.) Leadership, military command.

DŪCĒNĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [ducenti]. (Lat.) Containing two hundred: pondera dd., of two hundred pounds weight; iudices dd., who had to be possessed of two hundred sestertia, and had jurisdiction of unimportant cases; procuratores dd., who received a salary of two hundred sestertia.

DŪCĒNI, ae, a, distr. num. adj. [ducenti]. Two hundred each.

DŪCENTĒSĪMUS, a, um, ord. num. adj. [ducenti]. The two-hundredth; subst., Ducentesima, ae, f. (so. pars) = one-half per cent. (as a tax).

DŪCENTI, ae, a, card. num. adj. [duo-centum] Two hundred; improp. of any indefinitely large number.

DŪCENTIES, card. num. adv. [ducenti]. Two hundred times.

DŪCO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) To lead, to draw, to bring, to guide or to conduct anywhere: d. aliquem intro; d. secum in castra; d. aquam per fundum alicujus. In partic.: A) d. aliquem ad mortem, and only d. aliquem = to lead one to death, to execution; d. aliquem in vincula: B) freq., in military language, d. cohortes ad eam partem munitionum; d. reliquas copias contra Labienum. Hence — a) (freq. in Liv.) abs. = to lead the troops, to march an army, to march, to advance: Tullus contra hostes d.; Fabius imis montibus d. — b) = to command, to be the leader of: d. exercitum; d. primum pilum, ordines = to be a centurion; rarely (of the van of an army) = to lead in advance of the other troops; and hence, intr. (lat.) = to march in front — c) in gen., to be the leader of any thing = to be the head, to be the first of: d. familiam; thus, likewise, d. classem discipulorum: C) (colloq.) de se = to move off, to go away: D) d. aliquam uxorem, with or without 'domum', to lead a wife home, to marry a wife; thus, likewise, d. aliquam in matrimonium, and abs. d. uxorem, to marry: E) d. spiritum, animam, to take breath, to breathe; (poet.) d. poculum, to empty; d. Bacchum, etc., to drink; d. remos, to row; d. ubera, to milk; d. lanas, to spin; d. ilia, to pant for breath; d. os, to distort the face; (rar.) equus, navis d. aliquem, carries (instead of the more usual 'vehit'): F) abs., via illa Romam d., leads to Rome: G) with the idea of creating, to build, to make, to form, to fashion, to produce, to prepare, to arrange: d. parietem, fossam; d. vivos vultus de aere, versus; d. funus, choros; d. aliqui alapam, to give one a box on the ear: H) (poet.) to receive, to take, to get, colorem, cicatricem, nomen.

2) Trop.: A) to lead, to guide, to move, to induce, to allure: quo quemque ducit voluntas; oratio tua me d. ad credendum; fabulae ducere solent animos, to captivate; thus, esp. pass., duci re aliquis, to be captivated, to be attracted by; ducitur illorum literis et urbanitate: B) (poet.) d. aliquem, to lead by the nose, to impose upon, to deceive: C) of time — a) = to draw out, to protract, to prolong, bellum, eam rem longius; also, d. tempus and d. aliquem, to delay the time for one, to put one off — b) (rar., poet.) to spend, to pass: aetatem d. in literis: D) to reckon, to calculate, to compute: quonium tria millia medimnū duximus. Hence — a) d. rationem, to make a calculation respecting one's advantage = to regard, to provide for, to consider: ducere aratorum non minus quam populi rationem; d. suam rationem, to take care of one's own advantage — b) in gen., to deem, to count, to consider, to estimate: d. aliquid parvi, pro nihilo, haec pro falsis; d. aliquem in numero hostium, eos loco affinium, to regard as enemies, relatives; d. illos idoneos; d. aliquid honori, to esteem something an honour; d. aliquem despicatui = to despise.

DUCTILIS, e, adj. [duco]. (Lat.) That may be drawn, ductile.

DUCTIM, adv. [duco]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) By drawing: d. bibere, in long draughts.

DUCTITO, āvi, —, 1. v. tr. [intens. of ducto]. (Pl.) 1) To lead away, aliquem. 2) To marry, aliquam. 3) Trop., to deceive, to cheat, aliquem.

DUCTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [intens. of duco]. (Mostly ante-cl. & lat.) 1) To lead: d. exercitum per loca saltuosa; restim ductans saltare (Pl.), to hold the rope in a dance = to lead the dance; thus, likewise, d. equites, to command. In partic. = to lead home a concubine. 2) Trop., to deceive, to cheat, aliquem. *3) To count, to deem: d. pro nihilo.

DUCTOR, ōris, m. [duco]. A leader, esp. of an army: d. exercitus, leonum.

DUCTUS, ūs, m. [duco]. 1) A leading, conducting: aquae d., an aqueduct. Hence, d. muri a building in a continuous line; (poet.) porticus aequali ductu, of equal dimensions throughout. 2) A drawing: d. literarum, the form, shape; d. oris, the expression of the countenance. 3) Military leadership, command: rem optime gessit suo ductu. 4) Trop., of discourse: A) (lat.) connection, coherency: B) a period.

DUDUM, adv. [diu-dum]. 1) A long time ago, long ago, long since: d. hoc tibi dixi; d. circumrodo quod devorandum est. In partic. — a) freq. in the combs. 'jam d.' (written also as one word), a good while ago, and 'haud d.,' not long ago, a little while ago — b) quam d.? how long ago? how long? 2) A short time ago, a little while ago, lately, recently, just now: ego sum ille quem tu d. esse aiebas; id quod tibi d. videbatur; (Pl.) ut (quum) d. hinc abii, just as I was leaving. Hence — a) with respect to a present or past period of time = before, formerly — b) = already: mane d.

DUELLATOR, DUELLUM (poet.), the original forms of Bellator, Bellum, q. v.

DUILIUS, ii, m. The name of a Roman gens; thus, esp. Caius D., a general in the first Punic war, who gained for the Romans their first naval victory — that at Mylae over the Carthaginians (261 B. C.).

DULCE, adv. [prop. neutr. of the adj. dulcis]. (Poet.) = Dulciter.

DULCEDO, Inis, f. [dulcis]. 1) Sweetness, vini. 2) Trop., delightfulness, agreeableness, pleasantness, charm: d. honoris et pecuniae, amoris; d. plebeios creandi.

DULCESCO, dulcui, —, 3. v. intr. [dulcis]. To become sweet, uva.

DULCICULUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of dulcis]. Sweetish.

DULCIFER, ěra, ěrum, adj. [dulcis-fero]. (Ante-cl.) Containing sweetness, sweet.

DULCIORĒLŌQUUS, a, um, adj. [dulcis-oluo-liquor]. (Ante-cl.) Speaking with a sweet mouth (an epithet of Nestor).

DULCIS, e, adj. w. comp. & sup. [kindred w. γλυκός]. 1) Sweet to the taste (cf. suavis), mel, pomum, uva, sapor; aqua d., sweet water. 2) Trop.: A) sweet, agreeable, pleasant, delightful, charming (it expresses the pleasure felt by the subject in any thing — cf. amoenus, etc.): d. carmen, orator, nomen libertatis; d. fortuna (poet.), favourable: B) of the relations of love and friendship, dear, beloved; or kind, affectionate: d. amicus; liberi dd.; freq. used in addressing a person: Dulcissime frater!

DULCITER, adv. with comp. & sup. [dulcis]. Sweetly, delightfully.

DULCITUDO, Inis, f. [dulcis]. (Lat.) Sweetness.

DULGIBINI, ōrum, m. pl. A Germanic tribe living on the Weser, near the modern Lippe and Paderborn.

DULICHIMUM, ii, n., or Dŭllichia, ae, f. [= Δουλῆχιον]. An island of the Ionian Sea, south-east of Ithaca, and a part of the kingdom of Ulysses.

DULICHIUS, a, um, adj. [Dulichium]. Of Dulichium: dux D. = Ulysses.

DUM, I. conj. 1) Of two contemporaneous actions, while, while that, during the time that (sometimes involving the idea of cause); freq. with pres. tense (dum haec geruntur, Caesari nunciatum est), but also with a perf. and imperf. Freq. it may be translated by as long as: hoc feci d. licuit: milites quievire d. urbis vires inspicerent (here it conveys the idea of purpose or design); freq. the signification 'as long as' is strengthened by tamdiu, tantisper, tantum, modo; sometimes it is in opp. to postea, deinde, nunc. 2) Of two successive actions, until, until that: ea mansit in condicione d. iudices rejecti sunt; sic opus omne contexitur, d. justa muri altitudo expleatur (involving the idea of purpose or design); exspecto d. ille venit, until he comes; d. ille veniat, that he may come. 3) As a conditional particle, provided that, if only: oderint d. metuant; d. ob rem (sit), provided it is profitable; sometimes it is strengthened by modo (dummodo); sometimes tamen is added: dum — ne, dummodo ne, if only not, provided that not. II. Adv. Enclitically annexed to other words: 1) nondum, not yet; vixdum, hardly yet; nihil-dum, not yet any thing. 2) (Colloq.) Annexed to imperatives and interjections, in a strengthening sense: agedum! well then! agitedum! tacedum! pray, be silent! cedodum! here then! out with it! ehodum! ho, listen!

DUMETUM, i, n. [dumus]. A place set thick with thorn-bushes, a thicket; trop., of useless speculations and distinctions.

DUM-MODO, conj. — v. Dum.

DUMOSUS, a, um, adj. [dumus]. Full of thorn-bushes, bushy.

DUMNORIX, Igis, m. An Æduan chief, brother of Divitiacus, and an enemy of the Romans.

DUMUS, i, m. A thorn-bush, brier, bramble (cf. vepres, sentis).

DUNTAXAT (Dumtaxat), adv. 1) Only, simply, merely: potestatem habere d. annuam; pe-ditatu d. procul ad speciem utitur. 2) At least: expectari te video d. ad Nonas Maias; in jure civili d. ad hoc instructi sumus. 3) So far: hoc recte d.

DUO, ae, o, card. num. adj. Two.

DUO-DECIES, num. adv. [duodecim]. Twelve times.

DUODĒCIM, card. num. adj. [duo-decem]. Twelve: D. Tabulae, the laws of the Twelve Tables.

DUODĒCIMUS, a, um, ord. num. adj. [duodecim]. The twelfth.

DUODENI, ae, a, distr. num. adj. [duodecim]. Twelve each.

DUO-DE-NONĀGINTA, cardinal num. adj. Eighty-eight.

DUO-DE-OCTŌGINTA, cardinal num. adj. Seventy-eight.

DUO-DE-QUADRĀGENI, ae, a, distr. num. adj. Thirty-eight each.

DUO-DE-QUADRĀGESĪMUS, a, um, ord. num. adj. The thirty-eighth.

DUO-DE-QUADRĀGINTA, card. num. adj. Thirty-eight.

DUO-DE-QUINQUĀGESĪMUS, a, um, ord. num. adj. The forty-eighth.

DUO-DE-QUINQUĀGINTA, card. num. adj. Forty-eight.

DUO-DE-SEXĀGESĪMUS, a, um, ord. num. adj. The fifty-eighth.

DUO-DE-TRICESĪMUS, a, um, ord. num. adj. The twenty-eighth.

DUO-DE-TRICES, card. num. adv. Twenty-eight times.

DUO-DE-TRIGINTA, card. num. adj. Twenty-eight.

DUO-DE-VICĒNI, ae, a, distributive num. adj. Eighteen each.

DUO-DE-VICESĪMUS, a, um, ord. num. adj. The eighteenth.

DUO-DE-VIGINTI, card. num. adj. Eighteen.

DUO-ET-VICESĪMĀNI, ōrum, m. pl. Soldiers of the twenty-second legion.

DUO-ET-VICESĪMUS, a, um, ord. num. adj. (Ante-cl. & lat.) The twenty-second.

DUPLEX, icis, adj. [duo-plio]. 1) Prop., folded double; double, twofold (cf. anceps, duplex): d. pars, fossa; tabellae dd., consisting of two leaves. 2): A) (poet. & lat.) consisting of two parts, eleven, bipartite, folium, lex: B (poet.) = ambo, both: dd. palmae: C = thick, coarse, strong, pannus, amiculum: D (lat.) with 'quam' following = duplus, as græa again, twice as much: d. frumentum, a double ration; thus, likewise, d. stipendium. 3) Tr.p.: A (poet.) double-tongued, false, Ulysses: B (lat.) ambiguous, verba.

DUPPLICĀRIUS, ii, m. [duplex]. A soldier who received, as a reward, double pay and rations.

DUPPLICĀTIO, ōnis, f. [duplico]. (Lat.) A doubling.

DUPPLICITER, adv. [duplex]. Doubly.

DUPICO, āvi, ātum, i. v. tr. [duplex]. 1) To double, to make as great again. Hence, d. verbum — a) to repeat — b) to form by composition, to compound. 2) To enlarge, to increase, in gen., flumina, curam, opinionem de se. 3) (Poet. & lat.) To bend a thing together so that its parts lie double: d. poplitem, corpus; d. virum dolore, to bend down, to double with pain.

DUPUS, a, um, adj. [duo]. Twofold, double = twice as large, twice as much (cf. duplex): d. pecunia: d. intervallum. Hence: A) Duplum, i, n., the double of any thing: furem condemnare dupli: B Dupla, ae, f. (ante-cl. & lat.), se. pecunia, a double price.

DUPONDĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [dupondius]. (Lat.) Worth a dupendius; trop. = worthless, homo.

DUPONDĪUM, ii, n. } [duo-pondo] = 2 asses.

DUPONDĪUS, ii, m. } 1) As a coin, a two-as piece. 2) As a measure of length, two feet.

DURĀBĪLIS, e, adj. [duro]. (Poet. & lat.) Durable, lasting.

DURĀCĪNUS, a, um, adj. [durus]. (Lat.) Somewhat hard, having a hard skin, uva.

DURĀMEN, inis, n. [duro]. (Poet.) Any thing hardened, a hard mass: d. aquarum = ice.

DURĀMENTUM, i, n. [duro]. (Lat.) 1) = Duramen. 2) Trop., durability, firmness.

DURĀTEUS, a, um, adj. [= dupdrees]. (Ante-cl.) Made of boards, wooden (only of the famous Trojan horse).

DŪRE and DŪRITER, adv. w. comp. & sup.

[durus]. 1) Hard (to the touch or sense of feeling). 2) Trop.: A as affecting the hearing or the taste, roughly, harshly, rudely; in the arts, &c. = stiff, awkwardly, unskilfully: B with respect to mode of life, rigorously, hardily: C with respect to one's behaviour toward others, sternly, harshly, unfeelingly: D of events, unfavourably, unfortunately.

DŪRESCO, ui, —, 3. v. intr. [durus]. To grow hard, to harden: articulus d., grows stiff; trop., d. in lectione Graecorum, to become ossified.

DURETA, ne, f. [a Spanish word]. (Lat.) A (wooden) bathing-tab.

JÜRITER — v. Dure.

DÜRITAS, âtis, f. [durus]. Trop., hardness, roughness.

DÜRITIA, ae, and (poet. & lat.) Dūrīties, ei, f. [durus]. 1) Hardness, saxi, ferri; d. alvi (ventris), costiveness. 2) Trop.: A) hardness, an austere, hardy manner of living: d. et patientia: B) = harshness, severity, cruelty: d. animi: C) rigour, oppressiveness, hardness: d. imperii, legum, operum, coeli: D) (lat.) d. oris, impudence.

DÜRITUDO, Iulis, f. (Ante-cl.) = Duritia.

DÜRIOUS, ii, m. A river in Spain, now Duero.

DURIUSCULUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of durus]. Somewhat hard, harsh, rough. (Lat.)

DÜRO, âvi, âtum, 1. v. tr. & intr. [durus]. I. Tr. 1) To make hard, to harden, coria, ferrum icibus; vitia durantur, become inveterate, incurable. 2) Trop.: A) To harden, to make hardy and strong, to inure to hardships and sufferings: d. humeros ad vulnera; d. exercitum crebris expeditionibus: B) (rar.) to blunt, to dull, to render hard and insensible: d. aliquem ad plagas: C) to harden or inure one's self = to bear, to endure, quemvis laborem. — II. Intr. *1) (Poet.) To be hard: solum coepit d. 2) Trop.: A) To be inured = to endure, to hold out: nequeo d. in aedibus; nequeo d. quin herum meum accusem: B) to last, to continue, to remain in existence: d. per omne aevum; corpus non d. post mortem; iracundia d. adhuc; (Tac.) qui dd. usque ad nostram aetatem, live: C) (lat.) to be hard, stern, unfeeling.

DÜRÖCORTÖRUM, i, n. A town in Gaul, now Rheims.

DÜRUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. 1) Hard (to the sense of touch or feeling), ferrum. Hence, melon. — a) harsh (to the taste), vinum — b) rough, harsh, dull (to the ear); hence, harsh, rough to pronounce. 2) Trop.: A) (in opp. to cultivated) = rude, unpolished, uncultivated: homo ut vitâ sic oratione durus: B) = hard, strong, vigorous, austere, Spartiatæ, Hannibal, (poet.) juvenici: C) (in opp. to mild, gentle), stern, severe, inflexible, unfeeling: d. iudex: gens d. et ferreus: D) os d., impudent: E) of things — a) = oppressive, troublesome, burdensome, servitus, lex, labor, fames — b) = unfriendly, unfavourable, fortuna, condicio — c) = critical, dangerous, res, morbus, via — d) of works of art and science = hard, stiff, harsh: signum, poëta, versus.

DUUMVIRATUS, ûs, m. [duumviri]. The office of a duumvir, duumvirate (v. Duumviri).

DUUMVIRI, örum, m. pl. [duo-vir]. The duumviri, a board or commission of two men appointed to perform jointly the duties of an office: 1) At Rome: A) dd. capitales or perduellionis, investigated or judged certain cases of crime; — they are mentioned in the time of the kings and once in later times: B) dd. navales, had the charge of the equipment of a fleet: C) dd. aedi faciendæ, locandæ, dedicandæ, had to take care of building, renting out, and dedicating temples: D) dd. sacrorum or sacris faciendis or Sibyllini, had the oversight of the Sibylline books; later, the board consisted of ten, finally, of fifteen persons. 2) In municipal towns and colonies, the dd. (juri dicundo) were the chief magistrates appointed by the decurions, corresponding to the Roman consuls.

DUX, ûcis, comm. [duco]. 1) A leader, conductor, guide: d. itineris. Hence, in gen. = he who takes the lead, the leader in any action or undertaking: d. facti; diis duobus, under the guidance of the gods; thus, likewise, naturâ d., nature showing the way. 2) In partic., the leader of a division of troops, commander (in general; hence, also, of a subordinate commander — cf. imperator). Hence — a) (poet.) = a leader, chief, head, in general: d. gregis — b) (poet.) = an emperor.

DÛMANTIS, Idia, f. A daughter of Dymas, i. e., Heccuba.

DÛMAS, antis, m. [= Δῆμας]. A king of Thrace, father of Heccuba.

DÛMAEUS, a, um, adj. [Dyme]. Of or belonging to Dyme, Dymæan; subst., Dymæi, örüm, m. pl., the inhabitants of Dyme.

DÛME, es, f., or Dymæe, ârum, f. pl. [= Δῆμη]. A town in Achaia, now perhaps Kaminitza.

DÛNÂMIS, is, f. [= δύναις]. (Pl.) Plenty, a store (Latin vis).

DÛNASTES, ae, m. [= δυνάστης]. A ruler, prince, esp. the dependent sovereign of a small country.

DÛRRHÂCHINI, örüm, m. pl. [Dyrrhachium]. The inhabitants of Dyrrhachium.

DÛRRHÂCHIUM, ii, n. [= Δυρράχιον]. A town in Illyria, originally called Epidamnus — now Durazzo.

E (before consonants only) or EX (before vowels and consonants), prep. with abl. [kindred with the Greek ἐκ or ἐξ]. Denotes the going out from the interior of a thing (opp. to 'in' — cf. ab) — out of, from. Used, —

1) Of space, from, forth from, out of: egredi e portu; ejicere aliquem e civitate; abire e medio; freq. = excedere e vita, to die. Hence: A) down from: desilire ex equo: B) sometimes of motion in an upward direction: eminere e mari, to stand out of (i. e. above) the sea; collis ex planicie editus, elevated above the plain: C) to denote the place from which any thing takes place or is done — from, from off: ex cruce Italianam cernere; ex hoc loco verba fecisti; pugnare ex equo, ex loco superiore; so, also, causam dicere ex vinculis, in chains; ex itinere, on the road, during the journey; ex fuga, during flight: D) to express the place from which any thing comes: negotiator ex Africa; Epicuræi ex Græcia; puer ex aula.

2) Of other relations, where a going forth from any thing is indicated: A) with verbs signifying to take, to receive, to hear, to perceive, to learn, to hope, &c. — from, out of: agrum ex hostibus capere; tollere solem ex mundo; fructus capere ex otio; quaerere aliquid ex aliquo; intellexi ex tuis literis: B) to express the multitude or the whole out of which something is taken or of which it forms a part — out of, from amongst, out of the number of: e civitate in senatum delecti; munera ex illa summa dantur; homo ex numero disertorum; unus ex illis decemviris; acerrimus ex omnibus; so, also, vir ex eodem studio, devoted to the same pursuit; miles ex primo hastato, a soldier of the first division (or manipule) of the hastati: C) (rar.) to express the material of which any thing is made or consists: statua ex aere facta; vas ex una gemma; also (ante-cl. & lat.), to denote the ingredients of which a drink is composed or a medical preparation is made: resina ex melle: D) to express the cause, occasion, source or origin of any thing — from, on account of, through, by means of: civitas commota ex aere alieno; morbi vulgantur ex gravitate loci; ex tam propinquis castris, on account of the proximity of the camp; ex quo fit, from which it follows; gravida est e Pamphilo, pregnant by P.; thus, likewise, peperit e Pamphilo; natus ex aliquo, descended from; sometimes, without a verb, non minor ex hostibus clades; in partic., to denote that from or on account of which any thing is named — from, after, on account of: cui postea Africano cognomen ex virtute fuit: E) to denote a transition, a going over from one condition to another — from, out of: dii ex hominibus facti; ex nitido fit rusticus: F) to denote the measure or rule according to which any thing takes place or is done — after, according to, in conformity with: ex mea (senatus) sententia; on the contrary, ex sententia = ex voluntate, according to one's wish; ex senatus consulto; e virtute; ex sua libidine; e communi utilitate: G) e re tua (mea, ejus) or ex usu tuo (meo, ejus), to thy (my, his) advantage; e re publica, to the advantage of the state; non ex usu nostro est, it is not to our advantage, is no advantage to us; ex nullius injuria, without injury to any one.

3) Of time: A) to denote the point of time from which onward any thing continues or lasts — from, since, ever since: ex eo die quo, etc.; metellum ex Metello consule civium tractas (poet.); more rarely, in specifying a point of time in the future — from, after: Romæ vereor ne ex Kalendis Januariis magni tumultus sint:

B) = immediately after, directly after: Cotta ex consulatu profectus in Galliam; vilitas annonæ repente ex summa inopia et caritate reframentariæ consecuta est; so, aliud ex alio, one thing after another; thus, also, alia ex aliis iniquiora postulare; diem ex die expectare, from day to day.

4) To form various adverbial expressions, with adjectives — as, ex improvviso, ex aperto, ex æque, e contrario, ex adverso; and with substantives — as, ex parte, e vestigio, ex industria, etc.: for which v. Improvisus, etc.

EĀ, adv. [prop., abl. sing. f. of the pron. is]. 1) (Sc. viā.) At that place, there. 2) (Sc. causā — Pl.) For that reason, on that account.

EĀDEM, adv. [prop., abl. sing. f. of the pron. idem]. (Sc. viā.) The same way, ire.

EĀ-TĒNUS, adv. Expresses the limit to which something extends — so far: verba persequens e. ut ea non abhorreant a more nostro; also, with 'ne' following; hoc civile e. exerceuerunt quoad, etc.

ĒBĒNUS, i, m. [= ἔβρος]. (Poet. & lat.) Ebony.

Ē-BĪBO, bi, bĭtum, 3. v. tr. 1) To drink up, to drain, aliquid, poculum. 2) Trop.: A) (poet.) fretum e. amnes, absorbs. B) (Pl.) e. imperium, to drink up, to forget through drinking: C) (poet.) heres e. haec, squanders in drinking, dissipates.

*Ē-BĪTO, 3. v. intr. (Pl.) To go out.

Ē-BLANDIOR, itus, 4. v. dep. tr. To obtain by flattering or coaxing, omnia, unum diem; pass. part., suffragia eblanditis, obtained by flattery.

EBŌRA, ae, f. A town in Spain.

ĒBŌREUS, a, um, adj. [ebur]. (Lat.) Olfivory.

ĒBRIĒTAS, ātis, f. [ebrius]. Drunkenness (in a mitigated and partly exculpatory sense — cf. vinolentia, temulentia): quid non e. resignat.

ĒBRIŌLUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of ebrius]. (Pl.) Somewhat intoxicated, fuddled, tipsy.

*ĒBRIŌSITAS, ātis, f. [ebriosus]. Habitual drunkenness, addiction to drinking, settishness.

ĒBRIŌSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [ebrius]. Addicted to drunkenness, settish (cf. ebrius); subst., a drunkard, sot.

ĒBRIUS, a, um, adj. [e-bibo]. 1) Drunk, intoxicated (it denotes a temporary, transient state—cf. ebriosus), homo; (poet.) ee. vestigia, verba, the foot prints, the tracks, the words of a drunken person; e. nox, a night of intoxication. Hence (poet.), trop., ebrius dulci fortuna, intoxicated with his good fortune; ocelli ee., intoxicated with love. 2) Of one who has drunk enough, filled, full; hence (poet.), ebrius sanguine civium. 3) (Poet.) = profuse, luxurious, coena.

EBULLIO, 4. v. intr. & tr. 1) Prop. intr., to bubble up, to boil up. Hence, 2) tr., trop.: A) e. virtutes, to boast of: B) e. animam, to breathe out, to exhale.

EBULUM, n. (Poet. & lat.) The dwarf elder.

EBUR, ōris, n. 1) Ivory; hence = any thing made of ivory, i. e., a flute, a scabbard, the curule chair of a magistrate. 2) (Poet.) = An elephant.

EBURATUS, a, um, adj. [Ebur]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Inlaid or adorned with ivory.

EBURNEOLUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of eburneus]. Of ivory.

EBURNEUS (poet. Eburnus), a, um, adj. [ebur]. Of ivory, ivory, statua, porta; dentes ee., the teeth of an elephant; (poet.) ensis e., an ivory-handled sword. Hence, trop. = white and smooth as ivory, digiti, brachia.

EBURONES, um, m. pl. [= 'Εβουρῶνες]. A German people in Belgian Gaul; their territory extended from Liege to Aix-la-Chapelle.

EBUSUS, i, later Ēbūsia, ae, f. The larger of the Pilhyusan islands, on the coast of Spain—now Iviza.

E-CASTOR [e or ecce-Castor]. By Castor! (a form of oath or asseveration — v. Castor.)

ECCE, adv. [from the two demonstrative particles ec or e and ce]. It points out, with greater emphasis, an object to which the attention is desired to be called — behold! lo! see! 1) Of something present: e. video senem, quem quaero; e. mihi obviam venit; (colloq.) e. me, here I am; so, also, e. odium meum. 2) Of something unexpected and surprising: e. tibi consul, praetor nova edicta proponunt; e. ad me venit homo; e. autem repente abiit; e. tibi nuncius, behold, the executioner comes for thee! so, also, e. tuae literae; si id factum est, e. me nullum senem (Pl.), if that's done, why look, I am undone in my old age. 3) In conversational language, contracted with the pronouns is, ille, iste, into one word: nomín. ecce, ecclilla, ecclillud; accus. ecum, eecum, ecclillum, ecclillam, eecistam; and pl. eccos — behold! see! him, her, it, them.

ECĒRE or ĒCĒRE [e-Ceres—cf. Ecaster]. (Com.) By Ceres! (as an affirmation or exclamation.)

ECCEUMA, ētis, n. [= 'Εχχυμα]. (Pl.) A pouring out, a flood.

ECDICUS, i, m. [= 'Εκδικος] = Cognitor civitatis, a solicitor appointed to protect the interests of a town.

ECETRA, ae, f. A Volscian town: subst., Ecetrani, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of E.

ECHĒCRATES, is, m. [= 'Εχέκρᾱτης]. A Pythagorean philosopher, contemporary with Plato.

ECHĒNEIS, Idia, f. [= 'Εχένης]. The sucking-fish.

ECHIDNA, ae, f. [= 'Εχίδνα]. (Poet.) 1) An adder, viper, as an attribute of the Furies. 2) As proper name: A) a monster of the lower regions, half woman and half serpent, mother of the Lernean Hydra, of Cerberus, &c.: B) E. Lernaea, the Lernean Hydra.

ECHIDNAEUS, a, um, adj. [Echidna]. Behlidenae: canis e. = Cerberus.

ECHINADES, dum, f. pl. [= 'Εχινάδες]. A group of five islands in the Ionian Sea, opposite the mouth of the Achelous, and belonging to Acarnania—now Curzolari.

ECHINUS, i, m. [= 'Εχίνας]. 1) A hedge-hog, urchin; usually, the sea-urchin. 2) A bronze bowl used to wash cups in.

ECHION, ōnis, m. [= 'Εχίων]. 1) One of the heroes who sprang up from the dragons' teeth sown by Cadmus, father of Pentheus, and husband of Agave. 2) A son of Mercury, an Argonaut, and a participator in the Calydonian hunt. 3) A celebrated Grecian painter (about 350 B. C.).

ECHIONIDES, ae, m. [Echion]. A son of Echion = Pentheus.

ECHIONIUS, a, um, adj. [Echion]. 1) (Poet.) = Theban. 2) Of Echion.

ECHO, ūs, f. [= ἠχώ]. (Lat.; pure Latin, imago.) A repercussion of sound, an echo.

ECLIPSIS, is, f. [= ἑκλειψις]. (Lat.) Prop., a disappearing: e. solis, lunae (also without these words), an eclipse of the sun or moon.

ECLŪGA, ae, f. [= ἑκλογία]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) A selection from a written composition. 2) A short poem.

ECLŪGARIUS, a, um, adj. [ecloga]. Relating to a choice; hence, subst., Eclogarii, ōrum, m. pl. (= loci electi), selected pieces from an author.

EC-QUANDO, adv. Ever! at any time! (in a passionate, and esp. in an indignant interrogation): e. te rationem factorum tuorum redditurum putasti?

EC-QUI, qua (and quae), quod, adj. } Interrog.

EC-QUIS (also adj.), —, quid, subst. } pron.
Any! whether any! whether anyone! any body! whether any thing! (in impassioned, esp. indignant interrogation): e. seditio unquam fuit? heus e. hic est? is any one here? Sometimes it is strengthened by the enclitic particle 'nam,' as, ecquisnam, equinam, etc. In partic., as an adv.: A) Ecquid (like numquid) is used as an emphatic interrogative particle, both in direct and indirect questions—whether? e. audis? do you hear? e. placeant me rogas? you ask, does it please me? B) (ante-cl.) Ecqui (an old abl.), whether in any way? C) Ecquo, to what place? whither?

ĒDĀCITAS, ātis, f. [edax]. Greediness, gluttony.

ĒDAX, ācis, adj. [edo]. 1) Voracious, gluttonous. 2) Trop., consuming, destroying, ignis; tempus e. rerum.

ĒDENTO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. [e-dens]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To deprive of the teeth, to make toothless: e. malas alicui, to knock out the teeth of any one.

ĒDENTULUS, a, um, adj. [e-dens]. (Ante-cl.) Toothless, vetula; trop. = very old, vinum.

EDĒ-POL [e-Pollux]. By Pollux! = indeed! truly!

E-DICO, xi, etum, 3. v. tr. 1) To speak out (openly and distinctly); hence, to make publicly known, to publish, to declare, to proclaim: e. vobis, nostrum esse illum herilem filium; ut tu scire possis, e. tibi; pro concione edixit, praedam militum fore. 2) To announce, to appoint, to command, to order, by means of a public proclamation: e. delectum; e. senatum, a meeting of the senate; e. diem comitiis and exercitui ad conveniendum; edixit ne quis injussu suo pugnaret, ut omnes adessent.

EDICTIO, ōnis, f. [edico]. (Pl.) An edict.

EDICTO, 1. v. tr. [intens. of edico]. (Pl.) = Edico.

EDICTUM, i, n. [prop., part. of edico]. 1) Tech. t., the official proclamation of a Roman magistrate, an ordinance, edict; in partic., the proclamation of the praetor, in which, immediately after entering upon his office, he announced the principles and rules of his administration, esp. the rules by which he would administer justice. 2) (Com.) An order, command, in gen.

E-DISCO, edidici, —, 3. v. tr. 1) To learn by heart, to commit to memory, libellum, Demosthenem; e. aliquid ad verbum, word by word. 2) In general (mostly poet.), to learn, to acquire by learning, to study, linguas duas; (poet.) edidici = I know.

E-DISSĒRO, ui, rtum, 3. v. tr. To set forth, to unfold (by going fully into particulars), to relate, to describe: e. haec; e. viam gerendi belli; e. qui finis fuerit familiae; subtilior in edisserendo.

EDISSERTO, 1. v. tr. [edissero]. (Rar.) = Edissero.

EDITĪCIUS, a, um, adj. [edo]. Only in the combination 'judices ee.', also edititi, the judges selected out of several tribes proposed by the prosecutor in the causa sodaliciorum.

EDITIO, ōnis, f. [ēdo]. 1) (Lat.) The publishing of a writing. 2) (Lat.) An edition, the published work. 3) A representation, statement. In partic., as a tech. t., e. tribuum, a proposing by the prosecutor of the tribes from which the judges were to be selected.

EDITUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [ēdo]. Raised, elevated (above the surrounding plain); hence, high, lofty (cf. altus, celsus, etc.), locus.

E-DO (L), didi, ditum, 3. v. tr. 1) To bring forth, to put forth, to give out, to emit: e. urinam, to make water; e. animam, to breathe out, to give up the ghost; e. vitam, to lose; e. clamorem, voces, to utter; e. se foras (Pl.), to get out of doors; flumen editur in mare, empties, flows into. 2) To bring something new into the world: A) = to bear, to beget: e. partum or aliquem partu; Latona geminos e.; freq., part., editus in lucem, brought into the light of the world, born; terra e. innumeras species, produces: B) of other things, to produce, to occasion, to perform, to cause, to make: e. tumultum, caedem; e. scelus, to commit; e. ludos, to exhibit; so, likewise, e. spec taculum; e. pugnam, to join battle; e. exempla in aliquem, to make an example of; hence = to accomplish, operam annuam, operam in caede alicujus: C) of writings or books, to put forth, to bring out: e. librum contra suum doctorem 3) To make known, to announce, to state, to declare, to publish, to name: e. quid gestum sit; e. legum capita; e. nomen patrum; e. Pythagoram auctorem, to name P. as the author; e. hostium consilia, to betray; e. imperia, to make known; so, also, e. quid fieri velim; e. tribus, judices editi, v. Editio and Editicius; e. diem, to fix, to appoint; thus, likewise, e. aliud tempus ac locum; (poet.) e. arma, to celebrate in song; e. oraculum, to deliver an oracle. Hence, e. opinionem in vulgus, to spread abroad; thus, also, e. (aliquid) in vulgus. 4) (Poet.) To raise on high: e. corpus in equum, to leap upon a horse.

EDO (Il.), ēdi, ēsum, 3. v. tr. (the contracted forms es, est, estis, etc., are very frequent both in prose and poetry). 1) To eat (of men, rarely of beasts — the fundamental idea is that of consuming — cf. vescor): e. aliquid; pulli nolunt esse. In partic.: A) prov. — a) e. de patella = to condemn the rites of religion, to be impious — b) e. pugnos (Pl.), to taste the fists = to get a drubbing — c) e. multos modios salis simul, to eat many pecks of salt together = to be intimate friends for a long time: B) trop. — a) e. bona, to squander — b) e. sermonem, to devour = to listen to greedily. 2) (Poet.) To corrode, to gnaw, to consume, to destroy: robigo e. culmos; lentus vapor e. carinas; trop., si quid est animum, gnaws the mind.

EDOCENTER, adv. [edocceo]. (Ante-cl.) Instructively.

E-DŌCEO, cui, etum, 2. v. tr. 1) With a person as object: A) to teach or instruct thoroughly, aliquem; e. aliquem aliquid, to teach one any thing; so, likewise, e. aliquem mala facinora; edoctus artes belli, well instructed in the sciences of war; edoctus deos esse, having learned that there are gods; edoctus cladibus, instructed by disaster; edoctus erat in illa disciplina; ratio nos edocuit ut videremus, has taught us to discern: B) to inform one of any thing, to apprise: e. senatum de eodem; cuncta edoctus, being apprised of every thing. 2) With a thing as object, to teach accurately or fully, to communicate, to acquaint with, to deliver: e. omnia ordine; e. quid fieri velim; e. praecepta parentis.

E-DŌLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. *1) (Lat.) To hew, to shape or prepare by hewing, lingulas. 2) Trop., to elaborate, to perfect, to finish, libellum, quod jusseras.

EDŌMO, ui, itum, 1. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To tame completely, to conquer, to subdue, orbem terrarum; (poet.) trop., e. vitiosam naturam.

EDONI, ōrum, m. pl. [= 'Edonai]. The Edoni, a Thracian colony in the neighbourhood of the Strymon, known esp. as worshippers of Bacchus.

EDŌNIS, idis, adj. f. [Edoni]. (Poet.) = Thracian; as subet., = a Bacchant.

EDŌNUS, a, um, adj. [Edoni]. Of or pertaining to the Edoni; poet. = Thracian.

E-DORMIO, ivi, itum, 4. v. tr. 1) To sleep out or off = to drive away by sleeping, crapulam; (poet.) e. Iliam, to be actually asleep when the part of Iliad should be played. Also, abs., to sleep off (a debauch). 2) (Lat.) To sleep away, tempus.

EDORMISCO, 3. v. tr. [inch. of edormio]. To sleep off or away, crapulam. (Com.)

EDUCATIO, ōnis, f. [educō]. 1) Of animals and plants, a nourishing, rearing, bestiarum, pomorum. 2) Education: e. doctrinaeque puerilis.

EDUCATOR, ōris, m. [educō]. A rearer, educator, originally of a father or foster-father, later = a tutor, pedagogus (paedagogus).

EDUCATRIX, icis, f. [educō]. (Lat.) She who rears or brings up, a nurse.

EDŪCO (I.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [edūcō]. 1) (Poet. & lat.) In a physical sense, and esp. of plants and animals, to nurture, to raise, to rear: ager e. herbas, produces; so, also, tractus ille e. apros; imber e. flores, makes the flowers grow; (poet.) e. senectam aliquem, to maintain, to support one in old age. 2) In a non-physical sense, to bring up, to educate: e. aliquem pudice usque ad adolescentiam; homo bene educatus; trop., e. oratorem, to form, to train; e. eloquentiam, to develop, to increase and give power to.

E-DŪCO (II.), xi, etum, 3. v. tr. 1) To lead forth, to draw out, to lead away: e. mulierem domo secum; e. gladium e vagina; e. sortem, to draw a lot; and, in the same sense, e. aliquem ex urna, the lot of any one; e. lacum, to drain; e. se foras (Com.), to go out of doors; e. se multitudini (lat.), to withdraw from the multitude. In partic.: A) of military forces, to lead forth or out: e. cohortes; e. copias e castris, adversus hostes; hence, abs., of a military commander, to withdraw, to march out: Caesar ex hibernis eduxit: B) e. navem ex portu, to bring out from the harbour: C) esp. of a magistrate travelling to a province, to take out with one: e. aliquem in provinciam: D) e. aliquem (ex domo) in jus, ad consules, also simply e., to bring into court, to place before a tribunal. 2) Hence: A) (poet.) to bring forth, to bear, aliquem; aura verna e. colores: B) to rear, to bring up, to educate = educare: C) of birds, to hatch, pullos. 3) (Com.) To drink off, to drink up, vinum. 4) To draw up, to raise, aulacae; e. aliquem ad superas auras. Hence, to erect, to build up: e. turrim sub astra; e. aram coelo, toward heaven. 5) Of time, to spend, to pass.

*EDULCO, 1. v. tr. [e-dulcis]. (Ante-cl., rar.) To sweeten, vitam.

EDŪLIS, e, adj. [edo]. (Poet. & lat.) Eatable, capres; almost always in the n. pl. = eatables, food.

E-DŪRO, 1. v. tr. & intr. (Lat.) 1) Tr., to make hard, to harden. 2) Intr., to continue, to endure, fulgor solis.

E-DŪRUS, a, um, adj. (Poet.) Very hard.

ĒTION, ōnis, m. [= 'Hērion']. The father of Andromache, and king of Thebae in Cilicia.

ĒTIONEUS, a, um, adj. [Etion]. Of or pertaining to Etion.

EF-FARCIO (Effercio), —, fertum, 4. v. tr. To stuff full, to fill up, to cram: e. intervalla saxis: effercite vos, stuff yourselves.

EFFASCINATIO, ōnis, f. [effascino]. (Lat.) Only in the pl. A bewitching, charming, enchanting.

EF-FASCINO, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To charm, aliquid.

EFFĀTUM, i, n. [part. of effor]. 1) An announcement, prediction: vatum ee. 2) A proposition, principle, axiom (as a translation of the Greek ἀξίωμα).

EFFECTIO, ōnis, f. [efficio]. 1) An effecting, accomplishing, producing, artis. *2) An efficient cause.

*EFFECTIVUS, a, um, adj. [efficio]. (Lat.) Pertaining to practice, practical.

EFFECTOR, ōris, m. [efficio]. A producer, maker, creator: deus e. mundi.

EFFECTRIX, icis, f. [efficio]. She who makes, produces, causes, a maker, author: pecunia e. multarum voluptatum.

EFFECTUS, ūs, m. [efficio]. 1) An accomplishing, performing, accomplishment, execution, operis; opera (oppugnationis) erant in effectu, were in a state of completion so as to be effectively used; peccata in effectu, overt acts of sin; in libidine esse, peccatum est, etiam sine effectu, even without an overt act; aetas extrahitur sine ullo e., without any thing being accomplished; e. spei, the accomplishment. 2) An effect, result: eloquentiae e. est audientium approbatio.

*EFFĒMINATE, adv. [effeminatus]. Effeminately.

EFFĒMINATUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of effemino]. 1) Effeminate, womanish, homo, opinio, languor. 2) = Pathicus.

EFFĒMINO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [ex-femina]. 1) To make a woman of, aēra. 2) Trop., to make womanish, to effeminate, to enervate: e. corpus animumque virilem, animos, homines.

EFFĒRATUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of effero II.]. Grown wild, wild, savage, feras, gens, mores.

EFFERO (I.), extūli, ūlātum, efferre, v. tr.
 1) To bring or carry out, to bring forth: e. tela ex aedibus, aurum foras; e. frumentum ab Ilerda; e. mucronem, gladium, to draw; e. pedem, to go away, to depart; e. arma, vexilla e castris, extra fines, to advance with their weapons, standards; cursus (impetus) eum longius extulit, carried him too far. Hence, trop.: A) to carry out of the house for burial, to carry to the grave, to bury, to inter, aliquem; populus illum e., had him buried at their expense: B) of the soil, to bring forth, to produce, to bear: ager e. fructus uberior; aetates singulae singula genera dicendi extulerunt: C) to utter, to pronounce, to express, verborum: e. graves sententias inconditis verbis; D) trop., to report, to make known, to publish, to proclaim: e. vocem alicujus in vulgus; e. clandestina consilia: E) of the passions and emotions, to transport, to carry away; most freq. in the pass., to be transported or carried away: efferri dolore, odio, cupiditate, incredibili gaudio. 2) To lift up, to raise, to elevate, to exalt: e. aliquos in murum; e. manum, malleum alto; e. aliquem supra leges, ad summum imperium, to raise, to advance. Hence: A) e. se, to raise one's self, to rise, to advance, to become eminent: virtus se e.; Athenis primum orator se e.: B) e. se, or pass. efferri, to be exalted in one's conceit — to be proud, haughty, puffed up: e. se audaciā, scelere; esp., part., elatus illa re, elated, puffed up by any thing: C) to exalt, to praise, to extol by means of discourse, aliquem laudibus, aliquid verbis: D) e. aliquem pecunia et honore, to elevate by means of = to reward with, 3) (Ante-cl.) To bear, to endure, malum.

EFFERO (II.), āvi, ātum, I. v. tr. [ex-ferus]. To make wild or fierce: e. speciem oris, to give the countenance a wild appearance; terra effertur immanitate beluarum, grows wild, becomes uninhabitable. Hence, trop., e. animos, to make ferocious; ea caedes e. Thebanos ad execrabile odium Romanorum, exasperated, embittered; efferratus irā, raging; e. gentes, to harden; dux ipse e. milites, has rendered them still more ferocious.

EFFERTUS, a, um, adj. with sup. [part. of effarcio]. (Pl.) Stuffed full, crammed: effortus fame, extremely hungry; hereditas e., rich, large.

EF-FERUS, a, um, adj. (Poet.) Very wild, savage, juvenatus, facta.

EFFERVENS, entis, adj. (w. comp. in Gell.) [part. of effervo]. Boiling with passion, fervent, ardent.

EF-FERVESCO, fervi, —, 3. v. intr. [inch. of effervo]. To boil up, to effervesce, to ferment, to rage; mostly trop., of excited feeling: homines quacumq. e.; verba effervescentia.

EF-FERVO, 3. v. intr. (Poet.) To boil up or over, to foam; trop., vermes ee, swarm forth.

EF-FERTUS (or EF-foetus), a, um, adj. 1) (Poet. & lat.) That has brought forth young. 2)

Weakened, worn out by bringing forth young; hence, in gen., weakened, exhausted, worn out, corpus, taurus; (poet.) vires ee., exhausted energies; senectus effeta veri, no longer in a condition to feel the truth, incapacitated for the truth.

EFFICACITAS, ātis, f. [efficax]. Efficacy, activity, power.

EFFICACITER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [efficax]. Efficaciously, effectively.

EFFICAX, ācis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [efficio]. Efficacious, effective, powerful, homo; ad muliebri ingenium preces ee. sunt, are influential with, have power over; frutex e. contra sagittarum ictus.

EFFICIENTER, adv. [efficio]. With effect, efficiently.

EFFICIENTIA, ae, f. [efficio]. Efficiency, efficacy, influence, solis, naturalis.

EFFICIO, fēci, fectum, 3. v. tr. 1) To accomplish, to execute, to bring to pass, to effect; hence = to complete, to finish, to make, to form: e. magnas rerum commutationes; e. ut ille cadat, (rar.) with ne, (ante-cl. & lat.) with quominus; e. pontem, turres, to build; e. sphaeram, to form; e. tantos progressus; e. unam legionem ex duabus; e. aliquem consulem; murus montem efficit arcem; e. exercitum confirmationem; e. homines immani corporum magnitudine, makes them men of immense size. Hence: A) = to procure, alicui manus, mulierem homini: B) e. aliquid ab aliquo, to procure, to obtain something from one. 2) Of a piece of ground, to bear, to produce, to yield; hence, of persons, liciti sunt usque eo, quod se efficere posse arbitrabantur, as far as they thought they could produce, i. e., with profit. 3) Of numbers, to make to amount to: ea tributa vix quod satis est efficiunt; quae computatio efficit vires quater centena millia passuum. 4) To make out, to show, to prove, to demonstrate: hoc e., deos esse mortales; ex quo efficitur, from which it follows [with acc. e. infn. following, sometimes also with ut or ne].

EFFIGIES, ei (ante-cl. also Effigia, ae), f. [effingo]. An image, copy, likeness, effigy (esp. a likeness produced by the exercise of a plastic art — cf. imago, simulacrum, etc.): e. Veneris: Deus effigies hominis et imago; vix convenire videtur, quem ipsum hominem cupere evertare, ejus effigiem servare, to preserve the mere effigy of the man, when they were trying to overthrow the man himself. Hence: A) trop., in partic. of an image conceived in the mind or expressed by words: e. nostrarum virtutum summis ingeniis expressa; effigies rerum notat res ipsas (of mnemonics): Cyrus ille scriptus ad e. justī imperii, to set forth the ideal of a perfect government; perfectae eloquentiae speciem animo videmus, effigiem quaerimus auribus, iis likeness: B) (poet. & lat.) concr., an image, statue; less freq., a portrait.

EF-FINGO, finxi, fectum, 3. v. tr. 1) To form, to fashion by copying or imitating, to represent by means of art, to express, to portray: e. aliquid; e. pulchritudinem Veneris; e. casus alicujus (poet.); e. lineamenta oris, to copy, to imitate; so, likewise, e. aliquid imitando; e. mores hominum in ore. 2) Trop., of discourse, to set forth, to depict, to describe, oratorem. 3) (Rar.) To wipe out, sanguinem. *4) (Poet.) To chafe, to rub gently, manus (doubtful reading).

EFFLAGITATIO, ōnis, f. [efflagito]. An earnest request, a demand.

*EFFLAGITATUS, ūs, m. (only in abl. sing.) [efflagito]. An earnest, urgent request.

EF-FLĀGITO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To demand or ask urgently, to request with earnestness: e. libros; e. misericordiam alicujus, to invoke; e. ut ad me venias.

*EF-FLEO, ēvi, ētum, 2. v. tr. (Lat.) To weep out, oculos.

EFFLICTIM, adv. [effligo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To death; only trop., e. amare (deperire), to be desperately in love.

*EFFLICTO, 1. v. tr. [effligo]. (Pl.) To strike dead, hominem.

EF-FLIGO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To strike dead, aliquem.

EF-FLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To blow out, to breathe out, ignes ore, pulverem; (poet.) e. colorem, to lose; esp., e. animam (poet., extremum halitum), to breathe out the spirit, to expire; and, in the same sense, abs.: (poet.) abjicit efflantem, the dying one; quod moriens efflavit (lat.), he said upon dying, with his last breath. 2) Intr. (Lucr.), to burst forth, flamma.

EF-FLŌRESCO, rui, —, 3. v. tr. To bloom forth, to shoot up; only trop., to spring up, to flourish: adolescentia e. ingenii laudibus; utilitas e. ex amicitia.

EF-FLUO, xi, —, 3. v. intr. 1) To flow forth, to gush out: amnis e. in Oceanum; vita e. cum sanguine; (poet.) aura e. 2) Of things not liquid, to fall out, to slip out, to drop: capilli ee., fall off; urnae ee. manibus; aer e. huc et illuc, spreads. 3) Trop.: A) to vanish, to pass away, to glide away: notae caedis, memoria rei alicujus e.; aestas, aetas e. Freq. of something that has slipped one's memory or escaped from the thoughts: antequam ex animo tuo plane effluo, I am entirely forgotten by thee; mens ei e. = he forgets what he is going to say: B) == to get abroad, to become known.

EFFLUVIUM, ii, n. [effluo]. (Lat.) A flowing out, an outlet: e. lacus.

*EFFŪCO, 1. v. tr. (doubtful reading.) [ex-fauces]. (Lat.) To strangle, aliquem.

EF-FŌDIO, ōdi, ossum, 3. v. tr. 1) To dig out, to dig up (i. e., a thing out of the place where it previously was): e. ferrum, aurum; e. carbonem e. sepulchris; e. signum. Hence, e. oculos (poet., lumen) alicui, to dig out or put out the eyes; e. viscera (poet.) = to cause abortion. 2) To dig = to form by digging, latebras, portum, lacum. 3) To dig or turn up, terram; e. montem, to dig through; trop., e. domos, to rummage, to search through.

EF-FOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. (first pers. pres. is not found; mostly in perf. part. and fut. tense). 1) To say out, to speak out, to utter (an ancient religious term, hence mostly in the poets): e. aliquid, carmen. 2) To consecrate, to dedicate to any use: e. templum; locus templo effatus (pass.), fixed upon for a temple. *3) To state a proposition; hence, effatum (see above).

*EFFRACTARIUS, ii, m. [effringo]. (Lat.) A house-breaker, burglar.

EFFRENATE, adv. with comp. [effrenatus]. Properly, without a bridle; unrestrainedly, violently.

*EFFRENATIO, ōnis, f. [effreno]. Unbridled impetuosity, fury.

EFFRENATUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of the unused effreno]. Unbridled, unrestrained, unmanageable, unruly: homo secundis rebus effrenatus; cupiditas, libertas e.; multitudo e.

EFFRENUS, a, um (lat. Effrenis, e.), adj. [ex-frenum]. 1) Without a bridle, unbridled, equus. 2) (Poet.) Trop. = Effrenatus.

EF-FRICO, ui, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To rub off, rubiginem alicui.

EFFRINGO, frēgi, fractum, 3. v. tr. [ex-frango]. To break out one thing from another, to break open, cistern, fores, januum, carcerem. Hence, e. cerebrum, to dash into pieces.

EF-FŪGIO, ūgi, ūgitum, 3. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to flee away, to escape, ex urbe. 2) Tr., To shun, to avoid, to escape from, mortem, equitatum Caesaris: haec morte effugiuntur. Hence, res me effugit, escapes me = is not observed, not noticed by me; nihil te e.: nullius rei cura eos e.

EFFUGIUM, ii, n. [effugio]. 1) A fleeing away, a flight: navem nullam habuerunt ad e.; (Poet.) ob nostra ee. 2) A means of flight: habere effugia pennarum. 3) A way of escape, an outlet: insidere effugia, to occupy.

EF-FULGEO, si, —, 2. intr. To shine forth, to glitter: lux e.; duotores ee., distinguish themselves; e. audaciā.

EFFULTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of the unused ef-fulcio]. Resting upon, supported by: e. stratis.

EF-FUNDO, ūdi, ūsum, 3. v. tr. 1) To pour out, to pour forth, to shed, lacrimas; flumen e. se (or effunditur) in mare, empties; mare effunditur, overflows; Tiberis effusus super ripas, poured over its banks. 2) Of bodies not liquid, to pour out, to cast out abundantly or in great numbers, to lead forth, to dispatch, to send forth: e. tela, to hurl in great numbers; e. saccos numorum; e. auxilia castris; e. primum impetum, to make the first assault; studium certaminis e. equitatum, made the cavalry pour forth. Esp., e. se, or pass.

effundi, to pour forth, to hasten forth in great numbers: equitatus noster se ex castris a.: incendium effunditur, spreads; vox effunditur, is poured forth. Hence: A) equus occurrit et consulem supra caput e., threw him off; e. aliquem in mare, to hurl: B) comas effusae, flowing, dishevelled hair; e. habenas, to give the horses the reins; e. sinum togae, to loosen, to unfold: C) to bring forth, to produce abundantly: segetes fecundae ea. herbas inimicissimas frugibus. 3) Trop.: A) e. iram in aliquem, to pour out; e. honores, to heap upon: B) to let flow from the mouth, to pour forth, to utter: e. tales voces; e. quæstus pectore; e. omnia quæ sentio, to communicate without reserve: C) of property, money, &c., to squander, to waste, to dissipate, patrimonium; e. aerarium, to drain, to exhaust: D) to lavish, to throw away, vires, supremum auxilium: E) to lose, to let go, to resign: e. gratiam alienius, to trifle away; e. animam, vitam: F) e. se, or pass. effundi — a) to indulge in any thing (esp. a passion): in libidine effundi, to be dissolute, to be unbridled in one's lust — b) to give one's self up (esp. to a passion), to give way to, to yield to: e. in tantum licentiam; in amorem e.; to surrender one's self to any state, to break forth into: e. in risum, e. in jocos.

EFFUSAE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [effusus]. 1) Dispersedly, without order, in a loose and scattered manner, far and wide, ire, fugere, praedari. 2) Lavishly, profusely, copiously, donare, vivere. 3) Immoderately, extravagantly, vehemently, exsultare, amare; effusius dicere, with profusely, rather tediously; effusius exceptas, with excessive applause.

EFFUSIO, ōnis, f. [effundo]. 1) A pouring out, aquae. 2) A pouring or rushing forth: hominum ee. ex oppidis. 3) Profusion, wastefulness: e. imitatur liberalitatem; e. pecuniarum. 4) Extravagance, vehemence: e. animi in laetitia.

EFFUSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of effundo]. 1) Wide-spread, far-extended, wide, broad, mare, loca; hence = out-stretched, corpus. Hence: A) = scattered, dispersed, hostes; agmen e., disordered: B) = slack, loose, habenas: C) e. caedes, slaughter on all sides. 2) Profuse, lavish, prodigal: e. in largitione. 3) Immoderate, extravagant, unbridled, unrestrained, laetitia; e. cursus, a wild career.

EF-FUTIO, —, itum, 4. v. tr. [ex-futio, obsolete — cf. futis]. To blab out, to prate or chatter forth, aliquid, leves versus.

*EF-FUTUO, ui, —, 3. v. tr. (Suet.) To spend with harlots.

E-GELIDUS, a, um, adj. Cooled off, lukewarm, tepid, potio; e. ventus, moderately warm.

EGENS, tis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of egeo]. Needy, poor, indigent, in want (cf. egenus), homo.

EGENUS, a, um, adj. [egeo]. (Mostly lat.) 1) In want, in need of any thing, destitute: e. omnium rerum; (lat.) egenus commeatu. 2) Aba. (poet.), needy, necessitous; critical, precarious: in rebus egenis, in your distress.

EGEO, ui, —, 2. v. intr. 1) To be in want of any thing, to have need of: e. re aliqua, consilio, copiis; magnum est opus egetque exercitatione non parva, demand; e. auxilii, custodis; (ante-cl.) e. aliquid. Hence — a) (poet.) = to desire, to long for: e. plausoris — b) abs. = to suffer want, to live in want, to be needy, poor: nunquam te sinam egere aut mendicare. 2) (Rar.) = Careo, to be without, to lack: is semper auctoritate eguit. 3) (Gell.) To do without, to bear the want of: si quid est, quod utar, utor; si non est, egeo.

EGERIA, ae, f. An Italian nymph, the counsellor of Numa.

E-GERO, geasi, gestum, 3. v. tr. To carry out, to bear or bring out: e. praedam ex hostium castris; e. humanas opes a Veis; e. bona in tributum, to carry off. Hence — a) = to cast forth from one's self: e. aquam vomitu, to void, to vomit; so, also, e. dapes; e. sanguinem, to discharge, to lose — b) to bring out in a discourse or writing: e. querelas, to utter, to pour forth; e. sermonem, to recite — c) = to drive away, to expel: e. dolorem; gravitas coeli e. populos — d) (poet.) (= effero I. 1, A) to carry to the grave: Phoebus castra Dorica e. avidis rogis (according to others the word here = to clear).

EGESTAS, atis, f. [egeo]. 1) Extreme poverty, penury, indigence (subject — cf. paupertas, which is milder): e. ac mendacitas; trop. e. patrii sermonis, linguae. 2) A want, need or lack of any thing: e. fragmenti, pauli.

EGESTIO, ōnis, f. [egero]. (Rar., lat.) A carrying out or off, a carrying away, cadaverum; e. publicarum opum, a wasting; e. ventris, a going to stool.

*EGESTUS, ūs, m. [egero]. A carrying out or away, an emptying.

E-GIGNO, 3. v. tr. (Lucret.) To beget, to engender, ramos vivo corpore.

EGNATIUS, a, um, adj. [Egnatius]. Of or pertaining to Egnatius: 3:

EGNATIUS, ii, m., and EGNATIA, ae, f. A family name among the Samnites and Romans; thus, esp. 1) Gellius E., the leader of the Samnites against the Romans (296 B. C.). 2) Marcus E., the leader of the Samnites in the war of the allies. 3) Marcus E. Rufus, an aedile (21 B. C.) and leader of a conspiracy against Augustus. 4) P. E. Celer, a Stoic philosopher, of the time of Nero.

EGNATULEIUS, i, m. (L.) A quaestor who deserted from Antony to Octavius.

EGO, me, mihi, pl. nos, etc., pers. pron. [= ly-3]. I; made emphatic by the suffix 'met': egomet, mihimet, nobismet ipsis, I myself, to myself, to ourselves; and (ante-cl.), in the same sense, mepte, mihipte; quid mihi Celsus agit? what is my Celsus doing? Melon., for one's dwelling, abode — a me, from my house; ad me, to my house, at my house; a me solvi, from my own means.

EGREDIOR, gressus, 3. v. dep. intr. & tr. [e-gradior]. I. Intr. — 1) To go out, to come out, to depart: e. ex urbe; egredimur a nobis foras; e. Româ; e. hinc, foras, extra portam. In partic., of troops, &c., to move out, to march out: e. castris, ad proelium, to march forth, to proceed; e. navi or in terram, also abs., to disembark from a ship, to land; e. e portu or abs., to set sail. 2) To go up, to climb, to ascend: e. ad summum montis, in tumulum; e. altius. 3) Trop., to deviate, to digress: e. a proposito, from the subject. II. Tr. — 1) To go beyond, to pass over a limit: e. munitiones. 2) To go out, to leave: e. urbem, portum. 3) Trop., e. modum, to overstep; e. fortunam hominis, to surpass, to excel; e. relationem (tech. term. of a senator), to depart from the subject under consideration, and speak upon something else; egressus quintum annum, more than five years old.

EGREGIE, adv. [egregius]. 1) Exceedingly, admirably, surpassingly. 2) Remarkably well, brilliantly, splendidly. 3) As a mark of applause, bravo! good!

EGREGIUS, a, um, adj. [e-grex, 'chosen from the herd']. 1) Chosen, excellent, eminent, extraordinary, forma, laus, civis, victoria; e. bello, in war; egregius animi, in disposition. 2) (Lat.) Illustrious, distinguished, honourable: si mihi egregium esset to accipere; egregium publicum, the honour of the state.

EGRESSIO, ōnis, f. [egredior]. (Lat.) A going out; esp., trop., a digression from the subject of discussion.

EGRESSUS, ūs, m. [egredior]. 1) Abstr., a going out, a going away, departure: e. vester; rarus egressu, who seldom goes out. In partic.: A) adherere egressibus (poet. & lat.), videt egressus = the departing (of friends, &c.): B) = a disembarking, going on shore, landing: optimus tibi erat e. 2) Concr. (poet. & lat.), an outlet, passage, means of egress: obsidere omnes e.; e. fluminis, the mouth. 3) (Lat.) A digression in speaking.

EGURGITO, 1. v. tr. [e-gurges]. (Pl.) Prop., to cast out of the throat; trop. = to pour out, to empty, argentum domo.

EHEM, interj. (Ante-cl. & lat.) An exclamation expressing joyful surprise — ah! ha! look!

EHEU, interj. (Poet.) An exclamation of complaint or pain — Oh! alas!

EHO, interj. (Com.) An exclamation used in abusing, commanding, or asking angrily — he! he there! hello! hear! In a strengthened form, Eho dum.

EIA or HEIA, interj. An exclamation, 1) of joy and astonishment — why! ha-ha! I declare! 2) of encouragement — come! come on! cheer up!

E-JACŪLO, 1. v. tr. (Gell.) = Ejaculo.

E-JACŪLOR, 1. v. dep. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To cast forth, to hurl forth, aquas.

EJECTAMENTUM, i, n. [ejecto]. (Lat.)

That which is cast out, refuse: cetera es. maris. EJECTIO, ōnis, f. [ejicio]. A casting out: mors et e., banishment.

EJECTO, 1. v. tr. [e-jacto]. (Poet.) To cast out or forth, aquas; e. dapes ore, to vomit.

EJECTUS, ūs, m. [ejicio]. (Ante-cl.) A casting out, ejection, animas.

EJĒRATIO, EJĒRO — v. Ejurato, Ejuro.

EJICIO, jēci, jectum, 3. v. tr. [e-jacio]. 1) To throw or cast out, to drive or thrust out, to eject, to expel: e. aliquem ex oppido, aedibus foras; e. aliquem in exilium, to drive into exile, to banish; e. linguam, to thrust out; e. sanguinem, to vomit; trop., e. curam, memoriam rei alicujus ex animo, to drive away; e. stirpes superstitiosis, to extirpate; e. vocem, to utter; e. gemitum, to heave a sigh. In partic.: A) e. se e navi in terram, in agro, to rush forth, to hasten forth: B) e. navem — a) to bring to land, to land, in terram, eo — b) usually, to run a ship aground or ashore, to strand, to wreck; almost always in the pass., navis (classis) ejicitur ad insulam, in litora, is stranded, wrecked: hence, C) also in the pass., of shipwrecked persons, esp. the part. ejectus, of one who has been cast by the waves upon the shore. 2) Trop., to reject, to disapprove: e. rationem Stoicorum; esp. of actors, public speakers, &c. = to hiss, to hoot at, to compel to retire.

EJŪLATIO, ōnis, f. [ejulo]. A wailing, lamenting.

EJŪLATUS, ūs, m. [ejulo] = Ejulatio.

EJŪLO, 1. v. intr. [the exclamation hei, heu]. To wall, to lament, to cry out, to groan.

EJŪRATIO (or Ejeratio), ōnis, f. [ejuro]. (Lat.) Prop., an abjuring, a solemn renunciation of any thing: e. spei, a giving up; consulum e., a laying down, resigning of their office.

EJŪRO (or Ejĕro), 1. v. tr. To abjure, to renounce, to refuse, to reject something with an oath. 1) Tech. t.: A) e. forum or judicem iniquum aibi, to reject the jurisdiction of a court or judge as unjust, to protest against: B) to deny upon oath one's ability to pay, to swear that one is insolvent: C) (lat.) e. magistratum, imperium, to resign, to lay down an office with an oath that it has been administered according to law. 2) (Lat.) To renounce, to give up, to disown: a. nomen patriae, patrem, liberos; e. patriam = to forsake for ever.

EJUSDEM-MODI, used as an adj. [is-modus]. Of the same nature, quality, or kind.

EJUS-MODI, used as an adj. [is-modus]. Of that kind, such.

E-LĀBOR, lapsus, 3. v. dep. intr. & tr. I. Intr. 1) To glide out or away, to slip away, to fall out, to escape: serpens e.; animi ee. corporibus; gladius (trop. causa) ei e. e. manibus; artus in pravum elapsi (lat.), fallen into a bad condition, disabled. Hence: A) libri illi mihi elapsi sunt, have slipped from my hands, have been made public prematurely; animus ejus Bacchidi elabitur, his mind was gradually estranged from Bacchis; res e. memoriā alicujus, glides from the memory, is forgotten: B) to slip off, to get off, to escape, ex proelio, (lat.) de caede, telis; e. inter tumultum; trop., e. ex tot criminibus, to escape from so many and so great charges: C) to pass away, to disappear, to be lost: spes, assensio illa e.: D) e. in servitutum, to sink into slavery. 2) (Poet.) To rise, to creep or steal up: ignes e. in frondes altas. II. Tr.—(Lat.) To escape (some danger or evil), pugnare.

ELĀBORĀTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of elaboro]. Wrought out carefully and artificially, elaborate, artificial (opp. to naturalis, etc.).

E-LĀBORO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. 1) To labour, to take pains, to exert one's self (the idea of purpose and endeavour predominating—cf. laboro): e. ut prosim illis; e. in re aliqua; (lat.) e. in aliquid. 2) Tr., to labour or work at, to work out, to elaborate (mostly pass.), rem aliquam, librum; e. artem, eloquentiam, to cultivate; causae diligenter elaboratae, carefully elaborated; (lat.) imperium parentibus elaboratum, acquired by the labours of; (poet.) e. somnum, to cause, to procure.

E-LĀMENTĀBĪLIS, e, adj. Very lamentable.

E-LANGUESCO, gui, —, 3. v. intr. [inch. of languere]. To grow languid, to languish, to relax.

E-LARGIOR, 4. v. dep. tr. (Lat.) To give or to distribute liberally.

ELĀTE, adv. w. comp. [elatus]. 1) Loftily, sublimely. 2) Proudly, haughtily.

ELĀTĒUS, } a, um, adj. Sprung from ELĀTEUS, } tus (of Cæneus, his son, q. v.).

ELĀTIO, ōnis, f. [effero]. Prop., a lifting up, elevating; hence, trop., 1) elevation, loftiness: animi magnitudo et e.; e. orationis. 2) A being carried away, elation, transport, animi.

E-LĀTRO, 1. v. tr. (Poet.) To bark out = to speak out loudly: e. quod mihi placet.

ELĀTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of effero]. 1) Elevated, high, locus. 2) Trop.: A) lofty, exalted, animus: B) proud (v. Effero II. 2. e.).

ELĀVER, ēris, n. A branch of the river Liger in Gaul, now the Allier.

E-LĀVO, lāvi, lautum and lōtum, 1. v. tr. & intr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) Tr., to wash out, to wash clean. 2) (Pl.) Intr., e. bonis (the figure is taken from a shipwreck), to be stripped of one's property.

ĒLEA, ae, f. [= 'Ἠλέα; pure Latin, Velia] A town in Lower Italy, the birthplace of Parmenides and Zeno, founders of the Stoic philosophy.

ĒLĒATES, ae, m. [= 'Ἠλεάτης]. The Eleatian = Zeno.

ĒLĒĀTĪCUS, a, um, adj. [= 'Ἠλεάτιος]. Eleatic: philosophi.

ĒLĒCEBRA, ae, f. [elicio]. (Pl.) A wheedler = she who wheedles the people out of their money.

ELECTE, adv. with comp. [electus]. With choice, choicely.

ELECTĪLIS, e, adj. [eligo]. (Pl.) Choice, dainty.

ELECTIO, ōnis, f. [eligo]. A selection, choice.

ELECTO (I.), 1. v. tr. [intens. of eligo]. (Pl.) To choose, to pick, to select.

ELECTO (II.), 1. v. tr. [intens. of elicio]. (Pl.) To worm out, to get out (a secret from any one): e. alicui aliquid.

ELECTOR, ōris, m. (Lat.) A chooser.

ELECTRA, ae, f. [Ἠλέκτρα]. 1) The daughter of Oceanus and Thetis, wife of Thaumias. 2) A daughter of Pleione, and by Jupiter mother of Dardanus. 3) A sister of Cadmus. 4) The daughter of Agamemnon and Clytemnestra, sister of Orestes, and wife of Pylades.

ELECTRIUS, a, um, adj. [Electra]. Of or belonging to Electra.

ELECTRUM, i, n. [= ἤλεκτρον; pure Latin, Succinum]. Amber, used by the Roman ladies for bracelets, rings, and necklaces. 2) A metallic composition, of the appearance of amber, made of one part of gold and five parts of silver.

ELECTRUS, i, m. The Latin name of Electryon, ōnis, m., father of Alcmena.

ELECTUS (I.), a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of eligo]. Selected, picked, choiced.

ELECTUS (II.), ūs, m. [eligo]. (Ov.) A choice, necis.

ELĒGANS, tia, adj. w. comp. & sup. [eligo].

1) (Ante-cl.) In a bad sense, nice, fastidious, effeminate, homo. 2) In a good sense: A) of persons, knowing how to choose well, tasteful, fine, elegant; freq. of one who, in matters of judgment, esp. in speaking and writing, knows how to choose well = acute, sagacious: homo in omni judicio elegantissimus: B) also, of things, choice, tasteful, beautiful, fine, neat, elegant, genus dicendi, ars, epistola.

ELĒGANTER, adv. With choice or taste, elegantly, finely, beautifully, fitly, properly, vitam agere, aliquid facere; dicere pro aliquo accurate et e.; loca capere e., discreetly, judiciously. (With comp. & sup.)

ELĒGANTĪA, ae, f. [elegans]. *1) (Pl.) Of persons, particularity, fastidiousness, nicety: metuo ne ejus elegantia meam speciem spernat. 2) Of things, taste, fineness, elegance, beauty, gna e vitæ, murum, verborum Latinorum; sometimes of writers = acuteness, cultivated taste: e. Secretiorum; tuorum scriptorum e.

ELĒGI, ōrum, m. pl. [= ἔλεγες]. Elegiac versēs, elegies (alternate hexameters and pentameters).

ELĒGIA, æ, f. [= ἔλεγος]. (Poet. & lat.) An elegy, a poetical composition of mournful character.

ELĒGIDION, ii, m. [= ἔλεγιδιον]. (Lat.) A short elegy.

*ELĒIS, idia, adj. f. [Elis]. Of or from Elis. ELELEIS, idia, f. [Eleleus]. Only in the pl. A Bacchantes.

ELELEUS, ei, m. [= Ἐλελεῦς, from Ἐλελεῖς, the cry of the Bacchantes]. A surname of Bacchus.

ELEMENTA, ōrum, n. pl. 1) The first principles of things, elements; in the sing., Elementum, i, n. (lat.), an element. 2) Freq., the elements, rudiments of a science or art: ee. puerorum; ee. loquendi, of the art of speaking. Hence: A) (lat.) = an alphabet: B) (poet.) = a beginning, in gen.: prima ee. Romæ.

ELEMENTARIUS, a, um, adj. [elementum]. Belonging to rudiments or elements, elementary: senex e., an old teacher. (Lat.)

ELENCHUS, i, m. [= ἔλεγχος]. (Lat.) 1) An index to a book. 2) A pendant, ear-drop.

ELĒPHANTIĀSIS, is, f. [= ἑλεφαντίασις]. (Lat.) A leprosy or malignant disease of the skin, elephantiasis.

ELĒPHANTINE, es, f. [= ἑλεφαντίνη]. An island of the Nile in Upper Egypt, with a city of the same name — now Jexyret Assuan.

ELĒPHANTIS, idia, f. [ἑλεφαντίς]. 1) = Elephantine. 2) The name of a licentious Greek poetess.

ELĒPHANTINUS, a, um, adj. [= ἑλεφαντινός]. Of ivory, ivory: atramentum e., of pulverized ivory.

ELĒPHANTUS, i, } m. [= ἑλεφάντης]. 1) An ELEPHAS, antis, } elephant. 2) (Poet.) = Ebur, ivory. 3) = Elephantiasis.

ELĒUS, a, um, adj. [Elis]. Of or pertaining to Elis; also (poet.) = Olympian.

ELĒUSIN, inia, f. [Ἐλευσίς or Ἐλευσίνη]. A city in Attica, famous for the worship of Ceres and the mysteries celebrated there in her honour — now Lepina.

ELEUSINIUS, } a, um, adj. [Eleusin]. Eleu- ELEUSINUS, } sinian: Eleusina mater = Ceres; subst., Eleusinia, ōrum, n. pl. [= τὰ Ἐλευσίνια], the mysteries of Ceres.

ELĒUTHĒRIA (I), æ, f. [= Ἐλευθερία]. (Pl.) Liberty.

ELĒUTHĒRIA (II), ōrum, n. pl. [= τὰ Ἐλευθερία]. (Pl.) The feast of Liberty, a festival in honour of Zeus Ἰλευθερίος (Jupiter Liberator), which, after the Persian wars, was celebrated yearly near Platæa.

ELĒUTHĒRŌ-CILICES, um, m. pl. [Ἐλευθερόκιλικες]. The free Cilicians, a tribe in Cilicia.

ELĒVATIO, ōnis, f. [elevo]. (Lat.) Disparagement (a species of irony).

E-LEVO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To raise up, to lift up or on high, contabulationem; (poet.) aura e. proces, carries away, dissipates. 2) Trop.: A) to lighten, to ease, to alleviate, eegritudinem: B) to make light of, to lessen, to weaken, to impair: e. auctoritatem alicujus, perspicuitatem; e. res gestas, aliquem, to disparage; e. adversarium (of an orator), to weaken the impression made by the speech of an opponent; index elevatur, the informer is disparaged, is not believed.

*ELIAS, ādis, adj. f. [Elis]. Elean; (poet.) = Olympian.

ELICIO, ōni & lexi, ōitum, 3. v. tr. [e and the unused elicio]. To entice out, to lure forth, to bring out of or from a place by flattery or stratagem, to cause to come out: e. aliquem foras, hostes ex paludibus, aliquem in proelium; e. ut fateatur, to draw a confession from one; e. ferrum e cavernis terræ; e. vocem e faucibus alicujus; e. sanguinem, lacrimas, to cause to flow; e. literas ab aliquo, to elicit, to draw from one; eo, also, e. querelas; e. verbum ex aliquo. In partic., e. Jovem, to call or bring down by means of magic arts; e. manes, etc., to raise, to conjure up; so, also, e. pluviam, fulmina, to draw down.

ELIDO, ōi, ōitum, 3. v. tr. [e-laedo]. 1) To strike out, to thrust out, to dash or force out: e. aurigam curru; e. ignem velut e silice; e. vocem, to force out; e. magnas voces, to thunder out, to utter loudly; e. literas, to omit in pronouncing, to elide; e. morbum, to expel. 2) To break or dash into pieces, to shatter, to crush, caput alicujus, talos alicui, naves, angues; trop., e. nervos virtutis, to break down, to destroy; elidi ægitudine, to be broken down.

ELIGO, lēgi, lectum, 3. v. tr. [e-lego]. To pick out, to select, to choose (opp. to taking indiscriminately—cf. lego, etc.): e. rem aliquam, e. minima ex malis; elige de illis quem velis.

ELIMINO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. [e-himen]. (Poet. & lat.) To drive over the threshold, to turn out of doors: e. diota, to blab; e. gradus, to go out of the house.

E-LIMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To file off, to polish; hence = to finish, catenas; esp., trop., of the product of mental labour, e. aliquid, to elaborate, to perfect.

*ELINGUO, 1. v. tr. [elinguis]. (Pl.) To rob of the tongue, aliquem.

ELINGUIS, e, adj. [e-lingua]. Prop., tongueless = dumb, speechless, homo, curia; trop. = not eloquent.

E-LIQUO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To clarify, to filter, vinum.

ELIS (Dor. Alis), idia, f. [= Ἠλῆ]. A district in the western part of the Peloponnese, with a capital of the same name, near which was Olympia.

ELISIO, ēlis, f. [elido]. (Lat.) 1) A thrusting or forcing out: e. lacrimae. 2) As a grammatical tech. t., the elision of a letter.

ELISSA, ae, f. [= Ἑλισσα] = Dido.

ELIUS or ELEUS (also Alus, Pl.), a, um, adj. [Elis]. Of or pertaining to Elis, Elean; also (poet.) = Olympian; E. Sumen, the Alpheus; E. campus, Olympia; subst., Elii or Elei, orum, a, pl., the inhabitants of Elis.

ELIXUS, a, um, adj. (Poet. & lat.) Thoroughly boiled, sodden.

ELLEBORUM — v. Helieborum.

ELLIPSIS, is, f. [= ἔλλειψις]. (Lat.) As a tech. term in rhetoric, the omission of a word, ellipsis.

E-LOCO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To let out, to hire out, fundum; gens Judaica elocata est = the revenues of the Jewish nation have been farmed out to contractors.

ELÖCÜTIO, ōnis, f. [eloquor]. In rhetoric, tech. term, rhetorical expression, the clothing of thoughts in suitable words, style, elocution: e. est idoneorum verborum, et sententiarum ad inventionem accommodatio, is the adaptation of — to the topics conceived.

ELÖCÜTORIUS, a, um, adj. [eloquor]. (Lat.) Pertaining to expression; subst., Elocutoria, ae, f. (sc. ars), as a translation of ῥητορικὴ, rhetoria.

ELÖCUTRIX, icis, f. [eloquor]. (Sc. ars; Lat.) As a translation of ῥητορικὴ, rhetoric.

ELÖGIUM, ii, n. [λόγιον]. 1) A sentence, short saying: e. Solonia. 2) An inscription, esp. an inscription on a tomb, an epitaph: ee. monumentorum. 3) A short statement, notice: A) a clause in a will, esp. a clause by which some one is disinherited: B) in criminal cases, an abstract or brief statement, of the crime charged, the name of the offender, the penalty, &c.

ELÖQUENS, tis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of eloquor]. Eloquent (of one who possesses all the qualities of an orator — cf. disertus, facundus).

ELÖQUENTER, adv. w. comp. & sup. (the pos. does not occur). Elegantly.

ELÖQUENTIA, ae, f. [eloquens]. Eloquence, the art of speaking with energy and dignity (v. Eloquens).

ELÖQUIUM, ii, n. [eloquor]. (Poet. & lat.) Eloquence.

E-LÖQUOR, lōcūtus, 3. v. dep. tr. 1) To say out, to speak out, to declare, to state, to express: e. rem ut facta est; eloquere, obsecro, telli ū all out. 2) Abn., of an orator, to speak, to deliver a speech, ornate et copiose.

ELÖRINI, ōrum, a, pl. [Elorus]. The inhabitants of Elorum.

ELÖRUS (Hel.), i, m. [= Ἐλῶρος]. A river in Sicily, now the Atellaro; at its mouth was the town Elorum.

ELPĒNOR, ōris, m. [Ἐλπηνός]. A companion of Ulysses, changed into a hog by Circe.

E-LŪCEO, xi, —, 2. v. intr. 1) To shine forth, to beam forth: circulus e. inter flammās. 2) Trop., to be visible, manifest, conspicuous; to shew itself, to appear: scintilla ingenii jam in puero e.; eloquentia ejus maxima Spartae e.; hoc decorum quod e. in vita; in partic. = to shine, to distinguish one's self: e. virtutibus.

ELŪCĪFICO, 1. v. tr. [e-lux-facio]. (Ante-cl.) To deprive of light, to blind, aliquem.

ELUCTĀBĪLIS, e, adj. [eluctor]. From which one may extricate himself, aqua.

E-LUCTOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to struggle forth or out, to force one's way out, to press through with difficulty: aqua e. 2) To work one's self out of any thing by struggling, to surmount, to attain with difficulty: e. illas difficultates; e. tam validas manus.

E-LŪCUBRO, and Elūcubrōr, dep., 1. v. tr. To compose or prepare by lamp-light, epistolam; trop. = to prepare with great labour and care.

E-LŪCUS, i, m. [lux]. (Gell.) A drowsy or dreaming person.

E-LŪDO, si, sum, 3. v. intr. & tr. *1) Intr., to wash or dash against: fluctus e. 2) Tr., of a gladiator, to elude, to parry a thrust or blow. Hence: A) to deceive, to delude, to cheat, to impose upon, aliquem: B) to frustrate, to evade, vim legis, pugnam; e. bellum quiete, quietem bello, to evade war by quiet, and quiet by war; e. legationem, rogationem, to render fruitless; e. fidem miraculis, to impair the faith (of the people) in; e. indicia, to invalidate: C) to mock, to jeer, to make sport of, aliquem. 3) (Poet.) To win at play: e. aliquem anulum; e. palmas tibi, to snatch away.

E-LŪGEO, luxi, —, 2. v. tr. To mourn the full time for, to cease mourning over, aliquem; also, abs. = to cease mourning.

ELUMBIS, e, adj. [lumbus]. (Lat.) Prop., weak in the loins; trop., of the style of an orator, weak, without sinew.

E-LUO, ui, ūtum, 3. v. tr. & intr. 1) To wash off, to wash out, to cleanse: e. patinas, corpus; e. maculas vestium, colorem. Hence, trop. = to wash away, to efface, to destroy: e. crimen, amara curarum; e. amicitiā, to get rid of. 2) (Pl.) Intr., to get rid of, or to squander, one's property.

ELUSATES, iūm, a, pl. A people living in Aquitanian Gaul.

ELUTRIO, 1. v. tr. [eluo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) To wash out, lintea. 2) Trop., to cleanse from dregs, to clarify.

ELŪTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [eluo]. (Poet. & lat.) Prop., washed; hence, watery, insipid.

ELŪVIES, ei, f. [eluo]. 1) (Poet. & lat.)

ELŪVIO, ōnis, f. A flowing off of fluh. 2) An overflowing of water, an inundation. 3) An abyss, chasm made by the rushing of a stream of water.

ELVINA (Helv.), ae, f. A surname of Ceres (very rare).

ELYCES, ae, m. A companion of Phineus, slain by Perseus.

ELYMAEUS, a, um, adj. [Elymae]. Elymae; subst., Elymaei, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Elymae.

ELYMAIS, idis, f. [= 'Ελυματς]. A district of Persia, in what is now Iran.

ELYSII, ōrum, m. pl. A people of East-Germany, living between the Oder and the Vistula.

ELYSIUM, ii, n. [ἡλυσίων νῆσος]. Elysium, the abode of the blest.

ELYSIUS, a, um, adj. [Elysium]. Elysian; subst., Elysi, ōrum, m. pl., (sc. campi), the Elysian fields.

E-MACERATUS, a, um, adj. [macero]. (Lat.) Emaciated.

EMACITAS, ātis, [emax]. (Lat.) A passion for buying, propensity to buy.

E-MACULO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To cleanse from spots, to purify.

EMANCIPATIO, ōnis, f. [emancipo]. 1) A formal resignation of paternal authority over a son by means of a feigned sale thrice repeated; an emancipation. 2) In gen., a formal surrendering, resignation, transfer of one's right to, or property in, a thing.

E-MANCIPO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To release a son from paternal authority, and thereby declare him free to act for himself, to emancipate (v. Emancipatio). — 2) In gen., to surrender, to transfer, to make over one's right in a person or thing to another; to sell, to release, to deliver over: e. filium in adoptionem alicui; e. praedia pateris, agrum. 3) Trop., to surrender entirely, to yield, to give up: e. se alicui; emancipatus feminae, the slave of a wife.

EMANCO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [e-mancus]. (Lat.) To maim, to mutilate, to mangle, aliquem.

E-MANO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. 1) To flow out, fons. 2) Trop.: A) to proceed or emanate from, to spring out of, to arise: alio ex fonte praeceptores dicendi ee.; Academia recentior hinc e.: B) to spread abroad, to become known, to get among the people: exire et in vulgus e.

E-MARCESCO, ui, 3. v. intr. (Lat.) To wither, to fade away; trop., to dwindling away, to disappear.

EMARGINO, 1. v. tr. [margo]. (Lat.) To deprive of edge or border.

EMATHIA, ae, f. [= 'Ημαθία]. A district of Macedonia. Hence — a) = Macedonia — b) = the contiguous part of Thessaly.

EMATHIS, idis, adj. f. [Emathia]. Emathian; hence — a) = Macedonian — b) = Thessalian; subst., Emathides, dum, f. pl., the daughters of the Macedonian king Pierus, the Pierides.

EMATHIUS, a, um, adj. [Emathia]. Emathian; hence — a) = Macedonian: dux E., Alexander — b) = Thessalian.

E-MATURESCO, rui, —, 3. v. intr. (Poet. & lat.) 1) To grow fully ripe, to ripen, segetes. *2) To be mitigated, to moderate, ira Caesaris.

EMAX, ācis, adj. [emo]. Fond of buying.

EMBAMMA, ātis, n. [— ἐμβαμμα]. (Lat.) A kind of sauce.

EMBLEMA, ātis, n. [= ἐμβλημα]. 1) Inlaid work; hence, trop. = an interpolation in a discourse. 2) Hence: A) an ornament in relief (on utensils, vases, &c.): B) mosaic work.

EMBOLIUM, ii, n. [= ἐμβολιον]. An interlude between the acts of a play, a kind of ballet.

EMENDABILIS, e, adj. [emendo]. That may be amended, corrigible, error.

EMENDATE, adv. [emendatus]. Faultlessly, correctly, accurately, purely: loqui, scribere.

EMENDATIO, ōnis, f. [emendo]. A correction, emendation, improvement.

EMENDATOR, ōris, m. [emendo]. A corrector.

EMENDATRIX, icis, f. [emendo]. A (female) corrector.

EMENDATUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of emendo]. Free from error, faultless, correct, pure: homo, mores, locutio.

E-MENDICO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Suet.) To obtain by buying.

EMENDO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [mendum]. To free from error, to correct, to amend, to improve (weaker than corrigo): e. librum, vitia adolescentiae, legem; (lat.) e. dolores capitis, tussim, to cure, to remove.

E-MENTIOR, itus, 4. v. imp. tr. To devise or utter something false, to fabricate, to feign, to pretend: e. aliquid in aliquem; e. se beneficio obstrictum esse; e. auspicia; also, abs., haec omnia fecit, ut ementiretur, that he might lie. Hence, part. ementitus, as pass., devised falsely, invented, fabricated, forged.

E-MERCOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. (Lat.) To buy with a bribe, to purchase by bribery, rem, aliquem.

E-MEREO, ui, itum, } 2. v. tr. 1) To earn,

E-MEREOR, itus, dep. } to merit something, to acquire by desert, aliquid mali, pecuniam.

2) (Poet.) To deserve well of one, to earn, and hence to deserve the favour of one, to lay under obligation, aliquem; part. emeritus, as subst., a deserving man. 3) Esp., in milit. lang., to serve out one's time, to complete the term of service: e. stipendia, annuus operas; esse emeritis stipendiis (pass.), having served out their time; hence part. perf. (poet.), of a thing that has fully served out its purpose or design = old, worn out: equus, aratrum e.; rogos e., burnt out.

E-MERGO, rsi, sum, 3. v. tr. & intr. 1) Tr., to make appear, to cause to arise (from the deep): e. se or emergi ex illis malis, to extricate one's self, to rise up, to issue forth. In partic., part. emersum, that has come out or risen up: equus e. ex palude; trop., homo e. ex coeno, from the filix, mire (l. e., of vires); nox e., emergit. 2) Intr.: A) to come forth, to arise, to emerge, to appear, to come into sight, ex aqua, de paludibus; piscis e. sub glebis; stella e.: B) to come out of, to break forth from something: e. ex saltibus. e. ex patrio regno; flos e. e. caule; also, e. in locum aliquem = to get away: hence, C) trop.— a) to extricate or work one's self out of, to get free, to get clear, esp. of a hateful situation or a danger: e. ex mendicitate, ex peculatus iudicio, to get rid of, to become free from; e. et in bonam frugem recipio, I emerge from a career of pleasure, and betake myself to prudent courses; civitates emeruerunt, have recovered themselves, have attained a better condition; leges ee. (opp. to demergere), come forth again— b) to break out, to arise: bella ee. — c) to show itself, to become manifest or apparent: amor e.; ex quo emergit quale sit illud, from which it appears.

EMÉRITUS, i, m. [emereo]. A soldier that has served out his time, a veteran. (Lat.)

EMÉTICA, ae, f. [= ipseria]. An incitement to vomiting, a vomit: facere e., to make one's self vomit, so as to be able to eat more.

E-MĒTIOR, mensus, 4. v. dep. tr. 1) (Lat.) To measure out or off, spatium. 2) Trop.: A) to traverse, to go over, to pass through a certain space, terras; (lat.) G. quinque principes annis septuaginta tribus e., survived: B) to impart, to bestow, alicui aliquid.

*E-MĒTO, messui, messum, 3. v. tr. (Poet.) To mow off, to cut down, to reap: e. frumentum.

E-MICO, cui, cātum, 1. v. intr. To spring or leap out, to bound or break forth, to appear suddenly: fulgura ee.; flamma e. ex monte; e. saltu in currum, to leap upon the chariot. Hence, trop., pavor e., betrayed itself; e. magnitudine animi, to distinguish one's self; verbum aliquod e., shines forth as a brilliant point occurring here and there.

E-MIGRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. To remove from a place, to depart, hinc, ex illa domo, e vita.

EMINATIO, ōnis, f. [eminor]. (Pl.) A threatening, menace, warning.

EMINENS, tis, adj. v. comp. & sup. [part. of emineo]. 1) Projecting, standing out, lofty, elevated. 2) Trop., distinguished, eminent.

EMĪNENTIA, ae, f. [eminens]. (Rar.) 1) A projecting; concr., a prominence, protuberance; hence, the prominent part of a painting = the light. 2) Trop. (lat.), excellence, operis.

E-MĪNEO, ui, —, 2. v. intr. 1) To project, to stand forth, to stretch out: terra e. mari; stipites ee. ex terra; ferrum e. per costas; hasta e. in partes ambas; jugum e. in mare. 2): A) to stand forth = to be visible, to show itself: quod absconditur ibi, eo magis e. et apparet; esp., in a painting, to stand out, to be prominent or in the foreground; vox e. (poet.), is distinctly heard; e. ex gratulando (Pl.), to emerge from the crowd of congratulators: B) to distinguish one's self, to be eminent, conspicuous: Demosthenes unus eminet inter omnes in omni genere dicendi.

*E-MINOR, 1. v. dep. intr. (Pl.) To threaten loudly, to warn threateningly.

EMINUS, adv. [e-manus]. Aloof (opp. to comminus), from afar, at a distance; esp., as a military tech. term, of a battle with missiles, darts, &c.: e. pugnare; also, in other expressions: e. opem ferre; faces e. jacere.

E-MĪROR, ātus, 1. v. tr. (Rar., poet.) To wonder greatly at any thing.

EMISSĀRIUM, ii, n. [emitto]. An outlet, drain.

EMISSĀRIUS, ii, m. [emitto]. 1) Prop., one who is sent out; an emissary (nearly always in a bad sense), a scout, spy, agent. 2) (Econ.) A young shoot of a plant.

EMISSICIUS (Emissitius), a, um, adj. [emitto]. (Pl.) That is sent to spy out = spying, prying about (of emissarius 1), oculi.

EMISSIO, ōnis, f. [emitto]. 1) A sending forth = a throwing, hurling: graviore ee. telorum. 2) A letting go, anguis.

EMISSUS, ūs, m. [emitto]. (Lucr.) A sending forth.

E-MITTO, mīsi, missum, 3. v. tr. 1) To send forth, to send away, to send out: e. equites in hostem, cohortes ex statione. Hence, e. hastam, to hurl; e. sagittas, to shoot; e. fulmina, to scatter; e. aculeum in hominem, of a stinging insect; (lat.) e. librum, to put forth, to publish; e. vocem, to expel, to let be heard. 2) To let go, to discharge, to let loose, to let off, to let slip: e. aliquem ex urbe, ex vinculis; e. aquam ex lacu, to let flow or drain off; e. scutum manu, to let fall; e. animam, to give up, to breathe out; e. aliquem ex obsidione, to permit to go free; trop., e. aliquid e manibus, to let something escape. In partic., manu e. aliquem, and simply e. aliquem (ante-cl. & lat.) = manumitto, q. v.

EMO, ēmi, emptum, 3. v. tr. 1) To buy, to procure by buying (the fundamental idea being the acquisition of any thing by purchase — cf. mercor): e. puellam ab aliquo, aliquid de praeda; quanti eam emisti? for how much? at what price? tribus minis eam emi, for three minas; magno, parvo e., dear, cheap; thus, also, male (care) and bene e., dear, cheap: ex empto aut vendito, by purchase or sale. 2) Trop., to buy up, to gain over = to secure for one's self with money, esp. through bribery: e. sententias iudicum; e. percussorem in aliquem; e. aliquem beneficiis, to win; e. immortalitatem morte, to gain.

*E-MÖDĒROR, 1. v. tr. To moderate: e. doctorem verbis, to let rage out. (Poet.)

E-MÖDŪLOR, 1. v. dep. tr. (Poet.) To celebrate in song, Musam.

*EMOLIMENTUM, i, a. [emolior]. Labour, effort, difficulty, trouble.

Ê-MÔLIOR, itus, 4. v. dep. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) To move or force out: e. freta, to agitate violently. 2) To accomplish, to complete, aliquid.

Ê-MOLLIO, Ivi or ii, itum, 4. v. tr. 1) To make soft, to soften: humor e fundas. 2) Trop. — a) to make mild, to form, mores — b) to enervate, to effeminate, to demoralise, exercitum.

EMOLUMENTUM (also Emolimentum), i, n. [emolo]. Advantage, profit, gain derived from any thing: e. victoriae, secured by victory, by war.

*EMONEO, 2. v. tr. To admonish, to exhort, aliquid.

Ê-MÔRIOR, mortuus (old infin. emoriri) 3. v. dep. intr. 1) To die quite, to die: aut vincere aut e. 2) Trop., to perish, to pass away, to cease: laus eorum e non potest; spes e.

*EMORTUALIS, e, adj. [emorior]. (Pl.) Of or relating to dying or death, dies.

Ê-MÔVEO, mōvi, mōtum, 2. v. tr. To move out or away, to remove: e. multitudinem e foro; e. milites aedificiis; e. postes cardine, to tear from the hinges; e. muros, to shake; (poet.) e. ouras, to drive away; e. pontum, to agitate; e. aliquid senatu = moveo, q. v.

EMPEDOCLES, is, m. [= Ἐμπεδοκλῆς]. A celebrated Greek philosopher of Agrigentum in Sicily — lived about 440 B.C.

EMPEDOCLEUS, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Empedocles, Empedoclean; subst., Empedoclea, ōrum, n. pl., the doctrines of Empedocles.

EMPHASIS, is, f. [= ἐμφασις]. Rhetorical stress, emphasis.

EMPIRICUS, a, um, adj. [= ἐμπειρικός]. Relating to experience; subst., Empiricus, i, m., an empiric, a physician whose method of treatment was founded upon experience alone.

EMPORIUM, ii, n. [= ἐμπόριον]. A place for trade, market-place, mart, emporium.

EMPTIO, ōnis, f. [emo]. A purchase: facere e.

EMPTĪTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [freq. of emo]. (Lat., rar.) To buy up, to purchase, rem.

EMPTOR, ōris, m. [emo]. A purchaser, buyer, rei alioquus.

Ê-MŪGIO, 4. v. tr. (Lat.) To bellow out, aliquid.

Ê-MULGEO, mulsi, mulsum, 2. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To milk out, to milk dry; trop. = to drain out, to exhaust, paludem.

*EMUNCTIO, ōnis, f. [emungo]. (Lat.) A blowing or clearing of the nose.

Ê-MUNGO, nxi, netum, 3. v. tr. 1) (Poet. & lat.) E. se or emungi, to blow the nose; improp. (Pl.) emungere oculos ex capite, I am blowing my eyes out. 2) Trop. (colloq.): A) homo emunctae naris = a man of nice discernment, i. e., keen, sagacious: B) (Com.) e. aliquid argento, and only e. aliquid, to cheat one out of money, to defraud.

Ê-MŪNIO, Ivi and ii, itum, 4. v. tr. (Mostly lat.) 1) To provide fully with what is necessary, to fortify, to strengthen, locum; e. postes obice, to guard, to secure, to close up; e. vites ab injuria pecoris, to defend. 2) (Lat.) E. paludes, silvas, to lay out, to construct a road through swamps or forests (v. Munio).

EMŪTATIO, ōnis, f. [emuto]. (Lat.) An altering, alteration, change.

Ê-MŪTO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To alter, to change, rem.

EN, interj. See! behold! see there! there it is! there they are! 1) When attention is directed, earnestly and with passion, to an unexpected or remarkable object, event, &c.: e. Priamus, lo, here is Priamus! e. causa cur; e. ego, here I am! Consul, e., inquit, hic est; e. cui committas, behold one to whom you may entrust it! also, e. causam cur, etc.; e. quatuor aras; in castris e. meis fama mortis meae expectata est. 2) In questions: A) to attract attention: e. quid agis? B) freq. to express wonder or passionate excitement: e. quid ago? e. quid agam? e. unquam aspiciam te? shall I ever see thee? 3) (Poet.) With imperatives, to strengthen a command or injunction — here! now then! come! come on! e. accipe! e. age segnes rumpe moras!

ENARRABILIS, e, adj. [enarro]. (Poet. & lat.) That may be related, expressed, or described = portrayable, motus, foeditas.

ENARRATE, adv. w. comp. [enarro]. (Lat.) Explicitly, at length, in full detail.

ENARRATIO, ōnis, f. [enarro]. (Lat.) An explaining, interpreting, explanation, interpretation.

ENARRATOR, ōris, m. [enarro]. (Lat.) An explainer, interpreter, expounder.

Ê-NARRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To narrate in detail, to relate fully, rem aliquid. 2) (Lat.) To explain, to interpret, to expound.

Ê-NASCOR, nātus sum, 3. v. dep. intr. To grow forth, to grow up or out, to arise, to spring up: dentes ex mento ee.; laurus e.; insula medio alveo e.

Ê-NĀTO, āvi, —, 1. v. intr. 1) (Poet. & lat.) To swim out of something, to escape by swimming. 2) Trop., to get one's self out of a difficulty, to extricate one's self.

*Ê-NĀVĀTUS, a, um, part. (Tao.) Finished, performed: opera e., service rendered, work done.

Ê-NĀVIGO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to sail out or away: e. Rhodum, to Rhodes. 2) (Poet. & lat.) Tr., to sail over, undam.

ENCĒLĀDUS, i, m. [= Ἐνκελάδος]. A giant whom Jupiter killed by lightning and buried under Mount Ætna.

ENDO, prep., old form of the prep. In.

ENDRŌMIS, idis, f. [= Ἐνδρόμις]. (Lat., poet.) A woollen mantle or cloak, in which persons wrapped themselves after gymnastic exercises.

ENDYMION, ōnis, m. [= 'Ἐνδυμίων']. A beautiful youth, passionately loved by the goddess of the Moon (Diana), but condemned by Jupiter to everlasting sleep.

E-NĒCO (also Ēnico), cui (ante-cl. cāvi), ctum, 1. v. tr. (excepting the part. Enectus, only ante-cl. & lat.). 1) To kill completely, to murder, to stifle, to throttle, to smother (of. neco): puer e. ambos angues; enectus sit, fame, etc. = exhausted, worn out. 2) Trop. (colloq.), to torment, to torture, to plague to death; e. aliquem rogando, jurgio.

ENERVATUS, a, um, adj. [part. of enervo]. Enervated, enfeebled, effeminate; e. homo, feeble; orator, powerless.

Ē-NE RVIS, e, adj. [e-nervus]. (Lat.) Nervless, powerless, weak, inefficient, homo; trop., compositio, orator e., lame, flat.

ENERVO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [e-nervus]. To unnerve, to make powerless, to weaken, to render effeminate: senectus me e.; e. animos.

ENGŌNĀSI, ind. m. [= (t) ἔν γωνία]. 'The Kneeling One,' a constellation in the northern hemisphere, called Heracles by later writers.

ENGUINUS, or Engynus, a, um, adj. Of or pertaining to Engyon.

ENGYION, i, a. [= 'Ἐγγιον']. A town in Sicily, now Gazi or Gangi.

ĒNIM, conj. (usually after the first word or words in a sentence; in comic writers, also at the beginning). Used — 1) To introduce the reason of a preceding proposition or assertion — for, because: mihi omne tempus est ad meos libros vacum, nunquam e. sunt occupati. 2) To explain, complete, or define more precisely, the preceding assertion — namely, for instance, to wit: primum mihi dicendum est de genere belli, deinde, etc., genus est e. belli ejusmodi, etc. 3) Very freq. the clause supported by 'enim' is not expressed, but must be mentally supplied from the context; thus, haec vos, si Philippus in Italiam transierit, quietura aut mansura in fide creditis? Manserunt enim Punici postea bello. Nunquam isti populi ... a nobis non deficient; by the words manserunt ... bello the reason is given ironically why some thought those people would remain faithful. Quam Critias respondisset in agro ambulanti ramulum adductum, ut remissus esset, in oculum suum recidisti, tum Socrates, non enim parvisti mihi revocanti, etc.; which must be thus filled up: it cannot surprise, that this has happened to you, for, &c. A. Di me perdat si bibi. B. Qui jam? A. Quia enim absorbul, because, in fact, I, &c. In such places, 'enim' may freq. be translated by truly, surely, certainly, to be sure, indeed: aa, in comb. with interrogatives, quid e.? etc.; but this sense of a simple strengthening is not found in the word itself. Sometimes the clause to be supplied is indicated by 'at' or 'sed.'

ĒNIM-VĒRO, adv. Truly, in fact, certainly, but certainly; in replies, it is often ironical and indirect: e. illud ferendum non est.

ĒNIPRUS, ei and eoi, m. [= 'Ἐνιπρὸς']. 1) A river in Thessaliois; as a river-god, the husband of Tyro, who, together with Neptune, reared the sons of Pelias and Neleus. 2) A river of Pieria.

E-NITEO, tui, —, 2. v. intr. 1) (Poet. & lat.) To shine or glitter forth, to gleam out, campus coelum, oculi. 2) Trop., to shine forth, to be eminent, conspicuous, distinguished.

ĒNITESCO, ui, —, 3. v. intr. [inch. of eniteo]. To begin to shine forth.

Ē-NITOR, nisis or nixus, 3. v. tr. & intr. I. Intr. — 1) To work one's way out, to struggle up, to mount or climb up: e. per adversos fluctus; e. per angustias et ingruentem multitudinem; e. in verticem montis; adeo erat impedita valles, ut in ascensu, nisi sublevati a suis, primi non facile enterentur, could not easily climb up. 2) Trop., to exert one's self, to labour, to make an effort, to strive earnestly for something: e. ut (ne) illud fiat; e. pro aliquo, in re aliqua, ad dicendum; e. aliquid; rarely e. facere aliquid.

II. Tr. — 1) To bring forth with labour = to bear, to give birth to, puerum, partus plures, more children. 2) (Lat.) To climb up, to ascend with difficulty, Alpes, aggerem.

ĒNIXE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [enixus]. Strenuously, vigorously, earnestly, zealously.

ĒNIXUS (I.), a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of enitor]. Strenuous, vigorous, earnest, zealous, eager.

ĒNIXUS (II.), [enitor]. (Lat.) A bringing forth, giving birth.

ENNA (Henna), ae, f. A town in the interior of Sicily, with a temple of Ceres, from whence, accord. to fable, Pluto carried off Proserpina — now Castro Giovanni.

ENNAEUS, a, um (poet.) } adj. [Enna]. Of ENNENSIS, e, } or pertaining to Enna; hence, subst., Ennenses, ium, m pl., the inhabitants of Enna.

ENNIĀNISTA, ae, m. [Ennius]. An imitator of Ennius.

ENNIĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Ennius]. Of Ennius, Ennian: versus.

ENNIUS, ii, m. Of Rudiae in Calabria, the most celebrated Roman poet of the ante-classical period, the father of Roman epic poetry — born about 239 B. C.

ENNŌSIGAEUS, i, m. [= 'Ἐννοσίγαιος']. The Earth-Shaker = Neptune.

Ē-NO, āvi, —, 1. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to swim out or away, to escape by swimming: e. e concha, in terram. Hence (poet.) = to fly away. 2) Tr. (later poet.), to swim through, to sail through, totum fretum.

ĒNŌDATE, adv. w. comp. [enodatus]. Distinctly, clearly.

ENODATIO, ōnis, f. [enodo]. The untying of a knot; trop. = a development, explanation, solution of any thing difficult.

ENODIS, e, adj. [e-nodus]. (Poet. & lat.) Free from knots, even, smooth; trop., plain, clear, perspicuous, elegi.

ENODO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [enodis]. 1) To make free from knots, vitem. 2) Trop., of discourse, to disentangle, to make clear, to elucidate, to explain, to expound, nomina.

ENORMIS, e, adj. [e-norma]. 1) Not according to rule, irregular, toga, versus. 2) Huge, vast, enormous, immoderate, corpus, gladius, loquacitas.

ENORMITAS, ātis, f. [enormis]. (Lat.) 1) Irregularity. 2) Immensity, hugeness, vastness.

ENORMITER, adv. [enormis]. (Lat.) Irregularly, immoderately.

ENŌTESCO, tui, —, 3. v. intr. [inch. of e-noto]. To become known.

ENŌTO, 1. v. tr. To mark out, to note down.

ENS, tis, n. [sum]. (Lat.) Being, existence; a thing, rō dr.

ENSICULUS, i, m. [dim. of ensis]. A little sword.

ENSIFER (Enseiger) ōra, ōrum, adj. [ensis-fero, gero]. (Poet.) Sword-bearing (an epithet of Orion).

ENSIS, is, m. (Mostly poet.) 1) A sword. 2) Melon., for war, murder, royal power, &c. 3) The constellation Orion.

ENTEELLA, ae, f. [= Ἐντέλλα]. A city of Sicily.

ENTELLINI, ōrum, m. pl. [Entella]. The inhabitants of Entella.

ENTHYMĒMA, ātis, n. [= ἐνθύμημα]. 1) Reflection, argumentation; a thought, conception, reason. 2) In rhetoric, a conclusion from contraries, an enthymeme (Cic. Top. xiii).

ENŪBO, psi, ptum, 3. v. intr. Of a woman, 1) to marry out of one's station or rank in life: filia e; e. e. patribus, to pass by marriage from the patrician to the plebeian rank. 2) To marry, in gen.

ENUCLEATE, adv. [enucleatus]. Clearly, plainly, neatly.

ENUCLEATUS, a, um, adj. [part. of enucleo]. Clear and neat, plain, unadorned, concise: e. genus dicendi; suffragia ee., given from conviction, honest (opp. to eblandita).

ENUCLEO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [e-nucleus]. Prop., to take out the kernels; trop. = to lay open, to make clear, to set forth, to explain, aliquid.

ENŪMĒRATIO, ōnis, f. [enumero]. 1) A counting up, enumerating, malorum. 2) In rhetoric, tech. t., a summing up, recapitulation.

ENŪMERO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To enumerate, esp. in speaking, to recount, to specify, to relate, victorias, proelia; e. quae sit et quam solliers descriptio partium. 2) To reckon up, to calculate, to compute: e. dies; e. pretium, to count out, to pay.

ENUNCIATIO, ōnis, f. [enuncio]. 1) A declaration, proposition. 2) (Lat.) A statement, enunciation: e. rei propositae.

ENUNCIATIVUS, a, um, adj. [enuncio]. (Lat.) Declarative, enunciative.

ENUNCIATRIX, icis, f. [enuncio]. (Lat.) Prop., she who declares or expresses: ars e., the art of expressing one's self = rhetorice.

ENUNCIATUM, i, n. [enuncio]. A sentence, proposition.

ENUNCIO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) As it were, to proclaim abroad = to divulge (a secret), to reveal, to disclose, to blab: e. sociorum consilia adversariis; e. quid factum sit. 2) In gen., to utter, to declare, to express, to say: e. rem eandem verbo inflexo; e. sententias breviter; e. literas, to pronounce.

ENUPTIO, ōnis, f. [enubo]. Of a woman, a marrying out of one's station or rank (vide Enubo).

ENUTRIO, ivi or ii, Itum, 4. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To nourish (with food), to feed, to support, puerum; e. platanum, to raise.

EO (I.), ivi, Itum, 4. v. intr. 1) To go (in its most comprehensive sense, and of every kind of motion) = to repair to: ire domum, ad aliquem; ire alicui subsidio, to go to the assistance of any one; ire pedibus, to go on foot or by land, opp. to ire equis (poet. in equis), to go on horseback; or, ire navibus (also cum classe) by ship, ire curru (poet. in rheda), to go or ride in a carriage. In partic. — a) ire domitum, to go to bed; ire exsequias, to go to a funeral — b) (Com.) i in malam rem! in crucem! go to the devil! go, and be hanged! — c) with a kindred acc.: ire vias novas = to travel into unknown regions; itque reditque viam, goes there and back; ire viam notam — d) ire in, contra, adversus (ad) hostem, to go against, to assault, to attack; thus, likewise, ire in Capitolium. Impropr.: A) (poet.) = to flow, to gush forth: sanguis it naribus, sudor it per artus; so, also, Euphrates jam mollior undis it: B) trabs it, sinks; telum it, flies: C) tech. t., pedibus ire (or simply ire) in sententiam aliojus (in voting), to accede or go over to one's opinion; ire in eandem sententiam, to go over to, to concur in, the same opinion; ire in alia omnia, to vote against a measure. 2) Trop.: A) of a change from a previous condition or state: sanguis it in succos, is changed into sap; ire in rixam, to get into a quarrel; ire in lacrimas, to begin to weep: B) (poet.) rumor it per urbes, runs through, spreads; clamor it coelo, ascends to heaven; (lat.) circulus it per collum, goes round the neck: C) = to go away, to disappear: homo paulatim it, passes away; tempus it; D) (lat.) of merchandise, to go off = to be sold at:

haec res it tot numis: E) of an advancement, progress: res melius it, goes on better; ire in melius, to turn out better: F) to express a purpose: ire in suffragium, to proceed to vote; ire in poenae, to proceed to punish; ire ad arma (saga); ire in caedem, to set about to kill; in particular, freq. with the supine of a verb = to be about to, to be going to, to wish: ire prohibitum aliquid, to strive to hinder; ire ultum injurias, to set about revenging; hence, the union of the infin. of the pass. (iri) with a sup. in the formation of the fut. infin. pass.; as, amatum iri, to be about to be loved: G) the imperat. (i) and subj. praes. (eas, poet. eat) are used ironically or contemptuously where a person is challenged to do a thing evidently impossible, unreasonable, or exceptionable: i nunc et versus teoam meditare sonoros! go then, go now, if you can!

EO (II.), [is]. I. Adv.—1) Of space, thither, thereto, to that place: eo abiit; statuit legionarios milites eo (i. e., in equos, which are mentioned shortly before) imponere, to put them upon. 2) Hence: A) of time = up to the time that, so long as, until: eo usque: B) = to such a degree or point: eo rem deduxit, he brought the matter to such a point; eo consuetudinis venit, he arrived at that degree of dexterity; so, likewise, eo usque desperationis eos adduxit. 3) To designate an addition — besides, to this: eo accessit ut, etc. 4) Trop., to designate a purpose = with this design, for this purpose: eo scripsi ut, etc.; eo illum ad te misi ut, etc. II. Abl. sing. neuter of the prcn. — 1) For this reason, therefore: frater venit, eo vereor ne, etc. 2) with comparatives — so much, the (v. Is).

EODEM, adv. [idem]. Thither, to the same place, venire.

EOS, f. (only in the nom.) [= 'Hés]. (Poet.) The dawn; meton., the East.

EÖUS, a, um, adj. [= ἥρος]. (Poet.) 1) Belonging to the morning. 2) = Eastern, belonging to or coming from the east, equi, mare. 3) Subst., Eöus, i, m.: A) [ἥρος, sc. δερσῆ] the morning-star: B) an inhabitant of the East, an Oriental: C) the name of one of the horses of the Sun.

EPÄMINONDAS, ae, m. [= 'Επαμεινώνδας]. The famous Theban general, victor at Leuctra (371 B.C.), and at Mantinea, where he fell (362 B.C.).

EPÄPHUS, i, m. [= 'Επαφος]. The son of Jupiter Ammon and Io, and founder of Memphis in Egypt.

*E-PASTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of pascor]. (Poet.) Eaten up.

EPEUS (Epius, Pl.), i, m. [= 'Επειός]. The son of Panopeus, and maker of the Trojan horse.

EPHEBUS, i, m. [= ἔφηβος]. A youth (one between sixteen and twenty years of age).

EPHEMERIS, idis, f. [= ἡμερίς]. A journal, day-book or diary, esp. for daily expenses.

EPHESIUS, a, um, adj. [Ephesus]. Of or belonging to Ephesus, Ephesian; subst., Ephesii, ñrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Ephesus.

EPHESUS, i, f. [= 'Εφεσος]. A celebrated Ionian city in Asia Minor, now Aya-Soluk.

EPHIALTES, ae, m. [= 'Εφιδάτης]. 1) One of the Aloadae (v. Aloeus). 2) The Greek who showed the Persians at Thermopylae the way over the mountains.

*EPHIPPIÄTUS, a, um, adj. [ephippium]. Using an ehippium, eques.

EPHIPPIUM, ii, n. [= ἵππιον]. (Mostly in the pl.) A housing or saddle-cloth, a soft horse-cloth.

EPHÖRUS, i, m. [= Ἐφορος]. Prop., an overseer. 1) One of the Ephori, a body of Spartan magistrates. 2) A Greek historian of Cumae, pupil of Socrates.

EPHYRA, ae, f. [= 'Εφύρα]. 1) A sea-nymph. 2) The ancient name of Corinth, or of an older city having nearly the same location.

EPHYRAEUS, } a, um, adj. [Ephyra]. Ephy-

EPHYREUS, } rean, Corinthian.

EPIBÄTA, ae, m. [= ἐπιβάτης]. A marine.

EPICHARMUS, i, m. [= 'Επίχαρμος]. 1) A Greek poet and writer of comedies, a native of Cos, but after his youth a resident of Syracuse, whence he is surnamed Siculus — lived about 475 B.C. 2) The title of a poem by Ennius.

EPICHIREMA, ätis, n. [= ἐπιχίρημα]. (Lat.) A species of syllogism, a probable conclusion.

EPICHYSIS, is, f. [= ἐπιχύσις]. (Ante-cl.) A vessel out of which wine was poured.

EPICÖPUS, a, um, [= ἐπικόπος]. (Rare.) Furnished with oars.

EPICRÄTES, ae, m. [= 'Επικράτης]. 1) 'The Supreme' (a name jokingly given to Pompey by Cicero). 2) A philosopher or rhetorician of Athens.

EPICRÖCUM, i, n. [= ἐπικρόκον]. (Ante-cl.) 1) A fine, transparent dress for women. 2) (Pl.) Trop., jocosely, as adj., thin, transparent (of a soup).

EPICÖREUS, a, um, adj. [Epicurus]. Epicurean; subst., Epicurei, ñrum, m. pl. — a) the adherents of the Epicurean philosophy, Epicureans — b) (lat.) = sensualists.

EPICÖRUS, i, m. [= 'Επικόρως]. A celebrated Greek philosopher, and founder of the Epicurean philosophy — born at Samos, 342 B.C.

EPICUS, a, um, adj. [= ἐπικός; v. Epos]. Belonging to heroic poetry, epic.

EPIDAMNIENSIS, e, } adj. [Epidamnos].

EPIDAMNIUS, a, um, } (Ante-cl.) Of or pertaining to Epidamnos, Epidamnian.

EPIDAMNOS, i, f. [= 'Επιδάμνος]. A town in Illyricum, afterwards called Dyrrhachium — now Durazzo.

EPIDAPHNE, es, f. [= 'Επιδάφνη]. A suburb of Antioch.

EPIDAUICUS, a, um, adj. [Epidaurus] = Epidaurius.

EPIDAUURIUS, a, um, adj. [Epidaurus]. Of Epidaurus, Epidaurian; as subst., Epidaurii, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Epidaurus.

EPIDAUURUS, i, f. [= 'Ἐπίδωρος]. 1) A city in Dalmatia, now Ragusa. 2) E. Limera, a city in Laconia, on the Argolian Gulf, now Napolide Malvasia. 3) A city in Argolis, with a famous temple of Æsculapius — now Pidauro.

EPIDICUS, i, m. The title of a comedy by Plautus.

EPIDIUS, ii, m. 1) A Roman rhetorician, teacher of Antony and Augustus. 2) A tribune of the people, in the time of J. Cæsar.

EPIGONI, ōrum, m. pl. [= ἐπίγονοι, 'the after-born']. 1) The seven sons of the seven heroes slain at Thebes, who renewed the war against that city, and finally conquered it. Hence the name of a Latin tragedy by Attius, an imitation of one in Greek by Æschylus, which bore the same name. 2) The children of Persian women by the soldiers of Alexander.

EPIGRAMMA, ōtis, n. [= ἐπίγραμμα]. 1) An inscription. 2) A short poem, an epigram.

EPIGRI, ōrum, m. pl. (Doubtful reading.) Wooden pegs or pins.

EPILOGUS, i, m. [= ἐπὶλογος]. The conclusion of a speech, an epilogue.

EPIMÉNIA, ōrum, n. pl. [= ἐπιμήνια]. (A doubtful read.; lat. poet.) A month's provisions for slaves, a monthly ration.

EPIMÉNIDES, is, m. [= 'Ἐπιμενίδης]. A celebrated soothsayer and inspired poet of Crete, who was brought to Athens (about 596 B. C.) to make an expiatory sacrifice for the city.

EPIMÉTHEUS, ei, m. [= 'Ἐπιμηθέος]. A son of the Titan Iapetus and Clymena, brother of Prometheus, husband of Pandora, and father of Pyrrha.

EPIMÉTHIS, Idia, f. [= 'Ἐπιμηθίς]. A daughter of Epimetheus = Pyrrha.

EPINÍCIA, ōrum, n. pl. [= ἐπινίκια]. (Lat.) Songs of victory, triumphal songs.

EPIPHÁNĒA, ae, f. [= 'Ἐπιφάνεια]. A town in Cilicia.

EPIPHĀNES, is, m. [= 'Ἐπιφάνης]. The son of Antiochus, and king of Coimagene.

EPIPHONĒMA, ōtis, n. [= ἐπιφώνημα]. (Lat.) Rhet. tech. t., an exclamation.

EPIPHŌRA, ae, f. [= ἐπιφώρα]. A running down, flux = a cold, catarrh, rheum.

EPIRRHĒDIUM, ii, n. [= ἐπι-ρῥῆδα]. (Lat.) A strap or thong by which a chariot was drawn = a trace.

EPIRENSIS, e, adj. [Epirus]. Of Epirus.

EPIRŌTES, ae, m. [= Ἐπειρώτης]. Of Epirus, an Epirote; in pl., the inhabitant of Epirus.

EPIRŌTICUS, a, um, adj. [= 'Ἐπειρωτικός]. Of or from Epirus, Epirotic.

EPIRUS, i, f. [= Ἐπείρος]. The north-western district of Greece, now Albania.

EPISTŌLA, ae, f. [= ἐπιστολή]. 1) A written communication, dispatch, missive: venio nunc ad literas tuas, quos pluribus epistolis accepi. 2) In gen., a letter written and addressed to some one at a distance (cf. literae and codicilli): epistolam dare, to write; e. reddere, to deliver.

EPISTŌLICUS, a, um, adj. [epistola]. (Lat.) Of or pertaining to letters, epistolary.

EPISTŌLIUM, ii, n. [= ἐπιστόλιον]. A short letter = a note.

EPISTŌMIUM, ii, n. [= ἐπιστόμιον]. (Lat.) That which is inserted into an orifice or bung-hole, a stopper, spigot, cock, tap. (Others read, Epitonium, ii, n., in the same sense).

EPITĀPHIUM, ii, n. [= ἐπιτάφιος]. A funeral oration, eulogy.

EPITHĀLĀMIUM, ii, n. [= ἐπιθαλάμιον]. (Lat.) A bridal hymn, nuptial song.

EPITHECA, ae, f. [= ἐπιθήκη]. (Pl.) An addition: e. ad damnum, an addition to my loss.

EPITHĒTON, i, n. [= ἐπιθέτων]. (Lat.) A by-word, epithet; in gram., an adjective.

EPITŌGIUM, ii, n. [= ἐπι-τογά]. (Lat.) An upper garment worn over the toga.

EPITŌMA, ae, f. [= ἐπιτομή]. An abstract, abridgment, epitome.

EPITŌNIUM — v. Epistomium.

EPITRITUS, a, um, adj. [= ἐπιτρίτης]. (Lat.) Containing four thirds, expressing the ratio of four to three.

EPITYRUM, i, n. [= ἐπιτύρον]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A mass made of preserved olives.

EPŌDOS, i, m. [= ἐπὶδος]. (Lat.) An epode, a kind of lyric poem, in which a shorter immediately follows a longer verse; invented by Archilochus, and introduced by Horace among the Romans.

EPŌNA, ae, f. [= ἐπι-ῥῆς? according to others, from epus, instead of equus]. (Lat.) The tutelary goddess of asses and horses, the goddess of the Stable.

ĒPOPS, ōpis, m. [= ἔπος]. (Poet.) The bee-poe (pure Latin, Upupa).

ĒPŌREDIA, ae, f. [= Ἐπειρέδια]. A Roman colony in Gallia Cisalpina, on the Duria, now Ivrea.

ĒPŌREDŌRIX, Igis, m. [= Ἐπειρόριξ]. 1) An Ædian nobleman, who served under Cæsar. 2) Another Ædian of the same name.

ĒPOS (only in nom. and acc.), n. [= ἔπος]. An heroic or epic poem.

Ē-POTO, āvi, pōtum (lat. pōtētum), i. e. tr. (Excepting the part., which has usually an active meaning, only in later writers.) To drink off or up, venenum: e. poculum, to empty; (poet.) = to suck up, to swallow up: sol e. humores.

ĒPULAE — v. Epulum.

EPULĀRIS, e, adj. [epulum]. Of or pertaining to an entertainment or feast: e. accubatio, a reclining at an entertainment.

EPULATIO, ōnis, f. [epulor]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) An eating, feasting.

EPŪLO, ōnis, f. [epulor]. 1) Plur., triumviri or septemviri app., a college of priests, at Rome, consisting of three (later, of seven) persons, who prepared the sacrificial banquets connected with the public spectacles (esp. ludi magni). 2) (Rar. & lat.) A participator in a feast, a guest.

EPŪLOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to take part in a feast, to eat, to feast, to banquet: e. cum matre; publice e., at a public banquet. 2) (Poet. & lat.) Tr., to eat, pullos.

EPŪLUM, i, n. 1) In sing., a solemn public feast or banquet (celebrated for a religious purpose): dare populo Romano e. 2) In plural, Epulae, ārum, f.: A) a meal, feast, banquet, entertainment (given by a private person): inter epulas, at table; hence — a) = food, eatables, viands: mensa exquisitissimis epulis onerata — b) trop., a feast for the eyes, for the spirits, &c.: dare epulas oculis alicujus; ee. bonarum cogitationum: B) (rar.) = epulum.

EQUA, ae, f. A mare.

EQUĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [equus]. (Lat.) Of or pertaining to horses, horse-, medious.

EQUES, itis, m. [equus]. 1) A horseman: A) = one who is on horseback, a rider: ille eques ex diurno spatio longitudinem Italiae transcurrit, he travels through on horseback: B) = a soldier on horseback, a horse-soldier, trooper; ee. peditesque and ee. virique, cavalry and footmen. Freq., eques, collect. = equites: is e. optimus fuit in Graecia; equitem ad pedes deducere, to dismount the cavalry and let them fight on foot. 2) A knight, one of the Roman equestrian order (see text-books on Roman Antiq.); thus, also, freq. collect. eques = equites, the order of knights, the equestrian order.

EQUESTER, tris, tre (prob. also Equestris, e), adj. [eques]. 1) Of or pertaining to a rider, equestrian: status e., an equestrian status. 2) Of or pertaining to cavalry, arms; proelium e., an engagement between cavalry; e. militia, military service in the cavalry; terror e., caused by the cavalry. 3) Of or pertaining to a knight or to knighthood; ordo e.; census e., the property-qualification of a knight (see text-books on Rom. Antiq.); subst., Equestris, ōrum, n. (lat.), the seats in a theatre reserved for knights.

EQUIDEM, adv. [from the demonstr. participle e or ee and quidem — cf. Ecce; according to others, but less correctly, instead of ego quidem]. As a strengthening particle: — 1) Attached to the pron. ego, or to a verb in the first pers. sing., so that such person becomes emphatic — as to myself, I for my part, I indeed (thus only is the word used by Cicero): nolim e.; sum e. a te laesissus. 2) In gen., as a strengthening adjunct accompanying verbs in the other persons likewise — in fact, indeed, verily, truly, by all means, certainly, to be sure: e. nos jamdudum te accusamus; e. si scis tute, etc.; e. innumera-biles mihi videntur; insanit hic e. It is itself: sometimes strengthened by certe, edepol, etc.: e. edepol liberalis est.

EQUILE, is, n. [equus]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A horse-stable.

EQUINUS, a, um, adj. [equus]. Of or pertaining to horses, horse-, cervix, cauda.

EQUĪRIA, ōrum, n. pl., [equus]. A horse-race, held every year, in the Campus Martius, in honour of Mars.

EQUISO, ōnis, m. [equus]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A groom, stable-boy.

EQUITABILIS, e, adj. [equito]. (Lat.) Fit to ride over = suitable for cavalry, planicies.

EQUITĀTUS, ūs, m. [equito]. *1) (Lat.) A riding (on horseback): atteri et aduri equitatu. 2) A) cavalry; also in pl.: B) (lat.) the order of knights.

EQUITO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., To ride on horseback: quum ille in nostro exercitu e., rode about in the army; (poet.) flamma, Euris e., burst forth. 2) (Lat.) Tr., to ride over something: e. flumen glacie.

EQUŪLEUS, or EQUŪLEUS, i, m. [dim. of equus]. 1) A young horse, colt, foal: e. argentei nobiles, of works of art. 2) A rack, for the torture of slaves, made in the form of a horse.

EQUŪLUS, i, m. = Equuleus 1.

EQUUS, i, m. A horse, steed, in gen. (of caballus, mannus). In partic., of the war-horse, merere equo, to serve on horseback, in the cavalry (opposed to merere pedibus, to serve on foot). Hence: A) prov., equis viris (equis virisque, viris equisque), lit., with horse and foot = with might and main, with all one's energies: B) e. ligneus = a ship: C) the Trojan wooden horse; also, with reference to the Trojan horse, a conspiracy, plot: D) (poet.) equus bipes = a sea-horse; e. fluviatilis, a river-horse, hippopotamus: E) (poet.) an engine employed at sieges, a battering-ram, afterwards called aries: F) a constellation.

EQUUS TUTICUS, i, m. A town in Samnium, now Castel Franco.

ERĀDICITUS (Ex-rad.), adv. (Pl.) From the very root, radically.

ERĀDICO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [e-radix]. (Ante-cl.) 1) To tear up or pull out by the roots, to root out, to eradicate. 2) To ruin, to destroy; loosely (Pl.), e. hominum aures re aliqua, to fill full, to deafen.

ERĀDO, rāsi, rāsum, 3. v. tr. (Ante-cl., poet. & lat.) 1) To scratch out, to scrape off or away, terram; e. genas, to shave off the beard from, to make smooth; e. aliquem, to strike out the name of any one from a roll. 2) To expunge, to efface, to obliterate: e. vitia; e. vestigia rei alicujus.

ERĀNA, ae, f. [= 'Epara]. A village in Cilicia, near Mount Amanus.

ERĀNUS, i, m. [= 'Eparos]. (Lat.) A poor-fund, or a collection (of money) for the poor (an association among the Greeks for their mutual support).

ERĀSINUS, i, m. [= 'Eparios]. A river in Argolis, now the Kephalaria.

ERĀTO, ūs, f. [= 'Eparé]. The muse of lyric and erotic poetry.

ERĀTOSTHĒNES, is, m. [= 'Eparosthēns]. A celebrated Greek mathematician and geographer (276-196 B.C.).

ERCISCO, ERECTUM—v. Hercisco, Herctum.

ERĒBUS, a, um, [Erebus]. (Poet.) Of or belonging to Erebus or the lower world.

ERĒBUS, i, m. [= 'Erebes]. 1) The god of Darkness, a son of Chaos. 2) (Poet.) The lower world, the domain of the dead.

ERĒCHTHEUS (I.), ei, m. [= 'Epeχθεός]. 1) King of Athens, a son of Vulcan, foster-son of Minerva, and father of Pandion. 2) A grandson of the preceding, and son of Pandion.

ERĒCHTHEUS (II.), a, um, adj. [= 'Epeχθεύς']. Erechthean; (poet.) = Athenian.

ERĒCHTHIDAE, ārum, m. pl. [= 'Epeχθίδαι']. The descendants of Erechtheus = the Athenians.

ERĒCHTHIS, idis, f. [Erechtheus]. A daughter of Erechtheus, e. g., Orithyia.

ERECTE, adv. v. comp. [erectus]. (Lat.) Frankly, boldly, resolutely.

ERECTUS, a, um, adj. v. comp. [part. of erigo]. 1) Erect, upright, standing up, incessus, prora; orator e. (with censure), carrying himself high. 2) Trop.: A) elevated, lofty in thought, magnanimous, animus, ingenium, homo: B) attentive, intent upon any thing, earnest, zealous, judex; civitas erecta expectatione, on the stretch with expectation; vos ee. ad libertatem recuperandam, full of zeal: C) courageous, animated, resolute, animus.

Ē-RĒPO, psi, —, 3. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr.: A) (ante-cl.) to creep out, to crawl forth, sub terra: B) to creep up = to work one's way up. 2) Tr.: A) to crawl over something, to creep or crawl through, agrum: B) to clamber up, to climb, montem.

*ERĒPTIO, ōnis, f. [eripio]. A forcible tearing away, a pillaging, plundering, robbery.

*ERĒPTO, 1. v. intr. [intens. of erepo]. (Pl.) To creep or crawl out = to come forth slowly; melon., e. pecunia ex paupertate, is spent imperceptibly.

ERĒPTOR, ōris, m. [eripio]. One who tears away by force, a pillager, plunderer, robber, bonorum.

ERĒTĒNUS, a, um, adj. [Eretum]. Of or pertaining to Eretum.

ĒRETRIA, ae, f. [= 'Eretria]. A town on the island Euboea, the birthplace of the philosopher Menedemus.

ĒRETRIĀCI, } ōrum, m. pl. [Eretria]. The ĒRETRICI, } followers of the philosopher Menedemus of Eretria.

ĒRETRIENSIS, e, } adj. [Eretria]. Of or ĒRETRIUS, a, um, } pertaining to Eretria; subst., Eretrienses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Eretria.

ĒRETUM, i, n. A Sabine town on the Tiber, now Rimane.

ERGĀ, prep. with the accus. [kindred with vergo]. 1) (Ante-cl. & rar.) Of space — over against, opposite, aliquem. 2) Of disposition and conduct—towards, against: A) of a friendly disposition—towards: benevolus erga aliquem; benevolentia e. meam salutem; in the ante-cl. writers, frequently placed after the case it governs; as, me e.: B) (ante-cl. & lat.) of a hostile disposition—against (to express which the writers of the classic period use 'contra' or 'adversus'): malus e. me fuit; odium, crudelitas e. nobiles: C) (lat.) = in relation to, concerning, respecting, with regard to: anxii e. Sejanum; diligentia e. pecuniam alienam.

ERGASTŪLUM, i, n. [εργαστήριον]. 1) An institution for compulsory labour, a work-house, house of correction, in which slaves, and occasionally debtors were confined, and put to hard labour. 2) Melon., the inmates of a workhouse.

ERGŌ (rar. Ergō, in signif. 2) [kindred with vergo, 'turned towards', 'proceeding from' any thing]. 1) (Obsol.) As subst., like causa, gratiā, with a genit. — on account of, in consequence of, because of: hujus rei e.; virtutis e.; funeris ergo. 2) As adv. — consequently, therefore, accordingly; (ante-cl. & lat.) pleonastically, e. igitur and itaque e.: A) in general expressions of a confirmatory or negative character: B) in questions containing a logical sequence = then, so then; thus, esp., freq. quid ergo? like the Greek τί οὖν? why then; e. illi hoc intelligunt, ego non intelligo? our me e. interrogas? thus, also, with imperatives — then, now: tace e.; intro e. abeant! C) like igitur, to resume an interrupted train of thought — well then, as I was saying, I say.

ĒRICHTHO, ūs, f. [= 'Erichthēs]. A Thessalian sorceress, consulted by Pompey; hence, of a sorceress, in gen.

ĒRICHTHŌNIUS (I.), ii, m. [= 'Erichthonios']. 1) An Attic hero = Erichthius I. 2) A king of Troy, son of Dardanus, and father of Tros.

ĒRICHTHŌNIUS (II.), a, um, adj. [Erichthonius I.]. Of or pertaining to Erichthonius, Erichthonian; (Poet.) — a) = Trojan — b) = Athenian.

ERICIUS, ii, m. [Eres, is, m., 'an urchin']

1) A hedge-hog, urchin. 2) Military tech. t., a beam, set with iron spikes, for keeping off assaults, a cheval-de-frise.

ERIDANUS, i, m. [= 'Ἐριδάνης]. 1) The mythical name of the river Padus. 2) The constellation Eridanus.

ERIGO, rexī, rectum, 3. v. tr. [e-rego]. 1) To raise up, to erect, to set or stand up, to lift on high: e. arborem; e. scalas ad murum; e. hastas; e. digitum, oculos, to lift up; e. aciem in clivum, to lead up; natura hominem erexit, has given to man an erect form. Hence — a) = to build up, to erect, turrim, villas, aram — b) (poet.) e. aliquem = to wake up out of sleep — c) erigere se or erigi, to raise one's self up, to arise, to stand up; fumus erigitur (poet.), ascends — d) (poet.) Charybdis e. aquam, whirls aloft. 2) Trop., to raise up or excite in spirit — a) to animate, to cheer up, to encourage, to rouse up: e. rempublicam, provinciam, multos populos; thus, likewise, e. aliquem ad spem, ad cupiditatem, to inspire with hope, with desire; e. animum or se = to take courage; e. se in spem, to cheer up with hope — b) e. mentes, aures = to become attentive; haec res senatum erexit, roused the senate to fixed attention; thus, likewise, auditor erigitur or erigit se.

ERIGONE, es, f. [= 'Ἐριγόνη]. 1) The daughter of the Athenian Icarus, beloved by Bacchus; through grief for her father's death, she hung herself, and was translated by Bacchus to the sky, as a constellation (Virgo). 2) The daughter of Aegisthus and Clytemnestra.

ERIGONEIUS, a, um, adj. [Erigone]. Only in the combination 'E. canis,' the dog of Icarus, changed into a constellation (Canicula) at the same time with Erigone.

ERIGONUS, i, m. [Ἐριγών]. A river in Macedonia.

ERINNYES, ῥος, f. [= 'Ἐριννύες]. 1) One of the Furies; in the pl., Erinnyes, the Furies. 2) Meton. — a) of Helen, a scourge, curse — b) = frenzy, rage: E. civilis, civil war.

ERIPHYLE, ne, or Ἐριφύλη, es, f. [= 'Ἐριφύλη']. The wife of Amphiarus, who for a golden necklace betrayed her husband to Polynices, for which act of treachery she was subsequently killed by her son Alcmæon.

ERIPIO, ripui, reptum, 3. v. tr. [e-rapio]. 1) To tear out, to pull or draw out, to pull or draw away violently, to snatch away, to lead or draw off in haste: e. enssem vaginâ; e. torrem ab igni; e. aliquem e. manibus alicujus; e. aliquem domo; e. aliquid ab aliquo; (poet.) e. fugam, to flee in haste; (poet. & lat.) eripi = to be snatched away by death, to die suddenly. Hence: A) to extricate, to liberate, to tear away, to deliver, to set free from a danger or an evil: e. aliquem or se ex media morte, a miseria; also, e. aliquem (se) hosti, leto, flammis; esp., e. se, to take one's self off, to flee, to escape; e. se ex manibus militum; eripuit se ne causam diceret, withdrew from the management of the cause, from the defence.

B) (poet.) with a sentence as object: illis verbis mihi eriperes, sidera coelo lucere, you would force away from me the conviction that, &c. = would make me doubt the most evident fact. 2) To tear or snatch away any thing from one, to take away from, to rob, to deprive of: e. alicui spem, errorem, timorem.

ERISICHTHON (Erys), ōnis, m. [Ἐρισιχθών]. Son of the Thesalian king Triopas; for cutting down the grove of Ceres, he was punished with such intolerable hunger, that he was forced to eat his own flesh.

ERŌDO, —, rōsum, 3. v. tr. (Lat.) To gnaw off, to eat into or away, to consume, frondem.

ERŌGATIO, ōnis, f. [erogo]. A giving out, paying out, distribution, pecuniae.

ERŌGITO, 1. v. intr. [intens. of erogo]. (Antecl. & poet.) To ask, to inquire, ex aliquo.

ERŌGO, avi, atum, 1. v. tr. To give out, to distribute, to pay out money (prop., from the public treasury, after having asked the consent of the people; also, in gen., of private expenditure): e. pecuniam ex aerario; e. pecuniam in sumptum; (lat.) e. pecuniam in aliquem, to apportion money to any one.

EROS, ōtis, m. [Ἔρως]. 1) A common name of Roman slaves. 2) The name of an actor in the time of Cicero.

ERRABUNDUS, a, um, adj. [erro]. (Rar.) Wandering to and fro, straying, roving, or strolling about (as a temporary condition — cf. erraticus): ee. illi domos suas pervagabantur.

ERRATICUS, a, um, adj. [erro]. (Rar.) Wandering to and fro, straying or roving about, erratic (as a habitual characteristic — cf. errabundus), homo; stellae ee., the planets; of plants = growing wild; vitis serpens multiplici lapsu et erratico, creeping with manifold and wandering course.

ERRATIO, ōnis, f. [erro]. A straying away, wandering about, a losing one's way, a going astray.

ERRATUM, i, n. [part. of erro]. 1) An error, mistake: illud de Flavio commune est e. 2) A fault: nullum ob totius vitiae non dicam vitium sed e., not for any, I will not say vice, but not even for any fault of his whole life.

ERRATUS, ūs, m. [erro]. (Poet. & lat.) = Erratio.

ERRO (I.), avi, atum, 1. v. intr. 1) To wander, to miss the right way, to lose one's way, to stray away, to get upon the wrong road: monstrare erranti viam. In partic.: A) to wander from the truth or reality, to err, to mistake, to be in error: e. vehementer; erras si id credis; e. in illa re, in alteram partem, also illud errasti, in this; (poet.) e. tempora, in the computation of time; erratur, he erre: B) in a moral respect—to be in fault, to err, to do wrong: rex erravit et lapsus est. 2) To stray or wander about, to ramble or rove about, to stroll about (either involuntarily, because one does not know the right way, or without design, because a definite direction has not been fixed upon—of. vagor and palor): vagus et exsul erravit; e. per luos; stellae quae errantes et quasi vagae nominantur, the planets. Hence: A) (poet.) capilli ee., fly about; lumina ee., the eyes roll fitfully about; ignis e., spreads: B) (poet.) terrae erratae, wandered through: C) trop. = a) oratio e., passes from one thing to another; opinio errans, wavering — b) (poet.) honor tunc e., is uncertain, dubious; erro quid faciam (Pl.), I am uncertain, in doubt.

ERRO (II.), ōnis, m. [erro]. (Poet. & lat.) A wanderer, vagrant, vagabond.

ERROR, ōris, m. [erro]. 1) A departing from the right way, a wandering, straying: reduxit me ex e. in viam; errore deferri in locum aliquem. In partic.: A) = an error, a mistaken and false view, a mistake, delusion: inducere aliquem in errorem; eripere alicui errorem; errore duci, to be involved in an error; e. mentis, mental aberration; but, e. veri, an error in respect to the truth; e. loorum, a mistake in respect to places; errore viarum, by ignorance of, mistake in regard to, the roads: B) (rar.) a moral error, a fault, offence. 2) A wandering or straying about, a roving or strolling about: e. ac dissipatio civium. Hence: A) (poet.) of the meanderings of a river; of the motion of atoms: B) trop., uncertainty, doubt: sequitur alius e., Cursore Papirius au, etc.

ERŪBESCO, bui, —, 3. v. intr. [inch. of rubeo]. To become red, to redden; in partic., to redden from a sense of shame = to blush, to be ashamed: e. re aliqua, in re aliqua, propter aliquid, on account of something; e. loqui, to be ashamed to speak; (poet. & lat.) e. rem aliquam, to feel ashamed of; amor erubescendus, that one ought to be ashamed of; e. jura supplicis, to respect.

ERŪCA, ae, f. (Poet. & lat.) 1) A cesterpillar. 2) A kind of cabbage.

ER-UCTO, 1. v. tr. [freq. of erugo]. 1) To belch out, to vomit forth, to throw up, sanie; trop., e. sermonibus caedem honorum, to belch out, in their conversation, the murder of good men. 2) (Poet. & lat.) In gen., to east forth, to emit, to exhale from one's self: flumen e. arenam; Tartarus e. aestum.

ERUCTUS — v. Erugo 2.

ERŪDIO, ivi or ii, itum, 4. v. tr. [e-rudis]. To bring from a state of rudeness and ignorance, to educate, to instruct, to teach, to form, to polish: e. et docere studiosos; e. aliquem arte aliqua, in jure civili: (poet.) e. facere aliquid; e. qua arte illi capi possint, to teach; litterae me

ee. de omni re publica, instructs me, keeps me informed.

ERŪDITE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [eruditus]. Learnedly, in a learned manner.

ERŪDITIO, ōnis, f. [erudio]. 1) (Rar.) Teaching, instruction. 2) Learned culture, learning, erudition, knowledge: e. atque doctrina.

ERŪDITRIX, lois, f. [erudio]. (Lat.) A (female) teacher, instructress.

ERŪDITUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of erudio]. Accomplished, well-informed, learned, homo, orator; luxus e., tasteful, fine; oculi ee., penetrating eyes; manus e., practised, skilful; e. aures, refined; oratio e., constructed according to the rules of the art (opp. to popularis).

ERŪGATIO, ōnis, f. [erugo 1]. (Lat.) A clearing from wrinkles, an unwrinkling.

ERŪGO (I.) 1. v. tr. [e-rugae]. (Lat.) To clear from wrinkles, to make smooth, eutem.

ERŪGO (II.), —, ctum, 3. v. tr. [ἐρύγω]. (Lat.) = Eructo; hence, part. Eructus, as adj. = impure, bad.

E-RUMPO, rūpi, ruptum, 3. v. tr. & intr. 1) Tr., to cause to break out or to burst forth, to cast out: ignis eruptus faucibus; e. se foras, to rush out, to tumble out. Hence, trop. = to pour out, to vent, gaudium, iram in aliquem. 2) Intr., to break out, to burst forth, to sally forth, to rush out with impetuosity: e. portis, ex castris, inter tela hostium, per hostes; risus, vox e. Hence, trop.: A) odium, iracundia e. in aliquem, breaks out suddenly against one; e. ad jurgia, to break out in abusive words: B) to pass suddenly over to any thing, to come to a certain end or result: res e. ad seditionem, in perniciem omnium, ends in; nescio quorsus haec ee., what end this with come to; omnia quae cogitata sunt in hoc tempus erumpunt, and in, come to, an outbreak.

ER-UIO, ūi, ūtum, 3. v. tr. 1) To dig out or up, to east forth, to tear or pluck out: e. aurum terrā, mortuum, to dig up; e. segetem a radicibus, to tear out; e. alicui oculos, to pluck out; (lat.) e. sepulcra, to dig open; (poet.) e. aquam remis, to stir up. 2) Trop. — a) to draw or bring out, to elicit, to discover, arguments, veritatem — b) = to set free, to deliver from, aliquem difficultate numaria. 3) (Poet. & lat.) To destroy from the foundation, to extirpate, to overthrow, urbem; e. regnum.

ERUPTIO, ōnis, f. [erumpo]. A breaking forth or out, an eruption, sanguinis. In partic., in milit. lang., a sally, attack: facere e.; e. in provinciam, an eruption into the province.

ERVUM, i, n. [ἐρῦος]. A kind of pulse, the bitter vetch.

ERYCINUS, a, um, adj. [Eryx]. Of or belonging to Eryx; also (poet.) = Sicilian; subst., Erycina, ae, f. = Venus.

ERYMANTHIS, idis, f. } adj. [Erymanthus].

ERYMANTHIUS, a, um, } Erymanthian.

ERYMANTHUS, i, m. [= 'Ερμάνθος]. A chain of mountains in Arcadia, where Hercules slew the Erymanthian boar. 2) A river on the border of Elis.

ERYTHŒA, ae, f. [= 'Ερυθραία]. A small island in the Bay of Cadiz, whence Hercules stole away the oxen of Geryon.

ERYTHŒIS, Idia, adj. (Poet.) Erythæan.

ERYTHINUS, i, m. [= 'Ερυθρίνος]. A kind of fish, the red sea-mullet.

ERYTHRAE, ārum, f. pl. [= 'Ερυθραίαι]. 1) A town in Boeotia, near Mount Cithaeron. 2) A town in Ætolia. 3) One of the twelve chief Ionian towns in Asia Minor.

ERYTHRAEUS, a, um, adj. [= 'Ερυθραῖος]. Of or pertaining to Erythrae, Erythraean, Sibylla; subst. — a) Erythraea, ae, f., the district of Erythrae in Ionia — b) Erythraei, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Erythrae.

ERYTHRAEUM (sc. mare), i, ī, īpōpā θάλασσα (mare rubicum). The Arabian Sea; sometimes, in a narrower sense = the Arabian Gulf or the Red Sea.

ERYTHRAS, ae, m. [= 'Ερυθράς]. A fabulous king of the south of Asia (Arabia or Persia), after whom the Arabian Sea (mare Erythraeum), or the Arabian and Persian gulfs, were named.

ERYX, ŷcia, m. [= 'Ερυξ]. 1) Son of Neptune, an Argonaut, and a celebrated boxer. 2) A mountain, and a town of the same name, on the western coast of Sicily, sacred to Venus; the mountain was also called Eryx mons — now S. Giuliano.

ESCA, ae, f. [ēdo]. Food (prepared — cf. ci-bus): dii nec escis nec potionibus vescuntur; freq. = a bait or lure (for catching animals).

ESCARIUS, a, um, adj. [esca]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Of or for food or eating. 2) (Com.) Of or belonging to a bait.

ESCI = Erit, from the verb sum, obsolete.

ESCENDO, di, sum, 3. v. intr. & tr. [e-scan-do]. 1) Intr. : A) to disembark: e. navi = to land: B) to ascend, to mount up, ex imo ad summum, in rotam; freq., e. in rostra, in tribunal. 2) Tr., (lat.), e. tribunal, vehiculum, to mount, to ascend.

ESCULENTUS, a, um, adj. [esca]. 1) Eatable, frusta, animalia. 2) Filled with food, os.

ESCULETUM, ESCULEUS, etc. — v. Aesculetum, etc.

ESITO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [freq. of ēdo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To be wont to eat, escas, sues.

ESQUILIAE (Exqu.), ārum, f. pl. [exsequiae]. The largest of the seven hills of Rome, on which were many burial places of slaves and poor persons, whence its name; it was added to the city by Servius Tullius.

ESQUILIARIUS (Exqu.), a, um, adj. [Esquiliae]. Of or belonging to the Esquiliae, Esquilinae: E. collis.

ESQUILINUS (Exqu.), a, um, adj. [Esquiliae]. Esquiline: Es. alites, birds of prey (thatched on the bodies of criminals executed on the Esquiline hill); subst., Esquilina, ae, f. (sc. porta). the Esquiline gate.

ESQUILIUS (Exqu.), a, um, adj. [Esquiliae] = Esquilinus: E. mons = Esquiliae.

ESSEDARIUS, ii, m. [essedum]. A chariot-warrior (as well in war as in prize combats).

ESSEDUM, i, n. (*pl. Essēdae, ārum, f.). A Gallic two-wheeled war-chariot; later, used by the Romans as a state or travelling chariot, and also in the circus.

ESSENTIA, ae, f. [sum]. (Lat.) Being, essence (a translation of okele).

ESSUI, ōrum, m. pl. A people living in Gaul.

ESTRIX, Icis, f. [ēdo]. (Pl.) A (female) glutton or gormandiser.

ESUBII, ōrum, m. pl. A Gallic people living west of the river Sequana, or Seine.

ESURIÁLIS, e, adj. [esuries]. (Pl.) Of or pertaining to hunger: feriae ee., hunger holidays.

ESÜRIES, ei, f. [edo]. (Bar.) Hunger.

ESÜRIO (I.), —, Itum, 4. v. intr. & tr. [ēdo]. 1) Intr., to desire to eat, to be hungry; hence = to suffer hunger, to hunger: nostri e. consueverunt. 2) Trop., as transit. = to hunger for, to long for, aurum; nil ibi quod nobis esuriatur erit, for which I shall have much desire.

ESÜRIO (II.), ōnis, m. [esurio]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A hungry person.

ESÜRITIO, ōnis, f. [esurio]. (Poet. & lat.) A hungering, hunger.

ESUS, ūs, m. [ēdo]. (Lat.) An eating: esul esse, to be eatable.

ET, conj. 1) As a gen. connecting part. — and (where two independent and equally important clauses or sentences are joined together — cf. que). Here belongs the double et ... et — both ... and, as well ... as, as well ... as also, by which both sentences are made emphatic. Instead of et ... et, there are also found — a) que ... et, to connect single words (not sentences or clauses): legatique et tribuni — b) et ... que, in a less close conjunction of two clauses — c) the addition of a negative and a strengthening expression is indicated by neque ... et and et ... neque, in which cases the translation is most conveniently made by reading 'et non' for 'neque': et certa nec longa calamitas; nec miror et gaudeo, id factum esse; quis et consul aberrat nec facile erat nuncium mittere; — if the negation pertains to a single word, 'et non' is used. 2) In partic. : A) sometimes a stronger and more comprehensive expression is added by 'et,' so that it = and indeed, and moreover, and that too: laudat, et saepe, virtutem; parvae res et eas tenues; errabas et vehementer errabas: B) after words expressing similarity or dissimi- larity — such as par, idem, similis, aequæ — et often = ac, atque, etc., in which cases it may be rendered — as, than: nisi aequæ amicos et nosmetipsos amemus; non alia causa aequitatis est in uno servo et in pluribus: C) et quidem is used in a disputation, where the correctness of an opponent's assertion is admitted, but at the same time implying that it has little weight or significance: D) (mostly poet. & lat.) sometimes 'et' serves to connect two events immediately following each other: dixit et extemplo abiit; vix prima inceperat aetas, et pater jubebat — than, before; nec longum tempus, et ingens abiit arbor: E) (poet. & lat.) after an imperative, 'et' often indicates what will occur as a consequence when the condition expressed by the imperative is fulfilled — and then: dic — et magnus mihi eris Apollo: F) to introduce an emphatic question: et quisquam praeterea nomen Junonis adoret? et sunt qui de Appia via querantur? 3) (Mostly poet. & lat.) = Etiam, also, likewise, and also, and so too, and even: et alii multi; probe et ille; et illud videndum, quanto magis homines mala fugiant. 4) Where a thought is first negatively, and then positively, expressed, 'et' may be rendered — but: nihil habent haec prout et supera semper petunt; tamen animo non deficiam, et id, quod suscepi, quoad potero, perferam.

ET-ENIM, conj. 1) To corroborate or explain a previous statement — for, because, for instance, namely = enim, q. v. 2) In strengthening an assertion, or in continuing an elucidation — truly, certainly, further, and in fact. N. B. — Properly, it is placed at the beginning of a sentence; after one or two words, only in the poets and later writers.

ETEOCLES, i, (eos), m. [= Ἐτεοκλῆς]. Son of Œdipus and Jocasta, brother of Polynices, and cause of the Theban war, during which the brothers killed each other.

ETESIAE, ūrum, m. pl. [= ἐτησίαι, 'yearly,' sc. ἔτησε]. The annual winds which blew in the Ægean Sea for forty days, from the time of the rising of the Dog star; the trade-winds; (Lucr.) as adj., etesia flabra Aquilonum.

ETHICE, es, f. [= ἠθική]. (Lat.) Moral philosophy, ethics (pure Latin, disciplina morum).

ETHICUS, a, um, adj. [= ἠθικός]. (Lat.) Moral, ethic.

ETHOLOGIA, ae, f. [= ἠθολογία]. (Lat.) The art of depicting character, a characterizing, portraying of character.

ETHOLOGUS, i, m. [= ἠθολόγος]. One who sportively imitates the manners, actions, or gestures of another person, a mimic.

ETIAM, conj. [et-jam]. Used, 1) to subjoin an additional idea — also, furthermore, likewise, besides: aliae e. dicendi virtutes; unum et e. vos rogo, ut, etc. 2) To annex a more important idea — yes also, and even, nay even: haec omnes sapientes summa, quidam e. sola bona esse dixerunt; quin e., nay even. Hence, freq. in comparisons, for the sake of emphasis — and yet, still: majores e. difficultates orientur. 3) In strongly affirmative answers — yes certainly, yes indeed, yes, by all means, just so: Jupp. Numquid vis? Alc. E., ut mox venias. 4) In familiar language: A) with imperatives, to give emphasis — but, but then: circumspice e.: B) in questions, expressing either indignation (et e. clamas? what, are you still bawling?) or a command (et e. vigilas? are you going to wake up? e. aperis? = do open the door! e. taces? will you be silent?) 5) Of time: A) to indicate duration and continuance — yet, still, even still: quum iste e. cubaret, hic in cubiculum introductus est; non satis me pernostei e., you do not yet rightly know me; hunc ego nunquam videram e., him I have never yet seen: B) to indicate a repetition, in the comb. 'etiam atque etiam' — repeatedly, constantly, again and again, over and over again; hence = urgently, pressingly: discere, multa affirmare, aliquid reputare, hoc te e. atque e. rogo.

ETIAM-NUNC, or (rar.) Etiam-num, adv. 1) Yet, even yet, till now, even now, still, at this moment (hence, with respect to the present — cf. etiamtum): vos cunctamini e.; e. mulier intus est? nullus e., nobody yet. 2) = Etiamtum, q. v.: epistolam illam Balbo, quum e. in provincia es-set, misi. 3) (Lat.) = Etiam: also, moreover, besides.

ETIAM-SI, concess. conj. Even if, even though, although, albeit: ista veritas e. jucunda non est, mihi tamen grata est; hunc librum, e. minus nostra commendatione, tuo tamen nomine divulgari necesse est (thus sometimes without a verb).

ETIAM-TUM, } adv. Even yet at that time,

ETIAM-TUNC, } till then, even then, still (with reference to a past period — cf. etiam-num): e. vita hominum sine cupiditate agebatur; omnes e. retinebant illum Perilli succum.

ETRŪRIA, ae, f. The district of Etruria, in Central Italy, now Tuscany.

ETRUSCUS, a, um, adj. [Etruria]. Etruscan; subst., Etrusci, ōrum, m. pl., the Etruscans.

ET-SI, concess. conj. 1) In a concessive conditional sentence (i. e., a sentence which conditionally grants something), followed by an affirmation — although, even though, notwithstanding: e. abest maturitas aetatis, jam tamen, etc.; e. scio ego, tamen, etc.; superbiae e. serae, non leves tamen, venient poenae. 2) Without a sentence following, to express a restriction or correction of a preceding statement — however, but yet, but still (= quamquam, which is more frequent): habet enim res deliberationem: e. ex magna parte tibi assentior. Do poenas temeritatis mene; e. quae fuit temeritas?

ETYMŌLŌGIA, ae, f. [= ἐτυμολογία]. The theory of the derivation of words, etymology.

ETYMŌLŌGICUS, a, um, adj. [= ἐτυμολογικός]. (Lat.) Etymological.

ETYMON, i, n. [= ἔτυμον]. The true signification of a word according to its etymology.

EU, interj. [= εὐ]. (Poet.) An exclamation of joy and satisfaction—well! well done! bravo! Also, strengthened—Euge [= εὖγε] (Com.), superb! excellent!

EUBŌEA, ae, f. [= Εὐβοία]. The large island in the Aegean Sea, on the coast of Boeotia, now Negroponte.

EUBŌICUS, a, um, adj. [Euboea]. 1) Euboean; also, of towns, &c., on the coast of Boeotia, opposite Euboea: Anthedon E.; litus E., of Aulis. 2) Cumman, because the town of Cumae, in Italy, was a colony of Euboea: carmen E., a prediction of the Cumaean sibyl.

EUCLIDES, is, m. [= Εὐκλείδης]. 1) A philosopher of Megara, the founder of the Megarian sect. 2) A celebrated mathematician, born 308 B. C.

EUDAEEMON, ōnis, com. [= Εὐδαιμων, 'happy']. The Greek name of Southern Arabia (A. Felix).

EUDES, is, m. [= Εὐρύδης]. A Trojan herald, father of Dolon.

EUMĒNES, is, m. [= Εὐμένης]. A general under Alexander the Great, afterwards governor of Cappadocia.

EUMĒNIDES, dum, f. pl. [= Εὐμενίδες]. 'The Benevolent,' a euphemistic name of the Furies.

EUMOLPĪDAE, ārum, m. pl. [= Εὐμολπίδαι]. A distinguished sacerdotal family in Athens, who derived their name from Eumolpus.

EUMOLPUS, i, m. [= Εὐμόλπος]. 1) According to fable, a Thracian poet, and priest of Ceres, founder of the Eleusinian mysteries. 2) A son of Musaeus.

EUNŪCHUS, i, m. [= εὐνῦχος]. 1) A eunuch. 2) The name of a comedy by Terence.

EUPHORBUS, i, m. [= Εὐφορβος]. A Trojan, whose soul Pythagoras asserted he had received through transmigration.

EUPHŌRION, ōnis, n. [= Εὐφορίων]. A Greek poet and grammarian of Chalcis in Euboea, born about 276 B. C.

EUPHRANOR, ōris, m. [= Εὐφράνωρ]. A celebrated painter and sculptor of Corinth—lived about 350 B. C.

EUPHRATES, is, m. [= Εὐφράτης]. 1) The river Euphrates, in Asia, which, uniting with the Tigris, falls into the Persian Gulf; (poet.) = the people living on its banks. 2) A Stoic philosopher, and friend of the younger Pliny.

EUPŌLIS, Idis, m. [= Εὐπόλις]. An Athenian comic poet—lived about 430 B. C.

EURIPIDES, is, m. [= Εὐριπίδης]. A celebrated Athenian tragic poet, born 480 B. C.

EURIPIDEUS, a, um, adj. [Euripides]. Of or pertaining to Euripides.

EURĪPUS, i, m. [= εὐρίπος]. 1) A strait, narrow channel; esp., as a proper name, the strait between the island Euboea and the main land. 2) An aqueduct, conduit, canal; esp., the trench which surrounded the race-course at Rome.

EURŌPA, ae (or Eurōpe, es), f. [= Εὐρώπη]. 1) The daughter of Agenor, king of Phoenicia, carried off by Jupiter to Crete, and mother of Minos and Sarpedon. 2) Europe, the quarter of the world named after Europa.

EURŌPAEUS, a, um, adj. [Europa]. 1) Of or pertaining to Europa. 2) European.

EURŌTAS, ae, m. [= Εὐρώτας]. The principal river in Laconia, now Basilipotamo.

EURŌUS, a, um, adj. [Eurus]. (Poet.) Of or pertaining to the south-east wind = eastern, east.

EURUS, i, m. [= εὐρος]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) The south-east wind. 2) (Poet.)—a) = the East—b) = the east wind—c) = wind, in gen.

EURYĀLUS, i, m. [= Εὐρύαλος]. A Trojan, the friend of Nisus, together with whom he was slain by the Rutulians.

EURYDICE, es, f. [= Εὐρύδικη]. 1) The wife of Orpheus, brought back from the lower world by her husband, but in consequence of his violating his promise not to look back upon her while on the way to the earth, she was compelled to return again. 2) The wife of Acrisius. 3) The wife of Nestor. 4) The wife of Creon.

EURYĻŌCHUS, i, m. [= Εὐρύλοχος]. A companion of Ulysses, who successfully resisted the enchantments of Circe.

EURYMIDES, ae, m. [= Εὐρυμίδης]. The son of Eurymus = the soothsayer Telemus.

EURYNŌME, es, f. [= Εὐρυνόμη]. Daughter of Oceanus and Thetis, mother of Leucothea.

EURYPYLIS, Idis, adj. f. [Eurypylus]. Of Eurypylus; (poet.) = Coan.

EURYPYLUS, i, m. [= Εὐρύπυλος]. 1) A son of Hercules, king of the island of Cos. 2) A son of Euaemon of Thessaly, one of the heroes at Troy.

EURYSTHEUS, ei, m. [= Εὐρυσθέης]. A son of Sthenelus, grandson of Perseus, and king of Mycenae, who imposed the Twelve Labours upon Hercules.

EURYTIS, Idis, f. [Eurytus]. The daughter of Eurytus = Iole.

EURYTUS, i (or Eurȳtion, ōnis), m. [= Εὐρύτος]. 1) A centaur. 2) A king of Œchalia in Negroponte, father of Iole.

EUSCHEME, adv. [= εὐσχημως]. (Pl.) Gracefully, handsomely, prettily.

EUTERPE, es, f. [= Εὐτέρπη]. The muse of Music.

EUTRĀPELUS, i, m. [= Εὐτράπελος]. 'The Merry,' an epithet of P. Volumnus, a companion of Antony.

EUTRŌPIUS, ii, m. Flavius, a Roman historian, author of the Breviarium historiae Romanae—lived about 320 A. D.

EUXINUS, a, um, adj. [= εὐξίνος, 'hospitable']. An epithet of the Black Sea; usually, E. pontus, also mare, aquae, litus, etc.

E-VÁCUO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To empty out, to evacuate.

EVADNE, es, f. [= Εὐάνη]. The wife of Capaneus, one of the seven heroes at Thebes; she threw herself on her husband's funeral pile, and perished in the flames.

E-VÁDO, si, sum; 3. v. intr. & tr. I. Intr.—

1) To go out, to go forth, to come out: e. extra vallum, ex balneis; e. in terram, to come to land, to disembark, to land; evasit ante ora parentum (poet.), came before the parental eyes; e. ex puteo. In partic. = to escape, to get clear, to get away (from a danger, &c.): e. ex manibus hostium, periculo, per tela hostium. 2) To ascend, to mount up, to climb up: e. ad fastigia; e. in muros, upon the walls; e. in ardua. 3) Trop.: A) of things, to end in any manner, to turn or fall out, to have an issue, to come to a certain result: nescio quorsum (or quo) haec evasura sint; pestilentia e. in longos morbos, ends in lingering diseases: B) of persons, to turn out or become something (esp. by means of the development of the mind, talents, or character): evasit juvenis indolis regiae; e. orator: C) to be fulfilled, to come to pass: evasit id quod somnia- vimus. II. Tr.—(Mostly poet. & lat.) 1) (According to I. 1.) To pass through or over a certain space, to leave behind: e. saltum, media castra, angustias. 2) (According to I. 2.) To ascend, to mount, to climb, altos gradus, ardua. 3) (According to I. 1.) To escape from, to flee from, to get away from: e. flammam, aliquem.

EVÁGINO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. [vagina]. (Lat.) To draw forth from the scabbard, to unsheath, gladium.

E-VÁGOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. 1) Intr., to wander forth, to roam or spread about; esp. of troops, &c. = to make a lateral movement, an evolution: spatium ad evagandum; Nilus e., overflows its banks; trop., appetitus ee. longius, wander, rove; orator e., digresses from the subject; vis morbi e. per aliquos, spreads. 2) Tr. (poet.), to overstep any thing, to go beyond, ordinem.

E-VÁLESCO, lui, 3. v. inch. intr. (Poet. & lat.)

1) To become strong, to grow or increase in strength, to increase, to grow: e. rami; res e. in tumultum, grew into a tumult. Hence, trop., nomen e., comes into general use, becomes prevalent. 2) In the perf., to have power or ability, to be able, facere aliquid.

EVAN, m. [= Εἰς, a cry of the Bacchantes]. An epithet of Bacchus (cf. Evoe)

EVANDER (Evandrus), dri, m. [= Εὐάνδρος].

1) The son of Mercury and an Arcadian nymph (called Carmenta by the Romans), who, about sixty years before the Trojan war, migrated to Italy, and founded the city called Pallantium, on the Palatine mountain. 2) A Greek artist who wrought in metals at Rome, in the time of M. Antony.

EVANDRIUS, a, um, adj. [Evander]. Of or pertaining to Evander, Evandrian.

E-VÁNESCO, nui, —, 3. v. inch. intr. (Poet. & lat.) To vanish away, to be lost, to pass away, to disappear: e. ex oculis in auram; aquae ee., evaporate; trop., sententia eorum e. = has no longer any adherents; Hortensius evanuit, has lost his standing (as an orator): spes e., dolor e., decreases; vinum e., loses its strength; bellum e., languishes, is carried on with little vigour; liber e., is lost; omnis eorum memoria evanuit, has sunk into oblivion.

EVÁNIDUS, a, um, adj. [evanesco]. (Poet. & lat.) Vanishing, passing away, frail, powerless, feeble.

EVANS, tis, part. [Evan]. (Poet.) Crying 'Evan,' shouting, rejoicing (of the Bacchantes); and, tr., orgia evantes, celebrating the festival of Bacchus with the cry, Evan!

EVÁPORATIO, ōnis, f. [evaporo]. (Lat.) An evaporating, evaporation, exhalation.

E-VÁPORO, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To evaporate, to exhale.

E-VASTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To devastate completely, to lay waste, omnia.

EVAX, interj. (Pl.) An exclamation of joyful surprise, huzza! hey-day!

EVECTUS, ūs, m. [eveho]. (Lat.) A carrying out from a place, exportation (of goods, &c.).

EVĒHO, xi, otum, 3. v. tr. 1) To carry out, to convey out, to take or move out: e. signa ex fanis; e. naves in altum. Hence, pass.: A) evehi equo, curru, to ride out (on horseback or in a carriage); e. navi, to sail out or forth; e. mari Aegeo, out of the Aegean Sea; e. ad regem, in hostes; e. insulam, towards the island; e. os amnis, from the mouth of the river: B) trop., fama evecta insulas, spread over the islands; evectus spe, carried away by; evehi longius, to digress from the subject; inconsultius evehi, to go too far. 2) To carry or convey up: e. aliquem ad aethera; trop., to raise, to exalt, to elevate: e. hominem ad deos; e. aliquos ad consulatum; opes evectae supra modum privatum, above the condition of a private person.

E-VELLO, velli (lat. vult). vulsum, 3. v. tr.

1) To tear out, to pull up, to pluck out, capillos, dentes, signa, linguam. 2) Trop., to tear up, to extirpate, to destroy, to take away, to remove: e. alicui opinionem, suspicionem, scrupulum ex animo; e. consules ex fastis, to erase the names of the consuls.

EVENINUS, a, um, adj. [Evenus]. Of or pertaining to the river Evenus: matres Calydonides.

E-VĒNIO, vēni, ventum, 4. v. intr. 1) (Very rar.) To come out, to come forth: res mersa e.; e. Capuam, to reach Capua. 2) Trop.: A) to come to pass, to occur, to happen; and, with a dat. = to befall or befall one, to happen to, to come to, to fall to any one as his lot or share (esp. of the anticipated result of a past event, as well fortunate as unfortunate — of. accidere and contingere): timebam ne evenirent ea quae acciderunt; quod saepius e.; pax e., is brought about, is concluded; evenit ut iter mihi esset; nihil mihi improprio e.; illi haec provincia e., fell to him; (rar.) idem in literas meas e., has befallen my letter; omnia prospera inde evenient, out of this will come every kind of prosperity. 3) To result, to turn out, to follow, to issue, to end (of things only — cf. evadere): haec bene ac feliciter (or secunda) ei eveniunt, turn out well and fortunately for him; thus, also, pugna adversa ei e., went against him; hoc male, ex sententia e.; quo (quorsum) ista blanda evenient? what will these fine words end in?

É-VENTILO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To winnow, to fan = to separate or cleanse by winnowing, āera, frumentum.

EVENTUM, i, n. [evenio]. 1) An event, occurrence. 2) (Usually in the plur.) An issue, result.

EVENTUS, ūs, m. [evenio]. 1) Fortune, fate, lot = an occurrence, event: quemvis e. ferre; e. patriae, rerum. 2) An issue, result, consequence: e. pugnae, diei, orationis; ea qui sequuntur; semper ad e. festinat, to the end.

EVĒNUS, i, m. [= Ἐννός]. 1) King of Ætolia, and father of Marpesa, who, being loved by both Apollo and the mortal Idas, preferred the latter. 2) A river of Ætolia, near Calydon, now the Fidiari.

É-VERBĒRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) 1) To strike out violently = to drive out, to set in motion: e. spiritum cursu; trop., e. animum alicujus, to excite. 2) To beat or strike violently: e. oculos alicujus, clipeum alii, mare ramis.

*É-VERGO, 3. v. tr. To turn out = to pour out, to send forth: mons e. rivos.

EVERRICŪLUM, i, n. [everro]. That with which one sweeps out or cleanses. 1) A draw-net, seine or large net for taking fish. 2) Trop., iudicium de dolo malo, e. malitiarum omnium, by which every base fraud is swept away: e. in provincia fuit (of Verres) = a plunderer.

É-VĒRRO, verri, versum, 3. v. tr. 1) To sweep out, sterere ex aede. 2) To cleanse by sweeping, stabulum. Hence, trop. = to plunder, fanum.

ÉVERSIO, ōnis, f. [everto]. 1) An overthrowing, columnae. 2) Trop. — a) a destruction, demolition, templorum — b) a ruining, subversio, reipublicae, omnis vitae — c) an ejection, expulsion from one's estate.

ÉVERSOR, ōris, [everto]. Trop. — a) a destroyer, demolisher, Carthaginis — b) e. civitas, a subverter.

É-VERTO (Vorto), ti, sum, 3. v. tr. 1) (Poet., ante-cl. & lat.) To turn around, to twist round, cervicis; e. aequora ventis, to upturn. 2) To overturn, to throw down, to upset, navem, statuum, currum. 3) Hence, trop.: A) to destroy, to demolish, urbem: B) to overthrow, to subvert, to nullify or make void, amicitiam, leges, definitionem: C) e. aliquem, to unde, to ruin any one; superior annus e. aratores, has ruined the cultivators. 3) To expel or drive away from a possession, to chase off or away: e. aliquem bonis, fortunis omnibus.

É-VESTIGĀTUS, a, um, adj. [prop. part.]. (Poet. & lat.) Traced or found out.

ÉVIAS, ādis, f. [Ἐβιάς; Evan, Evius]. (Poet.) A Bacchant.

*É-VIBRO, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To swing forward = to set in motion, animos.

ÉVIDENS, tis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [e-video]. Visible, obvious, evident, plain, clear, res, argumentum, prodigium; auctor e. (lat.), credible, trustworthy.

ÉVIDENTER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [evidens]. Visibly, obviously, evidently, clearly, plainly.

ÉVIDENTIA, ae, f. [evidens]. (Lat.) Visibleness, obviousness; esp. = perspicuity and clearness in discourse.

É-VIGĪLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. I. Intr. — 1) To wake up, to awake. 2) To wake, to be awake. 3) Trop. — a) to make constant and diligent effort: curae meae ee. in re aliqua — b) evigilatum nobis est, we have taken full care of ourselves = we have no longer any care. II. Tr. — 1) To watch through, to pass without sleeping: e. noctem. 2) To elaborate arduously and with incessant industry, libros; e. consilium, to discover by careful consideration.

É-VILESCO, lui, —, 3. v. intr. (Lat.) To become vile, despicable, insignificant, worthless, pericula.

É-VINCIO, nxi, notum, 4. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To bind or wind around: e. caput diademate; (poet.) evincta suras cothurno.

É-VINCO, vici, victum, 3. v. tr. 1) To overcome completely, to conquer, to vanquish, Aeduos; e. somnum, to subdue; miles e. omnia, surmounts all obstacles, every difficulty; (poet.) rogus evictus, from which the soul has torn itself away; Platanus e. ulmos, supplants. Hence: A) to overtop, to tower above, to surmount: aequora, arbor e. nemus: B) trop. = to persuade, to move, to soften; esp. in the pass., to be moved, to be excited, &c.: evinci lacrimis; e. precibus ad miserationem: C) to be stronger than something, to get the better of something: e. dolorem; misratio e. superbiam insitam. 2) To succeed in accomplishing, to carry through, to effect any thing in despite of opposition: evicerant ut Camillus crearetur, they succeeded in having Camillus elected. 3) (Poet.) To show, to prove, to evince.

EVIR(^o), Ēvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [e-vir]. To deprive of virility, to castrate.

EVISCERO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To deprive of entrails, to disembowel. 2) Hence, in gen. = to tear into pieces, to lacerate, columbam.

EVITABILIS, e, adj. [evito I.]. (Poet. & lat.) That may be avoided or escaped, avoidable.

EVITATIO, ōnis, f. [evito I.]. (Lat.) An avoiding, malorum.

EVITO (I.), Ēvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To avoid, to shun, metam rotis, dolorem, suspicionem.

EVITO (II.), Ēvi, —, 1. v. tr. [e-vita]. (Obs.) To take away life, to kill: e. vitam alicui, to put an end to the life of any one.

EVIVUS, ii, m. [= ēvivus]. A surname of Bacchus.

EVOCATIO, ōnis, f. [evoco]. 1) A calling out, calling forth: e. inferum, an evoking, conjuring. 2) In partic.: A) a summoning of a debtor: B) a summoning into military service in times of danger (cf. evoco).

EVOCATOR, ōris, m. [evoco]. One who calls to arms, an instigator.

EVOCO, Ēvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To call out, to call forth: e. aliquem foras, e curia. In partic. — a) e. nostros ad pugnam, to call out, to challenge — b) e. deos, to call forth the gods of a besieged city, to call upon them to forsake it. 2) To call forth = to call into one's presence, to summon to appear: e. principes cujusque civitatis ad se; e. reliquas legiones ex hibernis. In partic. = to summon, to order into military service: e. nobilissimum et fortissimum quemque ex omnibus civitatibus; e. multos spe praedae; hence, evocati = soldiers who, having served out their time, were called upon again, under very pressing circumstances, to serve as volunteers. 3) Trop., to call forth, to elicit, to excite: probitas praemiorum mercedibus evocata; misericordia nullius oratione evocata; e. alicui risum, lacrimas, to draw forth; e. iram alicujus, to provoke.

EVOE (dissyllable), interj. [= ēoi]. A shout of joy at the festival of Bacchus.

EVULO, Ēvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. 1) To fly out or forth: aquila e. ex quercu. Hence = to rush out or forth, to hasten forth: hostes ee. e silva; e. ex carcere, ex urbe: trop., e. ex alicujus severitate, to escape from the severity of any one; oratio sic e. ut, etc., rushed forth (of a very rapid speaker). 2) Trop., of a statesman, to rise, to advance rapidly to honour and power: is e. altius.

EVOLUTIO, ōnis, f. [evolve]. An unrolling, opening of a book; hence, a reading, poetarum.

EVOLVO, volvī, vōlūtum, 3. v. tr. 1) To roll out, to roll forth, to unroll, to unfold: flumen terram prorutam in mare evolvit; e. silvas (poet.), to roll off, to heave off; evolvere se, or pass., evolvi, to roll out or forth; flumen e. se in mare; evolvuntur per humum, they roll themselves. Hence: A) e. vestem, to unfold, to throw open; serpens evolvitur, loosens its folds: B) e. librum (poetas), to open for reading; hence = to read: C) (poet.) trop. (= to turn the spindle), to spin off or out (of the Fates): Parcae fusos meos ee.; hence = to fix, to determine, to decree: dii hoc ee. 3) Trop.: A) to unfold, to develop, to make clear, notionem animi: B) to disclose, to set forth, to narrate, to recount: e. causas belli, naturam rerum, seriem fati: C) e. aliquem ex praeda, sede, patria, to expel, to drive away; e. bonis, to rob; evolutus illis tegumentis, stripped, despoiled of: D) e. se ex his turbis, to extricate one's self, to get out.

EVOMO, ui, Itum, 3. v. tr. To spew out, to vomit forth; to cast out by vomiting: urbs e. pestem; trop., e. iram, virus ascerbitatis in aliquem, to pour out, to vent; e. pecuniam devoratum, to disgorge again; Aetna e. nocturnas flammās.

E-VULGO, Ēvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To bring out among the people, to make public, to divulge: e. rem; e. pudorem, to expose.

EVULSIO, ōnis, f. [evello]. A tearing or pulling out, extraction, dentium.

EX or E, prep. w. abl. — v. E.

EX-ACERBO, Ēvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To make bitter; trop. = to make angry, to exasperate, to irritate, to provoke: e. animos irā.

EXACTIO, ōnis, f. [exigo]. *1) A driving out, expulsion, regum. 2) A collecting of debts, an exacting or enforcing of payment, pecuniarum. 3) A tax, tribute, impost, publica; ee. capitum, a poll-tax.

EXACTOR, ōris, m. [exigo]. 1) One who drives away, an expeller, regum. 2) An exactor or demannder (of taxes), a tax-gatherer; hence, e. promissorum, one who admonishes to the fulfilment of promises. 3) An overseer, superintendent, administrator of a thing, disciplinae; e. supplicii, one who sees to the execution of a punishment, an executioner; e. sermonis, a critic; e. recte loquendi, one who strictly insists upon.

EXACTUS (I.), a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of exigo]. (Poet.) Accurate, precise, exact, fides, cura; (poet.) exactior artis, in the art.

EXACTUS (II.), ūs, m. [exigo]. (Quint.) A driving off, working off: e. mercis = a disposal, sale.

EX-ACUO, ui, Itum, 3. v. tr. To make very sharp, to whet, to make pointed (a strengthened Acuo, q. v.).

EX-ADVERSUM. } I. Prep. w. acc. Opposite,

EX-ADVERSUS. } over against, eum locum, classem e. Athenas constituere. II. Adv. Opposite: e. est fabrica; ea sita fuit e.; also, with a dat., e. ei loco.

EXAEDIFICATIO, ōnis, f. [exaedifico]. A building; trop., e. historiae, a finishing, completing.

EX-AEDIFICO, Ēvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To build, to construct, to finish building, domos, oppidum. Hence, trop., to complete, to finish, opus. *2) (Pl.) To turn out of doors, to eject: e. aliquem ex aedibus.

EXAEQUATIO, ōnis, f. [exaequo]. An equalizing or levelling, equalization.

EX-AEQUO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To make a thing alike or uniform in itself, to level, planificium; trop., e. vitam ad unam regulam, to regulate with uniformity. 2) To make one thing correspond with another, to equalize, to level, tumulos tumulis. 3) Trop., to make equal in rank, estimation, &c., to put upon an equality, to place on an equal footing, to regard as equal: e. aliquem (se) cum aliquo or alicui; e. libertatem, periculum, to make equal to all; e. facti dictis, to relate the events in suitable and worthy language. 4) To equal, to be equal to any person or thing, to come up to, aliquem.

EX-AESTUO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to boil up, to foam up, to swell, to rage, mare, Ætna. 2) To glow, to be very hot: Aegyptus e. calore solis; homo e., becomes overheated; trop., mens e. irā. 3) Tr. (ante-cl.), terra e. hos aestus, gives forth, exhales.

EXAGGERATIO, ōnis, f. [exaggero]. 1) A heaping or piling up; hence, trop., e. animi, elevation of soul, exaltation. 2) (Lat.) A magnifying of a subject in discourse, amplification, exaggeration.

EX-AGGERO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) (Rar.) To heap up, magnas opes; trop., e. mortem morti, to heap death upon death. 2) To raise by heaping together, to dam up, planificium; e. illud spatium maris, to fill up. 3) Trop.: A) to increase, to enlarge by heaping together; rem familiarem; e. aliquem honoribus (lat.), to overload: B) to heighten, to exalt, to magnify — where it is translated differently, according to the context — to glorify, to exaggerate: e. artem oratione; e. virtutem verbis; oratio alta et exaggerata; e. injuriam.

EXAGITATOR, ōris, m. [exagito]. A censurer, reprehender.

EX-AGITO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) (Poet.) To chase out or forth, to drive out, to expel, leporem. 2) Trop.: A) to disturb, to disquiet, to harass, to torment, to persecute, aliquem injuriis; e. rempublicam, to put in commotion: B) to attack violently in discourse, to censure severely, to criticize, to rail or jeer at, aliquem, fraudes alicujus: C) to excite, to stir up, to irritate, vulgum: D) to excite a passion or emotion, to arouse, moerorem, furores.

EXAGŪGE, es, f. [= ἔκχυσις]. (Pl.) An exportation, transportation of merchandise.

EX-ALBESCO, bui, —, 3. v. inch. intr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To become white; trop., to turn pale from fright.

EX-ALBIDUS, a, um, adj. (Lat.) Whitish, white.

EX-AMEN, inis, n. [for exagimen, from exigo]. 1) A swarm, a multitude pouring forth apum, juvenum; hence (mostly poet. & lat.), a mass or crowd of people, a troop, host, multitudo, sheal, in gen.: e. puerorum, servorum, piscium. 2) (Acc. to Exigo 3; poet.) That which serves for weighing or testing: A) the tongue of a balance: B) an examining, considering.

EXAMINO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. [examen]. 1) Intr. (ante-cl.), to swarm, apes. 2) Tr.: A) to weigh, aliquid ad certum pondus; e. rem non artificis staterā sed quadam populari trutinā; terra examinata paribus ponderibus, kept in equilibrium: B) trop., to ponder, to examine, to weigh, to consider: judex e. aliquid.

EX-AMPLEXOR, 1. v. dep. tr. To embrace.

EX-AMUSSIM, adv. [amussim, 'according to rule']. Exactly, accurately.

EX-ANIMÁLIS, e, adj. [anima]. (Pl.) 1) Dead. 2) Deadly, cura.

EXANIMATIO, ōnis, f. [exanimo]. A depriving of life, suffocating; trop., terror, fright.

EXANIMIS, e, adj. [anima]. Breathless = lifeless, dead, corpus; trop., half dead with fright, terrified, apprehensive: exanimis metu uxor; exanimis vice alicujus, about the fate of any one.

EXANIMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [exanimis]. 1) To deprive of breath; only in the pass., to become breathless, to get out of breath, to be exhausted: milites ee. cursu; currit exanimatus. 2) To kill, aliquem; freq. in the pass. = to die. 3) Trop.: A) to set one beside himself or out of his senses, to deprive of life or spirit, to frighten, to terrify, to confound: e. aliquem metu: metus e. illam miseram; freq. in the pass.: B) in the pass., to lose strength: vinum exanimatur; verba exanimata, spoken without life or spirit.

EXANIMUS, a, um, adj. [anima]. (Mostly poet. & lat., and in the pl.) = Exanimis.

EXANTLO (acc. to others, Exanco, kindred with ancilla), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [antlia]. (Ante-cl. & poet.) 1) To exhaust, to draw out: e. vinum, to drink up. 2) Trop., to tolerate, to endure, to bear, labores, multa aspera.

EX-ARDESCO, arsi, arsum, 3. v. intr. [inch, of ardeo]. 1) To begin to burn, to kindle, to take fire, materies; trop., solus pro patria e. = to be sacrificed. 2) Trop.: A) to be kindled, to be inflamed, &c.: e. irā, amore, to be violently excited by; e. ad spem, in seditionem; infestus e., to grow more furious; animi ee.: B) to begin with violence = to break out, to arise: e. proelium, seditio, ira; benevolentia e.: C) tempus illud e., was hot, fierce: D) pretia ee. (lat.), rise.

EX-ARĒFIO, v. intr. (Lat.) To become entirely dry.

EX-ARESCO, rui, —, 3. inch. intr. 1) To become thoroughly dry, to dry up, vestimenta, fontes, amnes lacrimae ee., dry up gradually. 2) Trop., to disappear, to pass away, to decay: vetus urbanitas, opinio e.

EX-ARMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) 1) To deprive of arms, to disarm, cohortes. 2) E. navem, to unrig, to dismantle. 3) Trop., to weaken, to enfeeble, to render harmless, aliquem, accusationem.

EX-ĀRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To plough out or up, to dig up, radices, sepulcra. Hence = to raise, to produce, to acquire by ploughing or tillage, tantum frumenti. 2) In general, to plough, to till, to cultivate, agrum. 3) To write on a wax tablet, to sketch in writing, to trace, to set or note down, to write, librum, binos codicillos.

*EXASCIĀTUS, a, um, adj. [ascia]. (Pl.) Prop., hewn out with an axe; trop., well-arranged, opus.

EX-ASPĒRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To make rough, to roughen, to make uneven, outem; e. mare fluctibus. 2) Trop.: A) to make wild and savage, only in the pass.; gens exasperata, made savage, intractable: B) to make worse: e. morbum; e. rem verbis: C) to irritate, to exasperate, aliquem, animos.

EX-AUCTŌRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To discharge from military service, to discharge, to dismiss; freq., of a dishonourable dismissal = to cashier.

EX-AUDIO, Ivi or ii, Itum, 4. v. tr. 1) To hear from afar or at a distance: milites clamorem ee.; maxime voce, ut omnes e. possint, dicam; aliquantum progressus hinnitum e.; illud exauditur, reaches (our) ears. 2) = Audio, in the signifi. 1, 2, 3 (v. Audio).

EX-AUGEO, 2. v. tr. (Com., rar.) To increase greatly, opinionem.

*EX-AUGŪRATIO, ōnis, f. A desecrating, profaning = a depriving a place of sanctity.

EX-AUGŪRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat., rar.) To desecrate = to annul the consecration of a place, and give it up, as no longer sacred, to common uses, fanum.

*EX-AUSPICO, āvi, —, 1. v. intr. (Pl.) To derive an augury from any thing, ex vinoulis.

*EXBALLISTO, 1. v. tr. [ballista, but on account of its being a pun on the name Ballio]. (Pl.) To drive out = to conquer (as it were, with the ballista).

EXBIBO — v. Ebibo.

EX-CAECO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To make blind, to blind, aliquem. 2) (Poet.) To fill or stop up a channel, conduit, &c.

EX-CALCEO (Ex-calceo), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) To unshoe, to relieve of shoes, pedem; ex-calceatus, without shoes; esp. of a tragedian = to put off the cothurnus; and excalceati (opp. to cothurnati) = the pantomimes or comic actors.

EX-CALFĀCIO, —, actum, 3. v. tr. (Lat.) To make warm, to heat.

*EXCALFACTIO, ōnis, f. [excalfacio]. (Lat.) A warming.

EXCALFACTŌRIUS, a, um, adj. [excalfacio]. (Lat.) Warming, heating.

EXCANDESCENTIA, ae, f. [excanDESCO]. Propensity to anger, irascibility, passionateness.

EX-CANDESCO, dui, —, 3. v. inch. intr. 1) (Ante-cl. & lat.) To take fire, to kindle, to glow, to grow red-hot, pilae vitreae, ignis. 2) Trop.: A) of a passion, &c., to be kindled, to burn, ira: B) of a person excited by anger, &c., to be incensed, inflamed: subito ille e. in fratrem.

EX-CANTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To charm forth from a place, to bring out by enchantment: e. puellas clausas; e. fruges, to allure by enchantment from another's field into one's own.

EX-CARNIFICO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To lacerate, to cut in pieces, to kill barbarously, aliquem. 2) Trop., to torment, to torture, to rack.

EX-CĀVATIO, ōnis, f. [excavo]. (Lat.) A hollowing out, excavation.

EX-CĀVO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. To hollow out, trullam.

EX-CEDO, cessi, cessum, 3. v. intr. & tr. I. Intr. — 1) To go out, to go away, to depart: e. ex isto loco, ex pugna, ex Italia; e. pugnā, loco, oppido, Galliā, Arimino; e. e tenebris in lucem; (lat.) e. ad deos, to be translated from among mortals to the gods = to be deified. 2) In partic.: A) e. e vita, e medio; also, e. vitā, and simply e. = to die: B) trop., to go beyond a certain limit or measure: e. ex ephebia, to pass beyond the period of youth; res e. ad patres, extends also to the patricians; res e. in magnum certamen, proceeded finally to, ended in; e. ad enarrandum, in fabellam, to digress from the proper theme; illa clades magnitudine excessit, surpassed (the former); cura, cupiditas e. e corde, leaves, disappears from; thus, likewise, res e. ex memoria = is forgotten; haec ee. in eum annum, extend into that year: C) e. possessione, to withdraw from. II. Tr. — (Not in the ancient writers.) To pass over or beyond: A) to forsake, to leave, to depart from, urbem, curiam: B) trop., to go beyond a certain boundary or limit, to surpass to exceed: statura ejus justum modum e.; e. summam trium millium; e. modum, fastigium equestre; e. aliquem eloquentiā, to excel; illa res fidem e., is incredible; libertas non ultra vocem e., went no further than the name; abs., Fabius e., went beyond (the first proposition).

EXCELLENS, tis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [pari. of excello]. 1) (Lat., rar.) Prop., projecting, elevated, locus. 2) Trop., superior, excellent, distinguished, extraordinary, homo, nat'us, studium, pulchritudo, triumphus.

EXCELLENTER, adv. w. comp. [excellens]. Excellently.

EXCELLENTIA, ae, f. [excellens]. Superiority, excellence; also in the pl.: e. animi, pictures; but, with an obj. gen., e. reliquarum bestiarum, superiority over.

EX-CELLO, lui, celsum, 3. v. intr. [from the unusual cello, 'to raise on high'; kindred with cella, 'to drive on']. Prop., to project upward; only trop. 1) (Ante-cl.) To rise up, to elevate itself: solet plerisque hominibus rebus secundis animus excellere atque superbia crescere. 2) To raise one's self above others, to distinguish one's self, to surpass, to excel (usually in a good sense): e. inter omnes, also super ceteros; e. alicui, any one; e. animi magnitudine, by greatness of spirit; e. ingenio, dignitate, to excel in genius, &c.; e. in illis jociis, in hac arte, in this art; rarely e. vitiis, etc.

EXCELSE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [excelsus]. 1) (Lat.) On high, aloft, scandere. 2) Florere e., in the highest degree. 3) Loftily, dicere.

EXCELSITAS, âtis, f. [excelsus]. 1) Loftiness, height, montium. 2) Elevation, exaltation, animi.

EXCELSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. 1) Projecting or extending high (above other things — cf. celsum and altus), mons, status; in excelsio esse, to be on a height, in a lofty position; in excelsum emicare, aloft, upward. 2) Trop., lofty, elevated, exalted (in disposition), animus, homo; distinguished (in rank, dignity, &c.), locus, fastigium; in excelsio (vitam agere, etc.), in a high station, in a position of honour; orator e., elevated in style.

EXCEPTIO, ônis, f. [exceptio]. 1) An exception, limitation, restriction: sunt in lege duae ee.; sine ulla e. 2) Tech. t., in law, an exception, i. e., the protest of a defendant against the statements of the plaintiff: dare alicui exceptionem, to allow any one to make a protest.

EXCEPTIUNCULA, ae, f. [exceptio]. A slight limitation or restriction.

EXCEPTO, âvi, âtum, 1. v. tr. [intens. of ex-cipio]. (Rar.) To take out, to take or catch up, mullos ex piscina; a sociis sublevatus murum ascendit, et eos rursus exceptans in murum extulit; (poet.) e. auras.

EX-CERNO, crêvi, crêtum, 3. v. tr. To pick or sift out, to separate, to set apart: e. Saguntinos ex numero captorum; e. turbam forensem.

EXCERPO, psi, ptum, 3. v. tr. [ex-carpo]. *1) (Poet.) To take out, semina pomis. 2) Trop., to pick out, to draw out, to select, to choose: e. ex malis si quid inest boni; e. nomina (from the rolls); in partic. = to make extracts from a writing, to extract: e. verba ex libro; nunquam legit quod non e.; e. id quod inter omnes convenit, to prefer. 3) To take away, to separate, to strike out, to leave out, to except: e. aliquid de illo numero; ego me illorum numero e. (lat.) e. se consuetudini hominum, to withdraw one's self from.

EXCERPTIO, ônis, f. [excerpo]. That which is extracted from a writing, an extract, excerpt.

EXCESSUS, ûs, m. [excedo]. 1) A departure; but only trop. = a departure from life, death: e. e vita; e. vitae, and (lat.) simply e. 2) Trop. (lat.), a deviation: A) in discourse, from the proper subject, a digression: *B) in life, from rectitude: e. a pudore.

EXCËTRA, ae, f. A snake, serpent; trop., an epithet for a wicked, malicious woman.

EXCIDIUM, ii, n., and (ante-cl.) Excidio, ônis, f. [for excidium, from excindere]. (Mostly lat.) A demolition, destruction, esp. of public buildings, &c.: e. urbis, castelli, gentis.

EXCIDO (I.), cidi, —, 3. v. intr. [ex-cado]. 1) To fall out or down, to fall from: animal e. ex utero; gladius e. de manibus illorum; (poet.) e. navi; e. equo, from a horse; dentee ee.; e. in flumen, to fall (out of the ship) into the river; so, also, sagitta e. in pedem, falls (out of the quiver) at one's feet; sors e., the lot comes out; so, also, nomen e. sorte. 2) Trop.: A) to drop out, to come out involuntarily, to slip out, to escape: vox e. ore; thus, likewise, scelus, nefas e. ore, (poet.), drops from one's lips; liber e. mihi, is published without my knowledge: B) to fall out in any manner, to end in something: libertas e. in vitium, sinks finally into vice; versus e. in breves syllabus, close, end in: C) to fall away from one, to disappear, to pass away, to be lost, to perish, to cease: res, luctus e.; memoria rei alicujus e.; in partic., e. de memoria, ex animo, ex animis hominum = to be forgotten; pacis mentio e. ex omnium animis, no one thought any more of peace; thus, likewise, illa res (cogitatio illius rei) mihi e., escaped my memory; imper., non excidit mihi, me hoc scripsisse, I have not forgotten; on the other hand (lat.), act., excidens = one who forgets: D) (poet. & lat.) — a) to be deprived of something, to lose or miss a thing: e. regno, uxore; e. formulâ (= cadere causa), to lose a suit — b) to fall in, magnis ausis.

EXCIDO (II.), cidi, cisum, 3. v. tr. [ex-caedo]. 1) To hew out, to cut out, to hew off: e. lapides e. terra, columnas rupibus; e. arbores, to fell; e. alicui linguam; e. virilitatem or se, to castrate. 2) (Lat.) To hew out = to make or prepare by hewing, viam inter montes, obeliscum. 3) Trop.: A) to extirpate, to banish: e. tempus illud ex animo; e. aliquem numero civium: B) to lay waste, to demolish, to destroy, domos, urbem, also agrum, exercitum.

EX-CIEO, —, itum, 2. v. tr. (Rar.) = Excio, q. v.

EXCIO, ivi, itum, 4. v. tr. 1) To call out or forth, to bring out or forth: illa res consulem ex urbe e.; e. aliquem Româ; præco e.

hominum; e suem latebris; e. animas sepulcris, to call forth from; e. aliquem foras, to call out of the house; e. hostem ad pugnandum, to draw out; so, esp. = to set in motion (soldiers, colonists, &c.), in order to engage them in war or emigration; e. sedibus exciri, to be roused from their habitations; e. Antiochum in Graeciam, to draw or bring A. into Greece; e. auxilia e Germania, to call in; e. alicui lacrimas, to elicit. 2) Trop.: A) to arouse any one from a peaceful state to passionate excitement, activity, &c., to rouse, to excite: juvenis largitionibus excita: ea caedes e. Bructeros; sonitus ignotus eum e.; in partic., e. aliquem somno or ex somno, to arouse out of sleep; Thyias commotus excita sacris, excited to frenzy; conscientia mentem excitam vastabat, harassed his distracted mind: B) to excite, to produce, to cause a particular condition, &c., tumultum, terrorem.

EXCIPIO, cēpi, ceptum, 3. v. tr. [ex-capio].

1) (Rar.) To take or draw out: e. telum ex vulnere, to draw out; e. pisces ex mari. 2) To take out as an exception, to except, to make an exception of: e. hos homines; e. neminem de antiquis; illis exceptis, those excepted. Hence = to make a condition, to establish as a condition: lex e. ut (ne) liceret. 3) To catch up, to take up: e. sanguinem paterā; e. hominem labentem; e. aliorum extremum spiritum; e. se in pedes, to leap to the ground; e. corpus clipeo, to support; so, also, corpus poplitibus exceptum, resting upon. Hence: A) to capture, to take captive, fugientes, servos in pabulatione; trop., e. laudem, voluntates hominum, to gain; to surprise, to attack (esp. by waylaying any one): Orestes e. incautum; thus, likewise, e. caprum insidiis: B) to receive (either a person, esp. as a guest, or a thing, whether good or bad — cf. accipio, nanciscor, etc.): e. aliquem, to harbor; e. aliquem epulis, to entertain; campus, patria eum e., receives him; e. telum, vulnera, to be struck with a spear, to be wounded; e. dolores, pericula, to endure, to submit to; e. iram hostium capite, to let the fury of the enemy expend itself upon his head; hence = to take a thing in a certain sense, to understand, to interpret: e. sententiam alicujus gravior atque ipse sensisset: C) — to resist, to sustain, to endure, to hold out against: quae (sublicae) omnem vim fluminis excoiperent; e. impetum hostium: D) (poet.) porticus e. Aetion, lies toward the North: E) = to catch up with the ear = to hear, to understand, to learn: e. illas voces; e. sermones eorum; e. legem parari, that the proposition for a law is preparing: F) = to succeed something (in time or order), to be closely connected with, to follow after: stomachus e. linguam; pestilens aestas e. tristem hiemem; abs., turbulentior inde annus e., follows: G) to continue, to keep up, to prolong: e. pugnam: H) to befall, to overtake: eventus (casus) aliquis me e.; bellum grave eum e.

EXCITĀTE, adv. w. comp. [excitatus]. Vehemently, vigorously, brightly.

EXCITĀTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of excito]. Animated, vehement, vigorous, loud, strong, clamor, sonus, odor.

EX-CITO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [intens. of exciseo].

1) To drive out or forth, to bring out, to rouse, to wake up, to call up: e. aliquem de spectaculis, to turn out; e. feras, to scare up, to beat up; vox illa me foras e. (Pl.), has brought me out of the house; e. aliquem a coena, to call away; trop., e. memoriam caram alicui, to recall; e. aliquem e somno, dormientem, to awaken suddenly; e. reum, testes, etc., to call up, to summon to appear; e. aliquem ab inferis, to bring from the dead; abs., e. aliquem, to cause to stand up; sol e. vapores, causes the vapors to rise. 2) To cause to move upward. In partic.: A) = to erect, to build up, to construct, to order to be reared up: e. turrim, aras, tumulum alicui; sarmenta excitantur cultura, ars produced, made to grow: B) e. ignem, incendium, to stir up, to arouse, to kindle: C) to cause, to produce, to awaken, to excite, auspicionem, iram, risus, amores, sanctas laudes: D) trop., excitata fortuna, established, not fluctuating, prosperity (opp. to inclinata): E) to raise up in spirit = to invigorate, to encourage, to cheer, senatum, jacentem amici animum. 3) Trop., to arouse to any kind of activity, to impel, to urge on, to excite, to stimulate: e. aliquem ad virtutem; e. illos ad audiendum; e. hominum studia ad nostras utilitates.

EXCLĀMATIO, ōnis, f. [exclamo]. A loud calling out, an exclamation; also, as a figure of rhetoric.

EX-CLĀMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) Abs., to call aloud, to cry out: e. vehementius; conciones ee., break out in a shout of applause. 2) To call out something, to exclaim, to say or cry with a loud voice: hic e., eum sibi esse sodalem; e. ut bono animo sint; e. aliquid = to propose aloud; e. aliquem, to call out aloud the name of any one.

EXCLŪDO, si, sum, 3. v. tr. [ex-claudio]. 1) To shut out, to exclude, not to admit to: e. aliquem ab aliquo, ab acie; trop. e. ab hereditate. Hence, trop.: A) to shut out = to keep off or at a distance from something, to remove, to separate: e. aliquem a republica; Gaditani Poenos moenibus excluserunt: B) = to prevent, to hinder, to cut off, &c.: e. aliquem a re frumentaria; excludi anni tempore a navigatione; also, excludi tempore; e. cupiditatem, jurgia, to prevent; e. actiones, to exclude: C) (lat.) to separate: Euphrates e. Armeniam a Cappadocia. 2) A) (Com.) to knock out: e. oculum alicui: B) to hatch out, pullus.

EXCLŪSIO, ōnis, f. [excludo]. (Rar., antec. & lat.) A shutting out, exclusion.

EXCŌGITATIO, ōnis, f. [excoigito] As inventing, contriving, devising.

EXCŌGĪTĀTUS, a, um, adj. w. sup. [part. of excogito]. (Lat.) Sought out, select, choice.

EX-CŌGĪTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To find out by thinking, to invent, to contrive, to devise: e. multa ad ornatum locorum.

EX-CŌLO, cōlui, cultum, 3. v. tr. 1) (Rar., poet. & lat.) To work at carefully, to cultivate, vineas: e. lanam, to spin fine. 2) Trop.: A) (lat.) to adorn, to embellish, urbem, funus armis: B) to improve, to perfect, to refine, to ennoble: e. animos doctrinā; e. vitam; excolti sumus ex agresti vita ad humanitatem: C) (poet.) to honour, to venerate, to worship, aliquem, deos: D) (lat.) to tend or foster carefully: E) (lat.) to furnish or fit out with something.

EX-CŌQUO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) To boil out, to melt out, to bring out by means of fire: e. vitium ex metallis. 2) To melt, ferrum. 3) To dry up: sol e. terram; e. arenas in vitrum; trop., ancillam excoctam reddam, dried up = quite lean. 4) Trop.: A) (Com.) e. malum alicui, to devise: B) e. mentem alicujus, to torment, to vex.

EXCORS, dis, adj. [ex-cor]. Without understanding, simple, dull, silly, stupid.

EXCREMENTUM, i, n. [excrerno]. (Lat.) That which passes from the body; freq. = the excrements: e. oris, spittle; e. narium, the secretion from the nose.

EX-CRESCO, ēvi, ētum, 3. v. incho. intr. 1) To grow out or forth, to grow up: arbor e.; caro excreverat in dextero ejus latere, a tumor had formed. Hence, trop., to grow or increase immoderately, to grow beyond bounds: e. luxus, proemii longitudo.

EX-CRĒTUS, a, um, adj. [excreseo]. (Rar., poet.) Grown-up, full-grown.

EXCRŪCIABILIS, e, adj. [excrucio]. (Pl.) Deserving of torture.

EX-CRŪCIO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To torture or torment severely, to rack, aliquem; trop. (Pl.) e. diem, to pass in anguish. 2) Trop. = to disquiet, to alarm, to harass, to plague, &c.: meae miseriae me ee.; tu illam excrucias animi, in spiri; id ego excrucior, I am vexed about this.

EXCŪBĀTIO, ōnis, f. [excubo]. (Lat.) A watching, keeping watch.

EXCŪBĪAE, ārum, f. pl. [excubo]. *1) (Pl.) A lying out of doors. 2) A watch = a watching, keeping watch (of soldiers, &c.): tristis ee.; agere ee. alicui, to keep watch for the protection of any one. 3) Persons on guard or watch, a watch, sentry, outpost: transire ee.; ee. vigiliū, custodum.

EXCŪBITOR, ōris, m. [excubo]. A person on guard, a watch, guard, sentinel: in the pl. = sentries, outposts.

EXCŪBITUS, ūs, m. [excubo]. (Lat.) A watching, keeping watch.

EX-CŪBO, bui, bitum, 1. v. intr. 1) (Rar., lat.) To lie or sleep out (of a house, city, &c.): armati ee. in agr. 2) To keep watch or guard, to be on guard, to watch: legiones ee. in armis (armed); e. per muros; naves ee. ad portum. 3) Hence, trop., to keep awake = to be watchful, to be on one's guard, to be vigilant: e. ad opus about one's work; pro aliquo e. et vigilare; sapiens e. animo, is upon his guard; cura e., is watchful and active.

EX-CŪDO, di, sum, 3. v. tr. 1) To strike or drive out: e. scintillam silice. 2) To hatch out, pullos. 3) (Poet.) To prepare by striking = to forge, to beat out, aera; hence, trop., to prepare or make any thing with art and skill, ceras; e. librum, etc., to compose, to write.

EXCULCĀTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of exculco]. (Lat.) Prop., trodden or beaten hard = common, vulgar, out of fashion, worn out, verba.

EXCULCO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [ex-calco]. (Rar.) 1) To tread or beat out; trop., furfures e. ex dominis meis. 2) To stamp firm or close, to ram down, terram.

EX-CŪRĀTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of curo]. (Pl.) Carefully attended to, taken good care of: victus e., very good, chosen with care.

EX-CURRO, cūcurri (rar. curri), cursum, 3. v. intr. & tr. I. Intr. — 1) To run out or forth, to hasten forward, to drive or ride out: aliquis e. foras, in publicum; e. in Pompeianum, to make an excursion to P.; fons e. ex cacumine montis, springs out, issues forth; (Pl.) e. in malam crucem, to go to perdition. 2) In partic.: A) in milit. language, to make an excursion or irruption, to sally out, omnibus portis, ex Africa, in agros Romanos: B) trop. — a) to run out or forward = to jut out, to project, to extend, to spread: peninsula e. ab intimo sinu; promontorium e. in altum—b) oratio e. longius, diffuses itself, wanders off; campus in quo virtus e. posita, to exercise or display itself; oratio e. cum sententia, keeps pace with the thoughts. II. Tr. — A) to run through, spatium: B) (lat.) in discourse, to pass over, to omit something.

EXCURSĀTIO, ōnis, f. [excurso]. (Lat.) A sally, excursion, an onset, attack.

EXCURSIO, ōnis, f. [excurro]. 1) A running out or forth: e. oratoris rara esse debet, an orator ought not too often to step forward from his position; ee. longissimae, flights; trop., e. fit ex narratione, a digression, wandering from the proper subject. 2) In partic., in military lang., an expedition, excursion, invasion, inroad; a sally, onset (whether the reference be to the 'terminus a quo,' or 'terminus ad quem'): nostri crebras ee. ex oppido faciebant; una e. equitatus; trop., e. orationis, the commencement.

EXCURSOR, ōris, m. [excurro]. In military lang., a scout, spy, skirmisher.

EXCURSUS, ūs, m. [excurro]. (Mostly poet.) = Excursio.

EXCUSABILIS, e, adj. w. comp. [excuso]. That may be excused, excusable, error.

EXCUSATE, adv. [excuso]. Without blame.

EXCUSATIO, ōnis, f. [excuso]. An excusing, excuse: accipere e. alicujus, to accept; haec tibi dant justam e.; with an obj. gen., e. intermissionis literarum, an excuse for the intermission of an epistolary correspondence; so, also, e. cur aliquid factum sit, an apology for the commission of some deed; e. quominus adesset, an apology for not being present; but, e. inopiae, valetudinis, aetatis, where the gen. gives the cause of an excuse.

EXCUSATUS, a, um, adj. with comp. and sup. [excuso]. Excused.

EXCUSO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [ex-causa]. 1) To excuse, to offer an excuse: e. alicquem; e. alicui or apud alicquem, to any one; e. se in (de) re aliqua alicui or apud alicquem, to excuse one's self to a person about any thing; volo me excusatum alicui; excusor morbi causa, I am excused on account of sickness; excusabo ei paucitatem literarum tuarum, I will make an excuse to him for the infrequency of your letters; Terentius e. Titium quod eum brachium fregisse diceret, made an excuse for Titius by saying, &c.; thus, likewise, Libo e. Bibulum quod is inimicitias cum C. habebat, that he had, &c. Hence (lat.), excusari rei alicui = to escape from a thing, to get off from it. 2) To give as an excuse, to plead in excuse, to excuse one's self with something: e. morbum, inopiam; (lat.) excusarunt, se ebrios id fecisse, that they had done it while they were drunk.

EXCUSOR, ōris, m. [excudo]. (Lat.) A smith, coppersmith.

EXCUSSE, adv. [excussus]. (Lat.) Only trop. = strongly, violently.

EXCUSSUS, a, um, adj. [part. of excutio]. Stretched out, extended, lacertus.

EXCUTIO, cusei, cussum, 3. v. tr. [ex-quatio].

1) *To shake out or off: e. multa illa in terram; e. ignem de crinibus, pulverem. Hence: A) to cast, to throw, to hurl out or off: e. ancoram e nave; e. jugum, to shake off; e. telum; e. poculum e navibus; e. gubernatorem e navi: B) (poet. & lat.) to knock or thrust out: e. alicui oculum; e. alicui lacrimas, risum, sudorem to extort, to force out, to draw out; e. feras cubilibus, to drive out; excuti somno (poet.), to be roused out of sleep; e. ignem, imbrem (of clouds, &c.), to pour out, to emit; e. hostem oppidis, to expel; excussus patriā, banished; e. se, to withdraw one's self, to depart: C) to shake out for the purpose of searching, pallium, alicquem (= vestem alicujus): D) e. lacertum, to stretch out; e. rudentem, to uncoil. 2) To throw down or off, to strike down: e. alicquem equo; excussus equo, thrown from a horse. 3) Trop.: A) to drive away, to tear away, to remove: e. omnes illas delicias; e. metum corde; e. alicui opinionem; e. alicui studia de manibus, to tear or wrest away; excus-* sus propriis negotiis (poet.), excluded or expelled from; (poet.) e. alicquem sceptris, to strip of royal power; navis excussa magistro (of which the helmsman has fallen overboard), deprived of: B) to examine, to investigate, to search (cf. 1, C), rem, locum.

EXDORSUO, 1. v. tr. [ex-dorsum]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Prop., to deprive of the back = to bone, to take out the backbone: e. piscem.

EX-EDO, ēdi, ēsum, 3. v. tr. 1) *To eat up, to devour, to consume entirely: e. frumentum; hence, in gen., to consume, to corrode: argentum vivum (quicksilver) e. vasa; situs e. monumenta; arbor exesa, a rotten tree; (poet.) e. urbem, rempublicam, to destroy; (Com.) e. alicquem, to squander the property of any one. 2) Trop., to consume = to corrode, to debilitate, to impair: e. aegritudo (cura) e. animum.*

EXEDRA, ae, f. [= ἔκδορα]. A hall, furnished with seats, in which philosophers and orators assembled for conversation; hence, in gen. = a hall for conversation, disputation, &c.

EXEDRIUM, ii, n. [= ἔκδοριον; dimin. of ex-edra]. A sitting-room, parlour.

EXEMPLAR (also, ante-cl., Exempläre), āris, n. [exemplum]. (That which is of such a quality that it may be selected to show what something else is.) 1) A pattern, model, exemplar, example: e. propositum ad imitandum; sine ullo certo e. formaque reipublicae dissero; e. vitae morumque respicere, to contemplate the example which their life and manners afford; ad e. primi libri, according to the pattern of the first book; referre aliquid ut e., as a pattern for imitation. 2) A transcript, copy: e. literarum tuarum; liber in exemplaria tractuctus, from which transcripts have been taken. Hence: A) a copy of a book or painting: B) an image, likeness: e. sui, of one's self; e. ingenii ejus, a work which bears the impress of his mind.

EXEMPLUM, i, n. [for exemptum, fr. eximo]. (That which is taken as a sample from a number of things of a like kind.) 1) An example, instance, sample: exempla sumere ex numero illorum; confirmas illud exemplo quod affers; e. crudelitatis, of cruelty; exemplo Titii, according to the example of T.; fecit illud pessimo exemplo, so that he set thereby a very bad example; exempli causa paucos nominavit, by way of example; quia, exempli causa, illud nomen in aliquot libris invenerant, etc., because, to give an instance, &c.; exempli causa eum nominavi, I have mentioned as an example; exempli gratia illud proposui. In partic: A) = an instructive or warning example, an example, warning: ee. haec pro documentis habenda sunt; clades eorum exemplo fuit; triste e. erimus; magna ee. casuum humanorum, taken from the course of human events; edere e., to furnish an example; omnia belli ee. eduntur (flunt) in eum, he experiences all the horrors of war; supplicium exempli parum memoris legum humanarum, a punishment which gave an example of the violation of the laws of humanity. Hence: B) sometimes (lat.) = a punishment: omne magnum e. habet aliquid ex iniquo; mereri novissima ee, the severest punishments: C) = procedure, custom, manner, practice: more et exemplo populi Romani; uno omnes e. vivunt; quaestionem habuit eodem e. quo, etc.: D) of a writing, &c., the contents, purport, tenor, formula: literae allatae sunt hoc e.; testamentum duplex sed eodem e. 2) = Exemplar, a pattern, model, exemplar, an example for imitation: e. innocentiae; proponere e. ad imitandum; capere (petere) ex aliquo exemplum probitatis, etc., to regard any one as a pattern. 3) An image, likeness, portrait; a transcript, copy: e. alicujus; pingere e.

EXENTERO, ἀνι, ātum, 1. v. tr. [ἐκτερεῖν]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) To disembowel, to draw or take out the entrails, leprorem. 2) Trop.: A) to empty, marsupium alicujus: B) to torture, to torment, aliquem.

EX-EO, ii (rar. Ivi), Itum, 4. v. intr. & tr. I. Intr. — 1) To go out, to go away, to depart: e. ex urbe, e. patria, de cubiculo; e. ab aliquo, from the house of any one; e. de navi, to go ashore; e. in solitudinem, in provinciam, to depart (from Rome) into a solitude, into the province; e. in terram, to land; e. ad aliquem, to go from home to visit a person; mea sors e., comes out; Nilus e., flows out; folia ee. in angulos, terminate in; vox e. in illam litteram, comes out upon that letter. In partio.: A) of troops, to set out for the battlefield, to march out, to advance: e. ad pugnam; exeant paludati: B) e. de (ex) vita, to die: C) e. e. ludo alicujus, to go or issue forth: D) of plants, semina ee., come forth, spring up from the earth; folia ee. a radice, sprout forth: E) nihil tale e. ex ore ejus, issues out of his mouth: F) trop., e. ex aere alieno, to get free from debt: G) liber ita e., turns out thus, is after its completion a thing of this kind; so, also, urceus e., comes out: H) (poet. & lat.) e. ad auras, in coelum, to rise, to ascend. 2) Trop.: A) opinio e., spread, is diffused; oratio mea e. (e. in vulgus), is spread among the people: B) e. ex (de) potestate, not to possess self-command, to lose self-control: C) (lat.) res e. ex (a) memoria, escapes from the memory, is forgotten: D) of time, to pass away, to expire, to end: dies induciarum exit, has passed by; exeunte anno, at the close of the year: E) (lat.) to extend, to stretch out: vita vestra e. supra mille annos; e. in laudes Caesaris, to digress.

II. Tr. — (Poet. & lat.) 1) To exceed, to go or pass beyond, limen, valles illas; trop., e. modum. 2) To escape, to avoid, to ward off, odorem, tela.

EXERCEO, cui, citum, 2. v. tr. [ex-arceo? ἔχω?]. 1) (Mostly poet. & lat.) To keep in constant motion, to employ incessantly, to keep at work: e. tauros, servos; e. equos in campo, to exercise; apes exercentur, bustle about; corpora exerceita motu, driven, impelled; pugnos in te exercebo. Hence: A) = to work, to turn up, terram; e. vineas, to cultivate; e. undas, to stir up: B) trop. — a) to disturb, to disquiet, to plague, to vex, to torment, aliquem; ambitio e. animos hominum; exerceeri poenis = to be punished; exerceeri de re aliqua, to be alarmed about something; casus in quibus me fortuna exercuit — b) (poet.) e. aliquem odio, to persecute. 2)

To exercise or employ constantly in some action: e. aliquem (animi vim, ingenium, aetatem illam) re aliqua or in re aliqua; e. aliquem ad rem aliquam, for a certain purpose (in order to attain, to accomplish, or to endure something). Hence, e. se, or in the pass. exerceeri, and (but only in the part. pres. and in the gerund) abs. exercere, to exercise one's self; e. genere pugnae, saliendo, in venando; gymnasia adamamus exercendi consuetudine; ludicra exercendi, gymnastic exercises. 3) To practise, to exercise, to follow as a profession or occupation: e. artem, jus civile, iudicium; e. quaestionem, to make an investigation (as a judge); e. vectigalia, to farm and administer the revenues of the state; e. avaritiam in aliquem, crudelitatem in aliquo, to practice, to exercise; likewise, e. gratiam in illa re, to be influenced by; e. inimicitias cum aliquo, to be at enmity with any one; e. victoriam foede in captis, to make a disgraceful use of; (poet.) e. arma, to practise martial exercises; e. ferrum, to work at or in; e. cantus, to sing; e. balatum, to bleat; e. amores, to cherish love; e. choros, to lead; e. nomen patrium, to bear; e. vitam, to spend, to pass; e. pacem, to keep; e. hymenaeos, to celebrate.

EXERCITATIO, ōnis, f. [exercito]. 1) Exercise, practice, dicendi, in speaking; e. superiorum pugnarum, the experience gained in former battles. 2) A practising, exercising, virtutum.

EXERCITATE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [exercitatus]. (Lat.) With practice, in a practised manner.

EXERCITATOR, ōris, m. (Lat.) An exerciser, a teacher, trainer in any thing.

*EXERCITATRIX, icis, f. [exercito]. She that exercises the body = gymnastics.

EXERCITATUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of exercito]. 1) Well-trained, exercised, practised, versed: e. in re aliqua. 2) Disquieted, troubled, vexed.

EXERCITIO, ōnis, f. [exercito]. (Lat.) — Exercitatio.

EXERCITIUM, ii, n. [exerceo]. (Lat.) Exercise, practice.

EXERCITO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [intens. of exerceo]. (Rar., except in the part. exercitatus.) To exercise, to train, diligently and frequently: e. aliquem cursu.

EXERCITOR, ōris, m. [exerceo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) An exerciser, trainer; a teacher, master.

EXERCITUS (I.), ūs, m. [exerceo]. *1) (Pl.) An exercising, exercise, practice. 2) An exercised or disciplined body of men, soldiers, troops, an army, in gen. (cf. acies, agmen): parare, conscribere, etc., e.; sometimes, in partic. = a land force, in opp. to a naval force or fleet; or = foot-soldiers, in opp. to cavalry (e. equitatusque). Hence (poet.) = a multitude, host, swarm, crowd, in gen.

EXERCITUS (II.), a, um, adj. [part. of exerceo]. Vexatious, troublesome, hard (v. Exercito 1, B).

EXESOR, ōris, m. [exedo]. (Lucr.) A consumer, waster: aestus e. murorum, the underminer.

EXHĀLATIO, ōnis, f. [exhalo]. An evaporating, exhalation, vapor, terrae.

EX-HĀLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. 1) Tr., to breathe out, to exhale, to evaporate, nebulam. Hence, e. crapulam, vinum, to exhale the fumes of, to get sober; (poet.) Aetna e. flammam, vomits forth; e. animum (vitam), to give up the ghost. 2) Intr., to reek, vapors.

EX-HAURIO, hausi, haustum, 4. v. tr. 1) To draw out, to drain out, to empty out; hence, to drink up, aquam, sentinam, vinum. 2) Of things not liquid, to draw out or up, to throw up, to dig up: e. humum manibus, terram; and, in gen., to take out or away, to carry away, to remove: e. omnem pecuniam ex aerario; e. praedam ex fortunis publicanorum, to plunder; thus, likewise, e. opes urbium; e. sibi spiritum, vitam, to take away one's own life; e. alicui amorem, dolorem, to withdraw, to remove; aes alienum exhauritur, the debt is cleared off. 3) To empty by drawing or drinking, to drain, to make empty: e. sentinam navis (the hold of a ship); poculum. Hence: A) in gen., to drain, to empty, to exhaust, aerarium; e. agros, tecta, to pillage completely; trop., e. homines sumptu; e. plebem impensis; e. vires, facultates; e. amicorum benignitatem: B) to bring to an end, to complete; to endure, to undergo: e. labores, periculum, bella: poenarum satis est exhaustam (poet.), punishment enough has now been executed. Hence, e. noctem, to pass; e. mandata, to accomplish, to fulfil.

EXHEREDATIO, ōnis, f. [exheredo]. (Lat.) A disinheriting.

EX-HEREDO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To disinherit, aliquem.

EX-HERES, ēdis, adj. Disinherited: filius est e. bonorum paternorum; subst., a disinherited person; (Pl.) facere aliquem exheredem vitae suae, to deprive any one of life.

EXHIBEEO, ui, itum, 2. v. tr. [ex-habeo]. (Prop., to hold out or forth.) 1) To hold forth, to give or deliver up, to produce, to restore: e. aliquem, to make appear, e. g., in court; e. tabulas; e. omnia integra, quadringentos senatores ad ferrum; (poet.) e. sonos, to emit, to utter. 2) Trop.: A) to exhibit, to show, to display, to make appear: quorum virtus e. solidum decus; e. linguam parentis, he used the same language as his father; e. faciem patris, the face was like the father's; e. humanitatem, liberalitatem, to exhibit, to exercise: B) (= the more freq. praebeo) with an adj., &c., in appos.: e. se supplicem, to present one's self as a supplicant for protection; e. se nudum; e. se adorandum omnibus. Hence, e. virum fortem, to show one's self a brave man; thus, likewise, e. ducem Graeciae, to appear as the leader of Greece; (poet.) e. Pallada, to reveal herself as Pallas: C) to cause, to occasion, to make: e. alicui curam, negotia; (poet.) e. vias tutas, to make the roads safe; rem salvam e.: D) (lat.) e. Scythas alimentis, to maintain, to support.

EXHIBITIO, ōnis, f. [exhibeo]. (Gell.) A delivering up, handing over.

EXHILĀRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Rar.) To cheer, to gladden, to make merry or joyous, aliquem, servitutem suam.

EX-HORRESCO, rui, —, 3. intr. & tr. [inch. of exhorreo]. 1) Intr., to start up with shuddering, to shudder or tremble greatly; hence, to be terrified, to be frightened: e. metu; e. in re aliqua, about any thing. 2) (Poet.) Tr., to shudder or tremble at something, to dread: e. vultus amicos.

EXHORTATIO, ōnis, f. [exhortor]. An encouragement, exhortation; (lat.) e. studiorum, to study.

EXHORTATIVUS, a, um, adj. [exhortor]. (Lat.) Encouraging, hortatory.

EXHORTOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. To exhort, to encourage, to animate, to excite: e. trepidos cives in hostem, against the enemy; e. aliquem in arma, to take up arms; e. aliquem in illam spem, ad ultionem; (lat.) e. te illud facias or ut illud facias; trop., e. virtutes, to excite = to exhort men to the practice of virtue.

EXIGO, ēgi, actum, 3. v. tr. 1) *To drive out or forth, to drive away, to thrust out, to chase away: e. cervam e. montibus; e. aliquem domo, campo; e. reges, to expel the royal family; (lat.) e. aliquem vitam = to kill. Hence: A) (poet.) in gen., to drive, to plunge, to thrust, &c.: e. gladium in aliquem, to plunge a sword into the body of any one; e. tela in aliquem, to hurl: B) Hebrus e. aquas, pours into the sea: C) e. uxorem, to repudiate, to divorce; also, e. virum a se. 2) *Trop.: A) e. fabulam, etc., to hiss at, to reject: B) to demand, to claim, to call for (as being right and just — cf. posco, flagito), iurjurandum, mercedem, equitatum a civitatibus; e. viam, the laying out of a road. In partic. = to collect, to exact, to demand, to require: e. pecuniam;

e. poemam ab (de, ex) aliquo, to punish any one; (ante-cl.) mille drachmae quas exigor, about which I am reminded: C) (to export and) sell merchandise, fructus: D) (poet. & lat.) e. aliquid ab aliquo, to ask one about something. 3) To prove, to try, to examine, to measure by something as a standard, to estimate: e. columnas ad perpendicularum; e. aliquid ad nostras leges; nonnisi aure exiguntur quae sunt per sonos; in partic., e. opus publicum (of censors, &c., who examined whether the public buildings had been suitably completed, or kept in good repair); e. sarta tecta. 4) (Poet. & lat.) To execute, to accomplish, to complete, to finish, to bring to an end: e. monumentum, versus; (poet.) dies exegit mediam horam, it was past the hour of noon; Phoebus spatiosius e. aestivos ignes, lengthens out the hot summer days. Hence: A) of time, to pass, to spend, to live through, aetatem, vitam; ex-acta aetate, in old age: B) to ascertain, to determine: nondum satis exactum est, certain: C) to endure, to bear, aerumnas: B) (lat.), to order, to arrange, to measure off: e. rem ad aliquid, according to something. 5) To negotiate, to treat, deliberate, to consult about something: e. rem and de re. Hence = to weigh, to ponder, to consider, aliquid. [Fr. ex-ago.]

EXIGUE, or (lat.) Exiguum, adv. [exiguus]. Scantly, scarcely, sparingly: e. sumptum praebere; exigue frumentum dierum decem habuit, scarcely; e. et exilliter ad calculos revocare, minutely, closely; e. dicere, scribere, briefly, slightly.

EXIGUITAS, ātis, f. [exiguus]. Scantiness, scarcity, littleness, smallness (in measure or number), paucity: e. castrorum, pelliū, copiarum; e. temporis, shortness; e. fasci, want.

EXIGUUS, a, um, adj. w. (poet.) sup. [exigo]. Scanty, scarce, small, little, slight, trifling, mean, poor, limited in number, size, &c.: e. spatium, mus; ee. castra, fines; e. tempus, pars anni, short; homo corporis exigui, of small size; e. toga, narrow, scant; exiguum campi, a small part of the plain.

EXILIS, e, adj. w. comp. [for exigilis, fr. exigo]. 1) Thin, dry, meagre, lank, slender: membra ee.; e. femur, corpus; solum e., poor, unfruitful; do-nus e., wretched, cheerless: (poet.) via e., short; trop., e. oratio, genus dicendi, dry, jejune; sidus e. (lat.), giving a feeble light. 2) (Pl.) E. omni-um aegritudinum, void of = free from.

EXILITAS, ātis, f. [exilis]. Thinness; hence, scarceness, scantiness, poorness.

EXILITER, adv. w. comp. [exilis]. Meagrely, feebly.

EXIMIE, adv. [eximius]. Excellently, extraordinarily, remarkably.

EXIMIUS, a, um, adj. [eximo]. 1) Excepted = that which is taken out, as an exception, from the rest of a mass: tu mihi unus e. es; neminem e. habeo. 2) Chosen, select, excellent, extraordinary, uncommon, superior: bos e.; homo e. et praestans; singularis et e.; e. ingenium, gloria, pulchritudo; also (poet.), with infin., e. animam servare sub undis, exceedingly skilful, expert.

EXIMO, ēmi, emptum, 3. v. tr. [ex-emo]. 1) To take out, to take away: e. medullam e. caule; e. telum; e. diem ex mense; e. aliquem de (ex) reis, out of the list of the accused; (poet.) e. aliquem numero beatorum, to exclude from the number of the blessed; trop., e. rem miraculo, to set the thing free from wonder. 2) Trop.: A) to take away, to remove: e. alicui curas; e. id quod te angebat: B) to set free, to release: e. urbem (ex) obsidione; e. aliquem ex vinculis; e. agrum de vectigalibus; e. aliquem crimine, to acquit; (lat.) e. aliquem supplicio, to set free from punishment; e. aliquem morti, to deliver from death: C) e. tempus, to consume, to waste, to spend: e. diem dicendo, to speak on until the time fixed for passing a resolution has elapsed; ea res diem exemit, occupied the whole day.

EXIN — v. Exinde.

EX-İNÂNIO, İvi or İi, İtum, 4. v. tr. To empty out, to make empty: e. navem, castra; e. civitatem, agros, to plunder, to pillage thoroughly; thus, likewise, e. amatorem.

EX-INDE, and abbreviated Exin, adv. 1) (Rar., ante-cl. & lat.) Of place — from there, thence, from there thither. 2) Of a (local) succession — after that, next: auxiliares in fronte, post quos sagittarii, dein quatuor legiones, e. totidem aliae legiones. 3) In an enumeration or a series of events — then, thereupon, after that, next, furthermore: corruptionem militum, e. adulterium Poppaeae, postremum molitiam corporis objectavit. 4) Of time: A) hereupon, then: B) (lat.) after that time, since then: hunc morem e. gens universa tenet. 5) (Ante-cl.) To indicate the rule in accordance with which any thing is done — according to, accordingly as, in proportion as: ut fama est homini, exin solet pecuniam invenire; exinde ut pabuli facultas est, in proportion to the provender one has.

EXISTIMATIO, ōnis, f. [existimo]. 1) A judgment, opinion of any thing: ee. et judicia hominum; vir optimus omnium existimatione. 2) In partic., the good opinion which people have of one, good name, reputation, honour, character: violavi e. tuam; so, also, oppugnare, laedere, offendere existimationem alicujus; facere ali-quid contra e. alicujus. Hence = credit: e. debitorum.

EXISTIMATOR, ōris, m. [existimo]. A judge, connoisseur, one who gives his opinion or judgment.

EXISTIMO (Existumo), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [ex-sestimo]. 1) (Mostly ante-cl. & lat.) To value, to appraise: e. aliquid flocci, magni. 2) To think, to be of opinion, to consider, to suppose, to deem (after previously examining and estimating a thing — cf. aestimo): ut Cicero e.; ut vulgo existimatur; existimo eum avarum; Titus honestus existimatur; e. hos oratores fuisse maximos; haec disciplina in Britannia repta esse existimatur; hoc in probro existimatur, is considered a disgrace. 3) = To decide, to judge: e. ex eventu de consilio alicujus; existimabitis qualis illa deditio facta sit; nunc vos existimate, utrum crudelior an avarior sit; also, de illis scriptoribus e. non possumus. Hence (lat.), existimari jubet a medicis, he commands the physicians to give their opinion.

EXITIABILIS, } e, adj. [exitium]. Tending EXITIALIS, } to destruction, destructive, ruinous, fatal, deadly, bellum, discordiae.

*EXITIO, ōnis, f. [exeo]. (Pl.) A going out.

EXITIOSUS, a, um, adj. [exitium] = Exitiabilis.

EXITIUM, ii, n. [exeo]. 1) A downfall, overthrow, destruction, ruin: e. urbis, orbis terrarum; ego tibi exitio fui; also, in the pl., omnia ee., all modes of destruction; extremi exitiorum exitus, the last and final misfortunes. 2) (Rar.) E. vitae, the end of life, death (= exitus).

EXITUS, ūs, m. [exeo]. 1) A going forth, departure: exitum sibi parare; asservare singulorum exitus, to observe the departure of each one. 2) An outlet, a passage out = the place (or way) through which one goes out; angustus portarum e., the narrow passage through the gates; e. paludis, the way out of the marsh. 3) Trop.: A) a close, conclusion, end, termination: e. orationis, anni, oppugnationis; ad e. perducere aliquid; e. vitae, the end of life; consulatus meus est in exitu, is at its end, is just expiring; in partic. = the end of life, death: e. humanus; boni bonos ee. habent: B) an issue, consequence, result, destiny: eventus et e. rerum; haec meliores habebunt ee.

EX-LEX, ægis, adj. Lawless, without law, not subject to law: tu unus es e.

*EX-OBSECRO, 1. v. intr. (Pl.) To entreat earnestly.

EXOCULO, ævi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [ex-oculus]. (Ante-cl.) To deprive of the eyes, to knock out the eyes: e. caput alicui.

EXODIUM, ii, n. [ἐξόδος]. (Prop., a conclusion, close, end.) An afterpiece, of a comic and humorous character, performed after a tragedy.

EX-OLESCO, ævi, ātum, 3. v. inch. intr. 1) (Lat.) To grow out, i. e., to grow up, to grow to full size. 2) Trop., to cease growing; hence, to pass away, to disappear, to fall into disuse, to get out of fashion, to grow old or obsolete: vetustissima disciplina e.: favor patriæ, is dolor, rumor e.; amictus Graeci ee.

EXOLETUS, a, um, adj. [exolesco]. 1) (Grown up into licentiousness.) Lewd, unchaste: e. scortum; esp. = a male prostitute. 2) Obsolete, old, gone out of use or fashion, disused, forgotten: e. mos, voces; odium exoletum vetustate.

EX-ONERO, ævi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To free from a load or burden, to disburden, to unload: e. navem, ventrem; trop., e. civitatem metu, to deliver from fear; e. conscientiam, to lighten, to ease; e. animum sollicitudine. 2) (Prop., to unload.) To remove any thing burdensome, to carry away, to get away, to send off: e. eum ex hoc agro; e. multitudinem in proximas terras, to get rid of by leading away; trop., e. aliquid in aures alicujus, to confide, to entrust; pars laborum exoneratur, is removed.

*EXOPTABILIS, e, adj. [exopto]. (Ante-cl. & poet.) Worth wishing for, desirable.

EXOPTATUS, a, um, adj. with comp. & sup. [part. of exopto]. Wished for, desired, dear, beloved.

EX-OPTO, ævi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) (Ante-cl., rar.) To select, to choose: exopta id quod maxime vis tibi evenire. 2) To wish for or desire greatly, to long for: e. rem aliquam; e. pestem alicui; e. videre aliquem; e. se laudari; e. ut hoc tibi sit laud.

EXORABILIS, e, adj. [exoro]. Easily entreated, exorable, placable, homo, ira.

EXORABŪLA, ōrum, n. pl. [exoro]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Means or modes of entreating: quot (amans) exoretur exorabilis.

*EXORATOR, ōris, m. [exoro]. (Com.) A suppliant, one who obtains any thing by entreaty.

EX-ORDIOR, orsus, 4. v. dep. tr. 1) Of weavers, to begin a web, to lay the warp: pertexere quod exorsus sis. 2) Hence, to begin, to commence, esp. a speech: e. facinus, bellum, tragœdiam, causam; e. dicere; e. ab adversarii dicto; e. parricidia ab illo; ita e.

EXORDIUM, ii, n. [exordior]. 1) The beginning or warp of a web. 2) A commencement, beginning, in gen.: e. hujus mali; ducere (capere) e. rei alicujus a re aliqua, to commence a thing with; also (poet. & lat.), in the pl. In partic., the beginning of a speech or writing, an introduction: e. est principium orationis; exordio nugatorio uti.

EX-ORIOR, ortus, 3. & 4. v. dep. intr. 1) To come forth, to appear, to rise up: sol, stella e., rires; hence (poet.), exorients (sc. sol), sunrise. servus e. qui, etc., a slave came forward as the accuser. Hence, trop. — a) ex altera parte e. Antipatri ratio, proceeds on the other side; thus, likewise, lex Julia e. — b) ego nunc paulum e., I am recovering, I am acquiring renewed spirits. 2) To arise, to spring up, to appear, to begin, to originate, to become: tot bella ee.; nulla mora e.; aliqua offensio e.; honestum quod ex virtute e., which originates in virtue; a M. haec omnia sunt exorta, all this proceeds from M.; repente rex e., suddenly became a king; so, also, is ... nobis Sulla e., appears before us as a second S.

EXORNATIO, ōnis, f. [exorno]. An adorning, decorating, embellishing; esp., trop., of the embellishment of a discourse; also, as a rhetorical figure.

EXORNATOR, ōris, m. [exorno]. An adorning, embellisher, rerum.

EX-ORNO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To furnish or supply richly with everything necessary, to fit out, to equip completely: e. classem; e. vicinitatem armis. Hence = to set in order, to arrange, to prepare: e. nuptias (Pl.); abs., satis providenter pro rei natura e., to adopt measures. 2) To adorn, to decorate, to embellish, to dress, to attire: e. domum; e. aliquem veste regia; trop., e. Graeciam praestantissimis artibus, illustrare et e. orationem. Hence, trop. = to praise, to glorify, philosophiam. 3) (Ante-cl.) To set up, to employ, to suborn (with a bad design): e. hominem qui illud faciat.

EX-ORO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To entreat, to supplicate any one = to move by entreaty, to prevail upon, to persuade: e. aliquem; neque eum e., ut pejeret; sine te exorari, suffer yourself to be prevailed upon; (poet.) carmina ee. deos, conciliate, appease; e. filiae patrem (Suet.), to reconcile; e. populum, to entreat the favour of the people; (lat.) e. aliquem a re aliqua, to prevent one by entreaty from doing something. 2) (Ante-cl. & lat.) To entreat for any thing = to gain by entreaty, to obtain for one's self: e. aliquid; e. rem ab aliquo; e. eos aliquid.

EXORSUS, ūs, m. [exordior] = Exordium.

EXORTUS, ūs, m. [Exorior]. A rising, solis.

EX-OS, ossis, adj. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Boneless.

EX-OSCULOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. (Lat.) To kiss very much or fondly; trop. = to esteem very much, to admire.

EXOSSO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [ex-os]. (Poet.) To deprive of bones, to bone, piscem; trop., pectus exossatum, pliant, flexible.

EXOSTRA, ae, f. [ἔκστρος]. A machine in a theatre for turning the back part of the stage toward the spectators; trop. in e. = before the eyes of all, publicly.

EX-OSUS, a, um, part. [odi]. (Poet. & lat.)

1) Hating, detesting, Trojanos. 2) (Gellius) Hated, detested.

EXOTERICUS, a, um, adj. [= ἑξωτερικός]. (Lat.) Belonging to the exterior, external, exoteric: libri ee., which contained the popular or exoteric doctrines of a philosophical sect.

EXOTICUS, a, um, adj. [= ἑξωτικός]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Foreign, vinum, unguenta; Graecia e., Graecia Magna; subet., Exoticum, i, n., a foreign dress.

EX-PALLESCO, lui, —, 3. v. incl. intr. (Poet. & lat.) To turn or grow pale; trop., e. um, to be frightened at any thing.

EXPALLIATUS, a, um, adj. [ex-pallium]. (Pl.) Robbed of his cloak.

EX-PALLIDUS, a, um, adj. (Bar. & lat.) Very pale.

EX-PALPO, āre, } 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl.) To EX-PALPOR, dep. } obtain by flattery = to draw away or get by coaxing or caressing: e. aliquid ab aliquo.

EX-PANDO, pandi, passum or pansum, 3. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To spread out, to stretch out, to expand: e. vestes supra fontem; e. alas; e. fores, to open wide; Nilus expanditur, widens. Hence, trop. = to unfold, to describe, to explain: e. rerum naturam dietis.

EXPAPILLATUS, a, um, adj. [ex-papilla]. (Pl.) Bared to the breast, brachium.

EX-PATRO, āvi, —, 1. v. tr. (Poet.) To lavish in sensual pleasures, to squander in voluptuousness.

EX-PĀVEFĀCIO, fēci, factum, 3. v. tr. (Lat., rar.) To terrify, to frighten, to make afraid, aliquem.

EX-PĀVESCO, pāvi, —, 3. v. incl. intr. (Mostly poet. & lat.) To become greatly afraid, to be very much terrified, to be struck with affright: e. ad rem aliquam; also, e. ense, at the sword; e. insidias.

EX-PĀVIDUS, a, um, adj. (Gell.) Very much terrified.

EXPECTATIO, EXPECTO, v. Expectatio, etc.

EXPECTORO, 1. v. tr. [ex-pecto]. (Ante-cl.) To drive from the breast, to expel: pavor mihi omnem sapientiam e. ex animo.

EXPĒCULIATUS, a, um, adj. [ex-peculium]. (Pl.) Stripped of property or fortune.

EXPĒDIO, Ivi or ii, Itum, 4. v. tr. [ex-pes].

(Trop., to extricate or loosen the feet from a snare.) 1) To disentangle, to disengage, to unloose, to release, to unbind, to extricate: e. nodum; e. se ex laqueis. Hence = to deliver from a danger or difficulty, to rescue, to liberate, to aid in getting through, &c.: e. aliquem ab omni occupatione; e. se ex turba; e. se ex crimine; (poet.) e. aliquem per acuta belli; expeditor per hostes, I clear my way through. Hence, e. iter fugae, aditum, to prepare, to procure for one's self. 2) To bring forward, to set out, to make ready, to prepare, to provide: e. virgas, secures; e. tela equosque, naves; e. pecuniam, to procure, to provide; e. arma, to keep at hand, to keep in readiness; e. merces; e. se ad proellum, to get one's self ready; and (lat.) abs. e. = to prepare one's self for battle. Hence: A) (poet.) e. jaculum, to hurl, to throw: B) to set in order, to arrange, to set right, to bring about, to accomplish (either the removal of difficulties and embarrassments, or at least an alleviation of them): e. negotia; e. rem frumentariam, to arrange everything in respect to provisions; e. nomina sua, to pay one's debts; e. consilia sua, to carry out one's plans; e. salutem, to provide for one's safety. 3) (Poet. & lat.) Of discourse, to explain, to unfold, to relate, to narrate: e. pauca multis; e. originem illorum.

4) Impers., expedit, it is profitable, advantageous, serviceable, useful, expedient: aliis aliud e.; mihi e. salvam esse rempublicam; e. cedere; (lat.) e. ut singulae civitates suas leges habeant; e. mihi ne hoc facias.

EXPÉDITE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [expeditus]. Without difficulty, easily, readily, promptly, quickly.

EXPÉDITIO, ōnis, f. [expedio]. 1) In rhetoric—a) a despatching, setting aside—b) a development, exposition. 2) A military expedition, campaign; in expeditionem ire, aliquos mittere, exercitum ducere.

EXPÉDITUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of expedio]. Prop., unloosed, set free. 1) Of persons, unhindered, unimpeded, free, ready, at hand: ut ille e. in Galliam proficere-retur (unimpeded by business); occurrit ei Clodius e., lightly clothed, i. e., ready for an attack; homo e., ready, prompt, also = unencumbered with baggage; e. ad caedem, ready, prepared for; e. ad dicendum, prompt. In partic., in milit. lang., milites (copiae, exercitus) ee.—a) = light-armed troops—b) = without baggage, unencumbered—c) = ready for battle. 2) Of things, free from obstacles or difficulties: locus e., advantageous, convenient; via, reditus e., easy; pecunia e., near at hand, ready; nomen e. = secure, safe; thus, likewise, fides e., victoria; coena e., that is procured without much trouble; oratio e., flowing smoothly, fluent; in expedito habere, to have in readiness.

EX-PELLO, pŭli, pulsam, 3. v. tr. To drive out or away, to drive off, to thrust out or away, to expel: e. naves ab litore in altum, to push off from the shore into the deep water; naves in ripam expulsa, driven or cast upon; e. pecus; e. aliquem ex urbe, patria, to eject, to banish; e. aliquem domo sua, regno, hostes finibus; e. aliquem in exsilium; and, in the same signification, e. aliquem; e. uxorem, to reject, to repudiate; (poet.) e. sagittam arcu, to let fly, to shoot; e. se in auras, to come into the world = to be born. Hence, trop.—a) e. aliquem potestate, possessione, to deprive of power, property; e. aliquem vitam, to take away any one's life; e. vitam (animam), to commit suicide—b) e. quietem, somnos, to disturb; e. curas, spem, to banish; e. omnem dubitationem, to remove.

EX-PENDO, ndi, nsum, 3. v. tr. 1) (Rar., poet.) To weigh, to weigh out, rem; trop., gradus expensus, measured off. Hence: A) (Pl.) to weigh against each other; e. hominem auro: B) to weigh mentally, to consider, to ponder, to value, to estimate, to examine, to judge of: e. argumenta causarum; cives non numerandi sed expendendi, must be valued, not according to their number, but their intrinsic worth; e. haec arte aliquis, meritis, according to services; e. quid quemque decet; e. testem, to examine. 2) To weigh out money in payment; hence, to pay out, to lay out, to expend: e. numos alicui; e. viginti talenta in illos sumptus. Hence: A) (poet & lat.) e. poenas, to suffer a punishment; and, e. scelus, to expiate a crime; B) in partic., part. expensum = expenditure: ratio accepti et expensi, an account of receipts and expenditures. Hence, ferre alicui aliquid expensum, to set down (in one's cash-book) as paid to any one, to charge to (in opp. to acceptum ferre aliquid—v. Accipio); sometimes, in gen. = to pay, to give, to lend: hanc pecuniam tibi expensam tuli; and hence, of other things = to transfer: e. alicui legionem.

EX-PENSO, ōvi, —, 1. v. tr. [intens. of expendo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) = Expendo.

EXPERGE-FÁCIO, fēci, factum, 3. v. tr. 1) To awaken or rouse from sleep, aliquem; hence, in gen., to arouse, to animate, to excite, to stir up (after previous rest and security): tumultus e. Italiam. 2) (Ante-cl.) As it were, to call into life—a) e. melos, to play a tune—b) e. scelus, to commit.

EXPERGÍFICO, 1. v. tr. (Lat.) = Expergeficio.

EXPERGISCOR, perrectus, 3. v. dep. intr. [expergo]. To awake out of sleep, to wake up: si dormis, expergiscere. Hence, trop. = to rouse one's self into renewed activity, to bestir one's self: nobilitas e.; cessatum adhuc est, nunc expergiscere.

EX-PERGO, gi, gĭtum, 3. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To awaken: nec quisquam expergitus exstat, awakened from the dead; trop., e. animos juvenum.

EXPERIENS, tis, adj. w. sup. [part. of experior]. Trying one's utmost; hence, enterprising, active, industrious: homo fortis et e.; homo promptus et e.; e. laborum, patient of.

EXPERIENTIA, ae, f. [experiens]. 1) An attempt, experiment, trial, proof: e. patrimonii amplificandi, to increase his estate. 2) (Lat.) Experience, practice, practical or experimental knowledge: vir longā e.

EXPERIMENTUM, i, n. [experior]. A trial, proof, experiment: experimentis cognitum erat; ut plebs e. daret, an, etc., an opportunity to experience; ipse primus e. veneni fuit, the first upon whom the poison was tried. Hence = experimental proof: hoc maximum est e., vetustate telli hanc vim, the strongest proof that, &c.

EX-PÉRIOR, pertus, 4. v. tr. 1) To try, to prove, to put to the test, to make trial of (partly in order to find out or become acquainted with a thing = to make a trial of any thing, to put to the proof, test; and, partly in order to try the success of a thing = to make a trial, attempt, to undertake by way of experiment—cf. tento, conor); e. vim veneni in aliquo; e. insidias feliciter; e. eandem belli fortunam: a. jussum, to seek to establish one's right; e. se, to try one's strength; e. omnia (all means) de pace; nolunt e. id quod se assequi posse diffidunt; e. aliquem; e. quantum illi audeant; experiendo magis quam discendo cognovit; saepe experti id efficere nequiverunt, in spite of frequent attempts; e. libertatem = to make use of, to enjoy. 2) In the perf. tense, to have tried or tested, to know by experience, to have experienced, to have lived to see: jam antea expertus, parum fidei miseris esse; expertus sum aliquot graves valetudines; expertus sum id ita esse; expertus id scio, I know it from experience. 3) To make trial of one's strength with any one: amor mecum e. Hence, in the lang. of law, to go to law with one, to try at law: e. cum aliquo; e. de tantis injuriis.

EXPERTS, tis, adj. [ex-pars]. Having no share or part in, not sharing or participating in: e. imperii, periculorum; in gen. = having nothing of any thing, destitute of, free from: e. rationis, without understanding; e. laboris, free from labour; e. eruditionis, without culture, destitute of learning; e. literarum, ignorant of; e. veritatis; e. legum, lawless; vinum e. maris, unmixed with sea-water. In Sall., and ante-cl., also with dat.: e. domo, homeless; e. metu, fearless; e. fortunis, penniless.

EXPERTUS, a, um, adj. w. sup. [part. of experior]. 1) Act., having tried or experienced any thing, knowing from experience: miles e. belli; homines ee. servitutis. 2) Pass., tried, proved, tested, known by experience: homo e. per omnia; saevitia e.

EXPETESSO, or Expētisso, 3. v. tr. [expeto]. (Pl.) To desire earnestly, to long for: e. artem; e. pulchritudinem alicujus.

EX-PĒTO, Ivi or ii, Itum, 3. v. intr. & tr. 1) (Bar.) To seek or to endeavour to reach any place: mare e. medium terrae locum, tēdo towards the centre of the earth. Hence: A) to befall any one, to light upon, to happen to: omnes clades hujus belli in eum ee.; illius maledicta in hunc e.; in servitute multa iniqua ee., occur: B) (Pl.) Id aetatem expetit = the remembrance of it lasts a lifetime. 2) To long for, to seek after, to desire, to wish: e. pecuniam; e. vitam beatam; e. vitam alicujus, to attempt the life of any one; e. jus ab invitis, to demand; e. poenas ab aliquo (also in aliquem), to punish any one; e. jus ab aliquo, to demand one's rights; (poet.) scire expertis; expeto te conventum, I wish to meet you.

EXPLATIO, ōnis, f. [expio]. Expiation, atonement, scelerum.

EXPLATIO, ōnis, f. [expilo]. A pillaging, plundering.

EXPLATOR, ōris, m. [expilo]. A pillager, plunderer.

EXPĪLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To pillage, to plunder, to rob (while in a state of peaceful security — cf. spolio, popular), socios, aerarium.

EX-PINGO, pinxi, pictum, 3. v. tr. To paint* e. genas (to paint, to put rouge upon); trop., of discourse — a) to beautify — b) to describe in a picturesque manner, to depict: e. regiones et oras.

EX-PIO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To atone for a person or thing stained with blood or crime, to expiate; to purify, to absolve: e. scelus, aliquem: e. quae violata sunt; cruor nondum expiatus; e. scelus in aliquem = to avenge upon any one; e. forum, etc., to purify. 2) To atone for = to render satisfaction for, to make amends for, to make good again by some compensation: e. scelus supplicio; incommodum expiatur virtute eorum, is removed. Hence = to avert the evil consequences of any thing, to make it harmless: e. prodigium; e. vocem nocturnam. 3) (Bar.) To appease, to conciliate: e. mortuorum manes.

EX-PISCOR, ātus, 1. v. tr. To fish out; trop. = to search out, to find out, to inquire: e. omnia ab illo.

*EXPLĀNĀBĪLIS, e, adj. [explano]. (Lat.) Plain, clear, intelligible, vox.

EXPLĀNĀTE, adv. w. comp. [explanatus]. Plainly, distinctly.

EXPLĀNATIO, ōnis, f. [explano]. A making distinct = 1) An explanation, interpretation: e. aequitatis, sententiae. 2) (Lat.) A distinct pronouncement, literarum.

EXPLĀNATOR, ōris, m. [explano]. An explainer, expounder, interpreter, legis.

EXPLĀNATUS, a, um, adj. [part. of explano]. Plain, distinct, clear.

EX-PLĀNO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. *1) (Lat.) To spread out, to make flat, corticem. 2) Trop., to unfold, to explain, to interpret, to make plain or distinct: e. rem; e. pauca de illa re; e. aliquid conjecturā.

EXPLEMENTUM, i, n. [expleo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) That which fills up. 1) = Aliment, victuals, food. 2) Of discourse, a supplement.

EX-PLEO, ēvi, ētum, 2. v. tr. 1) To fill up, to fill full, to fill: e. fossam aggere; e. rimas to cram full; milites ee. munitionem, locum, completely occupy; e. ceras, to write full. Hence: A) = to satisfy, to satiate: e. bovem frondibus: B) of the desires, &c., to satisfy, to appease, to content, to allay: e. cupiditatem, odium suum or alicujus; e. avaritiam pecuniā; e. sitim; e. animum, to indulge one's pleasure, inclination; e. aliquem, to gratify any one's desire: C) e. locum, to occupy, to fill a place. 2) To fill up, to make complete; hence = to make perfect, to complete, to finish, to accomplish: e. numerum, legiones, exercitum; e. summam, numerum, to make up the (required) number; e. justam altitudinem, to attain; e. quinque orbes (poet.), to run entirely through. Hence: A) tech. t., non e. tribus, centurias, not to obtain the necessary number of votes at an election: B) e. condemnationem, to take part as a judge in a trial, for the purpose of ensuring a conviction of the defendant: C) e. sententia mollioribus numeris, to finish the sentences: D) e. munus, officium, to fulfil, to discharge, to perform: E) of time, to bring to a close, to complete, vitam, ducentos annos. 3) To fill up the place of any thing that is lost = to replace, to make good, to supply: e. id quod utrique defuit; e. damna.

*EXPLETIO, ōnis, f. [expleo]. A satisfying, satisfaction.

EXPLETUS, a, um, adj. [part. of expleo]. Full, complete, entire, perfect.

EXPLICABILIS, e, adj. [explico]. (Lat.) That may be explained, explicable.

EXPLICITE, adv. [explicatus]. Plainly, distinctly.

EXPLICATIO, ōnis, f. [explico]. *1) An unfolding, uncoiling, unwinding, rudentis. 2) An unfolding, an explication, exposition, explanation, fabularum.

EXPLICATOR, ōris, m. [explico]. An explainer, expounder, interpreter.

*EXPLICATRIX, icis, f. [explico]. She who expounds or explains: e. oratoria vis dicendi; e. orationis perpetuae, that teaches and explains the art of continuous discourse.

EXPLICATUS (I), ūs, m. [explico]. Prop., an unfolding; trop. = explicatio.

EXPLICATUS (II), a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of explico]. 1) Spread out: Capua planissimo in loco explicata. 2) Well-regulated, provincia. 3) Plain, clear.

*EXPLICITUS, a, um, adj. = Explicatus.

EX-PLICO, cāvi or cui, cātum or cītum, 1. v. tr. 1) To unfold, to uncoil, to unroll, to unfurl, to spread out: e. velum, vestem, pennas; sepens e. orbes; e. volumen (librum), to open; e. agmen confusum, to restore to order; so, also, e. capillum; e. frontem, to smooth. 2) Trop., to set in order any thing complicated or difficult, to arrange, to regulate, to settle, to adjust: e. negotia alienius; e. rem frumentariam; e. onus, to collect a tax; e. nomen, to pay, to discharge a debt; e. reliquum consilium, to decide on; e. rem, to accomplish; e. captiones, to extricate one's self from. Hence = to rescue, to set free: e. Siciliam multis cinctam periculis; e. se. 3) To spread out, to extend, to stretch out: e. aciem, cohortes, ordines, to arrange in a more extended line and upon a greater space; e. forum, to enlarge; e. rem lucro, to increase one's property. 4) Of discourse or a writing, to develop, to unfold, to explain, to set forth, to state, relate: e. vitam illius; e. aliquid apertissime; e. de omni animi perturbatione, to treat.

EX-PLŌDO, si, sum, 3. v. tr. [ex-plaudo].

1) To drive out or off by clapping of hands, to hoot off the stage (an actor, &c.) exsibilo et e. aliquem. 2): A) to turn off, to drive away, to expel: B) to reject with contempt, to disapprove: e. illam sententiam; e. hoc genus divinationis.

EXPLŌRĀTE, adv. [exploratus]. With certainty, securely, surely.

EXPLŌRĀTIO, ōnis, f. [exploro]. (Lat.) A searching out, examining; exploration, examination.

EXPLŌRĀTOR, ōris, m. [exploro]. 1) A searcher, explorer, investigator. 2) In partic., as a military tech. t., a scout (who is openly sent out to reconnoitre—cf. speculator): e. viae (lat.), a person who went before the emperor to clear the way for him.

EXPLŌRĀTŌRIUS, a, um, adj. [explorator]. (Lat.) Of or pertaining to searching out or exploring: corona e., a crown presented to one who has rendered service as a scout.

EXPLŌRĀTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of exploro]. Ascertained; hence, certain, sure, reliable, undoubted: e. spes, victoria; consulatus ei exploratus visus est; de hoc mihi exploratum est ita esse, I am certain; exploratum or pro explorato habere, to hold as certain, or = to know positively; literae exploratae a timore, affording security.

EX-PLŌRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To search out, to examine, to investigate, to seek to gain certain information about any thing: e. ambitum Africae; e. idoneum locum castris; e., qui homines inhabitant; e. animum regis; e. de voluntate alienius; e. portam (whether the door is strong): (poet.) fumus e. robora, essays to gain access to. 2) In partic., as a military tech. t., to spy out, to reconnoitre (v. Explorator): e. itinera, Africam, hostium consilia; e. qua comode transire possit.

*EXPLŌSIO, ōnis, f. [explodo]. A driving off by clapping of hands, a hissing or hooting off the stage (an actor, &c.).

EX-PŌLIO, ūvi or ii, ūtum, 4. v. tr. 1) To polish off, to smooth off: e. libellum pumice. 2) Trop., to form by culture, to improve, to finish, to embellish, to refine: Plato Dionem omnibus literis e.; homo omni vita excoluit et expolitus; e. orationem, to elaborate to perfection: nihil ab omni parte natura expolivit, made perfect.

EXPŌLITIO, ōnis, f. [expolio]. 1) A smoothing off, cleaning or cleansing off; a polishing, finishing: e. parietum; e. urbana, a cleansing of the house in the city. 2) Trop., of style, an embellishing, adorning.

EXPŌLITUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. 1) Polished, clean, smooth, dens. 2) Trop., adorned, embellished, refined; e. villa, elegant; e. homo, polished.

EX-PŌNO, pōui, pōstum, 3. v. tr. 1) To set out, to set or put forth, to expose: e. vasa; e. apparatus in porticibus, to expose to view. In partic.: A) of new-born infants, to expose, to leave to perish: e. infantem ad necem: B) to set on shore (from a ship), to land, to disembark, to unload: e. milites ex navibus, in terram, in insulam, but also in Africa, in litore; e. frumentum: C) e. pecuniam alicui, to promise to pay a sum of money on demand, to place at the disposal of any one: D) = to leave exposed or unprotected, to abandon: e. exercitum hosti; e. provincias barbaris; locus expositus ad pericula classium externarum, exposed to the dangers arising from the presence of foreign fleets: E) (Pl.) e. aliquem = to turn out of the house. 2) Trop., to set up, to display: A) e. rem ante oculos, in oculis conspectuque omnium, to place before the eyes; e. vitam suam ad imitandum juventuti, to set forth as a pattern; e. praemia, to propose: B) in discourse, to set forth, to unfold, to expound; to describe, to exhibit, to treat of: e. rationem illius operis; e. rem pluribus verbis; e. narrationem; e. aliquid multitudini; abs., e. de re aliqua; e. quid senatus censuerit: C) = to prove, to show: expone, animos remanere post mortem: D) = to define: e. summum bonum vacuitatem doloris.

EX-PORRIGO, rexi, rectum, 3. v. tr. (Antecl. & lat.) To extend, to stretch out, to spread: e. equites in longitudinem; e. munitiones; e. frontem, to smooth, to clear up.

EXPORTATIO, ōnis, f. [exporto]. 1) Exportation, mercium. *2) (Lat.) Banishment.

EX-PORTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To carry or convey out, to bring out, to export: e. omnia sua; e. aurum ex Italia; (poet.) Jupiter e. Europam, abducted; e. corpora mortuorum. 2) = To banish, aliquem in ultimas terras.

EX-POSCO, pōposci, —, 3. v. tr. 1) To request pressingly and earnestly, to beg, to entreat, to implore: e. signum proelii; e. misericordiam; e. victoriam a diis, and e. aliquid deos, to beseech the gods earnestly for any thing. 2) In partic., e. aliquem, or e. aliquem dedi, to demand the delivering up of any one for punishment.

EXPŌSITE, adv. [expositus]. (Lat.) Plainly, clearly.

*EXPŌSITICIUS (Expōsititiis), a, um, adj. [expono]. (Pl.) Exposed, abandoned, puella.

EXPŌSITIO, ōnis, f. [expono]. 1) An exposing (of a child), infans. 2) Trop., a setting forth, unfolding, exhibiting, showing: e. summi boni, a definition.

EXPŌSITUS, a, um, adj. [part. of expono]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Accessible to all: homo a. = condescending, familiar. 2) Common, vulgar.

EXPŌSTULATIO, ōnis, f. [expostulo]. An expostulation, complaint: quum esset e. facta; ee. cum aliquo.

EX-POSTŪLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. 1) (Mostly poet.) = Exposeco. 2) To complain of, to bring complaint, to expostulate with, to take any one to task: e. cum aliquo; e. injuriam cum aliquo, to complain to any one of an act of injustice; also, e. cum aliquo de re aliqua; e. quia or cur hoc feceris; e. aliquid esse factum, that, &c.

EXPRESSE, adv. [expressus]. 1) Expressively, strongly, dicere. 2) Distinctly, expressly, explicitly: efferre litteram e.

EXPRESSIO, ōnis, f. [exprimo]. Prop., a pressing out; trop. (doubtful read.), explanata vocum e., very distinct pronunciation.

EXPRESSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of exprimo]. 1) Pressed out, standing out, prominent, visible, manifest: species deorum nihil habet concreti, nihil expressi, nihil eminentis; litterae ee., written plainly; infans expressus omnibus membris, well-formed. 2) Trop.: A) of portraits, impressions, statues, &c., clearly expressed, expressive, distinct: e. imago; signa ee. (opp. to adumbrata); ee. indicia, vestigia: B) of pronunciation: verba sint ee., clear, distinct; but, also in a bad sense, litterae non erant ee., were not pronounced with affected distinctness.

EXPRIMO, pressi, pressum, 3. v. tr. [premo].

1) To squeeze out, to press out: A) with that which is squeezed out as the object: e. vinum palmis; e. sudorem de corpore. Hence, trop. — a) to emphasise strongly, to pronounce distinctly, verba, litteras; lingua e. sermonem — b) to extort, to wrest, to wring out something from one by physical or moral force: e. vocem; e. alicui confessionem, pecuniam; eum in jus duxi, expressi ut negaret, etc., compelled him to deny, &c.: B) with that out of which something is pressed as the object: e. spongiam, folia rosae. 2) (Mostly poet. & lat.) To express, i. e., to make an impression of any thing, as in metal, wax, by colours, &c.: to imitate, to copy, to represent, to portray: e. effigiem, Herculem, venatorem; vestis e. artus, shows plainly. Hence, trop., filius ille e. vitam patris, shows forth in his life the life of his father; e. aliquid imitando or imitatione, to represent by imitating. 3) Trop., to express by words, to portray, to delineate, to set forth, to describe: e. rem; e. illam speciem versibus; e. bellum; e. non possum, quanto sim gaudio affectus. Hence = to translate: e. aliquid Latine; e. verbum verbo, to translate literally; e. aliquid ad verbum de Graecis, to render. 4) To raise upward, to carry up: e. aliquid tormentis in altum; quotidianus agger expresserat turres.

EXPROBRATIO, ōnis, f. [exprobro]. A reproaching, upbraiding; a reproach, imputation.

EXPROBRATOR, ōris, m. } [exprobro]. One

EXPROBRATRIX, icis, f. } (or she) who reproaches; a reproacher, upbraider.

EXPROBRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [ex-probrum]. To lay to one's charge, to charge any thing against one; also, to reproach, to upbraid, to charge a person with any thing (cf. objicio): e. aliquid, officia sua; e. virtutem suam, to remind of reproachfully; e. alicui vitia; also, e. alicui de muliere; consules ee., nihil plus sanitatis in curia quam in foro esse, reproachfully charge that, &c.

EX-PRŌMO, mpsi, mptum, 3. v. tr. 1) To draw out or forth, to fetch or bring out: e. omnem supplicii apparatus; e. voces (poet.), to utter. 2) Trop.: A) to show, to display, to disclose: e. varios sensus; e. crudelitatem suam in aliquo; e. vim eloquentiae in illa causa; e. se alicui hilarissimum convivam (Pl.), to exhibit one's self as: B) of discourse, to bring to light, to reveal, to set forth, to declare, to state: e. omnia sua occulta; e. sententiam; expromit, in agro suo repertum esse secum, etc., he discloses that, &c.: thus, likewise, e. quid sentias.

*EXPROMPTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of expromo]. (Com.) Ready, prepared, at hand.

EXPUGNABILIS, e, adj. [expugno]. (Rar.) That may be taken (by arms, by storm), conquerable.

*EXPUGNANTIOR, ius, adj. in comp. [part. of expugno]. (Poet.) Prop., more conquering = more efficient, more powerful, herba.

EXPUGNATIO, ōnis, f. [expugno]. A storming (of a fortified place), taking by storm, urbis, castrorum; ee. nocturnae aedium.

EXPUGNATOR, ōris, m. [expugno]. One who takes by storm, a conqueror, vanquisher, urbis; trop., a ravisher, violator, pudicitiae.

EX-PUGNO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To conquer, esp. = to take by storm, to carry by assault: e. urbem, castellum, aedes; yet, also, e. urbem obsidione; e. navem, to capture a ship. Hence — a) trop., to extort any thing, to obtain by force: e. sibi legationem, to obtain with great trouble, to force from one; e. ut dies tollantur, to force the days to be taken away (from their proper place in the year); e. ab hero pecuniam (Pl.), to extort money; e. fenus, to enforce a release from the payment of interest — b) Euphrates e. montem, breaks through. 2) To overcome, to subdue, to vanquish, to conquer, aliquos; e. inclusos moenibus, to force to yield; so, also, fames e. obsessos (thus, in gen., freq. of those who are to be dislodged from a place). Hence, trop.: A) e. pertinaciam alicujus, pudicitiam, animum sapientis; expugnatus precibus, persuaded, overcome: B) e. quaestiones = to frustrate.

EXPULSIO, ōnis, f. [expello]. A driving out, expulsion.

EX-PULSO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [intens. of expello]. (Lat.) To drive out, to expel, pilam.

EXPULSOR, ōris, m. [expello]. One who drives out; an expeller, ejector.

*EXPULTRIX, icis, f. [expello]. She that drives out or away; an expeller.

EX-PUNGO, nxi, nctum, 3. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Prop., to strike out, i. e., from a tablet or list, by points set above and below, to expunge, to erase: e. nomen. Hence — a) e. manipulum, to discharge, to dismiss; so, also, e. decurias (judicum) to erase the names of those who have died or are incompetent — b) e. aliquem (poet.) = to remove, to set aside — c) e. munus munere, to equalize, to adjust.

EXPURGATIO, ōnis, f. [expurgo]. (Pl.) A justification, vindication.

EX-PURGO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To purify, to purge, to cleanse, lepras, sordida ulcera; e. sermonem; e. aliquem (poet.) = to cure. 2) Trop., to justify, to vindicate, to excuse, se alicui; e. consilium publicum.

EX-PUTESCO, 3. v. inch. intr. (Pl.) To rot, to putrefy.

EX-PUTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) (Lat.) To cut or lop off, to prune, vitem. 2) Trop.: A) (Pl.) to think over, to consider, to weigh, rem: *B) to comprehend, to imagine: quid eum a tanta gloria vocarit, exputare non possum.

EXQUILIAE — v. Esquiliae.

EXQUIRO (also, Pl., Exquaero), āvi, situm, 3. v. tr. [ex-quaero]. Prop., to search out diligently. 1) To seek information diligently about any thing, to inquire into, to ask, to search out: e. causas illius rei ex te; nihil certi a te exquiram; e. quid peccatum sit; e. sententias, iter. In partic. — a) = to rack, to torture: e. de aliquo — *b) (Pl.) e. aliquem, to inquire of any one. 2) To investigate, verum, facta alicujus. 3) To seek out, to devise, honores alicui, fallacias. 4) To demand, to expect, aliquid ab aliquo.

EXQUISITE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [exquisitus]. Carefully, excellently, nicely, exquisitely.

EXQUISITUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of exquirere]. Sought out, choice, select; hence, superior, extraordinary, exquisitus, excellent: e. ingenium, ars, magister, supplicium, verba; nimis e., entirely too nice.

EX-SACRIFICIO, 1. v. intr. (Poet.) To sacrifice. *EX-SAEVIO, 4. v. intr. To rage itself out, to cease raging.

EX-SANGUIS, e, adj. 1) Without blood, bloodless (from sickness, wounds, fright, &c.): umbrae ee. (of the dead); thus, likewise, mortui ee. Hence, trop. = powerless, weak, feeble, stunned by fright, &c.: oratio e., without energy and spirit. 2) (Poet.) Making pale and bloodless, cuminum.

EX-SARCIO (or Exsercio), —, sartum, 4. v. tr. (Rar.) To sew up, to patch up; trop., to make good, to make up, to repair: e. sumptum; e. aliquid aliis rebus.

EX-SATIO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To satiate, to sate, to glut: e. aliquem cibo. 2) Trop., to satisfy fully, to content one: mors noxiorum aevitiam eorum non e.; domus exsatiata clade.

*EXSÄTÜRÄBILIS, e, adj. [exsaturo]. (Poet.) That may be satisfied, satiable.

EX-SÄTÜRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. = Exsatio. EXSCENSIO, ōnis, f. [ex-scando]. A going to land (from a ship); a debarkation, landing.

EX-SCINDO, idi, issum, 2. v. tr. (Pret. & lat.)

To tear out; hence, to extirpate, to destroy, to cut off: e. urbem, gentem; e. causas belli.

EXSCREABILIS, a, adj. [exscreo]. That may be coughed up.

EXSCREATIO, ōnis, f. [exscreo]. A hawking or coughing up; a spitting out by coughing or hawking: e. cruenta, of blood.

EX-SCREO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) To hawk or cough up, pituitam; also, abs., to hawk, to clear the throat.

EX-SCRIBO, psi, ptum, 3. v. tr. 1) To write off, to write, to copy, tabulas; e. duos versus ex comœdia. 2) To draw or sketch off, to copy a painting: e. imaginem; hence, trop., to represent (as in a copy) = to resemble, to be entirely like: e. aliquem similitudine. 3) To write down, to record, to note down, nomina.

EX-SCULPO, psi, ptum, 3. v. tr. 1) To chisel or carve out, to dig out: e. aliquid e quercu quod videatur simile simulacri; e. signum ex molari lapide. Hence: A) to dig up, terram, foramina: B) trop., e. verum ex aliquo, to draw out with difficulty, to extort, to elicit. *2) To cut away = to scratch out, to erase, versum.

EX-SECO, cui, ctum, 1. v. tr. 1) To cut out or away, to cut off, linguam; e. fundum armarii; e. vitiosas partes. Hence, trop., e. quinas mercedes capiti, to deduct from the principal five times the usual interest; exsecutus honoribus, deprived of. 2) To cut, to castrate, aliquem.

EXSECRABILIS (Execr.), a, adj. w. comp. [exsecror]. 1) Deserving to be accursed, execrable, detestable, abominable, res, solum. 2) Containing an imprecation, imprecating, accursing: e. carmen; e. odium. Hence, odium e., deadly hatred.

EXSECRATIO (Execr.), ōnis, f. [exsecror]. 1) An imprecation, execration, curse, malediction. 2) A solemn oath accompanied with imprecations (in case of its violation).

EXSECRATUS (Execr.), a, um, adj. w. sup. [part. of exsecror]. Execrated, accursed, detestable, execrable.

EXSECRO (Execr.), ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. & intr.

1) To wish evil to, to execrate, to curse, aliquem; e. consilia alicujus; also, e. in aliquem, to utter imprecations against any one. Hence = to invoke with curses. *2) (Poet.) To take a solemn oath with imprecations (v. Exsecratio 2).

EXSECTIO, ōnis, f. [exseco]. A cutting out or off, linguae.

EXSECUTIO (Exec.), ōnis, f. [exsequor]. (Lat.) An accomplishing, performance, execution, completion, negotii. Hence — a) e. Syriae = the administration — b) = a full discussion, development of a subject.

EXSECUTOR (Exec.), ōris, m. [exsequor]. (Lat.) 1) An accomplisher, performer, executor. 2) An avenger, punisher, offensarum.

EXSEQUENS, tis, adj. w. sup. [part. of exsequor]. (Lat.) Striving after, zealous of, searching after: e. rei alicujus.

EXSEQUIAE, ārum, f. pl. [exsequor]. 1) The act of following a corpse to the place of burial; a funeral, funeral procession (cf. funus and pompa): ire exsequias (alicui), to go to the funeral of any one; prosequi exsequias funeris, to go along with the funeral procession; carere justis exsequiarum. 2) (Lat.) A corpse, the mortal remains of any one: sepelire ee. alicujus.

EXSEQUIALIS (Exequ.), a, adj. [exsequiae] (Poet.) Belonging to a funeral, funereal, carminia

EX-SEQUOR, cūtus, 3. v. dep. tr. 1) (Rar.) To follow to the end, to follow forth, aliquem; in partic. = to follow or accompany to the grave, aliquem, funus. 2) To follow after, to follow, to pursue: e. fatum; esp., to pursue, to persecute, as an enemy: e. aliquem ferro, igni; e. fugam alicujus, to share in the flight of any one; exsequantur suam quisque spem, pursued. 3) To follow out = to accomplish, to execute, to perform, to consummate, to fulfil, to bring to an end, iter, incepta, negotium, imperium, scelus; e. mortem = to commit suicide. Hence: A) to follow up in one's thoughts = to devise, to ascertain or find out by thinking: e. aliquid cogitando; si animus humanus omnia e. potest: B) to ascertain or find out by inquiring: e. aliquid quaerendo: C) to follow out in speaking = to tell, to relate, to set forth, to describe fully and circumstantially: e. aliquid verbis; e. haec copiosius; e. nomen, to declare, to state: D) e. jus suum, to maintain, to seek to establish one's right. 3) To prosecute at law, to avenge, to punish: e. injurias; e. jura violata: probably, also, e. aliquem. 4) (Pl.) To resign one's self to, to undergo, to endure, to suffer: e. egestatem, aerumnam.

EX-SERO, rui, rtum, 3. v. tr. 1) To put forth, to thrust out, to stretch forth: e. linguam; e. ensem, to draw; e. humeros, to make bare; e. caput ponto; e. brachia aquis; infans e. se, comes forth. 2) Trop. (lat.), to show, to reveal, to disclose, to bring to light: e. secreta mentis, to betray; e. principem, to show himself as.

EXSERTO, 1. v. tr. [intens. of exsero]. To stretch forth, to thrust out, ora.

EX-SIBILO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To hiss forth or out: e. dirum quiddam. 2) To hiss off, to drive away by hissing (an actor, &c.): e. aliquem.

EXSICCATUS, a, um, adj. [part. of exsiccō].

Dried up, dry, jejuna.

EX-SICCO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To dry up, to make quite dry, to dry, sulcos, arbores. 2) To drink dry, to drain, to empty: e. lagenas; (poet.) e. vina.

EXSICO (Pl.) = Exseco.

EX-SIGNO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. To write out, to note down, aliquid.

EXSILIO (Exil.), ilui, —, 4. v. intr. [ex-salio].

- 1) To spring out or forth: e. foras, domus, to hasten out of; lux, ignis e., comes suddenly forth. 2) To spring or leap up, to start up: e. de sella; e. gaudio, to leap for joy.

EXSILIUM, or EXILIUM, il, n. [ex-solum].

- 1) Banishment, exile; in gen., a voluntary or compulsory residence out of one's native land (cf. relegatio). 2) (Poet. & lat.) A place of exile, place of banishment: egredi exsilium. *3) (Tac.) In the pl. = exiles, banished persons.

EX-SISTO (Existo), stūti, stītum, 3. v. intr.

- 1) To stand forth, to step out or forth, to come forth (as it were, to come into existence; also, of a motion acquired by something previously at rest — conf. exsto): cornu e. a media fronte; equus submersus e., reappears; e. ex latebris; trop., vox e. ab aede, issues out of the temple. 2) Trop.: A) to arise, to spring up, to proceed: avaritia e. ex luxuria: B) to become visible, to show one's self, to appear, to exist, to be: talia eloquentia in nemine e.; e. crudelis in aliquem.

EX-SOLVO, solvi, sōlūtum, 3. v. tr. 1) (Poet. & lat.) To unloose, to loosen, to unbind, to untie, to undo: e. restim, pugionem a latere; e. brachia (venas) ferro, to open one's own or another's veins, to bleed; e. se corpore — to die; alvus exsoluta, looseness of the bowels; ignis e. glaciem, thaws, melts; trop., e. famem, metum, to subdue, to dispel. 2) Trop.: A) to set loose, to release, to deliver, to set free: e. aliquem curis, poenā, aere alieno; e. populum religione: B) e. obsidionem, to raise: C) to discharge, to pay: e. pretium, aliquid alicui; e. nomina sua, one's indebtedness. Hence — a) e. gratiam, beneficia, to repay, to requite — b) e. poenas, to suffer: D) e. fidem, promissa, to fulfil one's promises, to keep one's word; e. votum, to fulfil, to pay: *E) (poet.) e. quare, etc., to explain, to solve.

EXSOMNIS, e, adj. [ex-somnus]. (Poet. & lat.) Sleepless, wakeful, watchful.

EX-SORBEO (Exorb.), bul, —, 2. v. tr. 1) To suck out, to suck up or in, to drain: e. sanguinem, ova. 2) Trop., e. difficultates, to swallow down = to endure to the end; e. praedas, to swallow up = to appropriate to one's self; e. tristitiam alicui (poet.), to remove; e. animam alicujus (Pl.), to take away the life of any one.

*EX-SORDESCO, 3. v. incho. intr. (Lat.) To become foul or polluted, i. e., to become despicable, contemptible.

EX-SORS (Exors), tis, adj. 1) Without lot or part in any thing, not sharing in, not partaking of, free from: e. rei alicujus; (poet.) e. secandi, not capable of cutting. 2) (Poet.) Not subject to lot, not disposed of by lot: ducunt Aeneae equum exsortem; honor e., extraordinary, peculiar.

EX-SPATIOR (Exp.), ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. (Poet. & lat.) To wander or deviate from the course: equi ee. Hence, flumen e., overflows; arbor e., spreads its branches out; trop., to wander off, to digress, to expatiate.

EXSPECTABILIS (Exp.), e, adj. [exspecto]. (Lat.) That is to be expected.

EXSPECTATIO (Exp.), ōnis, f. [exspecto]. An awaiting, expecting, expectation: e. rei alicujus or de re; expectationem alicui movere (dare, afferre), to excite or awaken expectation in any one; decipere ee., to disappoint the expectations; facere expectationem sui, to excite expectation of one's self; exspectatio fit, it is expected; praeter e., contrary to expectation. In partic., habere expectationem or esse in expectatione: A) of things = to be the subject of expectation, to be expected: B) of persons — a) = to entertain an expectation, to expect, to await: in magna e. sum — b) (lat.) in e. esse = to be expected or awaited.

EXSPECTATUS (Exp.), a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of exspecto]. Anxiously expected or awaited; freq. = longed for, desired: carus omnibusque e. venies; exspectati ad summam dignitatem, who were expected to attain the highest posts of honour.

EX-SPECTO (Exp.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. Prop., to look out for something. 1) Subjective: to expect, to look for, to hope for, to fear, to anticipate, to apprehend: e. adventum hostium; e. aliquid ab aliquo; e. mortem. 2) Objective: to await a coming event, to wait for any thing: e. eventum pugnae; e. dum (until) veniat mater; exspectabant ei nostri transirent, they waited to see if, &c.; e. quid velis; exspector ut veniam, my coming is awaited; (poet.) e. coenantes = to wait impatiently till they get done with eating. 3) (Poet.) A) = moror, to tarry, to stay, to linger: e. Carthagine: B) = maneo, to await one (as a fate): mors me e.: C) = to require, to demand, to have need of: oleas non ee. faloem.

EXSPERGO (Exp.), —, sum, 3. v. tr. [ex-spargo]. (Poet.) 1) To scatter abroad, to disperse, to spread abroad, aliquid. 2) To besprinkle, limina sanie.

EX-SPES, adj. (Poet. & lat.) Only in the nomin. sing. Without hope, hopeless, desperate.

*EXSPIRATIO (Exp.), ōnis, f. [exspiro]. A breathing out, exhalation, terrae.

EX-SPIRO (Exp.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. 1) Tr., to blow out, to breathe out, to exhale: e. auras; e. flammam pectore. In partic., e. animam, to breathe out the spirit; hence, aba. = to die; trop., libertas e., expires. 2) Intr., to rush out, to burst forth: e. ventus, ignis.

EX-SPLENDESCO (Exp.), ndui, —, 3. v. incho. intr. (Lat.) To shine forth, to glitter; hence, trop. — a) to distinguish one's self — b) to show itself, to appear: animi dotes ee.

EX-SPOLIO (Exp.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To ransack, to plunder, to pillage, to rob, to strip: e. domos et fana; e. honorem Caesaris, to strip Caesar of all honour. 2) To despoil, to deprive one of any thing: e. aliquem provinciâ.

EXSPRETUS, a, um, adj. [ex-sperno]. (Pl.) Disdained, despised.

EX-SPUO (Exp.), ui, ūtum, 3. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to spit out, to spit: e. in mare. 2) Tr., to spew out or forth, linguam; trop., mare e. aliquem, casts him up; e. miseriam, to remove, to expel.

EX-STERNO (Ext.), ōvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Bar., poet.) To terrify, to frighten greatly, to shock, to stun, aliquem.

EX-STILLO (Ext.), ōvi, —, 1. v. intr. (Antecl. & lat.) 1) To drop or trickle out: amurca e. 2) To drip with moisture, oculi.

EX-STIMULĀTOR (Ext.), ōris, m. [exstimulo]. (Tac.) An instigator, inciter, rebellionis. EX-STIMŪLO (Ext.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Poet. & lat.) 1) To prick, to goad, aliquem. 2) Trop., to instigate, to excite, to goad on: e. virum, animos; e. fata, to hasten.

EXSTINCTIO (Ext.), ōnis, f. [exstinguo]. Annihilation, extinction.

EXSTINCTOR (Ext.), ōris, m. [exstinguo]. 1) An extinguisher, suppresser, incendii. 2) An annihilator, extirpator, destroyer: e. domus regiae; e. conjurationis.

EX-STINGUO (Ext.), nxi, notum, 3. v. tr. 1) To extinguish, to put out entirely, to quench: e. ignem, sitim. 2) To destroy, to abolish, to suppress, to annihilate, to extirpate: e. salutem alicujus, nomen illius, bellum civile; e. iram, gratiam, potentiam alicujus; e. aliquem, to kill any one; and, exstingui morbo, vulnere, etc., to die. In partic., e. aquam, to make water (i. e., a lake) disappear, to dry up; thus, likewise, e. mammas, succum.

EX-STIRPO (Ext.), ōvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To pluck, to pull up by the trunk and root, to root out, arborem. 2) Trop., to eradicate, to extirpate, to destroy entirely: e. vitia; e. humanitatem ex animis.

EX-STO (Ext.), stiti, stātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To stand out or forth, to project (denoting a permanent state — of. existo): e. capite ex aqua; ferrum e. de pectore. 2) To be at hand, to be present so as to be seen or observed, to be visible, to appear, to be extant, to exist: vestigia ee.; epistolae ee., letters are still extant; ejus in me meritum e., he has done me a service; officium oculorum e., takes place; memoria (ejus rei) e., the remembrance thereof still survives.

EXSTRUCTIO (Ext.), ōnis, f. [exstruo]. A building up, erecting; a building, structure.

EX-STRUO (Ext.), xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) To pile up, to heap up: e. montes, rogam, acervum, aggerem. Hence — a) (poet.) e. mensas epulis (dapibus), to furnish with a bountiful supply of viands; so, also, e. focum lignis — b) trop., e. animo altitudinem excellentiamque virtutis, build up in your mind = endeavour fully to conceive or estimate. 2) To erect, to rear, to build up: e. sepulchrum. Hence — a) e. mare, to build up, to construct buildings out into the sea — b) trop., e. disciplinam, to construct, to frame a system.

EX-SUCCUS (Exsucus), a, um, adj. (Lat.) Sapless, juiceless, dry; trop. = weak, feeble, powerless.

EX-SŪDO (Exud.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to come out by sweating, to exude. 2) Tr.: A) To sweat out, to exude, succum: B) to sweat in doing something = to perform, to endure or go through with sweat and toil: e. labores, carmen; e. causas, to conduct with care and toil.

EX-SŪGO (Exug.), xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. (Antecl. & lat.) To suck out, sanguinem alicui.

EXSUL, or EXUL, is, comm. [ex-solum]. A banished person, an exile (one who quits or is driven from his native land — v. Exsilium): vivere exulem; e. patriae, from one's country; e. domo, from one's home; (poet.) e. mentis, deprived of one's senses, deranged.

EXSULATIO (Exul.), ōnis, f. [exsulo]. (Lat.) Banishment, exile; a living in exile.

EXSŪLO (Exul.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. [exsul]. 1) Intr., to be banished or exiled, to live in exile: abire (ire) exsulatum, to forsake one's country, and go into exile; trop., pecunia abit e., disappears; e. domo, not to dare to return home. 2) Tr. (lat.), to banish, to exile any one.

EXSULTĀBUNDUS (Exult.), a, um, adj. [exulto]. (Lat.) Leaping for joy, rejoicing, exulting.

EXSULTANS (Exult.), tis, adj. w. sup. [part. of exulto]. (Lat.) 1) Skipping, hopping: verbum e., consisting altogether of short syllables. 2) Diffuse, prolix: (oratores illi) pro compositis sunt exsultantes.

EXSULTANTER (Exult.), adv. w. comp. [exsultans]. Leapingly; only trop. = diffusely.

EXSULTANTIA (Exult.), ae, f. [exsulto]. (Gell.) A springing up, an attack.

EXSULTATIO (Exult.), ōnis, f. [exsulto]. (Lat.) 1) A leaping up, hopping, skipping. 2) Trop., exultation, excessive joy.

EXSULTIM (Exult.), adv. [exsilio]. (Poet.) With springing or leaping, friskingly, frolicksomenely.

EXSULTO (Exult.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. [intens. of exsilio]. 1) To spring up often and vigorously, to leap or jump up: tauri ee. in herba; equi, fluctus ee. 2) Trop.: A) of the action of the mind in speaking or writing, to move freely, to rove at liberty, to revel, to riot: oratio e.; Demosthenes e. audacius in illis; exsultans verborum audaciâ: B) of vehement and excessive emotion, passionate conduct, &c. — a) = to be haughty or overbearing: rex e. insolentia — b) to rejoice, to exult, to boast, to vaunt: e. laetitiâ, from gladness; e. victoriâ, on account of; e. in ruinis alicujus, over the downfall of.

EXSÜPEKÄBILIS, e, adj. [exsupero]. 1) (Post.) That may be overcome, superable: e. saxum Sisyphei. *2) (Lat.) That overcomes, overpowering, irresistible.

EXSÜPÉRANS (Exup.), tis, adj. [part. of exsupero]. Surpassing, excellent.

EXSÜPÉRANTIA (Exup.), ae, f. [exsupero]. Superiority, pre-eminence, virtutis.

EXSÜPÉRATIO (Exup.), ñis, f. [exsupero]. As a rhetorical figure, exaggeration.

EX-SÜPĒRO (Exup.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. 1) To rise above, to project or tower above any thing: jubaee undas, float above the waves; abs., flammae, rises above the house, mounts up. Hence = to surmount, to go over any thing: e. jugum, amnem, to cross. 2) Trop., to surpass, to exceed, to excel in any quality: e. aliquem impudentiā. Hence: A) to overcome, to overpower, to subdue, to conquer, aliquem; id e. Jovem, surpasses even Jupiter's power: B) (lat.) to survive, to outlive, aliquem.

EX-SURDO (Exu.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [exsurdus]. (Poet. & lat.) To make deaf, to deafen: e. aurem; trop., e. palatum, to dull, to blunt.

EX-SURGO (Exu.), surrexi, —, 3. v. intr. To rise up, to rise, to get up, to stand up: e. a genibus (Pl.); acies e. in collem, ascends toward the summit. Hence, trop., Roma e. aedificiis, rises up greater than ever; e. adversus aliquem, to rise up to any one (as an act of courtesy or friendliness); in partic. = to recover strength, to regain power and consideration: res publica e.

EXSUSCITATIO (Exu.), ñis, f. [exsuscito]. An awakening or arousing of attention.

EX-SUSCITO (Exu.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To rouse from sleep, to awaken, aliquem. 2) Trop.: A) e. flammam; ignis e. incendium, to kindle, to stir up: B) of the mind, to rouse, to stir up, to excite, animum.

EXTA, ñrum, n. pl. The entrails of animals (esp., the heart, lungs, liver, &c., in opp. to viscera, the lower intestines — cf. viscera, intestina); in partic., the entrails of sacrificial animals, which were consulted in divination.

EX-TÄBESCO, bui, —, 3. v. inch. intr. To pass wholly away, to waste away; trop., to disappear, to wane, to decline.

EXTÄRIS, e, adj. [exta]. (Pl.) Of or pertaining to entrails: olla e., a pot used for cooking entrails.

EXTEMPLO, adv. [= ex tempulum, dim. of tempus]. Immediately, on the spot, directly, forthwith, without delay: e. occidit; postquam introii, e. morbum ejus cognovi; also (Pl.), quam e. = as soon as.

EXTEMPÖRÄLIS, e, adj. [ex tempore — v. Tempus]. That is done without premeditation; hence, pertaining to extemporaneous speaking, extemporary, unpremeditated: oratio e.; facultas (dicendi) e., the faculty of speaking extemporaneously; e. audacia, successus, in extemporizing.

EXTEMPÖRÄLITAS, ätis, f. [extemporalis]. The faculty of extemporaneous speaking.

EXTEMPÖLO, adv. (Ante-cl.) = Extemplo.

EX-TENDO, ndi, ntum or ensum, 3. v. tr. 1) To stretch or spread out, to extend, to spread: e. brachium, digitos; e. cornua aciei; e. agros, to enlarge; ignis extenditur, spreads; prov., ille per extensum funem mihi posse videtur ire postea, to be able to walk upon the tight-rope, i. e., to accomplish the most difficult undertaking. 2) Hence, trop. — a) e. nomen, famam, to spread, to extend; e. spem in Africam quoque, to extend, to suffer to reach; cupiditas longius extenditur, stretches farther — b) (poet.) e. aliquem arenā, to stretch out (lengthwise) upon the sand; extenditur, he is lying stretched at length — c) e. pugnam ad noctem, to continue; e. consulatum, tempus epularum, to prolong.

EXTENSUS, or Extentus, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of extendo]. Extended, extensive, wide, manus, castra.

EXTENTO, 1. v. tr. [intens. of extendo]. 1) (Ante-cl. & lat.) To stretch out, to extend, nervos. 2) (Ante-cl.) To exert, to try, to prove, vires.

EXTĒNUÄTIO, ñis, f. [extenuo]. 1) A thinning. 2) In rhetoric, a lessening, diminution, extenuation (adversus, opp. to exaggeratio) by the application of a less forcible expression.

EXTĒNUÄTUS, a, um, adj. w. sup. [part. of extenuo]. 1) Thinned, weakened, reduced. 2) Small, trifling, weak.

EX-TĒNUO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To make thin, to thin; hence, to reduce in size, to make smaller: e. lignum, aciem; sortes extenuatae, become smaller; e. cibum, to chew, to masticate. 2) Trop., to diminish, to lessen, to weaken, to reduce, to extenuate: e. sumptus, spem, famam; e. censum, to assess an estate too low: e. crimina, to extenuate; e. molestias, to mitigate.

EXTER, or EXTĒRUS, tĕra, tĕrum, adj. w. comp. & sup. [ex]. (The nom. sing. m. does not occur). On the outside, outward, without.

I. Posit. Foreign, strange (nearly always in the pl., mostly of persons, and indicative of disposition, social relations, &c. — cf. externus): ee. gentes, nationes, civitates; subst., Exteri, ñrum, m. pl., strangers, foreigners; (poet.) a vis, res, coming from abroad. Hence,

II. Comp., Extĕrior, u. Outer, outward, exterior, on the outer side: e. collis, munitiones; hostis e., in opp. to those within the walls.

III. Sup., A) Extrĕmus, a, um. 1) Of space, the outermost, utmost, extreme: e. oppidum, finis; e. pars epistolae, the last part; in e. epistola; e. libro and in e. libro, in the last part (at the conclusion) of the book; thus, likewise, ee. fines; e. Cappadocia, the farthest border of C.; yet, also, extremum mundi, the extremity of the world; ad extremum, to the end; extrema agminis, the rear of the army; (poet.) ee. Indi, living in the remotest parts of the earth = distant, remote. 2) Of time, the latest, last: mensis e.; e. finis vitae; manus e. non accessit operi, the last touch has not yet been given to the work; e. hiems, the end of winter; also, extremum aetatis; reservatus ad extremum, until the end, until the last. Hence, as adv. — a) Extremum, the last time, for the last time — b) Ad extremum, also Extremo, at last, finally. 3) Of quality and degree — a) the most extreme, utmost, greatest, highest, &c.: e. fames; in ee. suis rebus, in the utmost necessity, in the greatest danger; descendere ad extrema, to adopt the most extreme measures; perventum erat ad extrema, to the last extremity; so, also, extrema pati; ad extremum, in the highest degree — b) Ad extremum, the worst, lowest, vilest, meanest, most despicable: e. latro, ingenium. — B) Extimus (rar.) = Extremus 1.

EX-TĒREBRO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Rar.) 1) To extract by boring, to bore out: e. aliquid ex re aliqua. 2) Trop., to extort, to obtain by force.

EX-TERGEO, ei, sum, 2. v. tr. To wipe off, to wipe dry or clean: e. aera, baxeas; trop., e. fanum, to strip clean, to plunder.

EXTERIOR — v. Exter II.

EXTERIUS — v. Exter II., and Extra.

EX-TERMINO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To drive beyond the boundaries, to drive out or away; in partic. = to expel, to banish, to exile: e. aliquem urbe. 2) Trop., to remove, to set aside, to annul: e. auctoritatem senatus e civitate; e. quaestiones illas, to keep at a distance.

EXTERNUS, a, um, adj. [ex]. 1) On the outside, coming from without, outward, external: visio e.; pulsus e.; commoda or bona ee. 2) With reference to one's family or country — that is without, foreign, alien, strange (denoting merely the local, external relation, as well of persons as of things — cf. exter): ee. auxilia, derived from abroad; externa libentius recorder, taken from the example of foreign nations; (poet.) amor e. = love for a stranger; odium in externos, towards strangers; (lat.) moliri externa = hostile feelings.

EX-TĒRO, trīvi, trītum, 3. v. tr. 1) To rub out, to bring out by rubbing; to rub off or away, to press out, to tread or crush out: e. grana ex spicis: e. rubiginem ferro, to remove by rubbing; (poet.) e. ignem, to kindle by rubbing. 2) To wear away by rubbing, to tread down, to bruise, to crush: e. congestas nives; e. messem, to crush out by treading; e. cibum, to digest. Hence, trop., homo extritus pondere, bruised, crushed; anima e. opus, wears away.

EX-TERREO, ui, itum, 2. v. tr. To arouse by fright, to strike with terror, to terrify, ali- quem; e. milites repentino impetu; (poet.) anguis exterritus aestu, stunned.

EX-TEXO, ui, itum, 3. v. tr. (Pl.) Prop. to unweave; trop., to make bare = to cheat any one out of all his money, aliquem.

EX-TIMESCO, mui, —, 3. v. inch. tr. & intr. To become frightened about any thing, to be greatly afraid of, to dread, periculum; abs., equi ee., were frightened.

EXTISPEX, Icīs, m. [exta-specio]. An inspector of entrails, one who divines from the entrails of animals slain in sacrifice; a diviner, soothsayer.

EXTISPICIUM, ii, n. [extispex]. An inspection of entrails for the purpose of divining.

EXTO — v. Exsto.

EX-TOLLO, 3. v. tr. 1) To lift out or up, to raise up, to elevate, caput; e. aliquem in murum; hence = to build up, to rear, to erect, fundamentum. 2) Trop.: A) to elevate in speech, to praise, to extol: e. aliquem laudibus; e. aliquem in (ad) coelum; e. aliquid in majus, to exaggerate: B) e. animum, caput, to take courage again: C) to elevate to greater dignity and power, to exalt any one: fortuna e. aliquem: D) (antecl.) to defer, to put off, res series in alium diem.

EX-TORQUEO, ei, tum, 2. v. tr. 1) To twist or wrench out, to wrest away: e. arma (sicam) e (de) manibus alicujus or alicui. 2) To strain or dislocate a limb, to put out of joint, esp. by torture on the rack: lacerare et e. aliquem. 3) Trop., to tear away, to take or wrest away, to obtain by force, to extort any thing from one by persuasion, entreaty, obstinacy, &c.: e. pecuniam a Caesare; e. cognitionem ex animis; e. humanitatem alicujus, to force one to forget his humanity; e. ut fateatur, to compel one to confess; e. alicui errorem, to free one from an error.

EXTORRIS, e, adj. [ex-terra?]. Driven away from the country, banished, exiled: e. ab solo patrio; e. patriâ, domo, agris, from one's native land, &c.

EXTORTOR, ōris, m. [extorqueo]. (Com.) An extortioner, robber, bonorum.

EXTRA, prep. & adv. [ex; prob. = exterâ, so. parte]. I. Prep. w. acc. 1) Outside of, beyond, without: e. muros, portam, provinciam; e. causam, modum, ordinem; e. periculum esse; e. conjurationem; e. jocum, without jesting, joking apart; exire e. fines. 2) Excepting, except: e. ducem reliqui rapaces; e. illa vocem cave mittas. II. Adv. 1) Without, on the outside: quaedam bona et in corpore et e.; excedere e. 2) E. quam si, except if, except when, unless. *3) (Lat.) Besides this, besides, moreover: debeco ei aliquid e.

EXTRAHO, xi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) To draw out or forth: e. telum e. vulnere. Hence: A) to bring out, to pull or drag out or forth: e. copias e. tabernaculis, in aciem; e. aliquem vi in publi- sum, trop., e. aliquid in lucem, to bring to light: B) to release, to set free, to extricate: e. aliquem ex periculo: C) to take away, to remove, to eradicate: e. errorem; e. religionem ex animis hominum. 2) To draw out, to protract, to prolong: e. rem dicendo; e. bellum in tertium annum, to lengthen out; e. diem, aetatem; e. somnum in diem, to sleep until broad day. Hence, e. aliquem = to delay any one, to put off or defer a thing for any one.

EXTRANEUS, a, um, adj. [extra]. (Mostly lat.) That is without, external, extraneous, strange, res; e. ornamenta, coming from abroad; freq., extranei, as subst. = strangers.

EXTRA-ORDINARIUS, a, um, adj. That is contrary to common order or custom, extraordinary, uncommon, unusual: pecunias ee., not derived from the common sources of income; ee. cohortes, composed of picked soldiers; e. honor.

EXTRARIUS, a, um, adj. [extra]. 1) That is without, outward, external, extrinsic: e. res, lux. 2) Strange, foreign, unrelated, homo.

EXTRĒMITAS, ātis, f. [extremus]. The extremity or end of any thing; a boundary, limit, circumference: e. regionum; e. mundi, circuli, globi; in mathematics = an area.

EXTRĒMUS — v. Exter III.

EXTRĪCO (dep. Extrīcor, Pl.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [ex-trīcae]. 1) To disentangle, to extricate, to set free: e. cervam plagis. 2) Trop.: A) to hunt up, to procure with difficulty: e. mercedem; nihil e. de aliquo, to obtain no information: B) to clear up, to unravel, solutionem.

EXTRIN-SĒCUS, adv. [extra]. 1) From without, from abroad: e. alicunde quaerere aliquid; metus belli e. imminentis. 2) Without, on the outside: e. vestire.

EX-TRŪDO, si, sum, 3. v. tr. To thrust out or forth, to push out, to drive away, to press or crowd out, to remove by force; e. aliquem domo, foras; e. mare, to repress (by the construction of dams, mounds, &c.); e. aliquem (in viam), to drive away, to shake off; e. merces, to put off, to sell.

EXTRUO — v. Exstruo.

EX-TŪBĒRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to swell out or up. 2) Tr., to cause to swell up, to raise, valles.

EX-TŪMEO, 2. v. intr. (Pl.) To swell up.

EX-TŪMESCO, 3. v. incho. intr. (Lat.) To swell up.

EX-TUNDO, tŭdi, tŭsum, 3. v. tr. To beat or strike out from something, to force out with difficulty: A) to form or fashion by blows with a hammer, &c.; hence, to finish, to complete, &c.: e. ancilia; e. librum, to compose laboriously: B) (poet.) quis nobis hanc artem extudit? struck out, found out, devised; e. alicui honorem, to procure: C) e. alicui aliquid, to gain, to extort any thing by entreaties: D) to drive away, fastidia.

EX-TURBO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To drive or thrust out with violence, to drive out, to chase or drive away: e. aliquem domo; e. hominem civitate; e. dentes et oculos alicui (Pl.), to knock out. 2) Trop., e. aliquem ex possessionibus; e. plebem ex agris, to drive off, to expel; e. aliquem ex numero bonorum, to exclude; (poet.) e. animas = to kill; e. mentem, to disturb the mind, to discontent; e. spem pacis, to remove; e. aegritudinem ex animo, to dispel.

EXŪBĒRANS, tis, adj. w. sup. [part. of ex-ubero]. (Lat.) Abundant, plentiful.

EXŪBĒRANTIA, ae, f. [exuberans]. (Lat.) A superabundance, exuberance.

EX-ŪBĒRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. [uber]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Intr.: A) to come forth, to appear or grow in abundance: amnis e.; eloquentia e. ex multis artibus, streams forth: B) to have a superabundance of any thing, to abound in: annus e. pomis. 2) Tr., to produce in abundance, ceras.

EXUL — v. Exsul.

EXULCĒRATIO, ōnis, f. [exulcero]. (Lat.) A festering, ulceration; trop., an aggravation of pain.

EX-ULCĒRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To make sore, to cause to ulcerate, cicatricem. 2) Trop. — a) to make worse, to irritate, to exasperate, to aggravate: e. ea quae sanare nequeas; e. dolorem; res exulceratae ab ipso rege, brought into a critical condition by the king himself — b) e. animum alicujus, to wound, to offend; e. gratiam, to disturb a good understanding.

EX-ŪLŪLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. (Poet.) To howl, to set up a howling. In partic., part. exululatus — a) act., having howled — b) pass., called upon or invoked with howling, dea.

EXULO — v. Exsulo.

EXULTO — v. Exsulto.

EXUNDATIO, ōnis, f. [exundo]. (Lat.) An overflowing of a stream.

EX-UNDO, āvi, —, 1. v. intr. (Poet. & lat.) 1) To flow out or over, to overflow, fons; vi tempestatum in adversa litora e., to be washed over to the opposite bank; trop., eo detracto quod exundat, superabounds, is in excess. 2) To pour forth, to come forth abundantly: cruor e. trunco; trop., eloquentia e. ex pluribus artibus, flows forth.

EX-UNGO, —, unctum, 3. v. tr. (Pl.) To squander in purchasing ointments; also pass., in the same signification.

EXUO, ui, ātum, 3. v. tr. [for exduo = exduo]. (Poet.) 1) To draw out, to draw forth: e. ensem e. vagina; e. telum ex vulnere. Hence, trop., e. se ex monstria, to lay aside his strange form; e. se ex laqueis, to extricate one's self from a difficulty; e. se iugo, to shake off the yoke; e. hominem ex homine, to cast off one's manhood; (poet.) e. laertos, to lay bare. 2) To take off or away. vis,

A) to take away any thing from one, to deprive of: a. alicui clipeum; trop., e. alicui aliquid ex animo, to change the opinion, &c., of any one: B) to lay or cast off, to divest one's self of any thing, to put away, to lay aside: e. pharetram humero, vestem, alas; e. sibi vincula. Hence, trop., e. antiquos mores; e. omnem humanitatem (cf. 1), cupidinem; e. jugum or servitutem, to shake off (cf. 1); (lat.) e. pacem, to disturb; e. amicitiam, to break up; e. promissa, fidem, to break; (poet.) e. animam, to yield up; (lat.) e. magistrum, to discard, to cast aside. 3) To strip, to divest, to despoil: e. aliquem veste; hence, in gen., to make bare, to deprive of, to rob: e. hostem castris; e. aliquem avitis bonis; e. aliquem agro paterno, to strip, to despoil of; abs., Lepidus exutus, stripped of everything; (poet.) exiit cornua, casts off, sheds.

*EX-URGIO, 2. v. tr. To squeeze out, penicillum.

EX-ÜRO, ussi, ustum, 3. v. tr. 1) (Poet.) To burn out, to remove by burning: scelus alicui exurit igne. 2) To burn up, to consume, to reduce to ashes, classem, villas. Hence, trop. (poet.) e. deos, to inflame with love; sitis me e., a burning thirst torments me; cura me e., tortures me. 3) (Poet. & lat.) To dry up, to parch, to drain: sol e. agros; e. paludem. 4) (Lat.) To consume, to destroy: venenum e. ferrum.

EXUSTIO, ñis, f. [exuro]. 1) A burning up, conflagration. *2) (Lat.) A drying up with heat, a parching, scorching, solis.

EXUVIAE, ãrum, f. pl. [exuo]. That which one has drawn or taken off from himself or another, i. e., clothing, armour, arms, &c. In partic.: A) = the skin stripped off of animals, esp. of snakes: B) ea. capitis (verticis) = the hair: C) ea. bubulae (Pl.), thongs or straps made of neat's-leather: D) clothing: E) equipments, arms; freq., the spoils taken from a conquered enemy: F) ea. navium, ship-beaks taken in a naval battle: G) (Pl.) prov., facere ee., to strip one's self of everything in order to bestow it upon others.

FABA, ae, f. A bean; prov., istaec in me eudetur f. (Pl.), I shall have to smart for it; trop., of things in the shape of a bean.

FABACEUS, or Fãbãcius, a, um, adj. [faba]. Of or belonging to a bean, bean-.

FABALIS, e, and Fãbãrius, a, um, adj. = Fabaceus; subet., Fabalia, inzm, n. pl., bean-walks.

FABARIA, ae, f. [Faba]. 'Bean Island.' An island in the Northern Sea, opposite the mouth of the Ems, now Borkum.

FABARIS, is, m. A small tributary of the Tiber, in the country of the Sabines, now Farauro.

FABELLA, ae, f. [dim. of fabula]. 1) A short narrative, story, or fable. 2) A short play.

FABER (I.), bri, m. [kindred with facio]. A worker in hard materials (wood, metal, stone); hence = a carpenter, joiner, smith, stone-cutter, &c. f. lignarius, a carpenter; f. aerarius, a copper-smith; (poet.) f. eboris, aeris; prov., faber quisque fortunae suae, every man is the maker of his own fortune; in the pl., freq. in gen. = handicraftsmen, artisans.

FABER (II.), bra, brum, adj. [Faber I.]. (Poet. & lat.) Artificial, workmanlike, ingenious.

FABERIANUS, a, um, adj. [Faberius]. Of or relating to Faberius, a debtor of Cicero's, Faberian.

FABIANUS, a, um, adj. [Fabius]. Of or belonging to a Fabius, Fabian; subet., Fabiani, ñrum, m. pl., persons of the Fabian tribe.

FABIUS (I.), ii, m., and Fabia, ae, f. The name of an old and powerful gens in Rome; thus, esp.

1) Quintus F. Pictor, a Roman annalist, at the beginning of the second Punic war. 2) Quintus F. Maximus Cunctator, the well-known dictator in the second Punic war. 3) Q. F. Maximus Allobrogicus, the conqueror of the Allobrogi, and consul 121 B. C. 4) M. F. Quinctilianus, a celebrated rhetorician (v. Quinctilianus).

FABIUS (II.), a, um, adj. [Fabius I.]. Of or belonging to a Fabius, Fabian: F. fornix, constructed by Q. F. Maximus Allobrogicus on the Via Sacra; tribus Fabia, one of the rural tribes.

FABRATERIA, ae, f. A small town in Latium, now Falvaterra.

FABRATERNI, ñrum, m. pl. [Fabrateria]. The inhabitants of Fabrateria.

FABRE, adv. [faber]. In a workmanlike manner, ingeniously, skillfully; hence, fabre factus, or (written as one word), Fabrefactus, a, um, adj., skillfully wrought or made.

FABRICA, ae, f. [faber]. 1) The workshop of a faber: exadversum est f. 2) The art or trade of an artificer or worker in hard materials: f. aeraria; pictura et f. ceteraeque artes. 3) A skilful working, skilful arranging or framing: f. aeris et ferri; f. membrorum nostrorum; f. consectionis materiae, the art of cutting and joining. Hence, trop. (Com.), a trick, stratagem.

FABRICATIO, ñis, f. [fabricor]. A framing or making with artistical skill, formation, construction: f. hominis, aedificiorum; trop., artifices, in verbe.

FABRICATOR, ñris, m. [fabricor]. A framer, an artificer, maker, contriver, operis, mandî; dolor f. leti, a cause of death.

FABRICIANUS, a, um, adj. [Fabricius]. Of or belonging to a Fabricius, Fabrician: F. venenum, prepared by C. Fabricius, a friend of Opianicus.

FABRICIUS (I.), ii, m., and Fabricia, ae, f. The name of a Roman gens; thus, esp. Caius F. Luscinus, consul 281 and 278 B. C., celebrated for his bravery and integrity in the wars against King Pyrrhus. 9

FABRICIUS (II.), a, um, adj. [Fabricius I.]. Of or pertaining to a Fabricius, Fabrician: F. pons, a bridge over the Tiber, built by L. Fabricius, now Ponte di quattro capi.

FABRICOR, ātus, dep., also (ante-cl. & lat.) Fabrīco, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [faber]. 1) To make artificially of hard materials (wood, stone, metal, &c.), to frame, to build, to forge: f. signa, navēs, gladium. 2) In gen., to make, to form, to fashion, to frame: natura fabricata est sensus nostros mentemque et totam constructionem hominis; f. verba. Hence, trop. = to devise, esp. something bad, to contrive, to hatch out, dolum.

FABRILIS, e, adj. [faber]. Of or used by an artificer in hard materials, soaprum: erratum f.; subst., Fabrilia, ium, n. pl., the tools of a workman.

FĀBŪLA (I.), ae, f. [dim. of faba]. A small bean.

FĀBŪLA (II.), ae, f. [for]. 1) (Mostly poet. & lat.) A tale, narration, story: additur fabulae, etc., it is further added to the story that, &c.; non longa est f. 2) The talk of the people, rumour, common talk: habes fabulas urbis; fabulam fieri, in fabulis esse, to be much talked of, to be the subject of common talk; fabula est, it is said, it is rumoured. Hence (Com.) = an affair, matter: quae haec f. est? what is going on here? 3) In partic., a fictitious narrative, a fable, fiction, story: num me cogis etiam fabulis credere? fetae ff.; non fabula rumor ille fuit; hence = the Aesopian fable, allegory: f. de membris humanis; (poet.) as adj., fabulae manes = fabulosi; (Com.) fabulae! stuff! nonsense! 4) A poem; in partic.: A) freq., a dramatic poem, a play, drama: docere f.; dare f.; f. stat or cadit: B) an epic poem, e. g. (Hor.), of the Iliad.

FĀBŪLĀRIS, e, adj. [fabula]. (Lat.) Fabulosus: historia f., legendary history, mythology.

FĀBŪLĀTOR, ōris, m. [fabulor]. (Lat.) 1) A narrator. 2) A writer of fables, a fabulist.

FĀBŪLOB, ātus, 1. v. dep intr. [fabula]. (Mostly poet. & lat.) To talk, to chat, to converse (of an unrestrained and easy conversation, by way of pastime — cf. loquor, dico, garror, etc.): f. cum aliquo; fabulantur inter se; f. alicui aperte, to tell one plainly; f. alia, of other subjects; homines ff., filiam mihi inventam esse, it is the common talk that, &c.

FĀBŪLOSE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [fabula]. Fabulously.

FĀBŪLOŒSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [fabula]. Fabulous — a) of that about which there are many fables, that is frequently mentioned or treated of in fable, Atlas, Hydaspes; palumbes ff. — b) rich in fables, carmina Graecorum, antiquitas.

FĀBŪLUS, i. m. [dim. of faba]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A small bean.

FĀCESSO, sivi, situm, 3. g. tr. [intens. of facio]. 1) (Poet.) To make, to perform, to execute, jocos, jussa. 2) Esp. of something disagreeable, to create, to cause, to occasion, alicui negotia, periculum. 3) To put away, to intermit, dictum; hence, intr. = to depart, to go away; freq., in an odious sense = to be off, to pack off: f. ex urbe; faceisse hinc Tarquinius, betake yourself from hence to Tarquinii.

FĀCĒTE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [facetus]. 1) Cleverly, aptly. 2) Wittily, humorously, facetiously.

FĀCĒTIAE, ārum, f. pl., also (ante-cl. & lat.) Fācētia, ae, f. [facetus]. 1) Wit, pleasantry, facetiousness, drollery; witticisms, refined and happy conceits (cf. dicacitas, cavillatio, sales). “sales in dicendo multum valent, quorum duo sunt genera, unum facetiarum, alterum dicacitatis. Utetur orator utroque: sed altero in nar- rando aliquid venuste, altero in jaciendo mit- tendoque ridiculo.” (Cic.) — Asperae ff. 2) (Com.) — a) gracefulness, beauty — b) a shrewd, clever action, a good joke.

FĀCĒTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [prob. instead of factus, from facio]. 1) (Ante-cl. & lat.) Well-shaped, pretty, pes. 2) (Poet.) Of the exterior, or of behaviour, graceful, agreeable; fine, elegant, polite: f. mulier; vir f. et magnificus; f. tunicis subductis, who wishes to pass for a fashionable man, because, &c. 3) Of speech, elegant, fine; witty, humorous, jocosae: homo f. et urbanus; genus jocandi f.

FĀCIES, ei, f. [prob. fr. facio]. 1) External form, shape, figure, bodily structure, alioquin. Hence: A) external appearance, look, aspect, form: f. arboris, vehiculi; turba insignis sordibus et facie reorum; haec f. Trojae, quum caperetur, erat; facies urbis immutata erat; in montis faciem, so that it appeared like a mountain; legatus secum attulerat faciem senatus, the countenance, influence of the senate: B) (Tac.) appearance, a pretence, pretext (in opp. to reality): facie consilii publici: C) = a kind, sort: plures eloquentiae ff.; ad istam f. est morbus, thus the sickness looks, is of such a kind. 2) The human face, countenance (in gen. — cf. os and vultus): facies homini tantum, ceteris os aut rostra (lat.), in f. vultuque inerat vicia; f. egregia, liberalis; nosse aliquem de f., by sight, personally; also (poet.) = a beautiful face, beauty: f. neglecta peribit.

FĀCILE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [prop. the n. of facilis]. 1) Easily, without trouble or difficulty: f. aliquid ediscere; f. aliquem superare. 2) To strengthen superlatives and other expressions denoting a high degree of any quality — by far, indisputably, certainly, without contradiction: f. princeps; vir totius Graeciae f. doctissimus; so, also, with verbs denoting superiority: Thucydides dicendi artifício f. vicit omnes. 3) Not (hand) facile, not easily = hardly, scarcely (a softened form of negation): non f. in ullo majorem diligentiam cognovi. 4) Willingly, readily, without hesitation: f. hoc patior, that I readily grant. 5) (Mostly ante-cl. & lat.) Agreeably, well, comfortably, pleasantly: f. vivere, agitare; nusquam facilis sum; animadvertit copias suas non f. diduci posse, not safely.

FÁCILIS, e, adj. w. comp. & sup. [facio]. Prop., that may be done, practicable. 1) Easy — that may be easily done (of. levis), is not connected with any trouble or difficulty: f. res, causa, ascensus, defensio; victus f., easy to obtain; favor f., easy to gain; (poet.) f. somnus, into which one easily falls; illud erat f. ad credendum, easy to believe; hoc erat f. dicta, easily said; freq., facile est hoc intelligere, it is easy to understand this; also (mostly poet. & lat.), with an infin., facilis corrumpi, easily bribed; pons facilissimae custodiae, easy to guard; res est in (ex, de) facili, is easy. Hence: A) that may be easily used for any purpose, suitable, convenient: campus facilis operi, on which siege-engines may be easily erected; f. divisui, easily divided: B) of persons who are easily moved to any thing, ready, willing: f. bello = keen for war. 2) Of persons who perform any thing with facility and skill, ready, skilful: f. et expeditus ad dicendum; facilis sermone Graeco; faciles victi, who easily make a livelihood. 3) Of character, friendly, submissive, yielding, compliant; or, of princes, condescending, affable, indulgent, mild, merciful: benignus et f.; lenis et f.; f. in hominibus audiendis admittendisque; mores ff.; dii ff. in tua vota (poet.). 4) Of fortune, &c., propitious, favourable, fortunae, res.

FÁCILITAS, átis, f. [facilis]. 1) Facility — a) (lat.) of that which is easily managed or done: f. soli, lightness of soil, so that it is easily cultivated — b) as a personal quality, of one who readily and willingly does any thing = aptness, proneness, readiness: f. audendi. In partic., f. aetatis puerilis = docility, readiness to comprehend; also = fluency of expression or delivery: f. extemporalia. 2) Kindness, friendliness, complaisance, politeness; or, of persons of higher standing, condescension, affability: comitas et f.; f. et humanitas; f. sermonis. *3) (Lat.) Levity, flippancy.

FÁCINOROSUS, a, um, adj. [facinus]. Criminal, vicious, full of crime or vice, homo, vita.

FÁCINUS, ōris, n. [facio]. A deed, act (conspicuous and important — cf. factum, scelus, etc.): f. praeclarissimum, pulcherrimum: f. nefarium; f. inauditum et singulare. Hence, in partic.: A) a violent and criminal act, a misdeed, crime: scelus et f.; committere (patrare, facere) f.; hence (poet.), of a poisoned cup as the instrument of a misdeed: B) (Pl.) = a thing, circumstance.

FÁCIO, fēci, factum, 3. v. tr. & intr. I. Tr. — 1) To make, in the widest sense of the word:

A) = to build, to form, to create, to prepare, &c. f. materiam, aedem, vas; f. castra, to pitch a camp; f. exercitum, manum, classem, to procure to raise: B) — to perform, to execute, to accomplish, to commit, to make, to do: f. initium, gradum, iter (a journey); f. incursionem; f. inducias, pacem, to conclude; f. injuriam, to perpetrate; f. proelium, to give; f. bellum, to commence; f. promissum, to fulfil; f. stipendia, to perform military service; f. verbum, to say a word; f. verba, to speak; f. modum, to determine; f. periculum, to make trial of, to try: C) — to cause, to produce, to call forth, to excite, to inspire: f. admirationem rei alicujus; thus, likewise, f. desiderium, suspensionem, metum, spem, odium vitae; f. perniciem alicui: D) — to procure, to give, to cause: f. sibi magnas opes; f. alicui potestatem (copiam) dicendi, to give one opportunity, permission to speak; f. alicui negotia, to cause trouble; f. alicui transitum, to allow a passage; f. sibi viam, to make a way; f. alicui securitatem, to procure; f. alicui suaviū (Pl.), to give a kiss: E) f. jacturam, to make a sacrifice, to suffer a loss; thus, likewise, f. damnum, detrimentum; f. naufragium, to suffer: F) f. alicui gratiam rei alicujus, to release one from any thing, to pardon: G) (lat.) = to make in travelling, to travel: f. duo stadia: H) (lat.) to spend, to pass: f. paucos dies unā.

2) = To take care that, to cause, to bring about, followed by 'ut,' 'ne,' or merely a subj.: faciam ut mei semper meminerit; fac ne quid aliud dicas = do not say any thing else; (poet.) fecisti me cernere letum nati, you have made me see.

3) To bring a person or thing into any state or condition, to make, to constitute: f. judicem iratum; f. filiam heredem; f. illos consules; populos eos f. qui, etc., chooses those, &c.; thus; likewise, f. aliquid dicionis (potestatis) suae (sui imperii), to bring under one's dominion; f. aliquid sui muneris, to claim that any thing shall be considered as one's gift; f. terram suam, to subdue; f. aliquem suum, to make one a friend.

4) To esteem, to value: f. aliquem magni, highly; f. aliquem pluris, more; nihilo eum f.; parum id f., little; aliter nos faciunt quam aequum est, they judge of us.

5) To introduce in speech or writing, to represent, to make: Xenophon facit Socratem dicentem; Homerus Herculem ab Ulixē conveniri fecit.

6) To pretend, to feign: facio me alias res agere. Hence = to assume, to suppose: faciamus, deos non esse; in partic., the imper. fac, suppose: fac animos non remanere post mortem.

7) To follow or carry on a business, to occupy one's self with: f. mercaturam, haruspicinam.

8) Particular combinations: A) f. sacra or rem divinam pro civibus, to offer or institute a sacrifice; and, hence, abs. = to sacrifice: f. deo, to a god; and (poet.), f. bovem, to sacrifice a cow: B) quid faciam (facias, etc.) hoc homine or huic homini, and (rar.) de meis rebus? what shall I do with ...?

II. Intr., or abs. — 1) With adv., or similar expressions — to do, to act, or to behave in any manner: bene fecit S. qui abiit, did right in going away; f. imperite; facere non possum quin scribam, I cannot do otherwise than write. 2) F. cum or ab aliquo, to side with one, to take part with one, to be of one's party (opp. to f. contra aliquem): cum illo Lentulus f.: veritas f. cum illo; illud nihilo magis ab adversariis quam ab nobis facit, is no more to the advantage of our opponents than to ours. 3) (Poet. & lat.) To be of use or service to, to benefit, to be suitable or fitting for: nec coelum nec aquae faciunt; ad talem formam non f. iste locus, this place is not suited to such beauty; dura corona non f. capiti meo; hoc idem facit illi quod, etc.

*FACTEON [facio, with the Greek verbal ending — tor]. A word jocosely formed by Cicero (instead of faciendum) = it is to be valued: non flocci illos consulatus f.

FACTIO, ōnis, f. [facio]. 1) (Rar.) A making, doing, acting: quae haec f. est (Pl.)? what's going on here? what's the matter here? testamenti f. = the right of making a will or testament. 2) A party, company, order, class: A) (ante-cl.) alliance in private life by affinity or acquaintance, relationship: neque nos tanta factione quantā tu sumus, we are not of so great a family: B) freq. of combinations in public life — a (political) party, side, faction: in singulis domibus ff. sunt; sine factione, without party-spirit. Freq. with the odious meaning of an oppressive ascendancy, e. g., that of the thirty tyrants at Athens: haec inter bonos amicitia, inter malos f. est; per vim et f., by force and party-influence: C) a division or troop of charioteers, in the Circensian games.

FACTIOSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [factio]. Heading a party, powerful, or seeking to form a party, factious: homo potens et f.; tyrannis f., an oligarchy; (Pl.) factiosus lingua, mighty with the tongue.

FACTITO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [intens. of facio]. 1) To make or do frequently, to be wont to make or do: f. aliquid, versus, simulacra; f. inducias, to conclude a truce. 2) To make one any thing = to appoint, to constitute: f. aliquem heredem. 3) To practise, to exercise or carry on (a trade, profession, &c.): f. medicinam.

*FACTO, 1. v. tr. [intens. of facio]. (Pl.) = Factito, to make, to do.

FACTOR, ōris, m. [facio]. Prop., a maker, doer. 1) In partic., an oil-presser. 2) (Pl.) F. (pila), he who strikes the ball, the batsman.

FACTUM, i, n. [part. of facio]. Any thing done, a deed, an action (cf. facinus), both as a part. joined with adverbs (bene, male, egregie f., a good, bad, conspicuous deed), and as a subst. joined with adjectives (bonum, malum, egregium f.): illius, meum f.; illustria ff. In partic. — a) bonum factum, a form placed at the commencement of official decrees and edicts = the modern, In the name of God! — b) (poet.) ff. boum = ἔργα βούρ, ploughed fields.

FACTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of facio].

1) Made, done: factus nihilo facit (Pl.), he is no nearer bringing it about = it is of no advantage to him. 2) Worked, wrought, argentum; trop., oratio f., elaborate.

FACŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of fax]. A little torch, a small piece of wood used as a torch.

FACULTAS, ātis, f. [facul, old form for facile]. 1) Possibility, practicability; hence, the opportunity, means, faculty of doing any thing: dare alicui facultatem aliquid faciendi; reliquis fugae facultas datur; nonnunquam nobis datur f. ut, etc.; res habet f., is practicable; and, also, si facultas erit, if it be possible; and, quoad facultas feret; multae ff. mihi dabuntur, I shall have many opportunities; consideremus ceteras ff., the other circumstances (which made the thing possible or easy); f. talium sumptuum, the means of meeting such expense. Hence = ability, talent, skill, dexterity: f. dicendi; poetica f., poetical talent; sometimes simply f. = f. dicendi, a talent for speaking, oratorical talent; thus, f. extemporalis (q. v.). 2) A supply, store, a sufficient quantity: f. numorum, navium; hence, freq. in the pl. = means, property, wealth: tuas me ff. sustinent; mutant ff. et commoda, they exchange, &c.; ff. Italiae, the resources.

FACUNDE, adv. w. sup. [facundus]. In easy and pleasing language, fluently, eloquently.

FACUNDIA, ae, f. [facundus]. (Cicero and Caesar use neither this nor the kindred words.) The faculty of speaking easily and fluently, fluency or easiness of speech, natural eloquence (not so comprehensive as eloquentia, q. v.): f. Graeca. *FACUNDIOSUS, a, um, adj. (Lat.) = Facundus.

FACUNDITAS, ātis, f. (Pl.) = Facundia, q. v.

FACUNDUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [for]. Speaking fluently, eloquent (cf. disertus and eloquens), homo; also, oratio, dictum f., fluent.

FAECŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of faex]. Salt of tartar, deposited as a crust by wine, and used as a condiment.

FAESŪLAE, ārum, f. pl. A town in Etruria, now Fiesole.

FAESŪLANUS, a, um, adj. [Faesulae]. Of or pertaining to Faesulae; subst., Faesulani, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Faesulae.

FAEX, cia, f. 1) The sediment of liquors, dregs, lees: poti faece tenuis cadit. Hence, improp.: A) = faecula, salt of tartar: B) the liquor or brine of pickles: C) the sediment, dregs, remains of dry things, e. g., f. salis. 2) Trop. = the lowest and vilest portions of any thing: f. populi, the dregs of the community; tu quidem de f. hauris, you cite only the worst orators.

FAGINEUS, } a, um, adj. [fagus]. Of beech,
FAGINUS, } beechen, materia, poculum.

FAGUS, i, f. [= φῡς]. A beech-tree.

FALA, ae, f. [of Etruscan origin]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A scaffold: A) a kind of tower, used at sieges, from which missiles were thrown; hence, prov., subire sub f. (Pl.) = to venture into the greatest danger: B) one of the seven wooden pillars at the extremity of the 'spina,' in the Circus Maximus at Rome.

FALARICA (also Phalarica), ae, f. 1) A (long) spear thrown by the hand. 2) A long missile, bound about with tow, and smeared with pitch, which was hurled from a 'catapulta' upon the works or into the camp of an enemy.

FALCARIUS, ii, m. [falx]. A scythe-maker.

FALCATUS, a, um, adj. [falx]. 1) Furnished or set with scythes, currus. 2) Shaped like a scythe, ensis, cauda.

FALCIDIANUS, a, um, adj. [Falcidius]. Of or relating to a Falcidius, Falcidian.

FALCIDIUS, ii, m., and Falcidia, ae, f. The name of a Roman gens; thus, Caius F., a tribune of the people in the time of Cicero.

FALCIFER, ēra, ērum, adj. [falx - fero]. (Poet.) Scythe-bearing, freq. of Saturn.

FALCULA, ae, f. [dim. of falx]. 1) A small sickle or pruning-knife. 2) A Roman surname.

FALERII, ōrum, m. pl. The capital of the Falisci (q. v.), now Civita Castellana.

FALERNUS, a, um, adj. Falernian, of or belonging to the Falernian territory: ager Falernus, a region of Campania, at the foot of Mount Massicus, celebrated for its excellent wine; hence, Falernum vinum (vitis, uva, etc.); subst., Falernum, i, n.: 1) Falernian wine: 2) a villa belonging to Pompey.

FALISCI, ōrum, m. pl. 1) A people of Etruria, called also Aequi Falisci. 2) The capital of the Falisci, later called by the Romans Falerii, q. v.

FALISCUS, a, um, adj. [Falisci]. Of or pertaining to the Falisci, Faliscan.

FALLACIA, ae, f. [fallax]. (Mostly in the st.; only poet. & lat. in the sing.) Deceit, intrigue; an artifice, trick: fraudus et ff.; per lolum et ff.

*FALLACI-LŌQUUS, a, um, adj. [loquor]. (Ante-cl.) Speaking deceitfully.

*FALLACIOSUS, a, um, adj. [fallacia]: (Lat.) Deceitful, fallacious.

FALLACITER, adv. w. sup. [fallax]. Deceitfully, fallaciously.

FALLAX, ōis, adj. [fallo]. Deceitful, fallacious, faithless, treacherous, homo; also, of things and abstract objects: f. spes; arva ff., disappointing one's hopes by barrenness; so, also, herbae ff.; interrogationes ff.; (lat.) fallax amicitiae, faithless in friendship. (With comp. & sup.)

FALLO, fēlli, falsum, 3. v. tr. [kindred with σφάλω]. 1) To deceive, to cheat, to impose upon: f. aliquem omni fraude et perfidia; spes eum f., deceived him; but, is f. spem, opinionem, he dis appointed the expectation formed of him; nisi omnia me fallunt, nisi quid me fallit, and pass. nisi fallor, if I am not mistaken; thus, likewise, id (ea res) me fallit, I am mistaken in this; sententia me fefellerit, I was mistaken; fallor, I am mistaken; ea res me falsum non habuit, did not deceive me. In partic. = to act faithlessly with reference to a promise or obligation, to violate, to break: f. fidem, promissum, jusjurandum; f. deos testes, to act faithlessly although the gods were invoked as witnesses; 'si sciens fallo' (a formula in swearing), if I knowingly break my oath; (poet.) f. mandata, not to execute, to neglect. 2) To escape the notice of any one, to be unnoticed by, to be unknown to one: fefellerunt custodes, they were not observed by the guard; nec veniens fefellerit Tusculanum duces, he did not escape the notice of; hos me non f.; also, abs., per biennium fefellerat, had not been noticed during two years; (poet.) qui natus moriensque fefellerit, whose birth and death have remained unknown. Freq., impera., non me fallit, in lege nulla esse ejusmodi capita, I know very well; (unusual) neque Caesarem fefellerit quin, etc.; (ante-cl.) non me fallit animi. 3) (Poet. & lat.) To make pass unnoticed or imperceptibly (of time or something disagreeable), to beguile, to pass away: f. horas sermonibus, to beguile with conversation; thus, likewise, f. noctes; f. curam, dolores = to soothe, to alleviate; labor f. curas, studium f. laborem, makes one forget. 4) (Poet.) F. faciem alicujus = δολοῦν μορφῇ, to assume deceitfully; f. terga lupo, to hide one's self under the shape of a wolf.

FALSARIUS, ii, m. [falsus]. (Lat.) A forger of written documents.

FALSE, adv. [falsus]. Falsely.

*FALSĪ-DĪCUS, a, um, adj. [falsus - dico]. (Pl.) Speaking falsely.

*FALSĪ-FĪCUS, a, um, adj. [falsus - facio]. (Pl.) Acting falsely.

*FALSĪ-JŪRIUS, a, um, adj. [falsus - juro]. (Pl.) Swearing falsely.

*FALSĪ-LŌQUUS, a, um, adj. [falsus - loquor]. (Pl.) Speaking falsely, lying.

FALSĪMŌNIA, ae, f. [falsus]. (Pl.) A deceit, imposition.

*FALSĪ-PĀRENS, tis, adj. [falsus]. (Poet.) Having a pretended father.

FALSO (ante-cl. also False), adv. [falsus]. Falsely: — 1) Untruly, erroneously, in a manner contrary to truth or fact: f. memoriae proditum est; f. dicebatur vivere; also, abs., instead of a sentence — in talibus rebus aliud utile aliud honestum videri solet: falso = but this is false.

2) Without cause, unjustly, vituperari, queri.

FALSUS, a, um, adj. w. sup. [part. of fallo].

False: — 1) = Untrue, wrong, contrary to truth or fact, unreliable: f. fama, nuncius, appellatio, argumentum. Freq., subst., Falsum, i, n., a falsehood, untruth. 2) = Uttering an untruth, both knowingly = lying, dissembling, hypocritical, and involuntarily = erring, mistaken: f. vates, homo; and, subst., Falsus, i, m. = a liar, deceiver; f. es, you are mistaken. 3) = Feigned, pretended, spurious, counterfeit: f. literae, lis; f. Simois (poet.), called after the real Simois. 4) = Unfounded, vain, unmerited: f. spes, terrores, opprobria, honor.

FALX, cis, f. 1) A sickle, scythe. 2) As a military implement: A) f. muralis, a wall-hook, a long pole, with an iron sickle-shaped end, used at sieges, to pull down walls, &c.: B) a kind of sharp knife, fastened to a long pole, used in naval engagements, to cut the ropes of hostile ships.

FĀMA, ae, f. [φήμη]. 1) A saying, report, rumour, common talk, tradition: a Brundusio nulla adhuc f. venerat; f. est (tenet, fert), there is a rumour; f. nunciat, says; f. de re aliqua, sometimes rei alicujus, about any thing; fama percrebuit, illum a Caesare obsideri. 2) = Public opinion, the voice of the people: f. popularis; f. et opinio hominum; f. forensis. In partic. = the reputation of a person; very rar. (poet.), of a bad reputation, ill-fame, infamy: usually = good reputation, good name, renown, fame: f. et existimatio alicujus; f. ejus agitur, is at stake; f. dicendi, eloquentiae, the reputation of eloquence; quaerere f., to obtain; damnum famae; pertinet hoc ad f. populi Romani, glory. 3) Personified, as a goddess, the daughter of Terra (v. Virg. A. 4. 174 sq.).

*FĀMĀTUS, a, um, adj. [fama]. (Doubtful read.) Ill-famed, of bad repute, causa.

FĀMĒLICUS, a, um, adj. [fames]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Famished, starved, hungry; as subst., a hungry person.

FĀMES, is, f. (abl. sing. fame). 1) Hunger (in gen. — cf. inedia, esuries): confectus (enectus) fame. Hence — a) of a people, or at least a great number = famine: f. est in Asia — b) = extreme poverty, want: rejicere aliquem ad f. 2) Trop.: A) (poet.) an insatiable longing for any thing, greediness, hunger, thirst, auri; f. majorem, for greater things: *B) of speech = poverty, meagreness: jejunitas ac f.

*FĀMĪGERĀTIO, ōnis, f. [fama-gero]. (Pl.) Tale-bearing, the spreading of a report.

*FĀMĪGERĀTOR, ōris, m. [fama-gero]. (Pl.) A tale-bearer.

FĀMĪGERĀTUS, a, um, adj. [fama-gero]. (Lat.) Famed, celebrated.

FĀMĪLIA, ae (or genit. as, when united with pater, mater, etc.), f. [famulus]. 1) The whole of the persons living under one roof, a household; in partic.: A) domestica, family slaves: emere f.; tot ff. elegantissimae; armare f., his slaves; hence, also = bondsmen, serfs, vassals: Martis f., belonging to the temple of Mars; thus, likewise, familia Orgetorigis, ad decem millia hominum: B) the house — a) (rar.) with reference to property and fortune — the family estate, domestic property, fortune: herisco familiam (v. Herisco) — b) with reference to persons — the family; hence the combinations paterfamilias or paterfamiliae, materfamilias or materfamiliae, rarely filius f. and filia f., the father of the house, the master, the head of the family, the mother, the mistress of the house, &c. (in these forms, the first word is declined regularly; the gen. familias remains unchanged). 2) The family as a division of a Roman gens: vetus et illustris f.; Sulla gentis patriciae nobilis fuit, familiā prope jam extinctā (i. e., Cneius Cornelius Sulla = Cneius of the gens Cornelia and the family of Sullae). Some Roman writers use f. incorrectly instead of gens: f. Junia, Claudia. 3) Trop. — a) a troop of fencers or actors: f. gladiatorum — b) a sect of philosophers: f. tota Peripateticorum. Hence (both of persons and things), ducere f. = to be at the head, to be the first.

FĀMĪLIĀRIS, e, adj. w. comp. & sup. [familia]. 1) (Ante-cl. & lat.) Of or pertaining to servants; only as subst. = a servant. 2) Of or pertaining to a household, domestic, household: focus f., the domestic hearth; negotia ff. In particular, res f. household affairs; usually, with reference to possession = fortune, property: thus, likewise, copiae ff. 3) Of or pertaining to a family, family: funus, moeror f. 4) Trop.: A) of persons, well-acquainted with a family or household, familiar, friendly, intimate; freq., as subst., Familiaris, is, m., a familiar acquaintance, intimate friend: amicus f.; homo mihi familiarissimus; f. meus, ejus: B) of things, confidential, private, epistola, sermones; jura ff., the rights of friendship. Hence = well-known, common: haec ars f. est Italiae; vox illa auribus meis f. est; thus, likewise, of an author, Demosthenes mihi est familiarior, I am more familiar with D. 5) In the lang. of the haruspices, f. denotes that part of a victim which relates to the native country, in opp. to what is foreign and hostile.

FĀMĪLIĀRITAS, ātis, f. [familiaris]. 1) Intimate acquaintance or intercourse, familiarity, intimacy: cum illo mihi est (intercedit) summa f. et consuetudo, I am on very intimate terms with him; delector familiaritate Virginii; in the pl., of friendship with several persons. *2) (Lat.) In the pl. = confidants, intimate friends: omnes amicitias et ff. affixit.

FĀMĪLIARITER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [familiaris]. Familiarly, intimately, on intimate terms, arridere; f. ferre mortem alicuius, to take a deep interest in; odio es nimis f., by your too intimate conduct.

FĀMŌSUS, a, um, adj. with sup. [fama]. 1) (Poet. & lat.) That is much talked of; hence, famous, glorious, urbs, victoria. 2) Infamous, notorious, homo, mulier. 3) (Poet. & lat.) Defamatory, calumnious, carmen; f. libelli, libels.

FĀMŪLĀRIS, e, adj. [famulus]. (Rar.) Of or pertaining to servants or slaves: f. vestis; (poet.) famularia jura dare, to enact slave-laws, i. e., to reduce a people into slavery.

FĀMŪLĀTUS, ūs, m. [famulus]. (Rar.) Servitude, bondage (but not in an odious sense): ease in f.

FĀMŪLOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. [famulus]. To serve, to be a servant, alicui.

FĀMŪLUS, i, m., and FĀMŪLA, ae, f. [from the Oscan word famel, 'a slave']. A slave (as a member of the household; hence, denoting a patriarchal relation—conf. servus, mancipium); a servant, attendant: f. alicuius; trop., si virtus famula fortunae est: (poet.) f. Minervae, of the Calydonian boar as the instrument of Minerva's wrath. Hence (poet.), as adj. = serving, subject: tradiderat famulas jam tibi Rhēnus aquas.

FĀNĀTICUS, a, um, adj. [fanum]. 1) Inspired by a deity, enthusiastic: ff. Galli, the priests of Cybele; furor f. 2) In gen., frantic, raving, mad: philosophi isti superstitiosi et paene ff.; f. cursus, error.

FANDUM, i, n. [gerund of for]. (Poet.) That may be uttered = right.

FANNIĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Fannius]. Of or belonging to a Fannius, Fannian: epitome Bruti Fanniana, an abridgement of the annals of C. Fannius (l.), made by Brutus.

FANNIUS (I.) ii, m., and Fannia, ae, f. The name of a Roman gens; thus, esp. 1) C. F. Strabo, a historian of the time of Scipio Africanus Minor, son-in-law of Laelius. 2) C. F. Strabo, a son of the preceding, and consul 122 B.C. 3) An orator of the time of the younger Pliny.

FANNIUS (II.), a, um, adj. [Fannius I.]. Of or belonging to a Fannius, Fannian: lex F., introduced by the consul C. Fannius.

FĀNOR, 1. v. dep. intr. [fanum]. (Lat.) (Doubtful read.) To revel about.

FĀNUM (I.), i, n. [for]. A place consecrated by reciting a dedicatory formula, a sanctuary; in part. = a temple, with its adjacent consecrated ground (Greek temenos—cf. templum, aedes, etc.): ff. atque delubra; templa ao ff.; f. Dianae.

FĀNUM (II.), i, n. (F. Fortunae, in Tac.) A town in Umbria, now Fano.

FAR, farria, n. Spelt, a kind of grain (the earliest food of the Romans); sometimes = grain or meal, in gen.

FARCIO, rai, rtum, 4. v. tr. 1) To stuff full, e. gram, to fill up: f. pulvum rosā; edaces et se ultra quam capiunt farcientes. Hence: A) = to fatten, gallinas: B) trop., to fill, to overload: fartus re aliqua. 2) (Lat.) To stuff or cram into something: f. pannos in os alicuius. Hence, part., as subst., Fartum, i, n., that which is stuffed into something, stuffing; jocosely (Pl.), non vestem mulieris amant sed f. vestis = the body.

FARFĀRUS (I.), or Farfērus, i, m. Celt's-foot, a plant.

FARFĀRUS (II.), i, m. Another name of the river Fabaris, q. v.

FĀRĪNA, ae, f. [far]. 1) Flour, meal; improperly (poet. & lat.) of things looking like meal: f. marmoris, marble-dust. 2) Trop., the material of which any thing is made; hence, kind, quality, materna; (poet.) nostrae farinae, of our stamp.

FĀRĪNĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [farina]. Of or belonging to meal.

FARRĀGO, inis, f. [far]. 1) Mash, a mixture of far and other grains or herbs, given to cattle. 2) Trop.: *A) a medley, jumble, libri: *B) a trifle, bagatelle.

FARRĀTUS, a, um, adj. [far]. 1) Containing grain. 2) Made of grain or corn: omnia ff., farinaceus food.

FARTOR, ōris, m. [farcio]. 1) (Lat.) A fattener of fowls. 2) A sausage-maker.

FARTUM — v. Farcio.

FARTŪRA, ae, f. [farcio]. 1) A fattening. 2) Concr., the rubbish of a building.

FAS, n. [for]. (Only in nom. and acc. sing.) 1) That which is in accordance with divine law (as contained both in explicit religious precepts and in the moral sense of every man); hence = divine law, duty (considered as the will of the gods), divine ordinance (in opp. to jus): jus ac f. omne delere, to tread under foot human and divine laws; contra f., auspicio, religiones; nihil quod aut per naturam f. sit aut per leges liceat. Hence: A) in gen., right, equitable, lawful, permitted: huic legi abrogari non f. est; si hoc est f. dictu; leporem gustare f. non putant; ultra f. (poet.), more than is just: B) (lat.) incorrectly = jus, human law: f. gentium, patriae, armorum. 2) Fate, the will of the gods: non est f., Germanos superare; si cadere f. (poet.), that I shall fall.

FASCIA, ae, f. [kindred with fascis]. 1) A broad strip of cloth for binding; a bandage, band, fillet — used: A) to bind — a) diseased parts of the body — b) the legs and feet, as a protection against the cold and the chafing of the feet by the boots (only by effeminate persons): B) as a bandage under the breasts of females = a stomacher: C) as a bandage around the head = a diadem, turban: D) as rollers, swaddling-clothes for infants: E) f. lecti, a bed-girth. *2) Trop. (poet.), a cloudy streak in the heavens.

*FASCIATUM, adv. [fascia]. In bundles (censured by Quinctil.).

FASCICULUS, i, m. [dim. of fascia]. A small bundle, packet (esp. of letters); also, a bunch of flowers, a bouquet, nosegay.

FASCINATIO, ōnis, f. [fascino]. (Lat.) An enchanting, bewitching.

FASCINO, 1. v. tr. [Baccharis]. (Poet. & lat.) To enchant, to bewitch, aliquid.

FASCINUM, i, n. [Baccharis]. 1) An enchantment. 2) = Penis, q. v.

FASCIOLA, ae, f. [dim. of fascia]. A small bandage; pl. = bandages for the legs and arms, worn by women and effeminate men.

FASCIS, is, m. [kindred with φάσκιος]. 1) Sing. (poet. & lat.), a bundle, fagot, packet, lignorum; also = the equipage of soldiers, the burden of bees. 2) Pl., esp. the fasces, a bundle of rods with an axe in the middle, borne by lictors before the chief magistrates, partly for executing their judgments, partly as a symbol of their authority: demere securas de ff., to deprive magistrates of the power of passing and executing sentence of death; demittere (submittere) fasces alicui, to lower as a mark of respect; trop. = to give precedence to any one; ff. laureati (after a victory); ff. versi, inverted (at a funeral); hence, trop. = posts of honour, esp. the consulship: dare (arripere) alicui ff.

FASTI — v. Fastus.

FASTIDIO, Ivi or ii, Itum, 4. v. tr. & intr. [fastidium]. 1) To loathe, to feel disgust at, aliquid. 2) Trop., of the mind, &c., to disdain, to dislike, to scorn, to reject scornfully: f. rem aliquam; f. preces alicujus, omnes duces; f. aliquid facere; illi ff., se inspicere, they consider it an affront to be inspected; thus, likewise, plebs fastidire coepit, munus vulgatum a civibus esse in socios, to see with dislike, to be ashamed, &c.; f. in recte factis, to conceive a dislike for, to judge unfavourably; (ante-cl.) is mei f., he despises me; abs. (ante-cl.), to bear one's self haughtily, to be haughty, disdainful: ut fastidit!

FASTIDIOSE, adv. w. comp. [fastidiosus].

1) Fastidiously, reluctantly: f. recipere in coelum, after a rigorous examination; f. judicare. 2) Disdainfully, haughtily. 3) With disgust and vexation, fretfully.

FASTIDIOSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [fastidium]. 1) (Ante-cl.) Feeling disgust or loathing, homo, vacca. 2) Trop., easily disgusted = nice, fastidious, squeamish; hence, disdainful, haughty: f. in causis recipiendis; f. in paribus, toward one's equals; aestimator f., who rates too highly. Hence, with an obj. gen. = disdaining: f. literarum Latinarum. 3) (Poet.) Causing disgust, copia.

FASTIDIUM, ii, n. [kindred w. fastus, ūs].

1) A loathing, esp. a loathing of food, distaste, aversion for any kind of enjoyment (arising from satiety — cf. taedium): cibi satietas et f. 2) Trop.: A) disgust, dislike, aversion, fastidiousness: hoc est delicatissimi fastidii, betrays a too delicate taste; f. rerum domesticarum, disdain of what is national; esse in fastidio, to be despised; also, in the pl., ferre ff. alicujus: B) affectus superioris, disdain, contempt, scorn: f. et arrogantia; f. et contumacia.

FASTIGIUM, ii, n. [perhaps from fastus and ago]. 1) The top of a gable, gable-end of a house: utilitatem templi fastigii dignitas consequuta est. 2) In gen., the highest point of a thing, the top, summit: colles pari altitudinis fastigio oppidum egebant, with tops of equal height; opus nondum aquae fastigium aequabat, did not yet reach the surface of the water. Hence * (poet.) = depth, scrobis. 3) A slope, descent, declivity, inclination: ab oppido declivis locus tenui fastigio vergebat; thus, likewise, leni, molli f., with a slight, gradual slope. 4) Trop.: A) the highest point or degree, top, summit: stare in summo f. eloquentiae; poesis ab Homero tantum f. accipit; summa rerum ff. (poet.), the chief points of the events: B) dignity, rank, position, standing: dictaturae f. semper altius fuit; f. consulare; curatio altior suo fastigio, a (business) commission above his rank; f. humanum, the condition of man, human affairs; cives ejusdem fastigii, of the same rank; privatum f., the condition of a private man.

FASTIGO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [cf. fastigium]. 1) As a finis, verb. (rar. & lat.), to make pointed, to point, folia. 2) Part., Fastigatus, a, um, sleeping, alanting, descending, collis, testudo; as impers. abl. abs., ita fastigato, the roof being so sloped that, &c.

FASTUS (L.), a, um, adj. [for]. Only in comb. dies fasti, or abs. fasti, prop. days on which it was allowed to speak, i. e., days on which the praetor could pronounce sentence, court-days; hence, subst., Fasti, ōrum, m. pl.: A) the list of the dies fasti — it was for a long time known only to the patricians, until Cn. Flavius (q. v.) made it public, 305 B.C.; it was gradually enlarged, so as finally to comprise a complete calendar (giving the festivals, magistrates, &c., for the year): corrigere ff.; referre aliquid in ff.; tollere diem de ff. suis; hence, Fasti, 'The Festival Calendar,' the title of a celebrated poem by Ovid: B) fasti Capitolini or consulares, lists of the chief magistrates for every year from 508 B.C. to A.D. 364 (engraved on marble tablets in the Capitol): C) fasti triumphales, lists of those who were honoured with a triumph at Rome.

FASTUS (II.), ūs, m. [kindred w. fastidium, etc.]. Haughtiness, scorn, contempt, disdain; in poets, also in the pl.

FATALIS, e, adj. [fatum]. Of or pertaining to fate. 1) Ordained or appointed by fate, destined, fated: f. necessitas, casus; ff. anni; mors f.; consulatus meus f. est ad salutem reipublicae; deae ff., the Fates; libri ff., announcing the decrees of the Fates; hora, dies f. = the hour or day of death. 2) (Poet. & lat.) Fatal, destructive, deadly, calamitous, telum, signum.

FĀTĀLITER, adv. [fatalis]. According to fate, fatally; omnia ex omni aeternitate f. definita sunt; f. mori, to die a natural death.

FĀTEOR, fassus, 2. v. dep. tr. [kindred with fāte, whence fātes; and fari]. 1) To confess, to own, to acknowledge, to admit: f. verum, paupertatem; sometimes, f. de re aliqua, to make an avowal of any thing; f. se peccavisse. Hence (poet.) = to show, to betray, iram vultu; f. se suasque flammās. 2) In gen., to maintain, to declare, to mention, to manifest; f. fidem alioj; f. patrem fuisse innocentem; hence (Quinct.), fatendi modus = the indicative.

*FĀTĪCĀNUS, } a, um, adj. [fatum-cano].
*FĀTĪCĪNUS, } (Poet.) Announcing fate, prophetic.

FĀTĪDICUS, a, um, adj. [fatum-dico]. (Poet.) Propheying, prophetic, vates, anus, os; subst., Fatidicus, i, m., a prophet.

FĀTĪFER, ōra, ōrum, adj. [fatum-fero]. (Poet.) Causing death, deadly, fatal.

FĀTIGĀTIO, ōnis, f. [fatigo]. Weariness, fatigue, equorum.

FĀTIGO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [from fatis (whence affatim) and ago, 'to drive sufficiently']. 1) To employ unto weariness, to weary, to tire, to fatigue: f. aliquem, equos, cervos jaculo; f. membra, dentem in dente; milites fatigati aestu ac labore. 2) Trop., to exhaust, to vex, to harass, to trouble, to torment: f. aliquem precibus (votis); or, simply f. aliquem (deos) de re aliqua, to importune with prayers; f. aliquem verbis, to reprimand; f. animum, to rack; secundae res animos fatigant, agitant, excite; (poet.) f. mare coelumque, to disturb, to keep in perpetual commotion; f. silvas, to chase through; f. dextram osculis, to load with kisses; f. diem noctemque remigio, to wear out = to row day and night; f. socios, to rouse up; f. noctem de aliquo, to trouble one's self the whole night about; f. aliquem dolis, to harass with stratagems.

*FĀTĪLEGUS, a, um, adj. [fatum-lego]. (Luo.) Gathering death.

FĀTĪLOQUUS, a, um, adj. [fatum-loquor]. (Rar.) Announcing fate, prophetic.

FĀTISCO (ante-cl. FĀTISCOR, dep.), 3. v. intr. (Poet. & lat.) 1) To come apart, to fall into pieces, to open in chinks or clefts: f. navis, janua. 2) Trop., to grow weak, to become exhausted, to droop, to faint: f. exercitus; seditio f., abates.

*FĀTŪE, adv. [fatuus]. (Lat.—doubtful read.) Foolishly, absurdly.

FĀTŪITAS, ātis, f. [fatuus]. Silliness, foolishness.

FĀTUM, i, n. [for]. Prop., that which has been spoken or announced. 1) Pl., an announcing of the decrees of fate, a prophecy, prediction, oracle: ff. Sibyllina; ex fatis quae Voientae scripta habebant. 2) Fate = the immutable law of nature: necessitas fati; fatum est ordo seriesque rerum, quum causa causae nexa rem ea se gignat (Cic.); implere ff., to cause the decrees of fate to be fulfilled. Hence, improp. (poet.): A) fate as dependent on the gods, the will of a god f. Jovis; ff. deūm: B) = that which determines one's fate: sagittae Herculis fuere fatum Trojae C) pl., personified = the Fates. 3) The fate of a person or thing, esp. as predetermined and necessary, destiny: suo quisque fato natus est; fate meo fit ut, etc.; also (poet.) in the pl., ff. mea; acerba. In partic. = ill fate, evil destiny, misfortune, destruction, death: f. aliquid iis impendit; fato cedere, concedere, obire, fungi = to die; proferre ff., to prolong life; f. extremum reipublicae venit; trop., duo reipublicae ff., two persons pernicious to the state = plagues, pests.

*FĀTUOR (I.), 1. v. dep. intr. [fatuus I.] (Lat.) To talk foolishly.

*FĀTUOR (II.), 1. v. dep. intr. [Fatuus II.] To be inspired.

FĀTUUS (I.), a, um, adj. Silly, foolish, simple (stronger than stultus): f. et amens; monitor non f.; (poet.) of food = tasteless; subst., Fatuus, i, m., and Fatua, ae, f., a fool, a person kept by the Romans for amusement.

FĀTUUS (II.), i, m. Another name of the prophetic god Faunus; also, Fatua, ae, f. = Fauna.

FAUCES, ium, f. pl. (poet. also abl. sing. Fauce) [φάρυγξ]. 1) The upper part of the gullet; hence, melon. = the gullet, throat: summum gulae vocantur ff.; sitis tenet (urget) ff.; (poet.) fauce improba incitatus = voracity. Hence, trop., eripere aliquem ex ff. alicujus, from the jaws, (e. g., of a murderer, enemy, &c.), urbem ex ff. belli = extreme peril of war. 2) (Poet.) The neck, the (outer) throat: prehendere ff. alicui, to seize any one by the throat; secare ff.; prov., faucibus teneor (premor), I am caught by the throat, I feel the knife at my throat. 3) Trop.: A) a narrow pass, entrance or outlet, a defile: ff. portae, saltus, specus; ff. portus; ff. montis, the crater of a volcano; Corinthus sita in ff. Graeciae; (poet.), the barrier or starting-place in a circus: ex ff. currus emittere: B) (poet.) a chasm, abyss: terrae ff.

FAUNA, ae, f. The wife or sister of Faunus; called also Fatua.

FAUNUS, i, m. [faveo]. A mythical king of Latium, son of Picus, grandson of Saturn, and father of Latinus, worshipped after his death as a god of the Woods, the tutelary deity of Agriculture, and a giver of oracles; later, he was identified with Pan. He was regarded as the father of several fauni (wood-gods).

*FAUSTE, adv. [faustus]. Fortunately, favourably.

*FAUSTITAS, ātis, f. [faustus]. Good fortune; Happiness (personified).

FAUSTULUS, i, m. The shepherd who according to the myth rescued and brought up Romulus and Remus (v. Acca).

FAUSTUS (I.), a, um, adj. [faveo]. Prop., favouring, favourable = fortunate, auspicious, lucky, blessed, joyful (cf. felix; it has reference to the favour of the gods — cf. prosper): f. omen; illa ff. huic urbi; quod bonum, faustum, fortunatum sit! dies f.

FAUSTUS (II.), i, m. [faveo]. A surname given to the dictator Sulla; hence, Sulla F., a son of Sulla, an adherent of Pompey; and Fausta, ae, f., a daughter of Sulla and wife of Milo.

FAUTOR (also Fāvitor, obsolete), ōris, m. [faveo]. A favourer, patron, promoter, protector: f. dignitatis alicujus; studiosi et ff. victoriae illius, who wished him the victory; f. nobilitatis, an adherent of, one who sides with; (rar.) fautorum esse accusationi, to be a favourer of.

FAUTRIX, icis, f. [faveo]. She that favours, a patroness, protectress.

FĀVENTIA, ae, f. A town in Gallia Cisalpina, now Faenza.

FĀVEO, fāvi, fautum, 2. v. intr. 1) To be favourable, well disposed, or inclined toward; hence, to favour, to befriend, to be a patron of, to promote: f. alicui, dignitati ejus; favetur ei, he is favoured, patronized; non plus patriae quam gloriae alicujus f., to strive to promote; f. sententiae alicujus, to be inclined to; f. rebus alicujus, to side with one; f. suis verbis, to delight in. 2) Abs., to be propitious: iudices ut favent rogamus; Phoebe, fave! be propitious to us! Hence: A) = to utter one's approbation (as at public games), to applaud: clamor qualis ex insperato faventium esse solet: B) tech. t., of sacrifices and other religious acts: f. linguā, to take care of one's words for the sake of a good omen; hence, either = to speak only words of good omen (= dicere bona verba), or = to keep still, to be mute or silent; usually, favete linguis! as an injunction to all persons present; favete linguis animisque, abstain from unbecoming words and thoughts.

FĀVILLA, ae, f. [prob. from fāu, 'to shine']. (Poet. & lat.) Ashes (still hot and glowing — cf. cinis), embers; trop. = a spark, beginning, mali.

FAVISSAE, ārum, f. pl. (Lat.) Subterranean reservoirs or receptacles near the temples, for water, and for keeping such sacred vessels, &c., as were not in use.

FĀVONIUS (I.), ii, m. The west-wind, called also Zephyrus, blowing in Italy, esp. in February, and thus indicating the beginning of spring.

FĀVONIUS (II.), ii, m. A Roman proper name; thus, esp. M. Favonius, a friend of Cicero and an imitator of Cato; hence, he was called Simius Catonis; — praetor 49 B. C., and, on account of his invectives against Octavianus, put to death, 42 B. C.

FĀVOR, ōris, m. [faveo]. Favour, good-will, inclination: f. populi, of the people; but (lat.), f. partium, towards one's party; f. nominis, the popularity of. Freq. = the utterance of favour, applause at plays, &c.: f. audientium petitur.

FĀVORABILIS, e, adj. w. comp. [favor]. (Lat.) 1) Favoured, beloved, popular; agreeable, welcome: f. oratio, homo: reditum ejus oratio fecerat favorabilem. 2) = Procuring favour.

FĀVORABILITER, adv. [favorabilis]. (Lat.) With applause, with favour.

FĀVUS, i, m. A honey-comb.

FAX, ācis, f. [kindred with fāu, 'to shine'].

1) A torch, in gen., a splinter of pine or other resinous wood: comparare f. ad inflammandam urbem; extinguere f. Hence: A) as torches were used at nuptials by those accompanying the bride (ff. nuptiales; in the poets, ff. maritae) to the house of the bridegroom, and also (at least in ancient times) at funerals, f. sometimes denotes a wedding, marriage, nuptials, or a funeral: inter utramque f. viximus insignes: B) prima f., early torch-light, immediately after dark, torches being used to see by in the streets at night. 2) Trop.: A) the light of celestial bodies or meteors: Phoebi f.; f. noctiluca, of the moon; ff. per coelum lapsae, shooting stars; coelestes, nocturnae ff.: B) any thing that inflames or incites, a flame, incitement, stimulus, torch, fire: ff. dicendi, the fire of eloquence; verborum quasdam faces admovere alicui = to use threatening words against any one; facies addere (subdere) alicui or animo alicujus = to incite one; faces incendiorum, belli = the incitators of; but, facem praeferre bello (poet.) = to light the torch of war; f. mutua (poet.) = a mutual flame of love; dolorum ff., the fires of affliction; corporum facibus inflammamur ad cupiditates.

FEBRICITO, āvi, —, 1. v. intr. [febris].

(Lat.) To have a fever.

FEBRICULA, ae, f. [dim. of febris]. A slight fever.

FEBRICŪLOSUS, a, um, adj. [febris]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Feverish, having a fever. 2) Feverous, producing fever.

FEBRIS, is, f. [prob. kindred with ferveo].

1) A fever; also, personified, as a goddess, who had three temples at Rome; also, in the pl., ff. tertianae. 2) Trop., torment, torture.

FEBRUĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [februum]. Sc. mensis, or abs., Februarius, ii, m., the month of expiation, February; hence, of or pertaining to February, Kalendae, Nonae, Idus.

FEBRUUM, i, n. [a Sabine word]. A purgative; pl., Februa, ōrum, the Roman festival of purification and expiation, celebrated on the fifteenth of the month (hence called) February.

FECIĀLIS — v. Fetiālis.

FECUNDE, adv. [fecundas] (Lat.) Fruitfully, abundantly.

FECUNDITAS, âtis, f. [fecundus]. 1) Fruitfulness, fecundity, mulieris, agrorum. Hence: A) of style = luxuriance: B) personified, as a goddess. 2) (Lat.) Supply, abundance, plenty.

FECUNDO, 1. v. tr. [fecundus]. (Poet. & lat.) To fertilise, to make fruitful, Aegyptum.

FECUNDUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [from the unusual feo, whence also fetus, femina]. 1) Fruitful, fertile, productive (mostly of living beings — cf. fertilis): f. uxor, sus, terra; segetes ff. 2) (Poet. & lat.) Fertilising, making fertile, Nilus; dextrae fecundae verbera, the blows with thongs given by the luperi to women, in order to promote their fruitfulness. 3) Trop.: A) rich or abounding in, full of: terra f. alimentorum; amor f. melle et felle; secula ff. culpae; (poet.) viscera fecunda poenis, fertile in punishment (because ever reproduced and devoured); hence, abs. = full, calices, fons: B) abundant, copious, herba; f. questus, much: C) of mind and speech, &c., fertilo, profluo: Pericles uber et f. fuit; ingenium f.

FEL, fellis, n. [kindred with billis and χολή]. The gall of animals (cf. billis). Hence—a) (poet.) = poison: f. vipereum — b) trop. = hatred, enmity, bitterness.

FĒLES (rar. Fēlis), is, f. A cat; sometimes, improp. = a marten, polecat; trop. (Pl.), f. virginaria = an abductor of women.

FELICITAS, âtis, f. [felix]. 1) (Lat.) Fertility, productiveness, Babyloniae. 2) Happiness, felicity, happy condition (obtained by one's own exertions): summa, incredibilis f.; f. rerum gestarum, the success; also, in the pl., incredibiles ff. 3) Personified, as a goddess, with a temple at Rome.

FELICITER, adv. w. comp. & sup. *1) Fruitfully, abundantly. 2) Luckily, happily; in particular, as a wish, good luck! f. velim! f. quod agis! f. patro! good luck to thee, uncle!

FELIX, lois, adj. w. comp. & sup. [from the unusual stem feo — of. fecundus, fetus]. 1) (Rar.) Fruitful, productive, arbor, regio. 2) (Mostly poet.) That brings good luck, auspicious, favourable, prosperous: quod bonum, f., faustum sit! omen f.; O dea, sis f. (poet.), be propitious! 3) Happy, fortunate: Sulla omnium felicissimus; ab (in regard to) omni laude felicior; f. in te retinendo; secula ff.; (poet. & lat.) felix ocrebri = rich in intellect; (poet.) felicior ferrum armare veneno, more successful in.

FĒMELLA, ae, f. [dim. of femina]. (Poet.) A young female.

FĒMEN — v. Femur.

FĒMĪNA, ae, f. [from the unusual stem feo — of. fecundus, fetus; prop. = 'the fruitful one']. 1) Of human beings, a female, woman (in respect of physical organization — of. mulier): clari viri et ff.; et mares deos et feminas esse dicitis; (poet.) as adj. = female: turba f. 2) Of animals, the female: bestiarum aliae mares, aliae ff. sunt; sus f.; porcus f. = porca. 3) (Lat., Also, of plants and minerals.

FĒMĪNĀLIA, ium, n. pl. [femen]. (Lat.) Thigh-bandages, worn by effeminate persons as a protection against cold.

FĒMĪNĀTUS, a, um, adj. [femina]. Participial, emasculated = effeminate.

FĒMĪNEUS, a, um, adj. [femina]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Of or belonging to a woman, feminine, labor, vox; Marte femineo cadere, by the hand of a woman; amor f., love for a woman; poena f., executed upon a woman. 2) Womanish, effeminate, pectus.

FĒMĪNĪNUS, a, um, adj. [femina]. (Lat.) In grammar, feminine, of the feminine gender.

FĒMUR, ôris, and (from an unusual femen) inis, n. The thigh.

FĒNEBRIS, e, adj. [fenus]. Of or belonging to interest or usury, lex; pecunia f., loaned on interest; res f., debt-affairs.

FĒNĒRĀTIO, ônis, f. [fenerator]. (Pl.) A lending on interest, usury.

FĒNĒRĀTO, adv. [fenerator]. (Pl.) With interest; jocosely, illum feneratoro abstulisti, to your detriment.

FĒNĒRĀTOR, ôris, m. [fenerator]. One who lends money on interest, a money-lender; or, in a bad sense, a usurer.

FĒNĒRĀTŌRIUS, a, um, adj. [fenerator]. (Lat.) Usurious.

FĒNĒRĀTRIX, lois, f. [fenerator]. (Lat.) = Fenerator.

FĒNĒROR, âtus, dep., and (ante-cl. & lat.) FĒNĒRO, âvi, âtum, 1. v. tr. [fenus]. 1) To lend on interest, pecunias; binis centesimis f., to lend at two per cent. a month. 2) Trop.: A) f. beneficium, etc., to practise usury in kind actions = to bestow in expectation of a rich reward; beneficium feneratorum (Com.), repaid with interest; and, in gen., f. alicui aliquid = to repay, to return with interest: B) to lend, to impart, to give: sol lumen suum ceteris sideribus f.; ff. sibi mortes = they killed each other: C) = to drain or exhaust by usury, provincias.

FĒNESTĒLLA (I.), ae, f. [dim. of fenestra]. (Lat.) A small aperture in a wall, a little window.

FĒNESTĒLLA (II.), ae, f. & m. A Roman proper name: A) f., a gate at Rome: B) m., a historian under Augustus and Tiberius.

FĒNESTRA, ae, f. [kindred w. φαῖνω, φαερός]. 1) An aperture in a wall, a window to admit light and air into the house (originally secured with wooden shutters, or closed with curtains; under the emperors, windows were closed with lapis specularis, q. v., and after the fourth century with glass): ff. bifores; ff. patulae, opened; ff. junctae, closed; dare f., to make an opening; ff. ad tormenta mittenda, loop-holes. 2) Trop. (ante-el & lat.) = an opportunity: patefacere f. ad as quietiam, to open a way.

FENEUS (Foen.), a, um, adj. [fenum]. Of hay.

*FENICŪLĀRIUS (Foen.), a, um, adj. [feniculum]. Of or pertaining to fennel: Campus F., Fennel-Field, as a designation of Spain; contemptuously used (in opp. to Campus Martius) of the war of Cæsar in Spain.

FENICŪLUM (Foen.), i, n. [fenum]. Fennel.

FENILIA (Foen.), ium, n. pl. [fenum]. A hay-loft.

FENISĒCA (Foen.), ae, m. [Fenum-seco].

(Lat. & poet.) A mower; in gen. = a rustic, countryman.

FENUM (Foen.), i, n. [from the unusual feo, kindred with fetus]. Hay; prov., fenum esse, = to be a blockhead; and, habet fenum in cornu, he is a dangerous fellow (it being the practice to bind hay about the horns of goring oxen).

FENUS (Foen.), ōris, n. [kindred with fetus; from the unusual feo]. Prop., what is produced or gained, proceeds. 1) Interest of money, sometimes = usury (considered as the gain of the lender, while 'usura' denotes interest as a tax upon the borrower): f. grande, iniquum; pecuniam iis dedit fenori, lent them money on interest; thus, likewise, pecuniam fenore accipere; trop. — profit, gain, advantage, in gen.: terra reddit quod accepit plerumque majore cum f. Sometimes = a burden of debt becoming greater by its interest. 2) (Rar.) Capital lent on interest.

*FENUSCŪLUM (Foen.), i, n. [dim. of fenus]. (Pl.) A low interest on money.

FERA, ae, f. — v. Ferus.

*FERĀCIUS, adv. in the comp. [ferax]. More fruitfully.

FERĀLIS, e, adj. [perhaps from fero — cf. feretrum]. 1) Of or pertaining to the dead or to corpses, carmen, munera, cupressus; dies f., tempus f., the day (the 19th of February) on which the Romans celebrated the (Feralia, ium, n. pl.,) yearly festival of the dead. 2) Trop. (poet. & lat.), deadly, fatal, bellum, dona.

FERAX, ācis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [fero]. Fruitful, capable of yielding a copious produce (cf. fertilis): f. ager, Sardinia, (poet.) planta. Freq. (poet. & lat.) with a gen. or abl., terra f. arborum, Cereris, abounding in trees, corn; f. oleo, locus f. in philosophia, fruitful; ingenium f.

FERCŪLUM, i, n. [fero]. 1) That on which any thing is carried, a hand-barrow, litter, bier; used, esp. at solemn processions, for carrying the images of gods and men: ff. pomparum. 2) (Poet. & lat.) At table, a frame on which dishes were served, a course of dishes; hence, also = a dish, mess of food: multa ff. supererant.

FERE, adv. [fero]. 1) Almost, nearly, about (used in inaccurate and indefinite statements, esp. of numbers and the like, denoting either something more or something less — cf. paene):

f. abhinc annos quindecim; meus f. aequalis; tota f. castra; semper f.; haec f., about this. 2) Preceded by a negation, just, exactly, easily (or combined in translation with the negative = not exactly, not quite, hardly, scarcely): nihil aut non f., not very much, scarcely any; in illis non f. labitur, not easily; so, also, non f. ququam, hardly any one; quod non f. contigit nisi, etc. 3) Mostly, commonly, usually, generally (opp. to raro, interdum): fit f. ut, etc.; ut sunt f. domicilia Gallorum; qui timet his adversa, f. miratur eodem pacto, etc.; sometimes strengthened by plerumque.

FERENTĀRIUS, ii, m. [fero]. 1) A light-armed soldier, who fought with stones or javelins (qui depugnabant lapidibus et pugnīs, his armīs quae ferrentur, Varr.). The ff. were stationed on the wings of the army, and usually commenced the battle. 2) Trop. (Pl.), amicus f., assisting quickly.

FERENTĀNAS, ātis, adj. [Ferentinum]. Of or pertaining to Ferentinum, Ferentine; subst., Ferentinates, um, m. pl., the inhabitants of F.

FERENTĪNUM, i, n., 1) A small town of the Hernici in Latium, now Ferentino. 2) A small town in Etruria, the birthplace of the Emp. Otho.

FERENTĪNUS, a, um, adj. [Ferentinum]. Of or pertaining to Ferentinum, Ferentine: aqua F., a fountain near Ferentinum (1); subst., A) Ferentina, ae, f., a goddess worshipped in the neighbourhood of Ferentinum (1): B) Ferentini, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Ferentinum.

FERETRIUS, ii, m. [fero or ferio]. An epithet of Jupiter as the vanquisher of enemies, to whom the 'spolia' were therefore offered and devoted.

FERETRUM, i, n. [fero; = επιτερον]. (Poet.) A hand-barrow; in partic. = a bier (pure Latin, Ferculum).

FERIAE, ārum, f. pl. [perhaps from ferio]. Holidays, days of rest, festive days (v. Festus), on which the courts suspended their proceedings, and no business was done. They were either publicae (public), or privatae (private), celebrated by single families only (familiares). The first, usually connected with divine worship, were either stativae (fixed) or conceptivae (movable), or imperativae (temporary, appointed on extraordinary occasions); also, ff. nundinae, ff. Latinae (q. v.); (poet.) longae ff. = peace; trop., ff. esuriales (Pl.), hunger holidays.

FĒRIĀTUS, a, um, part. of the unusual verb ferior [feriae]. Keeping holiday; hence = at leisure, unoccupied: Troes male ff., celebrating a festival at an unreasonable time; ab illis studiis feriatas non erit; trop., dies f., a holiday.

FERINUS, a, um, adj. [ferus]. Of or pertaining to wild beasts, forma, vox; caedes f., the killing of game; caro f.; or, as subst., Ferina, ae, f., the flesh of wild animals, game.

FĒRIO, 4. v. tr. 1) To strike, to smite, to knock, to thrust (in gen. — cf. caedo, ico, verbero, etc.): f. murum ariete; f. frontem, to smite one's forehead; thus, likewise, f. femur, pectora; (lat.) serpens f., stings; f. mare (poet.), to lash the sea = to row; arcus non semper f. quod minatur, hits; sol radiis f. montes, touches: (poet.) clamor f. aethera, reaches, touches; thus, likewise, f. sidera vertice; aliquid f. oculos, strikes the eye; also, f. aurem, animum = to affect, to make an impression upon; f. uvas pede, to tread. 2) In partic.: A) to strike mortally, &c., to kill, hostem; f. aliquem securi, to behead: B) = to slay, porcum, agnum: hence, C) to conclude, to make a treaty, &c., since on such occasions a victim was slain: f. foedus: D) (lat.) f. asses, etc., to coin, to stamp: E) (poet.) to utter a sound, &c.: f. vocem; f. verba palato, to produce, to bring out. 3) (Com. & poet.) To overreach, to cheat: f. aliquem munere, to coax a present out of one.

FĒRITAS, ātis, f. [ferus]. Savageness, wildness, roughness, fierceness of nature (cf. saevitia): f. et inhumanitas; homines dissipatos ex f. ad iustitiam et mansuetudinem transducere; f. tauri, leonis.

FERME, adō. (Freq. in comic writers and Liv.) = Fere.

FERMENTESCO, 3. v. intr. [inch. of fermento]. (Lat.) To begin to ferment; hence = to swell.

FERMENTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [fermentum]. (Lat.) 1) To cause to ferment or rise; usually, in the pass. = to ferment, to rise, panis. 2) Trop., to make loose, terram.

FERMENTUM, i, n. [for fervimentum, from ferveo]. 1) (Lat.) That which causes fermentation, leaven, ferment. 2) (Lat.) That which loosens the soil, a means of making loose. 3) (Poet.) A beverage made of fermented barley, beer. 4) Trop. (poet.), of the mind, ferment, anger, passion, vexation: uxor mea nunc in f. est; istud f. = a cause of anger.

FĒRO, tūli, lātum, v. tr. [= φέρω; cf. ράω]. I. — 1) To bear (a burden, &c. — cf. gero), onus, cadaver; ferri lectica. In partic.: A) of a female, to be with child: f. puerum conceptum; f. ventrem, to be pregnant: B) f. nomen, cognomen aliquod or alicujus, to bear or have; f. alienam personam, to play another's part, an unaccustomed rôle. 2) Trop. = to bear (something disagreeable and troublesome — cf. patior), to endure, to suffer: f. injurias, laborem; f. aliquem; f. aliquid toleranter, animo aequo, to submit to, to bear with equanimity; f. aliquid libenter, to put up with cheerfully, to have no objection to; f. aliquid aegre or inique (iniquo animo) = χαλεπῶς or βαρύν, to take amiss, to be discontented with, to be grieved about. Hence, f. impetum motum, etc. = to sustain.

II. — To carry, to take, or to bring any thing to any place: 1) in gen., f. faces in Capitolium. ira Romanos per mediam hostium aciem tulit; (poet.) f. pedem (gradus vagos) aliquo = to go; f. alicui luctum, to cause, to occasion; f. pestem a suis aversam in hostem, to bring over; f. signa (of soldiers), to march to a place, to set out for; f. alicui osculum, complexum, to wish to kiss or embrace; f. alicui tributum, to bring, to present; f. sacra manibus = to offer oblations. In partic.: A) f. se aliquo, to betake one's self to a place; f. se obviam or obvium alicui, to go to meet, to meet, extra portam: B) pass., to be carried to a place by any higher agency (as, by a law of nature, &c.) = to hasten, to rush, to go, to sink, &c.: moribundus fertur in hostem, rushes; f. navi, to sail; omnia feruntur in terram, incline toward (in consequence of the law of gravity); flumen fertur, flows; trop., oratio fertur, flows forth; hence, trop. = to be carried away by something: ferri cupiditate, crudelitate, scelere: C) aba, ventus fert in illam partem, blows in that direction; vestigia illo f., the tracks lead thither; (poet. & lat.) animus fert (illo, illud facere), my mind impels me, I have a mind to do it: D) trop. = to raise in words, to extol: f. aliquid laudibus; f. aliquem in coelum = to praise highly; f. aliquid in majus, to exaggerate.

2) Of production, to bear, to yield, to produce: terra f. fruges; trop., haec aetas prima oratorem tulit.

3) To bring forward, to bring before the public: A) to show, to exhibit: f. dolorem; f. laetitiam aperte; neque id obscure tulit; in partic., prae se f. = to show, to manifest, to declare openly, aliquid, se illud fecisse: B) f. legem, rogationem, to bring in a bill, to propose a law; tulit ad populum ut, etc., proposed to the people, &c.; nihil de iudicio tulit: C) f. suffragium, to give one's vote, to vote at the comitia; f. sententiam, to vote (also of a judge, but very rare of a senator and of the whole people), and hence = to decide, to declare one's will: D) f. (alicui) iudicem (of a plaintiff), prop., to propose a judge (to the defendant) = to sue: iudicio illi tulit, ni vindicias ... dedisset, summoned him to court, and pledged himself before a judge to prove that, &c.

4) To bring forward in speech or writing, to report, to relate, to mention, to assert: f. aliquid sermonibus; se quisque belli ducem potiorum f., pretends to be. Hence: A) = to name, to call, to represent: Mercurium omnium artium inventorem ferunt; ejus scripta quaedam feruntur, are mentioned; libri feruntur sub meo nomine, are in circulation: B) ferunt (homines), people say, they say, it is said, it is reported: ff. Xenocratem respondisse, etc.; homo omnium, ut ferebant, acerrimus; thus, likewise, pass., in Sicilia locus esse fertur, there is said to be a place; illi urbem cepisse feruntur, they are said to have taken the city. 5) To enter (a sum in an account-book), to set down, to book (= refero — v. Accipio and Expendo): f. alicui aliquid expensum, acceptum, to set down as paid to, or received by, any one. 6) Of abstract substantives, to require, to demand: ita ejus periculi rationes ff.; natura f. ut, etc.; tempora reipublicae ita ff.

III. — To carry, to take, or to bring from any place. 1) In gen.: A) signa f., to march away from the camp: B) aliquid ab altero tacitum f. = to do a thing without contradiction by another person; ne id quidem tacitum a Turno tulisse ferunt, it is reported that he did not even say this without a reply from Turnus; ut tacitum illud feras = that you may do this without any protest on my part. 2) *Freq., in partic.: A) to carry off by force and as booty, esp. in the combination f. et ago, to take as spoils, to make booty of (f. applying to the inanimate objects, ago to men and animals): f. et ago res plebis, to plunder; and, in the same sense, f. plebem; aetas omnia f., carries away: B) to take away as a reward, profit, acquisition, hence = to obtain, to get, to receive: f. fructum ex aliqua re; f. palmas, victoriam; f. suffragia; thus, likewise, f. centuriam, tribum, etc., to obtain the votes of a century, a tribe, &c.; f. responsum ab aliquo, to receive; f. repulsam = to be rejected in suing for an office; f. calumniam = to be declared a false accuser.

FEROCIA, ae, f. [ferox]. A wild and untamed courage, high spirit: f. juvenum; Romana virtus et f.: usually, in a bad sense = savageness, fierceness, ferocity.

FEROCIO, Ivi or ii, —, 4. v. intr. [ferox]. (Lat.) To be unruly or fierce, to rage, to storm: f. animi militum.

FEROCITAS, ātis, f. [ferox] = Ferocia.

FEROCITER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [ferox].

1) Courageously, spiritedly. 2) Fiercely, ferociously, savagely, insolently.

FEROCULUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of ferox]. (Very rar.) Somewhat fierce.

FERONIA, ae, f. [a Sabine word]. A very old Italian deity, worshipped, originally by the Sabines, later by the Romans, as the patroness of plants, and also of freedmen, with a sanctuary near Terracina.

FEROX, ōis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [ferus]. Like a wild beast, wild. 1) Usually, in a bad sense, untameable, ferocious, unruly, fierce, headstrong, insolent: victoria eos feroces et impotiores reddidit; animus, ingenium f.; Medea f.; (poet.) leo f.; ferox viribus, formā, proudly relying on, haughty on account of; (lat.) ferox linguae, haughty, insolent in language; f. scelus, eager for crime, prone to. 2) (Bar.) In a good sense, courageous, bold, spirited, warlike, Roma, miles; f. adversus pericula.

FERRAMENTA, ōrum, n. pl. (very rare in the sing., Ferramentum, i, n.) [ferrum]. Implements of iron, or implements shod with iron: f. agrestia.

FERRARIA, ae, f. [ferrarius]. An iron mine. FERRARIUS, a, um, adj. [ferrum]. Of or relating to iron, iron: faber f., a blacksmith; f. metalla, an iron mine; f. officina, a smith's shop, smithy; f. aqua, for cooling hot iron.

FERRATILIS, e, adj. [ferrum]. (Pl.) Furnished with iron (comically, of slaves in irons).

FERRATUS, a, um, adj. [ferrum]. Furnished, shod, or covered with iron, hasta, postis; agmina ff., armed; servi ff., fettered; (lat.) subest, Ferrati, ōrum, m. pl. (sc. milites), soldiers in iron armour.

FERREUS, a, um, adj. [ferrum]. 1) Iron, of iron, furca, clavus; (poet.) imber f., an iron shower (of a great number of javelins); seges f. telorum, an iron crop (which had grown up from spears planted in the ground). 2) (Lat.) Like iron, color. 3) Trop.: A) = hard-hearted, unfeeling, cruel: durus et f.; homo f.: B) firm, robust, vigorous, unyielding, vox, corpus: C) (poet.) somnus f. = death: D) os f. = impudent, shameless.

FERRICRĒPINUS, a, um, adj. [ferrum-crope]. (Pl.) Clanking with iron: insulae ff. = a penitentiary for slaves (v. Ergastulum).

FERRITERIUM, ii, n. [ferrum-tero]. The place of those who are galled with irons or fetters = ergastulum.

FERRITERUS, i, m. [ferrum-tero]. (Pl.) He who is galled with iron (comically, of a fettered slave).

FERRITRIBAX, ācis, f. [ferrum-tribax]. (Pl.) = Ferriterus.

FERRUGINEUS, and Ferrūginus, a, um, adj. [ferrugo]. (Poet.) 1) Iron-coloured; hence, in gen., dark-coloured, dusky, pallium; f. cymba, the boat of Charon. 2) (Lat.) Of taste, like iron, sapor fontis.

FERRUGO, Inis, f. [ferrum]. 1) Iron-rust. 2) Trop., meton., the colour of iron-rust, a dark colour; thus, of everything pertaining to the lower world: manus ferrugine tincta (of the goddess of Envy).

FERRUM, i, n. 1) Iron; hence (poet.), A) hardness, firmness: B) = the Iron Age. 2) An iron instrument, e. g., a hatchet, ploughshare, writing-pencil; esp., a weapon (sword, spear, dagger): f. et ignis (fire and sword) denotes, freq., hostile violence, devastation, &c.

FERRUMEN, Inis, n. [ferrum]. 1) Cement. *2) = Ferrugo 1.

FERRUMINO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [ferrumen]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To cement, to solder, to join closely: f. fracturas; f. muros bitumine; (Pl.) illi ff. labra labellis (of a kiss).

FERTILIS, e, adj. w. comp. & sup. [fero]. 1) Fertile, fruitful, productive, having the power of producing much (cf. ferax and fructuosus; of nature, the earth, &c. — of. fecundus) : f. ager, Africa, annua, herba; ager fertilis aliorum fructuum, tellus f. peccoris, fruitful, rich in; (lat.) ager f. arboribus, rich in trees. 2) (Poet. & lat.) Rendering fertile, fertilizing, Nilus; f. dea (Ceres).

FERTILITAS, âtis, f. [fertilis]. Fertility, fruitfulness, productiveness (v. Fertilis), agerum, clearum: (poet.) also, of living beings, fecundity: f. Rheae.

FERTILITER, adv. w. comp. [fertilis]. (Lat.) Fruitfully, fertile, abundantly.

FERTUM (or Feretum), i, n. [from fertus or factum]. (Ante-cl. & poet.) A sacrificial cake.

*FERTUS, a, um, adj. [fero]. (Ante-cl.) (Doubt. read.) Fertile.

FERÛLA, ae, f. [perhaps kindred with fero].

1) The giant fennel, a plant. 2) = A thin branch of any tree; hence, a rod used for punishing slaves or school-boys.

FERUS, a, um, adj. [fero]. 1) Wild (opp. to circur, mansuetus, 'tamed'), untamed: bestiae aut ciures aut ff.; ff. arborea, fructus; loca ff. = uncultivated. hence, subst.: A) Fera, ae, f. — a) a wild animal: also, an animal, in gen. — b) (lat.) the flesh of wild animals, game = ferina: B) Ferus, i, m. (poet.) = fera (a). 2) Trop., of manner and character: A) wild, savage, hard, cruel, hostile, homo; immanis et f.; barbarus ac f.; (poet.) f. hiems, diluvies, terrible: B) rude, unpolished, uncultivated, dull: vita agrestis et f.; victus f., a brutish mode of life.

FERVE-FACIO, feci, factum, 3. v. tr. To make hot, to boil, to soothe, picem, jaculum.

FERVENS, tis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of ferreo]. 1) Boiling, glowing: aqua f.; (poet.) vulnus f., still quite warm, fresh; fluvius f., raging. 2) Trop., ardent, heated, impetuous, violent, animus; latrones ff., furious.

FERVENTER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [fervens]. Hotly, warmly, vehemently.

FERVEO, ferui pr ferui, —, 2., and (poet.) Fervo, 3. v. intr. [kindred w. ferreo]. 1) To boil, to glow, to be red-hot: aqua f.; rota f. 2) (Poet.) To be in an unquiet state, to boil up, to foam, to rage, to roar: mare f.; omnia ff. vento; examina (apum) ff., swarm forth; classis f., is driven up and down; opus f., is eagerly carried on by the multitude; Leucas f. Marte, the battle rages around L.; trop., fervet immensusque ruit profundo Pindarus ore, the deep-mouthed P. rages and rushes on (the style of the poet being compared to the swollen current of a river). 3) Trop., of passionate emotion, to glow, to burn, to rage, to rave, to be inflamed: pectus f. avaritiâ; animus f. ab ira.

FERVEO, 3. v. intr. [inch. of ferreo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To become boiling hot or red-hot, to begin to boil or glow, to grow hot.

FERVIDUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [ferreo]. 1) Boiling-hot, burning, glowing, foaming, aestus, ignis, vina, pars mundi. 2) Trop., glowing = hot, fiery, passionate, violent, juvenis, ingenium, genus dicendi; fervidus ira, spe.

FERVOR, ôris, m. [ferreo]. 1) Boiling heat, heat, glow, fervour: f. solis; (poet.) f. mediae, the heat of mid-day; hence, a raging, foaming, roaring, oceanis; f. accedit capiti, intoxication; but, also, caput incensum fervore = the heat of a fever. 2) Trop. = heat, passion, burning anger, hatred, love, &c.: f. concitatioque animi, aetatis f. maris, the disturbed state, unsafety of (on account of pirates).

FESCENNIA, ae, f. A town in Etruria, situated on the Tiber, celebrated for a peculiar kind of satirical songs, which were sung, in alternate verses, by the youth on festive occasions — now Galeae.

FESCENNINUS, a, um, adj. [Fescennia]. Of or belonging to Fescennia, Fescennine: licentia F.; versus F.

FESSUS, a, um, adj. [fatiscor]. Worn, tired, fatigued, exhausted, languid, feeble: Romani ff. itinere atque opere castrorum et proelio; fessus inedia, plorando; (poet.) f. annis, aetate; fessus bello, weary of war; fessi rerum, exhausted by hardships; corpus fessum vulnere; f. aetas, the weakness of age; artus ff., weak, diseased; navis f., old and useless.

*FESTATUS, a, um, adj. [festus]. (Ante-cl.) Attired in festal robes.

FESTINABUNDUS, a, um, adj. [festino]. (Lat.) Hastening, making haste.

FESTINANTER, adv. w. comp. [festino]. Hastily, speedily, quickly.

FESTINATIO, ônis, f. [festino]. Haste, speed: celeritas et f.; epistola plena festinationis, written in haste; also, in the pl.

FESTINO, âvi, âtum, 1. v. intr. & tr. [perhaps from fero]. 1) Intr., to hasten, to make haste, to go somewhere in haste: quo festinas? trop., oratio f. ad factum ejus singulare. 2) Tr., to make haste with, to hasten, to accelerate, to quicken, to do a thing speedily (stronger than proprio; hence, freq. in a bad sense): festino migrare, componere lites; f. aliquid; (poet.) f. fugam, to quicken one's flight; f. poenam, to hasten the punishment; f. mortem in se, to bring on speedily; virgines non festinantur (Tac.) = are not married early.

FESTINUS, a, um, adj. [festino]. (Poet.) Speedy, hasty, quick.

FESTIVE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [festivus]. 1) Facetiously, humourously. 2) Pleasantly, joyously, gayly.

FESTIVITAS, âtis, f. [festivus]. 1) (Com.) Pleasantness, gayety, festivity; hence, as a term of endearment, mea f. i. my sweet! patris mei f. = kindness, complaisance. 2) Of speech, humour, pleasantry: f. et facetiae; f. et lepor; also, in the pl.

FESTIVITER, adv. (Ante-cl. & lat.) = Festive.

FESTIVUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [festus]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) Gay, joyful, festive, cheerful, ludi, locus, convivium. 2) Of speech, humorous, witty, jovial. 3) Of persons — a) pretty, fine, handsome, agreeable, femina, filius; copia f., a considerable number — b) good-natured, dear, pater, puer.

FESTŪCA, ae, f. 1) A stalk, stem. 2) A rod or little staff with which the praetor touched such slaves as were to be made free.

FESTŪCARIUS, a, um, adj. [festuca]. (Lat.) Trop. = performed merely as a ceremony (according to others, relating to the manumission of a slave).

FESTUS, a, um, adj. [kindred with feriae; acc. to others, with fastus]. Festive, festival, solemn, pertaining to a religious festival: dies f., a festival, holiday (with reference to what is joyful in a festival — cf. solemnitas and feriae); (poet.) f. lux, tempus; f. clamor, dapes, licentia, of or on a holiday. Hence, subst., Festum, i, n. (poet.), a festival, holiday, feast.

FETIĀLIS, e, adj. Of or pertaining to the Fetiales: jus f.; legatus f. Usually, as subst., Fetiales, ium, m. pl., an old Roman college of priests, who sanctioned and ratified, in the name of the state and with religious ceremonies, treaties of peace, truces, alliances, declarations of war, &c.; and, in gen., maintained the law of nations.

FETŪRA, ae, f. [fetus]. 1) A procreation, generation, propagation: f. humana. 2) A young brood, young offspring; trop., of young vines; also, of the production of a literary work.

FĒTUS (I.), a, um, adj. [from the unusual feo, kindred with secundus]. 1) Of animals (cf. gravidus and praegnans), big with young, pregnant, pecus. 2) Trop., fertile, productive, fruitful or rich in any thing: terra f. frugibus; regio f. pomis; (poet.) loca feta furentibus austris, frequently visited by; praecordia ff. irā, filled with anger. 3) (Poet.) That has borne or brought forth: lupa f. (the she-wolf that suckled Romulus and Remus).

FĒTUS (II.), ūs, m. [from the unusual feo, kindred with secundus]. 1) A bringing forth, bearing of young; a hatching, casting, littering: f. et educatio; trop., also, of plants, a producing: f. terrae. 2) The young of animals, young brood; of mankind, children, offspring; of trees, the produce, fruit: bestiae procreant multiplices ff.; ff. quos Germania parturit (poet.). Hence, trop., oratorum f. uberrimus fuit, a rich growth; ex quo triplex animi f. existet, production (of the three chief parts of philosophy).

FI, interj. (Pl.) Fah! foh! (at a bad smell.)

FIBER, bri, m. A beaver.

FIBRA, ae, f. [perhaps kindred with filum]. 1) A fibre, filament of a plant, of the body of an animal, esp. of the liver: jecur in quatuor ff. dividitur; hence, freq. used when the question is of the omens derived from the inspection of entrails. 2) (Poet. & lat.) Entrails, in gen., caesorum boum ff. crematae; neque mihi cornea f. est, I am not so dull, insensible.

FIBRĒNUS, i, m. A river in Latium, near Arpinum, now Fibreno.

FIBŪLA, ae, f. [instead of figibula, from figo]. That by which two things are joined or held together, a clasp, buckle, pin, brace, cramp: f. coercoet vestem; trabes binis utrimque ff. distinebantur.

FICĀNA, ae, f. A town in Latium, now Tenuta di Dragoncello.

FICĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [ficus]. Of or pertaining to figs, fig-.

FICEDŪLA, ae, f. [ficus]. The fig-pecker, a small bird.

FICEDŪLENSES, ium, m. pl. [ficedula]. (Pl.) A fictitious name of a kind of soldiers.

FICTE, adv. [fictus]. Feignedly, fictitiously.

FICTĪLIS, e, adj. [fingo]. Made of clay, earthen, vas, figura; subst., Fictile, is, n., an earthen vessel.

FICTIO, ōnis, f. [fingo]. (Lat.) 1) A making, framing, forming, formation, hominis, vocum; f. nominis (in grammar), a transforming, changing (by adding, omitting, or changing a letter; as, Tollius, instead of Tullius). 2) A feigning, fiction. 3) Tech. t. in rhetoric, an assumed case, a supposition.

FICTOR, ōris, m. [fingo]. 1) A maker or fashioner of any thing from clay, wood, &c.: pictores fictoresque, painters and image-makers (such as carvers, sculptors, &c.); trop., f. legum, the author; vitae f., a regulator. *2) (Poet.) A feigner, counterfeiter: f. fandi = crafty in speech.

FICTRIX, icis, f. [fingo]. She that forms, a maker, fashioner.

FICTŪRA, ae, f. [fingo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A forming, formation.

FICTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of fingo]. 1) Feigned, pretended, affected, res, amor; f. et simulatus. 2) (Lat.) Of persons, false, hypocritical: homo f. et astutus; subst., Fictum, i, n., a deception, deceit.

FICŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of ficus]. (Pl.) A small fig. FICŪLEA, ae, f. A town of the Sabines in Latium, near Fidenae.

FICŪLENSIS, e, adj. [Ficulea]. Of or pertaining to Ficulea, Ficulean; subst., 1) Ficulenses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Ficulea; 2) Ficulense, is, n., an estate near Ficulea.

FICULNEUS, } a, um, adj. [ficus]. Of a fig-
FICULNUS, } tree, lignum.

FICUS, i, and ūs, f. 1) A fig-tree. 2) A fig: prima f., the first ripe fig, used to denote the beginning of autumn, as the warmest season at Rome. 3) Meton., the piles; (poet.) = a person who has the piles.

FIDE, adv. w. sup. [fidus]. (Lat.) Faithfully.
FIDEI-COMMISSUM, i, n. (Lat.) A legacy, bequest, left in trust to a person for the benefit of a third party, whom the testator was forbidden by law to constitute his heir, a fideicommissum.

FIDELIA, ae, f. An earthen vessel, a pot; in partic., a plasterer's white-wash pot; hence, prov., duo parietes de eadem f. dealbare (Pl.) = to kill two birds with one stone.

FIDELIS, e, adj. [fides]. 1) Trusty, faithful, sincere, honest (considered as a moral trait — cf. fidus): f. socius, conjux, amicitia, consilium, cura; ff. lacrimae, unfeigned; fidelis alicui or in aliquem, to one; thus, likewise, *f. in amicis, with respect to one's friends; subst., Fidelis, is, m., a trusty person, a confidant. 2) Of things, safe, sure, reliable, firm, durable: f. navis, portus, doctrina.

FIDELITAS, atis, f. [fidelis]. Faithfulness, fidelity, probity, trustiness (of persons — conf. fides): f. amicorum.

FIDELITER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [fidelis]. 1) Faithfully, honestly, trustily. 2) Surely, firmly, duly, properly.

FIDENAE, arum, f. pl. (rarely sing., Fidēna, ae, f.) An old Sabine town in Latium, now Castro Giubileo.

FIDENAS, atis, adj. Of or pertaining to Fidenae; subst., Fidenates, tium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Fidenae.

FIDENS, ntis, adj. [part. of fido]. Confident, courageous, bold.

FIDENTER, adv. w. comp. [fidens]. Confidently, boldly, fearlessly.

FIDENTIA (I.), ae, f. [fidens]. (Rar.) Self-confidence, confidence, assurance, courage: f. est firma animi confisio.

FIDENTIA (II.), ae, f. A town in Gallia Cispadana, now Borgo S. Domino.

FIDENTINI, ōrum, m. pl. [Fidentia]. The inhabitants of Fidentia.

FIDES (I.), ei, f. [fido]. 1) Confidence in any one, trust, faith, reliance, credit: fidem habere (tribuere, adjungere) alicui, to give credit to, to have confidence in, to trust in; thus, likewise, f. defensionem alicujus; f. verbis tuis; oratio fidem facit, inspires confidence, induces belief; auribus vestris fidem non facit oratio mea, you give no credit to my statements, if you hear them; tibi fidem faciemus (also nobis fides erit apud te), nos ea suadere quae, etc., we will convince you, make you believe, &c.; abrogare alicui fidem rei alicujus, to refuse credit to the statements of one about something. Hence: A) in money affairs = credit: fides conoidit, fluctuates, sinks; fides angustior, limited, low: B) pecuniam mutuam sumere fide amicorum, to borrow money on the credit of one's friends. 2) The quality that produces confidence: A) of persons, faithfulness, fidelity, honesty, probity, conscientiousness, sincerity — of things, trustworthiness, credibility, truth, certainty, &c. — a) justitia in rebus creditis nominatur fides; cum fide, with honesty, honestly; f. erga aliquem; praestare alicui fidem — b) f. tabularum (of documents, deeds), oraculorum; fides penes auctores erit, the authorities will warrant the truth (of the statement): B) in partic. — a) ad (in) fidem rei alicujus, as proof of, in support of; sum fides vocis (poet.), I am the proof of; tum manifesta fides (erat) = then the truth (of the thing) was evident, palpable — b) f. induciarum, etc., sacredness, inviolability — c) = fulfilment, accomplishment, result: dictis addere fidem (poet.), to make good one's word or promise; verba sequitur fides; verba sine fide rerum, not confirmed by facts — d) tech. t., fide bona or ex f. bona, in good faith, sincerely, honestly; bona f. emere. 3) An assurance that produces confidence, a promise, engagement, pledge, word: dare alicui fidem de re aliqua; dant fidem inter se; fidem reliquis interponere; liberare, exsolvere (exonerare) f. suam, to keep one's promise, to redeem one's word, opp. to fallere (mutare, violare) fidem; fidem obstringere, to plight one's faith; manere in fide, to keep one's word; fidem et jurandum inter se dant (= κεραι καὶ ὅρκια ποιεῖσθαι), they pledge themselves by a mutual oath. Hence, in partic., 4) a promise of protection, a guarantee of safety, a safe-conduct: fidem publicam jussu senatus ei dedit; fide publicā jussus est dicere, personal safety having been guaranteed to him in the name of the state; thus, likewise, interposita fide publica; fide accepta a legatis, vim abfutura, the promise of personal safety. Hence, 5) protection, assistance, help, aid, mercy: tradere (permittere) se or venire in fidem alicujus = to surrender at discretion; haec urbs est in f. meā, is under my protection; sequi fidem alicujus, to place one's self under the protection of somebody; obsecro f. vestram, I invoke your aid; so, also, implorare fidem deū hominumque; Di, vestram fidem! for heaven's sake! pro deū atque hominum fidem! in the name of gods and men! 6) Personified, as a goddess.

FIDES (II.), ium, f. pl. (poet. also in sing., Fides, is, f.). 1) A stringed instrument, esp. a lyre, lute, cithern; also, the music of a stringed instrument: ff. et tibiae; canere fidibus, to play on the cithern; moderari fidem (poet.) = canere fidibus. 2) A constellation = Lyra.

FIDICEN, inis, m. [fides-cano]. 1) A cithern-player, harper, minstrel. 2) (Poet.) = A lyre poet.

FIDICINA, ae, f. [fides-cano]. A (female) cithern-player.

FIDICINUS, a, um, adj. [fides-cano]. Of or pertaining to a lyre, ludus.

FIDICULA, ae, f. [dim. of fides]. 1) A small stringed instrument. 2) Pl. (lat.), an instrument of torture, made of several strings or cords.

FIDUS, ii, m. [fides]. A surname of Jupiter as the god of Fidelity = the Greek Ζεύς Πίστεως, and the Sabine Sancus; always in the combination deus (probably instead of Dius = Jupiter, divus) f. or me-dius-fidius, a formula of asseveration, by my faith! by God! (= mehercules, since, according to the old Italian fable, Sancus corresponds also to Hercules; — ‘me’ is a particle of asseveration = me).

FIDO, fisus sum, —, 3. v. tr. [kindred with πίσω]. (Mostly poet.) To put confidence in, to trust or confide in (some power, faculty, help, &c. — cf. credo): f. sibi, nocti; f. duce, cursu, prudentiā; (poet.) fidis te manare, you trust that, &c.

FIDUCIA, ae, f. [fido]. 1) Trust, confidence, reliance, assurance (cf. fidētia, confidentia): habere f. rerum suarum, confidence in one's own affairs; hoc certam salutis f. praebet; fiduciā alicujus, confiding in one; thus, likewise, fiduciā formae, in one's beauty; (Com.) mea f., confidence in me; manus minimae fiduciae, that part of the army which can be least relied upon; (poet.) humanis quae sit fiducia rebus, how much human things may be relied upon. 2) Self-confidence, courage: omnes f. pleni ad Alesiam proficiscuntur.

*3) (Pl.) Honesty. 4) Tech. t. in the lang. of law: A) a giving or making over of something in trust, a trust: per fiduciā rationem, in the matter of a trust; judicium fiduciae, an action or lawsuit about a trust: B) property entrusted to another (on mortgage or by a feigned sale), a deposit: accipere f. ab aliquo; committere fiduciam alicui.

FIDUCIARIUS, a, um, adj. [fiducia]. Entrusted, given in trust (v. Fiducia 4); hence, in gen., given for temporary use and possession: opera f., an office entrusted to one for a time (e.g., the chief command to a subordinate general).

FIDUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [fido]. 1) Faithful (mostly as a natural quality), reliable, trustworthy, sincere, amicus, uxor, interpres; familiaritates ff.; custodia f.; fidus alicui. 2) (Poet. & lat.) Of things, trustworthy, sure, safe, spes, pons; statio male fida carinis.

FIGLINUS, or uncontracted FIGULINUS, a, um, adj. [figulus]. Of or belonging to a potter, potter's. Hence, subst.: A) Figlina, ae, f. — a) the trade of a potter — b) a potter's shop, pottery: B) Figlinum, i, n., an earthen vessel.

FIGMENTUM, i, n. [figo]. (Lat.) 1) Abstr., a forming, formation. 2) Concr., an image.

FIGO, xi, xum, 3. v. tr. 1) To fix, to fasten, to make fast: f. palum in parietem; f. mucronem in cive, to plunge into; f. crucem, to set up; f. clavum, to drive in; (poet.) f. spicula pectore alicujus, in one's breast; f. vestigia = to move on; f. arma parietibus, postibus (also ad postes), to fasten, to hang upon; f. aliquem cruci or in cruce, to crucify: (poet.) oscula f., to kiss; f. vultus (oculos) in aliquo, in terram, to fix the eyes upon. Hence, f. tabulas, legem, to post up for public information; f. senatus consultum aere publico (Tac.), to engrave. 2) Hence: A) to transfix, to pierce, to run through: f. aliquem telo; trop., f. aliquem maledictis, to taunt, to rail at: B) to hold fast somewhere, to establish, to fix: f. cogitationes suas in re aliqua, to direct steadily to; malum se f., takes root; f. dicta animis, to impress; f. sedem, domos, to fix one's abode: C) f. modum rei alicui, to set bounds to.

FIGULĀRIS, e, adj. [figulus]. Of or pertaining to a potter, potter's.

FIGULĀTUS, a, um, adj. [Figulus II.] (Lat.) Turned into a Figulus.

FIGULUS (I.), i, m. [figo]. A potter.

FIGULUS (II.), i, m. A Roman surname in the gentes Martia and Nigidia.

FIGŪRA, ae, f. [figo]. 1) The figure, shape, form of a body as determined by its outlines (cf. forma, species): animantium forma et f.; f. humana, muliebris; f. navium, lapidis. In partio: A) (poet.) the shade of a deceased person: B) in the Epicurean philosophy, an atom. 2) Trop., quality, kind, nature, form, mode: f. orationis, dicendi, ingenii; (poet.) mille ff. pereundi, ways of dying. 3) Tech. t. in grammar, the form of a word: alia nomina quinque ff. habent = five cases. 4) In rhetoric: A) = a figure of speech: B) a hint, allusion.

FIGURATIO, ōnis, f. [figuro]. (Lat.) 1) A forming, fashioning; shape, form. 2) The form of a word. 3) Imagination.

FIGŪRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [figura]. 1) To shape, to form, to fashion, mundum, caseos; hence, trop. = to teach, os pueri. 2) Trop.: A) to imagine, to fancy: f. sibi iram talem: B) in rhetoric, to adorn with figures of speech: f. orationem translatis verbis; hence, figuratus (of speech) = figurative: C) in grammar, to give a certain form to a word, to inflect.

FILĀTIM, adv. [filum]. (Luor.) Thread by thread.

FILIA, ae, f. A daughter: (poet.) pinus f. silvae.

FILICĀTUS, a, um, adj. [filix]. Furnished with fern; only trop.: patera f., adorned with figures of fern-leaves.

FILIOLA, ae, f. [dim. of filia]. A little daughter.

FILIOLUS, i, m. [dim. of filius]. A little son.

FILIUS, ii, m. A son; pl., children, in gen.; prov. — a) terrae f. = a man of unknown origin, an obscure person — b) f. fortunae or albae galinae, a child of fortune, a lucky person.

FILIX, icis, f. Fern.

FILUM, i, n. [kindred with fibra or fibria].

1) A thread of any thing woven or spun (linen, wool, &c.); also, a fibre of a plant, a string of a musical instrument: ff. cerea = a wick; velamina filo pleno = coarse garments. Hence: A) in particular = a priest's fillet (a woollen fillet wound around the top of a priest's cap): caput velatum filo: B) prov., pendere filo (tenui) = to hang by a thread, to be in great danger: C) (poet.) the thread of life spun by the Fates: extrema fila legere, to spin the last thread. 2) Trop.: A) (poet. & lat.) shape, form, contour, outline (the allusion being to the figures woven into a fabric): scitum f. mulieris; f. formaque solis: B) in speech, the manner of treating or representing a thing, form, quality, texture, style: tenuis argumentandi f.; oratores illi erant paulo uberiores filo; aliud quoddam f. orationis tuae.

FIMBRIA, ae, m. [fimbriae]. A surname in the gens Flavia, q. v.

FIMBRIAE, ærum, f. pl. [kindred with fibra and filum]. Fringe, fibres, threads: ff. cincinnorum, the extreme ends of curls.

FIMBRIANUS, a, um, adj. [Fimbria]. Fimbrian, seditio.

FIMBRIATUS (I.), a, um, adj. [fimbriae]. Fringed, fibrous: capillus f., curled.

*FIMBRIATUS (II.), a, um, adj. [Fimbria]. (Lat.) Turned into a Fimbria.

FIMUS, i, m. [prob. kindred with φῆμα]. The excrement of animals, dung (of stercous, etc.); also (poet.) = dirt, mire.

FINDO, fidi, fissum, 3. v. tr. To cleave, to split, to divide (following the natural structure, e. g., the grain of wood — cf. scindere): f. lignum; ungulae fissae; (poet.) f. terram = to plough; esp. of a motion through space = to cleave; carina f. mare; (poet.) dies hic f. menses, divides; via finditur cuneis, is opened by. Sometimes pass., in a middle sense = to split: lingua finditur in duas partes; (poet.) cor meum finditur, bursts.

FINGO, nxi, ctum, 3. v. tr. 1) To form, to fashion, to shape, to make by forming or fashioning, to prepare: volucres ff. nidos; vis aliqua est quae fingit hominem; (poet.) f. carmina, versus, to compose, to write. Hence, in partic.: A) to fashion, to mould, to give a certain shape or quality to any thing: nulla res magis f. animum; orator f. animos, guides, commands; f. se ad rem aliquam or ex re aliqua, to accommodate one's self to any thing; hence, f. vultum = to disguise, to assume a feigned look: B) of the products of art, to form, to fashion, to represent in a work of art, to model: f. aliquid ex (in) cera; f. aliquem (freq. in opp. to pingo), of a sculptor; ars fingendi, sculpture: C) (poet.) to put in order, to arrange; to adorn, to dress: f. comas; f. se alicui, to dress one's self up for some one's sake; f. vitam putando, to trim: D) (rar.) to bring one into any state or condition, to make one any thing: natura f. finxit hominem magnum; fortuna Sinonem non mendacem finget (poet.): E) to form by instruction, to teach: f. oratorem; (poet.) f. equum eâ ire. 2) Trop.: A) to represent a thing to one's self, to imagine, to think, to suppose:

f. sibi aliquid cogitatione (animo); thus, Likewise, f. aliquid opinionis errore, erroneously; f. aliquem ita voluptatibus deditum; finge, aliquem nunc fieri sapientem, imagine, suppose: B) to contrive, to devise: f. fallacias; f. aliquid ex eventis, to divine, to conclude: C) = to invent, aliquid; f. crimina in aliquem.

FINIENS, tis, m. [part. of finio]. Sc. orbis, a circumscribing circle, i. e., the horizon.

FINIO, Ivi or ii, Itum, 4. v. tr. [finis]. 1) To bound, to limit, to inclose as a boundary: Rhenus f. imperium populi Romani; lingua finita est dentibus; an potest cupiditas finiri? can any bounds be set to a passion? Hence, in gen. = to restrain, to check, to keep within certain boundaries: f. cupiditates, censuram. 2) = Definio: A) to determine, to fix, to appoint: f. modum rei alicui; f. locum in quo dimicandum sit; f. tempus alicui; de pecunia finitur ne, etc., it is determined that, &c.: B) to define, to explain: rhetorice varie finitur. 3) To end, to conclude, to finish, to put an end to: f. bellum, laborem, vitam; sententiae finiuntur his verbis, terminate in; and, esp. part. finitus, in rhetoric = terminating properly. Hence, in partic. (poet. & lat.): A) = to end, to finish or cease speaking: ut semel finiam: B) = to die: finiit anno aetatis vicesimo; pass., finior morbo, in the same sense.

FINIS, is, m. (rar. f.) 1) A boundary (natural—cf. terminus): ad extremum Galliae finem; ambigere de ff.; fines regere, terminare, to fix; ff. proferre, propagare, to advance, to extend; ff. facere, to mark out; quem ad f., as far as, or, interrogatively, how far? Hence: A) of abstract objects = a limit, bound: transire modum et f., to go beyond all bounds; f. ingenii: B) of time = a limit, point: ad eum f., until that; quem ad f.? how long? C) in the pl. = a territory, land, district marked out by certain boundaries: iter facere in fines Santonum; populari alienos ff.; also, of private persons = landed property: pellere dominos finibus; (poet.) a station for ships: D) (rar.) the abl. fine or fini is used as a prep., with the genit. = up to, as far as: pectoris f. 2) An end, conclusion: f. atque exitus infamiae; finem facere scribendi, also maledictis, injuriis (dat.), to put an end or a stop to; finem afferre vitae = to kill one's self. Hence, in partic.: A) (poet. & lat.) = the end of life, death: septem sunt menses a f. Neronis: B) the end or chief design of any thing, purpose, aim: omnes artes habent f. aliquem propositum; ad eum f., for this purpose: C) the end of an ascending series, the highest, chief: "licebit finem dicere pro ultimo, extremo" (Cic.); f. bonorum, the highest good; f. honorum est consulatus. 3) (Lat.) = Finite and definitio, a definition, explanation.

FINITE, adv. [finio]. *1) With limitation, moderately, to a certain extent: f. avarus erit. 2) (Lat.) In particular, definitely.

FINITIMUS (older form Finitimus), a, um, adj [fnis]. 1) Bordering upon, neighbouring (of regions and countries — cf. vicinus): Galli sunt finitimi Belgis; provincia f.; bellum f., war with neighbouring nations; subst., Finitimi, ōrum, m. pl., neighbours, borderers. 2) Trop., bordering upon, connected with, related or very similar to: metus est f. aegritudini; poeta est f. oratori; also, abs., ea quae propinqua et ff. videtur.

FINITIO, ōnis, f. [fnis]. 1) A limiting. 2) (Lat.) A rule. 3) A definition, explanation. 4) A division, part.

FINITIVUS, a, um, adj. [fnio]. (Lat.) Defining.

FINITOR, ōris, m. [fnio]. 1) One who determines boundaries = a surveyor. 2) F. circulus = the horizon.

FIO, factus sum, fieri, 3. v. intr. [kindr. with ῥῥω]. 1) To become: quid illo (de illo) fiet? what will become of him? si quid eo factum esset, if any thing human should befall him; Pompeio melius factum est, Pompey feels better. 2) To happen: fit, it happens; fieri potest, it is possible; fieri non potest ut, it is impossible that; ita fit ut, thus it happens that; ut fit, as is usually the case; fiat! (Com.) so be it! very good! 3) Pass. of facio, to be made, to be done, to be esteemed, &c. (v. Facio): consul fio, I am made consul; nomen fit loco, is given to; plurimi fieri, to be highly esteemed; pro populo fit, sacrifice is offered.

*FIRMAMEN, inis, n. [firmo]. (Poet.) = Firmamentum.

FIRMAMENTUM, i, n. [firmo]. 1) Any thing used for strengthening or supporting, a means of strengthening, a prop, support: tigna quae firmamento esse possint; most freq. trop.: ordo ille (civium) est f. ceterorum; f. dignitatis; legionem illam firmamentum adduxit, as a reinforcement; duo egregia ff. reipublicae, auspicia et senatus. 2) In partic. = the chief support of an assertion, a chief proof, main point.

FIRMANUS, a, um, adj. [Firmum]. Of or belonging to Firmum; subst., Firmani, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Firmum.

FIRMATOR, ōris, m. [Firmo]. (Lat.) A co-firmer.

FIRME or FIRMITER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [firmus]. 1) Firmly, with firmness, assistere. 2) Trop., firmly, steadily, positively, pointedly: f. aliquid comprehendere; f. asseverare.

FIRMITAS, ātis, } f. [firmus]. Firmness, FIRMITUDO, inis, } strength, durability (v. Firmus): f. materiae, corporis, navium; f. vocis; freq. trop., firmness, strength, perseverance, steadfastness: f. animi; f. et constantia; ea amicitia non satis habet firmitatis.

FIRMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [firmus]. 1) To make firm or strong, to strengthen, to fortify: f. corpora cibo, dentes; f. urbis moenia, locum munitionibus, to secure. Freq. trop.: A) = to confirm, to strengthen, to secure, to make durable, permanent: f. imperium, pacem, amicitiam; f. memoriam: B) to confirm one in allegiance: f. illos obsidibus: C) to encourage, to animate: f. nostros. 2) Trop. — a) to confirm, to corroborate an assertion, declaration, &c.; to make certain, to assure: f. aliquid iurejurando; f. fidem, a promise; (ante-cl. & lat.) f., se imperata facturum esse, to declare that, &c. — b) to prove, to show.

FIRMUM, i, n. A town of Picenum, now Fermo.

FIRMUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. 1) Firm, strong (esp. in resisting and enduring — cf. validus; both of living beings and inanimate objects — cf. fortis), robust: f. vinculum, sera, corpus. Hence = well provided with, strong in: firmus ab equitatu; populus, civitas f.; cohortes ff. = strong, complete; ager non f. pascere, not sufficient. 2) Trop., of mind, firm in one's opinion, purpose, &c., steadfast, constant, immovable, strong, certain, reliable: amici, socii ff.; argumentum, praeceptum, spes f.; ff. literae, a letter containing reliable news; f. candidatus, who is certain to succeed; amicus firmus, trustworthy, faithful.

FISCALIS, e, adj. [fiscus]. (Lat.) Of or pertaining to the fiscus (q. v.), fiscal: calumniae ff., denunciations made for the purpose of enriching the treasury (by the fines to be paid by the accused).

FISCELLA, ae, f. [dim. of fiscina]. A small basket (made of osiers, rushes, &c.).

FISCINA, ae, f. [fiscus]. A basket (woven of osiers, rushes, &c.; used for fruit and the like).

FISCUS, i, m. 1) (Rar.) = Fiscina. 2) A money-basket, money-bag; in partic.: A) the public treasury, public revenues = aerarium: B) (lat.) in the time of the emperors, the emperor's privy purse (in opp. to aerarium).

FISSILIS, e, adj. [findo]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) That may be split, fissile: robur f. cuneis. 2) Split, caput.

*FISSIO, ōnis, f. [findo]. A splitting, dividing.

FISSUM, i, n. [part. of findo]. Only in the language of the haruspices: f. jecoris, a cleft, fissure in the liver.

FISSURA, ae, f. [findo]. (Lat.) A cleft, fissure.

FISTUCA, ae, f. [perhaps kindred w. fustis]. An instrument for ramming down, a rammer, beetle.

FISTUCO, —, ātum, 1. v. tr. [fistuca]. To ram in or down, to drive down, fundamenta.

FISTULA, ae, f. 1) A pipe, e. g., a water-pipe; also, the wind-pipe and gullet of the human body; hence, also = the hollow stalk of a reed. 2) A reed-pipe, shepherd's pipe, composed of several (usually seven) reeds (σφύρις). 3) A writing-reed = a pen. 4) A kind of ulcer, a fistula. 5) F. aatoria, a shoemaker's punch, an awl. 6) F. farraria, a kind of hand-mill.

FISTULĀTOR, ōris, m. [fistula]. One who plays on a shepherd's pipe, a piper.

FISTULĀTUS, a, um, adj. [fistula]. Furnished with pipes.

FISTULŌSUS, a, um, adj. [fistula]. (Lat.) Hollowed like pipes, porvus, terra, caseus, lapis.

FIXUS, a, um, adj. [part. of figo]. Fastened, fast, lasting; trop., fixed, determined, unchangeable: decretum f.; fixum est, it is firmly resolved upon.

FLABELLĪ-FĒRA, ae, f. [fero]. (Pl.) A fan-bearer (a female slave).

FLABELLŪLUM, i, n. [dim. of flabellum]. (Poet.) A little fan.

FLABELLUM, i, n. [prop. dim. of flabrum]. A fan.

FLĀBĪLIS, e, adj. [flo]. Airy: nihil f. aut igneum.

FLĀBRA, ōrum, n. pl. [flo]. (Poet.) A blowing, blast, ventorum, austri; concr., winds, breezes.

FLACCĒO, 2. v. intr. [fiacous]. To be flabby; trop., to be faint, weak, languid, to flag: Messala f., acts without energy.

FLACCESCO, 8. v. intr. [inch. of flaccio]. 1) To become withered, to wither, to dry up. 2) Trop., to languish, to droop, oratio.

FLACCĪDUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [flaccio]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) Withered, flabby, flaccid, velum. 2) Trop., languid, weak, turbo.

FLACCUS (I.), a, um, adj. Withered, flaccid, flabby, aures; homo f., flap-eared.

FLACCUS (II.), i, m. A surname in several Roman gentes; esp. in the gentes Fulvia, Horatia, and Valeria.

FLĀGELLO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [flagellum]. To scourge, to whip, to flog, to lash, aliquem; leo f. arborem caudā.

FLĀGELLUM, i, n. [dim. of flagrum]. 1) A scourge, whip: caedi flagellis, to be whipped; also = a whip for driving horses, a horse-whip; trop., the sting of conscience. 2) A shoot or branch of a tree, esp. a vine. 3) (Poet.) The thong of a javelin. 4) The arm of a polypus.

FLĀGĪTATIO, ōnis, f. [flagito]. An urgent demand, request; also, pl., crebrae ff. populi.

FLĀGĪTĀTOR, ōris, m. [flagito]. One who demands urgently, a demander, esp. of money, a dun: f. triumphī.

FLĀGĪTIŌSE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [flagiti-ous]. Shamefully, disgracefully, flagitiously.

FLĀGĪTIŌSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [flagitium]. Shameful, disgraceful, infamous, wicked, flagitious, homo, facinus, libido, vita; f. fama (lat.).

FLĀGĪTUM, īi, n. [flagito]. Prop., heat of passion. Hence, 1) an act of base sensuality, an infamous action, a flagitious deed (of scelus, etc.): stupra et ff.; effeminatus flagitiis; facere, committere, dicere, f.; f. est illud facere; f.

rei militaris, disgraceful conduct in war. Hence (Com.), as a term of reproach, f. hominis! scoundrel! 2) That which results from a flagitious deed, disgrace, infamy: neque gloriā movemini neque flagitio; demere imperio flagitium, to take away from the state.

FLĀGĪTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [kindred with flagro]. 1) To ask or demand urgently or importunately (of. posco, exigo, peto): f. aliquem frumentum or frumentum ab aliquo; f. aliquid; f. aliquem, to dun or press one for any thing, to demand something from one in a pressing manner; stipendium flagitatur, pay is demanded; promissa tua a te flagito, what you have promised; semper flagitavi ut convocaremur. Hence, 2) in partic.: A) to require, to render necessary: quae tempus f.; quid studia a te flagitent: B) to demand to know or to hear: f. crimen, nomen: C) (lat.) to summon before a court or judge, to accuse, aliquem.

FLAGRANS, tis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of flagro]. 1) Flaming, burning, aestus; hence, hot, genae. 2) (Poet.) Of colour, glittering, shining. 3) Trop., hot, burning, passionate, ardent: ff. oscula; f. cupiditas; homo f.; multitudo, comitia ff., disturbed; tumultus f., wild.

FLAGRANTER, adv. w. comp. & sup. [flagrans]. Ardently, eagerly, vehemently.

FLAGRANTIA, ae, f. [flagrans]. A burning, burning heat, montis; trop. = ardent love; (Pl.) f. flagitii, as a term of reproach = you flagitious fellow!

FLAGRITRĪBA, ae, f. [flagrum-rpīβa]. (Pl.) A scourge-spoiler, i. e., a slave who wears out the whip by being continually flogged.

FLAGRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. 1) To burn vehemently, to flame, to blaze, to flare (stronger than ardeo): navis f.; (poet.) arae ff.; totum flagrans, lightning. 2) Trop.: A) of a passion, &c., to be inflamed, to glow, to burn: f. desiderio urbis; f. amore literarum, libidine; Italia f. bello, the flames of war rage in Italy: B) libertas f. (lat.), the spirit of liberty was yet alive: (poet.) amor flagrans aliquam, an ardent love for any one; ut ejusque studium flagrabat; vitia libidinis ff. in illo: C) to be affected by any evil, to suffer from it: f. rumore malo; consules ff. invidiā, are the objects of a burning hatred; f. infamiā; convivia ff. stupris et flagitiis, are filled with.

FLAGRUM, i, n. A whip, scourge: gymnasium flagri (Pl.), of a slave on whose back the whip is frequently tried.

FLĀMEN (I.), Inis, n. [flo]. (Poet.) 1) A blowing of the wind, a blast, Boreas; ferunt sua ff. classem, favourable winds. 2) F. tibinae, a blowing, playing on.

FLĀMEN (II.), Inis, m. [for flamen, from filum, 'a fillet'—worn around his head]. The priest of some particular deity at Rome; the most important was the f. Dialis, the priest of Jupiter.

FLAMINIĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Flaminius II.]. Of or belonging to a Flaminius, Flaminian.

FLAMINICA, ae, f. [flamen]. The wife of the Flamen Dialis, who assisted him at sacrifices, and was held in high esteem.

FLAMININUS, a, um, adj. A Roman surname in the gens Quinctia.

FLAMINIUS (I.), a, um, adj. [flamen]. Of or pertaining to a flamen. Hence, subst.: A) Flaminium, ii, n., the office or dignity of a flamen: B) Flaminia, ae, f., the house of a flamen.

FLAMINIUS (II.), ii, m., and Flaminia, ae, f. The name of a Roman gens; thus, esp. 1) Caius Fl., who was slain in the battle at Lake Trasimenus (217 B. C.). 2) Caius Fl., a son of the preceding, quaestor of the elder Scipio in Spain (210 B. C.), and consul (187 B. C.).

FLAMINIUS (III.), a, um, adj. [Flaminius II.]. Of or belonging to a Flaminius, Flaminian: F. circus, via, built by Flaminius (1).

FLAMMA, ae, f. [kindred with flos, flagro]. 1) A flame, a blazing fire, a blaze: concipere f., to take fire; f. effunditur, spreads; solis f. (poet.); inter ff., among the shining (and; as the ancients thought, fiery) celestial bodies; e flamma cibum petere (of a very dangerous undertaking); flammam tenere = a torch. 2) Trop.: A) (poet.) = the fire of the eyes: B) the flame of passion and emotion, esp. of love: flamma amoris turpissimi; (poet.) f. melior, love of a more worthy object; vis et quasi f. oratoris; invidiae f.: C) f. belli civilis; (poet.) f. gulae, raging hunger; eripuit se flammā = from a threatening danger; also, of the heat of fever.

*FLAMMEĀRIUS, ii, m. [flammeum]. (Pl.) A maker of bridal veils.

*FLAMMEŌLUM, i, n. [dim. of flammeum]. (Poet.) A little bridal veil.

*FLAMMESCO, 3. v. incho. intr. [flamma]. (Poet.) To become inflamed, to take fire.

FLAMMEUM, i, n. [flammeus]. A (flame-coloured) bridal veil, worn at a marriage; hence, ea conerit ff. = she marries several times.

FLAMMEUS, a, um, adj. [flamma]. 1) Flaming, fiery, stellae; (poet.) lumina ff. (eyes). 2) Flame-coloured, fiery red.

FLAMMIFER, ōra, ōrum, adj. [flamma-fero]. Flame-bearing = burning, flaming, Olympus, erinis.

FLAMMIGER, ōra, ōrum, adj. [flamma-gero]. (Poet.) Flame-bearing, fiery.

FLAMMIGO, 1. v. intr. [flamma-ago]. (Lat.) To emit flames.

FLAMMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. [flamma]. 1) Intr. (poet.), to flame, to blaze (only in part. pres.), accervus, lumina. 2) Tr. (poet. & lat.): A) to set on fire, aliquid: B) to burn: Phaëthon flammatus: C) trop., to inflame, to excite: arrogantia f. omnes; f. exereitum, to exasperate; cor flammatum, enraged.

FLAMMŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of flamma]. A little flame.

FLĀTUS, ūs, m. [flos]. 1) A blowing of the wind, a breeze; trop., prosper f. fortunae. 2) A breathing; also, the smorting of a horse. 3) A blowing, playing on the flute. 4) Trop. (poet.) = inflation, haughtiness.

FLĀVEO, 2. v. intr. [flavus]. (Poet.) To be yellow like gold, to be golden or light-coloured.

FLĀVESCO, 3. v. intr. [incho. of flaveo]. (Poet.) To become yellow like gold, to change to a light, golden colour.

FLĀVINA, ae, f. A town in Etruria.

FLĀVIĀLES, ium, m. pl. [Flavius]. A college of priests for the Flavian family, instituted by Domitian.

FLĀVIĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Flavius]. Of or belonging to a Flavius, Flavian: FF. partes, the adherents of Vespasian.

FLĀVINUS, a, um, adj. [Flavina]. Of or pertaining to Flavina, Flavianian.

FLĀVIUS, ii, m., and Flavia, ae, f. The name of a plebeian Roman gens; thus, esp. 1) Cneius Fl., an amanuensis of Appian Claudius Caecus, who published (about 304 B. C.) the Fasti (q. v.), until then known only to the patricians; and also the Legis Actiones (the formulæ used in lawsuits). 2) Caius Fl. Fimbria, an orator, and colleague of Marius in the consulship. 3) C. Fl. Fimbria, son of the preceding, an audacious follower of Marius and Cinna, who, being shut up by Sulla in Pergamus, killed himself. 4) The Emperor Fl. Vespasianus, and his sons Titus and Domitianus; hence, F. ultimus = Domitian.

FLĀVUS, a, um, adj. Yellow like gold, golden; of men, light-coloured, flaxen-coloured (cf. fulvus): f. mel, aurum, crines; Ceres f., having light-coloured hair; Tiberis f.

FLEBĪLIS, e, adj. [fleo]. 1) Pass., to be wept over, deplorable, lamentable, sad, species, vigilia; f. mihi, for me. 2) Act.: A) (poet., rar.) causing tears, that makes one weep, ultor: B) weeping, doleful, tearful, sponsa, vox, gemitus; moeror est aegritudo f.

FLEBĪLĪTER, adv. [flebilis]. Mournfully, dolefully, sadly, sorrowfully.

FLECTO, xi, xum, 3. v. tr. & intr. [kindred with plecto and πλέω]. 1. Tr. — 1) To bow, to bend, to turn round, to curve, to wind: f. ramum, membra: f. vultus ad aliquid; (poet.) f. arcum, to bend; crines flexi, curled; mare flexum = a bay; f. se, or pass. flecti, to turn to any side; (of a wood), to stretch, silva f. se sinistrossus; also (poet.), flecti in gyrum, to move in a circle, to wheel around and around; flecti in anguem = to be changed into a winding snake. Hence: A) = to direct, to turn: f. currum, equum, cursus; f. viam, iter, to direct one's course to (ad urbem, in Capitolium, Demetriadem): B) to give another direction to; trop. = to change, to alter: f. iter; f. cantus, vocem, naturam suam; f. fata: C) to turn off from, to divert: spes eum a proposito f.; f. mentem suam ab alio ad alium: D) in partic., of disposition, inclination, &c. = to move, to touch, to affect, to prevail upon, to persuade: f. animos hominum (by representations, entreaties, &c., in opp. to frango animos); f. deos: E) versus flectitur in Tiberium, is applied to. 2) Tech. t., of a ship, to sail around, to double: f. promontorium; hence = to escape: f. viam. 3) (Lat.) In grammar: A) to form, to derive: f. verba de Graeco: B) f. syllabam, to mark with a circumflex; and hence, to lengthen: C) to inflect, to decline or conjugate. II Intr. (mostly lat.). — To turn, to go, to march, or to move towards any place: ex Gabino in colles Tusculanos f.; trop., f. ad providentiam sapientiamque, to turn to; f. in ambitionem.

FLEMĪNA, num, n. pl. [cf. φλεγμῆς, fr. φλέγω]. (Pl. & lat.) A swelling about the ankles, caused by the accumulation of blood.

FLEO, ἔvi, ἔtum, 2. v. intr. & tr. [from φλέω, kindred with fluo]. 1) Intr., to weep, to shed tears (from pain and sorrow — cf. lacrimo, ploro): f. de re aliqua; fletur, they weep; (poet.) f. alicui, in the presence of one. Hence, trop.: A) (poet.) of objects which emit moisture, to drop, to trickle: ebur f. in templis: B) (lat.) of horses, to neigh mournfully. 2) Tr. (poet. & lat.) = defleo, to weep over, to bewail, to deplore with tears: f. aliquem, necem filii; f. castellam sibi raptam, to complain that, &c.; fletus, wept over, bewailed.

FLETUS (I), a, um, adj. [fleo]. (Poet. & lat.) Weeping; hence, trickling, dripping, sanguine.

FLETUS (II), ūs, m. [fleo]. A weeping, lamenting: ff. mulierum; f. gemitusque; ducere ff., to throw out moans.

FLEVO, ὄnis, m. A lake in Northern Holland, now the Zuyder Zee.

FLEVUM CASTELLUM. A fortress of the Frisii, in North-western Germany, near the mouth of the Ems.

FLEXĀNIMUS, a, um, adj. (Poet.) 1) Touching, affecting, moving the heart. 2) Touched or affected in one's heart.

FLEXIBILIS, e, adj. [flecto]. 1) Flexible, pliant, that may be easily bent, arous, materia; f. genus vocis (in opp. to durus). 2) Trop.: A) easily managed, tractable, manageable, pliant, oratio: *B) = inconstant.

FLEXILIS, e, adj. [flecto]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Flexible, pliant, cornu. 2) Bent, curved, sinus; comae ff., curly.

FLEXI-LŌQUUS, a, um, adj. [flexus-loquor]. Equivocal, oraculum.

FLEXIO, ōnis, f. [flecto]. 1) A bending, curving, laterum. 2): A) a curve or bend of a road; trop. = evasions, subterfuges: B) of the voice, modulation, change: f. vocis; f. in cantu.

FLEXI-PES, ōdis, adj. (Poet.) Curve-footed. FLEXUOSE, adv. [flexuosus]. Crookedly, tortuously, with turnings or windings.

FLEXUOSUS, a, um, adj. w. sup. [flexus]. Full of windings, tortuous, iter.

FLEXURA, ae, f. [flecto]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) 1) A bending, winding, turning, laterum, vicorum. 2) In grammar, an inflection of a word, declension.

FLEXUS, ūs, m. [flecto]. 1) A bending, winding, turning, viae; (poet.) ff. brumales, the winter solstice. 2) In particular, a turning around the goal (meta) in a race-course. Hence: A) = a turning, transition into another state: ff. rerum publicarum; hic quasi aetatis f., a turning-point; si infinitus forensium rerum labor aetatis flexu constitisset, with the transition into old age; autumnus flexu, toward the end of autumn: B) (lat.) of style, an artificial turning, change, variation: mille ff. et artes: C) of the voice, modulation, inflection, variation: aliquid dicere flexu; ille f. decet misericordiam: D) in grammar, derivation, inflection.

FLICTUS, ūs, m. [from the unusual figo — v. Affigo, Configo]. (Poet.) A striking together, collision.

FLO, ἔvi, ἔtum, 1. v. intr. & tr. 1) Intr., to blow: ventus f.; of a person, to exhale the air from the lungs (simul flare sorbereque haud facile est). 2) Tibia f. (poet.), sounds. 3) Tr. (poet. & lat.): A) to blow out or forth, pulverem; f. animam, to breathe out: B) tibia flatur, is blown: *C) trop., f. magna = to speak boastingly, to use inflated language: D) of metals, to melt, to cast, to coin, aes; pecunia flata.

FLOCCUS, i, m. 1) A flock or lock of wool, &c. 2) Trop., a trifle, bagatelle — almost solely in the combination non flocci facio (existimo, pendo) illum (eam rem, etc.), to esteem lightly, to care not a rush or straw for (ante-cl. also without the negation: famam flocci fecit, he did not care a straw for his reputation).

FLOCES, cum, f. pl. (Ante-cl. & lat.) The dregs or lees of wine.

FLŌRA, ae, f. [flos]. The goddess of Flowers and of Spring.

FLŌRĀLIS, e, adj. [Flora]. Of or belonging to Flora; subst., Floralia, ium, n. pl., the feast of the goddess Flora, celebrated on the twenty-eighth of April.

FLŌRENS, tis, adj. w. comp. & sup. [part. of fiores]. Blooming, flourishing; trop., of power, riches, reputation, &c.; hence = powerful, in great repute, excellent, fine, &c.: f. adolescens, a youth of influence; f. pars, the ruling party; hence, florentes, those who are possessed of power and fortune.

FLŌRENTIA, ae, f. A town in Etruria, now Florence.

FLORENTINUS, a, um, adj. [Florentia]. Of or belonging to Florentia, Florentine; subst., Florentini, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Florentia.

FLŌREO, ui, —, 2. v. intr. [flos]. 1) To bloom, to blossom, to flower, segetes, vinea, arbor. Hence: A) (poet. & lat.) of wine, to froth: B) (ante-cl.) to be filled with, to abound in: mare f. navibus; urbs f. puerorum. 2) Trop., to flourish = to be in a prosperous condition (as to fortune, power, reputation, honour) = to be in great repute, to be powerful, wealthy, distinguished: f. ille in patria, in curia; f. auctoritate, laudibus, honore, to possess, to enjoy; f. virtute, f. praeter ceteros, to distinguish, signalize one's self; f. in re militari, to be eminent; also, of things: Graecia f. opibus, gloria; eorum auctoritas maxime f.; meus adventus f. incredibili hominum multitudine, was signalized.

FLŌRESCO, 3. v. intr. [inch. of floreō]. 1) To begin to blossom or bloom, arbusta. 2) Trop. = to begin to flourish (v. Floreo): homo ille eloquentiā f., begins to shine by.

FLŌREUS, a, um, adj. [flos]. (Poet.) 1) Made of flowers, of flowers, corona,serta. 2) Flowery, pratum.

FLORIDŪLUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of floridus]. (Poet.) A little blooming.

FLORIDUS, a, um, adj. [flos]. 1) (Poet.) Made of flowers, of flowers,serta. 2) (Poet.) Flowery, full of flowers, pratum. 3) (Lat.) Of colour, lively, shining. 4) Trop., flourishing — a) fresh, blooming, youthful, puella — b) of speech, florid, oratio; orator f.

FLŌRIFER, ōra, ōrum, adj. [flos-fero]. (Poet.) Flower-bearing.

FLŌRILĒGUS, a, um, adj. [flos-lego]. (Poet.) Gathering flowers.

FLŌRIUS, a, um, adj. [Flora]. (Lat.) Of or belonging to Flora.

FLŌRUS (I.), a, um, adj. [flos]. (Lat. and very rar.) Shining, bright.

FLŌRUS (II.), i, m. A Roman surname; thus, esp. 1) Julius Florus, an orator of Gaul. 2) L. Annaeus F., a Latin historian, under Trajan or Hadrian.

FLOS, ōris, m. [kindred with φλῶς, fr. φλέω]. 1) A flower, blossom. Hence: A) (poet.) = the juice of a flower, honey-juce: apis ingerit flores alveo: B) f. genae; f. juvenilis, or simply f., the first hairs of the beard. 2) Trop.: A) the uppermost part, the point of any thing: f. flammae: B) the best, most excellent part of any thing: f. vini, olei. In partic. — a) of persons or things that are the best of their kind, the flower, crown, ornament: f. civium, nobilitatis, populi, juventutis, the choicest, best; provincia illa f. Italiae est; f. dignitatis; vitae f., glory, splendour; f. aetatis (juventutis), the flower of life, youth; f. virium, the most vigorous age; in primo f. extingui, in the prime of life — b) of speech, a flower, ornament (= flosculus): oratio sit conspersa verborum sententiarumque floribus.

FLOSCŪLUS, i, m. [dim. of flos]. 1) A small flower, a floweret. 2) Trop., the best part of any thing, the flower, ornament: A) of persons, f. Juventiorum: B) of speech, a flower, rhetorical ornament: omni ex genere orationis flosculos carpam. 3) (Lat.) A sentence taken from a work for its beauty.

FLUCTIFRĀGUS, a, um, adj. [fluctus-frango]. (Lucr.) Wave-breaking.

FLUCTI-SŌNUS, a, um, adj. (Poet.) Roaring with waves, wave-resounding.

FLUCTO, 1. v. intr. (Lucr.) = Fluctuo.

FLUCTUATIO, ōnis, f. [fluctuo]. 1) A restless motion, corporis. 2) Trop., of the mind, a wavering, irresolution, vacillation.

FLUCTUO, āvi, ātum, } 1. v. intr. [fluctus].

FLUCTUOR, ātus, dep. } 1) To move like waves, to wave, to undulate; hence, to move to and fro, to be tossed about on the waves: mare f.; navis f. in salo; Delos diu fluctuata, floating on the sea; fluctuantes = the floating (corpses); figuratively, acies f., wavers (in consequence of an attack). 2) Trop.: A) to waver in one's purpose, to hesitate, to be irresolute, doubtful, or uncertain: animus f.; ille f. animo; f. magnis curis; f. in aliqua re; f. inter spem metumque: B) = to be excited.

FLUCTUŌSUS, a, um, adj. [fluctus]. (Rar., ante-cl. & lat.) Full of waves, undulating, mare.

FLUCTUS, ūs, m. [fluō]. 1) Abstr. (Lucr.), a waving or streaming motion, a streaming: f. aquae; jactari in dubio f. 2) Concr., an undulating mass of water, a wave, billow (connected and moving with others — cf. unda): f. frangitur saxo; operiri fluctu; declamare ad fluctus, along the shore of the billowy sea; freq. in the pl., maximi ff. excitantur. Hence (poet.) = water, or the sea, in gen.; prov., excitare fluctus in simpulo, to raise a tempest in a teapot, i. e., to make much ado about nothing. 3) Trop., an unquiet and uncertain state, a commotion, disturbance: f. et tempestas populi; rerum f.; thus, freq. to denote trouble, danger: ff. civiles, civil commotions; jactari populi fluctibus, by the fluctuations of the people; also, of passions, ff. irarum, waves, tides. 4) (Lucr.) A streaming forth, odorum.

FLUENTER, adv. [fluō]. (Poet. and very rar.) In a flowing manner, flowingly.

FLUENTISŌNUS, a, um, adj. [fluō-sonus]. (Poet.) Wave-resounding.

FLUENTUM, i, n. [fluō]. (Poet. & lat. — almost always in the pl.) Running water, a stream, flood: ff. Xanthi, Tiberis.

FLUIDUS, a, um, adj. [fluō]. (Mostly poet. & lat.) 1) Flowing, fluid, liquor, cruor. 2) Trop.: A) flowing down, loose, vestis: B) slack, weak, languid, loose, corpora, frondes: *C) (poet.) dissolving, loosening.

FLUITO, āvi, ōtum, 1. v. intr. [intens. of fluo].
 1) To flow about on the water, to float: navis f. in alto. 2) To move like waves, to wave, to undulate: vela ff. theatro; lora fluitantia, slack; vestis fluitans, flowing down; miles fluitans, staggering. 3) Trop., to waver, to hesitate, to be irresolute or uncertain: f. animo, spe dubiae horae.

FLUMEN, inis, n. [fluo]. 1) (Mostly poet.) A flowing or streaming of water; concr., any running mass of water, a stream, flood: Cocytus arrens flumine languido; also, in the pl. = water, in gen.: f. fontis; ff. limosa (of a marsh). 2) A river (the motion of the water being especially thought of — cf. fluvius and amnis): f. fluit per urbem; f. Rhodanus; secundo f., down-stream; adverso f., up or against the stream. Hence: A) improp., of other streaming or flowing objects, as rain, tears, blood = a stream, flood, torrent: B) trop., of speech, a flow, copiousness, fluency: f. orationis, verborum.

FLUMENTANA PORTA [flumen]. A gate of Rome, near the Tiber, leading from the city to the Campus Martius, now Porto del Popolo.

FLUMINEUS, a, um, adj. [flumen]. Of or pertaining to a river, river-, aqua, volucres.

FLUO, xi, xum, 3. v. intr. [kindred with φλῦω and φέω]. 1) To flow (so that a thing thereby moves forward — cf. mano): flumen f. per urbem; sanguis, sudor f.; unda f. capillis, from the hair; hence, of solid bodies, to melt, to become liquid: aurum f. Hence: A) (poet.) of a motion resembling that of fluids, to stream, to flow, to pour forth, to wave: odores ff. a certis rebus, stream forth; aestus f. e lapide; comae fluentes, flowing down; vestis fluens, flowing, loose; rami fluentes, spreading out; turba fluit castris, pours forth: B) trop., of abstract objects, to flow, to proceed; also = to arise, to spring, to originate: oratio ejus libere f.; haec ex eodem fonte ff.; nomen f. ex Graeco, is derived from the Greek; doctrina ejus longe lateque fluxit, spread; tempora tarde ff., pass; res ff. ad voluntatem proceed according to our wish; res f. ad interregnum, comes gradually to: C) = to float about, to proceed in an unsteady and planless manner: ne oratio fluat et vegetur. 2) To overflow with any thing, to drop, to drip: membra fluunt sudore; f. cruore; buccae fluentes, dripping with unguents or paint (in another sense, v. sub No. 3); also (poet.) = to sweat: flueris solio ferventis aquae. 3) To flow apart or asunder, to fall away or out; to pass away: arma ff. de manibus; membra dissolvuntur et ff.; buccae fluentes, lank. Hence, trop., to dissolve, to vanish, to disappear: liquescere et f. molliū; cetera nascuntur, occidunt, fluunt; voluptas corporis f.; res publica duens, sinking.

FLUTO, 1. v. intr. [contracted from fluito]. (Antecl.) To float.

FLUVIALIS, } e, adj. [fluvius]. Of or per- FLUVIATILIS, } taining to a river, river-;
f. testudo; arundo f., growing by or in a river.
FLUVIUS, a, um, adj. [fluo]. (Lucr.) Flowing, fluid.

FLUVIUS, ii, m. [fluo]. (Not used by Caesar.)
 1) A river. 2) Running water, a stream, flood.

FLUXIO, ōnis, f. [fluo]. A flowing, flow: aquarum ff., inundations.

FLUXUS (I.), ūs, m. [fluo]. (Lat.) A flowing, flow, aquarum; fluxus aëris, resinae. *2) (Doubtful read.) A fleeting or passing away of time: ff. auctumni.

FLUXUS (II.), a, um, adj. [fluo]. 1) (Lat.) Flowing: (poet.) vas fluxus, leaking. 2) (Lat.) Flowing down, waving, loose, crinis, amictus, arma; hence, slack, hanging slack, habenae. 3) Trop., flowing away: A) passing away, decaying, pars muri, corpora: B) weak, slack, remissa, dissolute: animus, dux, mens senis fluxa, decayed with age: C) frail, perishable, uncertain; ff. res humanae; f. auctoritas, fides, gloria; studia ff., of short-lived influence.

FŌCALE, is, n. [instead of faucale, fr. fauces]. (Poet.) A neckcloth, cravat (used by sick or effeminate persons).

FŌCILLO, 1. v. tr. [foculus]. (Lat.) To refresh, to revive by means of warmth, to warm, aliquem; trop., f. societatem, to revive.

FŌCŪLUS, i, m. [dim. of focus]. 1) A little hearth; hence, melon. = fire. 2) A little chafing-dish, fire-pan.

FŌCUS, i, m. [kindred with foveo]. 1) The fire-place of a house, a hearth; hence, freq. = a house, family, domestic property, &c.: exturbat eum patris focus; ager habitatus quinque focus, by five families; arae et foci, pro aris et focus (v. Ara). Hence: A) = a funeral pile: B) = an altar. 2) A chafing-dish, fire-pan.

FŌDICO, 1. v. tr. [fodio]. Prop., to dig; hence, 1) to jog: f. latus alicui. 2) Trop. = to torment, to grieve, animum.

FŌDIO, fōdi, fossum, 3. v. tr. [kindred with βῆσπον]. 1) To dig: f. in campo; f. fundum, arva; (poet.) f. murum = to undermine; hence, to make by digging: f. puteum, fossam. 2) To dig out or up, argentum, gypsum e terra. 3) To dig through, to pierce, to stab: f. guttura alicujus cultro; f. hostem pugione; f. aliquem stimulis, to prick; (Com.) = to jog or punch one in the side; f. oculos, to put out; trop., dolor f., stings.

FOECUNDUS, etc. = v. fecundus.

FOEDE, adv. with comp. & sup. [foedus].
 Foully, horribly; trop., disgracefully.

FOEDERATUS, a, um, adj. [foedus].
 Confederate, allied.

FOEDIFRAGUS, a, um, adj. [foedus-frango].
 League-breaking, faithless.

FOEDITAS, ātis, f. [foedus]. 1) Foulness, horridness, & deformity, hideousness, odoris, vestitus, cicatricum. 2) Trop., of the mind, horribleness, detestableness: depravatio et f. animi.

FOEDO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [foedus]. (Mostly poet. & lat.) 1) To make foul, horrible, or hideous, to defile, to pollute, to disfigure: Harpyiae omnia foedant contactu suo; f. vultum alicujus cinere, to defile; (poet.) f. aliquem ferro, hostium copias, to disfigure by wounds, to wound; agri foedantur, are laid waste. 2) Trop., to disgrace, to dishonour, to stain, gloriam, merita sua; adventus tuus f. Romam; annus foedatus cladibus, marked with.

FOEDUS (I.), a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [kindred with foeteo]. Foul, filthy, horrible, detestable, abominable (repugnant to natural feeling — cf. deformis and turpis): f. homo, vulnus, locus; tempestas f., terrible; pestilentia foeda pecori, destructive, pernicious; thus, also, of abstract objects, esp. in a moral sense: illo tyranno nihil foedius; homo f., despicable; facinus, bellum f.; mors f.; condiciones ff., disgraceful.

FOEDUS (II.), ōris, n. 1) A league, treaty, compact, alliance (a formal act, entered into as a security to both parties, and for the regulation of their common affairs — cf. societas): A) with reference to public life, of states and tribes — pax et f.; amicitia et f.; societas et f.; nulla societas optimis civibus cum importunissimo hoste foedere ullo confirmari potest; contra f.: B) in private life — a covenant, agreement: facere f. cum aliquo; f. amoris, amicitiae, hospitii; (poet.) f. thalami, a marriage contract. 2) (Poet.) An irrevocable order, a decree, law: f. naturae; f. certum, aeternum; f. Parcarum.

FOEMINA — v. Femina.

FOETEO, 2. v. intr. [kindred with foedus I.]. To stink; trop. (Pl.), oratio tua mihi f., I loathe.

FOETIDUS, a, um, adj. [foeteo]. Stinking, anima, corpus.

FOETOR, ōris, m. [foeto]. A stench, smell; trop. = offensiveness, verborum.

FŌLIA, ae, f. The name of a sorceress of Ariminum.

FŌLIATUS, a, um, adj. [folium]. (Lat.) Leafy; hence, subst., Foliatum, i, n. (sc. unguentum), an oil or unguent made of the leaves of nard (v. Nardus), nard oil.

FŌLIUM, ii, n. [kindred with φύλλον]. A leaf; also, as an emblem of fickleness: f. Sybillae (poet.) = an oracle of the Sibyl (written on leaves).

FOLLICŪLUS, i, m. [dim. of follis]. 1) A small sack or bag of leather. 2) A wind-ball, a ball of leather inflated with wind. 3) (Ante-cl. & lat.) The husk, pod, shell, skin of leguminous plants, &c.: f. grani, spicae; also (poet.), the shell of an egg; also, the human body, as the husk of the soul.

FOLLIS, is, m. 1) A pair of bellows. 2) = Folliculus (2), a wind-ball. 3) (Lat.) A money-bag (of leather). *4) Trop., puffed or distended cheeks: hinc immensa cavi spirant mendacia folles.

*FOLLITIM, adv. [follis 3]. By money-bags by bags full: f. aliquem ducitare. (Pl.)

FŌMENTA, ōrum, n. pl. (perhaps never in the sing.) [instead of fovimenta, from foveo]. 1) A means of warming, a warm application, fomentation, cataplasm, poultice: nulla ff. vulneribus = bandages; curarum ff. frigida (poet.), the cold fomentations of care (that chill the heart). 2) Trop., a lenitive, mitigation, alleviation, an anodyne: solatio et ff. malorum; adhibere ff. animis militibus.

FŌMES, Itis, m. [foveo]. (Poet. & lat.) A means of kindling fire, touch-wood, tinder; in gen., an incentive; trop., f. ingenii (lat.).

FONS, tis, m. [fundo]. 1) A spring, fountain; hence (poet.) = spring-water, and water, in gen.: ferre ignem et f. 2) Trop. = a source, origin, cause: f. maledicti; hic est f. movendi; Socrates f. philosophorum; Cilicia f. belli; is f. hujus mali fuit. 3) Personified, as a deity.

FONTANUS, a, um, adj. [fons]. (Poet. & lat.) Of or pertaining to a spring or fountain, spring-, aqua.

FontEIANUS, a, um, adj. [Fonteius]. Of or belonging to a Fonteius, Fontēian.

FontEIVS, i, m., and Fonteia, ae, f. The name of a Roman gens; thus, esp. 1) Marcus F., propraetor in Gallia Narbonensis, who was accused of extortion, but defended by Cicero, and acquitted. 2) A. Fonteius, a seditious military tribune, dismissed by Cæsar.

FontICŪLUS, i, m. [dim. of fons]. A little spring or fountain. (Poet. & lat.)

FontINALIS, e, adj. [fons]. Of or pertaining to a spring or fountain, spring-: porta f., perhaps = porta Capena (q. v.); hence, subst., Fontinālis, is, m., the god of Fountains.

FOR (unusual in the first person), fatus, 1: v. dep. tr. & intr. [kindred with φάω, φημι]. (Poet. & obsol. — v. Fas, Fatum.) 1) (Rar.) To speak, to utter articulate sounds, words (cf. loquor, dico): quum puer jam per aetatem fari posset. 2) (Poet.) To speak, in gen., to say (mostly poet. and in elevated style): f. aliquid; fare, say. Hence: A) = to sing, to celebrate in song: Tarpeium nemus: B) = to foretell, to prophesy.

*FŌRABILIS, e, adj. [foro]. (Poet.) That may be pierced, penetrable.

FŌRĀMEN, inis, n. [foro]. An opening made by boring, a hole: f. parietum; ff. illa quae patent ad animum a corpore, the (supposed) ways (openings, channels) by which the impressions of the senses are conveyed to the soul.

FŌRAS, adv. [kindred with foris]. Towards the outside, forth, out (cf. foris): exire f.; ejicere aliquem aedibus f.; thus, freq. = out of doors; sometimes = out of town; trop., peccatum tuum elatum est f., has been divulged, made public; dare f., to divulge.

FORCEPS, cīpis, m. & f. A pair of tongs, pincers, nippers; also = fire tongs; trop., of things of like shape, e. g., a kind of battle array.

FORDUS, a, um, adj. [fero]. With young, pregnant, bos (only of cows; used solely by the vulgar, and in the language of religion).

FÖRE, infin., and FÖREM, es, etc., imperf. subj., secondary forms of the verb esse; the former = futurum esse; the latter = essem, etc.: such combinations as 'facturos fore,' 'si quid posset fore,' occur only in later writers.

FÖRENSIS, e, adj. [forum]. Of or pertaining to the market or to public life (cf. forum), public, forensic: oratio (dictio, genus dicendi) f., used before the people, or, in partic., in legal proceedings; opera f.; res, negotia ff., legal affairs, public transactions, or money affairs (v. Forum 2); vestitus f., an out-of-door dress, state dress; factio, turba f., the rabble of the market-place, idle people, roving about in the market-place, who were easily bribed; Marte forensi florere, i. e., eloquence; hence, subst.: A) Forensis, is, m. (lat.), one who does business in the market: B) Forensia, ium, n. pl. (lat.), a state dress.

FÖRENTĀNI, ōrum, m. pl. [Forentum]. The inhabitants of Forentum.

FÖRENTUM, i, n. A town in Appulia, now Forenza.

FORFEX, ficis, f. (Lat.) A pair of shears or scissars; trop., a kind of battle array.

FÖRICA, ae, f. [forum]. (Poet.) A warehouse.

FÖRIS (I.), adv. [kindr. w. forum, an obsol. abl. form, to which the acc. foras corresponds]. 1) On the outside, out of doors, abroad, without (cf. foras): esse f. In partic.: A) freq. = out of the house, not at home (in opp. to domi): coenare f.; haec studia delectant domi, non impediunt foris, in public life; foris plauditur, among the people; f. esse, to be in the people's hands, in debt: B) = out of the city: intra vallum et f.: C) freq. = in war, in the camp, in the field (in opp. to domi): parvi sunt f. arma nisi est consilium domi: D) beyond the bounds of one's native country, abroad: ita et domi dignitas et fauctoritas retinebitur. 2) From abroad: quae f. ad eum deferuntur.

FÖRIS (II.), is, f. [perhaps from 36pa]. (More freq. in the pl., Fores, ium.) A door, gate (both of a single room and of a house) = a wooden door shutting up an opening (cf. ostium, janua): (poet.) ff. equi aënei; trop., ff. amicitiae; in partic., a folding-door (in ordinary buildings—valvae, in magnificent buildings).

FORMA, ae, f. [μῆρην]. 1) Form (gen. regarded from an æsthetic point of view, with respect to beauty, consideration, repute—conf. figura), figure, shape: f. animantium omnium, humana;

f. agri, urbis; quae species formae sit, how his form looks; ff. igneae, fiery bodies; formae decorum, the forms of gods = gods. Hence: A) in particular = a beautiful form, beauty: virgines forma excellentes; f. muliebris: B) = an image: ff. virorum clarissimorum; describere formas in arenis, figures: C) trop., of the mind, the image, form of any thing (as fashioned by the mind into a conception), a sketch, draught: f. et notio viri boni; f. communium temporum; ff. reipublicae, form, system; f. rei, quality. 2) (Poet. & lat.) The form after which any thing is modelled, a model, form, pattern, stamp: denarius publicae formae; f. sutoris, a last. 3) A kind, sort: generis illius sunt duae ff.; ff. scelerum (poet.). 4) (Lat.) = A formula, formulary rescript. 5) In grammar, the form of a word.

FORMĀLIS, e, adj. [forma]. (Lat.) After a certain form, formal, epistola.

FORMĀMENTUM, i, n. [formo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A forming, shaping; a shape, form.

FORMĀTIO, ōnis, f. [formo]. (Lat.) A forming, fashioning; trop., f. morum.

FORMĀTOR, ōris, m. [formo]. A former, fashioner, universi; trop., f. morum, ingeniorum.

FORMĀTŪRA, ae, f. [formo]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) A fashioning, shaping, laborum.

FORMIAE, ārum, f. pl. An ancient town in Latium, the mythical seat of Antiphates, king of the Laestrigones, celebrated for its excellent wine—now Mola di Gaeta.

FORMIĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Formiae]. Of or belonging to Formiae, Formian: decoctor Formianus (of a Roman knight, Mamurra, whose family originally came from Formiae). Hence, subst.: A) Formiani, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Formiae: B) Formianum, i, n., a villa near Formiae.

FORMICA, ae, f. [βέρπηξ, Æol. for μέρπηξ]. An ant, emmet, pismire.

FORMICINUS, a, um, adj. [formica]. (Pl.) Like ants, gradus.

FORMIDĀBĪLIS, e, adj. [formido]. (Poet. & lat.) Formidable, dreadful.

FORMĪDO (I.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. To be afraid, to dread, to fear, to shudder at (cf. timeo, metuo): f. aliquem; f. iracundiam aliqujus; formidatus, dreaded; hence, aquae formidatae, hydrophobia; formidandus, dreadful; (poet.) f. illi credere, not to venture; f. ne hic illud credat, to be afraid.

FORMĪDO (II.), īnis, f. [formido I.]. 1) Dread, terror (cf. terror, metus, timor): f. mortis; existunt inde saepe ff.; hence (poet.), religious awe: f. sacri Martis. 2) (Poet. & lat.) That which produces dread, a terror, horror (e. g., of the awful darkness of a forest); in partic., a scarecrow (made of a bunch of feathers), a bugbear.

FORMĪDŌLOSE, adv. [formidolosus]. In a frightful manner, frightfully, dreadfully.

FORMIDŌLOSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [formido II.]. 1) Producing fear, dreadful, terrible, frightful, terrific, locus, fera, tempora. 2) (Ante-cl. & lat.) Feeling terror, timorous, afraid, homo, equus; (lat.) f. hostium, of the enemy.

FORMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [forma]. 1) To form, to fashion, to arrange: f. materiam, capillos, ceram; formari in aeguem, to be lengthened into; of abstract objects = to cultivate, to train, to shape, to form by instruction: f. orationem multo stilo, eloquentiam; f. studia alicujus, to guide and regulate; f. consuetudinem; f. animos, to dispose. Hence, f. se in mores alicujus, to conform one's self to; formatus in admirationem, feigning admiration; f. militem ad disciplinam, to train. 2) To form = to make to exist, to make, to produce: f. classem, to build: f. librum, to write; f. novam personam, to represent on the stage.

FORMŌSE, adv. w. comp. [formosus]. (Lat.) Beautifully.

FORMŌSITAS, ātis, f. [formosus]. (Rar.) Beauty of form.

FORMŌSUS, a, um, adj. with comp. & sup. [forma]. Well-shaped, beautiful (it denotes a symmetrical and beautiful form; hence, esp. of manly beauty — cf. pulcher, venustus, etc.): f. homo; f. virgo; (poet.) f. bos, arma, anni tempus, pecus.

FORMŪLA, ae, f. [prop. dim. of forma]. *1) (Pl.) A handsome form, beauty. 2) An established or prescribed form or principle, a rule, order, regulation: f. quaedam constituenda est; f. dicendi, consuetudinis nostrae; f. provinciae. In partic.: A) a rule, direction, order (contained in an agreement or compact); hence = an agreement, compact: milites paratos habere ex f., according to the treaty; restituere aliquos in antiquam f. juris ac dicionis eorum; referre aliquos in sociorum formulam, to receive among the allies; f. censendi, the rule to be observed in taking the census; dicere formulas, to establish rules: B) a rule for regulating legal proceedings, a form, formula: f. stipulationum ac iudiciorum, testamentorum, sponsionis: C) = a lawsuit, action at law: cadere or excidere formulā, to lose one's suit.

FORMŪLARIUS, ii, m. [formula]. One who concerns himself only with legal formulae, a formulist.

FORNĀCALIS, e, adj. [fornax]. (Poet.) Of or pertaining to an oven: dea f., the goddess Fornax; hence, subst., Fornacalia, ium, n. pl., the festival of the goddess Fornax.

FORNĀCŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of fornax]. A little stove or oven.

FORNAX, ācis, f. [kindred with furnus, and perhaps with foveo]. An oven, furnace, kiln: fornax calcaria, a limekiln; f. aeraria, a smelting-furnace; (poet.) f. Aetnae, the crater; also, personified, the goddess Fornax, who presided over the baking of bread.

FORNICATIO, ōnis, f. [fornicatus]. (Lat.) A vaulting, arching; also, concr., an arch.

FORNICĀTUS, a, um, adj. [part. of the unusual fornico, from fornix]. Vaulted, arched: via F., Arch street, a street in Rome leading to the Campus Martius.

FORNIX, icis, f. 1) A vault, arch: f. Fabii (or Fabius), a triumphal arch built by Fabius Max. Allobrogicus; hence = a covered way, the sally-port of a fortress. 2) A vault under ground, used as a low, vulgar tavern, a brethel, stew; also, of a lewd person.

FŌRO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To bore, to pierce, arborem, aures; trop., animus foratus, that has holes, i. e., retains nothing.

FŌRŌJŪLIENSIS, e, adj. Of or belonging to the Forum Julii: colonia F. = Forum Julii; subst., Forojulienses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Forum Julii.

FORS, tis, f. [fero]. (Used only in the nom. and abl. sing.) I. Subst. — Chance, hap (that which brings on events in an inexplicable manner — cf. fortuna): fors tulit, brought it; fors se dare visa est imperii recuperandi, by chance there seemed to be an opportunity; forte quadam divinitus; fors fuit, it happened; (Lucretius) fors (est) illud reperiri posse, it is possible that; (Com.) fors fuit pol! so be it! Sometimes, personified, Fors = the goddess of Chance. II. Adv.

— 1) (Poet.) Nom. Fors = Fortasse, perhaps, perchance. 2) Abl. Forte: A) by chance, by accident (in opp. to that which takes place designedly, of purpose and systematically; mostly unemphatic — cf. casu, fortuito): f. temere; seu f. seu tentandi causa; quum casu his diebus decedens e provincia Puteolos f. venissem; erat f. brumae tempus, it happened to be; per eos dies f., about this time; freq., as a strengthening particle, f. fortunā = fortunately: B) mostly connected with the conjunctions si, nisi, ne — to denote uncertainty — perhaps, perchance, peradventure (enclitically — cf. fortasse and forsitan): si quis vestrum f. miratur; Erucii criminatio tota dissoluta est, nisi f. exspectatis.

FORSAN, adv. [contracted from forsitan]. (Mostly poet. & lat.) Perhaps, possibly.

FORSIT, adv. [shortened from forsitan]. (Poet.) Perhaps.

FORSITAN, adv. [fors-sit-an]. Perhaps, possibly (more undetermined and doubtful than fortasse; hence, usually with a conjunction — cf. also forte).

FORTAN, adv. (Doubtful read.) = Forsitan.

FORTASSE (rar. Fortassis), adv. [forte-an-sit?]. 1) Perhaps (and not improbable — cf. forsitan and forte; hence, usually with the indicative): f. dies. In partic.: A) (colloquial) used abs., as an answer: Sy. Hui, tardus es? Ch. Fortasse: B) (Com.) with an infinitive sentence, it may be: f. te illum mirare coequum, it is possible that, &c.: C) ironically, of a proposition which is not admitted by one: sed ego fortasse vaticinor et haec omnia meliores habebunt exitus.

3) Of numbers = about: elegit tringita f. versus.
 *FORTESCO, 3. v. inch. intr. [fortis]. (Antecl.) To become brave.

FORTICŪLUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of fortis]. Somewhat brave.

FORTIS, e, adj. w. comp. & sup. [fero]. 1) Physically, strong, vigorous, stout, enduring, homo, equus; aliquem fortem invenire, in good health; rar. of inanimate objects = durable, &c., lignum, vinctula; stomachus f.; sol fortis, hot. Hence = powerful, influential: familia f. 2) Mentally, bold, brave, dauntless, courageous, energetic: f. et constans vir; ff. et animosi; vir ad pericula fortis, who boldly encounters dangers; f. ad sanguinem civilem, to the point of shedding the blood of fellow-citizens; f. contra audaciam; f. in aliquo, in relation to one; prov., fortes fortuna adjuvat, or only fortes fortuna, fortune favours the brave; also, of things in which courage, &c., is revealed: f. animus, cupiditas, factum; oculi ff., sparkling with courage; sententiae ff.; f. genus dicendi.

FORTITER, adv. with comp. & sup. [fortis]. 1) Physically, strongly, vigorously, stoutly: f. astringere, lora attrahere. 2) Mentally, bravely, manfully, valiantly, courageously, energetically; hence, fortiter curari, by powerful remedies.

FORTITUDO, inis, f. [fortis]. 1) (Very rar.) Physically, strength, vigour. 2) Mentally, bravery, fortitude, firmness, courage, intrepidity.

FORTUITO, adv. [fortuitus]. By chance or accident, casually, fortuitously (with emphasis — cf. forte).

FORTUITUS, a, um, adj. [fors]. Casual, accidental, fortuitous: subita et f. oratio, delivered without preparation, extemporaneous; f. caespes (poet.), the first that is met with by chance.

FORTUNA, ae, f. [fors]. 1) Chance, fate, fortune (interfering in human affairs, not without plan, but according to favour or disfavour — cf. fors, fatum): f. est domina rerum externarum et ad corpus pertinentium; eadem vobis est f. belli patienda; also, in the pl., omnes laudant ff. mea, my luck; f. erat potentiora, was on the side of the more powerful. In partic., f. secunda = good luck, good fortune; f. adversa = misfortune, adversity — freq. these adjectives are not added, but must be supplied from the context: illis magnis viris non solum propter virtutem sed etiam propter fortunam saepius imperia mandata sunt; per fortunas, for heaven's sake. Also, personified = the goddess of Luck or Fortune, Fortuna, who had sanctuaries, esp. at Antium and Praeneste, in Italy; hence, Fortunae filius, a child of Fortune, Fortune's favourite. 2) = situation, position, condition, circumstances, lot: est infima f. servorum; f. corporis, bodily condition; homines omnis fortunae ac loci, of every rank and class; superior fuit ordine, inferior fortunâ, in fortune; Darius oneratus fortunae suae apparatus, of his high dignity. In partic., mostly in the pl. = fortune, property, goods, possessions: adimere alicui fortunas bonaeque; omnibus sociorum fortunis consumptia.

FORTŪNATE, adv. w. comp. [fortunatus]. Prosperously, luckily.

FORTŪNATUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [fortuna, or part. of fortunus]. 1) Prosperous, lucky, fortunate, blessed with the external gifts of fortune (cf. felix, etc.), homo, res publica, urbs; f. laborum, happy in his sufferings. 2) Wealthy, rich, homo. 3) Fortunatae or Fortunatorum insulae (= αι ραν Μανάρου νησι), according to mythology, certain islands in the Atlantic ocean, near the African coast, the supposed abodes of the souls of the blessed, perhaps = the Canary islands.

FORTŪNO, avi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [fortunus]. To make prosperous or fortunate, to bless, to prosper: f. aliquid alicui; dii tibi ff. horam, may bestow upon you a happy hour.

FÖRÜLI (I.), örum, m. pl. [forus]. (Lat.) Book-cases, book-shelves.

FÖRÜLI (II.), örum, m. pl. A small town in the Sabine territory, now Civita Tomassa.

FÖRUM, i, n. [kindred v. forus, foras, foris, perhaps from fero]. *1) (Obsol.) The open space or vestibule before a tomb. 2) A market-place = a public place in a town, esp. at Rome: A) f. Romanum, a long, quadrangular place, between the Capitoline and Palatine hills, surrounded by public buildings, colonnades, stalls and tables of money-changers. Hence — a) as a market or trading-place: scisti uti foro tuo (Com.) = you know how to make your market, i. e., to avail yourself of an opportunity — b) as the place where the business of the money-changers, and, in gen., all important money business, was transacted: haec ratio pecuniarum quae Romae est in foro versatur; sublata erat de f. fides; Postumium jam pridem in foro non habemus = Postumius is bankrupt; in the same sense, cessit de foro, and (Pl.) foro mersus est; in foro versari, to transact money business — c) as the place where legal proceedings and lawsuits were carried on, public affairs discussed, and esp. speeches delivered to the people from the rostra: forum attingere, to engage in public affairs; agere f., to hold a court; indicere f., to appoint a court-day; studia fori et civilium artium; res vestitur in meo foro, the matter is pending in my own court, i. e., affects me nearly: B) other public or market-places in Rome, e. g., forum boarium, the cattle-market; f. olitorium, the vegetable-market; forum Augusti. 3) Out of Rome: A) a trading-place, market-place, market-town: oppidum nomine Varga, forum rerum venalium maxime celebratum: B) a court or assize-town of a province, where the governor held court at certain periods; hence = a judicial district: ne quis extra suum f. vadimonium promittere cogeretur; civitates quae in id forum conveniunt. 4) The name of several towns and places, viz.: A) F. Allieni, in Gallia Transpadana, now Ferrara: B) F. Appii, in Latium, on the via Appia, now S. Donato: C) F. Aurelium, near Rome, on the via Aurelia, now Monte Alto: D) F. Corneliū, in Gallia Cispadana, on the via Aemilia, now Imola: E) F. Gallorum, in Gallia Cispadana, now Castel Franco: F) F. Julii, in Gallia Narbonensis, now Frejus: G) F. Voconii, in the Pyrenae (Gallia Narbonensis).

FÖRUS, i, m. [kindred with forum, foras, foris; perhaps from fero]. (Usually in the pl.; and only ante-cl. in the sing.) 1) A gangway in a ship, a small passage between the banks of oars: alii malos scandunt, alii per foros cursant. 2) A row of seats, in a theatre or circus, separated by passages: loca divisa patribus equitibusque, ubi spectacula sibi quisque facerent, fori appellati. 3) (Lat.) A garden-bed. 4) (Poet.) A cell in a beehive. 5) (Lat.) A gaming-board.

FÖSI, ōrum, m. pl. A tribe in North-western Germany, a branch of the Cheruscoans, near the modern Celle.

FOSSA, ae, f. [fodio]. A ditch.

FOSSICIUS, a, um, } adj. [fodio]. (Lat.) Dug out or up from the earth.

FOSSILIS, e, }
FOSSIO, ōnis, f. [fodio]. A digging,
FOSSOR, ōris, m. [fodio]. A digger; trop.

= a rude person, a clown.

FOSSŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of fossa]. A little ditch.

FOSSŪRA, ae, f. [fodio]. (Lat.) A digging.

FÖVEA, ae, f. [fodio]. A pit; in partic., a pitfall for catching wild beasts.

FÖVEO, fōvi, fōtum, 2. v. tr. 1) To warm, to keep warm (with a comfortable and refreshing warmth — cf. calefacio), to refresh: sol f.; aves f. pullos pennis suis. Hence, 2) to care for, in gen., to foster, to cherish: f. hominum sensus. In partic.: A) of diseased parts of the body, to foment, to bathe with lukewarm water for the purpose of strengthening them: f. genua calido aceto; f. vulnus lymphâ: B) = to embrace tenderly and caressingly, to caress: Dido f. puerum gremio, holds him caressingly in her lap; f. alicquem amplexu molli, to embrace tenderly: C) trop., to keep close to any thing: f. castra, to remain in the camp (= to cling to); thus, likewise, f. larem, to the house; f. humum, to remain lying on the ground: D) f. hiemem luxu, to pass away: E) = to favour, to support, to be well disposed toward: f. alicquem; f. alicquem plausu, to encourage by applause; f. voluntatem alicujus, studia hominum, to flatter; f. partem (res) alicujus, to side with one: E) = to keep up: bellum f. et alo.

FRACTUS, a, um, adj. with comparative [part. of frango]. Broken; hence, powerless, weak, faint, pronunciatio, genus dicendi; f. animae, disheartened.

FRĀGA, ōrum, n. pl. Strawberries.

FRĀGILIS, e, adj. with comp. [frango]. 1) Easily broken, brittle, fragile, cadus, ramus; (poet.) aquae ff. = ice. 2) Trop., frail, perishable, weak, corpus; res humanae sunt ff. et caducae; (poet.) ff. anni, the years of weakness; also = effeminate, delicate: f. Pediatia. 3) (Poet.) Of the sound produced by breaking any thing stiff, crackling (frago): f. sonitus chartarum; lauri fragiles, that crackle in the fire; manus ff. in corpore pollicibus (by snapping with the fingers).

FRĀGILITAS, ātis, f. [fragilis]. 1) Brittleness, fragility. 2) Trop., frailty, inconstancy, weakness, generis humani.

FRAGMEN, inis, n. [frango]. (Poet. & lat.) = Fragmentum.

FRAGMENTUM, i, n. [frango]. (Very rar. in the sing.) A piece broken off, a fragment, remnant: ff. remorum, navigii; taedae et ff. = splinters, chips.

FRĀGOR, ōris, m. [frango]. 1) (Lucr.) A breaking into pieces. 2) (Mostly poet. & lat.) A crashing noise, a crash: f. tectorum quae diruebantur; f. plaudentium; subito f. intonuit = a clap of thunder.

FRĀGŌSUS, a, um, adj. [frago]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) (Lucr.) Broken into fragments, crumbled to pieces. 2) Rough, uneven: ff. silvae; hence, trop., of speech, uneven, unequal: oratio f. et interrupta. 3) Crashing, roaring, torrens.

FRAGRO, āvi, —, 1. v. intr. (Poet. & lat.) To smell of any thing; almost always of a pleasant smell — to emit fragrance: f. unguento, to smell of ointment; nil fragrat, emits no odour.

FRĀMEA, ae, f. [a Germanic word]. (Lat.) A spear or javelin with a short, small head, used by the ancient Germans.

FRANGO, frēgi, fractum, 3. v. tr. [kindred with πρηνειν]. 1) To break, to break into pieces (i. e., something hard and stiff — cf. rumpo): f. hastam, anulum aureum; f. crus, to break a leg; f. navem, to suffer shipwreck; navis frangitur, is dashed to pieces; f. januam, fores, to shatter; f. patinam, to dash to pieces; (poet.) f. glebas, granum dentibus, fruges, to bruise, to grind, to pound, to crush; f. gulam alicujus laqueo, to throttle one; f. cervicem alicui, to break one's neck; (poet.) saxum f. fluctus = the waves break against the rock; impro-, f. carcerem = to break out of a prison; f. comam in gradus, to twist, to braid; (poet.) f. alicquem = to tear to pieces. 2) Trop., to break one's courage, power, resolution, or the vehemence of a passion: A) = to dishearten, to discourage: f. animum alicujus or alicquem; frangi metu: B) = to weaken, to enfeeble, to impair: hostes fracti bello; calor se f., disappears; f. sententiam alicujus, to invalidate, to oppose successfully; f. soriteno, to refuse: C) = to check, to curb, to overcome, to subdue, to restrain: f. dolorem; haec res f. concitationem animorum; f. furorem et petulantiam alicujus; f. se, to command one's self: D) to destroy, to frustrate: consilium alicujus: E) to violate: f. fidem, a word or pledge given: f. foedus, mandata, not to perform duly: F) = to move, to touch, to shake: frangi dolore, misericordia; te ut ulla res frangat!

FRĀTER, tris, m. [kindred with φάτερ]. 1) A brother: f. geminus, a twin-brother; f. germanus; pl., fratres, brothers and sisters. 2) Improperly: A) = a near relative, in gen., especially f. patruelis, a cousin: B) trop. — an intimate or familiar friend, esp. a lover; hence — a) as a familiar term in accosting a stranger ('my brother') — b) in the pl., of nations, a title of honour, given by the Roman senate to the allies of the Roman people: Aedui a senatu fratres appellati — c) (poet.) of things that are alike, e. g., of books.

FRĀTERCŪLUS, i, m. [dim. of frater]. 1) A little brother: f. gigantis, i. e., of unknown parentage. 2) A familiar appellation given to a friend.

FRĀTERNE, adv. [fraternus]. 1) In a brotherly manner, fraternally. 2) Trop., heartily, affectionately.

FRĀTERNITAS, ātis, f. [fraternus]. (Lat., rar.) Brotherhood, fraternity.

FRĀTERNUS, a, um, adj. [frater]. 1) Of or pertaining to a brother, brotherly, fraternal: amor f.; hereditas f., from a brother; invidia f., against a brother; fraternus nex, fratricide; lyra f., given to Apollo by his brother Mercury; ff. undae, his brother's waves (of Neptune, as brother of Jupiter). 2) Improp.: A) (poet.) of or pertaining to a relative: fraterna peto, i. e., the armour of his cousin: B) trop., becoming brothers, brotherly, friendly.

FRATRĪCIDA, ae, m. [frater-caedo]. A fratricide.

FRAUDĀTIO, ōnis, f. [fraudo]. A defrauding, deceiving; a fraud: fraudatio heri, a cheating of one's master.

FRAUDĀTOR, ōris, m. [fraudo]. A cheat, deceiver, defrauder.

FRAUDO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. 1) To cheat, to deceive, to defraud (by faithlessness and trickery; always implying strong censure — cf. deipio, fallo, impono, etc.): f. aliquem; f. aliquem aliqua re, to cheat one out of any thing; f. milites praedā, aliquem triumpho, se victu. 2) To withdraw or take away by fraud, to embezzle, to purloin: f. stipendium militum; restituere fraudata; f. nuptias, not to grant.

FRAUDŪLENTER, adv. with comp. [fraudulentus]. (Lat.) Fraudulently, deceitfully.

FRAUDŪLENTIA, ae, f. [fraudulentus]. (Pl.) A disposition to deceive, deceitfulness, fraudulence.

FRAUDŪLENTUS, a, um, adj. v. sup. [fraus]. Deceitful, fraudulent, homo, venditio, gestus.

FRAUS, dis, f. 1) Fraud, guile, deceit, dishonesty, imposition: f. ac dolus; perspicere f. alicujus; bestiae cibum ad fraudem suam positum plerumque aspernantur, in order to ensnare them; fraudem facere legi, senatus consulto, to evade by fraud; fraude concordiae, by a feigned and deceitful accordance; sese dedere sine fraude, without fraud, honesty; hence, trop. = a deceitful, fraudulent person, a cheat, deceiver: fur, fugitive, fraus populi. 2) Pass. = a being deceived, a delusion, error, mistake: illicere, deducere aliquem in fraudem; thus, likewise, incidere, delabi in fraudem; f. loci et noctis, an error caused by (ignorance of) the place and by the night. 3) An evil deed, in gen.; a trespass, offence, crime: admittere f. capitale; ff. inexcipiabiles. 4) That which is caused by fraud or delusion, damage, injury, detriment: id mihi fraudem tulit; freq. fraudi non erit illi secessio, non venisse, it shall not be to his detriment (or, acc. to 3 = it shall not be imputed to him as a crime); sine mea fraude populiue Romani, without detriment to me or to the people; ut, qui civis Campanus ante certam diem transisset, sine fraude esset, should remain unimpeached. 5) Personified, as a goddess.

*FRAUSUS, a, um, part. [fraudo]. (Pl.) Metuo ne quam fraudem frausus siet, that he has been practising cheater.

FRAXINEUS, or *FRAXINUS, a, um, adj. [fraxinus]. Of ash-wood, ashen, hasta.

FRAXINUS, i, f. An ash-tree, ash; (poet.) = any thing made of ash, esp. a javelin.

FRĒGELLAE, ārum, f. pl. A town of the Volsci in Latium, now Ceprano.

FRĒGELLĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Fregellae]. Of or pertaining to Fregellae, Fregellan; subst., Fregellani, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of F.

FRĒGENAE, ārum, f. pl. A small town in Etruria.

FRĒMĒBUNDUS, a, um, adj. [fremo]. (Poet.) Rushing, roaring, muttering: navis f.; grex elephantorum f.; Achilles f., raging.

FRĒMITUS, ūs, m. [fremo]. A rushing, roaring, murmuring, muttering, humming, esp. of the mixed tones of a number of men conversing together, an uproar: f. maris; f. armorum, the clash of arms; f. clamorque hominum; f. eastrorum; f. senatus ortus, a muttering arose in the senate; thus, likewise, dein f. increbuit, postea clamor, etc.; f. equorum, the snorting; f. tigris, the growling; (poet.) of thunder.

FRĒMO, ui, itum, 8. v. intr. & tr. [βρῆμω].

1) Intr., to make a dull, murmuring noise, to rush, to roar, to hum, to resound; in particular, of a number of men, to mutter, to murmur: ventus, mare f.; leo, lupus f., bellows, howls; equus f., snorts; omnes magno clamore ff., lament; cuncti Dardanidae simul ore ff., murmur assent; fremant omnes liceat, let them all grumble; f. lae- titia, ludisque plausuque, to resound, to ring with; thus, likewise, f. ululatus; f. animis, to storm with rage; f. acerba, dira, to rave. 2) Tr., to say murmuringly or mutteringly, to murmur at, to growl at (esp. of several conversing): (poet.) f. arma, to call for madly; omnes eadem ff., mutter the same thing; Arrius consilium sibi ereptum f., complains loudly of.

FREMOR, ōris, m. [fremo]. (Poet. & lat.) = Fremitus.

FRENATOR, ōris, m. [freno]. (Lat.) A curber, tamer.

FRENATUS, a, um, adj. [frenum]. Furnished with a bridle, bridled (opp. to infrenus), equus; hence, eques f., with a bridled horse.

FRENDEO, 2. v. intr. = Frendo.

FRENDO, —, frēsū or frēsūm, 3. v. intr. To gnash the teeth, homo, leo; also, f. dentibus.

FRENO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [frenum]. 1) (Poet.) To furnish with a bridle, to bridle, equos; f. ora cervi capistris; f. colla draconum. 2) Trop., to bridle, to check, to curb, to restrain: hiems f. cursus aquarum; f. voluptates, furores alicujus, impetum scriberēdi; f. gentes domitas, to govern.

FRENTANI, ōrum, m. pl. A tribe on the eastern shore of Italy, in the modern Abruzzo ceteriora.

FRENTANUS, a, um, adj. [Frentani]. Of or pertaining to the Frentani.

FRENUM, i, n. (Freq. in the pl., and then sometimes Freni.) 1) A bridle, bit (cf. habena): recipere f., to be bridled; dare f., to give the reins; inhibere (ducere) ff., to draw or hold in the reins, to rein in; mordere f., trop. = to show the teeth, to offer resistance; (poet.) = a horse. 2) Trop., a bridle, curb, check, restraint: Mutinam illi exultanti tanquam frenos furoris iniecit, put M., as it were, a bridle upon, &c.; capere ff. imperii, the reins of government; adhibere alteri calcaria, alteri frenos, to spur on the one, to check the other.

FREQUENS, tia, adj. w. comp. & sup. (Usually in a good sense, denoting 'a full number,' while crebre = 'too much,' freq. implies blame.) 1) Of persons, that is often at a place, or that often does a thing: erat ille Romae frequens; Kaeso f. ad signa fuit; f. auditor Platonis, assiduus; frequens to audiri, frequently. 2) Of things, frequently occurring, frequent, repeated; hence, usual, common: ff. pocula, literae, edicta; verbum apud alios f.; f. fama. 3) Assembled in great numbers, numerous, full: ff. oives atque socii; senatus f. convenit, a full senate; res delata est ad frequentiores, to a better attended assembly; ff. fuimus, many. 4) Of places that are well filled with any thing, crowded, filled, much-frequented or visited — a) abs., f. theatrum, crowded; terra, urbs f., populous; via f., much-frequented; f. convivium, a numerous company — b) filled with any thing: urbs f. tec-tis, crowded with; loca frequentia aedificiis, covered with buildings; Nilus f. feris, terra f. colubris, rich in, productive of; *(Tac.) mons frequens silvae talis, thickly set with such trees.

FREQUENTAMENTUM, i, n. [frequento]. (Lat.) A frequent repetition.

FREQUENTATIO, ōnis, f. [frequento]. Frequency, a frequent use, a crowding together, verborum, argumentorum; hence, in discourse = recapitulation.

FREQUENTATIVUS, a, um, adj. [frequento]. (Lat.) Denoting a frequent repetition, frequentative.

FREQUENTER, adv. with comp. & sup. [frequens]. 1) Numerously, in great numbers. 2) Often, frequently.

FREQUENTIA, ae, f. [frequens]. 1) A being present frequently (of persons), an occurring frequently, frequency (of things): quotidiana amicorum assiduitas et f.; de epistolarum f. nihil te accuso. 2) A numerous attendance; coner., a great number, concourse, multitudo: f. hominum, vulgi; magna f. et consessus vester; magna f. rerum (of an author) = copiousness of contents; f. coeli, density of the air; frequentiam praestare, to come in great numbers.

FREQUENTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [frequens]. 1) To visit frequently, to go or come to frequently: f. aliquem, domum alicujus. 2) To visit in great numbers, to frequent, esp. a festival; hence = to celebrate: f. ludos, ferias, dies, triumphum. 3) To do, to undertake, or to make use of frequently: f. verbi translationem; exempla frequentata apud Graecos, frequently given; nec ideo conjugia frequentabantur, became frequent; f. aliquid in animo, frequently to think over; f. memoriam alicujus, to remember frequently; hence (poet.) = to repeat (an exclamation). 4) To bring together or assemble numerously: hic dies scribas ad aerarium frequentavit; f. multa, to crowd together. 5) To fill with a multitude, to crowd, to people, to stock with: urbs frequentatur; f. solitudinem Italiae; f. Italiam colonis.

FRESILIA, ae, f. A town in the territory of the Marsi.

FRETENSIS, e, adj. [fretum]. Of or pertaining to a strait (v. Fretum): Mare F. = the Straits of Sicily.

FRETUM, i, n., and FRETUS, ūs, m. 1) A strait, sound, channel: fretum maris nostri et Oceani, the Straits of Gibraltar; esp. freq. = the Straits of Sicily (also, f. Siciliae or Siciliense, or Mare Fretense). 2) (Poet.) The sea, in general. 3) (Lucr.) Spring, as the period of transition from cold to heat. 4) Heat, glow, juvenutis.

FRETUS, a, um, adj. *1) (Lucr.) Leaning on, supported by: res stant ff. pondere. 2) Trop., trusting to, relying or depending on: f. diis, auxilio vestro; f. viribus suis, ingenio FRICO, cui, etum and cōtur, 1. a. tr. To rub: f. corpus oleo, senem; f. costas arbore, against a tree; prov. (Pl.), f. genua = to embrace the knees (as a suppliant).

*FRICTUS, ūs, m. [frico]. A rubbing.

*FRIGĒ-FACTO, 1. v. tr. (Pl.) To make cold, to cool, cs.

FRIGEO, xi, —, 2. v. intr. [frigus]. 1) To be cold, to be stiff with cold (in opp. to caleo, object. — cf. algeo): manus f.; part. frigens, one who is stiff and cold, i. e., dead. 2) Trop.: A) to be frigid, inactive; to come to a stop or stand-still: omnia consilia ff. = prove ineffectual; judicia ff., are carried on drowsily; oratio f., halts, stops; homo ille valde f.: B) to be coldly received or treated, to be out of favour with any one, to remain unnoticed: tibicen ille f. ad populum; plane jam frigeo; friget patronus Antonius; prima concio Pompeli frigebat, was coldly received.

FRIGĒRO, 1. v. tr. [frigus]. (Poet.) To cool, to refresh with coolness, specum.

FRIGESCO, 3. v. intr. [inch. of frigeo]. 1) To become cold. 2) Trop., to become languid or inactive, to lose ardour or energy, to begin to disappear: affectus f.; also = *to become cold towards one (v. Frigeo).

FRIGIDĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [frigidus]. (Lat.) That serves for cooling: cella f., or subst. Frigidarium, n., the cooling-chamber in a bath.

*FRIGĪDĒ-FACTO, 1. (Pl.) = Frigefacto.

FRIGĪDE, adv. with comp. & sup. [frigidus]. Coldly; only trop., frigidly: A) = without animation, feebly: f. agere: B) = trivially, flatly: f. verbis uti.

*FRIGĪDIUSCŪLUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of frigidus]. (Lat.) Somewhat frigid, rather flat.

FRIGĪDŪLUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of frigidus]. 1) Somewhat cold, puella. 2) Somewhat faint or languid: f. singultus.

FRIGIDUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [frigeo]. 1) Cold, cool (not so strong as algidus), fons, locus, coelum; hence, subst. Frigida, ae, f. (sc. aqua), cold water; prov., aquam frigidam subdole suffundere = to slander; (poet.) of the coldness produced by death or fear: f. cymba Stygia; f. mors; membra ff., of a corpse; f. horror, a cold shudder. 2) Trop., cold, frigid: A) = without ardour or energy, dull, feeble, inactive, indolent, indifferent, accusator; lentus in dicendo et paene f.; literae ff. et inconstantes, of trifling contents; frigidus Aetnam insiluit (poet.), in cold blood; tecta ff., cold, i. e., empty: B) without force or point, flat, insipid, trivial, calumniae, sententiae, jocus, homo, solatium.

FRIGO, xi, etum (or xum), 3. v. tr. [kindred with φρυγν]. To roast, to fry, to parch, fabas, eicer.

*FRIGŌRIFICUS, a, um, adj. [frigus-facio]. (Lat.) Cooling.

FRIGUS, ōris, n. [= φρυγ; with the digamma].

1) Cold, coldness (object. — conf. algor; not so strong as gelu): f. opacum, coolness of the shade; propter ff., on account of the cold climate; f. inhabitabile (poet.), a cold region; frigore dormire, in the cold night. In partic. (poet.): A) the cold of winter = winter: non aestate, non frigore: B) the coldness of death: membra solvuntur frigore; f. letale: C) a cold shudder produced by fear: membra Aeneae solvuntur frigore. 2) Trop., coldness: A) coldness in action = inactivity, sluggishness: B) (poet. & lat.) coldness which one meets with from others = a cold reception, disfavour, coolness: notus is est Tiberii et amicitia et frigore; imperitia interdum affert f.

FRIGŪTIO, or Fringutio, 4. v. intr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Properly, to twitter, to chirp (of birds) — hence, to speak indistinctly, to stammer, to stutter.

FRIO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To bruise or break into pieces, glebas.

FRISII, ōrum, m. pl. The Frisians, a tribe in North-western Germany.

FRĪTILLA, ae, f. A kind of pap used at sacrifices.

FRĪTILLUS, i, m. A dice-box.

FRIVŌLUS, a, um, adj. [frivo]. (Lat.) 1) Fragile, i. e., worthless, poor; only as subst., Frivola, ōrum, n. pl., poor and fragile furniture, trifling and worthless things. 2) Trop., poor, worthless, trivial, insipid, frivolous: f. jocus, sermo; f. auspicium, causa, origo.

FRONDĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [frons]. (Lat.) Of or pertaining to leaves, fascinae.

FRONDĀTOR, ōris, m. [frons I.]. One who lops off leaves, a pruner or dresser of trees.

FRONDEO, 2. v. intr. [frons I.]. To be in leaf, to become green: ramus f.; nemus f. nigra ilice.

FRONDESCO, 3. v. intr. [inch. of frondeo]. To put forth leaves, to become leafy.

FRONDEUS, a, um, adj. [frons I.]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Of leaves, made of leaves, corona; tecta ff., formed of the leaves of a tree. 2) Leafy, nemus; f. casa, covered with leaves.

FRONDĪFER, ēra, ērum, adj. [frons-fero]. (Poet.) Leaf-bearing, nemus.

FRONDŌSUS, a, um, adj. [frons I.]. (Mostly poet.) Full of leaves, leafy, mons, ramus.

FRONS (I) dis, f. Leaves, foliage: f. populea; collis laetus frondibus, overgrown with leafy trees; (poet.) a garland made of leafy branches.

FRONS (II), tis, f. 1) The forehead (esp. of men, but also of animals): contrahere, adducere frontem, to knit one's brows, to frown; remittere, explicare f., to smooth or clear the brow; ferire frontem, to smite one's forehead. 2) The face or brow, in general, as expressing the affections of the mind: fers f. et vultus; fronte occultare sententiam; f. laeta, sollicita. In partic., denoting: A) shame, modesty: B) impudence, effrontery: f. proterva; f. urbana: C) the exterior, outside, appearance, external quality of any thing: sed utrum fronte an mente ei studeat, dubitatur; f. prima decipit multos. 3) The forepart of any thing, the front, façade of a building: f. aedium, parietum, navium; a fronte, in the forepart of a house; collis frontem leviter fastigatus, gently sloping in front; unâ f. contra hostem castra muniunt, on the front; in partic., the front of an army, the van; aequa f. ad pugnam procedere, in a straight line of battle; dextrâ f., on the right side of the front, i. e., on the right wing; freq. a fronte, in front, before (opp. to 'a tergo' and 'a latere'). Hence: A) the edges of a book-roll: B) the breadth of a piece of land: mille pedes in fronte.

FRONTALIA, ium, n. pl. [frons]. An ornament for the forehead, esp. of a horse, a frontlet.

FRONTO (I.), ōnis, adj. [frons]. (Rar.) That has a broad forehead, equus.

FRONTO (II.), ōnis, m. A Roman proper name: thus, esp. M. Cornelius Fronto, a Roman orator, of Ciria in Numidia.

FRUCTUARIUS, a, um, adj. [fructus]. Fruit-bearing: ager f., for the use of which a yearly grain-rent is to be paid, produce-bearing.

FRUCTUOSUS, a, um, adj. [fructus]. 1) Fruit-bearing, fruitful, productive, yielding a profit in produce or money (cf. ferax, fertilis): ager quamvis fertilis (by nature) sine cultura fructuosus esse (be productive, profitable) non potest; orationes ff. 2) Trop., useful, profitable, advantageous: haec virtus multis fructuosa est.

FRUCTUS, ūs, m. [fruo]. 1) (Rar.) Abstr., an enjoying, enjoyment of any thing, use, usufruct: meus f. est prior, I have the right of using it first; f. animi, mental enjoyment; f. voluptatum: capere f. oculis ex usu alicujus, to feast the eyes on. 2) Concr., the products of the earth, fruit, produce (in gen. of corn and fruits — cf. fruges and frumentum): frugum reliquorumque fructuum perceptio; demetere et percipere f.; illi fructibus suis solvant, with their products; vectigal agri Campani fructibus varium esse non solet, yields usually the same proceeds. Hence: A) the profit, gain, income, returns of property, capital, &c.: f. illorum praediorum; ff. pecuniae, interest; f. unius anni; oves edunt f., yield a profit: B) fruit = advantage, profit: fructum et utilitatem capere (ferre) ex re aliqua or rei alicujus, to derive advantage or profit from; f. vitae superioris, the result of one's former life; in fructu habere, to consider as useful.

FRUGALIOR, ius, and Frūgālissimus, a, um, comp. & sup. for the adjectively used Frugi (v. Frux).

FRUGALITAS, ātis, f. [from the unusual frugalis—v. Frugalior]. Thriftiness, frugality, economy, love of order; hence, in gen., honesty, probity: bonam valetudinem maxime praestat frugalitas; f. id est modestia et temperantia.

FRUGALITER, adv. [frugalis]. Moderately, frugally.

FRUGIFER, ěra, ěrum, adj. [fruges-fero]. Fruit-bearing, fruitful, fertile, ager, cedrus; messes f. (poet.); trop., philosophia f.

FRUGIFERENS, tis, adj. (A.-cl.) = Frugifer. *FRUGILEGUS, a, um, adj. [fruges-lego]. (Poet.) Fruit-gathering (of the ant), formica.

FRUGIPARUS, a, um, adj. [fruges-pario]. (Ante-cl.) = Frugifer.

FRUMENTARIUS, a, um, adj. [frumentum]. Of or pertaining to corn, corna: res f., corn, provisions (for an army); loca, provinciae ff., abounding in corn; lex f., concerning the distribution of corn; largitio f., a liberal distribution of corn; navis f., a provision ship; hence, subst., Frumentarius, ii, m.: A) a corn-dealer: B) a purveyor of corn for an army, a commissary.

FRUMENTATIO, ōnis, f. [frumentor]. 1) A providing of corn; as milit. tech. t., foraging. 2) (Lat.) A distributing of corn.

FRUMENTATOR, ōris, m. [frumentor]. A provider of corn; as milit. tech. t., a forager, a soldier dispatched to procure corn.

FRUMENTOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. [frumentum]. A milit. tech. t., to collect corn, to forage: pabulor et f.

FRUMENTUM, i, n. [for frugimentum, from frugeo]. Corn, grain (contained in ears, as distinguished from pods — cf. fruges, fructus, legumen, seges): f. ex agris comportatur; ff. in agris matura non erant.

FRUNISCOR, nitus, 3. v. dep. tr. [lengthened form of fruor]. (Ante-cl.) = Fruor.

FRUOR, itus or otus (both rare), 3. v. dep. intr. 1) To enjoy, to take pleasure, delight, or satisfaction in any thing (cf. utor): Hannibal, quum victoria uti posset, frui maluit; tu voluptate frue- ris, ego utor, tu illam summum bonum putas, ego nec bonum; f. vitâ, omnibus commodis; f. aliquo, to enjoy one's society; (ante-cl.) f. rem, ingenium — but classic in gerundive: sapientia non solum paranda sed etiam fruenda nobis est; res fruenda oculis, a sight to be enjoyed. 2) As tech. t. in the lang. of law, to enjoy the use, to have the usufruct of any thing: filius certis fundis frui solitus erat; locare agrum fruendum, to let out a field.

FRUSINAS, ātis, adj. [Frusino]. Of or belonging to Frusino; subst., Frusinates, um, m. pl., the inhabitants of Frusino.

FRUSINO, ōnis, m. A town of the Hernici in Latium, now Frosinone.

FRUSTATIM, adv. [frustum]. (Lat.) By pieces, in pieces.

FRUSTILLATIM, adv. [frustillum, dim. of frustum]. (Pl.) By or in small pieces.

FRUSTRA, adv. [kindred with fraus]. 1) In a deceived manner, erroneously, mistakenly: f. esse, to be mistaken; ut illi f. sint, that they may be disappointed; f. ductare, habere aliquem, to delude, to cheat. 2) In vain, to no purpose, without effect (subject., with reference to the person whose expectation is deceived — cf. nequidquam) : f. laboratum est; non ipse dictator f. ero; nullum telum f. missum est. 3) Without reason or cause : f. iudices addere solent, etc. : nec f., nam, etc., and not without reason, or, &c. ; f. credere.

*FRUSTRAMEN, inis, n. [frustror]. (Lucr.; doubtf. read.) A deception.

FRUSTRATIO, ōnis, f. [frustror]. A disappointing, deceiving; a deception, disappointment of a belief, expectation, &c. : injicere frustrationem, to cause error, mistake; deferri frustrationibus, to be put off with illusions; f. iis dolore attulit, the disappointment of their hopes; grana ciceris in acum continuo et sine f. inse-rere, without failing.

*FRUSTRATUS, ūs, m. [frustror]. (Pl.) A deceiving, deception, &c. = frustratio: frustra-tui habere aliquem, to deceive one.

FRUSTROB, ātus, dep., and (ante-cl. & lat.) Frustror, 1. v. tr. [frustra]. 1) (Lat.) To render ineffective or useless, to frustrate : f. laborem; rami arborum frustrantur ictus; inceptus clamor f. hiantes, dies away in the opened mouth. 2) To deceive, to disappoint, to trick : f. alios, spem mercantium; spes eum f.

*FRUSTULENTUS, a, um, adj. [frustulum, dim. of frustum]. (Pl.) Full of small pieces.

FRUSTUM, i, n. [fruur]. A bit, piece : f. panis; also, a little piece, in gen. : f. orationis; (Pl.) f. pueri! you bit of a boy!

FRUTEX, icis, m. 1) A shrub, bush : f. lupini; ff. olerum. 2) (Lat.) The lower part of the trunk of a tree. 3) Trop., as a term of reproach, blockhead! loggerhead!

FRUTICESCO, 3. v. incho. intr. [frutex]. (Lat.) To put forth shoots, to become bushy.

FRUTICETUM, i, n. [frutex]. (Poet. & lat.) A place full of shrubs or bushes, a copse, thicket.

FRUTICO, āvi, ātum, } 1. v. incho. To put forth shoots, to become bushy, to shoot or sprout forth : arbor f.; (poet.) pilus f.

FRUTICOR, ātus, dep. } forth shoots, to become bushy, to shoot or sprout forth : arbor f.; (poet.) pilus f.

FRUTICOSUS, a, um, adj. [frutex]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Full of shrubs or bushes, bushy. 2) Full of shoots or sprigs, arbor.

FRUX, ūgis, f. [fruur]. (Usually in the pl., fruges, um; the nom. sing. seems to be unusual.) 1) The fruit of the earth, produce of the field (both grain and pulse; also, poet., of the fruit of trees — cf. frumentum, fructus) : non omnem f., not every sort of grain; hence, any thing made of grain, e. g., meal : ff. salsae. 2) Trop., fruit or fruits, i. e., use, value, result : pervenire ad aliquam f., to some maturity; (poet.) expertia frugis, what is worthless; ff. industriae. Hence : A) the dat. frugi, so. aptus, of use, useful, used as an adj. (cf. frugalior) = economical, thrifty; hence, freq. = good, honest, worthy, virtuous; proper, fit : homo f. et temperans; vita f. et severa; sometimes accompanied with 'bonae' (homo permolestus et bonae f.) : B) ad frugem or ad bonam frugem, to a good and moral behavior; ad b. f. se recipere (redire) = to correct one's self, to reform; so, also, ad b. f. compellere aliquem.

FUCATUS, a, um, adj. w. (lat.) comp. [part. of fuco]. Prop., dyed, rouged; hence, trop., falsely-coloured, dressed-up, counterfeit, false : f. et simulatus; f. nitor, candor.

*FUCINUS (I.), a, um, adj. [fucus]. (Lat.) Dyed with fucus.

FUCINUS (II.), i, m. Called more usually F. Lacus, a lake of Latium, in the territory of the Marsi — now Lago di Celano.

FÜCO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [fucus]. To dye : f. tabulas colore; in partic., to dye for the purpose of beautifying = to paint, to rouge.

FÜCÖSUS, a, um, adj. [fucus]. Prop., painted, rouged; trop., counterfeit, spurious : amicitia, vicinitas f., untrustworthy; f. merx, dressed-up.

FÜCUS (I.), i, m. [φύκος]. 1) Orehll, a red tincture, produced from a lichen growing on the rocks near the sea. 2) Red colour, in gen.; in partic. = rouge. Hence, 3) = a false ornament or gloss, an outside show, dissimulation, pretence, falsehood : color venustatis non fūco illitus sed sanguine diffusus (figuratively, of discourse) : sine f. ac fallacis; fūcum facere aliqui, to deceive one. *4) Bee-glue, a reddish juice with which bees stop up the entrance to their hives.

FÜCUS (II.), i, m. A drone-bee.

FUE, interj. (Pl.) Fye! (an interjection expressing disgust.)

FÜFIDIANUS, a, um, adj. [Fufidius]. Of or pertaining to a Fufidius, Fufidian.

FÜFIDIUS, ii, m. The name of a Roman gens; thus, esp. 1) L. Fuf., an orator. 2) Q. Fuf., a knight of Arpinum.

FÜFIUS (I.), ii, m., and Fūfa, ae, f. The name of a Roman gens; thus, esp. Quintus F. Catenus, a tribune of the people (61 B. C.), consul (47 B. C.); the chief author of the acquittal of P. Clodius; later, an adherent of Cæsar and of Antony.

FÜFIUS (II.), a, um, adj. [Fufius I.]. Of or belonging to a Fufius, Fufian : lex F.

FÜGA, ae, f. [φύγη]. 1) A flight, fleeing : ex fuga, in one's flight; dare, conferre, conjicere se in fugam, to betake one's self to flight; capere, petere f., to take to flight; facere f. = to cause (one's) flight — but also = to flee; conjicere, impellere hostes in fugam, to put to flight; fuga ab urbe turpis; claudere alicui fugam, to cut off one's flight; (poet.) in the pl., ff. celeres. In partic. = flight from one's native country, exile, banishment : exsilium et f. 2) Trop. : A) a desire of avoiding any thing, a shunning, avoiding, aversion : f. laborem et dolorum : B) a means (way) of avoiding or escaping : si alia fuga honoris non esset; quære fugam morbi: C) (poet.) a flying — a swift course or passage: expectet facilem f. ventosque ferentes; f. temporum; hence, dare fugam — a) = to give one a swift passage — b) = to flee speedily, to hasten away.

*FUGACITER, adv. w. comp. [fugax]. By fleeing, with flight, bellum gerere.

FUGAX, Æois, adj. with comp. & sup. [fugio].

1) Apt to flee, inclined to flight: vir, hostis = cowardly; applied, as a term of reproach, to a slave = runaway; (poet. & lat.) with a genit., f. gloriæ, fleeing from glory; (poet.) Pholoe f. = fleeing from her wooers, coy. 2) (Poet.) Flying swiftly, swift, fleet: ventus, lympa, anni; hence, trop., fleeting, transitory: hæc sunt brevīa, fugacia, caduca.

FUGIO, fugi, fugitum, 3. v. tr. & intr. [fūgiōw]. I. Intr. — 1) To flee, to flee away, to try to escape: f. Trojā, from Troy; f. Uticam, to Utica; servus f., runs away; fugit memoriā, slips or escapes one's memory; omne animal fugit a quibusdam, shuns certain things; prqv., ita fugias ne præter casam = do not run into the lion's mouth; hence, in partic. = to go into exile: f. ex (a) patria. 2) To escape, to come or get off: qui ex ipsa caede fugerunt. 3) To hasten away, to pass rapidly, to flee away: nubes ff.; pinus fugiens, sailing away; penna fugiens, a soaring wing; f. rivus, swiftly running. Hence, trop., to disappear, to vanish: color, vires, tempus f.; poma ff., wilt; rosa fugiens, withering; vinum fugiens, degenerating, spoiling; oculi fugientes (of a dying person).

II. Tr. — 1) To flee from any thing, to avoid, to shun, to try to escape from: f. aliquem, campum; (poet.) f. patriam, to flee from or leave one's country; f. laborem, culpam, vituperationem alicujus, nuptias, mortem; f. ignominiam; semper fugienda est injuria. Hence: A) (poet.) with a clause as object = to avoid or forbear doing any thing, to beware, to omit (cf. omittere, cavere): f. illud suspicari, credere; fuge quaerere, do not ask: B) to dislike, to decline: f. judicem illum; f. judicium senatus; Proserpina nullum caput fugit, declines, refuses to take. 2) To escape, to evade: Quirinus f. Acheronta (poet.). Freq. trop., nulla res f. scientiam ejus = he knows everything; res f. aciem = is not seen by; in partic., res (id., and the like) me fugit = it escapes my notice, is not observed by me, is unknown to me: hæc ratio f. senatum; me non fugit (I know right well) quam difficile sit illud; ei rei fugerat me rescribere, I had forgotten.

FUGITIVARIUS, ii, m. [fugitivus]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) One employed to search for fugitive slaves, a slave-catcher.

FUGITIVUS, a, um, adj. [fugio]. Fleeing away, fugitive, servus, canis; f. a domino, from his master; (lat.) f. finium suorum regniq., from his territory and kingdom; trop. (Com.), argentum hoc f., so difficult to obtain. Hence, in particular, subst. Fugitivus, i, m. — a) a runaway slave, a fugitive; sometimes used as a term of reproach — b) a soldier that has run away, a deserter.

FUGITO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. [intens. of fugio]. 1) Intr., to flee in haste. 2) Tr., to avoid, to shun, to try to escape, aliquem; is te et oculos tuos fugitat; illi quæstionem fugitant. Hence (poet.), to omit or forbear doing any thing: f. facere aliquid.

*FUGITOR, ōris, m. [fugio]. (Pl.) A runaway.

FUGO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [fuga]. To cause to flee, to put to flight, to rout, to discomfit: f. hostes, equitatum, ducem alterum; hence, in gen., to chase away, nubes, stellas, noctem; Musa mea me f. (Ovid.), has caused my exile; (poet.) hoc f. audacem poetam, deters: (lat.) f. multos a proposito studendi.

*FULCIMEN, inis, n. [fulcio]. (Poet.) A prop, stay, pillar.

FULCIO, lsi, itum, 4. v. tr. 1) To keep erect by props or stays, to prop, to stay, to support: f. porticum; vitis nisi fulta est, fertur ad terram; fultus molli pede, standing on; fultus tellure, pulvino, resting on. 2) Trop.: A) (poet. & lat.) to make strong or firm, to strengthen: f. stomachum cibo; postes fulti obice, guarded, secured; f. aliquid pedibus, to tread hard: B) to support, to assist, to uphold: f. amicam labantem; Lycurgus fultus et munitus hoc consilii; his fultus societatibus; (poet.) *f. aerumnis cor, to trouble, to oppress.

FULCRUM, lsi, itum, 4. v. tr. [fulcio]. 1) A prop of a bed or couch, a bedpost, the foot of a couch. 2) (Poet.) Melon., a bed, couch.

*FULFULAE, ārum, f. pl. A town of the Samnites.

FULGEO, lsi, —, 2. (poet. also Fulgo, 3.) v. intr. 1) To flash, to lighten, to throw or cast lightning: si fulserit, si tonuerit; Jove fulgente, when it lightens; trop., of a passionate and brilliant style of oratory. 2) To be bright, to glitter, to glisten, to shine, to beam (of a strong, flashing colour — conf. splendeo, niteo, etc.): castra ff. siguis; tecta fulgentia ebore et auro; micantes fulsere gladii. Hence, trop., to shine forth, to distinguish one's self: indoles virtutis f. in adolescentem.

FULGENTRUM, i, n. [fulgeo]. (Lat.) Lightning (without rain), heat-lightning.

FULGIDUS, a, um, adj. [fulgeo]. (Poet.) Shining, glittering, glimmering.

FULGINAS, ātis, adj. [fulginia]. Of or belonging to Fulginia, Fulginian; subst., Fulginates, um, m. pl., the inhabitants of Fulginia.

FULGINIA, ae, f. A town in Umbria, now Foligno.

FULGOR, ōris, m. [fulgeo]. 1) (Poet.) =

Fulgur, lightning, a flash of lightning: cernimus fulgorem ante quam tonitrum accipimus.

2) Brightness, splendour, glitter, gleam: f. armorum, ferri, solis; (poet.) in the pl., of glittering utensils, plate; ille f., qui dicitur, Jovis the shining star. 3) Trop. (poet. & lat.), splendour = glory, distinction, renown.

FULGUR, ūris, n. [fulgeo]. 1) A flash of lightning, lightning (which does not strike — cf. fulmen): coeli ff.; consultus de f. 2) (Poet.) = Fulmen, a flash of lightning that strikes, a thunderbolt: ff. summos feriunt montes; condere f., to bury an object struck by lightning (cf. bidental). 3) (Ante-cl., poet. & lat.) = Fulgor, brightness, splendour: f. solis, flammæ.

FULGURĀLIS, e, adj. [fulgur]. Of or relating to lightning: libri ff., that interpret the omens contained in lightnings.

FULGURATIO, ōnis, f. [fulguro]. (Lat.) A flash of lightning: f. est late ignis explicuit.

FULGURATOR, ōris, m. [fulguro]. An interpreter of lightning, a priest who interpreted the omens contained in lightnings.

FULGURIO, Ivi, Itum, 4. v. tr. [fulgur]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To strike with lightning: arbores fulguritæ.

FULGÜRO, 1. v. intr. [fulgur]. (Rar.) To lighten: Jove tonante, fulgurante; trop. (lat.), vis eloquentiæ f.

FULICA, æ, f. A coot (a kind of water-fowl).

FULIGO, Inis, f. 1) Soot. 2) (Lat.) Blackpaint.

FULLO, ōnis, m. A fuller.

FULLONICA, æ, f. [fullonicus]. 1) So. ars, fulling, the craft or trade of a fuller. 2) So. officina, a fuller's shop.

FULLONICUS, a, um, adj. [fullo]. Of or belonging to a fuller.

FULLONIUS, a, um, adj. [fullo]. = Fullonicus: (Pl.) fructus f. mihi potandus est = must let myself be stamped upon. (Others explain it differently.)

FULMEN, Inis, n. [fulgeo]. 1) Lightning (that strikes), a thunderbolt (cf. fulgur): deflagrare ictu fulminis; emittere f. 2) Trop., any destructive or irresistible power, a shock, violent stroke; hence, an overwhelming calamity, misfortune: contemnere ff. fortunæ, the strokes of fate; ff. verborum meorum; metus tanti fulminis, of so great a calamity; duo ff. belli, those thunderbolts of war (of the two Scipios); apri f. habent in dentibus, thunder (i. e., a destroying power); f. dictatorum.

FULMENTA, æ, f. [fulcio]. 1) A prop, support of a building. 2) The heel of a shoe.

FULMINATIO, ōnis, f. [fulmino]. (Lat.) A darting of lightning: fulguratio ostendit ignem, fulminatio emittit.

FULMINEUS, a, um, adj. [fulmen]. (Poet.) 1) Of or belonging to lightning: ignis, lotus f., of lightning. 2) Trop., crushing or destructive like lightning, murderous: f. Mnætheus, dextra dentes apri.

FULMINO, 1. v. intr. & tr. [fulmen]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Intr., to lighten, to hurl lightnings. fulminat, it lightens; Jupiter f.; trop., Cæsar f. bello, strikes like lightning. 2) Tr., (rar.) to strike or blast with lightning: fulminatus, struck with lightning.

FULTURA, æ, f. [fulcio]. (Lat.) 1) A prop, stay, support. 2) Trop., a means of strengthening, a restorative: f. stomacho ruenti.

FULVIASER (others read Fulviniaster) tri, m. An imitator of a Fulvius.

FULVIUS, ii, m., and Fulvia, æ, f. The name of a Roman gens; thus, esp. 1) Marcus F. Flaccus, consul (125 B.C.), a friend of C. Gracchus, together with whom he was killed. 2) P. Postumus, an assistant of the quaestor Lentulus. 3) Marcus Fulvius Nobilior, consul (189 B.C.), a friend of Ennius, by whom he was accompanied to his province, Ætolia. 4) A. Fulvius and M. Fulvius Nobilior, fellow-conspirators with Catiline. 5) Fulvia, the daughter of M. Fulvius Bombalio, married first to P. Clodius, then to C. Curio (v. Scribonius 2), and finally to the Triumvir M. Antonius, by whom she had two sons. She was an implacable enemy of Cicero.

FULVUS, a, um, adj. (Mostly poet.) Reddish yellow, deep yellow, tawny (a darker colour than flavus), leo, aurum, color vini; f. nuncia Jovis = a rainbow.

FŪMEUS, a, um, adj. [fumus]. (Poet.) Full of smoke, smoky.

FŪMIDUS, a, um, adj. [fumus]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Smoking, emitting smoke or vapour, fax, altaria, amnis. 2) Filled with smoke, smoky, tectum. 3) Impropr.: A) = smoke-coloured: B) smelling of smoke.

FŪMIFER, ĕra, ĕrum, adj. [fumus-fero]. Emitting smoke or vapour, smoking, steaming.

FŪMIFICO, 1. v. tr. [fumus-facio]. (Pl.) To burn incense, to make smoke.

FŪMIFICUS, a, um, adj. [fumus-facio]. (Poet.) Causing or emitting smoke, smoking.

FŪMIGO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. [fumus]. (Lat.) I. Tr., to smoke, to fumigate, to perfume with smoke, rem. II. Intr., to smoke, to emit smoke.

FŪMO, 1. v. intr. [fumus]. To emit smoke or vapour, to smoke, to reek, to fume: loca ff. sulphure; altaria ff. donis; equi f. sudore; campi ff. pulvere, are covered with clouds of dust.

FŪMOSUS, a, um, adj. [fumus]. Full of smoke, smoked, paries; imagines ff., blackened with smoke (the custom being to keep the ancestral images by the hearth); vinum f., smoked (i. e., kept for some time in a smoke-chamber for the purpose of ripening it); perna f., smoke-dried; fax f., smoking.

FŪMUS, i, m. Smoke, vapour, fume: significationem facere fumo; ff. incendiorum conspiciabantur; prov., flamma fumo est proxima, the flame follows close upon the smoke, i. e., the approach to evil leads quickly to vice. Hence, trop., as an image of destruction: vertere aliquid in funem et cinerem.

FUNĀLIS, e, adj. [funis]. Of or pertaining to a cord or rope: equus f., a trace-horse (i. e., not yoked, but drawing by a trace, alongside of other horses); cereus f., a wax taper. Hence, subst., Funale, is n.: *1) the thong of a sling. 2) A wax taper or torch: ff. vincunt noctem. 3) (Poet.) A chandelier, candelabrum.

FUNĀMBŪLUS, i, m. [funis-ambulo]. A rope-dancer. (Ante-cl. & lat.)

FUNCTIO, ōnis, f. [fungor]. A performing, discharging, executing; a performance, exercise: labor est, f. quaedam vel animi vel corporis; f. muneris.

FUNDA, ae, f. [a-pend-deriv.]. 1) A sling. 2) (Poet.) A drag net. 3) (Lat.) The hollowed or sunken part of a ring, in which the stone was set (as in a sling).

FUNDĀMEN, inis, n. [fundo I.]. (Poet.) = Fundamentum.

FUNDAMENTUM, i, n. [fundo I.]. The foundation, basis, ground-work of a house, &c. (made by human labour and skill — cf. solum, fundus): A) prop. mostly in the pl., fundamenta urbi (also urbis, domūs) agere, jacere, locare, to lay a foundation: B) trop., fides est f. iustitiae; f. philosophiae; ff. jacere pacis, salutis.

FUNDĀNIUS, ii, m., and Fundānia, ae, f. The name of a Roman gens; thus, esp. 1) C. F., a friend of Cicero, defended by him. 2) A friend of Horace.

FUNDĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Fundi]. Of or belonging to Fundi, ager; hence, subst., Fundani, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Fundi.

FUNDĀTOR, ōris, m. [fundo I.]. (Poet.) A founder, urbis.

FUNDI, ōrum, m. pl. A town on the coast of Latium, between Formiae and Terracina — now Fondi.

FUNDĪTO, i. v. tr. [intens. of fundo II.]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To hurl or sling at, globos; trop., f. verba, to pour forth.

FUNDĪTOR, ōris, m. [fundo II.; funda — cf. epandevrins]. A slinger; pl., a sort of light-armed troops.

FUNDĪTUS, adv. [fundus]. 1) From the foundation or bottom; hence, trop. = completely, utterly, entirely: templum f. destructum; Carthaginem f. tollere; haec amicitias f. evertunt. 2) (Lucr.) At the bottom, below: limus subscidit f.

FUNDO (I.), āvi, ātum, i. v. tr. 1) To furnish with a bottom, to lay a bottom or foundation: facilis est navem facere, ubi fundata est, when the keel is laid; robora fundatura naves, intended for the bottom of the ship. 2) (Poet.) To fasten, to secure, to make firm: ancora f. naves. 3) Trop., to found: A) (poet.) = to build, to erect, sedem, arcem: B) = to establish, to strengthen, to give permanence and security to: haec ff. imperium; f. rempublicam, libertatem, opes suas; pecunia fundata villis, safely invested in.

FUNDO (II.), fūdi, fūsum, 3. v. tr. 1) Prop., of fluids, to pour, to pour out, to let flow out: f. vinum e patera, in aras, inter cornua; f. lacrimas, to shed; imber fusus procellis, poured out by the storm; f. tempora mero, to sprinkle; in a middle sense = to flow: oritur funditur. Hence: A) (poet. & lat.) to make liquid, to melt, to cast: f. ferrum: B) (poet.) to wet, to moisten, to pour a liquid upon: f. aliquid lacte. 2) Of things not fluid: A) to pour out in abundance, to throw out, to hurl, to strew, to scatter, to extend, to spread: vitis in omnes partes funditur, spreads; f. segetem desecant in Tiberim; f. picem aliasque res, to throw down, to hurl (of besieged persons); maculae quas incuria fudit, to drop, to let fall. Hence, trop., of abstract things: f. famam, to spread abroad; oratio funditur, branches out; so, also, orator se latius fundit, enlarges, expatiates; id quod latissime funditur, which is most comprehensive, extends farthest: B) to bring forth, to produce abundantly: terra f. fruges et alia; ova ff. fetum; f. aliquem ex utero, or merely (poet.) f. aliquem = to bear; hence, trop., in partic. of speech, &c., to pour out or forth, to utter: f. sonos inanes, versus, preces, querelas: C) = to overthrow, to disperse, to rout, to discomfit, to vanquish, in gen.; thus, freq. in Liv., fundit fugatque: hostes caedere, fundere atque fugare; eae omnes copiae uno proelio fusae fugataeque sunt; f. hostes de collibus: D) to throw to the ground, to prostrate: f. aliquem humi; fusus humi, lying prostrate.

FUNDUS, i, m. [perh. from fodio]. 1) The bottom (of a vessel and the like — cf. fundamentum): f. armarii, Aetnae, maris; (poet.) vertere res Phrygiae fundo = funditus, from the bottom, from its foundation; f. coenae, the principal dish; prov., largitio fundum non habet, i. e., measure, bounds; hence, tech. term in the lang. of law: fundum esse (feri) rei alicujus, to become the foundation of any thing by approving it, to approve or ratify. 2) Real property, real estate (the land, with the buildings on it, but esp. the former — cf. ager, praedium, villa): mulieres exornatae fundis (Pl.), decked out with (the price of) a farm.

FUNEBRIS, e, adj. [funus]. 1) Of or relating to a funeral, funeral, funereal, pompa, oratio, fates; funebrie vestimentum, a mourning-suit. 2) (Poet. & lat.) Fatal, deadly, calamitous, belial; sacra ff. = a human sacrifice.

FUNEREUS, a, um, adj. [funus]. (Poet.) = Funebria.

FUNERO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [funus]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) To bury, to inter (with a solemn procession — cf. sepelio, humo), aliquem. 2) Meion., funeratus, killed: prope f. arboris iotu.

FUNESTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [funestus]. (Rar.) To stain or pollute by murder, or, in gen., by shedding blood (in a religious sense): f. aras humanis hostiis, concionem contagione carnificis.

FUNESTUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [funus]. 1) In a religious sense, stained or polluted by the shedding of blood or by the presence of a corpse, mournful, sad, filled with grief: f. manus; reddere agros ff.; familia f., in mourning; annales velut funesti, as if in mourning. 2) Causing death, ruin, or misfortune, calamitous, deadly, fatal, destructive, ominous, ignis, scelus, dies; nox f. nobis.

FUNGINUS, a, um, adj. [fungus]. (Pl.) Of a mushroom: genus f.

FUNGOR, etus, 3. v. dep. intr. 1) To be occupied or engaged in any thing, to occupy one's self with, to perform, to do, to execute, to discharge: f. militiā, to perform military services; f. sacris, to sacrifice; f. officio rhetoris, virtutis munere, to discharge; f. consulatu, etc., to occupy, to fill, to hold; thus, likewise, f. magnificentissima aedilitate, most magnificently; (poet. & lat.) f. periculis, to undergo; f. more, to observe; f. caede alicujus = to kill; f. dapibus = to take food; f. morte (fato) = to die; f. voto, to fulfil; f. vice cotis, to perform the part of a whetstone; f. virtute, to act bravely; ter functus aevo senex, who has lived through; (Lucret.) f. malum, to suffer (also abs. = to suffer, to receive an impression); muneris fungendi causa, in order to fulfil one's duty; also (ante-cl.) in other forms than the gerundive, followed by the acc.: f. officium, munus; f. diem = to die. 2) In partic., to discharge any thing due from one, to pay, to contribute: quid eum muneris nomine fungi ac sustinere vultis? f. duplici numero militum; f. eo sumptu.

FUNGOSUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. [fungus]. Spongy, fungous.

FUNGUS, i, m. [from ὄψυγος or ἐνέχυρος]. 1) A mushroom, fungus; trop. = a blockhead, dolt. 2) (Poet.) The snuff of a candle.

FUNICULUS, i, m. [dim. of funis]. A little rope or cord.

FUNIS, is, m. [perh. from φύνει or φύνει]. A cord, rope, line (usually longer and thicker than restis — cf. also rudens, etc.): ingrediens per funem = a rope-dancer; prov. and trop., ducere funem = to rule, to command — opp. to sequi f. = to follow another, to obey; (lat. poet.) funem reducere, to draw back the rope = to retract one's word.

FUNUS, ūris, n. [perh. from funis, 'what is drawn out,' 'a procession']. 1) A funeral (including both the procession and burial — cf. exsequiae, pompa); merces funeris ac sepulturae f. ducitur, the funeral procession moves: facere funus filio, to provide a funeral procession for, to perform funeral obsequies for; (Com.) f. facere prandio, to bury, i. e., to devour; celebrare f.; operam dare funeri, venire in funus, to join a funeral procession; offerri funere, to be buried; ducere funus, to walk at the head of a funeral procession; edictum de ff., tria ff. si concurrant; paterno funeri justa solve, to render the last honours to one's father; (poet.) sub ipsum f. = at the point of death. 2) (Poet.) A corpse: arena teget funus meum. 3) Death, esp. violent death, murder; hence = ruin, destruction: crudele f.; Turnus edit ff., kills, slaughters; parare funus imperio; concr., ff. reipublicae, destroyers, murderers.

FUR, fūris, comm. [kindr. w. fero — cf. φύρ]. A thief; as a term of vituperation = rogue, knave, rascal.

FURACITER, adv. with sup. [furax]. Thievishly.

FURAX, ācis, adj. with comp. & sup. [fur]. Thievish.

FURCA, ae, f. 1) A two-pronged fork. 2) Of things in the shape of a two-pronged fork: A) a fork-shaped prop (of a bench, vine, &c.), a crotch: B) an instrument of punishment, in the shape of a fork (†), which was placed on the neck of a culprit (usually a slave), while his hands were fastened to the two ends — a yoke; hence, ire sub furcam, to get into a most disgraceful slavery: C) (poet.) a gallows: D) (lat.) furcae Caudinae — v. Furculae.

FURCIFER, ūri, m. [furca-fero]. One who carries a furca (v. Furca, 2, B); hence, as a term of reproach = slave, rascal, rogue.

FURCILLA, ae, f. [dim. of furcula]. A little fork.

FURCILLO, 1. v. tr. [furcilla]. To support (as with a furca — v. Furca, 2, A).

FURCULA, ae, f. [dim. of furca]. 1) A fork-shaped prop of a wall. 2) Pl., a narrow pass: ff. Caudinae, two narrow, fork-shaped passes near Caudium, where the Roman army was shut in by the Samnites (A. U. C. 434), now Val d'Arpaja.

FÜRENTER, adv. [furo]. Furiously.

FURFUR, ūris, m. 1) Bran. 2) Trop., scales on the skin.

FURFÜREUS, a, um, adj. [furfur]. (Lat.) Made of bran, of bran.

FÜRIAE, ārum, f. [furo]. (Very rar. in sing.) 1) As nom. pr., Furiae, the goddesses of Vengeance, the Furies (Alecto, Megæra, and Tisiphone), who punished unnatural crimes, esp. such as were beyond the reach of the arm of human justice: Furiae agitant terrentque eos qui, etc.; Furiae hominis, sceleris, who persecuted a man, punished a crime; but, Furiae patum, fraternae, who avenged a crime committed against parents, against a brother. 2) Of destructive and pernicious beings in gen., esp. in fable, yet also of men — tormenting spirits, furies, tormentors; thus, of the Harpyiae; also, of seditious and dangerous persons: illa f. ac pestis patriae; illa. F. religionum = furiosus disturber (of Clodius). 3) (Poet. & lat.) Appellatively = rage, fury, madness, furiosus passion: concipere ff.; ob ff. Ajacis, the frenzied misdeed; ff. muliebres, the frenzy of a woman.

FŪRIĀLIS, e, adj. [furiosus]. (Mostly poet.) 1) Of or belonging to the Furies: f. incessus, like that of the Furies. 2) = Furious, raging, dreadful, horrible, vox, caedes, mensa Atrai; arma ff., (of the Bacchantes). 3) (Poet.) Making mad, infuriating, vestis.

FŪRIĀLITER, adv. [furialis]. Furiously, madly.

FŪRIĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Furius I.] Of or belonging to a Furius, Furian; subet., Furiani, ōrum, m. pl., the soldiers of M. Furius Camillus.

FŪRIBUNDUS, a, um, adj. [furo]. 1) Raging, mad, furious. 2) Inspired, praedictiones.

FŪRINA, ae, f. A goddess worshipped in ancient Rome.

FŪRINUS, a, um, adj. [fur]. (Pl.) Of or belonging to thieves.

FŪRIO, āvi, ātum, i. v. tr. [furias]. (Poet.) To make or drive mad, to madden, to enrage: f. equas; ignis furietus, raging, violent.

FŪRIOSE, adv. [furiosus]. Furiously, madly.

FŪRIOSUS, a, um, adj. with comp. & sup. [furias]. Prop., possessed by the Furies (cf. furialis) = mad, raging, furious, homo; mulier furiosa scelere; f. cupiditas, amor, inceptum; (poet.) tibia f. = inspiring, maddening.

FŪRIUS (I.), ii, m., and Furia, ae, f. The name of a Roman gens; thus, esp. 1) Marcus F. Camillus, the conqueror of the Gauls (390 B.C.). 2) L. (P.) F. Philus, consul (186 B.C.), and, on account of his eloquence, introduced as a speaker in Cicero's work De Republica. 3) Aulus F. Antias, a poet, and friend of Q. Catulus — lived about 100 B.C. 4) Marcus F. Bibaculus, an insignificant poet, of the time of Horace. 5) F. Crassipes, the second husband of Tullia, Cicero's daughter.

FŪRIUS (II.), a, um, adj. [Furius I.] Of or belonging to a Furius, Furian; lex F., given by C. Furius, a tribune of the people.

FURNĀRIA, ae, f. [furnus]. Baking, the business of a baker.

FURNIUS, ii, m., and Furnia, ae, f. The name of a Roman gens; thus, esp. C. Furnius, a friend of Cicero.

FURNUS, i, m. [kindred to fornax]. An oven.

FŪRO, ui, —, 3. v. intr. [furias]. To rage, to rave, to be mad (from sickness, or esp. from violent passion — vide Furor): qui valetudinis morbo furunt et melancholici dicuntur; G. iratus f. luctu filii; f. dolore; f. adversus aliquem; (poet.) f. aliquā, to burn with love for; Clodius f., se ab illo vexatum esse, is enraged, that, &c.; (poet.) furit reperire, seeks with furious eagerness; f. hunc furorem, to give vent to this fury; recepto dulce mihi furere est amico, to rave; trop., of inanimate and abstract objects: aether f. mugitibus; impetus Aetnae, flamma, ardor edendi furit.

FŪROR (I.), ōris, m. [furo]. 1) Rage, fury, madness, furious passion, a violent emotion (such as anger, vehement desire — cf. amentia, insania, etc.): f. et insania; f. et amentia; (poet.) ut tibi sim furor = a cause of war; f. coeli ac maris, raging storms. 2) The inspired frenzy of a poet, soothsayer, &c.: praesagatio, quae inest in animis, si scrius exarsit, furor appellatur; sine f. magnus poeta esse non potest; fatidici ff.

FŪROR (II.), ātus, i. v. dep. tr. [fur]. To steal, to pilfer, to obtain by fraud or stealth: f. pecuniam ex templo; venire ad furandum. Hence (poet.), f. oculos labori, to withdraw; f. speciem Iacchi, to assume the form of; f. vultus veste, to hide; f. civitatem, to obtain fraudulently; abs. (lat.), melior furandi quam bello, more skilled in artifice than in open war; quos patri furata creavit, created secretly.

FURTIFICUS, a, um, adj. [furtum-facio]. (Pl.) Thievish.

FURTIM, adv. [fur]. In a thievish manner; only trop. = by stealth, secretly, clandestinely: f. proficisci; senatusconsultum f. factum est; f. magis quam bello, more by stealth than by open war.

FURTIVE, adv. [furtivus]. (Lat.) By stealth, secretly.

FURTIVUS, a, um, adj. [furtum]. 1) Stolen, pilfered, lana, virgo. 2) Secret, clandestine, hidden, furtive, iter, expeditio, usus; f. mens, concealed sentiments; f. libertas, given secretly; victoria f., obtained by stealth; ff. viri = paramours; f. scriptum, cipher; f. nox, favourable to secrecy.

FURTUM, i, n. [fur]. 1) Theft: f. apertum; furtum facere rei alicujus, to steal something. 2) A stolen article; pl., stolen goods: ff. illa Syracensis erant exportata. 3) Trop., a secret, deceitful action, artifice, trick, stratagem: abscondere fugam furto; f. cessationis quaerere, a pretzel; furto jocosum condere, by a sportive trick. In particular, freq.: A) a stratagem (in war): vincere furto non proelio: B) = secret love, a secret meeting of lovers, an intrigue: ff. Jovis.

FŪRUNCŪLUS, i, m. [dim. of fur]. A petty thief, a pilferer.

FURVUS, a, um, adj. [kindred with furo]. Dark-coloured, dark, dumpy, gloomy, postes; f.

antra (in the lower world); thus, likewise, f. Proserpina; trop., dies f., terrible.

*FUSCATOR, ōris, m. [fusco]. (Lucr.) One that darkens, a darkener.

FUSCINA, ae, f. [kindred with furca]. A three-pronged fork; in partic., the trident of Neptune.

FUSCINUS, a, um, adj. [Fuscus]. (Lat.) Of or belonging to a Fuscus: F. explicationes.

FUSCO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [fusco]. (Poet.) To make dark or dusky, to blacken, to darken, rem; inertia f. dentes, makes black.

FUSCUS (I.), a, um, adj. w. (lat.) comp. [kindred w. furvus]. 1) Dark-coloured, dark, blackish, dusky, purpura, cornix; nox fuscis alia. 2) Of the voice, husky, rough, hoarse, vox.

FUSCUS (II.), i, m. A Roman family name; e.g., Aristius F., an intimate friend of Horace.

FUSSE, adv. w. comp. [fusus]. Widely; trop., diffusely, copiously, at length.

FUSILIS, e, adj. [fundo]. Molten, fluid, liquid, aurum, argilla.

FUSIO, ōnis, f. [fundo]. A pouring out: mundus est f. animi dei, an effusion.

FUSIUS — an old form f. Furius, q. v.

FUSTIS, is, m. A cudgel, club, stick, staff (cf. baculum, ferula): fusti aliquem percutere, to cudgel (v. Fustuarium).

*FUSTITUDINUS, a, um, adj. [fustis-tundo]. (Pl. — a jocosely formed word.) Cudgelling; ff. insulae, cudgel-houses.

FUSTUARIUM, ii, n. [fustis]. A cudgelling to death (a capital punishment, esp. of soldiers): legiones, quae consules reliquerunt, fustuarium meruerunt.

FUSUS (I.), i, m. A spindle.

FUSUS (II.), a, um, adj. w. comp. [part. of fundo]. 1) Poured forth (v. Fundo); hence, spread out, extended, campus; f. terra, large; toga f., wide; corpora ff., broad, fleshy; f. crines, dishevelled. 2) Trop., of discourse or writing, ample, copious, comprehensive: narratio, genus sermonis; ff. sumus in disputationibus; materia, locus f., copious, yielding much material.

*FUTATIM, adv. [fundo]. (Pl.) Prop., by pouring out = frequently.

FUTILE, adv. [futilis]. (Pl.) In vain, uselessly.

FUTILIS, e, adj. [fundo]. 1) That easily pours out or loses its contents, vas; canes ff., easily voiding their excrements; (poet.) glacies f., brittle, that easily lets one through. 2) Trop., unreliable, vain, worthless, futile, poor: f. servus, auctor, sententia, alacritas, laetitia, lingua.

*FUTILITAS, ōtis, f. [futilis]. Worthlessness = empty and useless talk.

FUTURUS, a, um, adj. [part. of sum]. Future, about to be; subst., Futurum, i, n., or Futura, ōrum, n., pl., the future, futurity.

GABALL, ōrum, m. pl. A tribe in South eastern Gaul, now Gevaudan.

GABIENSIS, e, adj. [Gabi]. (Lat.) Of or belonging to the Gabii, Gabine: G. ager.

GABII, ōrum, m. pl. A town of Latium, between Rome and Praeneste, near the modern Lago di Castiglione. It was conquered by the Romans, under Tarquinius Superbus.

GABINIĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Gabinus I.]. Of or belonging to a Gabinus, Gabinian: G. milites.

GABINIUS (I.), ii, m., and Gabinia, ae, f. The name of a Roman gens; thus, esp. 1) Aulus G., tribune of the people (67 B.C.), and author of a law (lex Gabinia) by which the chief command against the pirates was given to Pompey; consul with L. Piso (58 B.C.); proconsul of Syria; an adherent of Cicero in the civil war. He died 48 B.C. 2) Publius G. Capito, praetor (89 B.C.), then proprætor of Achaia. 3) Publius G. Capito, perhaps a son of the preceding, one of the most active of the conspirators with Catiline.

GABINIUS (II.), a, um, adj. [Gabinus I.]. Of or belonging to a Gabinus, Gabinian: lex G.

GABINUS, a, um, adj. [Gabi]. Of or belonging to the Gabii, Gabine: G. via, leading from Rome to Gabii; G. saxum, quarried at G.; subst., Gabini, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Gabii.

GABIUS (ii, m.) BASSUS. A Roman grammarian, of the time of Trajan.

GADES, ium, f. pl. A colony of the Phœnicians in the south-west of Spain, now Cadiz.

GADITĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Gades]. Of or belonging to Gades; subst., Gaditani, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Gades.

GAESUM, i, n. [a Gallic word]. A long, heavy javelin, used by the Gauls.

GAETŪLIA, ae, f. A province of North-western Africa, in the modern Morocco.

GAETŪLICUS, a, um, adj. [Gaetulia]. (Lat.) Gætulian; subst., Gaetulicus, i, m., a surname of Cn. Cornelius Cossus Lentulus, as conqueror of the Gætuli.

GAETŪLUS, a, um, adj. [Gaetulia]. (Poet.) Gætulian; hence, African, in gen.; subst., Gaetuli, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Gaetulia.

GĀLAESUS, i, m. A river in Lower Italy, now the Galeso.

GĀLANTHIS, Idia, f. [in Greek mythology, Γαλανθία]. A daughter of the Theban king Proteus, and an attendant of Alemene; changed by Lucina into a weasel (γαλήνη).

GĀLĀTAE, ārum, m. pl. [= Γαλάται]. A Celtic people, who settled in a part of Phrygia during the third century before Christ.

GĀLĀTEA, ae, f. [= Γαλάτεια]. A sea-nymph, daughter of Nereus and Thetis, and loved by Polyphemus.

GĀLĀTIA, ae, f. [Galatae]. A country in Asia Minor, settled by the Galatae, called also Gallograecia.

GÁLĀTĪCŪS, a, um, adj. [Galatia]. Of or belonging to the Galatians, Galatian.

GALBA, ae, f. [a Gallic word]. 1) A little worm. 2) (= Praeepinguis) A very fat man, a pot-belly. 3) A proper name: A) of a Gallic chief: B) a surname in the gens Sulpicia; thus—
a) Servius Sulpicius Galba, consul (144 A. C.)—
b) Servius Galba, a Roman emperor (61 A. D.).

GALBĀNEUS, a, um, adj. [galbanum]. (Poet.) Of galbanum.

GALBĀNUM, i, n. [χολδάν]. Galbanum, the resinous juice of an umbelliferous plant in Syria.

GALBĀNUS, a, um, adj. [galbanum; acc. to others, from the unusual galbus = 'yellow']. Yellowish; subst., Galbana, ōrum, n., pl., ec. vestimenta, or Galbana, ae, f. sing., ec. vestis, a woman's garment of a yellowish colour; hence, trop. (lat. poet.) = effeminate.

GALBEUM, i, n. A bracelet or fillet (worn as an ornament or in time of sickness).

GĀLEA, ae, f. A helmet (usually of leather—cf. cassis).

GĀLEĀTUS, a, um, adj. [galeo]. Furnished or covered with a helmet; subst., Galeatus, i, m., a soldier wearing a helmet.

GĀLEO, āvi, ātum, i. v. tr. [galea]. To furnish or cover with a helmet: milites in campo jubet galeari.

GĀLEŌTAE, ārum, m. pl. [= γαλεῶται]. Interpreters of omens, in Sicily.

GĀLERĪCŪLUM, i, n. [dim. of galerum]. A peruke, periwig.

GĀLERĪTUS, a, um, adj. [galerum]. (Poet. & lat.) Covered with a cap or hood: avis g., the crested lark.

GĀLERĪUS (I.), ii, m., and Gālĕria, ae, f. A Roman family name; thus, esp. 1) G. Maximianus, joint emperor with Constantius Chlorus (A. D. 305—311). 2) G. Trachalus, an orator, in the reign of Otho. 3) Galeria, ae, f., the wife of the Emperor Vitellius.

GĀLERĪUS (II.), a, um, adj. [Galerius I.]. Of or relating to a Galerius; tribus G., one of the rural tribes.

GĀLERUM, i, n. or Gālĕrus, i, m. [kindred with galea]. 1) A cap or bonnet in the shape of a helmet, made of raw skin, and used by priests, warriors, country people, &c. 2) A kind of peruke.

GĀLĪLAEA, ae, f. Galilee, a district in Northern Palestine.

GĀLĪLAEUS, a, um, adj. [Galilaea]. Galilean: subst., Galilaei, ōrum, m. pl., Galileans, the inhabitants of Galilee.

GALLA (I.), ae, f. A gall-nut.

GALLA (II.), ae, f. A woman of Gaul—v. Galli I., and Gallus II.

GALLAECI, ōrum, m. pl. [= Καλλαῖοι]. A tribe in Hispania Tarraconensis.

GALLAECUS, a, um, adj. [Gallaeci]. Of or belonging to the Gallaeci, Gallesian; in partic., a surname of A. Brutus, given to him for his victory over the Gallaeci.

GALLI (I.), ōrum, m. pl. The Gauls, a powerful and widely extended Celtic tribe, dwelling originally in France, and spreading from there to Upper Italy (and to Asia Minor—v. Galatae).

GALLI (II.), ōrum, m. pl. The priests of Cybele. GALLIA, ae, f. [Galli I.]. The country of the Gauls; in partic., G. Cisalpina or citerior, Upper Italy; G. Transalpina or ulterior, the modern France; G. Belgica, the modern Belgium and Holland, as far as the Rhine.

GALLĪCĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Galli]. Of or belonging to the Roman province Gallia (in Upper Italy—ager Gallicus), Gallican: legiones GG.; subst., Gallicani, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of the province Gallia.

GALLICE, adv. [Gallicus]. (Lat.) After the manner of the Gauls.

GALLĪCUS, a, um, adj. 1) [Galli I.] Of or belonging to the Gauls, Gallic: ager G. or provincia G., a part of Umbria; canis G., a kind of greyhound; subst., Gallica, ae, f., a Gallic shoe. 2) [Gallus III.] Of or belonging to the river Gallus = Phrygian, Trojan, in gen. 3) [Galli II.] Of or belonging to the priests of Cybele.

GALLI-IAMBUS (or Galliambus), i, m. [Gallus IV.]. A song of the priests of Cybele.

GALLĪNA, ae, f. [gallus I.]. 1) A hen; as a term of endearment, my chicken; prov., gallinae albae filius, a child of fortune. 2) Ad Gallinas, the name of a villa near Rome. 3) M., the name of a Roman gladiator.

GALLĪNĀCEUS, a, um, adj. [gallina]. Of or belonging to poultry: gallus g., a poultry-cock.

GALLĪNĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [gallina]. 1) Of or belonging to poultry, vas; hence, subst., Gallinariarius, ii, m., one who keeps poultry, a pouter. 2) Silva g., a forest in Campania.

GALLIUS, ii, m., and Gallia, ae, f. The name of a Roman gens; thus, esp. Quintus G., accused of ambitus, and defended by Cicero.

GALLO-GRAECI, ōrum, m. pl. = Galatae.

GALLO-GRAECIA, ae, f. = Galatia.

GALLŌNIUS, ii, m. The name of a Roman gens; thus, esp. 1) Publius G., a noted epicure. 2) Caius G., an adherent of Pompey in the civil war.

GALLUS (I.), i, m. A cock; prov., gallus in sterquilinio suo plurimum potest, every man is master in his own house.

GALLUS (II.), i, m. A Gaul.

GALLUS (III.), i, m. [= Γάλλος]. A river in Phrygia, whose water, acc. to fable, made those who drank of it mad—now the Gatipo.

GALLUS (IV.), i, m. A priest of Cybele, usually in the pl., Galli, so called (after the river Gallus) from their raving, during the paroxysms of which they emasculated themselves; hence, sarcastically called Gallae, ūrum, f. pl.

GALLUS (V.), i, m. A surname in several Roman gentes (Aelia, Cornelia, Sulpicia, q. v.).

GAMĒLIO, ōnis, m. [= Γαμηλιών]. A Latin form of the name of the seventh Attic month, corresponding with the latter part of our January and the first half of February.

GĀNEA, ae, f. (ante-cl. also Gānēum, i, n.) [kindred with γάνηαι or γάνος]. A cook-shop, eating-house, pot-house, as a place of gluttony and licentiousness (of. caupona, popina, deversorium).

GĀNEARIUS, a, um, adj. [ganea]. Of or belonging to a pot-house.

GĀNEO, ōnis, m. [ganea]. A glutton, debauchee.

GANGĀBA, ae, m. [a Persian word]. A carrier of bundles, a porter (= bajulus).

GANGĀRIDAE, ārum, m. pl. [= Γαγγαρίδαι]. An Indian tribe, living on the Ganges, in what is now Bengal.

GANGES, is, m. [= Γάγγης]. The Ganges, a river in India.

GANGĒTICUS, a, um, adj. [= Γαγγητικός]. Of or belonging to the Ganges, Gangetic.

GANGĒTIS, idia, adj. [= Γαγγήτις.] = Gangeticus.

GANNIO, 4. v. intr. To yelp, to yell, to bark (of dogs — cf. latro); trop. (of men) = to quarrel, to snarl, to growl, to grumble: quid ille gannit? quid vult?.

GANNITUS, ūs, m. [gannio]. (Poet.) A yelping, barking (of dogs); trop. (of men), quarrelling, snarling, growling.

GĀNYMEDES, is, m. [= Γανυμήδης]. 1) A son of the Trojan king Troy, who was carried by Jupiter's eagle to heaven, and made his cup-bearer instead of Hebe. 2) A eunuch at the court of Alexandria, and enemy of Caesar.

GĀRĀMANTES, tum, m. pl. [= Γαράμαρες]. A tribe in the interior of Northern Africa, in the modern Fezzan.

GĀRĀMANTICUS, a, um, } adj. [Garaman-GĀRĀMANTIS, idis, f. } tes]. Of or belonging to the Garamantes, Garamantian; (poet.) = African, in gen.

GARGĀNUS (I.), i, m. A woody promontory of Apulia, now Monte Gargano, or Monte di S. Angelo.

GARGĀNUS (II.), a, um, adj. [Garganus I.]. Of or belonging to Garganus, Gargan.

GARGĀPHIE, ae, f. [= Γαργαφία]. A valley, with a fountain, near Platææ, in Boeotia.

GARGĀRA, ōrum, n. pl. [= ῥά Γάργαρα]. The upper part of Mount Ida, in Mysia, with a town of the same name at its base.

GARGĀRIZO, 1. v. tr. & intr. [= γαργαρίζω]. (Lat.) To gargle, aliqua re.

GARGETTIUS, ii, m. [= Γαργητίως]. The gargettian, i. e., the philosopher Epicurus, who was born at Gargettus (Γαργητός), a place in Attica.

GARGĪLIUS, ii, m. The name of a Roman gens; thus, esp. Gargilius, a famous hunter.

GARITES, tum, m. pl. A people of Gallia Aquitania.

GARRIO, Ivi or ii, Itum, 4. v. tr. [γάρρῳ] Prop. of the natural sounds of frogs, birds, &c. hence, also, of men = to chat, to chatter, to prate, to talk (of. harilor, etc.): g. quidlibet, fabellas; improp., g. libros, plura = to write; garris, you talk foolishly.

GARRŪLITAS, ātis, f. [garrulus]. Loquacity, talkativeness, garrulity.

GARRŪLUS, a, um, adj. [garrio]. 1) Talkative, prattling, prating, loquacious, garrulous: percontatorem fugito, nam garrulus idem est; lingua g.; hora g., that is chatted away. 2) Of animals or things whose voice or noise is continually heard, chattering, babbling, purring, murmuring, &c.: g. cornix, cantus lusciniæ, flatus, rivus, lyra.

GĀRUM, i, n. [= γάρρῳ]. A fish-sauce, made of small salted sea-fish, and highly esteemed by the Romans.

GĀRUMNA, ae, f. A river of Gaul, now the Garonne.

GĀRUMNI, ōrum, m. pl. A Gallic tribe, living on the banks of the Garonne, in the modern Depart. de la haut Garonne.

GAUDEO, gavisus sum, 2. v. intr. [root GA, ΓΑ; whence, also, γαίω, γνῖω; from γαίω, or, with digamma, γαίω, comes gavisus]. To rejoice, to be glad or joyful; to delight in, to take pleasure or rejoice in any thing (of inward pleasure — cf. laetor): g. illa re (correctione, acquitate, sorte mea); (poet.) g. in funere, in puero; also, gaudeo gaudia tua, I share your joys, and g. aliquid, to be delighted with any thing; g. eum natum esse; also, followed by quod, or (poet.) by an infin. (g. videre), by si, quum, or quia (gaudeo quum te video, quia vos tranquillos audio); with a particip. (= χαίρειν), gaudēt scribentes, they take pleasure in writing; abs., gaudeo mihi, as for myself, for my part. In partic.: A) (poet. & lat.) = to like, to rejoice in: stilus g. secreto; myrrha g. rastris: B) g. in sinu (tacito) or in se, to rejoice within one's self or in quiet, in secret; sometimes, with the accessory idea of a mischievous pleasure = to laugh in one's sleeve: *C) (poet. — instead of salvere = χαίρειν) as a form of salutation: musa refer Celso gaudere, take my greeting to Celsus.

GAUDIUM, ii, n. [gaudeo]. 1) Joy, gladness: A) = inward joy (as felt in the heart — cf. laetitia): efferri gaudio, lacrimare gaudio; quibus gaudiis illi exsultabant? gaudium superati saltus, joy at having effected a passage through: B) sensual delight or pleasure: gg. corporis, lusu. 2) (Poet.) = an object that produces joy, a joy: attingere gaudia sua manibus.

GAUGĀMELA, ōrum, n. pl. [= ῥά Γαυγάμηλα].

A small place in Assyria, where Alexander conquered Darius (331 B.C.) — now Karmelis.

GAULUS, i, m. [= γαῦλος]. 1) A round-built vessel, of Phoenician origin. 2) A bucket.

GAURĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Gaurus]. (Lat.) Of or belonging to Mount Gaurus.

GAURUS, i, m. A mountain in Campania, celebrated for its wine — now Monte Gauro.

GAUSĀPA, ae, f, um, adj. [Gausape (q. v.).]

GAUSĀPĀTUS, a, um, adj. [gausape]. (Lat.)

Glad in or wearing a gausape.

GAUSĀPE, is, n. [= γαυσάπης]. (Poet. & lat.) A thick woollen cloth, used for garments, table-cloths, &c., frieze; in particular = a table-cloth.

GAUSĀPES, is, m. }

GAUSĀPUM, i, n. } = Gausape (q. v.).

GĀVIUS, ii, m. A Roman family name; thus, esp. Lucius G., who was crucified by Verres.

GĀZA (I.), ae, f. [a Persian word = γάζα].

1) The royal treasure in Persia. 2) Treasure, riches, wealth, in gen.; in later writers and poets, also in the pl.

GĀZA (II.), ae, f. [= γάζα]. A town in Palestine, now Gaza or Ghaza.

GEBENNA — v. Cebenna.

GEBENNĪCUS (Ceb. or Cev.), a, um, adj. [Gebenna]. Of or belonging to the Cevennes, montes.

GEDRŌSI, ōrum, m. pl. [= Γεδρωσί]. The inhabitants of Gedrosia.

GEDRŌSIA, ae, f. [= Γεδρωσία]. A province of Persia, between Carmania and India — now Mekran.

GEDŪSĀNUS AGER. An unknown territory in Asia.

GEIDŪNI, ōrum, m. pl. A people ruled by the Nervii.

GĒLA, ae, f. [= Γῆλα]. 1) A town on the south coast of Sicily, originally called Lindos, afterwards Gela — now Alicata or Terra Nuova. 2) A river in Sicily, near the town Gela — now Fiume di Ghiozzo.

GĒLĀSĪNUS, i, m. [= γελᾶσινος]. (Lat.) A dimple in the cheek produced by smiling.

GĒLENSES, ium, m. pl. [Gela]. The inhabitants of Gela.

*GĒLIDE, adv. [gelidus]. Coldly; trop. = Coolly, faintly.

GĒLĪDUS, a, um, adj. w. comp. & sup. [gelu]. Cold as ice, very cold, icy cold (cf. frigidus), coelum, nox, aqua, Haemus; subst., Gelida, ae, f. (sc. aqua), ice-cold water. Hence, trop. (poet.) cold, stiff, chilly (from death, fear, old age, &c.): g. mors, formido, pallor; g. sanguis; gelidus tardante senecta.

GĒLLĪĀNUS, i, m. [Gellius]. A slave of Gellius.

GĒLLIUS, ii, m. The name of a Roman gens; thus, esp. Aulus G., a grammarian, of the second century after Christ.

GĒLO (I.), āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [gelu]. (Lat.) To cause to freeze, to congeal: fluvius qui ferrum gelat; usually in the pass. = to freeze: gelatus, frozen.

GĒLO (II.), } ōnis, m. [= Γῆλον]. A son of GĒLON, } Hiero, and tyrant of Syracuse, in the time of the second Punic war.

GĒLŌNI, ōrum, m. pl. (also, collectively, sing. Gelonus, i, m.) [= Γῆλων]. A Scythian tribe on the Borysthenes, in the modern Ukraine.

GĒLOUS, a, um, adj. [Gela]. Of or pertaining to Gela (q. v.).

GĒLU, ūs, n. (mostly in the abl. sing.; also, Gelus, m., lat.; Gelum, i, n., Lucr.) Icy coldness, frost (cf. frigus): horrida cano bruma gelu; (poet.) coldness, chill (produced by old age, death, &c.).

*GĒMĒBUNDUS, a, um, adj. [gemo]. (Doubtful read.) Groaning. (Poet.)

GĒMELLĪPĀRA, ae, f. [gemellus-pario]. (Poet.) Twin-bearing (an epithet of Latona).

GĒMELLUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of geminus] (Mostly poet. & lat.) 1) Twin, born at the same time; subst., Gemellus, i, m., a twin. 2) In gen., doubled, paired, like (as twins).

GĒMINĀTIO, ōnis, f. [geminio]. A doubling.

GĒMĪNO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [geminus]. 1) To double: g. verba; g. decem annos (poet.) = to live twice ten years; g. facinus, to repeat, to do a second time; thus, likewise, geminata victoria, plausus, repeated; f. consulatus, filled twice. 2) (Poet. & lat.) To pair, to match, to couple: g. serpentes avibus; g. aera, i. e., to strike together; legionum castra geminantur, two legions are encamped together; geminata cacumina montium, of equal height. *3) (Lucr.) Intr., to be double, to be twofold.

GĒMĪNUS, a, um, adj. [γᾶμιν]. 1) Double by birth, born at the same time, twin: gg. fratres, sorores; g. ovum, the twin eggs of Leda; g. Castor or g. Pollux, i. e., Castor and Pollux; jocosely, sup., geminissimus frater, a very twin of twins. Hence, subst., in the pl., Gemini, ōrum, m. = twins; esp., freq. of the constellation of that name. 2) In gen., double, twofold, paired (implying equality and a union by pairs — cf. duplex): ex unis mihi geminas fecisti nuptias; g. nomen; gg. portae, nares, pedes. Hence: A) (poet.) Chiron g., double-formed (half man and half horse): B) (Lucr.) Ceres g., thick-set, stout: C) trop., like twins; hence, similar, like, equal: g. audacia; gg. poma; illud est g. consiliis Catilinae et Lentuli, it suits the designs of (others read differently).

GĒMITUS, ūs, m. [gemo]. 1) A sighing, groaning; a sigh, groan: luctus et g.; fletus et g.; edere, dare, ejicere g., to heave a sigh. 2) (Poet.) Of things, a roaring, groaning; a hollow sound, roar: cavernae dedere gemitum.

GĒMMA, ae, f. [prob. kindred with γᾶμα, to be full']. 1) A bud, the eye of a plant, e. g., of a vine: inunte vero existit ea quae g. dicitur. 2) A precious stone, a gem (from its resemblance in shape and colour to a bud): g. aut margarita. Hence: A) a vessel made of precious stones, e. g., a cup (bibere ex g.): B) a seal-ring or signet (imprimere epistolam gemmâ): C) (poet.) a pearl: D) of the eye of a peacock's tail. GEMMATUS, a, um, adj. [gemmo]. Set with precious stones.

GEMMEUS, a, um, adj. [gemma]. 1) Of or made of precious stones. 2) Set with precious stones or gems (or with things of a similar colour and form — v. Gemma): g. jugum, cauda pavonis: in particular = glittering, shining like gems: Euripus, prata gg., gemmed with flowers; rotunditas g., resembling that of a jewel, jewel-like.

GEMMIFER, ěra, ěrum, adj. [gemma-fero]. (Poet. & lat.) Bearing or containing gems, Ganges: mare g., rich in (v. Gemma 2, C).

GEMMO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. [gemma]. 1) Intr., to bud, to gem, to put forth buds or gems: vitis g. 2) To be set with precious stones (or something of similar shape and lustre — v. Gemma): sceptrâ gemmantia; herbae gemmantes rore recenti, gemmed with. 3) Tr. (only in part. pres.), to set or adorn with gems: gemmati annuli.

GEMMŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of gemma]. 1) A little bud. 2) A little gem.

GĒMO, ui, Itum, 3. v. intr. & tr. [γῆμος, 'to be loaded']. 1) Intr.: A) to groan, to sigh (mostly as a voluntary act — cf. suspiro): quum diu occulte suspirassent, postea jam gemere coeperunt; gemo desiderio tui; also, of animals, to utter moaning or plaintive sounds: (poet.) noctua g.: B) of things, to groan, to creak: mare, navis, malus, gubernaculum g. 2) Tr., to sigh over, to bemoan, to bewail, aliquid; hic status gemitur, is complained of; also, with an infn., gemis te paucis ostendi, etc.

GĒMŌNIAE, ārum, f. pl. [prob. from gemo, sc. scalae, 'the steps of wailing,' as 'the bridge of sighs' in Venice]. Steps (perhaps natural) leading from Mount Aventine to the Tiber. The corpses of executed criminals were dragged there to be thrown into the river.

GĒNA, ae, f. (usually in pl.). 1) The cheek (prop., the upper part of it, immediately below the eye; more rarely than 'mala,' and mostly in the poets). 2) (Poet.) = the eyes: exustaeque tuae max. Polypheme, genae.

GĒNĀBENSIS, e, adj. [Genabum]. Of or belonging to Genabum; subst., Genabenses, ium, m. pl., the inhabitants of Genabum.

GĒNĀBUM, i, m. A town in France, afterwards called civitas Aurelianorum, whence the modern name Orleans.

GĒNAUNI, ōrum, m. pl. A people living in Vindelicia, and neighbours of the Breuni.

GĒNEĀLŌGUS, i, m. [= γενεαλόγος]. (Lat.) A genealogist.

GĒNER, ěri, m. [kindred with genus, gigno] 1) A daughter's husband, a son-in-law. 2) Improperly: A) a daughter's bridegroom: B) a brother-in-law, a sister's husband: C) (= progenitor) the husband of a grand-daughter or great grand-daughter.

GĒNERĀLIS, e, adj. [genus]. 1) Distinctive of, or pertaining to, a sort or kind, generic. 2) Of or belonging to all the members of a species (as opp. to any one singly or specially), general: g. quæstio: g. decorum (opp. to aliud huic subjectum).

GĒNERĀLITER, adv. [generalis]. Generally. *GĒNERASCO, 3. v. intr. [inch. of genero]. (Lucr.) To be generated, to be produced after its kind.

GĒNERĀTIM, adv. [genus]. 1) By kinds, species, or classes: g. secula propagant (Lucr.); Caesar omnibus g. gratias egit, civibus Romanis quod, etc., Hispanis quod, etc., Gaditanis quod, etc.; Germani g. copias suas constituunt, by tribes or nations; ne omnia generatim sacra omnesque percoensem deos. 2) In general, generally: quid ego de ceteris civium Romanorum suppliciis singillatim potiusquam g. atque universae loquar?

GĒNERĀTOR, ōris, m. [genero]. (Rar.) An engenderer, generator: nosse gg. suos, ancestors.

*GĒNERĀTRIX, icis, f. [genero]. (Lat.) She that produces or brings forth.

GĒNERŌ, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [genus]. To beget, to engender, to procreate, to create; hence, to produce, to bring forth (prop. of the male of a species — cf. pario, gigno; it belongs more partic. to an elevated style): deus g. hominem; ita generati a natura sumus; populus Romanus a Marte generatus, descending from; also, of the products of the mind: ipse (orator) aliquid generabit et componet.

GĒNERŌSE, adv. w. comp. [generosus]. Nobly, generously, magnanimously.

GĒNERŌSUS, a, um, adj. with comp. & sup. [genus]. 1) Of noble birth, noble, virgo, stirps. 2) Of animals, plants, and impersonal objects in gen., of a noble race or kind, superior, excellent, noble, sus, equus, vinum, obsequium. 3) Trop., noble-minded, noble, magnanimous, generous: rex g. ac potens; g. virtus, animus, simplicitas.

GĒNĒSIS, is, f. [= γένεσις]. (Lat.) 1) Generation, birth. 2) The constellation rising at one's birth, a nativity.

GĒNETHLIĀCUS, i, m. [= γενεθλιακός]. (Lat.) A calculator of nativities, a horoscopist.

GĒNETRIX (rar. Genitrix), icis, f. [gigno]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) She that brings forth, a mother: g. Aeneadam, the ancestress. 2) Trop., she that produces or brings forth, a mother, producer, author: Ceres g. frugum; Aegyptus g. vitiorum.

GENĒVA, ae, f. A town of the Allobroges, now Geneva.

GENĪĀLIS, e, adj. [genius]. 1) Of or belonging to one's tutelar deity or genius (v. Genius): lectus g., the nuptial bed (sacred to the genii of a married couple); praeda g. (poet.), young girls carried off to be made wives = a matrimonial spoil. 2) Delightful, joyous, cheerful, festive, genial. GENĪĀLITER, adv. [genialis]. (Poet.) Jovially. GENICULĀTUS, a, um, adj. [geniculum]. Having knots, knotted, jointed, geniculated (of plants), culmus, arundo.

GENICŪLUM, i, n. [dim. of genu]. Prop., a little knee; hence, a knot or joint on the stalk of a plant.

GENISTA, ae, f. A broom-plant, broom.

GENITABILIS, e, adj. (Ante-cl. & lat.) = Genitalis.

GENĪTĀLIS, e, adj. [geno, gigno]. (Poet. & lat.) Of or belonging to generation or birth, generative, genital: quatuor corpora gg., the four elements, generative principles; dies g., a birth-day; partes gg. or membra gg., genital parts; menses gg., in which the child may be born; hence, subst., Genitalis, is, f., a surname of Diana, as presiding over child-birth.

GENĪTĀLITER, adv. [genitalis]. (Lucr.) Productively, in a generative manner.

GENĪTIVUS, a, um, adj. [gigno]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Of or belonging to generation or birth: imago g., original; nota g., a mole, mother spot; g. nomen, a family name. 2) In grammar, (casus) g., the genitive.

GENĪTOR, ōris, m. [geno, gigno]. 1) A begetter = a father: Jupiter g. deorum. 2) Trop., an author, originator, father: Neptunus g. profundi; g. vitiorum; g. usus (poet.), usage, the parent (of language).

GENITRIX — v. Genetrix.

GENĪTŪRA, ae, f. [gigno]. (Lat.) 1) A begetting; generation, birth. 2) The constellation rising at one's birth, nativity.

GENIUS, ii, m. [geno, gigno, γλυφειν]. 1) Prop., 'the life-producing one': a tutelar deity, genius — a spiritual being, that, according to the popular belief of the Romans and Etruscans, was born with the body of a man, accompanied him through life as a spiritual counterpart, and returned after his death to the realm of light, where it continued living as a Lar. Each place or state also had its 'genius,' from the beginning of its existence. On birth-days, nuptial and other festive occasions, offerings were made to one's 'genius': he was considered the protector of every event connected with family life, such as birth, marriage, &c. He was supposed to long, as much as man himself, for the enjoyment of life; hence, indulgere (bona multa facere) genio = to enjoy one's life, to gratify one's appetite or inclination; on the contrary, de- fraudare genium, or belligerare cum g. suo, to defraud one's self of indulgence, to resist one's inclination; sapere ad genium, to like. 2) Trop., a patron, entertainer (a term used by parasites) 3) (Rar., lat.) Talent, genius.

GENO — v. Gigno.

GENS, tis, f. [geno, gigno]. 1) A clan, embracing several Roman families, united by the same origin, a common name, and particular religious rites (originally confined to patricians): g. Tarquiniorum; more freq., gens Julia, Cornelia, etc.; homo gentis patriciae; confundere jura gentium, to disturb the privileges of the clans; sine gente, of a low birth. Hence: A) patres majorum gentium, descended from the ancient senators; patres minorum gentium, of the younger clans, whose families had come into the senate through Tarquinius Priscus; hence, transferred, dii minorum gentium, the inferior gods: B) (poet.) = a descendant: Aeneas gens deum: C) (poet. & lat.) of animals, a race, herd, swarm: haec g., of foxes. 2) A race, nation, tribe (with reference to origin and nationality — conf. populus, also natio): g. Sabina; gg. Transalpinæ; g. Allobrogum; freq., ubi, ubicumque, nusquam, longe gentium, where, &c., in the world. Hence: *A) g. humana, the human race: B) (lat.) gentes, foreigners, foreign nations (in opp. to the Romans): C) (rar.) = a country, district, region (= δῆμος): Cataonia, quae gens jacet supra Ciliciam.

GENĪTICUS, a, um, adj. [gens]. (Rar., lat.) Of or belonging to a nation, national, mos.

GENĪLĪCIUS, a, um, a ḡi. [gens]. 1) Of or belonging to a clan (gens): sacrificia gg. 2) (Lat. & rar.) Of or belonging to a nation, national.

GENĪLIS, e, adj. [gens]. 1) Acc. to Gens 1: A) (rar.) of or belonging to a particular clan (gens): nomen gentilis; capillo erat submissiore, quod gentile in illo videbatur, a family mark: B) of or belonging to the same clan (gens): manus g. (of the Fabii, who marched against the Veii); as subst., g. tuus, gg. mei, those who belong to my clan; tuis pæne gentilis, your namesake. 2) Acc. to Gens 2 (lat.): of or pertaining to the same nation, native, national, solum, religio, natio; subst., g. allicujus, a fellow-countryman.

GENĪLĪTAS, ātis, f. [gentilis]. 1) A betr., the relationship of the members of a gens, clanship. 2) Concr., kindred, relatives, i. e., who belong to the same gens; also in the pl.

GENŪ, ūs, n. (nom. & acc. sing. neut. Genns, Cic. Ar.) [kindred with γένν]. 1) A knee: genuum junctura, knee-joints. 2) (Rar.) Of plants (= geniculum), a knot, joint.

GENŪA, ae, f. A town in Liguria, now Genoa.

GENŪĀLIA, ium, n. pl. [genu]. (Poet.) Garters.

*GENUINE, adv. [genuinus I.]. (Doubtful read.) Sincerely.

GENUINUS (I.), a, um, adj. [geno]. 1) Innate, natural, virtus. 2) (Lat.) Genuine, not spurious, fabula Plauti.

GENUINUS (II.), a, um, adj. [gena]. Of or belonging to the cheek: dens g., a jaw tooth.

GENUS, ōris, n. [geno, gigno, γένος]. 1) Birth, descent, origin; sometimes, concr. = those who are related to each other by birth, a family, tribe, stock (conf. gens): natus regio, nobili genere; contemnere g. alicujus. In partic. = noble birth or origin: jactare g. et inutile nomen. 2) (Poet.) A descendant; also, collectively, descendants, posterity: ille est g. deorum; genus Adrastris = Diomedes; thus, also, the Roman people are called genus Martis. 3) In general, a class of things belonging together by birth or origin, a kind, sort, species: A) of men — a) in gen.: conventus constat ex variis gg. hominum, of different kinds of men; alterum est g. eorum qui, etc.; hoc g. hominum; freq., g. humanum or hominum, the human race — b) in partic. = a tribe, nation, people: g. ferox; g. Numidarum; g. Romanum; hostes omnium gg., enemies of all nations (of pirates): B) of animals: varia gg. bestiarum; g. lanigerum (poet.) = sheep: C) of inanimate and abstract objects: omne g. armorum, rerum publicarum; g. orationis, pugnae; elaborare in utroque g., in each branch; de toto hoc g., in respect to this whole matter; g. dicendi, kind of delivery, style; gg. furandi, kinds of theft; genus belli hoc est, the method of war is this. In partic. — a) ejus (huius, etc.) generis, and id (hoc, etc.) genus, of this kind; orationes aut aliquid id g.; in id g. verbis, in such words — b) in omni genere, in every respect — c) = way, manner: alio g., in another way — d) (as a chief division, opp. to 'species,' which denotes a subdivision) a general term, a logical genus: genus est quod — plures specie differentes partes continet — e) in grammar = gender — f) in genus, adverbially, in general, generally.

GENUSUS, i, m. A river on the frontiers of Macedonia and Illyria, now the Iskoumi.

GEOGRAPHIA, ae, f. [= γεωγραφία]. Geography.

GEOMETRES, ae, and (lat.) Geōmēter, tri, m. [= γεωμέτρης]. A geometer.

GEOMETRIA, ae, f. [= γεωμετρία]. Geometry. GEOMETRICA, ōrum, n. pl. and (lat.) Geōmetricae, es, f. [geometricus]. Geometry.

GEOMETRICUS, a, um, adj. [= γεωμετρικός]. Of or belonging to geometry, geometrical; hence, subst., Geometricus, i, m. = geometres.

GEORGI, ōrum, m. pl. [= γεωργοί, 'the husbandmen']. (Lat.) The name of a Sarmatian tribe, in the region of the Crimea. They subsisted by agriculture, hence the term is used in opp. to 'nomades.'

GEORGICUS, a, um, adj. [= γεωργικός]. (Lat.) Of or belonging to husbandry, agricultural; hence, subst., Georgica, ōrum, n. pl., 'the Georgics,' a poem written by Virgil.

GERAESTICUS PORTUS. A harbour, near the town of Teos, in Ionia.

GERAESTUS, i, f. [= Γέραεστος]. A town (and promontory) on Euboea, opposite the promontory Sunium — now Geresto; acc. to others, Kastri.

GERGŌVIA, ae, f. [= Γεργώβια]. 1) A town of the Averni, now Jargeau. 2) A town of the Boii, north of the Loire — now Charlieu.

GERMĀLUS, i, m. A tract of low land, at the foot of the Palatine hill, forming a part of the Septimontium.

GERMĀNE, adv. [germanus]. (Lat.) Sincerely, truly.

GERMĀNI, ōrum, m. pl. [= Γερμανοί]. The Germans, a large and powerful tribe, living in what is now Germany (before seen the Rhine, the Danube, the Vistula, and the sea).

GERMĀNIA, ae, f. [Germani]. The country of the Germans, Germany.

GERMĀNICĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Germania]. (Lat., and only in military lang.) Stationed in Germany, exercitus.

GERMĀNICUS, a, um, adj. [Germani]. Of or belonging to the Germans, Germanic, German; subst., Germanicus, i, m.: 1) a surname of several generals who fought successfully against the Germans. The first who bore this name, and after whom the others were called, was the son of Drusus Claudius Nero (brother of Tiberius and step-son of Augustus) and Antonia (daughter of the Triumvir Antony). He was adopted by his uncle Tiberius, and married the daughter of Agrippa. Later, he was sent by Tiberius to Asia, where he died, probably by poison. 2) (So. numus) A gold coin, struck under the Emperor Domitian.

GERMĀNITAS, ātis, f. [germanus II.]. 1) Relationship between brothers and sisters, brotherhood, sisterhood: moveat te memoria germanitatis. 2) Trop.: A) of a town, the relationship of towns founded by the same mother-city: B) of things and abstract objects, close resemblance, similarity.

GERMĀNUS (I.), a, um, adj. [Germani]. (Poet.) Germanic, German.

GERMĀNUS (II.), a, um, adj. [germen]. 1) Of brothers and sisters who have the same parents, or at least the same father, full, own, frater, soror; hence, subst., Germanus, i, m., and Germana, ae, f., a full brother, a full sister. 2) Of or belonging to brothers and sisters, brotherly, sisterly: germanum in modum, in a brotherly manner; caedes g., the murder of one's brothers and sisters. 3) Trop., genuine, true, real: illi veteres et gg. Campani; haec est mea g. patria; g. ironia.

GERMEN, Inis, n. [stem GER, whence also Cresco]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) A sprout, sprig, offshoot, bud. 2) Trop. — a) (poet.) = a foetus, embryo — b) (lat.) = a race, stock, breed — c) (poet.) = a germ, cause.

GERMINATIO, ōnis, f. } [germino]. (Lat.)

GERMINATUS, ūs, m. } 1) A sprouting forth, budding. 2) A shoot, sprout.

GERMINO, āvī, ātum, 1. v. intr. & tr. [germen]. (Lat.) 1) Intr. to sprout forth, to bud. 2) Tr., to put forth, pennas.

GERO (I.), gessi, gestum, 3. v. tr. 1) Prop. (mostly poet. & lat.), to wear, to carry or have any thing about one or on one's person (it implies that the thing worn or carried is one's own — cf. fero, porto, etc.): g. ornamenta, vestem, spolia ducis hostium; g. arma (of a warrior); g. ora virginis, vulnera, vultum fortunae secundae, to have; thus, likewise, terra in gremio g. multos lacus; gerere uterum = to be pregnant. Hence: A) (poet.) = to bear, to bring forth, to produce: terra g. fruges; illa insula Empedoclem gessit: B) (rar.) to carry to a place: g. saxa in muros. 2) Trop.: A) g. personam (illam, alicujus), to act a part, to personate, to represent; thus, also (lat.), g. aliquem, regem, to act or behave like: B) of sentiment and feeling = to cherish, to entertain, to have: g. animum muliebrem, to have a womanish mind; g. inimicitias, to be at enmity with; g. amicitiam, odium in aliquem; gerunt iras inter se; g. cupiditatem imperii (lat.); aliter atque animo gessit, than he thought in his heart; fortiter animum g., to be of good cheer: C) g. se, with an adverb or adverbial expression—to behave or conduct one's self, to act: g. se inconsulte, summis; quonam modo nos gerimus? g. se pro cive, to consider and conduct one's self as a citizen, to claim to be a citizen. Hence (Sall.), by a zeugma: g. se et exercitum more majorum, to conduct one's self and the army; thus, likewise, me et milites juxta geram, I shall treat alike: D) g. aliquid prae se = the more common ferre aliquid prae se, to manifest, to display, to show: E) to perform, to accomplish, to conduct, to carry on, to administer: g. omnia illa, rem, negotium; g. rem publicam, to administer the affairs of the state, to conduct public business; also, merely res g. = to administer public affairs (in opp. to private life); g. rem suam, to attend to one's private (esp. pecuniary) affairs. In partic. — a) to occupy a post, to fill or hold an office: g. consulatum, illud munus — b) rem, negotium bene, male g., to be successful or unsuccessful in a thing; esp. of a general, to carry on war with or without success; hence, sometimes abs., prosperare g. = rem prosperare g. — c) g. bellum, to carry on, or to be engaged in, war (only of a state, prince, or people — see the primary signification, sub 1), cum aliquo, adversus (in) aliquem, against one, yet also cum aliquo, in conjunction with one; pacem an bellum geram, whether I have peace or war (by a zeugma): F) rem g., to accomplish a deed; res gestae, events or occurrences; dum haec geruntur, while this is going on; his rebus gestis, this having been done; res gladio geritur, it is fought with the sword (= they fight hand to hand): G) g. morem alicui, to yield to one, to comply with one's wish: utrique a me in illa re mos est gestus. 3) (Rar.) Of time, to pass, to spend, aetatem; hence (lat.), with annum and a card. numb., instead of ago, to be ... old: annum sextum g., to be six years old.

GERO (II.), ōnis, m. [gero]. (Pl.) A carrier: foras gg., that carry off.

GERONIUM, ii, n. A town in Appulia, now Torre di Zappa.

GERRAE, ārūm, f. pl. [γῆραι, 'any thing made of wicker-work']. Only trop., trifles, stuff, trumpery.

GERRO, ōnis, m. [gerrae]. (Poet.) A trifler, idle fellow.

GERULI-FIGULUS, i, m. [gero-figo]. An accomplice, abettor, flagitii. (Pl.)

GERULUS, i, m., and GĒRULA, ae, f. [gero]. (Poet. & lat.) A carrier, bearer.

GĒRYON, ōnis, } m. [= Γερῖων or Γερῖωνες].
GĒRYONES, ae, } A giant, who lived on the island Erytheia, near Spain, and was represented as having three bodies or three heads. His herds and flocks were carried away by Hercules.

GĒRYONACEUS, a, um, adj. [Geryon]. Of or belonging to Geryon, Geryonian.

GESEORETA, ae, f. (Lat.) A sort of boat.

GESTĀMEN, Inis, n. [gesto]. (Poet. & lat.)

1) That which is worn or borne by or on one's self, as a weapon or an ornament; a burden, load: clipeus magni gestamen Abantis; ista decent gg. humeros nostros. 2) That in which any thing is carried, a sedan, litter: g. sellae.

GESTATIO, ōnis, f. [gesto]. (Lat.) 1) Pass., a being carried about; a taking exercise or an airing; a pleasure-excursion in a carriage, litter, or boat: solutus est in g. ludere. 2) Concr., a place for taking an airing, an alley, promenade.

GESTĀTOR, ōris, m. [gesto]. A carrier, porter.

GESTĀTORIUS, a, um, adj. [gestator]. (Lat.) That serves for carrying, or for taking an airing: g. sella, a sedan chair.

GESTATRIX, Isis, f. [gesto]. (Lat.) She that bears or carries.

GESTĀTUS, ūs, m. [gesto]. (Lat.) A carrying.

GESTICULĀRIA, ae, f. [gesticulus, dim. of gestus]. (Lat.) A (female) pantomime.

GESTICULATIO, ōnis, f. [gesticulus]. (Lat.) Pantomimic motion, gesticulation.

GESTICULOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. intr. & tr. [gesticulus, dim. of gestus]. 1) Intr. (lat.), to make pantomimic gestures, to gesticulate. 2) Tr., to represent pantomimically, carmen.

GESTIO (I.), ōnis, f. [gero]. (Bar.) A doing or performing, negotii.

GESTIO (II.), īvi or īi, Itum, 4. v. intr. & tr. [gestus]. 1) Intr., to express joy by some gesture or motion of the body, to exult, to be transported: g. nimia voluptate; g. otio, secundis rebus; laetitia gestiens, extravagant joy. Hence, trop.*, of discourse, to enlarge freely, to digress. 2) Tr., with an infin. or object-clause, to desire eagerly, to long for passionately (and, also, to enjoy by anticipation — cf. cupio, opto): g. haec scire; gestio illum mihi in conspectum dari, that he may come in my way; also abs., pugni mihi gestiunt (Pl.), my fists are longing to be at you; but, scapulae gg., itch for a drubbing.

GESTITO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [intens. of gesto]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) To be wont to carry, anulum.

GESTO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. [intens. of gero]. 1) Tr., to carry, to wear or have about one, gemmam digito. Hence: A) pass., to be carried about = to ride, to drive, to sail (v. Gestatio): B) trop. (Com.) g. aliquem in sinu = to love dearly; g. animum alicujus = to know fully. 2) (Lat.) To carry somewhere: g. aliquid ex urbe; hence (ante-cl. & lat.), to carry about, to blab out, to report as news, crimina, verba. 3) (Lat.) Intr. (like veho) = pass. (1, A), to be carried, to ride, to drive, &c.

GESTOR, ōris, m. [gero]. (Pl.) One who carries about news, a tale-bearer.

GESTUOSUS, a, um, adj. [gestus]. (Lat.) Full of gesture.

GESTUS, ūs, m. [gero]. 1) The manner of carrying the body, carriage, posture, attitude, motion: novum g. et vultum capere. 2) Gesticulation: motum made with the hands, gesture (freq. in opp. to motus, the motion of the whole body); in partic. of the gesticulation of actors and orators, both in the pl. and (colloq.) in the sing.: agere g., to gesticulate; tardior gestu uti; g. aoer et instans; gg. histrionum.

GĒTA, or GĒTES, ae, m. [Getae]. 1) (Rar.) One of the Getae, a Geta. 2) A Roman surname; thus, esp. A) C. Licinius Geta, consul (116 B. C.): B) Septimius Geta, the brother and co-regent of Caracalla.

GĒTAE, ārum, m. pl. [= Gira]. A Thracian tribe, living north of the Danube.

GĒTES, ae, adj. m. [Getae]. (Poet.) Of or belonging to the Getae, Getae.

GĒTICE, adv. [Geticus]. (Poet.) Like the Getae, loqui.

GĒTICUS, a, um, adj. [Getae]. Of or belonging to the Getae, Getae.

GĒTULI — v. Gaetuli.

GIBBA, ae, f. (Lat.) A hunch, hump.

GIBBER (I.), ēra, ērum, adj. [gibba]. (Lat.) Hump-backed, crook-backed.

GIBBER (II.), ēris, m. (Lat.) A hunch, hump.

GIBBEROSUS, a, um, adj. (Lat.) Badly hump-backed.

GIBBUS, i, m. (Juven.) = Gibba.

GIGANTEUS, a, um, adj. [Gigas]. Of or belonging to the Giants.

GIGAS, antis, m. (usually in pl.) [= Γίγας]. A giant. The 'Gigantes' are represented by Homer simply as a savage tribe of giants, near Trinaoria; by later poets, as beings of vast stature and strength, having serpents for feet, sons of Tartarus and Earth, who attempted to storm heaven, but were slain by the lightnings of Jupiter.

GIGNO (ante-cl. also Geno), gēnui, gēntum, 3. v. tr. [= γεννάω, γεινέσθαι]. 1) Of living beings, to beget, to bear, to bring forth (both of male and female — cf. pario, genero): Jupiter illum ex Alcumena g., by Alcumena; Venus alium filium g., gives birth to; g. ova, to lay eggs; genitus pellicae, born of a concubine; genitus diis, de sanguine deorum, of divine origin. 2) Of inorganic objects, to produce, to bring forth: India g. beryllos; ea quae terra g. (of plants); pass., gigni, to grow; ibi tus gignitur. 3) Trop., in gen., to produce, to engender, to create: haec virtus g. amicitiam; is eloquendi copiam in hac urbe genuit, is the creator of eloquence; deus hanc urbem g., has founded; odia hinc gignuntur. 4) (Sall. & lat.) Part. pres., in the n. pl., as intr., gignentia = herbage, vegetation: loca nuda gignentium, destitute of all vegetation.

GILVUS, a, um, adj. (Poet. & lat., rare.) Light yellow.

GINGIVA, ae, f. A gum.

GLABELLUS, a, um, adj. [dim. of glaber]. Without hair, smooth. (Lat.)

GLĀBER, bra, brum, adj. (Poet. & lat.) Bald, smooth = without hair (cf. levis): homo, colla boum; freq. subst., Glaber, bri, m. = a young beardless slave, kept as a favourite by the Romans.

GLĀCIALIS, e, adj. [glacies]. (Poet. & lat.) Of or belonging to ice, icy, frozen: regio g., as cold as ice; g. hiems, ice-producing; frigus g., icy coldness.

GLĀCIES, ei, f. 1) Ice. 2) Trop. (Lucr.) hardness, rigidity: g. aeris.

GLĀCIO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. & intr. [glacies]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) Tr., To make or turn into ice, to freeze, nivem. 2) Trop., to make hard, solid, or stiff, caseum. 3) (Lat.) Intr., to become hard or solid.

GLĀDIATOR, ōris, m. [gladiator, obsol., from gladium — v. Digladiator]. A swordsman, gladiator; a fighter in the Roman games, which were borrowed from the Etruscans, and given originally at funerals and banquets, later as a public amusement of the people. The gladiators were slaves (captives, criminals), or freemen who hired themselves for pay; hence, gladiator = despicable man, in gen., a bandit. Hence, also, gladiatores, instead of ludi gladiatorii = a gladiatorial performance or exhibition: dare, edere gg.; abl. absol., gladiatoribus = at a gladiatorial show.

GLADIATORIUS, a, um, adj. [gladiator]. Of or pertaining to gladiators, gladiatorial: g. ludus, a school for gladiators; g. certamen; familia g., a band or troop of gladiators; consessus g., the spectators at a gladiatorial exhibition. Hence, subst., Gladiatorium, ii, n. (auctoramentum), a gladiator's pay (v. Gladiator).

GLADIATūra, ae, f. [gladiator]. (Lat.) A gladiatorial combat.

GLADIOLUS, i, m. [dim. of gladius]. (Lat.) A little sword.

GLADIUS, ii, m. [stem GLAD, CLAD, whence also Clades]. A sword (knife-shaped, esp. for thrusting — cf. ensis). In partic.: A) trop., to denote — a) murder, assassination: impunitas et licentia gladiorum — b) (lat.) a gladiatorial fight: locare se ad g.: B) prov. — a) suo sibi hunc gladio jugulo (Com.), I turn this man's weapons against himself = I refute him with his own words; plumbeo gladio jugulari, i. e., to confute with very little trouble — b) (poet.) scrutari ignem gladio (πρὸς περὶ αἰσῶν ὁμαλῶν), to rake up the fire with a sword = to provoke a man already in a passion; also, to add fury to folly, or one evil to another.

GLANDIFER, ēra, ērum, adj. [glans-fero]. Acorn-bearing, glandiferous, quercus.

GLANDIŌNIDA, ae, f. [glandium]. (Pl.) A delicate kernel or glandule in meat: g. suilla, a kernel of boar's neck.

GLANDIUM, ii, n. [glans]. A delicate kernel or glandule in meat, esp. in pork.

GLANS, dis, f. [kindred with ὀλῶν]. 1) An acorn. 2) An acorn-shaped bullet of lead or clay, which was hurled from a sling at an enemy.

GLAREA, ae, f. Gravel, coarse sand.

GLAREOSUS, a, um, adj. [glarea]. Full of gravel, gravelly.

GLAUCE, ea, f. [= Γλαύκη]. 1) The mother of the third Diana. 2) Another name of Creusa, wife of Jason. 3) An Amazon.

GLAUCIA, ae, m. A Roman surname, in the gentes Servilla and Mallia.

GLAUCOMA, ātis, n. } [= γλαυκῶμα]. (Ante-GLAUCOMA, ae, f. } ol. & lat.) A disease of the eye, a cataract; prov., objicere alicui glaucoma ob oculos, to throw dust in one's eyes.

GLAUCUS (I.), a, um, adj. [= γλαυκός]. (Poet. & lat.) Bluish gray, light gray, sea-green, undae, salix, amictus, oculi.

GLAUCUS (II.), i, m. [= Γλαυκός]. 1) A fisherman who was changed into a sea-god: Glauci choros, the Nereids. 2) A son of Sisyphus, who was torn into pieces by his horses. 3) A son of Hippolochus, leader of the Lycians at the siege of Troy, and a friend of Diomedes.

GLEBA, ae, f. [kindred with globus]. 1) A lump or clod of earth: vertere gg. (of a ploughman); injicere alicui glebam = to bury; (poet.) in gen. = soil, ground, glebe, esp. fertile ground: uber glebae. 2) Of other things, a lump, piece: g. picis, marmoris.

GLEBŪLA, ae, f. [dim. of gleba]. 1) A little clod or lump of earth; hence (poet.), a small field or farm. 2) Of other things, a small lump or piece.

GLESUM, or Glessum, i, n. [a Germanic word, kindred w. the mod. Germ. Glas, Engl. glass]. Amber.

GLIS, Iris, m. A dormouse (eaten by the Romans as a delicacy).

GLISCO, 3, v. intr. [kindred with cresco]. (Mostly poet. & lat.) To increase or grow imperceptibly, to gain or get ground, ignis; trop., seditio, laetitia, furor g.; multitudo g., increases; of persons = to grow in wealth, repute, &c.

GLŪBO, 1, v. tr. [globus]. (Lat.) 1) To form into the shape of a ball, to make round; in a middle sense, globari = to round itself. 2) To form into a body or heap, to heap together; in a middle sense, globari = to crowd together.

GLŌBOSUS, a, um, adj. [globus]. Round as a ball, globose, spherical.

GLŌBUS, i, m. [kindred w. glomus]. 1) Any spherical body, a ball, sphere, globe (a popular expression for a ball in gen. — cf. sphaera): g. terrae; gg. stellarum; globi animadversi in coelo, i. e., fire-balls; hence (poet.), gg. flammorum, masses of fire; gg. nubium, masses of clouds; g. sanguinis, a stream of blood. 2) A mass of men, a crowd: gg. militum; in a bad sense = a clique, band: g. conjurationis, nobilitatis.

GLŌMERĀMEN, inis, n. [glomerō]. (Ante-cl.) A round body, a ball.

*GLŌMERĀTIO, ōnis, f. [glomerō]. (Lat.) Of horses, a curved or bow-shaped motion of the forelegs, a prancing, ambling.

GLŌMĒRO, āvi, ātum, 1, v. tr. [glomus]. (Poet. & lat.) 1) To form into a clue or ball, to gather into a round heap, to wind round or up, to conglobate, to glomerate: g. lanam in orbes; deus terram g., has fashioned in the form of a ball; equus g. gressus superbos, proudly curves his forelegs, prances proudly; g. tempestatem (of clouds) to thicken; g. fumiferam noctem (of Cacus), to exhale volumes of smoke. 2) Of living beings, to collect into a round heap, to press or crowd together: cervi gg. agmina; legiones glomerantur in testudinem; g. manum, to collect a troop; clades scellis glomerata (poet.), accumulated; annus glomerans, ac. se (poet.), revolving (cf. περιλαμβάνων ἑαυτὸν).

GLŌMUS, ēris, n. (perh. also Glōmus, i, m.) [originally = glebus]. (Rare, poet. & lat.) A clue, a ball of thread, &c.

GLORIA, ae, f. [kindred with clarus, κλαῖω, κλῆς, κλῆς]. 1) Glory, fame, renown (= honourable repute — cf. honor): excellens ejus g. in re militari; esse in magna g.; gloria fortitudinis, on account of one's bravery; thus, likewise, g. rei militaris, military glory; g. rerum gestarum, on account of one's exploits. Hence — a) (ante-cl. & lat.) in pl. = glorious deeds: veteres Gallorum gloriae; gg. meretricum — b) (poet.) = an ornament, pride: taurus gloria armenti. 2) Sometimes = a striving after glory, a thirst or passion for glory, ambition: ostentatio et g.; moriar, ni, quae tua est gloria, puto te malle a Caesare consuli quam insaurari; also, for gloriatio = vain-glory, arrogance: g. tollens vacuum vericem.

GLORIABUNDUS, a, um, adj. [glorior]. (Lat.) Vaunting, glorying, exulting.

GLORIATIO, ōnis, f. [glorior]. A vaunting, boasting, glorying: vita beata digna est gloriatione, deserves to be boasted of.

GLORIOLA, ae, f. [dim. of gloria]. A little glory.

GLORIOR, ātus, 1. v. dep. tr. & intr. [gloria]. To glory in, to boast or brag of, to pride one's self on any thing: g. illis rebus, victoriā; g. de divitiis suis, de aliquo (as one's countryman): g. in re aliqua; is g., se omnes provincias, he boasts, that, &c.; g. aliquid, haec glorians, boasting of this; and, vita beata gloriana est, a thing to be proud of; licet mihi apud te gloriari, before you.

GLORIOSE, adv. w. comp. & sup. [gloriosus]. 1) With glory, gloriously. 2) Boastfully, vauntingly.

GLORIOSUS, a, um, adj. with comp. & sup. [glorior]. 1) Full of glory, glorious: factum, mors, consilium. 2) Boastful, vaunting, bragging, vain-glorious: miles, ostentatio, philosophia; animus g., ambitious.

GLOSSARIUM, ii, n. [= γλωσσάριον]. (Ante-cl.) A glossary, a dictionary of antiquated or foreign words, with explanations.

GLOSSEMA, ātis, n. [= γλῶσσημα]. (Lat.) An antiquated, obscure, or foreign word, that needs explanation.

GLUBO, psi, ptum, 3. v. tr. (Ante-cl. & poet.) To peel off the bark, to bark, to peel, ramos.

GLUTEN, inis, n. Glue.

GLUTINATOR, ōris, m. [glutino]. A gluer of the leaves of a book, a book-binder.

GLUTINO, āvi, ātum, 1. v. tr. [gluten]. To glue together; hence, trop., to close up, esp. a wound.

GLUTINUM, i, n. = Gluten.

GLUTIO, Ivi or ii, Itum, 4. v. tr. (Lat.) To swallow, to devour, epulas.

GLYCERA, ae, f. [= γλυκίρα]. A Greek female name; thus, esp — a) a mistress of Horace — b) a mistress of Tibullus.

GNAEUS, i, m. — v. Cnaeus

GNARITAS, ātis, f. (Sall. frag.) Knowledge.

GNARUS (ante-cl. also Gnārus, e), a, um, adj. [nosco, γινώσκω]. 1) Having a knowledge of, skilful, expert, learned, practised in: gnarus loci, temporum sub Nerone, armorum; ille gnarus fuit, quibus, etc., he was well aware, by what, &c.; thus, likewise, satis gnarus, jam in Thessalia regem esse, as he knew quite well, that, &c. 2) (Tac.) Pass. (= notus), known: palus g.; hoc mihi gnarus erat.

GNATHO, ōnis, m. The name of a parasite in a comedy (Eunuchus) of Terence; hence = a parasite, in gen.

GNATHONICI, ōrum, m. pl. [Gnatho]. As it were, disciples of Gnatho = parasites.

GNATIA, ae, f. [a vulgar abbreviation of Egnatia]. A seaport town in Appulia.

GNATUS, GNAVE, etc. — v. Natus, &c.

GNIDUS, or GNIDOS — v. Cnidus.

GNOMON, ōnis, m. [= γνῶμων]. (Lat.) The gnomon of a sun-dial.

GNOMONICA, ae, or Gnōmōnice, es, f. [gnomon]. (Lat.) The art of making dials, the art of dialling, gnomonics.

GNOSIACUS, a, um, adj. [Gnosus]. (Poet.) Of or belonging to Gnosus or Crete, Gnosian, Cretan: G. rex = Minos; G. regnum = Crete.

GNOSIAS, ādis, adj. f. [Gnosus]. (Poet.) Of or belonging to Gnosus or Crete, Gnosian, Cretan; as subst. = Ariadne.

GNOSIS, Idis, adj. f. [Gnosus]. (Poet.) Of or belonging to Gnosus or Crete, Gnosian, Cretan: G. corona, Ariadne's crown (a constellation).

GNOSIUS, a, um, adj. [Gnosus]. (Poet.) Of or belonging to Gnosus or Crete, Gnosian, Cretan: GG. castra, of Minos; G. stella coronae, i. e., of Ariadne; subst. — a) Gnosia, ae, f., the Gnosian = Ariadne — b) Gnosii, ōrum, m. pl., the inhabitants of Gnosus, the Gnosians.

GNOSUS, or Gnosus, i, f. [= Κνωσός]. An ancient town of Crete, the residence of Minos — now Cnosson.

GŌBIUS, ii, or Gōbio, ōnis, m. [= κοβίος]. A gudgeon (a small fish, of little value).

GOMPHESES, ium, m. pl. [Gomphi]. The inhabitants of Gomphi.

GOMPHI, ōrum, m. pl. [= Γόμφη]. A town in Thessaly, now Kalabaki.

GŌNĀTAS, ae, m. [Γωνάτης]. A surname of Antigonus of Macedonia.

GONNI, ōrum, m. pl. A town in Thessaly, near the vale of Tempe.

GORDAEI (Gordyaei) MONTES. A mountain range in Armenia Major, in the modern Kurdistan.

GORDIAEI, or Gorduēni, ōrum, m. pl. [Gordaei]. The inhabitants of the Gordaei Montes, the modern Kurda.

GORDIUM, ii, n. [= Γόρδιον]. The ancient capital of Phrygia, on the Samgaris.

GORDIUS, ii, m. [= Γόρδιος]. A mythical king of Great Phrygia, by whom the Gordian knot was tied, of which it was said that he who untied it should become the ruler of Asia. Alexander cut it in two with his sword.

GORGE, es, f. [Γόρυς]. A daughter of Oeneus, sister of Meleager, who was changed into a bird.

GORGAS, ae, m. [= Γοργίας]. 1) A celebrated sophist, of Leontium in Sicily, a contemporary of Socrates. 2) An Asiatic rhetorician, teacher of the younger Cicero.

GORGO (Gorgon), ōnis f. [= Γοργώ]. Usually in the pl., Gorgones, three daughters of Phoreys, who lived in the farthest West, near the ocean, and were represented as winged and serpent-haired virgins. The two oldest, Stheno and Euryale, were immortal; Medusa (who is usually called Gorgo, καὶ ἑοικέν) was mortal, and sometimes the description given above refers to her exclusively. The countenance of Medusa had power to change every one who looked upon her into a stone. Perseus cut off her head, and it was placed by Minerva in her shield.

GORGŌNEUS, a, um, adj. [Gorgo]. Of or belonging to a Gorgon, Gorgonian: equus G. = Pegasus, who sprung from the blood of the be-headed Medusa; laeus G., the fountain Hippocrene, which burst forth from the spot where Pegasus struck the earth with his hoof; venenis GG. infecta, i. e., with serpent-hair like Medusa's.

GORTYNA, ae, f. [= Γορτύν]. A town in Crete.

GORTYNIACUS, a, um, adj. [Gortyna]. Of Gortyna, Gortynian; (poet.) = Cretan.

GORTYNIS, idia, adj. f. [Gortyna]. Of Gortyna, Gortynian; (poet.) = Cretan.

GORTYNIUS, a, um, adj. [Gortyna]. Of or belonging to Gortyna, Gortynian; (poet.) = Cretan.

GŌTHI, ōrum (an earlier name, Gothones, num), m. pl. The Goths, a great tribe in Northern Germany.

GŌTHINI, ōrum, m. pl. A Celtic tribe, inhabiting the region about the modern Cracow.

GRĀBĀTUS, i, m. [= γράβατος]. A couch (low, and plainly made), a field-bed.

GRACCHĀNUS, a, um, adj. [Gracchus]. Of or belonging to a Gracchus, Gracchan: judices GG., the knights who were made judges by a law of C. Gracchus.

GRACCHUS, i, m. — v. Sempronius.

GRĀCILENTUS, a, um, adj. (Ante-cl. & lat.) = Gracilis.

GRĀCĪLIS, e (sometimes also, ante-cl., Grācīla, f.), adj. w. comp. & sup. 1) Thin, small, slight (either in a good or a bad sense), slender, slim, or lean (v. gracilitas): g. puer, puella, equus, arbor, coma, rima. 2) Trop.: A) (lat.) Scanty, poor, meagre: g. ager, vindemiae: B) (poet. & lat.) of discourse, &c., simple, plain, unadorned: g. sermo, materia: C) vox g., fine, delicate.

GRĀCĪLITAS, ātis, f. [gracilis]. 1) Slenderness, thinness; in a bad sense, leanness, meagreness (with reference to the form as affected by it — cf. macies), slenderness of frame: g. corporis, crurum; consecrari gracilitates crurum (of a sculptor). 2) Trop., of discourse, plainness, simplicity, absence of ornament: g. narrationis; g. Lysiaca.

GRĀCĪLITER, adv. w. comp. [Gracilis]. (Lat.) 1) Slenderly. 2) Trop., of discourse, simply.

GRĀCŪLUS, i, m. [from its note, 'gra-gra']. A jackdaw; prov. (lat.), nihil cum fidibus graculo = the ignorant have nothing to do with poetry.

GRĀDĀRIUS, a, um, adj. [gradus]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Going or proceeding step by step; hence, trop., of discourse = well-considered, deliberate.

GRĀDĀTIM, adv. [gradus]. 1) Step by step, step after step: g. aliquo pervenire. 2) Trop. = by degrees, gradually (cf. pedetentim et paulatim): g. aliquid addere; g. amicos habere, of different grades.

GRĀDĀTIO, ōnis, f. [gradus]. (Lat.) Prop., the making of a flight of steps; hence, trop., as a rhetorical figure, a gradation, climax (κλίμαξ).

GRĀDĀTUS, a, um, adj. [gradus]. (Lat.) Made with steps.

GRĀDIOR, gressus, 3. v. dep. intr. [gradus]. To take steps, esp. to walk quietly and regularly, to step (conf. eo, incedo, ingredior); hence, in gen., to walk, to go: alia animalia serpunt, alia gradiunt; fidenti animo hic g. ad mortem; trop., nubes g., moves.

GRĀDIVUS, a, um, adj. [gradior]. He who steps forth, a surname of Mars. (The origin and signification of the word are not quite certain.)

GRĀDUS, ūs, m. 1) A step (object. = a step considered as the space passed over by the foot — cf. gressus, passus): gradum facere, to take a step; gradum inferre in hostes, to advance against the enemy; gradum conferre = to come to a close fight; gradu suspensio, quieto; citato, pleno g., at a brisk pace, at full speed; gradum addere (poet. celerare), to quicken one's march; trop., gradum facere ex aedilitate ad censuram, to step directly into the censorship; g. reditus mei, towards my return. 2) Of gladiators and warriors, position, posture, ground: in suo quisque gradu obnixi; stare in gradu, to stand firm; de stabili gradu, standing firm, with a firm foot; gradu moveri, dejici; esp., trop. = to be forced from one's position, resolution, or purpose, to be disconcerted. 3) Melon., a step or round of a ladder, a stair; most freq. in the pl. = steps, stairs, in gen.: niti gradibus, to work one's way up. Hence: A) (lat.) in the pl., the rows of seats for the spectators in a theatre; also, of things that rise by steps: B) in hair-dressing, a braid: C) trup., of rank, age, &c., a step, degree: g. aetatis; omnes honorum gg.; pervenire ad altiorum g., to a higher dignity; temporum gg.; sunt plures gg. societatis humanae; g. sonorum.

GRAEA, ae, f. [γραια, 'an old woman']. One of the three Graecae, daughters of Phorcy and Ceto, sisters and guardians of the Gorgons.

GRAECANICUS, a, um, adj. [Graecia]. (Ante-cl. & lat.) Of Greek origin, Grecian.

GRAECE, adv. [Graecus]. In the Greek language, in Greek, loqui; G. nescire, not to understand Greek.

GRAECI, ōrum, m. pl. [= Γραικοί]. The Greeks.

GRAECIA, ae, f. [Graeci]. The country of the Greeks (ἡ Ἑλλάς), Greece: partly, A) Greece Proper: partly, B) Magna G., Lower Italy; or, more correctly, the many colonies which were founded there; also called G. Exotica (Pl.), and jocosely G. Parva.

